REDEEMING PLEDGES.

Lincoln, March 2.—With less than half of the legislative session over, if it should run as long as in the past, the republican platform has redeemed over half of its platform pledges, and bills are pending in the house and senate covering every other pledge which the party made to the people.

When the legislative bills stop circulating in the legislature in two or three years in the past, the republicans have had a working majority in both branches, will wind up their labors after having made good every promise made during the campaign. Moreover, the legislature will establish the record of making good platform pledges, every recommendation made by Governor McKelvie in his message to legislature.

Pledges Fulfilled.

Two platform pledges were fulfilled before the end of the second week they were:

1. Ratification of the national prohibition amendment.

2. Adoption of a joint resolution asking congress to pass the national flag act of 1907.

The republican platform contained a plank favoring equal suffrage. There is now a bill pending in the senate extending the right of suffrage to the colored people by the 1907 legislation, but it is in the form of a constitutional amendment and suffrage law.

The republican platform also contained a plank favoring the farmer. The republican platform of the fight in the United States senate before expressing their wishes with regard to the enactment of this bill.

Men Do Best What They Like Best

We like, dream, think—yes, love—the oil business, and our pride is in our work and the goods we handle.

Uniformity of really high quality is the keynote of our business expressed in both the goods we sell and the service we offer.

Our goods are standardized and uniform. We guarantee to please you as to quality. Service second to none.

We have recently returned from a general sales-meet and school of instruction, at which the best lubricating engineers in the country were in attendance. Many tests were made with different oils, under actual working conditions, in various models of automobile and tractor engines. From the knowledge so gained we feel that we are in a better position than ever to help you solve your lubrication problems.

of her problem. Results have proved that her judgment was right. Thousands of cans of fruit and vegetables have been put up and sold from this country home. One lot the home-demonstration agent helped her sell brought $125.

Pig Clubs Lay Good Foundation.

Distribution of pure-bred pigs among the club members in Utah has laid a foundation for much improvement in the quality of the pigs raised throughout the state, reports the Utah state club leader. Early last spring it was thought that four or five carloads of pure-bred sows would be sufficient to supply the club members, and arrangements were made through the Ogden and Salt-Lake City stockyards for this number—bankers to furnish loans to club members. It was soon found that more animals could be handled to advantage, and six carloads were purchased—A month later the number of cars ordered had increased to ten, and none of the shipments contained anything but pure-bred sows bred to farrow in April. The demand for pigs was so great that following this distribution 800 eight-week-old pigs were distributed by July 1. Many of the pure bred pigs secured were purchased from a father and son in Nebraska, who were in the hog business as a result of a prize pig won by the son in his corn-club work four years previous.

Horse Still a Going Concern.

Horses are hardly maintaining their number on farms in this country, in consequence of the auto-truck, the automobile and the needs of the war, and yet there are nearly as many in the country now as a year ago, according to the bureau of crop estimates of the United States department of agriculture. Furthermore, there are now one-third of a million more than at the beginning of the war. It was expected that the war would stampede the horse market in this country and would send prices high enough to rob the farms of a large number of much-needed work animals, but there was no such shock as was expected. From 1910 to 1915, horses on farms increased a little each year, usually over 1 per cent, and since 1915, the increase of four years has apparently been over 300,000. The present total, according to the estimates is 21,534,000 horses. The exports of horses during the war to December 31, 1918, have been slightly more than 1,000,000 as the war rate the normal exports would have been about 120,000. As far as covered by domestic exports, the war made an extra demand on farmers for almost 500,000 horses. To this must be added the extra demand of the United States government. By January 11, 1919, the war had increased the demand on shipped horses nearly 390,000, and on November 2, 1918, that department had in this country nearly 165,000 horses. The apparent figures of extra-demand on the farmers of the United States by this country and the allies were horses on account of the war made a total of about 1,100,000 horses in exports and in the service of the war department. The actual number is greater by the normal exports, and hence about 1,200,000 horses are indicated as the horse contribution of the farms to the war, not including private purchases and the United States government outside of the war department.

Operative Farmers in Utah to Stop the enormous losses that have been sustained annually from rodents in that state. This poison was applied on 26,104 acres of infested land, and the farmers reported 892,179 rodents destroyed with an estimated saving in crops of $22,268. Estimates of the saving accomplished were made by specialists of the bureau of biological survey, United States department of agriculture, who aided state and local workers in the enterprise. Farm bureaus already have ordered quantities of strychnine to carry on similar work in the immediate future and have prepared to mix the poison bait at central places and supply it to farmers who agree to use it according to directions and make reports of results. The bureau says that if the work could be properly financed they could use five times the amount of poison they now have.

