QUARANTINE FOR INFLUENZA CASES

Marshal A. A. Chance Carrying Out Instructions of Health Board

ONLY FEW CASES IN WAYNE

Neb. Authorities Propose to Adopt Stringent Methods to Stamp Out Disease

Acting under instructions from the state board of health, Marshal A. A. Chance is making a strict quarantine of all cases of influenza. He says there are only three known under quarantine in Wayne. At no time as a matter of fact, has the disease been seen to spread here. Due precaution will be taken, however.

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 24.—Persons exposed to influenza in Nebraska are destined to find themselves locked in a quarantine with persons having the disease. Regulations governing quarantine issued Sunday by the state board of health, Dr. Wild, state health officer, announced that an absolute quarantine is to be maintained in the hope of stamping out the disease.

"No certificate of immunity will be accepted," said Dr. Wild, "nor will any one be permitted to be quarantined one." He said it is expected that all exposures will be traced up to the regulations and if there are any violators, they must be punished. He stresses the hope that Christmas will be observed as quietly as possible because of the fact that large crowds unquestionably spread the disease.

CALLS IT ABSOLUTE QUARANTINE

"In order that people will understand the quarantine for Spanish influenza," said Dr. Wild, "we wish to state that it is an absolute quarantine. A certificate of immunity will be accepted, nor will anyone be permitted to be quarantined out of the quarantine. A strict control, the trespasser has expired too long. It required time to work out a desirable plan, and then it was necessary to get the quarantine certain if local communities would enforce same. The above plan was endorsed almost unanimously by the board of health, and it is expected that all local communities will live up to same. Any violations must be prosecuted immediately.

STATE BOARD'S REGULATIONS

The regulations issued by the state board include the following provisions:—That if it is to be understood that clergy-men, in the pursuance of their duties, are permitted to enter and visit inmates and that the same whether this disease is reported as grippe or influenza, it is to be considered one and the same and treated under all heading of quarantine for influenza.

PREMISES TO BE CLOSED

It is to be understood that no one shall enter or leave the premises, excepting the attending physician, nurse, or other person in order for the family to be released from quarantine, the attending physician, and when no attending physician is present, the family is to make application to the secretary of the county, city or village board of health within whose jurisdiction the district is, and the quarantine is not to be released until permission is obtained from the county, city or village board of health.

RELEASE OF PATIENT

When the patient is released from quarantine, others on the premises are to be released, and the premises are to be disinfected. In new cases have developed, in which even the original case, when well, can be released, and the premises are to be disinfected. For those with the disease—Four days after the fever entirely subsides.

FRATERNITY OR SIMILAR HOME, CAN BE QUARANTINED

Quarantine Hotel Rooms

For apartment, rooms and boarding houses, and hotels, the instructions of the health board is recommended in these cases, that the patient be removed to a hospital.

ONLY FEW CASES IN WAYNE

Source of infection? The belief is that the influenza was contracted in the restorative sections. Mode of transmission—Directly by personal contact with an infected person, indirectly by articles freshly used with discharge of an infected person. The more prominent ways of conveying the disease are dancing, promiscuous dancing, promiscuous visiting, crowding, sneezing, coughing, and roller towels.

HOLIDAY AS OBSERVED IN WAYNE THIS YEAR

Passed Quietly With Usual Giving and Family Reunions

Though rough roads robbed many of the pleasure many people came to town during the few days preceding Christmas and made purchases for the great holidays. No special gifts for the boys and girls came bought liberally. With plenty of money in circulation and the general business going strong and gave in abundance.

FROM DAN BURRESS

Somewhere on the Atlantic, November 30, 1918. My dear "Lucky" friends:—Well, here I am with several miles of wine beneath me, and have seen nothing but water for eight days. We left New York Saturday noon, November 23, and expect to reach Liverpool Monday afternoon, December 2.

FROM DAN BURRESS

We are nearing the southern coast of Ireland, and the mines are very good. I am put on Sunday afternoon. From Liverpool we will go by rail to London and Southampton, thence over the English coast to France. We are sailing on the Cunard lines "Ordina," a vessel built for South America, but pressed into the transatlantic service. The crew consists of our soldiers to England, has been chased many times by submarines, and August last succeeded in sinking the German submarine which carries two large depth-bomb throwers, and a six-inch gun at the stern.

