

NOTED JOURNALIST SPEAKS IN WAYNE

Miss Ida M. Tarbell, Famous as an American Writer, Talks on Late Peace Conference.

GREAT TASK OF MEETING

Hope Expressed That the United States Would Become Member of League of Nations.

Miss Ida M. Tarbell spoke at the Wayne State Normal auditorium Saturday night on some of her experiences and impressions when a representative of the American Peace Conference in Paris. Miss Tarbell is a journalist of foremost importance, her writings being chiefly on historical and economic subjects. She has been connected with the staff of the American Magazine. Her selection as a press representative for the conference is an acknowledgment of her pre-eminence in newspaper work.

A majority of the delegates at the peace conference understand the importance of their task and were acting upon high ideals when they left Paris. Miss Tarbell pointed out that Clemenceau was the first to remind the conference that peace on the new plan would require a new kind of peace.

Although the conference, under the skillful management of Clemenceau, was quickly organized, the conditions involved in the peace settlement, many unlooked for distractions arose. Miss Tarbell explained that there were in France a number of little provinces which two countries claimed and the questions had to be skillfully handled.

Such things as the German indemnity caused misunderstandings. The French claimed Germany should make good the war cost of the Americans. The Americans claimed such an amount was out of the question.

Miss Tarbell described the conference as a meeting of the German and France was a problem for past history and taught France to distrust her enemy, but the people were not provided for such protection.

Which is the Best For You?

YOU probably know that good merchandise is hard to get; there isn't enough of it to go around. Because they can't get enough good stuff, many merchants are buying and selling poor quality.

Do you want it?

On the other hand, our idea is to have nothing but good clothes such as Hart Schaffner & Marx make; clothes that really serve; that give you your money's worth; clothes that are guaranteed to satisfy—money back if they don't.

We can't get all of the good clothes we could sell; but we'd rather sell fewer clothes and know that we had rendered a real service—than to sell a lot of poor stuff. Isn't that the best for you? It's certainly best for us.

They couldn't be built now for twice $71,000

When the talk turns from politics to railroads, and the traveler with the cocksure air breaks in with, "There's an awful lot of 'water' in the railroads," here are some hard-pan facts to give him.

American railroads have cost $80,900 a mile—roadbed, structures, stations, yards, terminals, freight and passenger trains—everything from the great city terminals to the last spike.

A good concrete-and-asphalt highway costs $36,000 a mile—just a bare road, not counting the cost of culverts, bridges, etc.

Our railroads couldn't be duplicated today for $150,000 a mile.

They are capitalized for only $71,000 a mile—much less than their actual value. Seventy-one thousand dollars today will buy one locomotive.

English railways are capitalized at $274,000 a mile; the French at $155,000; German $132,000; even in Canada (still in pioneer development) they are capitalized at $67,000 a mile. The average for all foreign countries is $100,000.

Low capitalization and high operating efficiency have enabled American Railroads to pay the highest wages while charging the lowest rates.

SPEAKS AT CONFERENCE

Prof. A. V. Teed of Wayne State Normal Faculty, at Cedar Falls.

Prof. A. V. Teed returned Friday from Cedar Falls, Ia., where he attended the National Rural School conference. He was one of the speakers, making a talk on "The Relation of Various Units of Administration and Taxation to Consolidation" Thursday.

This is the first national conference called in the interest of consolidation of rural schools. It was called by the United States Bureau of Education to show the nation what Iowa has accomplished in this work. That state has established about 350 consolidated schools in the last six or eight years, a record equaled by no western state. Iowa's schools are most often consolidated around some small town. The buildings themselves are large and well equipped. No expense has been spared to provide the best possible educational advantages for the rural students. The districts attend to the transportation of scholars to and from school.

That Nebraska's re-organizing plan for the best results the effort toward the consolidation of an entire state was brought out by Professor Teed, and his statement aroused the interest of distant school workers. In his formal talk the last day of the convention Professor Teed suggested the advantage of a system of taxation in which part is state-wide tax, part county-wide and part local. Under present conditions the units of administration and taxation range from the county to the small district. The latter unit is so small that its educational advantages differ as much as the attitude of the people in respect toward providing adequate schools. The county well takes away the personal interest in the administration of the schools. Mr. Teed's suggestion would result in equalizing the schools and at the same time providing stimulus to the districts to exceed others by raising additional funds.

