CONTINUE WAR SAVINGS.

The state director of war savings, who was authorized by the secretary of the treasury has determined upon the issuance of a new series of war savings certificates to be placed on sale early in 1919 and to be known as the series of 1919. The new series will have a maturity date of January 1, 1922 and practically all respects will be issued on the same terms and in the same manner as the present series of 1918.

A new $5 savings certificate in color, bearing the head of Benjamin Franklin, the apostle of saving, and a former postmaster general, is being prepared for the new series to be placed on sale early in 1919.

The same drift stamp and thrift cards now in use will be continued in 1919 and will be exchangeable into new series of 1919 war savings stamps payable January 1, 1922 in the same way as the existing stamps have been made during this year into the series of 1918 war savings stamps.

Because of chaotic conditions in Europe, the articles used in manufacturing a full strength for many months, and in addition, enormous expenditures will be necessary for the reconstruction of the country.

The treasury department feels confident that every individual in the country will contribute to the purchase of war savings and drift stamps throughout the coming year.

VOLUNTARY SAVING.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 20.—Following the signing of the armistice, the government will have to be continued at a very intensive post-war while, because of the unusual conditions in the neutral and bled countries.

The food administration's program will be outlined to the agricultural delegates at A. M. Necesses at a meeting Thursday, November 21, in the Hotel Fontainebleau, Omaha, Neb. Garrison W. Wattle, federal food administrator, has been directing to outline the plans of the food control as it will exist from now on.

One of the big features of the meeting will be the outlining of the plans for the big conservation drive the first week in December. At that time the new conservation message will be given to the citizens of Nebraska.

We must make our plans and continue conservation," says the food administrator. "This is the critical time if we are to preserve what we have won."

Changes in the plans of conservation—other funds may be obtained in the conservation but the amount and volume will be greater than ever before.

A SAFE TEST.

For those who are in need of a remedy for kidney troubles and backache it is a good plan to try Doan's Kidney Pills. They are strongly recommended by Wayne people.

Mrs. Henry Hansen, Wayne, says: "I was subject to spells of backache for a good many years. Sometimes I went months without a spell and then all at once it came on. I think the cold weather and over-exertion is what caused it. My rest of night was broken by the pain in my back. I had been that way for about three weeks last spring when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They made me feel like a different person."—Christian Home, Council Bluffs, Ia., 25, 1907.

I indulged in a round liver, Chamberlain's Tablets corrected these troubles in a short time, and since taking two bottles of them my health has been good," writes Mrs. M. P. Harwood, Auburn, N. Y.

One of the chief symptoms of this so-called disease is fever. Chiropractors do not believe it is necessary to allow the fever to run its course in order for the patient to get well. The war. "When the treaty of peace was signed, the curtain fell on the old civilization and is to rise on the new. The principles of this new civilization is social justice."
 In the use of men and resources of wealth in the great war, the United States had just fairly started to pull the American soldiers in France, has engaged in active fighting. Nearly two millions of men were still in training in American camps. Many other millions were eligible and were preparing to enter the service. The American fighting spirit and fighting force were at the height of the war. The American people were at the height of the war. The Prussian autocracy was defeated.

if they expect them to be on hand to resume when the order to do so is issued.
UNFINISHED BUSINESS.
 Lincoln Journal: Such a Thanksgiving as we have not felt for at least fifty years was assured us this year by the signing of the armistice. Our boys are still absent, but they will soon be home. The fighting has ceased. The war has ended in complete victory. To our satisfaction our own boys are free from the perils of war is added the feeling that we have contributed to the general welfare of the world. We have helped to set subject peoples free from the yoke of despotic rule. We have helped to wipe out the fighting of old wrongs. We are setting about adding to the favor of our own faith by making provision for the starved people of the old world, not refusing even our enemy when he asks us for food. Such material on which to base a Thanksgiving does not come to hand every year.

"My Country 'Tis of Thee, Sweet Land of Liberty."

I pledge allegiance to my flag and to the Republic for which it stands; one nation indivisible with liberty and justice for all.

President Wilson's decision to attend and take direct part in the coming peace conference will break precedent but will be consistent with his well known and laudable purpose to establish world democracy.

The Omaha World-Herald devotes a column editorial to a critical review of the public record of William J. Bryan. Mr. Bryan was at one time editor of the World-Herald. Since then, they have been gradually drifting apart. They are now very much at odds.