Supports Family by Home Canning.

The sale of her canned fruits and vegetables has enabled a woman in Allegheny county, Pa., to feed and clothe her eight children the last two years. When war was declared her eldest son enlisted in the army. In a few months the second son went into the army and the mother was left to wrestle with the problem of providing three meals a day for the eight younger brothers and sisters. About this time the home-demonstration agent of the United States department of agriculture was teaching the women in that locality how to can. With a garden which could raise plenty of fruit and vegetables, and with wild fruit to be had for the picking, the mother decided therein lay the solution

Treat Your Wheat and Oats For Smut.

This is the time of the year when farmers should be creating a plan for treating their spring wheat, barley and oats for smut.

An examination of eighteen fields of spring wheat this season has found every one containing smut, averaging from one to sixteen per cent. One of the leading fields in the district contained 90 per cent of the spring wheat purchased is more or less smutted and that the loss to the farmers ranged from twenty per cent to ninety per cent. This great loss can easily be prevented by using the formaldehyde treatment for smut. The farmer should be using yourself against smut to treat your seed every year. For treating machines scatter the smut from the seed in a uniform manner. The following treatment has been found successful:

Dry Method.

Mix one pint of formalin with one pint of water and use in a small hand sprayer. An atomizer sprayer can be purchased at 50 to 75 cents. Spraying should be done as it is being shoveled over, holding the spray close to the grain. Being careful that the smut is carefully distributed. One stroke of the spray gives enough mist for each shovel-full of grain. One quart of formalin will cover 100 bushels of grain. When all the grain is treated, shovel into a pile and cover over for five hours. The grain may be sown immediately on allowing to air thoroughly, or store it in disinfected sacks or bins until needed.

Our reputation for fair dealing and reliable goods, coupled with the De Laval record of service and durability, has made the De Laval Cream Separator the leader in this community.

NO farmer is rich enough to feed high-priced butter to his hog or his calves in partially skimmed milk.

It's a waste of money and food that your pocketbook, your neighbors, your country, all condemn.

But it's a waste that is going on today wherever an inferior or half-worn-out cream separator is being used, or the wasteful "gravity" method.

Why not put a stop to this needless waste with a De Laval Cream Separator?

There is no other separator that can compare with the De Laval in clean skimming, capacity, ease of operation, freedom from repairs, and durability. It's the world's greatest cream saver.

His birth his parents had removed. He has all sorts of a boy. I don't like the boy in the play who never grows up, he remained a boy all his life. He was a boy with a willful, affectionate, never vicious, though mischievous; wholly lovable and trying.

From the first he essayed the impossible and oddly enough often got away with it. Frail of body and poor of sight, he wanted to be a soldier. He wanted to be a hero. Without military training or natural bent, he wanted to be a soldier. He possessed a manly heart, but for politics which he did not pride himself. His passion was for getting at the heart of things— for hitting the bull's eye— for playing life as if it were a game of shinny, rushing in among the pickets and bringing away the ball.

Triumph. He preferred his own way. He was a perfect cross of the Roosevelt upon the Bolloch. In him met, commingled and flowed the blood of the Dutchman and the cavaler. Without straining if it did not temper the other. Theodore was by no means an uncalculating visionary. In many ways, he was exceedingly practical.

Personally, no man could be so kind. His domestic relations were ideal. The best of husbands and fathers, patient only, but very doubtful as a paternalist. A letter to his mother, after a long and painful dollar-over-touched his pain. In this he resembled his uncle his mother's brother, the confederate admiral who had been out and sent the south's privateer cruisers to sea, handled millions of Confederate money in England, and was the only man of this still in his possession at the close of the war of factions, turned it over to the United States and died a pauper.

Although Teddy and I agreed about nothing—fell surely apart early on when we were in our relations cut no figure in our personal relations. When he came to his temple—the sanctification to be good in the morning, the guests of Robert Calder's famous dinner will recall an illustrative incident. I had said in response to a toast, "You great big fancy that there have been reactions between Theodore Roosevelt and myself, but let me say to you that in the very plenitude of his power he did not know of the great honors within his grasp. Then he called out, 'Tell them about that. Make Henry, and I continued.'