Between four and five hundred persons attended the three-day conference. Among the many interesting talks made by one by a former Indiana county superintendent. He went into office opposed to consolidation, but became so convinced of its value that before he left the county practically no other schools remained. Professor Teed was so favorably impressed by Mr. Teed's talk and experience that arrangements will probably be made to have the latter attend the county superintendent conference to be held at Wayne State Normal this summer.

AT NEIGHBORING POINTS

Judgeship in Knox County—Randolph to Knox County.

J. C. Kelley of Bloomfield will be a candidate for county judge of Knox county this year. He was a candidate at the last election and was defeated by Judge D. C. Laird by only a fifty-five vote. Judge Laird will not seek the office this year, but A. J. Wilcox of Niobrara will run.

Randolph's city council has decided to change from direct election current to alternating current. Users of electricity are asking the council has made arrangements to have the representative of a factory examine and price the old motors and take them at the prices fixed for new motors. The city will exchange the old meters for new ones necessary for the alternating current. All members of the faculty of the Wausau schools who applied for re-election were elected for the next school year with a $20 raise a month in each one's salary. Three teachers did not apply for re-election, as two do not intend to teach any longer and another was employed for only a short time.

Unless there is a change before March 8, there will not be a single criminal case to be heard before district court when it convenes in Harrington. This is the first time such a record has been made in the history of any of the present court-house offices.

Carl Lange of Harrington received a French military medal last week and a statement that a letter explaining for what it was awarded would follow. He has already received the French Croix de guerre and the American distinguished service medal. Mr. Lange does not recall any special act which was probably the reason for this last notice by the French government.

Laurel's need for better electric service is to be met by the village board by purchasing a 200 h. p. engine. The Laurel Advocate states that a proposition has been made by Allen to buy electricity of Laurel.

Cedar county has been organized to fight the high cost of living. Mrs. Elizabeth Harrington is county chairman and Mrs. C. A. Morten was appointed chairman for Laurel. Levi Miller, a pioneer resident of Stanton, died at his home there after a short illness. Mr. Miller was president of the First National bank of Stanton. He is survived by his wife, a son and a daughter. Funeral service was held Sunday afternoon.

Many Nebraska towns will pace this year. In a few years the town without paving will be a sorry habitation, having declined and decayed.

People who are chronic loafers and who are supported by those who should be busy, let them permit the latter to work themselves to death, thus decreasing production and making the burden of living still harder.

Factory products seem to be slow in finding out that farm products have been going down. The price level should equilibrate itself everything. A farming community cannot be expected to smile and look pleasant at men things it has to sell are reduced and the things it has to buy are pushed up. The farming community would like to see no hoarding money and consistency in price fixing.

As the Herald features the "Kerry Fit" movement has been started mainly to combat the terrible social disease. The health department of the government has issued a circular containing information on the subject with requests for co-operation in an effort to improve conditions. The disease is regarded as the greatest existing menace to the health of present and future generations. Young men and women are urged to exercise their most rational judgment and stubbornly resist signals that will rob them of the health and happiness they deserve and need. Young men and women are urged to keep their minds occupied with wholesome employment and encourage noble and useful aspirations. The determination to develop large mental power, to achieve things of signal value, operates against evil tendencies and is a reasonable safeguard against the danger of mis-steps.

Norfolk people have raised by popular subscription a fund of one hundred dollars with which to build a new hotel. Before Norfolk was paved, it was a poorer town than Wayne. The street car stimulated enterprise and prompted development along all lines. Wayne's paving will undoubtedly inspire new life and start an era of unexampled improvement. But one of the enterprises most urgently needed at this time is a new, modern hotel and it will have to come as a result of the public spirit of local capital. People owning property here should be sufficiently interested in the future of the town to stock in a project that will help insure values and promote greater growth. People of comparatively small means don't relinquish the idea of contributing more to an improvement than those of large interests who will receive greater benefit.

