

HIGH STANDARD AT FIRST WAYNE FAIR

Despite Bad Weather and Roads, Attendance at Wayne Fair is Most Thriving

STOCK OF BEST TYPE SEEN

W. J. Kennedy, Livestock Judge, Comments on Quality of Exhibits for Entire Show.

(By Mordha Coleman.)

That the first Wayne Fall Festival and Livestock Show, held October 17 and 18, is the nucleus around which the Wayne county fair embodying the highest standards is the conclusion of those organizations which were responsible for the success of the show.

The continued rains and rilled roads made hauling of stock an almost impossible task, so that not nearly all the fine stock which usually was on exhibition, that came by fair visitors was of the fair breeders.

Local breeders represented.

Pure bred shorthorns capable of carrying off prizes at a much larger fair. Several were shown by prominent breeders of Wayne and vicinity.

Stock belonging to Henry Codr, Peter Ulrich, George McEachern, and others were shown.

Other attractions during fair week were the comic opera put on by the Women's club and the dances given on Friday and Saturday evenings at the opera house.

Persons in Charge of Fair.

The officers of the Wayne Purebred Live Stock association which was organized in 1917 are as follows: President, George McEachern; vice-president, C. F. Sandahl; secretary, H. J. M. Morris; treasurer, C. F. Sandahl; and executive committee, C. F. Sandahl, H. J. M. Morris, C. H. Morris, a well known sheep man living near Carroll, brought in the prize cow, a pair of prize pigs. One of these was a pair which won four state championships. The rest were of similar high quality.

Special mention should be made of the poultry exhibit as it was prominent exceptionally fine. It was shown by those found at the Interstate fair by those who had seen both exhibits.

On Monday morning the chapel hour, Professor J. G. W. Lewis presided at the combined agricultural convention.

On Monday morning the chapel hour, Professor J. G. W. Lewis presided at the combined agricultural convention.

The exhibit of agricultural products was the most interesting and showed the possibilities for another year. Special mention is to be made of the corn exhibit by Roggenbach Bros.

The largest part of the household exhibit was made up of a showing of art work and fancy work. The baked goods and canned fruit departments were also shown an excellent beginning.

The exhibit was made up of good material and was a fine show of water color sketches, charcoal work, china painting and pastel

RED CROSS CAMPAIGN FOR PEACE PROGRAM

Executive Committee Plans Drive and Annual Election

November 20 to 11 is the date of the 1920 Red Cross membership campaign. The work of the Red Cross must be continued to meet the after-war needs. It is just as important now as previously, and this campaign is necessary in order that the foreign and home service may be stimulated.

Executive committee of the local organization met Tuesday evening. Plans for the coming drive were arranged at that time.

"What is the Red Cross doing today?" is a question many are asking now. The work is two-fold, service in this country and community, and abroad.

This campaign is an annual event, the Red Cross roll call, in which the American Red Cross submits its report to the world.

Ham Kautzman Pardoned.

The following article was taken from the Portland Telegram of October 10. Mr. Kautzman was for many years editor of the Beacon Light in this city.

"Salem, Ore., Oct. 10.—On condition that he leave the state and refrain from publishing any editing newspaper, and because of a statement of a physician that further incarceration would be homicidal in nature, the Oregon State court granted a conditional pardon to Ham Kautzman, former publisher of the Hootton Herald in Washington.

"Kautzman who is an old man, is now serving a term in the Multnomah county jail on conviction of publishing a libelous article in a newspaper, and because of a statement of a physician that further incarceration would be homicidal in nature, the Oregon State court granted a conditional pardon to Ham Kautzman, former publisher of the Hootton Herald in Washington.

McGlechrist, one of the attorney general's assistants.

"I am anxious to give pardon conditioned upon Kautzman leaving the state and remaining out of Oregon, refraining from engaging in the publication of a newspaper, and because of a statement of the physician that further incarceration would be homicidal in nature, the Oregon State court granted a conditional pardon to Ham Kautzman, former publisher of the Hootton Herald in Washington.

"I might make this comment on Kautzman's case, that he was fairly tried and honestly convicted, after examination of issues of his newspaper, that he is not a fit person to publish a newspaper, and because of a statement of the physician that further incarceration would be homicidal in nature, the Oregon State court granted a conditional pardon to Ham Kautzman, former publisher of the Hootton Herald in Washington.

TO ALTER CONSTITUTION

Important Task is Up To People of the State of Nebraska.

The present state constitution was made in 1875, about forty-five years ago.

The great development of Nebraska in nearly half a century has rendered some parts of the constitution obsolete and suggests improvements in other parts.