Dr. O. H. Kemmer of Wesleyan university, speaking the first of the week at a convocation, made reference to this reference to the "conclusion of the war."

The Herald has been advised that agents have been traversing Wayne county of late for the sale of stock in outside concerns, and that their aggressive action has largely succeeded. We would suggest that people invest their extra money in government bonds or war savings stamps of local enterprises or local properties. There are plenty of opportunities for sound and profitable investment without falling for propositions that are being peddled over the county by strangers. Wayne county is rich in life, but its wealth should be devoted to home development and not to latent schemes that float in from the outside.

Schools of the state have been severely stricken by the influenza epidemic. They have been closed from two to five weeks and the year's work has been interfered with and injured. School boards are usually disposed to pay teachers for nine months' service and allow them to make up as much time as possible in the summer. Some are objecting against paying teachers for lost time by reason of the closing of the schools seems unfair. It is a readiness to teach and are thus unable to accept other jobs. Teaching well or not, they are an expense. Many school boards should pay teachers

The president's Thanksgiving proclamation goes farther than this, however. It looks to what remains to be done as well as to what has been done. Our Thanksgiving joy is to be rendered, though not joyously by the sense of fruits yet to be garnered. One suspects that his sentence on this point is not the chief burden of the president's mind just now. They are engaged in the most extraordinary task now confronting the human race. "Complete victory has not yet been proclaimed, has brought us, not peace alone, but the confident promise of a new day as well in which justice shall be done and the peace among nations."

The fulfillment of this promise is the unfinished business now before the world. By what Thanksgiving it may be evident through the work of the peace congress that the wit and character of men had been equal to the great task. It is the promise of a new day in which justice shall replace force and jealousy—integrity among nations. That even that Thanksgiving will be as great a day whether we recognize the fact or not, as the Thanksgiving now before us.

Thanksgiving "Dressing"

Look over your winter outfit and see what you need for this big dress-up day. —The Master of the fall season.

No matter what you need from head to foot, men, you'll find it here at this shop—priced right and a good selection, too.

Just got a letter from Charlie Kate today. He's down at Harrodsburg, Ky. Read what he thinks of Ed. V. Price coats. Harrodsburg, Ky, Sunday.

Dear Frank: Well, I made another horrible mistake. Went down to Louisville and stopped in a tailor shop and bought a suit and overcoat. Got a fair success, but the suit is rotten.

Say, do you suppose that there would be a chance of getting more pants like my last fall suit and like the one you sent me this spring—also, if possible, send along a pair of each—same old measurements. I've spent about all the clothes money I just got to spend and got nothing.

By-jing you can count on sending me my clothes from now on. Don't anything else fill the bill exactly. Send me a few samples now—half a dozen that would suit me. I can't go in very strong on top of this mess I already have. Send me some samples that will stand me about forty bucks if such a thing is possible.

Hope you can get those pants. My coats are in perfect shape and I hate like sin to ditch them.—Chas.

It's a source of satisfaction to know that our clothes not only compete with, but actually have the edge on the best products of the big city's merchant tailor. It's worth considering, men, when you need another suit, isn't it? Chas. will get a real suit for forty dollars, too.

W. L. Fisher went to Pennsylvania for the purpose of settling up some interests in an estate.
H. P. Wilson went to Correctionville, Ia., to spend Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith.
Mrs. J. W. Taylor, Mrs. J. W. Taylor and Mrs. Henry Ley attended a reception given by Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Kieper in Norfolk.
Everett Lindsey and Miss Lulu Thompson were united in marriage at the Presbyterian parsonage in Wayne, November 23, 1898.
Agricultural and horticultural farmers northeast of Wayne, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary, November 17.
J. W. Turner obtained an experienced hotel man to lease the Royal hotel. Thanksgiving dinner will be the first meal served under the new management.
A. J. Hovater of Hoskins, purchased the steam laundry of Mr. P. W. White. Mr. Hovater expects to reside in Wayne although his son will run the plant.
Spain has yielded to the inevitable and the Philippines will come under the control of the United States. Twenty millions of dollars were the sum paid for the archipelago.
Mrs. T. W. Dearborn and children went to Illinois to make an extended visit with relatives. Mr. Dearborn accompanied them as far as Omaha.
George Juhn sustained a dislocated elbow by falling down from a wagon on the way to Nels Anderson's. He was brought to town where Dr. Weightman gave the necessary assistance.
George T. Savage of Detroit, Mich. county, purchased the hydraulic well, wind mill and plumbing business of his brother, M. P. Savage. M. P. moved to Delhi, where he purchased his brother's interests. An old fashioned bizzard was tagging throughout this county this week and business was at a standstill. Pedestrians were almost unable to make their way home to their meals. Snow suffered severely from the chilling blast.

