The celebration of July Fourth this year will far surpass any previous event in Wayne. One of the features will be a scene of camp life and drilling, together with a sham battle. Drilling jumper on ab will make a daring leap from a height of 70 feet into a pool of water. There will be tight rope walking and a balloon ascension, pony and bicycle races. A large amount of concert will be given for the occasion.

Commencement exercises for the four graduates of the Wayne high school were held June 2. The class included Miss Rita Beckenbender, Miss Iva Connable, Miss Edna Britton and Fred Wright. The program featured will be a scene of camp life and drilling, together with a sham battle. Drilling jumper on ab will make a daring leap from a height of 70 feet into a pool of water. There will be tight rope walking and a balloon ascension, pony and bicycle races. A large amount of concert will be given for the occasion.

From Ponca Journal, June 9, 1881: A representative of the passenger line, based over the route between Sioux City and Vermillion, through the country which was so badly wrecked by the weather of the past spring. As soon as the Sioux river is crossed, four miles out from Sioux City, the work of the watery elements is to be seen. Many farms have been raised high crops of grain, are now wholly or partially under water, while in others farmers were seen plowing soft which was so wet that things could scarcely go over it. Without plowing. Water marks were sometimes visible half way to the roof of a house while others on higher ground, had only received two or three feet of Missouri mud.

Writing of Elk Point the paper says that the water in the immense lake, which rolls its waves to within half a block of the school house, on the south-side of that town, and covers a wide inland sea of sixteen miles east and west, and has an average width of four miles, thus saving the inhabitants of that town and country five inland miles of sixty-four square miles, or 40,960 acres, on which many a sail boat, yacht, junk and other craft ply their courses. In fact sailing and rowing seem to be the principal occupation of many of the business men of that town, who, under the constant practice, are becoming experts in the management of the boat. And if they would ride at all, this is their only way, as a liverman of that place informed us, that there is but one road out of town that can be traveled by team, and that is around the east end of the lake to the river opposite Ponca. All the other roads are yawning abysses of mud and mire.

While waiting for trains we were enabled to finger the public maps of that place as to the feeling about their situation. The business men with one general accord are "blue." The present train is extremely dull as it naturally would be with no passable roads in the country, while the prospect for a crop in that country this season is far from flattering. All unite in saying that but a small per centage of the bottom land, can be cultivated this year, but only a few small-lake islands and figures as to what that per cent would probably be. One, a merchant, thought one-tenth the usual crop would be put in while another, a farmer from the overworked district, affirmed that an attempt would be made to farm not over one-fifth of that of the land which was killed last year.

West of Elk Point the water grows worse instead of better. From half a mile above that town to the point of bluff just below Vermillion, a distance of fourteen miles, the country is one continuous slough with water everywhere to a depth of five and the whole of which is growing up to water weeds. This extensive swamp, a fourteen-mile long by an average width of one mile, making 14 square miles, which added to the sixty-four square miles of lake south of Elk Point, fronts up to the east of 73 square miles of large worthless lands this season between Vermillion and the Iowa line. This water was all left by the Missouri when it went on its way and now are lakes and marshes were last year some of the finest farms in this country.

The damage to Vermillion has so often been written of, that we will pass that by. The town is now rapidly building up on the bluffs back of the old site where water need fear the further aggression of the Missouri.

Paving at Randolph. Randolph Times. Next weather permitting the big grading work that has been at work on the streets at Wayne will move to Randolph and the streets of that city will be paved. Those who saw this outfit at work during the field meet at Wayne can well believe that this was a large amount of dirt in a short time. Our streets will have to be cut down several inches to allow for the five-inch concrete base on which the new street will rest and the dirt thus removed will be put on streets that need filling. The grading outfit has a power grader that does away with large dump carts. The storm sewer is now about all placed, the last of the having come last Saturday to finish the block and a half that was lacking of full completion. Many of the cement openings to the manholes are in place and the work done so far as the weather and material would permit. A drain has been let into the low place opposite the Omaha station, and the water that may collect there will run into the storm sewer. A screen will protect the sewer from becoming clogged with weeds and trash.

Every Boost a Knock. Sioux Falls Argus-Leader: Senator Penrose says that in his opinion Senator Knox is the best equipped man for the presidency. There is no discount on Senator Knox's ability and equipment, but there is no question that every boost is a knock with the large progressive section of the republican party, so far as Senator Penrose is concerned.

Need of Lightning Rods. Birmingham Age-Herald: One of the tragedies of politics is the way presidential lightning plays all around a favorite son without ever striking him.

A Remedy Wanted. Chicago Daily News: Emergency relief to the railroads is an opiate that merely deadens the present pain. What is needed is a remedy.