I was at dinner with my family at Willard's hotel, when General Garfield came out and said in his chairmanship of the board of visitors, "for the next point next June?" I. "It is the Academy's centenary," he answered, "Corbin. I am looking for an orator." Corbin and me in a very tempting way that a ragged old rebel like me should be chosen for such a service appeals to my pride of country as well as my personal vanity. Give me a little time to think it over." When I thought it over—honorable and gratifying as it was—I put it from me. A presidential election was at hand. The issue was home to be made in form, and if I accepted with all that acceptance implied, I could not do my duty. So very reluctantly I declined.

I rang all the changes of the third-term issue upon him. Among the rest there was a long circumstantial story of the old Georgia lady—a lifelong friend of his mother—whose dream was to see Theodore crowned emperor of America. She had over the France and was an open imperialist and devotee of Louis Napoleon. We sat in a garden and she told her story and unyouthful hope. I contrived to get into this setting every manner of persiflage, closing with, "She passed from the meadow, and I followed the ether to Mr. Martin, the most efficient man he was able to suggest.

Mr. Martin during his four years in the manual training high school, has greatly endeared himself to the hearts of his many pupils, to other members of the faculty and to hundreds of Peonians. While they do all sincerely sorry to see him leave Peoria, they realize that his capabilities are of a greater advancement to him in the larger western school.

For the present his place will not be filled but it is expected that Capt. Paul C. Moon, who was Mr. Hilling's assistant before he returned the service, will be able to return before long.

TRIBUTE TO ROOSEVELT

Mr. Waterson went the following to the Courier-Journal and the New York Herald.

"No one knew Theodore Roosevelt better than I; certainly no one gets back further in knowledge of him. For that knowledge makes me to a time preceding his birth when his mother and my mother, old and very dear friends, were much together. My mother, who was a family homestead, down about Broadway and Thirteenth Street, New York, what was then the Taylor Hotel, was born in the Thirteenth Street house to which just before convention they will have to reassemble, if I will refuse and still refuse.

My last but by no means a long ago when he and Mr. Moore, of Pittsburgh, and Edward Riggs, of the New York Central, and I had a merry lunch at an uptown hotel. For the first time he was beginning to show something that looked like love of life—his sunny side out—interest and tremendous grasp vibrating with his gaiety.

"I am deeply and personally distressed by his death, though it does not take me by surprise. He gave himself no rest. His resources were multifarious. His interests many and wide as air. Often his generosity did injustice to his serious parts. As a matter of fact, he was an insurance man, destiny had elevated into a commander. He could not help speaking in New England. Yet comparing the manner with the generosity of some public men having a reputation for probity, the record will show to his credit. Certainly he had a way of going after a rogue and running down a rascal that was often fruitful of good to the community.

"His disappearance in a way clarifies politics on the practical tangible side. It clears the way for a united republican party. He was ever a thorn in the side of the machine politicians, though a clever machine politician himself. His like will scarcely appear again. No leader ever appealed as he did to the young. Had he lived, he would have cut a wide swath in 1920. His death takes much of the complexity and all of the light out of the political situation and levels the immediate future into the commonplace.

The repast was spread on a banquet table decorated with vases in profusion and with the same hued place cards marking covers for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chace, and daughter Ethel of Stanton, Nebraska, Mrs. McLeod and daughter Edna, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Chas. Chace and daughter Katherine Goldie of Wayne, Neb., Dr. and Mrs. Wightman and children, Susanne and Donald.
 At the close of the dinner hour the birthday cake was served in honor of Mr. Chace. Twelve glowing candles in red, white and blue afforded each one of the guests a chance to make a wish aloud and blow out a candle. Cards furnished the diversion of the afternoon.
 It is none too early to plan your paper hanging, and in doing so please remember that I carry samples of the latest and best patterns. Let me show you what I have and give you figures. I can furnish you the paper and do the work of hanging, and I can give you money and will guarantee satisfaction. H. Boyce, Wayne, Neb. Phone 1141.

The following were elected officers: President, Mrs. Grace Jones; vice president, Mrs. Gemmill; secretary, Mrs. Edith Carter; treasurer, Mrs. Young; Mrs. Robert Pritchard was the leader. The hostess served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

Death of Louis Tift. Louis Tift, one of Carroll's prominent citizens, passed away at his home Saturday, March 1, after suffering with influenza which developed into pneumonia. The funeral was held at the Methodist church Monday afternoon, Rev. F. E. Sala officiating.

