LITTLE BOY FINDS BLAZE

Damages to House Belonging to Piepenstock Are $100.

A small house north of the Presbyterian church, belonging to William Piepenstock, was damaged by a fire which started in a shed Thursday afternoon of last week. The damages, amounting to about $100, were covered by insurance. The roof and one corner of the house were badly burned.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Brock had been living in the house. No one was at home when the fire started and it was not discovered until Howard Brock, a 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Brock, returned from school. His cries aroused neighbors who turned in the fire alarm. The only fire in the house that day had been in an oil stove about noon. The stove was not even hot by the middle of the afternoon when the blaze started.

Furniture was removed from the house without damage. Mr. and Mrs. Brock had intended to move Friday into the house recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. C. Clason, they took their furniture to their new home Thursday evening.

CON-TALKS TO TEACHERS

Advocates Probationary School for Foreign Immigrants.

President U. S. Conn of Wayne State Normal, was one of the principal speakers at the Southwest Nebraska Teachers' association meeting at McCook last week. He spoke on a program of "Americanization at a general session. In this talk he pointed out the need for conducting a probationary school, similar to the public schools, for foreign immigrants in order to select the most intelligent for citizenship. The newcomers would be taught English and other subjects promoting good citizenship. If they made good in the school, they would be welcomed to this country; if they failed, they would be sent back to the country from which they came. Such a school Mr. Conn suggested could be financed by the federal and state governments.

"The Most Important Work of the School" was Mr. Conn's subject, a talk made before the grade school of the meeting. His main ideals, though not included in any school curriculum, Mr. Conn spoke of as being the most important part of the school's responsibility.

Among the other prominent speakers were Superintendent J. M. Beveridge of Omaha, William Jennings Bryan, Senator Robert Owen of Oklahoma and Adrian Mewens of Lincoln. Approximately 600 teachers attended the sessions.

Y. W. C. A. Campaign Renewed.

Members of the Helping Hand society have pledged $500 and the Central Social circle will indicate the size of its pledge later. Miss Morrison will also explain to the Pleasant Valley and Rural Home clubs the program of work for which the Y. W. C. A. is asking funds. Approximately $250 was contributed when drives were made in Wayne, Wamsutter and Carroll.

Music Attracts—Anita—Stewart Stars as Mountain Lass.

The photo-play, "In Old Kentucky," shown at the Crystal theater last Thursday and Friday scored a big success. The music by the Jazz band, which accompanied the picture, did much to attract a full house at each performance, and enlisted interest in the story.

Anita Stewart starred in this play featuring the life of the mountaineers of Kentucky. She played the part of an orphan who was cruelly killed during the feuds there. A young moonshiner whose parents she had disappeared, showed at the end of the play that he had lived on her father's land. A draw bridge separated her home from all intruders. While fishing in a mountain stream, a young moonshiner, the "blue grass" catches his fish hook in Anita's dress and another friend told her he was the moonshiner. Anita is a government agent and threatens to kill him. Anita hears of the moonshiner's plan to come later to warn him. The villain of the story tries to get the girl's hand; he sets the barn on fire in which the moonshiner and Anita are lounging to the Kentucky; and he causes the jockey who is to ride the horse in the race to become drunk. Anita saves the horse and when she learns that so much depends on the race, she takes the place of the drunken jockey and starts the race. The villain of the story is at first blinded on the moonshiner, but are revealed by Anita who recognizes the moonshiner as the man who killed her father during the feuds. The girl from the hills marries the man from the "blue grass," and there are no more feuds seven years later when their little boy and girl are pictured as quarreling about which is better, the blue grass or the hills.

FIGURING CLOTHES COST

Replies to Questionnaire Show Cheaply One May Live.

Detroit, Mich., April 12.—Replies from sixty questionnaires selected at random from blanks sent out some time ago, show that the average Housekeeper's association, according to Miss Bessie C. Lee, head of the association, support the contention that a man and wife on ordinary circumstances can dress for approximately $100 a year, even in these days of the high cost of clothes.

The budget, as made out by Miss Lee, calls for an overcoat for $28 to last three years, one suit at $28.32, an extra pair of trousers, $10.00, two heavy union suits, $3.96; two light shirts, $3.75; four colored shirts, $4.77; two pairs shoes, $14.24 with $1.00 for repairs; one pair of slippers, $4.42; eight pairs socks, $3.44; two heavy union suits, $3.44; three night ones, $4.55; two sets sleeping robes, $3.84; four pairs of drawers, 4 cents; four collars, $1; two neck ties, $1; one pair gloves, 94 cents; two hats, $3.25; sundries, 50 cents. Total, $104.94.

One questionnaire filled out by a salaried man earning $2,000 a year, with an additional income of $500 a month, shows that he estimates the amount spent by himself for clothing at $115 with $18 a month for his wife and $188 for his 12-year-old son. His family wears $250 a month house rent, and $60 covers the cost of food in the home, with $45 for outside meals. A common laborer earning $130 a month has a wife and seven children to support. House rent costs $25, food $10, clothing $10, and home and $80 a month. The clothing is divided into $6 a month for the husband, $3 for the wife, and $4.60 for the seven children.

Rain April Snow Storm.

