False Economy Cheats a Dollar Out of Several Dimes

There are still some folks who believe that price determines value. Sometimes they permit their better judgment to be unduly influenced by the price tag. Disappointment is sure to follow such decisions. An article will render no more service than that which is built into it. You may be sure that, whatever price appears on merchandise in this store, it is the lowest possible price consistent with quality.

TO REORGANIZE GUARDS

Governor Asks Step to Stop Riots and Preserve Order.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 5.—Gov. McKelvie late yesterday took action to curbing "home guard" organizations in the future any possible disorders such as those in Omaha, where rioting recently cost the lives of several persons.

In a statement addressed to the people of Nebraska the governor requested the organization in all communities of a state's service men of the world-war for service in upholding law and order in cases of extreme emergency. The organization would be organized only to the call of the governor and would be used pending organization of the state's national guard, he said.

Appeals to Home Guards. At the same time, the governor requested home guard organizations which had actual drill work during the war to resume their former activities to be ready for any emergency, and that they be advised on the alert to prevent lawless outbreaks.

Announcement also made that requests have been made of the war department for twelve machine guns, 2,000 rifles, and 200,000 rounds of ammunition, which, if granted, will be stored in Lincoln. The state's law enforcement force, which ordinarily confines its work to laws relating to prohibition and auto stealing would be asked by any community requesting its aid, the governor declared.

In the event any community finds it necessary to ask outside help in putting down lawlessness, the outside forces sent to give such assistance, the governor said, will receive but one instruction and that is to quell the disturbance at any cost. May Mean Loss of Life.

"This," the governor said, "will probably mean loss of life if there is any opposition to their authority; for there will be no temporizing with the situation in which any individual or group of citizens seek to take the law out of the hands of the properly constituted authorities." He said the governor's statement, "that the disturbances which have recently occurred in this state, are the result of no special class of law violators and those who are making the most of our present unquiet conditions to further their general campaign of opposition to organized society and respect for the law."

WHISKEY STILL RAIDED Unlawful Business Found Near Pilger—Two Men Arrested.

Norfolk Daily News: A moonshine still located near Pilger was raided Monday night by federal revenue officers, Luke Stafford and E. L. Pulley, both of the Pilger vicinity, were brought to Norfolk during the night by a federal revenue man and Sheriff Eli Best of Stanton county. Both of the prisoners were to be taken before United States Commissioner Hays Tuesday for arraignment.

The officers, after bringing their prisoners to Norfolk took the police what they had searched a big still, two barrels of mash, ready for the distillery, some whiskey ready for the market and illicit whiskey-making apparatus were concealed and are being held at Stanton as evidence. Evidence that whiskey was distributed from the still are said to have been found by officials.

Fist Hint of Federal Sleuths. The arrest of alleged moonshiners in Stanton county is the first in that county that has been reported to begin their activities in this vicinity although it is known that moonshining has been practiced in this part of the state ever since the state went dry. Apparatus needed only the "worm" or what is called by illicit whiskey makers, "the missing link," has been sold in large quantities through this vicinity. Reports that "moonshine" whiskey has been sold here and throughout north Nebraska has attracted the attention of the officials and operations of federal officials have been extended to this vicinity. It is reported to be in operation in several counties in this part of the state.

Fake "Tex" on Market. The scarcity of regular whiskey as was made conspicuous when "tea" or "fake" whiskey was dumped on the market by bootleggers, is said to have made the moonshine variety popular. Whiskey brought through the gamelit of official watch-dogs is costing as high as $22 per quart, according to common gossip. In St. Joseph where once the market for bootleggers flourished, the whiskey is becoming scarce every day and even in that city it is bought up for $75 and $80 per case and shipped into other states where it brings fancy prices.

Quality

What is it that stamps certain stores as being different from others? They may not have as imposing a building as others have, and there may not be as many people coming, and going as may be seen at other places—and still you feel a satisfaction in trading there that you do not feel in any other place you go.

The quality of the goods offered and the service rendered have much to do with that satisfactory feeling but another and important factor is to be found in the class of customers that frequent such a store.

The same conditions are true of the banking business and we attribute much of our success to the splendid QUALITY of the customers that, for years, have been true to us. We point with pride to the folks who make this bank their headquarters and we trust that we have, in a measure, been responsible for their success and standing.

Would you like to be of this class?

The Right of Private Property.

The farmers of the United States have spoken in positive terms on the subject of the cherished right of the American to own private property.

The great rights of free men are those of personal liberty, personal security and of private property.

Stephens Buys Business.

Fremont, Neb., Oct. 4.—The business of the publishing house of Hammond and Stephens company has just passed into the hands of Dan V. Stephens.

Since Mr. Stephens returned from Washington and ended his public career in congress it has been his desire to have full control of the business he has managed since its inception.

The company deals in supplies required by county superintendents. The business has been a successful one from the beginning. It has done business in every state in the union. It employs from three to six traveling men to represent it on the road.

Happiness and Unionism.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: In these days, when the things of the spirit are being exalted all over the world as matters of good report, it is not the least extraordinary feature of Mr. Fitzpatrick's testimony before the senate committee that he claimed that what the union aimed at was the condition "happiness."

ment and social experiments which are conditioned on no wage scale, are peculiar to no class in life and have been found not necessarily among the great, the successful, the overrich in goods, but among the humblest, leading the simplest lives. This is so fundamental in the literatures of the world, secular and religious, in prose and verse, have been celebrating this fact for centuries even before the days of the Christian era.

What is to Be Done About It?