To make all needed changes by amendments would be a slow and very difficult process under the present constitution, and the results would partake of a nature of patch-work.

A number of states have revised their constitutions since 1875 or are contemplating revision.

The people in 1918 voted to call a convention to suggest changes in the constitution—the 1919 legislature was the first to act upon the election on November fourth of delegates to the convention.

The convention will meet in December and may last two or three months.

So important is the election of delegates to this convention that the law fixes the election on an "off year" and devotes the whole election to this one purpose alone.

In order that party and class differences may be forgotten and that only broad-minded and well qualified men may be chosen, this election of delegates is to be like the selection of judges—by a non-partisan ballot.

And why is the election of a constitutional convention more important than an ordinary election? Because in a constitutional convention the people are exercising their highest right of sovereignty, except the right of revolution. They are establishing equitable institutions. They are issuing positive commands to all their future officers.

The work of the convention must be submitted finally to the people for approval or rejection. In order to justify the time and expense of a convention to the whole undertaking the work must be of such broad and intelligent character, that it will be worth adopting by the people as a whole.

Trade Peculiarities.
Sioux City Journal: "Trade and commerce have struggled during the last week between two adverse influences. There has been a tendency to reach stable ground which shows increase in expansion, while labor unrest has tended to curtail both expansion and output. Buffeted between these two influences, the tendency on the whole is slightly towards improvement. The settlement of the longshoremen's strike set the wheels of foreign and coastwise trade in motion and automatically lifted the embargo on inland shipping which the inability to load vessels at the principal ports had brought about. This has been one of the reasons for the improvement in general trade and business which the reports of commercial agencies show.

The threatened strike of the bituminous coal miners at the opening of the winter season, with an already short surplus of the commodity available, has set business backward and created a new unrest. Industries which use soft coal will be hard hit, if they are not compelled to shut down, should the strike materialize. It is realized that fuel for home consumption will have preference over that for industrial uses and that no anthracite can be diverted from its general distribution to take the place of soft coal.

The steel strike is affecting many lines of trade and industry. Building is especially hard hit, but there is some hope of a settlement.

part of the builders to stop operations rather than put pressure upon either side in the strike to bring about a settlement. The general policy is to let the strike work itself out, so that whatever settlement is made by the parties will likely be sufficiently binding to delay a repetition of the struggle for a while at least.

The marketing of the corn crop in the middle west is looked forward to with confidence by both trade and industry. It is one of the safe and substantial influences which preserve the equilibrium of trade, and trade in the corn producing region already shows an anticipatory improvement which helps to offset the depression in the industrial centers and raises the general level higher than it otherwise would be.

shipped 800 pounds of canned fruit and clothing to Taubha Orphan home at Lincoln. A call from the orphan always meets with a hearty response. We are sorry that some of the fruit came too late for this shipment. There will be another opportunity a little later.

Next week an effort will be made to collect clothing for the suffering Lutherans in Poland. If the people of that land are to be kept from freezing this winter friends from outside their country must come to the rescue. No fancy clothes are wanted, but warm clothes that will cover their nakedness during the rigors of winter. Do not hoard about clothes for little children. They are not needed. There are no children. They have all died. Will you look over your stock of worn clothing and have it ready when some one calls for it. The need is urgent.

Rev. John W. Beard Eulogizes the Roosevelt Character.

A man of destiny, used by God, who the way in which Rev. J. W. Beard characterized Theodore Roosevelt in a memorial service held last Sunday at the Presbyterian church. He went on to say that every man has his destiny in his own hands, to work out as he will, but after the fact done, God will use him for His own ends.

He began his sermon by comparing Roosevelt to the great mountain peaks of the western coast, where the crest is seen only at times when the clouds roll back.

"Great men are seen in just such a way. It is only when the clouds of strife and hate roll back, that we catch a glimpse of their true characters, and realize what mountains peaks they have become."

In reviewing briefly the achievements of Roosevelt, the speaker declared: "The greatest handicap a man can have is to be born into a home of wealth and refinement, where no work is necessary. Roosevelt rose above this handicap and also above the handicap of poor health, by the power of purpose which lay within him. He had a courageous will and purpose to do things, which spurred him on, even after other men would have been seeing the easy chair and bedstead."

Speaking of Roosevelt as a man in public office, Rev. Beard declared that the former made mistakes.

"Thank God for the man who makes mistakes. There are only two classes of men who don't make mistakes; dead men, and jelly fish." He continued by commenting on the fearlessness with which Roosevelt did what he thought right, while police commissioner of New York, governor, and later president. The latter was unswayed by party prejudice or class hatred. As he told some labor delegations, coming to him as president, "The door of the White House swings open to you, but no wider to you than to anyone else."