Louis R. Tift was born in David City, Neb., February 12, 1882, and died at the age of 34 years and 10 days. During the early years of his life, he lived with his parents at David City, Craig, Alma and Pilger, Neb. He moved to Carroll where he was a young man and on November 1, 1900, was united in marriage to Miss Sophia Peterson. To this union were born one daughter and five sons, now ten years of age. Besides the wife, he is survived by two brothers, Vane Tift of Pilger and Victor Tift of Orono, and one sister, besides hosts of friends. Those who attended the funeral from out of town were: Vane Tift of Pilger, and George Peters, a brother-in-law from Kiobrar, Neb.

The bereaved family have the deepest sympathy of the entire community.

Memorial Service. A memorial service in honor of Irvin Lyons, who died in France while in the service of his country, was held at the Methodist church in Carroll Sunday morning. The deceased worked for several years on the J. M. Garwood farm in this vicinity. He was a member of the Carroll M. E. church. The interior of the church was decorated with horn service flags, red, white and blue bunting and flowers.

Miss Edna Jones sang a vocal selection entitled "When the Stars in Your Service Flag Shine Bright." Her rendering pleased in a most excellent manner. The Carroll band played an appropriate number. Following an address by Rev. F. E. Sala, the service closed.

Methodist Church. (Rev. F. E. Sala, pastor.) The Woman's Home Missionary society is meeting this afternoon with Mrs. Fred Robinson. The catechism class meets each Monday afternoon at the church. ### UNCLE WALT

THE POET PHILOSOPHER

THE GREAT BOON.

The boon of peace is good as wheat, succeeding years of sadness; it took the coldness from our feet and filled our hearts with gladness. All day I speak about the boon, in crisp, well chosen phrases; at night I sit beneath the moon, and boast the same like blazes. It's good to wake at dawn, indeed, and cut some sprightly capers, and not be half afraid to read the war news in the papers. It's good to wander through the grid and not hear people saying, "Alas! Alack! The news is bad! The Huns are busy slaying!" It's good to walk abroad once more, and meet the early risers, and hear no reference to gore, to nutty kings and kaisers. Some things are slightly out of plumb, and kickers are disgusted; but reconstruction soon will come, and things will be adjusted. We have the good old boon of boons, the dove of peace is soaring, and he's not worth two pigeons who spends the long day roaring. We can't get back in half a day to where the rumpus found us, but with the good old boon in play no problems can confound us.

BILL'S WHISKERS.

The wiretuss is crackling and crashing, conveying intelligence wild; from Holland the news comes flashing, that William is raising a beard. He's sitting in sackcloth and ashes, from royal magnificence hurled, and finds that his well known mustaches won't hide all his face from the world. No wonder he wants to conceal it; to hide it away in the brush, where no one can see it or find it, or great it with growling or gush. His face has grown tired of men's chiding, with sadness it's repined, and it's secret, he's anxious to keep it in hiding, and so he is raising a beard. The winds through his whiskers are blowing, and sadly they chant in his ears, his galsways like milk weeds are growing, he waters them well with his tears. He knows that his face is an error, a thing that is hated and feared; the children regard it with terror, and so he is raising a beard. His face is a painful reminder of U-BOATS, to murderers steered, to cover it up would be knipp, and so he is growing a beard. His face is considered in vain, wherever that may be, a beard, though whiskers be branded or stired, he's wise in thus growing a beard. So hide in your whiskers, as children, let barbers be flouted and jeered; for one like yourself it were wiser to crouch at the back of a beard.

HOUSE CLEANING.

House cleaning! Spring house cleaning! You'll soon be here again! Oh, words of frightful meaning to weary married men! For spring we keep imploring when winter's blasts are roaring, forgetful of the choring that is in order then. We think of sunshine gloves, through waving branches screened, on habbling brooklets; now to oceans submerging; alas, we are forgetting the soapuds and the wetting, the toiling and the sweating, in shacks that must be cleaned. We think of tuncel zephyrs from some bright summer sea, of sportive lambs and heifers that gambol on the sea; and we forget the mopping, the sloshing and the slopping, the cussing and the yapping of bus-bands tired, oh che! The Spring-time is approaching, already she has smiled; the green grass is encroaching where late the snow was piled; but naught my gloom can sweeten; the rugs that must be beaten, cold beams that must be ester—the prospect makes me wild! Fair Spring will soon be strewing her flowers along the world, her gems for mortals' viewing, the crimson and the gold; but I'll be nacking pillows and beating rugs with willows mid-suds in steading-bilows, while women stand and scold.