Mr. Wilson's Misunderstanding. Chicago Tribune: Mr. Wilson's reliance upon the American people's capacity for self-sacrifice is a mistake. There is no task so irksome, so hazardous or so costly in blood and

THE WAYNE HERALD

The Oldest Established Paper in Wayne County, Published Every Thursday. Entered at the Postoffice at Wayne, Neb., as Second-Class Mail Matter, No. 186 under the act of March 3, 1879. Known office of publication, E. W. Hulse, Editor and Proprietor. Subscription $2.00 Per Year in Advance. Telephone 146.

The promise of an extraordinary attendance at the Wayne State Normal for the summer term should not prompt people having rooms to rent to charge more above the service is worth. This is a very important and necessary and that electricity consumption is reduced to a minimum during summer should induce rather than deter people from renting during cold weather and long dark nights.

For the first time since 1914, a gang with that old familiar look of anarchy applied to us for a job. He said he came from South Dakota and the trip to this city was not long. He had opportunities for employment in town and country are still so numerous that "one who is willing to go" does not get a hard time of it. This man was advised accordingly. But jobs have been advertised so long that this little excursion was an impressive review of old-time memories.

The debate between Gov. Henry J. Allen of this and the Hon. Charles P. Nease, head of the American Federation of Labor, in New York regarding two opposing views of the industrial problem. Gompers contended that people have the right to quit work, while Allen contended that he did not wish to take away from men their right to quit work but he would stop the labor organization from ordering men to quit work. It has been made apparent that the labor organization and capitalist organizations, abuse unrestricted power, to the injury of the great masses who belong to neither.

Read at Memorial Service. The following poem, written by Mrs. John W. Evans, was read at the memorial services in Wayne Sunday: To our fallen heroes who are just behind life's curtain— Some poet has said— Behind the hero's sleep who poppies blow, Between the crosses row on row, They do not sleep where poppies blow, They are just behind life's curtain.

Those who have gone on before are all the better for it. Those who we see here no more, Are all just behind life's curtain. They're around us day and night, They're very near us left and right, To us, they're simply out of sight, They are just behind life's curtain. They're always with us here and there, They're always with us everywhere, There's no place called "Over There," It's just behind life's curtain.

You'd stiffly meet with a surprise eye, eye that you could not surmise. Could you but see with angel eyes, Behind life's gigantic curtain. They're all more alive than you, You'll find out, when you pass through life's great door, then you'll be too behind life's mysterious curtain. Between the known and the unknown, Some how, some time, some where, Life's curtain will be rent in twain And life's mysteries laid bare.

All those whom we see here no more, For those whom we see here as dead, Have simply found the hidden path And just journeyed on ahead. Dedicated to our fallen heroes by Mrs. John W. Evans, Omaha, Neb.

A Possible Remedy. A more careful study of the report recently revealed in the inquiry into presidential campaign expenditures, shows that the era of waste and extravagance has not yet passed. It is said that $66,000 has been spent up to the present hour on the Hoover campaign; $89,000 on the campaign for the year ending June 30, and now comes a witness who states that $40,000 has been spent on Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's campaign to have the control of presidential expenditures in the hands of the blue sky hoard?

Merely for the Record. Springfield, Mass., Republican: The president of course does not care for the exact figures that authorize the Armenian mandate. Why, then, does he recommend such action? His congressional commission, headed by Gen. Hazard who visited Armenia, has discouraged the project. The president's purpose probably is to make a personal reputation.

could fly as high as the wind without disturbing the equanimity of the consuming public. Home products are the best of the kind and they were regarded the best in the world. Why are we not more particularly desirable than most? Are we not the best of the kind? Are we not more reasonable? As to the practicability of this suggestion, we don't know.

The Sioux City Tribune's enterprise in delivering copies of the paper by airplane to northeast Nebraska is to be commended. In the event of the suspension of mail service on account of the flood, saved a wave of grateful appreciation and praise. The Chicago Tribune's editorial on aggressive spirit pleases the popular ear. It is not slow in figuring out the right thing to do. It has the judgment and courage to look beyond the immediate cost.

ROAD IMPROVEMENTS.

The best road out of Wayne at this time is the one between Lawrence and Laurel. It was constructed last year, and is about as near perfection as a dirt road can get. The road has been straightened, high places lowered, wide, properly sloping grade for turning and travel during a winter of heavy tracks; the road has been straightened, high places lowered, wide, properly sloping grade for turning and travel during a winter of heavy tracks; the road has been straightened, high places lowered, wide, properly sloping grade for turning and travel during a winter of heavy tracks.

But even this fine stretch of dirt road will become muddy and repellent as the winter picture brought out old ones. It is plain that the discrepancy between the prices paid for the product and the ultimate cost to the consumer is largely in the cost of cured meats. This is explained by the statement that speculators have been buying all the hams and bacon they could get for export during the spring season. It also stated that the cost of curing meats is increasing from thirty to ninety days to cure pork and therefore a fall in the price of live stock will increase the price of hams and bacon as soon as that of fresh meats.