Rain Saturday night turned to snow, and all day Sunday snow fell intermittently. With warmer weather the snow disappeared rapidly.

Norfolk Daily News: Rain turned to snow throughout north Nebraska Sunday morning and winter scenes were reported all over the Norfolk district throughout the day. A heavy wet snow fell all over the territory, Northwestern reports indicating an average snowfall in north Nebraska of about five inches. The snow was so heavy Sunday morning that the road was forced to run double-header trains on the Albion line, to the west on the main line and on the Wagner line. The heavy wet snow caused slight delays to passenger service which became normal during the afternoon when the heavy snowstorms let up. A high wind accompanied the storm and considerable wire damage resulted. The telegraph service with cables was along the Northwestern line by Chadron was paralyzed. The telephone company reported lines to Chadron were still crippled late Monday morning.

Railroad reports late Monday morning indicated that the heaviest fall of snow during Sunday occurred between Inman and Oakdale, where a double-header train had difficulty in breaking through high drifts of heavy wet snow. Stockmen received warning of the approaching storm through government weather reports on Saturday. These reports were circulated widely by telephone and railroad employees who prepared for the coming of the storm.

THAT is the kind of increase in salary the minister has received. His living expenses have risen just as fast and as far as yours.

But he is paid on the average just 52 cents more per church member than he was paid 34 years ago.

The Minister Never Fails You

Every officer of the Government with a war message to deliver appealed to the ministers first of all.

But 80% of the ministers receive less income than government economists figure as a minimum for the support of an average family.

When hospitals need money they enlist the support of the ministers—and receive it.

But when sickness visits the minister or the members of his family they must be treated in a charity ward. His pay is less than a day laborer's.

8 out of every 10 ministers receive less than $20 a week—about half the pay of a mechanic.

We Pay Him Half the Wages of a Mechanic

And of these pitifully inadequate salaries, how much do you contribute? Nothing if you are outside the church member.

All of us share in the benefits of Christian ministers to the community. They marry us; bury us; baptize our children; visit us when we are sick. In their hands is the spiritual training of the youth.

We Are All Profiteers at Their Expense

BEBUILDING TROUBLES.

The experience of the Butterick Company, which issues the well-known Butterick patterns, is an example of what manufacturers have had to contend with during the past six months. A letter of explanation to a disappointed customer shows that strikes, storms, disease, and accidents have conspired to delay shipments. The troubles encountered by the Butterick Company are no doubt similar to those encountered by industrial and manufacturing enterprises everywhere.

We will quote these paragraphs from the Butterick Company's letter: "Ever since last October we have faced all sorts of difficulties in production and transportation. The trouble started with a strike which lasted seven weeks. Not a printing wheel in our shop turned over. Following that, we endeavored to get out four months' goods in three months. It could be done by working day and night, but no sooner had we straightened away on this line than influenza struck New York and by a ruling of the public authorities, our working hours were cut down from eight to six and on this count.

"No sooner had the influenza moved out than a snowstorm, the most impossible to overcome in the history of the city, struck the city. This tied up the city completely. Trucking was at a standstill. For two weeks nothing was brought in to our building and nothing was taken out. Every truck that ventured out got stalled. One backed and was burned up with its contents.

"When the streets were cleared so trucking could begin the express companies refused to take our shipments at the speed we were delivering them unless we routed them ourselves and delivered them ourselves to their terminals. We put eighteen men to work on that. Two days later the express companies put an embargo on all goods going out of New York. In a few days that was straightened out, when along came another storm which, in its effect on the states of Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine, was worse than the earlier storm. Printing and pattern paper come from these states. Twenty-eight of our presses are now shut down for lack of paper. The mills could not ship it to us. The Boston & Maine railroad, which serves the three above states, has been digging cars off the tracks with pickaxes. There are 1,000 tons of super-calendered paper due us from one mill in Maine. From Lawrence, Mass., we have had carloads of paper sent us by express. A small town in New Hampshire where our pattern paper is made, was dug out by the railroad and we got paper by express. We hope the railroads will catch up, but during all this time we have been making patterns and have had two crews, a daytime and a night crew, filling orders. When we get the goods on the road shipped they have been subject to damage everywhere, by storms, by strikes, by transportation inabilities and inefficiencies, and by acts of the devil. Now, today, water traffic is tied up by a longshoreman's strike; this throws extra work on railroad freight; the freight depot are jammed; trucks stand in line all day long waiting to get to delivery platforms; this has overloaded the express companies and they cannot handle the goods offered them; as for parcel post we might as well dump the goods in the river. This is New York today.

"While I am dictating this letter to you information comes into this office that car loaded with our goods, enroute west, when crossing the river for the railroad terminal, reared up on its hind legs and fell backward into the river. There seems to be no limit."

Prof. Washington Post: The country is satisfied that Secretary of Agriculture Meredith is not a candidate for the White House. He has come out against free graft when den seed.

Business Holds Firm.

Stion City Journal: The outlay strike of the yardmen at Chicago was reflected in business last week not because it indicated any material upheaval, but because it was so localized that shipping was hampered, especially that of live stock. Aside from this one influence, business showed a firm condition. A reaction from the heavy Easter buying was expected, but reports show that this was much smaller than had been anticipated. Retail mail orders were heavy, indicating that stocks were depleted and that immediate filling to meet demands was necessary. Such orders at the change of the trade season are generally small because the pre-season buying is sufficient to meet ordinary demands. The Easter buying seems to have reduced some lines to the point where immediate replenishment was essential.