St. Paul Pioneer Press: The outbreak of mob passion at Omaha may be bewailed as a dangerous diversion of law and order and a danger to the interests of the average citizen, but it may be deplored as an outbreak so foreign to what we pride ourselves upon being American as to leave us without a foot of nationalistic ground upon which to stand.

vision, anarchy and ultra-socialism, each and all of which are destructive of the right of private property, and underlie the very foundation of government.

We believe that the meeting accurately represented the sentiment of the great proportion of American farmers. Farmers do not want socialism. They, for the most part, believe that there is a better way of solving our industrial problems than by government ownership.

On the other hand the American right and wrong way to use private property. He hopes that co-operation coupled with govern-

Mayor Smith of Omaha. Lincoln Journal: Mayor E. P. Smith, who nearly lost his life in defense of law and order in Omaha, is considered one of the brainiest attorneys in Nebraska. In spite of the disadvantages of his youth he educated himself in the law and has become to be known as one of the clearest thinkers in his profession.

Omaha is quieting down so that teachers of the state will likely be able to go there next month for their annual meeting without fear of having their educational and splitting deliberations interrupted or disturbed by rioting or looting.

I. W. W. propagandists hook where there is a prospect of work and so they are bent upon working. They apparently gather to cause dissatisfaction among those who are employed in the hope of raising the price. And they too often succeed.

If teachers cannot find accommodations at private boarding places, school boards will have to raise salaries—high enough to justify boarding in hotels. They will have to eat nourishing food with some regularity if they are to render efficient service.

Omaha newspapers are trying to blame one another for the city's disgrace by mob violence which broke loose there recently, claiming the same was superinduced by the kind of literary provender dished up for the populace from day to day. It is what the papers said before the riot and lynching with reference to lack of protection for women against outrages were true, the city was already considerably disgraced.

The coming constitutional convention for which representatives will be chosen next month, is of vital interest to the state and should receive the thoughtful attention of every citizen. Manifestly, in framing a new constitution, the convention should be free from class favoritism. The great majority of the people have an interest in the state should be the earnest ambition of every member. One interest is helplessly dependent on every other interest, and cannot be impaired or injured without hurting all. Freedom from bias and capacity to comprehend all the complex problems of constitution making should be reflected by the coming convention.

The announcement that Ross L. Hammond, for forty years editor of the Fremont Tribune, and high-minded and progressive citizen, has sold his interests there and expects to leave the state and locate in southern California, will be received with regret by his many Nebraskan friends. He has earned retirement from the arduous newspaper grind, but people will dislike to have him quit. It is understood he has bought a ranch in California, and will also engage in banking. These two interests will let him enjoy his life. Hammond, though not free as though he were stopping work entirely. Best wishes of a multitude will accompany him.

Representatives of labor organizations and employing institutions have been holding a conference in Washington this week in the hope of getting each other's viewpoint and solving the vexing industrial problem. It is high time for our warring elements to get together and arrive at a better understanding. Likely each side wants too much. Concessions and compromises would serve the ends of justice, and help restore the equilibrium of the country. People have been trying for submitted advantage. They have thought they would "get" while the "getting" was good. As a consequence, prices have gone up in many instances to a level of almost unbearable tax on those not in a position or not inclined to ask for service more than the traffic will stand. If employer and employee—two necessary forces—can settle differences by compromise, they will aid materially in readjustment and reconstruction without abrupt revision downward, without collapse or destructive consequences.

As the natural and inevitable culmination of a series of crimes, two young men, handcuffed together, started for the penitentiary in charge of officers Monday morning. These two young men, like others who speculate in wrongdoings, were trying to underlie the law of the land, could have been useful members of society if they had chosen to do so.

But the reactions of earlier youth, the advice and pleadings of relatives, and the warnings of officers and friends, availed nothing in turning them from paths of disorder and crime. All the effort to make it easy for them to do right failed. They apparently ignored opportunities for honest endeavor, and were determined to follow the road which leads to a felon's cell. A feeling of pity was reflected by the group that watched the two chained individuals heading to meet their fate. Pity is felt for one who has become such a menace to society that he can no longer be trusted, but must be stripped of liberty and effort. The sight of these young men, headed for terms of servitude, should be an impressive lesson to other young men who have been lurking dangerously close to prison walls.

PREACHED AGAINST MOB.

Omaha and Lincoln ministers preached sermons last Sunday on the recent mob violence in the metropolis, and without exception deplored the outbreak as a horrible example. Commenting on the fact, the Lincoln Journal says in part:

"It could not be otherwise. Religion and morals cannot exist in or out of the churches, where mob spirit rules. Apologists for mobs try to spray them with the perfume of noble impulse to right wrong. But the conduct of mob's sense anything but an insensate venting of hatred and brutality. Where hatred and brutality are, religion in any true sense cannot be. These passages are from the enemy of men's souls. Religion could not condone mob work and sin. The organized religion of the churches evidently realizes this. But is it doing any more than preach an occasional homily against the evil? The churches of Omaha, had they taken practical steps to counteract the promotion of mob spirit in this city, could have prevented the mob. Had they prepared themselves to come to the support of public order in case of trouble, they could probably have thwarted the mob after it had formed. All the members of Lincoln churches must, by the nature of the religion they profess, be hosts to the mob spirit. Are they prepared to make their opposition effective when danger arises in Lincoln?"

The tremendous advance in scientific designing achieved by Ed. V. Price & Co. during the past quarter of a century has far outdistanced ordinary tailoring methods.