When men are tried by fire, the true man comes out, and so after criticism has died away, the true character of Theodore Roosevelt will be more and more appreciated.

HIGH COURT UPHOLDS DAW

Provision for Constitutional Convention Sustained.

Lincoln Neb., October 18.—The state supreme court today upheld the constitutionality of a state law enacted at the last regular session of the legislature providing for election of delegates to a constitutional convention here December 2. The law was attacked on an appeal of a suit from the district court at Omaha.

This new law, which was enacted by the last session of the legislature, provides for a nonpartisan primary and election. It also provides that where the number of candidates filing in any district is less than three times the number of delegates to be chosen from that district, the primary election shall be waived and the names of all candidates who have filed shall appear on the election ballot of that district.

The new law affecting the constitutional convention was attacked in the Douglas county district court by Ben S. Baker, who appeared before Judge Freese. The judge ruled that the matter should be put to the state supreme court for interpretation.

Mr. Baker contended that the new law is in conflict with an existing constitutional provision which reads: "The constitutional convention shall consist of as many members as the house of representatives, who shall be chosen in the same manner."

Mr. Baker also argued that the constitutional provision could not be disturbed in this manner and that delegates to a constitutional convention should be chosen through a primary and regular election, on a party ballot plan, in the same manner as state representatives are nominated and elected.

The election of delegates to the constitutional convention will now proceed on a nonpartisan basis, as contemplated by the legislature.

ABOUT KNOBS OVER EARS

Merchant Takes Rap at Hirsute Coils in His Reference.

You have seen the dirty-knotted and twisted knobs of hair—half pounds, pounds and two pounds—stuck over the ears of some young girls and other aspiring social leaders. These knobs which are given as nearly equal weight as possible in order to maintain balance are rapped by a merchant in the course of criticism of young lady clerks, and the Omaha Trade Exhibit makes this quotation and observation:

A Nebraska merchant asked me to suggest to girls working in stores that customers are more pleased to see clean hands and finger nails and bath than that the coils of hair over each ear are just right, and I refused to do anything of the kind because I maintain that the girls who read these Straight Talks are the kind who do have clean hands and clean faces and clean eyes and if they want to have knobs of hair over their ears or any place else about their heads it's all right with me, so Americanism. Lincoln Journal: Attorney-General Palmer succeeded in making at Easton a clear statement of what Americanism is and what it stands for. America cannot get too firmly in its mind the standards and distinctions which Palmer sets up.

Some of our immigrants have come from autocratic countries where revolution is the only avenue to reform. They come to a country where every man—and soon every woman—has his chance to a voice in the government. Revolution in the former case can be justified. In the latter it cannot be. A peaceful method of change has been provided here. Here no man is without peaceful recourse when he feels oppressed. No man unwilling to wait that recourse is denied any right or business in the United States.

This the attorney general put the case to the immigrants. He went further. We cannot justify this restriction upon the citizen unless we see to it that the legal way of change is kept clear for him. So Mr. Palmer says: "I would not hast for a single moment any movement designed by its promoters to bring better conditions to any portion of his people; but I would use all the power of the people's government to make certain that such a movement shall be come to in the peaceful and orderly way provided by the people for the accomplishment of all goals."

This is Americanism. It isn't exclusively those of us more recently from across seas who need reminder. We have elements in America some of them high in the economic and social scale, many of them self described as surplus per cent Americans, whose minds are dim on this subject. Some such would deny the fundamental American right to agitate peaceably for change. The changes proposed seem radical. This attitude is un-American, as much so as that of the direct action foreigner. We cannot let ourselves be political action if we limit political action. The attorney general spoke so usefully in pointing out this fact as in driving home the other.

If radical America is made to keep the path of lawful political action, it can be a conservative America will lawfully keep that path open. America will suffer no danger of losing its balance.

WHY DON'T YOU WEAR KRYPTOKS? Yes I do. For these old-fashioned bifocals with their disfiguring seam. The seam annoyed me and blurred my vision. I have elements in America some of them high in the economic and social scale, many of them self described as surplus per cent Americans, whose minds are dim on this subject. AGRICULTURAL NOTES.

Keep Community Buildings.

One result of neighborhood and community activity during the war has been the increasing desire in many regions to make this work permanent. To this end certain neighborhood groups are organizing to acquire buildings originally erected for other purposes and transform them into community centers. Other towns which have temporarily maintained headquarters for soldiers' camps in their vicinity propose to make these headquarters permanent and broaden the scope of their service to the benefit of all. An interesting feature of the movement is the construction of community houses as memorials to the soldiers who died in the great war. Many of the community buildings are designed for the use of farmers and their families on business visits to the cities, according to information reaching the United States department of agriculture.