The heavy demands for housing and business accommodations have set a new pace in building operations. In spite of the uncertainty of labor, both in the production of building material and in construction itself, the figures for March show a remarkable expansion over March, 1919, as well as a substantial advance over last February. The impression seems to be taking root that prices will not decline as rapidly as they rose and that while there will be a material reduction from present high levels it will come gradually and extend over a considerable period of time. As this view gathers strength the demands for building become more imperative. It is impossible to wait, it is argued, for lower prices when the demands are urgent and when high rentals and incomes will before the low price level is reached overcome some of the advantages which would result from delay and construction on a cheaper basis.

The last week has shown an improvement in wholesale and jobbing trade. The same caution is noted in manufacturing industries. The case of wholesalers and jobbers the advance is indicative of a healthy improvement in the volume of business being done throughout the country rather than an evidence of spasmodic changes in trade volume based on a combination of unsteady conditions and circumstances. In manufacturing lines it may be taken as the index of the healthy expansion of trade based on gradually growing confidence.

E. Voss of Dakota City, Supt. R. A. Bixler and C. B. Dunn of Emerson. The Wayne debaters were: Bonnie Hess, Lynette Rennick, and Leslie Kunkel with Howard McEachen as alternate. Those on the Oakland team were: Roger Johnson, Theodore Palmquist and Irving Johnson.

Makes Brief Visit Here.

O. N. Eicher who got into a row with his wife last summer, and was sentenced to the penitentiary on conviction for threatening to do great bodily injury, came to Wayne from Norfolk last Thursday night, but escaped before officers could get hold of him. While here he is said to have had a brief interview with his wife. Eicher has been out of prison. It is reported that he has been working in a restaurant at Norfolk.

The Michigan Result.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: Not even the friends of Gen. Wood can disguise the significance of the Michigan result. It may change the whole face of the situation and, without bringing Johnson to the lead, may displace Wood from his position. It may result in a complete rearrangement and realignment leading to a concentration of the conservative elements of the party into a front against the radical tendencies now centered in the party. Events like that of Michigan have special significance in view of the character of the nomination campaign—Observation turns to "the Michigan" and Wood records its preference and bandwagon sentiment is created accordingly. The tide in favor of Wood which has been accentuated by a Wood victory in Michigan and locally it will be subjected to a corresponding ebb by his failure to capture that state's delegation. Unformed opinion swings toward a winner and away from a loser.

Omaha-World-Herald: The Michigan primaries did not make Johnson but they sadly crippled Wood. The tide in favor of Johnson, together with the much poorer one made by Hoover, would seem to indicate that the middle west is not in the way republicanism for either one of these native sons.

Chicago Daily News: Perhaps, however, the explanation of Senator Johnson's strength in the Michigan vote is to be found in a large measure outside of any merits or demerits of the candidate himself. In the minds of the people of the west penitence are very fresh and very disagreeable memories of the scandal resulting from Senator Newberry's extravagant canvass of the state and his subsequent conviction for violation of the election laws, along with sixteen others who contributed enormous sums to his campaign fund or worked in illegal ways for his election. Middle-western voters are naturally revolted against supporting charges made by Senator Borah of extravagance in the Wood and Lowden campaigns had a direct appeal.

Mitchell Republican: What will be the result of the Michigan primaries? The Wood candidacy has suffered a severe setback. Lowden is running as a poor third and apparently has suffered from the Johnson attack on the rich men in the campaign. So it would seem that neither of these two candidates possesses the ability to head off the stormy Californian. It is generally recognized that Senator Johnson has not one chance in a thousand of being the republican nominee. Who, then, will take it from him? * * * The result of the Michigan primaries augments the importance of the California preference vote next month. If Hoover scores a knockout there, without even lifting his finger himself it will appear to the Chicago convention that he is the man who holds the upper hand over Senator Johnson.

Lincoln Journal: The Michigan primary result is more calculated to make one candidate for president than to make another. It leaves the nomination of Johnson what it was before, a practical impossibility. But it has changed Gen. Wood's position from very promising to most doubtful, it has seemed for several months that the general would have a long lead in instructed delegates. He seemed to be the one candidate with a popular following. Michigan, however, is one of three great blows to his prestige. He failed of an instructed delegation from Minnesota, notwithstanding the party organization managed his campaign there. And he gained only a moderate plurality in South Dakota, though he ran with the party's official convention indorsement. With Michigan lost to Hiram Johnson, the Wood movement faces the future with materially clouded prospects.

Wood Returns to Command. Boston, April 15.—Major General Leonard Wood today cancelled the leave of absence which he obtained to make a campaign for the republican nomination for president, and said he would leave later in the day for Chicago to resume his duties as commanding general of the central department. He stated that his action was due to railroad strike conditions.

General Leonard Wood's campaign for the presidential nomination will not be affected by his return to army duties here, his campaign managers announced this morning. The general will make such short speaking tours as he can without interfering with his duties at central department headquarters. Army officers here have been watching the strike developments closely for several days. Colonel Humphreys, chief of staff, left Monday on a tour of the eastern section of the department.