FROM DAN BURRESS

Monday, Dec. 2, 1918. Last as our division left coast last night, Sunday, 9 p. m., our vessel ran head-on into an oil tanker bound for Trinidad. The tanker was hit and sank. There were orders given to get our life belts. We struck her engine room, disabling her completely. Three of her crew were killed from the bridge onto our bow. Four life boats were lowered and were crowded with fifty-six men, transferred to our vessel, including eight men who were either killed or drowned, when our crew entered the water. At once we were assured that we were in no danger, but we all in a way now know how to sympathize with the crew of the tanker who were peddled or mined. We signaled and sent wireless messages at once and then laid by her till 4 a. m., when two patrol boats arrived and relieved us of her crew. Then we resumed our journey to Liverpool. I will say nothing at present as to how it all happened, but I am sure, because I want this to pass the censors.—The vessel was afloat yesterday in a narrow channel, the life boats launched and the other crew put aboard us. RED CROSS MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN IS EXTENDED

Results Gained Slowly on Account of Flu and Rough Roads

On account of the influenza epidemic and rough roads, the annual Red Cross Christmas roll call has been proceeding slowly, and it has not been so successful as Chairman J. B. Hughes announces, in continuing the campaign until January 1. The reason of the obstacles mentioned, committees found it impossible to complete the canvass in the period allotted. Reports up to this time show a membership of 3,880. These do not include 2,450 members of the Junior Red Cross. Chairman Hughes says the large one hundred per cent cards have not arrived, but are expected soon and will then be distributed among those entitled to them. Booths for the sale of memberships will be maintained at Fisher's pharmacy and Grumble & Senter's clothing store until the campaign ends.

DEATH OF FORMER PASTOR

Rev. Fletcher J. Jordan Passes Away at Doon, Iowa, Dec. 11.

The following account of the sickness and death of Rev. F. J. Jordan was inadvertently omitted from last week's Herald:

Rev. Fletcher J. Jordan, former pastor of the Wayne Baptist church, died at Doon, Iowa, December 11. The funeral and interment took place at Sioux Falls, S. D., December 13. After having visited the last of November, en route to their new home at Liverpool, Nova Scotia, Mr. Jordan and family, including at Doon, for a few days visit with a friend. Mrs. Jordan was taken with influenza, and then Mr. Jordan was attacked by the disease.

The disease soon became serious but the latter grew rapidly worse until pneumonia developed and death followed. The illness sickened in ten days. Mr. Jordan had had a long trip to Grand Island, Neb., to make their home with the family of Mr. Jordan's uncle.

Mr. Jordan attended the Baptist college at Sioux Falls for several years and then took a course of study in the theological seminary at Rochester, N. Y. His first regular charge was at Wayne, coming here in June, 1917. During his pastorate he was married three times, survived by his wife and one child.

Late in November he left this place to accept a charge at Liverpool, Nova Scotia, and expected to begin his service there early in December.

Mr. Jordan was an able, ambitious and conscientious young man, and made a good friend during his stay in Wayne. All will feel a most sincere sympathy for the bereaved wife and child.

ing the loop, the 'falling leaf' and all the other acrobatics—make new demands upon a storage battery. The principal thing which it must not do is to spill the solution, no matter what position it may be in.

"This problem was solved by the Willard engineers without delay. The aircraft program, as such, is a battery—the enemy were not allowing us to take our time to get ready. We were asked to produce a 'non-spill' storage battery weighing ten pounds with a capacity of three ampere-hours for three hours. Within ten days—mark that, ten days!—we delivered a non-spill storage battery with the required capacity, weighing ten pounds and three ounces. That was over a year ago and since that time there has not been a single change in it—this type of Willard battery for aircraft ignition was the first time.

Before war was declared we had designed a truck battery for use on commercial cars for starting and lighting. It has been perfected, but it has not yet been placed on the market. Uncle Sam wanted truck batteries in a hurry and came to the Willard company to get them. The western coast in France supplies from the railroads to the front lines are largely carried on narrow gauge railroad lines, the trains being hauled by gas engine locomotives. Here again Willard batteries were used for ignition, starting and lighting, although we will venture to say that the 'light load' was not very heavy, particularly when Boche airplanes were hovering overhead.

The United States Navy, too, came to Willard and wanted our product. We made many types of batteries for them, largely for auxiliary power. Each turret on a battleship has its own auxiliary power plant so that, in case of an emergency, it may be able to get its main power plant of the ship when in action.