Offer Free Use of Good Sires.

As practical evidence of their interest in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" campaign, which is gaining recruits rapidly in a majority of the states, the owners of a large stock farm in Florida have written the bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture that the Holstein bull and Hampshire boar owned by them have been made free community sires. The services of a Duroc boar will likewise be made free as soon as he is old enough. "All are fine animals with pedigrees."

We give the services of these animals free," write the owners, "because this region is cursed with scrub sires. They roam everywhere at will and are a great menace to those keeping purebred stock. Please tell us what we may do for your farms enrolled in your campaign and our sires recorded."

The offer of the bull is made with the desire to improve the milking qualities of cows. The owners of the bull specify that all cows brought for service must be tick-free. A fee is charged for service to registered Holstein cows.

Saving Sweet Corn Seed.

The best way to secure improved sweet corn seed, according to United States department of agriculture specialists, is to allow it to ripen on the plant, and, since a single ear will be seed enough for a small garden, it is quite practicable to do this. Select the best and earliest ears by stripping down the husks to examine the grain and to remove any worms that may be found, and then carefully fold them back and hold them in place by a elastic band or string. When the ears to ripen thoroughly on the stalk. In the north it is often better to pull and hang the plant where it will be free from rain, frost, or even chilling until the seed is thoroughly dry. All the ripe ears remaining at the end of the season should be harvested and saved. The best ears will make fairly good seed, and nearly everyone knows the enjoyment in parched sweet corn.

Sweet corn spoils much more quickly than field corn, and can not readily be stored in larger shocks, but should be husked from the stalk and spread thinly on slats to cure. A convenient way of storing sweet corn is to freeze it.

Farming Preserved in Pictures.

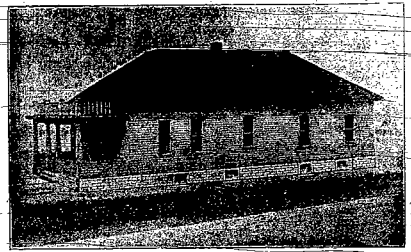

Some crank on literary speculation only said that every copy of the State of Nebraska's "Lost Years" picture in existence were destroyed. It would be possible the next day to retrace them, letter by letter, from the memory of men and women. Probably he would depend almost wholly on the "mental storage" of mixers and actors. Following out the analogy, it is hardly too much to say that if all knowledge of agriculture were blotted out of the minds of men tomorrow, it would be possible to reconstruct good agriculture from the pictures in the possession of the United States department of agriculture.

The section of illustrations turned out during the last fiscal year: 181,000 pieces of photography. The subjects ranged from organisms so small that they had to be photographed through a high-power microscope to fumigation tanks large enough to admit a whole train of freight cars at once, from a few tick fastened to the hide of a cow to magnificent stretches of forest and pasture caught from the tops of high mountains. And the section of illustrations' has been at work for nearly seven years. It has a confined field to photography, however. It works with the pencil and the crayon almost as much as with the camera. It is doing all this work, let it be understood, on the far call of rebuilding agriculture if it should be destroyed, but for the purpose of instructing the public day by day, in the art of better farming.

All these pictures are used in educational work of some kind. They are printed in bulletins, on leaflets, in newspapers; are shown directly to farmers and gardeners by county agents, home-demonstration agents, and others; are displayed at fairs and other exhibitions; in one way or another are brought to the attention of the people the country-over who are interested in growing more and better food for the consumers of the country and

Suggest a Name

What's in a name, anyhow? The new firm of Homer Scace and L. V. Ley want to find out. They have looked in vain for an appropriate firm name for the new ice and cold storage company, so they are now putting the question up to the public. What name would you suggest?

For the best name—best meaning the one which the firm accepts and uses—handed in before November 24, a ton of ice will be delivered anywhere in the city, in such quantities as the person receiving it may wish. If the suggestor of the name lives anywhere else in the county, except Wayne city, 3,000 pounds of ice will be given, but not delivered.

In order that the contest may be fair, Mr. Scace and Mr. Ley will not know the names of the persons handing in the titles. Clip out the following Coupon, put down your idea of a firm name, and sign your own name. Send the coupon to the Herald office, where a record will be kept. All the suggested firm names will be turned over to Mr. Scace and Mr. Ley and they will select the one which seems most fitting to them.

UNIQUE ENTERTAINMENT

Varied Comic Program Entertains Large Audience.