General Wood, in making the announcement, said: "The situation of growing seriousness in the country is such that I feel it my duty to give up my leave and return to my post of command in Chicago. The situation is not one which allows personal considerations to enter into the matter in the least." "The general" now is on a two-months leave which was granted him by the war department March 20.

AGRICULTURE NOTES

'It's "Milk Cow," Not "Milch Cow."
Hereafter it will be "milk cow" and not "milch cow"—at least so far as the United States department of agriculture is concerned.

This decision marks the termination of a controversy in which etymologists in the department have had not a little interest. Those defending "milch" have pointed to scriptural use and certain of the classics as establishing precedent, while the opposition has contended that dairymen, ranchmen, and farmers in general use "milk" instead of "milch" almost universally. The advocates of "milk" also favored that word because, they contended, it was more strictly an English word, while "milch" was akin to German.

Since Americanization of language as well as ideals is an article in every patriot's creed, it is thought that this bit of sally of the "milch" defenders helped as much as any to decide the question in their favor.

Awkward Ways Waste Energy.
From buttoning shoes to washing dishes, there is an easy and awkward way of doing all work, as everyone well knows. Now, along comes the scientist, who says his experiments show that, aside from feeling and looking more comfortable when you do your work in the right way, you also save considerable energy.

This fact is one of several which recent experiments made by the office of home economics of the United States department of agriculture have disclosed. These experiments have been made for the purpose of determining the energy requirements of an individual in the various circumstances of his daily life and for use in estimating the amounts and kinds of food required by him to meet the needs of his body for energy.

It was found in the homely everyday task of dish washing that, when a woman washed dishes on a table so low that she was obliged to bend over, her energy output was 30 calories per hour. When she washed them on a table that was a little too high for comfort, it required 25 calories per hour, while only 21 calories were used when the working surface was of the right height.

It doesn't take long to saw off the legs of a table or to put blocks under it which will make the right height.

free public library at Stockton, Calif., is a pleasant exception to the rule. Not only does it send out traveling libraries to communities and school districts but it also encourages the country people to make direct use of the main library. Aside from the liberal policy of the trustees of the Stockton library, its central location and the good roads leading to the city have been big assets in the building up of the large country circulation.

There are now 30 communities and 22 school districts that are receiving county free library service from Stockton, but the main library has a direct country circulation of 6,281 volumes. The large collection of books at the main library is attractive to country book borrowers.

Another incentive to country readers has been the co-operation between the farm adviser and the home-demonstration agent and the county librarians. These extension workers, sent out by the United States department of agriculture and the state agricultural college, make arrangements with the library authorities to forward books orally, clothing, and study of food to the communities where these subjects have been discussed at the centers and where they are to be county-wide projects for the coming year.

How They Save Farm Labor.
With a 28-inch horse-drawn plow, one man accomplishes from 70 to 80 per cent more than with a single-bottom plow. One man with a 28-inch plow drawn by a tractor covers from 30 to 35 per cent more ground in a day than does a man using six horses on a horse-drawn plow of the same size. A three-bottom plow drawn by a suitable tractor enables one man to accomplish from 60 to 70 per cent more than does the two-bottom plow drawn by six horses.

These facts were brought out by about 600 replies to an inquiry addressed to farmers in central Illinois by the office of farm management, United States department of agriculture. Under conditions where the use of a two-row corn cultivator is practicable, this machine enables one man to cover nearly twice as much ground per day as with a one-row cultivator. In the section represented by replies received by the department, three horses are most commonly used on the two-row cultivator and the addition of a fourth horse apparently increases but little the amount of ground covered per day.

Such of these farmers as use corn binders have found the use of this machine increases the efficiency of man labor 50 per cent, on the average, over that achieved when cutting and shocking by hand. Eighty bushes, the reports show, is an average day's work for one man when husking corn from the standing stalk by hand.

With respect to the value of a hayforker, they learned that the use of this implement reduces by about 25 per cent the time required to put on a load of hay, while the amount of labor required for unloading into the mow is only a little more than half as great when a hay-fork is used as when the work is done by hand.

Financial Program in Interest of Interchurch Movement

Lincoln, Neb., April 14.—Nebraska has been called on for more than $9,500,000 as its quota of the financial program of the thirty church denominations which make up the interchurch world movement.

"No one church can go to this thing public and ask for money, but the combined churches can make an appeal which will be listened to," says Director Luke.

The City of Omaha is expected to subscribe just about $500,000 and Douglas county, outside of Omaha, is being asked for about $55,000.

Lincoln, as the second largest city in the state, has a quota of practically $100,000, while the quota of Lancaster county, outside of Lincoln, is about $60,000.

In making the announcement of the quota for which Nebraska is being called upon, Director Luke said: "Presenting the budget of the interchurch world movement is not for itself. All of the expenses incurred will be paid by the co-operating agencies, and the interchurch world movement is hereby the servant of all.

"The budget represents an earnest attempt on the part of thoughtful Christian men and women to make a study of the world's needs as viewed from the standpoint of the co-operating churches and to lay these needs upon the minds, the hearts and the consciences of the people of America, thus placing the responsibility where it belongs—upon the shoulders of the individual who makes up that movement of our republic who believe that the security of our democratic foundations has been because they have heart and the consciences of the open Bible, the free school and the free church."