"Every Willard service station has known although not officially notified of the fact," says J. A. Carron, local expert, "that for the past eighteen months, the Willard factory at Lowell, Mass., has been turning out batteries on government orders for the use of our army and navy. We have never been able to say anything publicly about our service along this line because military regulations forbid it. Now, however, we can tell you something of what we have been doing."

"The most interesting battery of all that we made was no doubt the type which was used for the ignition of the Liberty motor in airplanes. An automobile properly driven usually remains right side up and the steering effect that we get is different. Flying upside down, loop tion between aircraft in flight and the ground. This the allies had never been able to do until Yankee inventive genius had turned the trick. So anxious were the enemy to get a sample of this device that orders were given to bring down an American airplane so that they could copy this invention and use it for their own purposes. So much for the wanted German scientists! We have known of this invention for some time, because we made the batteries to operate it.

"The great need of the signal corps for batteries was successfully met by the Willard engineers and production organization. We made a battery for radio receiving and radio sending which was portable, being carried by signal corps men on their backs. It is interesting to note that this battery represented the ultimate development in capacity with the least possible weight.

"We have mentioned but a few of the most prominent uses of Willard batteries by the army and navy. In addition, we made batteries for starting on aircraft officers' cars, starting on aircraft officers' cars, tanks and armored cars. We made a little battery for trench lights which a man carried in his pocket. In fact there was scarcely any branch of the service in which Willard batteries were not used.

"We in the Willard organization can well be proud of the way we served the nation in its great emergency. We can be proud that when new inventions and new developments were necessary, that when new engineering problems were to be solved, that when heavy production demands were made, we of Willard were not found wanting. The hurried demands of war taxed us, it is true, but we carried the burden without failing.

"Those Willard men throughout the service station organization who kept business going, who helped to carry this burden and can take pride in the part they played. Secure in the knowledge that, strengthened by war demands, times of peace will never present problems we cannot solve.

"A Willard service station today handles a product which will always stand first in its own industry, first in improvements and efficiency and first in the good opinion of those who buy and use it. We served the nation as best we could. Through service we grew." D2611.

To our friends and patrons, whose help has made our business so successful during the past year, we wish a

Madam Mahelle Wagner Shank, in recital in Wayne, November 16, proved by direct comparison that her brilliant and appealing voice is faithfully re-created by the New Edison.

Madam Shank and many other great artists have proved by direct comparison that Edison's Re-Creation of their work cannot be distinguished from their actual performances.

CHILDREN'S EYES

Some children inherit defective vision—others have it thrust upon them by study in schools where the light is not all it should be. Statisticians show that most children whose poor work is attributed to 'dullness' suffer from eye-brain rather than lack of intelligence.

The brain cannot act upon suggestions received through the sight unless there is perfect sight to transmit perfect suggestions.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher

A YEAR AGO

Ah, well, I remember how last year's December was poignant with footings and ragging and shooting an awesome and terrible foe. With briny tears dropping, we went to Christmas, the shopping that Christians assure and bought for the kiddies tin rabbits and biddies, and lollipops, lanterns, and lures. No joy was budding, but sobbing and sighing, we pushed our way round in the stores, and thought of our brothers and cousins and others who suffered on far foreign shores. And often when pricing the cakes with their lemons, the candies and wafers and figs, the tears would leave traces all over our faces, till we wiped them away with our wipes. Oh, sad was that season, for we had no reason to think that war's end would soon come. The Prussians seemed stronger, and heretofore longer he marched to the beat of his drum. So when we were gazing on doodads, amazing, on tin dolls and Theodore bears, emotion would take us, our feelings would leave us, we'd be crying and rolling down stairs. But now we are happy and peppy and snappy, the day of our sorrow is done, we've fixed this old planet, so huge shall not man it, we've fastened the lid on the Hun!

CHRISTMAS GLEE

We'll ring the Christmas bells this year without a sob or sigh, we'll sing the carols, loud and clear, the angels in white, for we have dropped the weary weight that we endured through years of fate, the years of war and Prussian hate, and we are stacking high, God rest you, merry gentlemen, let nothing you dismay, for we may sing our bows, all past, and done away, the future seems no longer dark, and like an evil dream the hour that saw a madman drunk with power, all past, and done away. Again the rafters ring with glee, as in the peaceful days, and on the spangled Christmas tree the tapers shed their joyful rays, their parents, their merry gentlemen, and merry ladies, too; the old gray world is young again, and seems as good as new; the night of misery departs, the shadow's lifted from our hearts, and peace's kind and useful arts once more arise in view. The woods, the hillsides and the dells are white with Christmas rime, so let us ring the Christmas bells as in the olden times, and let us go on buoyant from door to door, along the street, and sing the carols old and sweet that breathe a love sublime.