The bride wore a navy blue du-rumy suit with hat and gloves. To her escort were a carriage, bouquet of pink roses and bridesmaid and Martin Drevet assisted the bridegroom.

A delicious wedding supper was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ward on Jefferson avenue. The young couple then left for their wedding trip.

Her Bank Account

A good old joke is told of the woman who, when asked by the banker to endorse her husband's check so it could be cashed, wrote on the back: "I heartily endorse this check. Your loving wife, Mary." Whether that incident is true or not, it happens frequently in real life that some woman, left alone by her husband's absence or death, finds herself in woeful ignorance of how to manage her money affairs. Thoughtful farmers and other business men these days are opening bank accounts for their wives—as told in a splendid article in the next issue of

OMAHA WOMAN HAS GAINED 15 POUNDS

Former Hospital Nurse Tells of Her Recovery Through the Use of Lanac.

"After finishing my fourth bottle of Lanac I found I had actually gained twelve pounds," said Mrs. Arch Allen, of 3322 N. 65th street, Omaha, Neb. Mrs. Allen formerly lived in Evansville, Ind., and was one time a nurse in a hospital near that city. "I had suffered from stomach trouble since childhood," she said. "I had hardly more than a frame and had not the strength left to fill my little months old baby. My nerves were so unstrung, that I could not raise a saucer from the table without my hand trembling like a leaf. My food would sour on my stomach, causing gas to form that affected my heart so I could hardly breathe. I often had dizzy spells and violent headaches and was so much misery at times I could hardly stand it. Sometimes I would be confined to my bed for as much as two weeks at a time, and although I had the best of treatment and took all kinds of medicine I kept getting worse instead of better. "I was nursing at a hospital near Evansville, Ind., when I first heard of Lanac. Several of the nurses there had taken Lanac and decided to try it, too. I felt greatly relieved while on my first bottle, so I stopped forming and I could eat all I wanted without suffering afterwards. The headaches and dizzy spells gradually left me and I kept gaining weight and strength right along. My nerves are in better shape now than they have ever been. I sleep like a baby and get my thoughts thoroughly restful and refreshed. I feel fine and well and strong all the time and can do all my household work without the least trouble. "Lanac is sold in Wayne by Wayne Drug Co., and in Carroll by L. R. King-Ady.

SYMPATHY. Today there is an icy glare upon the walks and everywhere; and I journeyed sadly home. I slipped and landed on my nose. I cracked an acre of cement, and in my head there is a dent. I sprained my neck and spoiled my face, my works were jolted out of place. And there were many people that who saw me sliding on my car. They must have longed to laugh, all right, for it was an amusing sight, but no one shed a single smile; they all rushed up, in spritzer style, and lifted me upon my feet, and from my whiskers combed the sleet, reclaimed my hat, which was a wreck, unmoored my cravats from my neck, and voiced the hope, in anxious tones that I had warped no costly bones. Perhaps they considered in their eyes when they were there I couldn't see, perhaps they leaned upon a fence and whooped as though they had no sense, but in my presence they displayed the finest sympathy that's made. Then I resumed my home, to write this realistic novel, and my penmanship I went by my own. "These human beings are O. K."

JOY AND GLOOM.

In happiness I used to go, afoot, both near and far, I never knew the depths of woe, until I bought a car. Oh, many wretches other passengers behind me then I put, commencing with the cheerful gang, who also went afoot. I'd walk a road, perchance a perch, then I met some jocular jay, and we would grin against the church, and gossip half the day. I took in all the fragments of news, I went on my feet; I'd pause to view a herd of corn, and then a stack of wheat. And here and there I'd rob a tree of good, perchance a perch, then I met some busy honey bee that led me to its store. But now I ride in pomp and state, on tires with nonstop tread, my eyes are glaring fixed and straight upon the road ahead. And I am a glances aside upon the landscape rich, the blighted old car is sure to slide and land me in a ditch. I drive my boat along the pike, and to the wheel I cling, and I see the things I like, or hear the blurted thing. I do not see the cloud wreaths red across the blinking stars; I'm hanging to the steering wheel, and dodging other cars. I ought to store my chin-choo cart and join the trudging flock, and yet I would deem my foolish heart if I were doomed to walk.