In announcing the details of the financial program, Mr. Luke said: "The raising of the fund in Nebraska has been equitably and justly distributed among the counties for the different counties on a fair basis. The counties will make quotas to the communities, and the communities will, in the form of a number of divisions. Each local church will maintain its identity and be a unit in its denominational division. A citizen's division will canvass the non-church-going public in each community while the church members will be called upon by committees from their own churches."

Excerpt From Tait's Speech. The New Nebraska, Omaha: "We have the kind of government we deserve and we have a right to exercise our influence, and if it is wrong, it is our own fault. Freedom of action is set forth in our constitution and the boon of free government comes only to those who are fit to exercise it."

men and women, his topic—being, "Americanism Versus Bolshevism." Speaking of conditions maintaining throughout the country at the present time, Mr. Tait said: "This unrest emanates largely from our alien population who are here for commercial purposes rather than to become citizens. They gather in congested centers and succumb to the influence of the demagogues."

As to Individual Liberty. "The bolshevik talks about individual liberty, but individual liberty must take cognizance of conditions. A man out on a plain a hundred miles from nowhere could have all the smallpox or insanity he wanted, but he could not proceed in the same way in a densely populated city. And, after all, if you destroy the right of property, can you conceive of liberty? The right of property is the right to enjoy the fruits of your labors."

Women Leaders of Nation, in Conference, Indorse Interchurch World Movement Aims

The tremendous appeal made to the women of America by war-stricken children and by children in need the world over was illustrated recently at a conference of church women assembled at Washington.

That there would be much more attention to and adequate legislation concerning the problems of children has long been proclaimed as a result of grafting suffrage to women. The emphasis placed upon the needs of the little folks all over the world by these representative women, who came to Washington from every part of the United States, dated together by the Interchurch World Movement, bore witness to the fact that American women are first of all maternal.

Throughout the sessions of the conference, which extended over three days, the enthusiastic approval of the aims of the Interchurch organization was continually evident. The fact that by co-ordination much more efficiency in working methods for all churches could be obtained made a very definite appeal. Putting churches on a more businesslike basis might be thought an odd platform upon which to unite women of the various denominations; but the day is gone when business methods and efficiency have no charm for the feminine sex. Due to the efficiency plank in the Interchurch platform, first of all, the organization was indorsed and recommended to the church women of America.

Big Budget for Babies Chief Recommendation—Women in Cities Urged to help Obtain Co-operative Civic and Legislative Child Welfare Bodies.

Big Budget for Babies. A big budget for babies was the first recommendation to the women of the various cities of the country were presented at the churches. This applied especially to the children in the war-stricken countries, but as well children in need all over the globe. Women were also asked to support the Industrial Department of the Interchurch World Movement and the program of organized motherhood for the children of the world. Church women in the various cities of the country were asked to take up industrial, etc. and legislative child welfare. They called upon to remember that the constant attention every woman citizen is imperative for the protection of children.

"The barrel-head orator attacks our society on the ground that it creates men of large fortunes. I am not advocating large fortunes. They could be reduced if they would reduce them would use a little commonsense policy. I am not defending incidents that might properly be restrained by the law. He proposed to discuss the autonomy in government created by war conditions and how and why it should be eliminated; the high cost of living; the delicate industrial relations now existing and the necessity for meeting them fearlessly and frankly and treating them on the basis of the old Roosevelt square deal; the challenge that comes out of the mass hysteria and which threatens the bill of rights, free speech and the right of peaceable assembly; the proffer and the patriot, whom he said, he held in equal detestation, and the challenge to the integrity of the republic that comes through international relations, the league of nations.

MASTER OF ART OF WOOLING

Missouri Gives Out Some Pointers That May Not Be of Value to Others.

There are experts in all lines, but shall not a man who can persuade eight women to marry him rank as an authority on matrimony? According to the Missouriian who is locked up in the Tomb as a confessed bigamist, the way to a woman's heart is through her higher emotions. "I appealed to the best in women always," he says, "and never to their lower nature."

Women also, this artist in love discovered, "like to be swept off their feet by those who woo them; they have no patience" with the dawdler. Nor did he find that it was essential for the wooer to be handsome or more than neatly dressed. But these, of course, are old precepts in the manual of courtship. Ugly men have often been great rulers, and order is traditionally effected in sweeping the reluctant fair "off their feet."

CAUSES OF BROKEN ROMANCE

London Newspaper Points Out Two Reasons Why Love's Young Dream Is Rudely Shattered.

Engagement breaking is in season. "The marriage arranged between Captain X and Miss Y will not now take place." That cold print and its romance can be read any day now in the society columns of the papers. It is becoming a habit.

Experts who study these matters declare that the percentage of broken engagements has never been so high, and they set down several reasons, says the London Daily Express. The main one is:

"The great khaki illusion. (a) The woman: "You would not believe how different he looked in his military suit, my dear. I simply couldn't do it." (b) The man: "She was awfully charming as a driver in the Women's legion, but when I saw her in one of the new evening gowns—well, it just couldn't happen."