THE LISTENER.

When I begin a prosy tale, too long and fierce to mention, Jim Boggs was never known to fail to give profound attention. His soul and eyes are fixed on me, his ears are forward slanted, and all the time he looks to me like one who is enchanted. And when my weary tale is done, that most attentive feller remarks, "Pray tell another one!" You're sure a story teller! In this sad world most people sleep when one unwinds a story, or else they wave their hands and sweep, and say the yarn is hoary. But Jim, he listens to a tale, and greets the tale with laughter; his mirth like a mighty gale that shakes the beam and rafter. And so I stand up strongly for James, as through the town I'm straying, and I endorse whatever games he happens to be playing. And he has boosters by the cord, who to his standard rally, and he has friends in every ward in every street and alley. And when he runs for county clerk, for sheriff or surveyor, his loyal friends get in their work, and every one's a stayer. The man who listens wisely well is never by friends forsaken; and when he shoots he rings the bell, and carries home the bacon.

FATHER TIME

When our lives are filled with pleasure, we observe that time is fleet, and we wish that he would measure shorter strides, with lagging feet. As winter days the more days linger, have the minutes seem like hours; but time hails no foot or hand, he is rolling on through sun and showers. He is like some locked sprinter hustling for a golden prize; spring and summer, fall and winter, each he hugs and each one dies. When our lives are bright and joyous, full of laughter and of us, time seems anxious to annoy us, by the way he hikes along. When we're pain that taught can't be denied, when we leave the bitter the thence the smile, one of those, he is laughing on his robes. Says the optimist, "The morrow will be gay, so help me John!" but we cross a sea of sorrow, and we see the smiling dawn. When we're crossing time's a faggard, he's begrudging every step, he is tired and spent and haggard, and he has no sign of pep. When we are in jail for arson, or for sampling too much fizz, vainly does the village parson say that time like lightning is. Time is going like a turtle; time is going like a hare, it depends on how you like along. Myrtle, on our gladness or despair.

FORGET IT.

Forget the scribble of yesterday, he is the greatest. Long I know who buttonholes us on his way, to talk about some bygone woe. Forget the grudge you've held, so long against the guest who lives next door; it's doubtless true you're in the wrong; his head's entitled to be more than the chance you have missed, forget the hopes that a chance, a frost; there always is a chance, a wist, as good as a new one. Forget the pedigree, forget the blue blood in your veins; get out where common mortals be, and match with theirs yours. Forget the grandeur of the past if you're reduced to low estate; get down to rucks and hustle fast, and keep your winning smile on straight. Forget the dark, unpleasant things; we all have troubles of our own; we love the lad who smiles and sings, detest the one who sheds a groan. Forget the ailments you have had, the numps, the glanders and the gonorrhea; forget the spring blindness when you pad, and talk of tractors, tripe and trout. Forget all weary things that bore, that keep men yawning as you spin, spring blindness when you have the floor, and fell how dandied good you feel!

on Mogul and Titan Tractors

Nearly five thousand of our boys in khaki and blue are coming back to work. We shall, of course, make a place in our organization for every one of them, but we wish to do it without throwing out of employment the men who took their places and have worked faithfully for us ever since. This is not going to be so easy for us as for some others, because the Government designated ours as an essential industry during the war, and we actually increased the efficiency of our organization after our boys left to join the ranks.

We can, however, give special mark both to our present help and to the returning soldiers and sailors. IF WE CAN BRING ABOUT AN IMMEDIATE INCREASE IN TRACTOR PRODUCTION. In order to do this we must move forward to the farm some thousands of tractors that are ordered for delivery at various dates up to May 1st, and we shall also have to ship a large number of tractors that farmers intended to order later this season, but could just as well take now. To those farmers who are so situated as to be able to take advantage of it we make the following proposition:

Our Early-Delivery Discount Plan

If you will take delivery of a Mogul or Titan Tractor now we will reward your co-operation as follows:

To those who will accept delivery of a Mogul or Titan 10-20 on or before March 8 we will give an Early Delivery Discount of 5% from the price of the tractor. This amounts to $61.25 in the case of the Titan 10-20 and $56.25 on the Mogul 10-20.