THE FUNERAL.

When Jimpton died (we miss him vastly, whose face we never again shall see) I we made the funeral more gloriously than any human life should be. The pastor's talk was long and dismal, and fraught with morals stale and tired, he spoke about the void abyssal, more than he spoke of morning light. And while the clergyman was drooping, and filling all our souls with treats, a horde of alecks kept on moaning as though they hoped to raise the dead. And then the choir sang dreary dirges, in voices wet with useless tears, till we could hear the wailing surges of Death's cold river, in our ears. So hope inspiring hymns they lifted, but sang of madmen whines, and women wept and strong men wept, and felt pink Roosevelt's dawns their spines. Oh, when I die, and folks assemble to see that I'm planted right, let no man speak with voice a creature, about my sins or virtues bright. What man may say will cut no figure when I have met the common fate, and I step up, with pep and vigor, to dodge old Peter at his gate. No, let the urbane undertaker get busy, like a dancing bear, and make a mess of the churchyard acre, with all the briny stuff cut short.

ALWAYS SOMETHING.

If one is bound to have the blues, and grumble like the deuce, then every-blooming thing he views will do for an excuse. Wherever he looks he faces worry and misery and strife; oh, something always comes along to take the joy from life. He has a small attack of flu, and it has knocked him flat; he stands around and says, "Ker-look, and stronger words than that." He tells his woes to other cranks, in voice of doleful pitch, and doesn't give a word of thanks that he is spared the ouch. The day is dismal, and he brays, and tears his hair and robe, and he forgets the pleasant days when sunshine washed the gloom. He sadly waits the same old song, or plays it on a lute. "There's always something comes along to take the joy from life." And when some news comes, the world like this, he is a hopeless case; he wouldn't know a slice of bliss if pushed against his face. A ton of grief upon his neck is most securely ensnared, and he would make some kind of kick if he were being lynched.

LITTLE THINGS.

Little dishes and nickies salted down today, make the safest pickles man can put away. Little spoils of richness jar a mortal's soul, if there is no thickness to his green-back roll. Little does and nudes through around his bed, little wobbly beams get him when he's dead; then his sad survivors wring their hands and whine, if he had no stivers put away to brace. Little tin horn bosses fire him from his job, then the total lacks welcome him and sob. Little cheap reverses wear him more, looking at the seams and curses if he lacks the dime. Now a little sheriff chases him with writs, and such chaps don't care if he tucks away for later better troubles, little iron men, drive away your troubles, bring you peace again. Most the little spender, see him run a truck, wasting left tender, blowing in the buck. He keeps going stronger, with his trail of smoke; wait a little longer, and you'll see him broke.

TESTAMENTARY.

"Of course I'll make my will," said Mike, "when I am in the undertow, some day; it is a job I much dislike; it brings me visions of decay. But I'm resolved to do it soon, from that resolve there's no retreat. I'll do it ere another moon, has waxed and waned, so help me Pete." "He's gone loose, looking on the ledge, to breathe the fresh Wisconsin atmosphere," he witts his car around a pier; then he is placed upon a pier. Then lawyers like the ravens fill on every quarter to his gate; they come with warrant, deed and writ, and davy up that man's estate. My lawyer gather in the sale that may be hid in safe or bill, it is a rightful heirs may will the dead man failed to make a will. He is indeed a foolish skate who puts off duties such as this, for man knoweth when his fate shall send him to the realms of bliss. At any hour a wench may drop from some large airship overhead, and land upon your home, kerplow, so that you line up with the dead. The wise man has his life insured, and makes his will, while strong and hale, then when lies in the clay inured, the rightful heirs will get the kale.