POLITICAL ADVERTISING POLITICAL ADVERTISING For Delegate to the Nebraska Constitutional Convention (Election November 11) J. G. W. LEWIS, Wayne, Neb.

Qualifications Early life on the farm; nine years' residence in Wayne County, nearly forty years' residence in Nebraska. County and municipal officer seven years. Advanced university degree in history and political science. Head of the department of History and Government, State Normal School, nine years. Now working under direction of the Constitutional Survey Commission created by the 1919 Legislature and the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Attitude on Some Present Issues For government of the people, for the people, and by the people. For full rights and justice to the farmers; full recognition of the rights of men in other occupations based on the service they render to society.

For the Bill of Rights, in substance, as it now stands. For such changes in our state government as are approved by the best authorities and have been tested by experience.

For the spirit of co-operation as a general rule of action.

Holds I. W. W. Responsible. Omaha, Neb., Oct. 4.—Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood who has had charge of the military and police forces patrolling Omaha since the riots here, in an address to the University club, composed largely of ex-soldiers, declared that the disturbances here were unquestionably fanned by the J. W. W. He urged that a better class of citizens take more interest in politics and now the women have to vote that none should neglect her duty.

The J. W. W. was undoubtedly behind the recent trouble here, the speaker declared. "These disturbances are becoming too frequent in America. Good citizenship will counteract these foreign influences, and to teach good citizenship foreign language should be eliminated from the trade school."

See King As Guest. Last night Gen. Wood was honored guest at the coronation of the new king and queen of Ak-Sar-Ben in an address by an organization of more than 2,000 of the leading citizens of the state. The new king is Randall K. Brown, wealthy coal dealer and farm manager. The queen is Miss Helen Murphy, daughter of M. R. Murphy, general manager of Cudahy Packing company.

Omaha is swinging back again into the routine of the day's work. The principal activities growing out of the disorders are the apprehension of those who were implicated, the restoration of the courthouse and preparations for the future.

Hearings are being conducted at the city hall by representatives of the county and city attorneys and representatives of the grand jury, to determine the guilt of suspects.

Growing Old. Houston Chronicle: It sounds paradoxical, but the way to stop growing old is to grow. Most of us stop growing, willfully, deliberately and unnecessarily. Then we begin to grow old. We let the mind follow the body, let our thought processes get fat, flabby and gray haired. The mind was not meant to be an appendage of the body. The mind can hop and jump just as well at 60 as at 16.

Trade and Business. Sioux City Journal: A remarkable fact in connection with the present business condition of the country is that while there are pronounced restrictions in the sections immediately affected by labor disturbances, the whole volume shows a material increase. Some of the buying is traceable to the fear of shortage of supplies because of restricted production in the near future, but much of it is found in the purchase of luxuries and the desire to increase the opportunities for better things. Little is said concerning decrease in prices. No one expects it in the class of materials which command the most attention.

Wasting Eggs. Bixby in Lincoln Journal: Shame on the crowd at Ardmore, Okla., who shied eggs at Senator Reed of Missouri when he essayed to speak his mind in opposition to the league of nations. The constitution of the United States guarantees free speech, a free press and a free people. We believe Reed wrong in opposing the league of nations, but he has a perfect right to utter his thoughts to those who wish to hear him and it is an injustice to the man and an insult to the community to throw eggs at him or at anybody when the same are selling at forty-

Business vs. Bluff. New York World: The mere threat of prosecution of profiteers sent prices tumbling in England. The reason probably is that a threat of that character in England means business, while in the United States it frequently means only a bluff.

to the close of August, had retired $217,537.50 of the bonds issued in the first four Liberty loan offerings. The retirement of these bonds has eased the strain on the banks of the country as they are not called upon to carry as heavy burdens in financing the government as before, and consequently have larger funds available for present enterprises. Foreign governments are desirous of floating large loans in this country, and were it not for the hesitancy of investors to purchase foreign bonds, these loans could be made without crippling the finances of the country.

August flotations of new security issues were the largest on record for one month. Investment is going forward in spite of the disheartened condition of the country, as a whole. This determination to do business will make itself felt in bringing about tranquillity of conditions in both trade and industry.

Transportation shows a slight improvement over that of last year, though the comparison is of little value because the country was in the height of the war struggle a year ago. The combined number of cars utilized in the last week of September for the transportation of grain and grain products, live stock, coal and coke, lumber and other forest products, and ore was 105,926 against 104,728 for the corresponding week of last year. When the amount of lumber and fuel, as well as the smaller quantities of the other commodities listed, which were utilized for war purposes, is deducted from the total, it shows a decided gain in traffic, with a net increase in which all the commodities are going at this time.

Chicago Daily News: It is generally conceded that John Fitzgerald is a poor judge of psychological moments.

from what they used to be. We talk about the dignity of the worker and all that, but seldom about the dignity of the work. We try to express dignity in money terms instead of in work terms, and we get nowhere.

Elaborately Simple. Mr. Comptroller's explanation of the reason why the strike was not deferred until after the October conference at the White House, as the president requested, was elaborately simple. The men would not defer.

Sioux Falls Argus-Leader: There is one difference between the parties. Andrew Carnegie once declared, "The one is in, the other is out." It was hard to get a secret from the canny old Scotchman.

LAW VERSUS THE JUNGLE

Editorial by World-Herald Endorsed by An Omaha Body.

The Herald is asked to reproduce the following editorial, appearing in the World-Herald and endorsed by the Omaha Chamber of Commerce: There is the rule of the jungle in this world, and there is the rule of law.