From Ponca County, November 23, 1898.
It is reported that Prof. Jeremiah Perrigone, the gentleman who has heretofore been the principal actor in scientific, geological and subterranean explorations in this county, has lately made a new and wholly unexpected discovery, and one which will no doubt prove very profitable to himself, but of inestimable value to residents here and throughout generally. Last Tuesday week he was engaged in the business of digging a well on the farm of George J. Prout in the northern part of the precinct. This well digging business the professor indulges in not for the paltry fees he gets thereby, but from a desire for a relaxation and change from his arduous scientific studies and also for the purpose of becoming acquainted with the various strata of earth and rock in different parts of the county. In the well of Mr. Prout, Prof. Perrigone had descended a depth of about thirty-two feet when suddenly, as he cut through a tough layer of blue clay about six inches thick, he heard a heavy rumbling accompanied by several loud discharges, which he concluded to be probably pent-up gas, the smell of which was very much like that of acetone or oil. Immediately below the blue clay he noticed the long thin crevice through which the gas was escaping. Below this crevice was a bed of fine clay four inches deep, and on passing through this he came to a thin bed, two inches thick, of blue clay and coal. There was more fine clay, mingled with pyrites of iron, and then a bed of excellent coal. The coal was about eight inches thick and it is said to be of a much better quality than that discovered here some years ago by Prof. Aughey. It is thought that not far below Prof. Perrigone will find a much thicker bed of coal, one which will at once simplify the question of fuel for this county.

P. S.—We understand that Prof. Perrigone refuses to give any information on this matter, deeming it best to keep particulars of his discovery a secret for the present. We shall await developments with much interest.

A WALLED CITY OF WOMEN

A little sunny village has grown up inside a high wall to France within the last year—the square little houses stand in a splendid row and along the side of the city wall is a long dormitory for single women. There are many more of them than of the families in the drab little houses. The village is full of women—old, young, middle-aged—whose faces, hands and hair gleam as they turn to the sun. The powder which it is said will eventually affect their faces, but most of them are "young" and the faces that show are giving up their best looks, their health, and perhaps their lives in the munition factory, is of little moment to them. They have come into the walled town from various villages and devastated farms with their frightened little children, their despairing old people carrying all their earthly possessions in their bundles. In their individual lives there is no future, in all their world there is no interest but the conquest of the Hun.

No one comes into this little wall community that isaters around the big new munitions plant but those who work. Because of the danger and the blighting yellow powder, the work is highly paid and all the workers are foreigners.

The women were careless or careless, some of black action, some nondescript, the dull garb harmonized with the yellowing faces and despairing eyes.

Into this walled city of despair the Blue Triangle has flashed the first message of hope. The Y. W. O. A. foyer is the only recreational center within reach. The cars which had cafes at the end of the line a mile away now sit at every block to save fuel. The city is three miles from the factory.

"My problem," writes the Y. W. O. A. secretary in closing the letter, "the women occupied in the evenings, to give them good hearing amusement so that they will forget their sorrows and go to bed in good, healthy tired out from playing."

She goes on to tell of some of the women and girls who come to the foyer.

"There is a pretty little round, rosy-cheeked girl here who is just beginning to show the effects of the powder. The roots of her hair and her forehead are a pale yellow. The palms of her hands are a deep burnt orange and her hands are quite bright red."

"There is an ex-professional dancer, an interesting girl who enjoys the foyer and helps entertain the other girls. She is a professional pianist who does her bit at the noon and evening hours. There is one rough-and-ready girl who speaks English, whose mother was married to an American in France. There is a pretty little girl who is engaged to a French soldier who still is roving over the five minutes she had with him recently during an air raid. His mother is the caretaker here and in the care of men in the war. One of the French soldiers, military prisoners, two are civil prisoners in Germany and two are plainly in the trenches. Her home in the city of France was destroyed and she escaped with a small bundle of such things as she could carry to her hands."