THERE'S PLEASURE IN LOOKING "JUST RIGHT"

That means your new Spring Suit or Coat will have to be "made right," "look right" and "wear right"

4015
The strictly tailored costume comes into its own in this suit with the closely fitted waist and ripple of the jacket below. Tiny hand embroidered arrow heads mark the waist line on the seams, and three buttons fasten the coat at the base of a man tailored collar and flat revers. The skirt is simple, bearing the Wooltex detail of a walking plait. For the woman wishing the suit always spoken of as "tailored," this is one of the most authentic selection.

Represents the three quarter length type of the very popular holo coat. Adaptable for all outdoor purposes. Attractive and made very convenient with two large patch pockets. Notice particularly the soft shawl collar with the unusual stitching. A deep cufi and an all-around belt which holds the fullness to the figure allowing the sides to flare in the spring 1920 silhouette.

Part of the pleasure you take in good-looking clothes, of course, is in winning the approval of your friends and hearing their admiring comments on your choice.

But there's a deeper satisfaction in knowing that you look "Just Right," because you have purchased a garment that is not only full of style but one that has quality materials, of lasting style.

National Repair Week

First Week in MARCH

Save Expensive Delays and Transportation Charges by Placing Repair Orders Early.

In the interest of BETTER REPAIR SERVICE the Implement Dealers and Manufacturers of the U. S. inaugurated National Repair Week two years ago. At that time it was war measure. It worked well for farmers, dealers and manufacturers and for that reason it has been deemed advisable to continue it. Farmers who did not inspect their implements and order repairs early suffered great inconvenience and heavy loss for it was impossible to supply the demand for repairs in midst of busy season. Conditions promise to be no better this year and we urge the farmers to—

And Place Orders Early for Such Parts as Are Sure to Be Needed

We are anxious to give good repair service but to give 100 per cent service must have farmers' co-operation.

INTER-CHURCH MEETING

Movement for United-Effort to Strengthen the Church.

Every county in Nebraska was organized for the Inter-Church World movement campaign at a meeting held in Lincoln, February 18 to 20. Rev. J. H. Feteroff was selected as convener of a county convention in connection with the work to be held in Wayne within a month. Rev. William Kilburn, Rev. R. H. Pratt and Rev. J. W. Beard of Wayne, Rev. A. A. Hutchins of Winside, and Rev. F. E. Sala of Carroll, are ministers in the county chosen to see that officers in the county organization. Rev. Mr. Pratt was not elected at the Lincoln meeting, as he was already chairman of a committee on rural survey work.

At least a thousand ministers, representing every Protestant denomination in Nebraska, attended the sessions in Lincoln. The purpose of the Inter-Church World movement is to bring the denominations into harmony in the united purpose of spreading the gospel and raising funds so that schools, homes and other church institutions may be properly financed. Each church is to receive an appropriation.

The campaign is to be for a billion and a third dollars, payment to extend over five years. This means 55 cents a day from every member of every Protestant church. However, the churches are counting on support from persons not affiliated with any denomination, yet active in sympathy with the work.

One thing which impressed some of the Wayne county ministers was the effective use of stereopticon slides to illustrate by pictures and scripture passages. When the county conference is held in March, some of these slides will be shown here.

Wayne county ministers who attended the Lincoln convention were: Rev. R. H. Pratt, Rev. J. W. Beard and Rev. William Kilburn of Wayne, Rev. F. E. Sala and Rev. S. E. Bishop of Carroll, and Rev. J. A. Hutchins of Winside.

REV. MR. PRATT AT MEETING

Baptist Minister Explains Church Sessions at Lincoln.

Rev. R. H. Pratt, pastor of the Lincoln church, is a member of the Baptist state executive committee, at the state session in Lincoln Tuesday of last week. There are twelve members of the committee, which is selected from the members of the newly elected state board.

The adoption of a new constitution and plans for the New World movement in cooperation with the Inter-Church World movement were the chief subjects before the Baptists meeting at Lincoln. Under the new constitution adopted for the denomination in Nebraska, the work of the church will be carried on through departments, rather than as a unit as heretofore. The constitution establishes departments of promotion, institutional education, state missions and evangelism, and religious education.

The Baptist New World movement, which will include a campaign for funds to spread religious education and opportunities, is to be carried on at the same time and in cooperation with the Inter-Church World movement. The total Baptist share in the funds raised will be $210,000,000.