Under jungle rule no man's life is safe, no man's wife, no man's sister, no man's child, no man's liberty, rights, property. Under the rule of law protection is provided for all these, and provided in proportion as law is efficiently and honestly administered and its power and authority respected and obeyed.

Omaha Sunday was disgraced and humiliated by a monstrous objection of what jungle rule means. The lack of efficient government in Omaha, the lack of governmental foresight and sagacity and energy, made the exhibition possible. It was provided by a few hundred hoodlums, most of them mere boys, organized as the work-pack is organized, inflamed by the spirit of anarchy and license, of murder and destruction. Ten thousand or more good citizens, without leadership, without organization, without public authority that had made an effort to organize them for the anticipated emergency, were obligated to stand as onlookers, shamed in their hearts, and witness the hideous orgy of lawlessness. Some of them, to their blighting shame be it said, respectfully meet with women and children in their homes, let themselves be swept away by the mob spirit. They encouraged if they did not aid the villain agent that was conspiring to pervert the rule of law in Omaha—that rule which is the sole protection for every man's home and family.

It is over now, thank God! Omaha henceforth will be as safe for its citizens and as safe for the visitors within its gates, as any city in the land. Its respectable and law-abiding people, comprising 99 per cent of the population, will see to that. They have already taken the steps to see to it. The first step was taken when the rioting was at its height—taken belatedly, it is true, because they had placed reliance on the public authorities to safeguard the order and good name of Omaha. The blistering disgrace of the riot has aroused them. There will be no more faltering, no more fecklessness, no more procrastination, no longer the lack of a firm hand. The military aid that has been called in is only temporary. It serves to insure public order and public safety for the day, for the week. But the strengthening of the police force of the city, its efficient organization under wise and competent leadership, is a policy that public sentiment has inaugurated and that it will sternly enforce. As to that there will be neither equivocation nor delay. Nor will there be any hesitancy or laxness in the organization, and rigid use if need be, of civic guards to keep the streets and homes and public places of Omaha secure.

The citizenship of Omaha will be anxious that the outside world should know what it was that happened, and why it happened. Let there be no mistaking the plain facts:—the trouble is over now. It was a first-up that died as quickly as it was born. Omaha is today the same safe and orderly city it has always been. It will be safer, indeed will there be any more rioting, because of the lesson it has so dearly learned. And the flare-up was the work—let this fact be emphasized—of a few hundred rioters, some of them incited by an outrageous deed, others of them skulkers in the anarchistic underbrush who urged them on for their own foul purposes of destroying property and paralyzing the arm of the law. If the miserable negro, Brown, had been removed from Omaha in time, as he should have been; if failing to remove him, the public authorities had taken vigorous measures to prevent the congregation and infusing of the mob, the riot would never have occurred. An organized and intelligently directed effort in advance would have preserved the good name of Omaha untarnished. It would have prevented the lynching. It would have saved our splendid new court house from being offered up in flames, its defense with the mob-victim in it, a costly sacrifice on the altar of law and order. There would have been no thought, even, of the amazing attempt to lynch the mayor of Omaha, bravely and honorably discharging his duty as chief magistrate in resisting the work-pack.

It would be impossible to speak too strongly in condemnation of the rioters, or in the uncompromising demand for their stern and swift punishment, whoever they be, wherever they can be found. They not only foully murdered a negro, they belonged to be guilty. They brutally maltreated and attempted to murder other negroes who they knew to be innocent. They tried to lynch the mayor. They wantonly pillaged stores and destroyed property. They burned the court house. In the sheer spirit of anarchy they pulled valuable records from their steel filing cases, saturated them in gasoline, and burned them. They burned postage-conveyances and cut the telephone, inviting the destruction by fire of the entire city. Their actions were wholly vile, wholly evil, and unwisely dangerous to the peace and safety of the state. And to a one of them who can be apprehended, and whose guilt can be proved, but should be sent for a long term to the state prison. And toward that end every effort of every good citizen, as well as every effort of the public authorities, from the humblest policeman to the presiding judge on the bench, must be directed. There can be no sentimentalizing, no fearful hesitancy, no condoning of the offense. The hundreds of American institutions, must be called and called fearlessly.

To the law-abiding negroes of Omaha, who like the law-abiding whites are the vast majority of their race, it is timely to speak a word of caution. As well as a word of sympathy and support: Any effort on the part of any of them to take the law into their own hands would be as culpable and as certainly disastrous as was the effort of the mob. In the running down and maltreating of offending men of their color, merely because they were of that color, they have been done odious wrong. They naturally and properly resent it. They naturally and properly resent having been confined to their homes, in trembling fear of their lives, while red riot ran the streets of the city. But their duty as good citizens is precisely the same as that of the rest of us, all of whom have been outraged and shamed as citizens. It is to look to the law for their protection, for their vindication, and to give the law every possible support as it moves in its efforts to bring the rioters to justice. It is the only shield of every white man, no matter how lowly or how great. And it is the duty of all whites and blacks alike, to uphold especially the might of the law—to insist, if need be, on its full exercise—in protecting every colored citizen in Omaha in his lawful and constitutional rights.

For the first time in many years, and for the last time, let us hope, for many years to come—Omaha has had an experience with lawlessness. We have seen how it works. We have seen how it works. We have felt, however briefly, the fetid breath of anarchy on our cheeks. We have experienced the cold chill of fear which it arouses. We have seen, as in a nightmare, its awful possibilities. We have learned how frail is the barrier which divides civilization from the primal jungle—and we have been given to see clearly what that barrier is.