"There is a sweet-faced girl who was a locomotive in Valenciennes, who came direct to us from the German-occupied section after a hard experience in getting away."

"There are the women of the Blue Triangle is helping to forget—perhaps only for an hour at a time—their troubles that have thickened their thin, stony and darkened the world."

"My foyer," the secretary writes, "consists of a hall and two large rooms with cement floors. One room has the table and park; pens and ink, sewing machines, a cupboard with telephones in a large table with chairs and many other things, and my desk. The other room has a piano, large tables, chairs, ironing boards and a victrol. There are no windows. French posters around the room—the walls are painted grey and white."

Saturday evenings they sing and dance. "First they have a chorus," writes the secretary, "such as 'The Rose Tree' or 'Home Sweet Home' and something equally thrilling, and at the final notes of triumph a voice at my ears begs, 'Un polka, mess!' The polka finished, there is a call for 'The Star American' and we sing the 'Star-Spangled Banner' (The Drapeau Bleu) in two languages."

These foyers have been established in several munition centers in France. Each one has a cafeteria, a recreation hall and some fitted up with reading rooms, writing and sewing rooms. At night these rooms are filled with French girls learning English, book keeping or stenography, that they may work in the offices of the American Expeditionary Forces. In connection with each is a large recreation field.

At the request of the French Ministry of War the Young Women's Christian Association has organized a section of rooms for the sixteen thousand French women employed in the offices of the war department.

Success has been the story of the work in France that a call has come from England in the American Y. W. O. A. being started throughout France and foyers across the channel. The English Y. W. O. A. has established centers for munition workers on a smaller scale in the possession of the American work in France, the four English representatives to the Allies' Women's congress in Paris in August, officially requested by the American Y. W. O. A. and under similar work in England.

What Determines Meat and Live-Stock Prices?

Some stock men still think that Swift & Company—and other big packers—can pay as little for live-stock as they wish.

Some consumers are still led to believe that the packers can charge as much for dressed meat as they wish.

This is not true. These prices are fixed by a law of human nature as old as human nature itself—the law of supply and demand.

When more people want meat than there is meat to be had, the scramble along the line to get it for them sends prices up. When there is more meat than there are people who want it, the scramble all along the line to get rid of it within a few days, while it is still fresh, sends prices down.

When prices of meat go up, Swift & Company, not only can pay the producer more, but has to pay him more, or some other packer will.

Similarly, when prices recede all down the line Swift & Company cannot continue to pay the producer the same prices as before, and still remain in the packing business. All the packer can do is to keep the expense of turning stock into meat at a minimum, so that the consumer can get as much as possible for his money, and the producer as much as possible for his live-stock.

Thanks to its splendid plants, modern methods, branch houses, car routes, fleet of refrigerator cars, experience and organization, Swift & Company is able to pay for live cattle 90 per cent of what it receives for beef and by-products, and to cover expense of production and distribution, as well as its profit (a small fraction of a cent per pound), out of the other 10 per cent.

Swift & Company, U. S. A.

Only Edison Makes This Test

Only Edison proves that his phonograph is reproduction-perfect by comparing his Re-Creations with the original voice. Last Saturday night he sent Madame Shank, noted soprano, to Wayne to make one of her famous tone tests, in which

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

Was subjected to the severest test possible for a sound reproducing instrument. A Re-Creation of Mme. Shank's voice was placed in position on the New Edison. Presently Mme. Shank's rich soprano came forth from the instrument. Seated in the front row the audience became aware that Mme. Shank also was singing. Though the voice came from two sources, BUT ONE VOICE WAS HEARD, proving that the New Edison's Re-Creation of a voice does not vary in the slightest degree from the actual voice itself.

Did you notice the expressions of astonishment on the faces of the audience when they discovered that they could not distinguish Mme. Shank's voice from the New Edison's Re-Creation of it? They were truly astounded that any sound-reproducing instrument could so completely baffie their musically cultured ears.

Perhaps you were not fortunate enough to be present. However, you may hear the New Edison any time at our store or in your own home. We will consider it a privilege to serve you.

Mme. Mabelle Wagner Shank and the Fleming Trio in Recital.