After March 8 the following discounts will be given:

- For delivery during week of March 10 to March 15 incl. 4%
- For delivery during week of March 17 to March 22 incl. 3%
- For delivery during week of March 24 to March 29 incl. 2%
- For delivery during week of March 31 to April 5 incl. 1%

This discount will go a long ways toward paying the fuel bills of your tractor during this season.

By taking advantage of this Early-Delivery Discount, you will not only be helping yourself, but will enable us more easily to put back to work our army of returning boys without breaking up our present organization.

You will find that you need a few weeks to get acquainted with your new tractor. The man who has his tractor early can become familiar with it, so that when the first day of good plowing weather dawns, he will be able to get in the field without a moment's lost time. That in itself is a very good reason for taking early delivery.

Go to your dealer and tell him that you will accept immediate delivery of your Mogul or Titan 10-20 horsepower tractor, so he can make up his carload shipments without delay.

FAVORS PAVING.

Laurel Advocate: "At a called meeting of the Commercial Club Monday night, the matter of paving was taken up and pretty thoroughly discussed.

President Votaw recently attended meetings at Lincoln and Omaha where he was informed that the contract for the federal road from Wayne to Harrington will be let in March, and that when the contractors were through with their part of the work on the street, it would be ready for the surfacing or paving, and it seemed to be the opinion of all present that the road should be paved through town.

On motion the president appointed a committee of four—Messrs. E. L. Dimick, D. D. Coburn, Guy Wilson and W. C. Pees—to circulate petitions among the abutting property owners asking the council for paving.

D. D. Coburn, who has been a member of the council for a long time, stated that the board has been expending nearly $2,800 a year on the streets for a number of years just to keep them in order. Once get the streets paved and that expense would be greatly reduced.

At present it looks like paving for Laurel in 1919.

Forgot What He Needed.

From the Republican, Mt. Gilead, Ohio: "The editor of an interesting experience some time ago, when a young gentleman came to this office and asked for a copy of the Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He scrutinized it carefully when a copy was handed him, and then said: 'Now I know! What is you are looking for?' We inquired: 'My wife sent me after a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and forgot the name. I went to several stores and the clerks named over everything in the line on the shelf except Chamberlain's. I'll try again, and I'll never come home without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.' The Republican would suggest to the proprietors of stores that they put their clerks, and never let them substitute. Customers lose faith in stores where substituting is permitted, to say nothing of the injustice to makers of good goods and the disappointment of customers.—Adv.

UNCLE WALT THE POET PHILOSOPHER

THE GREAT BOON.

The boon of peace is good as wheat, succeeding years of sadness; it took the coldness from our feet and filled our hearts with gladness. All day I speak about the boon, in crisp, well chosen phrases; at night I sit beneath the moon, and boast the same like blazes. It's good to wake at dawn, indeed, and cut some sprightly papers, and not be half afraid to read the war news in the papers. It's good to wander through the grad and not hear people saying, "Alas! Alack! The news is sad! The Huns are busy slaying!" It's good to walk abroad once more, and meet the early risers, and hear no reference to eggs, to nutty kings and tasters. Some things are slightly out of plumb, and kickers are disgusted, but reconstruction soon will come, and things will be adjusted. We have the good old boon of boons, the dove of peace is soaring, and he's not with two airplanes who spends the long day touring. We can't get back in half a day to where the rumpus found us, but with the good old boon in plumb problems can confound us.

BILL'S WHISKERS.

The wireless is cracking and crashing, conveying intelligence weird; from Holland the news comes—a flashing, that Wilhelm is raising a beard. He's sitting in a sedan chair, and, when some magnificence hurled, and finds that his well known mustaches won't hide all his face from the world. No wonder he wants to cancel it, to hide it away in the brush, where no one can see it or feel it, or greet it with straining or gush. His face has grown tired of men's chiding with sadness it's seamed and it's seared; he's anxious to keep it in hiding, and so he is raising a beard. The winds through his whiskers are blowing, and sadly they chant in his ears; his galavays like milk and are growing, he wants to get well with his tears. He knows that his face is an error, a thing that is hated and feared; the children regard it with terror, and so he is raising a beard. His face is a painful reminder of U-boats, to mention, seemed, to cover it up would be kinder, and so he is growing a beard. His face is considered immoral, wherever that mug has appeared; though whiskers he be called or sorred, he's wise in thus growing a beard. So hide in your whiskers, ex-kaiser, let barbers be blotted and jeered; for one like yourself it were wiser to crouch at the back of a beard.