The Wayne opera house presented on last Thursday evening a more varied and amusing appearance than it had for some time past. From the time that Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Applegrass went through the audience, picking out the best looking and most intelligent persons to favor with their attentions, until the Jazz band closed with a rousing scenic, curiosity was rife as to what sort of a number would come next.

Special mention should be made of the fact that Mrs. Applegrass was particularly attracted by the "Carnival King," alias Walter Savage; so much so that she requested a special introduction to him. The couple entertained the audience until the curtain rose to show dainty Madame Butterfly Jazz, tripping onto the stage followed by the members of her band. Several selections were given by the band with the greatest of spirit.

Readings were then given by Miss Vera Smitherson. She was especially good in the child's character. A concert solo was played by John McCormick, who showed great facility in managing his instrument at the proper times.

Mrs. Henry Louise Killiam entertained the audience with a dainty butterfly dance in costume. The "Whistling Wonder" was a wonder indeed, when it was a matter of puckering her lips at the right moment. The Gypsy Dancing Girls put a great deal of spirit and life into their dances, as did also the little Irish maid and man. Clever costuming added to the effects of both dances.

Pitzani had graciously consented to appear here and so entertained by one of her far-famed solos. A pair of colored singers sang a duet, accompanied by unusual "stage play" and languishing glances.

All sections of Wayne's population were represented in the performance, so it was necessary for a prominent business man to act for the business part of town. As Miss Fay Tan, he put on a ballet dance, which held the attention of the audience every moment and was full of surprises. The loss of his wig at the end of the dance created a great sensation.

The scene of the "Bubble Players" was dainty and well received; the song, "I'm Forever a Blowing Bubble," carrying out the idea well. As a climax to an evening, which was "different," a baby carriage appeared on the center of the stage, bearing the champion baby of Wayne county, dressed in regular infant regalia. The small, delicate mother almost seemed to get the justly youngest to the front.

With such a variety of local talent enlisted to aid in this entertainment for the raising of community house funds, it is not to be wondered at that a large audience of friends and well-wishers were present. The committee reports that approximately $140 was cleared at the performance.

To Mrs. Henry Ley, who was chairman of the committee from the Woman's club arranging the affair, a great deal of credit is due for her tireless work in making the plans and enlisting the energies of the performers.

DEATH OF MRS. S. METTLER

Passed Away at Home in Laurel. Formerly Lived in Wayne.

Mrs. Salina Mettler, formerly of Wayne where she was highly respected, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. J. Candor, in Laurel, Md., on Friday, October 17, 1930.

Mrs. Mettler died August 15, 1867, at her home in Greenwood cemetery, Wayne, on Friday. Of her death, the Laurel Advocate of October 15, 1930, has this to say:

Mrs. Salina Mettler died at 10:30 last night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. J. Candor, having been bed-ridden since five weeks ago last Sunday, when she fell, breaking her right hip.

Salina Guss was born at Milltown, Pa., March 6, 1836. In November, 1861, she was married to John T. Mettler and shortly afterwards moved to Wayne county, Neb. Mr. Mettler died August 15, 1887, at Wayne, and two years later, following the marriage of her daughter Jennie (Mrs. W. O. Sand) Mrs. Mettler became a member of the Candor household and came here with the family 11 years ago.

The Mettlers were prominent among Wayne county pioneers and closely connected with the Presbyterian church at Wayne from its organization; Mrs. Mettler serving in the capacity of elder for many years.

Mrs. Mettler endeavored herself to who knew her best at all times, is generally and sincerely mourned. Though nearing the age of 84, she carried her years well and with the exception of about a year when she was ill a few years back was up to her last illness, always a help rather than a burden to her family and friends. She will be sorely missed in the home and her friends in the church will note with sadness her empty place—never vacant when it was physically possible for her to be present.

The church always held a large place in Mrs. Mettler's life and many of her relatives, both in Pennsylvania and here, were prominently connected with its work. Recently

They do more than just taste good

CHESTERFIELDS are giving smokers an entirely new kind of cigarette enjoyment.

Not only do they please the taste, but they go straight to your "smoke-spot," they let you know you're smoking—it keeps them firm and fresh, whatever the weather.

It's all in the blend—the manufacturer's private formula and it cannot be copied. That's why it's Chesterfields—and Chesterfields only—if you want "satisfy."

C. A. Briggs, district manager of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company at Omaha, has resigned to become vice-president and sales manager for the newly organized United Photograph Corporation of Omaha.

Mr. Briggs is most optimistic over the location of a photograph manufacturing plant in Omaha. He says that the time has arrived when the manufacture and distribution of photographs from far eastern points can no longer cope with the mid-west demand for this merchandise. He believes Omaha to be the logical point for the founding of such an industry. Mr. Briggs' personal acquaintance and influence with the photograph trade of the United States, and particularly in the mid-west, not only gives him a commanding position for the sales promotion of his product, but lends considerable prestige to the new organization.