MODESTY

As we boast of things we did, as we whoop around and sing, telling how we set the lid on the Hun, and shouting, we should not forget, I wot, that the British also fought, and the French and Belgians did their bit, like every thing. Let us make a joyful noise, after all the woe and wailing; let us insist that we're the boys who cut us in its face, but the British and the French also held the recking trench in the blood and powder stench, and the Belgians were on the job. I'm making the armless brags we're making nowadays; with the rest I'm waving flags, yelling till I break my staves, for we've nobly done our bit; but the Frenchmen and the Brits also made the Hun throw his in some fifty-seven ways. With the allies we shall go, terms of peace to wisely frame, and we're talking just as though it were ours to boss the names, we're designing for the Brits and the Frenchmen and the Franks also faced the Prussian tanks; to forget it were a shame. I take part in all the fuss, and I cheer and snort and prance, and I shoot my blunders, and get steved at every chance, but I don't forget how well Britons fought through all that hell, how for honor Belgians fell, with the loyal sons of France.

WILHELMINA'S GUEST

Oh, Wilhelmina, may I not congratulate you on your guests? His grace will give you hundreds of new zets. There's something doing all the time when little Willie is on deck, some fascinating curves in crime, new stunts in arson, death and wreck. He's come to eat your Holland prunes, with you he'll rest and brood his fat, and we'll always secure the spoons when he has finished his repast. The Kaiser at your door has knuckled, you've let him in, without his crown; now see the henhouse safely locked, and all your parables nailed down. Oh, Wilhelmina, may I not suggest a safe deposit vault, for all the troupe you prize a lot, for everything except the salt? Your visitor's a charming slave, when he is well and wish to please; but while he survives to fascinate, hang firmly to your cupboard keys. No doubt he'll give you some good ideas to see him with his crownless brow, but you should bid your tears depart until you have secured the cow. His hair is white, his cheeks are white, bears the marks of misery; but while you listen to his tale, just pour your palace to a tree. He'll doubtless give you and Gottfried till your woman's heart is sore; but, Wilhelmina, may I not suggest a strong new cellar door?

THE SURRENDER

Moving slowly or the deep sea, the German battleships, and the sailors have seen their flag's eclipse; verily the head is sore of the Prussian commodore, as he inches the British shore, while the slipper slides, and gloomy as a hearse is the flagship of the fleet, and the other ships are worse, and the captains have cold feet; 'tis a black and gloomy fate for a navy that was great; just the bosom to the mate, 'tis a blitzen and respect the sea, for in his pride, 'Prussia's future is afloat; round the world my sword shall ride in a Hohenzollern boat; but his warship is sad, and the stricken sailors wail, 'This is where we lose our goat. Oh, the British long had prayed these ships were sent to hell and fight, but the Tentons seemed afraid of old England and her might; so, unblinded by a shot, they are sailing for spots where the British squadrons squat, and the flag they bear is white. 'Oh, our future's on the wave,' said old Wilhelm, on a day; and that future found a grave where the heaving billows play; there, among the cultured sharks of Prussia, were herarks, while the captains made remarks that would make your hair turn gray.

AT LAST

So long we sighed for 'peace on earth'—the kind that Christmas brings, but could not get a nickel worth, because of batty kings; for four long years they tried, the goats, to force their Kultur down our throats; they sprung their mine and murder bots, and other deadly things. 'Good will to men' was out of vogue, all over sea and land, and in its place, 'good will to the enemy' bore a German brand; the world was full of batty smoke, of blood and wounds and mangled folk, and men forgot to laugh and joke, and kindness was canned. Now comes the time of peace on earth, the clouds are like away, joy let us wash celebrating mirth, observe the Christmas days; for He whose birth we celebrate has brought us triumph over hate and humbled kings who once were great, and torn them from their prey. 'Though sorrow gamely plants its stakes, and turns for joy, when victory comes, when the morning breaks, as seeds and prophets write, this is the morn of happy time, the end of tyrants and their crimes, so let us make the Christmas chimbley ring out a world's delight.

What Does Testing Mean?

'Testing' means finding specific gravity of battery solution by measuring it with the hydrometer.