The house family is great as another cause. Two young people who believe themselves to be twin souls go out and try to find a future home. It is a physically immense task for any person's temper to stand the strain of present-day house-hunting. They quarrel, and there is another broken romance.

The Way to Happiness. Forbes Magazine: "It may be true to say that the only way to get happiness is to give it, yet a lot of people don't seem to have learned it."

H. C. of Investigations. Wheeling Intelligencer: "Sugar is 7 cents a pound in Australia. They had no official investigating commissions."

Well Timed. Washington Post: "The consumer will find $200,000,000 tacked to his coal bill on April 1, which from time immemorial has been called All-Fools'-day."

The Forms Are Still Open. Chicago Daily News: "Though Champ Clark has published his memoirs he is willing to add an important appendix if the democratic convention makes it worth while."

The "Right" to Strike at Will

Chicago Daily News: Strikes in essential industries are common enough. They may be thought by some to add spice to the precarious adventure of living. The fatalistic public takes such strikes as are handed to it out of the arena of trade unionism much as it takes the sudden and mysterious strokes of the unbridled elements. There are, it appears, many kinds of strikes, authorized and unauthorized, legal and illegal. For one learns with some surprise that there are illegal strikes. Take the present strike of railroad switchmen in Chicago. It is illegal, according to the chiefs of various great railroad brotherhoods. But do not make any mistake. It is illegal because it is a revolt against the officials of the union, not because it is a violation of laws passed for the protection of the general public. All such laws are denounced by Mr. Gompers and others as an offense against human liberty. Still, we have made amongst words for it that there are illegal strikes. Why, then, should not the people have laws to "protect" themselves against such strikes?

The return of all branches of the government, as far as possible, into the hands of the people. This principle led him to oppose the code bill in the legislative assembly that raised it and leads him to oppose it now.

The right of all people to assemble and to petition for redress at all times and the exercise of every power and force of the state, it need be to protect every class in the exercise of these constitutional privileges. ARBOR DAY IS OLD CUSTOM Nebraskan Suggested Modern Tree-planting Occasion.

Although Nebraskans are called "three planters," Nebraska did not originate the custom of planting trees on certain days each year. Arbor Day is really a revival of an ancient custom of the Aztecs to plant a tree at the birth of an infant. Mexican Indians planted trees on certain set occasions. In some sections of Germany, the custom of planting trees forty days after Easter has long existed.

An effort to start an oak grove was the beginning of a tree-planting custom in Switzerland. Twelve sacks of acorns were planted in holes dug in the ground, but no tree grew. The next year the land was plowed and acorns sown. After several unsuccessful attempts the Swiss declared a holiday on which every person was to secure a young oak to plant. The long-desired grove came to be a reality even now the success is celebrated by an annual Swiss parade, when the children go with sticks from the oaks to prove the trees still live. Nebraska's pioneers came from the wooded states of Iowa and Illinois to treeless prairies. Early speeches and newspaper propaganda were devoted to urging settlers to plant trees. In this way only did the people believe permanent homes would be established. The sentiment was officially expressed on January 4, 1872, when J. Sterling Morton suggested to the state board of agriculture that April 10 of that year be declared Arbor Day and first set aside for the planting of trees. Although some members of the board wanted to call the occasion Sylvan day, the name now used was adopted. Premiums of money and home libraries were offered for the greatest number of trees planted and interest in the event was encouraged in many ways. Young trees growing near rivers were transplanted to places where they were needed.

On the suggestion of C. H. Walker in 1874, Arbor Day was made permanent, and was set for the second Wednesday in April. Nine years later, April 22, the birthday of J. Sterling Morton, was fixed for Arbor day.

The laws of Nebraska have made special provision for tree-planting. In 1899 a measure was passed providing $100 tax exemption for each acre planted in forest trees. On account of financial stress, this had to be repealed. The law does provide that the increased value of land by reason of live fences, forest and fruit trees grown and cultivated on it shall not be taken into account in assessments.

The Arbor day custom has been adopted by other states, although dates for the occasion vary in different regions according to the best time for planting trees.

Carpentier vs. Masterlinck.
Kansas City Star: The crowd which greeted Carpentier on his arrival in New York was much greater than the one which met Masterlinck, and something whispers that his following throughout his stay in this country will outnumber that of the "Blanchard."

Why Did They Object?
Lincoln Journal: Because of a 22 per cent increase in wages of miners, operators tell us to look for an increase of $18 to $125 in the price of coal at the mine. If the operators are to make such a profit as that on the wage increase, why did they oppose it?

Early Days from the Wayne Herald for April 13, 1899:

D. L. Strickland went to Chicago with a car load of horses for the market.

The Northeast Nebraska Bankers association will be held in Wayne April 21.

Mrs. Charles Gearhart of Pierce, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Cunningham.

The high school students debated on "Government Ownership of Railroads." Debating in the school is an innovation.

The banks of Wayne have on deposit over $400,000. It does not seem possible that money is scarce when a city of 2,000 can make this showing.

Nathan Chace has purchased half interest in the lumber, coal and grain business of L. J. Peterson at Stanton and will move to that place. Mr. Chace has held a responsible position in the First National bank the past few years.