During the year 1919 there were about 150,000 head of hogs slaughtered in this country. The first award made by Federal Judge Alschuler in March, 1918, set a maximum price for hogs at forty cents per hundred and was retroactive to the first of the year. A second award in August, 1919, set a maximum price for hogs at fifty cents per hundred and established a cost-of-living bonus of $200 per week. In December, 1919, a third decision was rendered increasing the maximum price of live hogs to fifty cents per hundred and increasing the cost-of-living bonus to $200 per week.

Common labor is earning on an average $24.00 to $23.00 per week and skilled labor from $35.00 to $40.00 and higher. Wages in the packing industry, however, are about 180 cents per hundred against an increase in living costs in Chicago of approximately 75 percent. It must be admitted that the cost of operating a packing plant in order to arrive at the truth about the cost of meat, investigation must cover the entire field, from the farm to the table. A million dollars worth of hogs are slaughtered in this country each week and their cattle will bring but a hundred million consumers want to buy their meat as cheaply as possible.

It has been often suggested that if local meat-market men would buy directly from the stock raiser, do their own slaughtering and avoid the middle man, the consumer could save his share at less expense. Investigation materially supports the feasibility of this theory. In the killing and dressing of a steer, for example, skill of no mean order is demanded. Each of the four large enterprises entering the killing pens of the large packing companies, until the dressed beef is hung in the cooler for a few days, are busy with forty-five distinct operations. Each man thus becomes a specialist, and the work progresses swiftly, smoothly, almost lost motion and at a great saving in labor costs.

Every part of the animal to the last vestige is utilized. Analytical tests are made on every part of the carcass to recover from the material formerly carried to the dumps. The story of glue, fertilizer, music, ink, and other products made from waste, has been frequently told. By the manufacture of these by-products, the packer is able to pay the producer more for his live stock and to sell the dressed meat to the consumer for less.

Meat inspection has still been the discovery of glands and other organs and their development into prized pharmaceutical preparations. The extract used for the cure of many hitherto subtle maladies; suprarenalin, a single pound of which requires 135,000 sheep and 20,000 cattle; pepsin, a pituitary substance, pepsin, pineal glands, all are used for the alleviation of human suffering. The glands are produced as a by-product in almost every art and craft and in giving employment to thousands of men and providing profitable uses for capital.

Profits from hides and by-products are credited to the cost of the carcass. The hides and by-products, the more can be paid for cattle and the cost of beef will be less to the consumer. The cost of the carcass is made up of live stock and what makes the price of meat? Packers buy cattle in an open market competing with other farmers in the sale of their live stock and themselves buying feeders. Prices

CURED PRODUCTS GO UP AND HOGS COME DOWN

Hogs on Foot Cheaper Than Cured—Hogs Are Higher—Why?

A comparison of the present price of meats as sold by the pound over the counter with the prices prevailing here a year ago reveals that while hams and bacon are somewhat higher, pork is lower. The following table shows the differences: Cured Meats: Bacon 30-60, Hams 40-45. Fresh Meats: Beefsteaks 40, Beef roast 30, Boiling Meat 23, Pork chops 45, Lard 38.

Wholesale beef prices which stood at an average of $21.35 per cwt. on May 14, 1919, fell to $20.72 by Dec. 1. Hog prices which were at a governmental guarantee of $7.50 during the war, rose to $7.50 in July, 1919, and then declined to $13.75 by December.

It is plain that the discrepancy between the prices paid for the product and the ultimate cost to the consumer is largely in the cost of cured meats. This is explained by the statement that speculators have been buying all the hams and bacon they could get for export during the spring season. It also stated that the cost of curing meats is increasing from thirty to ninety days to cure pork and therefore a fall in the price of live stock will increase the price of hams and bacon as soon as that of fresh meats.

The cost of the carcass is made up of live stock and what makes the price of meat? Packers buy cattle in an open market competing with other farmers in the sale of their live stock and themselves buying feeders. Prices are determined by the flow of cattle to the market, and by what each of these buying orders is willing to pay, and the further influence of reports of local conditions. Demand is influenced by a flood of hogs, severe blizzard or a flood which blocks roads and makes transportation difficult, heavy reports of fire or general local conditions coming on the markets killing for home use, local strikes, all have marked effect on the price of fresh meats. Price is affected by the factor. If other foods are cheaper meat is neglected.

A packer's 1920 year book says: "A quarter of a century ago nearly every cellar had its stock of smoked and cured meats, vegetables and other foods—sufficient for several months' needs. Today it is doubtful if the city-dwellers possess even a three days' supply. If distribution should cease for a week half the country's population would go hungry."