The test is simple, but of utmost importance because it is the only means of telling whether your battery is being kept in condition by proper charging or weakened by starvation.

Testing is an important part of the service that you as a user of a Willard Storage Battery are entitled to receive. We will make the test for you or show you how you can keep tabs on your battery by testing it yourself every week or two.

When you come for your next test ask for the booklet, 'A Mark with a Meaning for You.'

STATE'S WHEAT CROP. Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 21.—The wheat crop this year is $8,425,680, or 22,000,000 more than any previous year in the history of the state, according to the figures of a representative report put out by the Nebraska board of agriculture and the United States bureau of crop estimates. The high value of the wheat prices paid through government guarantee, since in production the state was below any year since 1905 with the exception of 1917, when the winter wheat crop of the state was four-fifths winter killed. The number of bushels estimated for 1918 was 432,124,6 while the year before it was only 12,602,934. The best previous year was in 1916, when 62,328,238 bushels were grown, but the value at that time, the crop was only $2,328,303 or close to $4,000,000 below the present year.

FOCH'S SIMPLICITY. New York City, Dec. 21.—Marshal Foch called upon President Wilson clad in a "much worn blue uniform" and "wearing an old straw cap." Possibly he had read about democratic simplicity in his delectable book that can be taken for granted. HERE IS YOUR CHANCE TO LEARN ABOUT TRACTORS. Tractor Schools to Help All Who Are Interested in Power Farming. Tractor schools are to be held in Norfolk, Neb., January 2nd and 3rd, 1919, Bedford, S. D., January 6th and 7th, Geddes, S. D., January 9th and 10th, Glasgow, S. D., January 20th and 21st, Wausa, Neb., January 23rd and 24th, Sheldon, Ia., January 28th and 29th, and Sioux City, Iowa, January 30th and 31st. This is a rare opportunity for tractor owners and all who are interested in farm power. You will get some valuable first-hand information on tractors. A tractor is not a complicated machine but there are a great many more things to know about a tractor than the name of ordinary farm machines. If the owner is to keep the tractor running properly he should understand it thoroughly. It is very important that all tractors are kept in good condition, especially is that true this year. If the operator understands his tractor, it will be able to prevent many troubles. He will also be able to take care of most of his fuel and to keep the tractor running the maximum number of hours. It is to the advantage of the tractor owner to attend the tractor school and learn about the underlying principles of tractor construction and all the little tricks in tractor operation and care. The tractor schools to be held by the International Harvester company will be thoroughly practical in every way. The instructors are men who have been handling tractors for a number of years and not only know the theory but have operated them and can give you the benefit of their practical experience. Come prepared to ask questions. You are invited to put your problems up to the instructors and we assure you they will be in a position to be of help. It might be a good plan for you to make a list of the things you want to know about your tractor and have them ready at the tractor school. Time may not permit answering all the questions but they will be answered by correspondence by the instructor. We will give you in the form of a book every possible effort will be made to give you a full course of the information that will help you. The company has prepared a book covering the principles of construction, care and operation of tractors, and all who attend the tractor school will receive a copy of this interesting and powerful training. If you book free of charge. It deals with the most important points and have the points of discussion that will help you in your work. You will be brought up at the school and will receive the benefit of the experience of the best men in the industry. Every owner of a tractor or engine who attend because they can study the principles of the tractor. Authorities say that this book is capable of saving the time to be at the best one on tractor now in the world. It will be worth your price. Don't forget the dates. Plan to attend at least one school. Write lead. There will be no fees for the International Harvester charges for any of the instruction. Company at Sioux City, Iowa, for program and enrollment card. Half a Century Ago

Half a Century Ago, every community could be supplied to some extent with locally-dressed meat, drawing on live stock raised nearby. Now two-thirds of the consuming centers, with millions of people, are one to two thousand miles away from the principal live-stock producing sections, which are sparsely settled. The American meat packing industry of today is the development of the best way to perform a national service. The function of providing meat had to develop accordingly. Those men who first grasped the elements of the changing problem created the best facilities to meet it—large packing plants and branch houses at strategic points, refrigerating equipment (including cars), car routes, trained organization, profitable outlets for former waste — which became the natural, inevitable channels for the vast flow of meat across the country. If there were a better way to perform this necessary service, American ingenuity and enterprise would have discovered it, and others would now be using it. During 1918, Swift & Company has earned a profit on meats (and meat by-products) of less than 2 1/2 cents per dollar of sales — too small a profit to have any appreciable effect on prices.