"It is the Law! It is the might of the Law, the stern and fearless administration! It is respect for and obedience to the Law on the part of the members of society!" When these fail of things fall. When these are lost all will be lost. Should the day ever come when the rule that was in Omaha Sunday night became the dominant rule, the grasses of the jungle would overgrow our civilization; its wild denizens, human and brute, would make their foul feast on the ruins; and the God who rules over us would turn His face in sorrow from a world given up to bestial practices on a her lap; let it be taught in schools, seminaries and colleges; let it be written in primers, spelling books and almanacs; let it be preached from pulpits and proclaimed in legislative halls and enforced in courts of justice; let it become the political religion of the nation."

Living a Fancied Security.

Chicago Daily News: The real moral of the Omaha crime, as it is of every race riot or organized lynching in the county, is the need of preparedness for such brutal outbreaks. The authorities are generally unprepared and the law-abiding, decent citizens also are unprepared and unorganized. We live in fancied security, suffer selfish and corrupt politicians to exploit commercial vice and profit by it, and permit officials to play fast and loose with the first principles of order and justice; then, when the semi-criminal elements of the population rise and run amuck, we are tempted to despair of civilization.

Aberdeen News: People who used to worry about the loss of revenue to city and state when prohibition went into effect are beginning to cheer up. The automobile industry is furnishing a considerable amount of revenue that has saloons used to supply, without leaving the persons who say "good morning, judge," with the headache the morning, you know.

RED CROSS WORKERS MEET New Membership Campaign To Be Carried On Nov. 2-9.

The local Red Cross organization is preparing to re-emphasize that there are peace time problems to be dealt with as well as troubles of war, by joining in the national "peace time program" which the Red Cross is preparing to carry out. Miss Zilpha M. Gaffion, field representative of the Red Cross from Chicago, met with the executive board and the home service committee on Monday night to consider some of these peace time problems.

The first thing which the local Red Cross hopes to bring about is the securing of a community Red Cross nurse. The latter will go anywhere in the country where her services are needed, but her special work will be the regular examination of all school children, both in town and country. The draft examinations revealed that country children were not so healthy as had always been supposed. Many small troubles, which go unnoticed and uncorrected in childhood, result in ill health in later life. It is the task of the community nurse to call the attention of the parents to these defects and help to see that the child's health is improved.

A nurse was asked for early last summer from the central division of the Red Cross, and it is hoped that it will be possible to secure one during the present school year. The local chapter assumes the responsibility for her support.

The holding of needy families, especially the families of soldiers or sailors or the returned service men themselves, are other matters in which the Red Cross hopes to be of service during peace times.

The big "peace drive" of the Red Cross, which is to take place from November 2 to 9, in Wayne county will be only for members. This is because all allotments from this drive are to be used for the purchase of sufficient surplus funds to take care of any expenses which may arise.

Mrs. Phipps Passes Away.
Mrs. J. R. Phipps passed away on Thursday, October 2, 1919, after a short illness. She was aged 57 years and 11 months at the time of her death. She is survived by her husband, two children, five grandchildren, two brothers, L. J. Davis of Craig and J. H. Davis of Sioux City, and two sisters, Mrs. J. W. Smith of Pender, and Mrs. L. C. Phipps of Tekamah.

Harriet Emma Davis was born November 2, 1861, in White Side county, Ill. In 1882 the family moved to Washington county, Nebraska. In 1894 they moved to Guthrie county, Iowa. Miss Davis was married on July 2, 1882, to Mr. J. R. Phipps. To this union were born six children: Mrs. Charles Nesselroth of Atoka, Kansas, and Walter L. Phipps of York, S. D.

Mrs. Phipps joined the Christian church early in life, at her girlhood home, and since coming to Wayne has been a faithful member of the Presbyterian church and Bible class. The many friends of the family in this city, unite in expressing their sorrow at the loss of so good a friend and neighbor.

May Call Nebraska Senator

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 6.—A special session of the Nebraska legislature may be called as a result of recent rioting at Omaha.

The session, if called would be for the enactment of legislation under which funds could be secured for repairing the Douglas county court house, which was damaged by fire during the rioting, and for replacing valuable records destroyed in the building.

Although Gov. Samuel R. McKelvie recently pointed out that the county commissioners of Douglas have expressed a desire to secure the funds without holding an election. As a result of their attitude the matter is still undecided, and may terminate with the calling of a special legislative session.

Democracy on Trial.
Omaha World-Herald: Our American Democracy is on trial. Much as we may deplore the fact that the trial is here there is not the slightest reason to fear or question the result. We are going to see, and that speedily, such a rallying of the American people to support law and order as will be an inspiration to the generations that come after us.

FOR NEW HOTEL BUILDING Increased Demand and Decreased Quarters Urge Action.

When the Union Hotel property is torn down according to the plan of the new owner, Barrett Wright, who proposes to build an automobile garage on the site, Wayne will be without adequate hotel quarters. The proprietor of the Lloyd says his rooms are filled every night. In view of the prospect, it has been suggested that a local corporation should be formed with sufficient capital to put up a new hotel building, modern and of ample size to meet the needs of the community. It is believed this could be easily done, and it would certainly meet an urgent demand. Wayne needs hotel accommodations should be looked after by Wayne people.

WHY DON'T YOU WEAR KRYPTOKS

Yes, I do wear those old-fashioned bifocals with their disgusting seam. The seam shows up in all kinds of vision. And I never realized how old those 'antiques' made me look until one day my daughter asked: 'Mother, what is that queer-looking crack in your glasses?' I forthwith went in search of two-vision glasses without the disgusting marks. I found them in

NATIONAL NEWS NOTES

Interesting statistics of State and Nation in Brief.