Miss Louie Sullivan, Miss May Cunningham, Miss Hallie Caffee, Miss Viola Meers, Miss Pearl Palmer and Miss Maud Spahr are among the Wayne students who enrolled in the Nebraska Normal college.

The city now procures its water and light free. The rents amounted to enough to pay all of the running expenses of the plant. The cost of running the plant is about $200 and the receipts are about $165. More lights will be installed before the capacity of the plant is exhausted.

Dr. H. G. Leisner proposes to adopt a carrier pigeon system. He expects to use the birds in the practice of his profession, by leaving them at the homes of his patients or sending them there. If the services of the doctor are required quickly a message will be written and fastened to the bird, after which it will be released and fly to its home. Upon entering the place it will set off an alarm which will sound in the doctor's office.

From Ponca Journal April 14, 1881:

On Saturday, urgently moved by a desire to be held for themselves whether the outside world was still in existence, moved especially by a desire to see Sioux City, Covington and Dakota City, and all the water-wrapped plains around them, and seeking to penetrate the mysteries involved by the relentless rivers and the new engineering handiwork of all the water of northern Dakota and western Minnesota into the neighborhood of those towns, four men, Messrs. Jurley, Chapman, Hingens and Cassel, duly embarked in a skiff, downward bound. It was a skiff which had been built to brave the flood in this town. It had been hastily flung together, and had a bottom, two sides and two square ends being in shape feathery and wonderful, like a mud sow. On this remarkable craft the crew foresaid took shipping about ten o'clock, a. m., and swiftly sailed away.

Their trip down the river is somewhat wrapped in a cloud. So far as we can learn by strict inquiry, many were the perils, which, owing to their long river experiences these, jolly tars fearlessly encountered. Snags without number unavailingly stormed their boat, blocks of ice smote it, flood wood wrapped it round about, whirlpools reached for it and longed to suck them in, floating trees coquetishly tickled the craft with their long limbs still, while the men in the pilot, the voyagers passed all these perils undrowned and safe.

About half way down to Jackson, a curious accident happened. The boat took place. Suddenly they found they had another boat, the new one modestly following along behind. This new boat (where it came from the Lord knows) the party captured and coaxed to lead, and thus with their fleet of two boats they continued down the river. Soon after this adventure, an immense noise came in their craft, and for a time a shipwreck seemed imminent. Fortunately, one of the crew, by thought himself, and clapping his foot over the hole, thereby saved the boat and cargo. A little further along, a house, possibly from Vermillion, was seen. Some one had anchored it, so as to get it out when the water goes down.

The scenery on this trip was not varied. It was water, ice and flood trash all around them for miles. A few trees here and there, indicated where a farm had been, occasionally the peak of a roof showed up through the water, and in the numerous eddies and whirlpools hundreds of drowned cattle were seen floating.

Just before dark the party came to a bluff, and by crawling along a fallen tree, they managed to get to land. They tied up their boats and camped for the night. In the morning they coasted along and soon reached Jackson. It was certainly a very perilous trip.

At Jackson the party met Messrs. Ganit and Jones, who assisted to man the boats from that place to Sioux City. From Jackson the fleet did not attempt to follow the river. It was all good sailing, as water was everywhere. That night

Old Machinery Will Have to Serve

In many cases old farm machinery will be all that is available this year. Strikes have so tied up the implement business that it is doubtful that even a small per cent of the new machinery needed can be shipped to this section.

To be prepared for spring work, now is the time to get repairs for farm implements. Many that you intended to discard this year can be made to give good service. Find out what repairs are needed and get them before the busy season finds you with machinery having weak or broken parts.

they reached Covington, and the next day they went over to Sioux City. They sold their old boat and in the trade flung in the new one as a sort of chromo. On Tuesday they came up to Jackson on the ferry boat and Wednesday morning reached home. Badly Disfigured. A lot of battered hats in the presidential ring will have to be ironed over.

COST OF MOTORING.
Excuse me while I shed a tear and raise a loud lament; the price of tires has climbed, I hear, some twenty-five per cent. I have to buy four tires this spring, or run her on the rims, and I am saddest when I sing these cost-of-scorching hymns. The cost of gas is rising, too, the gas that runs our boats, and every time my car goes "choo!" it burns up seven groats. And oil is going up with gas, the oil we all must buy, and so I pause to say "Alas!" and say it with a sigh. And spark-plugs cost a bone a throw, that once were fifty cents; and motorists, submerged in woe, are sulking in their tents. They gaze upon the windshield hill they can't afford to mount, for every mile runs up a bill that breaks their bank account. They view the long inviting road where they would like to speed, but they are chained to their axle by cost of things they need. They cannot tour the moorland track, or journey anywhere, unless they're willing to get back to Shaaks and his old mare—

My neighbor, Swatson, passing me, believed in lots of exercise. Why don't you walk twelve miles or nine, and have a Shapely Form like mine?" And he is dead and in his grave, while I sit here and sing and rave. He was so blithe three weeks ago! Then came the flu and laid him low. The same disease mixed things with me, and lost its pep and had to flee. The rules of health are tiresome stuff, they make life's sliding deathly rough, and I have always let them slide, and I hang on, where health fans die. I do not sit up, in distress, to count the symptoms I possess. A dozen scots, and more than that, have told me I'm too heavily fat; I ought to follow where they led—and I hang on, and they are dead. I eat too much, and I despise all modern forms of exercise; and still I live and write my verse, while wiser men engage the hearse.