Kahl-Kruger.

A beautiful wedding took place at the Lutheran church northwest of Wayne, on Thursday, February 19, when Miss Ella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kruger was united in marriage to Mr. Henry P. Kahl of Mineola, Ia. Rev. E. Gehke, the pastor, performing the ceremony. Miss Martha Kruger, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and the bridegroom was attended by his brother, Henry P. Kahl of Mineola.

The bride is a charming young lady, having always made her home in this vicinity, where she is held in high esteem. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. W. Kahl of Mineola, Ia.

The young couple will make their home on a farm near Mineola. The Herald joins their many friends in wishing them much happiness and prosperity in their new home.

Prof. T. H. Britell Speaks.

Prof. T. H. Britell preached the sermons at morning and evening services at the Presbyterian church in Wayne, on Sunday, February 15, after Rev. J. W. Beard. In the evening, Mr. Britell spoke on the Inter-Church World movement, in connection with the celebration of the meeting of all Protestant ministers was held at Lincoln last week. Mr. Britell's morning theme was "The power of love in the world." He spoke of love as the greatest thing in the world, saying that more of it would prevent the crimes and wickedness committed.

Men and young men who require absolutely correct tailoring—to individual order—and unquestionable quality of all materials entering into the making, will see in this showing a striking demonstration of the economic advantages resulting from superior purchasing power and concentration of effort in one vast organization of highly skilled designers and tailors.

We shall welcome the opportunity to present the new woolsens, styles and values for your personal criticism.

will be completed early in the season. This district covers Main street from the marble works to the auditorium. Also seven blocks of side streets abutting upon Main street. The pavement to be installed is composed of five-inch concrete base, one-inch of sand, three-inch vitrified paving brick and an asphalt filler. This class of paving is quite costly, but the citizens deem it would be more commercial in the end to lay the best pavement possible. Four other paving districts are contemplated.

Jail Becomes Pest House.

O'Neill, Feb. 21.—O'Neill has solved the problem of what to do with the tenanted jails of the county. The local city jail, a comfortable structure, has been without an occupant for a year or more. A transient case of small pox decided the authorities to turn the jail into a pest house and the patient now is confined therein. The jail has the advantage over an ordinary pest-house in that the serf-petitions visits to patients are factually prevented.

Lower Price Levels.

Sioux City Journal: Business and industrial conditions last week indicated lower price levels in the future, though whether the time for the readjustment is close or distant cannot be determined from the signs of the times.—Waiting for price deflations is one of the influences in both industry and trade. Commodities are being sold for future deliveries at prices below those for immediate delivery. Bidding for supplies is still a factor in current prices—the demand being greater than the supply.—The tendency to wait for deflation is not found in iron, steel and lumber commodities, the output of which is below the current demands for the next year. Prices for future deliveries in these lines are on a level with current quotations.

Except in the iron, steel and lumber lines there is a marked conservative spirit. Many buyers are keeping within safe bounds—merely replenishing stocks. Others are buying only for immediate trade. The conditions outlined are reflections of primary causes. There is no doubt but that the era of extravagance and reckless spending is dying out. Luxuries are being super-seded by necessities. The campaign of education concerning the payment of high prices—regardless of the merit of the commodity is having its effect. People who have not been in the habit of spending extravagantly until the war wages afforded them the opportunity realize the folly of their methods and are insisting on value as well as price. This course is reflected in conservative buying for future delivery of the high priced commodities. The high cost of labor and material is holding up more than half the building enterprises of the country. This is especially noticeable in road work and paving States, counties and municipalities are finding only what is essential instead of entering upon large public improvement enterprises as expected a year ago. There is a heavy demand for buildings of all kinds throughout the country, but the impediments to large public improvement enterprises are met in building programs: Labor and material are high—and the possibility of strikes is such as to leave a degree of uncertainty which, coupled with the cost of building, has led many to defer construction.—The paradoxical condition of iron, steel and lumber, three building commodities, is founded on the fact that much building must be done regardless of difficulties or prices. The deferred programs of the last three years include many structures the building of which cannot be longer delayed. But building prospects are not as large as they would be were the conditions encouraging for general lines of building.