Milions From the Sale of Army Food

Thirty-nine carloads of army food had been sold to municipalities before the food was placed on sale through the postoffice and now the director of these last sales is making public the figures showing the total receipts. It is a matter of curiosity as to the large amounts of food the government must have had in reserve at the end of the war, when the total receipts of food sales since the laundry are announced as $39,336,104.42.

Savings Due to Motor Trucks

Hauling costs have been estimated when wagons are used and compared with the cost of hauling by truck or tractor. A ton of wheat when hauled by wagon will cost 30¢ per mile, as compared with 15¢ by truck; a ton of cotton 48¢ in the former case, as compared with 18¢ in the latter. The average wagon load of wheat hauled in 1918 was 55 bushels and of corn 39 bushels, while the truck loads hauled were 81 and 58 bushels, respectively. The saving effected by the use of trucks in farm hauling is easily apparent.

Wool Consumption Increasing

The total amount of wool used during July of this year was three times the amount used in February, amounting to 63,000,000 pounds. However, this is 2,000,000 pounds short of the consumption in June, 1918. Monthly consumption of wool has increased steadily since February, indicating that manufacturers have completely readjusted themselves to peace business.

State College Sells Boar

A Hampshire boar was purchased a year ago by the State College of Agriculture for $50. Two weeks ago the same hog was sold for $1,000. It is the third animal the college has sold in the last two years for $1,000 or more.

Middle West Stock News.

All previous records for a single day of stock shipments were broken recently at the South Omaha stock yards, when a total of 28,000 head of sheep and 24,000 head of cattle were received.

The largest individual hog shipment ever received at the Kansas City market, consisting of 949 hogs which averaged 280 pounds apiece, a total of 265,720 pounds of pork on the hoof, recently was received from a Livingston county, Missouri, farmer. These porkers had rail service de luxe, as the 16 cars they occupied were handled as a special live-stock train. The extra attention accorded this shipment was worth the trouble, as only three hogs of about three-cents of 1 per cent were lost.

It is estimated that an less than 30,000 head of cattle from the drought-stricken states of Wyoming and Montana have arrived in Cherry, Grant, Thomas and Hooker counties.

The Scrub Sire Must Go

Reports from many parts of the country indicate that the nationwide crusade for better live stock through the use of purebred sires of good quality is continuing to win enthusiastic recruits.

The emblem granted to all who keep and use only pure-bred sires bears name and address of the live-stock owner, date enrolled, and a serial number signifying the total number of emblems issued to date. It measures 8 by 10 inches, is printed in two colors, and carries the seal of the United States Department of Agriculture. Below the seal space is left for signature. The Federal and State agencies promoting this movement for better live stock emphasize the fact that the emblem is an official token of Uncle Sam's direct interest in the work of every man seeking to improve his live stock. It also indicates that the government recognizes that quality is of greater importance than quantity in so far as the betterment of live stock is concerned.

Officials of the Bureau of Animal Industry expect that stock raisers will take special pride in displaying these emblems. Later, when the enrollment becomes large, it is predicted they will point to the low numbers on their emblems as evidence that they were among the early recruits to the campaign.

IS NOW ABLE TO GO DOWN TOWN

For First Time in 8 Months Mrs. Sprowell Can Make Her Trip

"Yesterday, for the first time in eight months, I was able to go down town," said Mrs. Margaret Sprowell of 221 Lackawanna avenue, Superior, Wis., in telling of the benefits she has derived from the use of Tanlac.

Mrs. Sprowell is the wife of Captain J. V. Sprowell, who sailed the Great Lakes for a few weeks, years ago and is well known and popular as a crew part. Among the vessels under his command was the steamer "Fritz," plying Lake Superior. Captain and Mrs. Sprowell have resided in Superior for nearly thirty years and their many friends will be glad to learn of Mrs. Sprowell's wonderful improvement.

"For the past ten years, this is until after using Tanlac for a while," continued Mrs. Sprowell, "I have had trouble with my stomach. I could not eat anything without bloating up, with gas and suffering intense pain through my stomach and right side. I was constantly belching up this sour gas and undigested food and always felt badly for hours after meals. Then about ten months ago I got so I could hardly eat at all and would go for more than a week at a time without eating a mouthful of anything. Then about this time the worst kind of pain struck me in my right knee and ankle and hurt so much that I could not carry my weight on that limb. I was unable to leave my room and was so helpless I just had to hobble from one object to the other. I could not walk without the most awful suffering. My right leg became all swollen and then the pains extended to the small of my back and hurt me so at times I could not get out of bed. My nerves finally became so upset and unstrung that I would shake like a leaf."

"Neither treatment, medicines or liniments helped me and I had lost nearly all hope of getting relief until I began taking Tanlac about seven weeks ago. But better to Tanlac I began to feel better in just two or three days after starting taking it. The gas stopped forming on my stomach and my pains gradually left me. I am still taking Tanlac and improving right along, but, as I have already so much better that yesterday I walked to the car and went down town for the first time in eight months. The pain in all of my leg and back and I have not felt so much like myself in many years. Since Tanlac has done so much for me I can help thinking of others who need it like I did and I feel that I ought to tell them about it."