The Story of a Turbot Captain

A man's life—among men!

Recall them off—"Rio", Gibraltar, Ceylon, Yotschuan, all the great ports of the world—are they only pieces on the map to you—or are they ports where you are going sailing in from the high seas with every eye along the shore turned admiringly on your big ship—your ship! Every ocean has a United States ship sailing for some port worth seeing.

If you've any call in you for a full life—join, and color all your years ahead with memories of things worth seeing—with knowledge worth having—with an inexhaustible fund of sea tales and adventures picked up ashore—and about that will make you a well-known man in our company.

Work—sure, and a man's work it is, among men.

Play?—well, rather, with a bunch of men who know how to play. These comrades of yours carry in their ears the sounds of great world cities, of booming guns, of swashing seas—sounds you will share with them and that will never die away.

And when you come home, you'll fare life ashore with level eyes for Uncle Sam trains in self-reliance as well as self-respect. The Navy builds straight men—no wavy copies!

Enlist for two years. Excellent opportunities for advancement. Four weeks holidays with pay each year. Shore leave to visit the land sights at ports visited. Men always learning. Good food and first uniform outfit free. Full information from your nearest recruiting station. If you do not know where the nearest recruiting station is, ask your Postmaster. His name.

Lutheran minister from Omaha visited her, being one of her several preacher nephews. He said to the writer that his father (a brother of Mrs. Mettler) may not have started out to make all of his three sons preachers but they all became such and the only girl of the family married a prominent Lutheran minister, so they are a family of preachers.

The immediate relatives left by Mrs. Mettler are four sons: W. J. of Omaha, F. L. of Winside, A. G. of Wakefield, and Dr. J. H. of Bloomfield; and two daughters, Mesdames W. O. Sand of Olerie, Kans., and J. J. Candor of Laurel.

J. F. Guss of Vermillion is a nephew of Mrs. Mettler.

Mrs. Sand visited here in the summer only a short time previous to her mother's last illness and is not expected for the funeral. The sons have all been here and are coming again today. The funeral will occur at the Candor home tomorrow (Thursday) at 2:30 p. m. time, and Friday morning for burial.

TELL THEM TO SEE ME HE SAYS

Wants Every Body To Know What Tanke Did For Him Gains 30 Pounds.

"I don't believe there's any medicine on earth can equal this Tanke," recently declared W. J. Richardson, a well known veterinarian on the Rock Island, living at 61 South Fifteenth street, Kansas City, Mo. "I've gained thirty-seven pounds since taking it and I feel stronger than I have for many years. My stomach is not upset for a long time from stomach trouble and indigestion and I tell you, I sure had a time of it. I didn't have any appetite and what little I did force myself to eat would sour and form gas that would get up around my heart and mother me so I could hardly get my breath—I had terrible headaches and dizzy spells every now and then, and I had such a pain across the small of my back that I was afraid I could do to get up when I sat down. I just couldn't get a good night's rest and I lost a lot of time from work on account of the way I felt. Of course I took a lot of medicine but no matter what it was nothing did me any good.

"A few weeks ago I decided to try Tanke and I hadn't taken one bottle when I began getting hungry and then I found what I ate didn't sour and form gas any more. Now, I'm eating anything I want and never suffer from indigestion. I sleep sound all night long and get up in the morning feeling like a two-year-old and ready to tackle any kind of work. Yes, sir, I sure do think a lot of Tanke. I've got friends and whenever they give me a fair trial, it's benefited them just the same as me. As far as my own case is concerned, if anybody doubts what I say just tell 'em to come to see me and I'll prove what Tanke has done.

Tanke is sold in Wayne, Mo.

UNCLE WALT THE POET PHILOSOPHER

THE DARK DAY.

When the day of sickness comes, as it comes to every gent, and you sit, with fisted thumbs, far too weak to earn a cent, will you have your little roll, to defray the beastly bills—to procure the grub and coal, and to buy the needed pills? Feeding well, men do not think, do not keep that day in view when their health is not best, when the itchy or flu; and they blow in all they make, blow it with their hearts serene, for glad rags and anget cake, blazing stoves and gasolene. Each one thinks he is immune, sickness will not come his way, and he blows the round doubt—our his large and wistfully says: But some morning there's a call for the doctor and the nurse; there's congestion of his gall, and he's hourly growing weaker. And he lies around in bed, just a weak and futile wreck, with a poultice on his head, and a plaster on his neck. And his wife has pawned her bed and she's washing by the day, in a cloud of steam and suds, just to keep the wolf away. And he hates himself so bad, and he sighs, "When I am well I will grip the useful seed till I make the eagle yell."