Riches Without Friends.

Orison Sweet Marden: How cold and unsympathetic is the life of the man who has managed to scrape together a great fortune, but who has lost his friends in the process. Of what use is a lot of money if you have sacrificed your friends in getting it? Does it pay? Is there anything that enriches more, that satisfies one's whole being more, than noble friendships?

In the Right Direction.

Springfield, Mass., Republican: The action which Chicago has taken against the "red" menace should be thoughtfully considered by every patriotic American community. It has substantially increased the salaries of its school teachers.

Which Will Clinch It?

Boston Transcript: Thirty-one states have ratified the woman suffrage amendment. Which will be the needed remaining five? Don't all speak at once.

Kissel Kar

Every Inch a Car

SINCE the introduction by Kissel of the ALL-YEAR Car idea no other subsequent development in motor car construction has approached it in importance or effect.

It has changed the habits of motorists, revised the plans of motor-car manufacturers, readjusted the selling season of distributors, and made the automobile a social and commercial necessity—a vehicle of rapid and convenient transportation twelve months in the year.

As other manufacturers of convertible types approach a little nearer to Kissel standards, Kissel invariably moves a step forward, maintaining by a safe margin, the traditional Kissel leadership in convertible motor cars.

This year the evidence is more convincing than ever before, in the refinements and improvements in the All-Year that can be enjoyed in the fullest measure in the Hundred Point Six with its sturdy chassis and wonderful Kissel-built motor.

Kissel not only keeps abreast of modern progress in automobile designing and manufacturing, but consistently maintains an advanced position in the progress toward the ultimate in motor car perfection.

For Quality Tires and Tubes

See the Farmers Union in Wayne

We handle three guaranteed tires—Gripwell, Nebraska and McGraw

McGraw Tires

High grade tires are being constantly improved to render more and better service; but most of them are still lacking in one important respect. The mileage varies.

In McGraw Tires perfect build is accomplished by a simple operation called the Duplex Process. It automatically prevents defects arising during manufacture which grow into serious weaknesses under the wearing strains of daily service.

Barring abuse and accidents, McGraw Tires yield the full mileage expected of them, without appreciable variation.

Guarantee: Fabric Tires 6,000 miles, Cord Tires 8,000 miles.

Gripwell Tires

The New 1919 Gripwell Tire is the development of a long and carefully conducted series of tests which have enabled us to locate and overcome the most common sources of tire trouble.

Excepting the Triangle Non-Skid Tread which has been retained in modified form as the most efficient, the new tire is radically different from the old. Its construction, both in fabric and rubber, is much heavier—its wearing surfaces are larger and its air capacity is greater.

Every 1919 New Style Gripwell tire is guaranteed against defects in material and workmanship and adjustments are all made on the basis of 6,000 miles of actual service.

There is none better than the Gripwell tubes.

Nebraska Tires

When you buy a tire for your car you buy so much mileage. It isn't what a tire costs in the first place, it is what you get out of it, dollar for dollar in mileage—that's what determines the worth of a tire to you.

A tire can be no better than the men behind it. Nebraska Tires are made by men who have been successful with other prominent tire companies.

You will find Nebraska Tires to be not only the best tires you can buy but the cheapest. Because of the extra miles and satisfaction you get out of them—That extra mileage and satisfaction is built in every Nebraska Tire.

Nebraska Tires are adjusted on a basis of 6,000 miles. But this does not mean that 6,000 miles is the life of a Nebraska Tire. That is the minimum number of miles that a Nebraska user can get.

Nebraska Grey Tubes are made by the same high standards set for Nebraska Tires. Their service is not measured by miles but by years.