Kansas City Star "We don't know anything about the motor of Omaha except what has appeared in the dispatches connected with the rioting there. But he is a real man. When the mob had a gun around his neck and was on point of hanging him for refusing to surrender the negro prisoner he was still game. In the face of what seemed certain death he was true to his duty as chief executive of Omaha. Mayor Edward P. Smith has made a name for himself."

UNCLE WALT THE POET PHILOSOPHER

Still some lantern words language

trude, the passing of Old Boozie; the precious boon of getting stowed they cannot claim, loyally. "Our fathers taught us Bunker Hill, Toledo, and elsewhere, that we our captains with gun might fill," they wrathfully declare. "Our noble sires gave us their lives, but we must wear a bun and paint the town and wear our wives, and have all kinds of fun. George Washington flung forth his flag and made the great qual, that we might buy a goodly bag and steep it off in jail. Where are our boasted liberties? They're snatched up and shrunk, and our palladiums are cheese, and all our bulwarks bunk."

"The precious boon of getting full of alcohol or gin, until a husky harness lull came up and ran you in!" It is a queer thing to lament, and I, for one, won't know why any sane, well-balanced gent should weep for such a loss. The "liberty" that makes men heroes to neighbors and to Greeks, better than the lot of dollars. I'm glad you freed them ends. The "liberty" that starves the kids, and mortgages the coop, and keeps the girls from buying lids, is scarcely worth a whoop.

INDISPENSABLE. "I once was clerking in a shop, dispensing lemonade and pop and do-ods of the kind—and as I worked I used to think of doors. I'm glad to be on the brink I happily resigned. I thought if I should jump the store the patrons would go there no more, but they didn't. I went there they ask the boss, 'Where is the lad whose charms of manner made us glad?' 'Where is that jolly gent?' 'One day when I was dreaming that the boss came up, the clammy cuss, and said, 'Young man, you're fired; too long this machal job you've held; the way you've done it—well, they've swelled would make an image tired.' Oh, I was thunderstruck and dazed, and flabbergasted and amazed, but when I got my breath, I said: 'I do not care three whoops; that store will straightway loop the loops—my going means its death. And every time I pass along I hoped to see things going wrong, no customers on hand; alas, the custom did not stop, but poured in, and every time shop and bought to heat the hand. Since that adventure came to pass I feel I do not cut much grass, or do wood any more, and I have a little as I toil; I strive to make the little toil worth a grandstand play."

LONG AGO. The dear old times of long ago seem far away and hazy, the good old times we used to know, before the world went crazy. We trotted to our divers tasks, contented early risers, and put our savings down in banks and trust companies. We followed then the baseball games, and thrashed them over nightly, and to the movies took our dames, when the lights were glowing brightly. As a life was then serene and sweet, a pleasant, cheerful eye; and no one had it in for Pete—or cursed the name of Michael. But now our riches never stop, we're hot beneath our collars; if for an hour I cease to yawn, some other fellow hollers. Each voter packs around a brick and brazen knucks we carry, we take a fall from Tom to Dick, and throw some rocks at Harry. We don't know why our heads are sore, we don't know why we're rattled, but still we rant and walk the floor, as when the nations batted. Oh, mumps for the happy golden days, when we sat round and twittered, and talked of whiskers we could raise, and not a heart embittered. Oh, for the bygone resplendent days, when dined with daily labors we smoked our pipes and drew our kites, like sane and kindly neighbors.

Mrs. Verlet to Give Concert Friday. Friday night we will have an opportunity to hear Mrs. Verlet, the little Belgian Girl, who has been so lovingly called in her own home country near Brussels. Mrs. Verlet came to America directed by the Belgian Grand Opera company where she was premier coloratura soprano. She had a brilliant reputation which she acquired in musical centers of Europe, and her coming to America has only increased her fame. For American music lovers were not at all disappointed in Mrs. Verlet's marvelous voice, in spite of her great reputation. Mrs. Verlet was in Brussels, or rather at her home near Brussels, when the war broke out. Of course, she and her mother were obliged to close their house and flee in haste just getting away before the Germans advanced. Her brother was less fortunate, however. He was a retired officer in the Belgian army and after seeing his sister and mother safely out of the country, he determined to go back and offer his services to his father. Before he could reach Antwerp, however, he was arrested by the Germans. He was arrested, but the German military authorities, making the arrest in this case was to knock Mr. Verlet down, beat him with their rifles, and then force him to march several miles to Brussels, where he was imprisoned and left two days without food. But to make matters worse, Mr. Verlet was able to escape by bribing him, and was finally taken to a hospital. Mr. Verlet's injuries proved so serious that he spent fourteen months in bed. He was quite unable to work and so escaped deportation to Germany.

Dark Days. There is trouble everywhere, in the day's dispatches show discontent is in the air, every fellow has his woe. From our homes in Easy street we come charging forth, each day, asking, in the name of Pete, for all kinds of higher pay. In our gaudy cars we ride up and down the crowded pike, roaring that we are denied luxuries enjoyed by Mike. In our silken shirts and socks we denounce the plutocrats who have gathered in more rocks than we've hogged in our flats. All this discontent in view is an after-war disease; it is like the Spanish flu, which has lately made us hoarse, when this plague of crazy yawns like the flu, has run its course.