THE WINDFEST.

Good sense is demanded, or we will be stranded; we ought to be sensible now; but still we are fretting and sweating and sweating and raising the dust of a row. "Be patient and quiet, don't kick up a riot," the oracle tells his waiters; "get down to crocheting and cut out the praying, and prove to the world you are sane. The world has gone lousy and our nations are crazy; they're filled with a rancor intense; and now it's the duty of every galooty to set by example of sense." The oracle's preaching, however, is not heeding; we're milling around in our tracks, the oracle thunders, and shows us our blunders, and begs us to get down to tasks. And still we are spinning and kicking the ceiling, and cussing and ranting around, and wildly cussing and whooping and ranting and ranting and ranting on the ground. The welkin is shaking from noise we are making; we've denied it up with our roars; the welkin is dizzy with our noise; we're busy, get back to our usual chores.

THE CAUSE.

All the world is in commotion, forty kinds of dust raise; every gent with crazy notion has an audience these days; all the peoples rise and clamor for new avenues to be tread; every fellow has a hammer, and he'd bash another's head. And the man who once was kaiser, says, while reciting out this, "I'm an little early riser who kicked up this beastly fuss." No one's with his work contented, every voter scorns his job; and the autumn air is scented with the curses of the mob. Now that industry is needed—industry is being low; and the countries all are needed to the dragons' teeth of war. Cold the forges of the founder, all deserted is the mill; and the demagogue and boulder aren't for an instant still. Now no stream of smoke is pouring from the lofty stacks of brick, and no looms distill the roaring of the anarchist-ting. And the man who once was kaiser, says, as on the fence he leans, "I'm the blatant advertiser who notes the dist of heat." Says the nations, "We shall haul him to the courts; we'll crush him rough."

but no fate that come beam him that he be punishment for what he's done. He says and sings, better pass up and forget him, while we try to straighten things.

WINTER COMING.

The winter's approaching, the snow is crackling and turning green verdure to gold; the evenings are chilly and Palm Beach looks silly, and are you prepared for the cold? In point of going your swift motor gliding, I often behold you go past; you surely seem steady, I envy you greatly, but are you prepared for what? Is coal in the cellar, oh joy-riding feller, and have you some suads in the bin, or are you just burning the coals, and just blowing your salary in? Oh, Winter is mixing its war paint and fixing to give us a job in the neck—the winds will blow the shells of the old Harry, the snow they will carry, and plaster it over the town. And are you preparing for winter rip-tearing, or fellows who jump in your cars, or are you still burning the coin you are earning for rubber and tires and chairs?—I've had some bacon and venies and flour. And have you invested in coats double-breasted? For winter is drastic and dour.

CONTENTED.

There's one who is contented, the man who writes this when—though near around have vented his language being with four—out the work is done, the car rands. I'm pursuing the kind of rage in chewing the wreath upon my dome. I like the pay I'm drawing—it keeps me out of debt though other guys are jawing about the wage they get; I like the their frantic journey to the courts; I'm doing, I have no cause for home and respect? How they need to roar and thunder, how they'd stamp the price hogs under, and deprive them of their plunder, in the name of Bile and Pete! Are the professors in prison, where we said we'd put them all? Is the hoarder getting his tin, dragging round a chain and ball? Is the market's profiteer, resting in the moldy cooler, or is justice but a drooler, with its picture to the wall? I am shelling out my dollars to the soulless profiteer; I am over-charged for collars and for wadding for my ears; I am overcharged for sweaters and for ink to write my letters, and no bus-cancer in fetters to my wistful gaze appears.

OAKLEY THE FOREST RANGER "EYES OF THE WORLD"

Instead of Palaver Kansas City Star's Maj. Gen. Wood has had remarkable success in handling ticklish situations, where the sage has seemed set for a riot. One reason has been his firmness. When he says his men will preserve order, even if they have to shoot to kill, he does so; the incident's not make it for granted he means what he says. So they usually don't riot. There are times when palaver gets nowhere, when firm determination is the humanitarian wagon.

FIZZLED OUT. Don't recall the wild commotion of a little while ago, when we had a sort of notion that the producers would go? We resolved to prosecute them and to poison them and shoot them; and to treat 'em rough and boot them; where's that movement, do you know? Where are now the learned attorneys whom we NATOMAS LANDS are among the richest and most productive in the state of California.

They produce all kinds of fruits and grains in great abundance, but they are particularly adapted for the raising of ALFALFA, five and six cuttings, averaging ten tons to the acre being a normal annual crop.