THE SPRING CHORE.
Spring is brightening the valleys, that were lately brown and gray, and it's time to clean the alleys, carrying all the trash away; all the cast-off shoes and bonnets, and the cat that reached its end, and the punk reed senecis that the local nooped. Spring is hitting now of roses, and we should to duty rise, for old trash offends our noses, and it's painful to the eyes. Spring is whispering of lilies, whispering in every breeze; and that town, imparts the willies which no spring-time clean-up sees. There is litter by your stable, there's a dead cow by your door; toil, as hard as you are able, that they may be there no more. For such things insult our senses—and they aggravate and vex; and we ought to paint our fences, shave ourselves, and wash our necks. All the world is bright and sunny, shining till it seems like hell; and I think it mighty funny if we are not singing now. Sweep away the long dead, Tabby, all the truck of yesteryear; clean up, for the town that's shabby is an eye-sore to the ear.

BORN THAT WAY.
Some folks are born with spirits sour, their nature is to whine; the planets, at their natal hour, were badly out of line. They came complaining to the earth, and went through all their days, and they can see no sense in mirth, they frown on joyous joys. They choose the grimmest sort of creed that's filled with threats of pain; for there is naught will fit their need, that's pleasant and sane. They are the sad and gloomy folks who never with every breath, who see the bloom on maiden cheeks and talk of worms and devils, and the optimist may try to cheer up gents like these; they'll answer with a dismal sigh his gladdest, brightest words. They'll say his logic blithe and brave, is merely sounding brass; they'll drool a while about the grave, and claim all flesh is grass. They make me weary and dishearten when I with them commune; by them December chill is brought into the midst of June. And, oh, I pity such very gents who cannot gaily laugh, who wipe the briny from their eyes, and quote an epiphany.

CHEAP GRUB.
To every plan that's good for man attention I am giving; I'm eating fish—cheap, oh, dish to dish. I do not like the walleyed pike the sucker or the grayling, yet if I balked at them, or knocked them in duty I'd be failing. For we mis'try, since costs are high to make the blamed things lower, and make their graft work clever, and make their system sicken, and chew and spit, though at birth, that doesn't taste like chicken. The habit that some poor nut swallowed from the briny ocean, I ship from, and my intestine is filled with sad emotion. Oh, all the fish that go ker-shash through sea and lake and river, I'd gladly swap for nut-crack chop or bacon flanked by liver. I eat my whale, and though I'm pale, I'm steadfast in my duty; my purpose high to eat or die is sure a thing of beauty. I chew and shark and men remark, I'm thus a great blow landing; if all would eat, like me, cheap meat, the Cost would lose its standing. I empty creels of fish and eels and store them in my gravy, but how I sigh for beet-steak pie, and pottershouses gaudy!

CLIMATE.
I travel east, I travel west, to find the smoothest climate, and when at last I've found the best, no doubt, I'll dertly rhyme it. I travel north, I travel south, and find the folks complaining; for here there is a beasty drouth, and there it's always raining. I sit me down below the sea to write some southeil stanzas, and log some up and snicker and make me years for Kansas. Upon the mountain's brow I sit, and view the valleys under, and then the storm bend throws a fit, with hail and sleet and thunder. I traverse lands across the foam, from Cork to the Nyanzas; and all things say, "You're far from home," and make me sick for Kansas. And Kansas climate is the worst that e'er the Lord invented, with cold and heat and winds accur—but there I'm most contented. For there my friends are drilling round, the slowest and the quietest, and where my dearest friends are found, the climate is the slickest. I travel up, I travel down, to find an earthy heaven, and always sigh for me old town, dimensions, five by seven.

The Woman Voter. (Lincoln Journal). Adams, Neb., April 5.—To the Editor of The State Journal: Will you kindly answer through your paper what limit, if any, is placed on the right of women voting in Nebraska? A. S. As the law now stands women may vote on all offices not named in the state constitution. They may vote, in primary and election, for president of the United States; for county officers except judges; for precinct officers except justice of the peace; for township officers; for school officers, if legally qualified; for municipal officers; for delegates to the national convention upon the adoption of the new constitution, although it is doubtful if their votes can be legally counted. Women are disqualified from voting for United States senators and representatives, state officers and legislators, state and district and county judges, and justices of the peace or police magistrates. The qualifications as to age, residence and so forth are the same as for men. Two events may occur before the November election, either of which would give women exact voting equality with men. If one more state ratifies the nineteenth amendment before November, all limitations will be removed. If the suffrage clause in the new constitution is adopted at the special election on September 21, the women of Nebraska will become full voters at once. The limitations here named will probably apply in the primary election on April 21. There is not much probability that they will still persist next November.

Clean House.

Omaha World-Herald: As women enter the realm of voting citizenship they should concern themselves about "dirty politics." If the sanitary conditions of the political bodies offend their sense of right by justice join a party that cleans up and then clean house. No thrifty housewife ever stood outside and talked all spring about the noncontaminating. She started inside and did a thorough job of it, according to her strength and ability.