October. It snakes me feel sober to know that October is just about due at the door; her curves all remind me of long years behind me, and short ones that stack up before. October is ghostly, she's saddening, musty, with leaves falling down from the trees, with nights that are chilly and rains that are silly, and fireworks to robins and bees. Oh, dreary October, in sadness they robe her, her garments are ashen and brown; the year's growing older and feebler and colder, which reminds me my sun's going down. October's the token of joys that are broken; the roses are withered and gone; misanthropists and ascetics have met with disasters, they flourish no more on the lawn—it rains; but the water would have to be hotter before it could scald the death; it's dry and it's chilling and clammy and killing and brings me a message of death. The cold winds are sighing, the wild geese are flying, and honking like automobiles; their wide wings are humming, they herald the coming of winter and promptly congeals. The summer's departed and Autumn's well started, and winter will come with a rush, the winter will come then hurry thy fellow who's saved up a package of cash.

What's all this talk about "SATISFY"? —not in the ordinary sense, of course, but in the smoke-sense? Know what a drink of cold water does for your thirst? Sure! "It touches the spot." Well, that's what Chesterfield cigarettes do for your smoke-hunger. They touch your "smoke-spot." They let you know you're smoking. They satisfy. And satisfy is something that no other cigarette can give you—regardless of price. Because the Chesterfield blend—fine Turkish and Domestic tobaccos—is the manufacturer's private formula. Unlike a patent, it cannot be copied or even closely imitated. Light up a Chesterfield, sometime today, and see how quickly your smoke-sense will put the O.K. on "satisfy."

Exhibition Prizes at Fair

The question is often asked by those who have not participated in fairs to any great extent, "Why bother to exhibit? Only a few can take prizes." True enough, there can't be prizes for every exhibitor. The fair that tries to arrange things so that everybody can get a prize does not amount to much usually. It doesn't mean much to win a prize when you are the only one in your class.

The prize is not the main thing after all. The biggest thing is the education the exhibitors get for themselves. "Exhibit," say those who have tried it, "for your own sake. You will have a better hog or calf, better corn, a better loaf of bread or can of preserves next year by reason of having exhibited this, whether you win or not. And with proper attention paid to preparation, the prizes are sure to come, too, sooner or later."

There is no sure way to pick out the defects or merits of the articles of your own production than to put them up on exhibition beside those from fifty other farms. Immediately, many points loom up that were not noticeable at home.

Some people miss prizes merely because they do not understand how to prepare their exhibits to show to the best advantage. A story is told of a club boy in Mississippi, who grew an acre of mighty good corn. After entering an exhibit of it in the county fair and taking no prizes, he was anxious to know why his corn didn't take a prize. The county agent went over it with him, showing him that some of the biggest ears had crooked rows, and others had defects. He picked out one ear, and said, "If you had ten like this, you would win a prize."

The boy went home, examined every ear of corn he had raised, and found nine more which he thought were as good as the one the agent had selected. He sent the ten ears to the state fair and won first prize in his class. Knowing how to select, his corn exhibit made him into a state winner.

Preparing stock for an exhibit is a most complicated problem. It is not only necessary to select the right individuals, but they must be put in good condition and kept there. There is a knack to every trade and pure bred stock men in Wayne county have proved that they have a great knack when it comes to the breeding of high grade stock. They now have the opportunity to show what they can offer in the way of exhibition.

The Lessmann Loader

(Less Men Loader)

You Need It on Your Farm

Why?

1. Because, this machine will pay the largest dividends of any farm machinery that you have. If used, it will more than pay for itself in one season in the amount of work it will do.
2. Because, it will load any and all kinds of manure as fast as you can haul it out. We have loaded eighty bushel spreaders in three minutes.
3. Because, it will make an easy and quick job out of the most disagreeable of all jobs.
4. Because, it is constructed from materials which will last. Everything about the loader is steel and cast iron; only a few short pieces of oak plank on the machine.
5. Because, it is the only machine that will load manure on spreader or wagon without the driver leaving his seat on the machine.

We expect to have one of these loaders on exhibition at the Wayne Fair next week.

The Secret of a Superlative Tire

The whole question of a super-tire is a matter of principles. For there is nothing exclusive in the industry. No patents, no secret formulas prevent a conscientious maker from building the best.

But cost and competition modify ideals. The Brunswick idea is to pay perfection's price and get it.

That has been the Brunswick policy since 1845. And it accounts for the growing preference for Brunswick Tires. Motorists expect the utmost from a tire bearing the name of Brunswick—and get it.

You, too, will be convinced by your first Brunswick, that here is an extraordinary tire, and that more money cannot buy a better.

Better tires of their type are impossible—or better tubes. That we guarantee.

Try ONE Brunswick—learn how it excels.

The morning subject for Sunday, October 12 is "A man's thoughts are the true index to his life." The evening subject: "A surgical operation spiritually performed." Have you been attending the revival services at the Baptist church? If you have not, then begin tonight. The challenge of the hour, in the midst of this chaotic state of the world, is the call for men and women to ring true. We cannot afford to let down the "bars."

The Mission Circle was entertained at the parsonage by Mrs. S. E. Bishop on last Wednesday afternoon. A new and vital lesson was studied and a new member received into the circle. The latter was Miss James, formerly of Wayne, but now living in Carroll.

SOCIAL
Miss Lottie Ostrander, the teacher of the eighth grade, entertained the girls of the grade on last Saturday afternoon at a party at the home of Mrs. Frank James. Party work occupied the afternoon. The hostess served refreshments.

David Garwood celebrated his fifth birthday on last Sunday by entertaining at a family dinner party at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Garwood, near Carroll. Mrs. H. V. Garwood and children and Marion and Charles Garwood were the guests from Carroll.

Goodbye, Dinner Party!

Significant.
—Bureau Transcriber—What's this—the price of coffee to be cheaper—just after the prediction that it was going to airplane? Is someone getting scared?