HOUSE CLEANING.

House cleaning! Spring house cleaning! You'll soon be here again! Oh, words of frightful meaning to weary married men! For spring we keep exploring when winter's blasts are roaring, forgetful of the choring that is in order then. We think of sunshine glowing, through waving branches, screened, on babbling brooklets flowing to oceans submerg'd—alas, we are forgetting the soapuds and the wetting, the toiling and the sweating, in streaks that must be cleaned. We think of tuneful zephyrs from some bright summer sea, of sportive lumps and heifers that gambol on the sea, and we forget the mopping, the sloshing and the sopping, the cussing and the yawping of husbands tired, oh chee! The Spring-time is approaching already the husks; the green grass is encroaching where late the snow was piled; but naught my gloom can sweeten—the rugs that must be beaten, the beans that must be eaten—the prospect makes me wild! Fair Spring will soon be a-strewing his flowers along the world, her gems for mortals' viewing, the crimson and the gold; but I'll be packing pillows and beating rugs with walkowr mid suds in seething billows, while woman stand and scold.

THE LISTENER.

When I begin a story tale, too long and fierce to mention, Jim Roggs was never known to fail to give profound attention. His soulful eyes are fixed on me, his ears are forward slanted, and all the time he looks to me like one who is enchanted. And when my weary tale is done, the most attentive feller remarks, "Pray tell another one. You're sure a story-teller." In this and world most people sleep when one unfolds a story or else they wring their hands and weep, and say the yarn is hoary. But Jim, he listens to a tale, and greets the joke with laughter, his mirth is like a mighty gale that shakes the beam and rattle. And so I speak up strong for Jim; as through the roven I'm straying, and I endorse whatever games he happens to be playing. And he has roggers by the cord, who to his standard rally; and he has friends in every ward in every street and alley. And when he runs for county clerk, for sheriff or surveyor, his loyal friends get in their work, and every one's a stayer. The man who listens wisely well is n'er by friends forsaken; and when he shoots he ings the bell, and carries home the bacon.

FATHER TIME.

When our lives are filled with pleasure, we observe that time is fleet, and we wish that he would measure shorter strides, with lagging feet. We would have the glad days longer, have the minutes seem like hours, but time halts no foot or finger, toiling on through sun and showers. He is like some loquacious spruicer hustling for a golden prize; spring and summer, fall and winter, each he brings, and each he goes. When our lives are bright and joyous, full of laughter and of song, time seems anxious to annoy us, by the way he hikes along. When we've pain that naught can deaden, when we leave the bitter sob, then the steps of time are laden, he is looting on his job. Says the optimist, "The morning will be gay, so help me John," but we cross a sea of sorrow ere we see the smiling dawn. When we're crossing time's a laggard, he's begrudging every step. He is tired and spent and haggard, and he has no sign of pep. When we are in the sun, or for sampling too much fizz, vainly does the village parson say that time like lightning is. Time is going like a turtle, creeping, like a hare, it depends, believe me, Myrtle, on our gladness or despair.

FORGET IT.

Forget the grief of yesterday; he is the greatest bore I know who latherholes us on his way, to talk about some bygone woe. Forget the grudge you've held so long against the gent who lives next door; it's doubtless true you're in the wrong; his head's entitled to be sore. Forget the chances you have missed, forget the hopes that proved a frost; there always is a chance, I wist, as good as any you have left. Forget your purely pedigree, forget the blue blood in your veins; get out where common mortals be, and match with theirs. Forget the brains. Forget the grandeur of the past if you're reduced to low estate; get down to tacks and hustle fast, and keep your winning smile on straight. Forget the dark, unpleasant things; we all have troubles of our own; we love the lad who smiles and sings, detest the one who sheds a groan. Forget the ailments you have had, the mumps, the glanders and the gout; forget the truss and liver ail, and talk of tractors, trape and trout. Forget all weary things that bore, that keep men yawning as you sleep; "spring" yourselves when you have the floor, and tell how dad-blamed good you feel!