This community is under obligations to F. H. Jones of the Jones Book and Music Store, for a rare musical treat at the opera house Saturday evening, when Mme. Mabelle Wagner Shank and the Fleming Trio appeared in a beautiful recital, especially designed to demonstrate the perfect re-creation of the Edison "marching."

Mrs. Shank explained that the purpose of the recital was to illustrate that Thomas A. Edison, after years of work, had achieved his ideal to perfect a musical instrument which would actually re-create music so perfect that the re-creation would be indistinguishable from the original.

This was a broad claim but it was established before the evening was over for Mrs. Shank's playing beside the New Edison phonograph and sang in unison with Mr. Edison's re-creation, so called, of her own voice. This would have proved little as her voice might easily have overblended the tone of the instrument—evaluated it up, so to speak, Mrs. Shank did more to be more accurate—less. She paused from time to time, apparently at random and permitted her re-created voice to be heard alone.

This gave an opportunity to compare one with the other, and it is more than just to state that there was no discernible difference of tone quality. There must have been a slight difference in volume when Mme. Shank stopped singing, but it was not noticeable for the voice which came from the cabinet was quiet and luscious with all the vibrant, pulsating quality of that which came directly from Mme. Shank's throat. By catching the singer's lips that one could be sure when she sang and when she did not. To say that she delighted the great audience does not express it. She both delighted and charmed her hearers by her sweet voice and her charming personality.

The Fleming Trio, Mrs. Marie Katherine Fleming, Miss Ethel Georgette Fleming, and Miss Marie Fleming, proved the greatest artistry in their music arranged for "cello, violin, and piano." Each of the young ladies exhibited a quiet and self-contained ability that seemed little short of astonishing in girls of such comparatively young years.

They offered similar comparisons with their instruments playing in direct comparison with their own performance of their own performance.

This proof was very convincing. The program was varied by a rendition by Mme. Shank accompanied by the Fleming Trio, of several numbers in costume, a Spanish number, some French folk songs, and a stirring patriotic selection, "The Americans Come," all of which were given an interpretation which only gifted artists are capable of.

The thrilling story of the opera "L'Esperanza" given by Mrs. Shank was another attractive feature of the program. It gave the audience a chance to hear the magnificent voice of Marie Knapold and Guido Ciccolini as re-created on Mr. Edison's marvelous instrument.

The program closed with community singing to which everybody in the audience enthusiastically joined.

PROCLAMATION.

Washington, Nov. 18.—President Wilson, in a proclamation yesterday, designated Thursday, November 28, as Thanksgiving day and said this year the American people have special and moving cause to be grateful and rejoice. Complete victory, he said, has brought not only peace, but the confident promise of a new day, as well, in which justice shall replace force and jealous intrigue among the nations.

The proclamation follows: "The proclamation follows: The United States of America: A proclamation: It has long been our custom to turn in the autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for His many blessings and mercies upon His nation. This year we have special and moving cause to be grateful and to rejoice. God has in His great pleasure given us peace. It has not come as a mere cessation of arms, a mere relief from the strain and tragedy of war. It has come as a great triumph of right. Complete victory has brought us, not peace alone, but the confident promise of a new day, as well, in which justice shall replace force and jealous intrigue among the nations. Our gallant armies have participated in a triumph which is justly proud, or stained, by another purpose of selfish aggression. In a righteous cause they have won immortal glory and have nobly sacrificed their lives to secure a permanent peace which has been the result of their own performance.

have cause for such rejoicing as to receive and strengthen in us all the best traditions of our national history. A new day shines about us, in which our hearts take new courage and look forward with new hope to new and greater duties.

While we render thanks for these things, let us not forget to seek the divine guidance in the performance of those duties, and divine mercy and forgiveness for all errors of act or purpose, and pray that in all that we do, we shall strengthen the ties of friendship and mutual respect upon which we must assist to build the new structure of peace and good will among the nations.

Wherefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, the 28th day of November, next, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, and invite the people throughout the land to cease upon that day from their ordinary occupations, and in their several homes and places of worship to render thanks to God, the ruler of nations. In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done in the District of Columbia, this 16th day of November in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighteen, and of the independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and forty-third.

By the President, Woodrow Wilson.

The first automobiles were full of hinges, catches, knobs and handles. But the man had to clean automobiles. He wouldn't stand for these things, he rebelled. About this time the concealed hinge of the copper-clad was invented. The automobile manufacturers grabbed it. Inside went all hinges, catches and latches, and ornaments were abolished entirely. Why shouldn't a kitchen range be smooth and easy to clean?