NATOMAS LANDS have a complete system of hard surfaced roadways which places nearly every tract within close proximity to the city of Sacramento.

The market for the products of NATOMAS LANDS is provided in Sacramento and San Francisco. Over one-half the population of California is within 100 miles of Sacramento.

The enormous yields of ALFALFA and GRAIN have made stock raising on NATOMAS LANDS a very popular and profitable industry.

LALLEY LIGHT and POWER

Saves the Wife's Strength

In a dozen ways, Lallely Electric Light and Power save time and labor and strength for the farm wife.

With a Lallely in the basement, for example, the days of carrying water are over. For Lallely supplies the power to pump water to the kitchen, the wash house, the dairy—anywhere.

Lallely saves women the heavy work every day of the week—washing, ironing, sweeping, separating cream, churning. As there are no lamps to be filled or trimmed many tireless hours a day are saved.

But let Lallely owners themselves tell you the story. They are much better qualified than we are.

C. A. Larson, Holdrege, Neb., says the Lallely is one of the best investments he ever made.

"We are well pleased with the results of the 'power' for pumping water all through the house, and operating the washing machine and other light machinery. Also the immense amount of work it saves in not having to wash dirty lamp globes and carry water."

W. Brown writes from Chapman, Neb., that his wife says she'd rather be without an automobile than their Lallely plant.

"My wife is rid of the daily task of cleaning and filling

THE EARLY DEATHS IN TWO COUNTIES

From Wayne Herald, October 23, 1919.

Burn, to Mr. and Mrs. Emil Houser, on Oct. 20; a boy.

J. W. Murphy left on Friday for a visit with relatives and friends at Winterset.

Today's markets are: Corn, 23c; wheat, 51c; oats, 21c; hogs, $6.10; eggs, 38c; butter, 15c.

A total eclipse of the moon occurred Thursday night between the hours of eleven and twelve o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Jones left for Minneapolis, Sunday afternoon. Mr. Jones has accepted a position there with the Anchor Elevator Co. The new brick building of Herman Muddner is being pushed rapidly and as soon as completed will be occupied by Ralph Randall, grocer.

Mr. Clarence Corbit and Miss Thea Space were united in marriage at the Methodist church on October 22. They will go to homekeeping in Dixon county.

Mrs. Jane R. Jones died at her home in Wayne on October 21 aged fifty years, ten months and two days. She is survived by her husband and nine children.

John Sheerley has manufactured and sold nearly 1,400,000 brick thus far this season, all of which have been sold and delivered. He expects to reach the two-million mark. It requires about 60 tons of coal to burn a kiln of 350,000 brick. W. H. Homeewood is now the burner at the kiln.

From Ponca Journal, October 20, 1919.

The rain storm last Friday, Saturday and Sunday, was an exceedingly disagreeable one, and was especially severe on stock. Monday the sun smiled upon us as pleasant as summer, and has since so done till today, which looks lovely and fog-bleeding again.

In two weeks from last Tuesday election day will be on hand. It is natural to suppose that in the few days intervening between this time and election, the candidates on both sides will put in their best jumps in the business of electioneering. The election will be very close, so close that it will be hard to know until the performance is over which candidate are coming out ahead.

On Tuesday night of last week the vicinity of R. E. Martin's place in eastern Cedar county, was visited by a most tremendous prairie fire, the light of which could be seen in this town, a distance of twenty miles. It came from the southwest and with a brisk gale behind it and the oceans-of-dry grass before it, the fire advanced with great rapidity and almost irresistible force. Mr. Martin and his family went out and fought the fire until three o'clock the next morning, and by their exertions saved their buildings and stock from being wiped out. It was a close call, as the fire at one time came within a few yards of Martin's grove, and also very close to a creek of about fifty tons of hay. Where the fire originated or whether any serious losses were sustained is not known.

Ralph W. Morrison, recently of the wholesale department of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company has invented a new phonographic reproducer which in the opinion of experts foreshadows an advancement in phonograph reproduction that is perhaps as substantial as to make its use universal.

An opinion rendered by James C. Kelsey, consulting engineer for electrical appliances of Chicago, Ill., reads in part as follows: "I am disposed to advise you that it appears to be one of those basic inventions upon which large manufacturing successes are founded. I will call your attention, also, to the very high commercial advertising value of an electro-magnetic reproducer as distinguished from the ordinary mechanical reproducer, as the public are unquestionably quick to become interested in devices of an electrical nature. In reply to your request as to valuation, I can state that the estimated value of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars is not at all high." This invention is a radical departure from the ordinary reproducer in its application of elec-