Decentralization.
 Lincoln Journal: Elihu Root was thinking primarily of the president's war powers when he advised the republican party to go in for decentralization of national executive power. He wishes the repeal of the special war legislation giving the president extraordinary powers. There can hardly be any dissent from this. All the legislation based on the necessity of a more energetic organization for war purposes should be repealed, including all acts infringing on these time freedom of speech and opinion.
 Besides these things, it would be interesting to know whether Mr. Root and the courtiers are not about ready for a still further decentralization. It has been evident of late that the federal government has more business than it can attend to. It has been taking on state functions one by one—road building, education and what not. Now it staggers under its burden. We hear daily of its inefficiency with its postoffice, the railroads, the army, the navy and ten thousand other things. Isn't it time the states took back some of these burdens in hope of carrying them more effectively and less expensively?

 One side Mr. Root's activities in recent years gives reason to suppose that it has this in mind. He and such other big New Yorkers as Charles E. Hughes have been trying to develop a state machinery in their own commonwealth capable of producing work. They have before the legislature now a carefully worked out proposal for coordinating and simplifying the state departments. They propose something about the line of the Nebraska code, but going still farther toward securing responsibility and simplicity. This would be a preparation for the greater duties of the state in case it resumed the responsibilities which the federal government has in recent years taken to itself.
 There is no doubt that the permanent welfare and happiness of the people of this country will be best subserved by keeping the government at home as far as practical. Unfortunately most of our state governments have not been built for work. They have been kept heavy and complicated because we feared evil more than we hoped for good. That is one reason why the federal government has been doing the state's work. The states were not organized to do it. If the states could get rid of their obsolete idea that government is best which is weakest, we might develop strong, able, energetic states which would relieve the central government of the weight now breaking it down.

Power of the Presidency.
 Chicago Daily News: Years ago a distinguished American writer described the president of the United States as "a king in dress coat." Kings, however, have been losing ground legally, while the American president since Cleveland's day has been gaining. Cleveland, who was charged with usurpation, defended his policies after he retired to private life and called the presidency "the people's office." Wilson, in his early books on government, dwelt on the extraordinary powers of the presidency and the dangers inherent in our system of a divided government of co-equal and independent parts. Roosevelt emphasized the fact that the president's legal powers were tempered by the paramount moral authority of public opinion. A president, he maintained, was strong only so long as the people supported him; loss of popular confidence reduced him to virtual helplessness. He might thunder and threaten, but congress, backed by public opinion, could ignore his fulminations.

Half Loaf Better Than None.
 Kansas City Star: The allies must want pretty badly to have the Germans war guilty tried if they are willing to let the Germans do the trying, but perhaps they have come to the conclusion that half a trial is better than none.
A Short Drop.
 Omaha World-Herald: Pomerene has dropped out of the presidential race, but fortunately did not have far to drop.

How, Indeed?
 Elk Point Herald: If Wilson can't keep his cabinet together, how is he going to keep the democratic party together?

Comparing Fashions

One of the many interesting features of "The Corsican Brothers," the super photodrama starring Dustin Farnum, is the comparison that can be made between the fashions of today and those of 1840.

In the motion picture version of Dumas' world famous book Miss Winifred Kingston, the leading lady, wears gowns that are exact duplicates of midwife's dress of the forties. The costumes were designed from paintings used as covers of the noted fashion magazine Harper's Bazar and are precisely the sort of gowns, hats, etc., that the fashionable belle of the old-time used to wear.

Miss Kingston's costumes for "The Corsican Brothers" furnished quite an item of expense in the production of the picture. The silk used cost, in one instance, over fifty dollars a yard before it was made up.

Wherever this latest starring vehicle of Dustin Farnum's has been shown the comparison between the old fashions and those of the present have been interestingly discussed. What do you think? Do you favor the hoops and crinolines or the short tight fitting skirts of today? Which do you prefer, the demure, little miss of the '40's or the more forward breezy lady of 1920.

As to Jack Dempsey

Excerpt from letter received by Manager Gailley from the Public Exchange regarding the Dempsey who is featured in the serial now running:

"All of the write-ups on Dempsey are simply publicity stunts, as the fact of the matter is, Dempsey's war record has been endorsed by the draft board of the Omaha American Legion, Milwaukee American Legion, Toledo American Legion, Minneapolis and St. Paul American Legions and others too numerous to mention."