LETTERS FROM THE FRONT

Young American Soldier Writes of Experiences in France.

Judge and Mrs. A. A. Welch are in receipt of a letter from their son, Lieut. Leslie Welch, who is stationed with a balloon squadron at San Antonio, Texas, in which he chooses a series of letters from Bud Tyler, one of his friends who has an attorney in Kansas City, before he enters the service. The letters are cleverly written, and will be read with interest.

My dear Ballouette:

Why don't you stock up your old pea bag with regular American tobacco and cigars—new recent catches of the New Six Star, same size, matches and a few bottles of milk, into a "covey" fully on all recent goods and just actually ball you your way over. You would avoid all danger of being subpoenaed, get here in time for the 37th anniversary, probably get your picture in the Post and maybe be pronounced "a hero" for the first half day and after that from 0 to 19 French girls will have taken you in hand.

As for the night there in a Harvard dormer in Paris, well, it is just possible I will be fortunate enough to attend. There is no other non-removable news except that I am list alive, 2nd, well and 3rd, learning to take my interesting experiences with considerable pleasure and my unaccountable or worse ones with as much philosophy as possible. I don't see the papers often enough to know how the war is going, but where I live we sing: "When we wind up the watch on the Rhine, The half a Crown Prince will resign. Instead of the loat, he'll be getting the boot in time for the 37th anniversary. Everything will be potdam fine." It's a pretty good sized watch, though, old boy.

Here's a date, bit from a British captain today—Old lady in hospital: "And how were you hurt, my man?" "Fellow." "Well, you've got a bump on your head." "I was leaning against a barrage one afternoon and it suddenly hit me and I fell into a trench." The Englishman's explanation of this joke was no better than the joke itself. "The best of luck to you, old man. My address, sir, is—"

Somewhere, Feb. 8, 1918. Dear Old Top: The other day I saw a gent go up in a balloon to observe the general impression he wrote was that of being in his shirt-sleeves, smoking a corn cob pipe with his chair back and his feet up on the edge of the basket. Believe me, when he got up, however, he was popular. Fritz almost had convulsions trying to make his welcome warm enough. After he had stepped enough of the landscape he saw a couple of times and returned safely to solid ground. I was much obliged to him but was just as pleased when he came down for while Fritz was missing him, he was hitting numerous and sundry other things in the immediate neighborhood. You are going to attempt to design experiments to you. You had too many lately. I'm working hard learning something of the language and faintly grasping the enormity of the whole thing. Some evening over a good dinner with plenty of raincoats, I'll give you details until you are ready to quit.

One night I saw a handful of French money from British Lieut. Colonel and three British captives at the great American game in a "hug" with the "blonde" of the kind in the English press. They are great chaps in spite of peculiarities and these killed, bare-legged, talking Scotch are the dearest companions as you could ask for. Always, alas, included young or middle aged men in uniform over here, one will see a quantity of notice being the men actually in the front railroad trains. If we could do that, I think the war would be over very shortly.

No sugar, some places, no milk for your coffee after 9 a. m. The women's high-heeled shoes, crutches, crutches or motorcars, no regular show fires to get warm at. The whole show is so abnormal that it is hard to realize even when you live it.

As for the night there in a Harvard dormer in Paris, well, it is just possible I will be fortunate enough to attend. There is no other non-removable news except that I am list alive, 2nd, well and 3rd, learning to take my interesting experiences with considerable pleasure and my unaccountable or worse ones with as much philosophy as possible. France, July 11, 1918. Dear Freddie

I take up my pen, not with the intention of flowing you the real dope in stationery. There has been a great revival of letter writing among here since I received the first of your long confectioned collection. Before I got to Camp Clark could hardly write a line, but now I have been writing a history of the war. I have been writing for the last three weeks and only a portion of what I know must have been in your mind. France again Aug. 20, 1918. Dear Old You

Years of May 26, I had not received a single line from you since I received the first of your long confectioned collection. Before I got to Camp Clark could hardly write a line, but now I have been writing a history of the war. I have been writing for the last three weeks and only a portion of what I know must have been in your mind.

War is something of a lottery. It is not a game of chance, but a game of skill. It is not a game of chance, but a game of skill. It is not a game of chance, but a game of skill.