The reason why prices are higher are many: inflated currency, scarcity of staple goods in Europe, higher wages, reduced output due to interrupted production on account of strikes and shorter hours, price fixing by the government, interfering with the natural laws of supply and demand, loss of life and a colossal consumption of food for meals and other indulgences during the war, together with a wave of unprecedented buying extravagance on the part of the public giving every opportunity and encouragement toward price-inflation and profiteering.

The remedy is obvious, but is far from being a popular one. Hard work and economical living, more goods, greater care in consumption, etc. Until these are applied to the maximum, prices will stay up. Legislation or regulation by congress is futile. Statute laws can result in a surplus to be sold at lower prices. During the war governmental measures were essential but price-fixing with a view to production and a people flush with money and demanding the best of everything at prices unattainable.

The fact must be recognized that we are on a higher price level and probably will be for some time. It is not an adjustment if necessary, it might come gradually, but plunging the country into panic and depression is certainly an unprofitable high cost of living.

The Vice-Presidency. Lincoln Journal: Gov. Cox of Ohio is the latest great man to be named for the vice-presidency. In response to suggestions that he would make a good running mate for McAdoo or Palmer or Gurnea, Cox has been named as Cox answers as all other answers in like circumstances. He wouldn't think of it. Hiram Johnson is the latest great man to be named for the vice-presidency.

Gompers' One-Sided View. New York World: All that Samuel Gompers says of the shortcoming of the party congress is true. As a body it is unintelligent, selfish, partisan and obstructive. Nearly everything that he suggests as a remedy is impracticable and objectionable for he speaks only for a class.

The cost of living is not going to be reduced by the enactment of price ceilings, strikes, shortened production and laws that force some elements of the population at the expense of the majority. The words used by Mr. Gompers, not one recognizes responsibility on the part of organized labor for existing conditions.

High prices are not due to profiteering alone. We are paying for fear, for inflation, for waste, for extravagance, for natural law disregarded, for the production of things under duress. We must find our way out together, without dictation from any class.

Alexander Herald: That "peace on earth and good will toward men" idea seems to have been lost sight of in these days of profiteering, labor troubles, etc.

Rushing Repairs. Sioux City Tribune, June 2: Rush construction work on an improved bridge across the Burlington creek west of the Missouri river railroad bridge enabled both the Omaha and Burlington lines to resume partial service today. Shively introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. Kilburn of the Methodist church of Waasa, who made a strong and inspiring talk on 'The Spirit of Progress.' Intermingled with wit and personal experience, the speaker gave the class wholesome advice for future plans and activities."

Prof. A. V. Teed of Wayne spoke at the eighth grade graduation exercises at the Tekamal Thursday last week. The Tekamal journal says: "Mr. A. V. Teed of Wayne gave an excellent address, well filled with fine thoughts. Mr. Teed is an excellent speaker and found his audience greatly appreciated his remarks."

The President's Veto.
Stonx City Journal: There is some criticism of opinion about the vetoing of the Knox peace resolution by the president. That action has been foreseen from the beginning. It is there much reason for considering or analyzing the grounds upon which he based his official action. These, too, are known. The president has a command of words and an ability so to marshal them that he is able to make a good presentation of a bad case. He has another ability to ignore his previous positions and to assume authoritative intonation of new ones which sometimes deceives, un-derstandably, many of his hearers. He follows this line of policy in vetoing the peace resolution.
The main objection to the resolution is that it sets forth in its veto message, the destruction she wrought and the suffering she imposed, but it is a popular vote that has been taken when the armistice was signed it would have been at least 99 per cent in favor of rubbing Germany's nose in the dirt and wringing her neck until she begged for mercy and restored so far as the sweet and toil and slavery of her people could restore that which she had destroyed and so far as possible, paid the penalty for the suffering she had brought on the world. Thousands of people in the United States endorsed the Versailles treaty and stood for its ratification with its conditions because it was Germany's neck to their satisfaction and delight. It kicked the culprit in the short ribs and yanked him to the ground and made us disgorge to move when told. That spirit has been somewhat calmed by the passing of time, but the sentiment of the American people is still back on it. Therefore, the president sounds no new or leadership note in arguing that Germany be manacled and handcuffed and made to disgorge to the limit. The president says:

"The resolution seeks to establish peace with the German empire without exacting from the German government any action by way of setting right the infinite wrongs which it did to the peoples which it attacked. . . . This joint resolution, which I return, does not seek to accomplish any of these objects, but in effect makes a complete surrender of the rights of the United States so far as the German government is concerned."

In his message to congress on January 8, 1919, in which he announced the fourteen points, the president said:

"That we demand in this war, therefore, is nothing peculiar to ourselves."
That statement stands in direct contradiction to the present talk of surrendering the rights of the United States in the congressional peace resolution. At another point the president in his veto message says:

"Nothing is said in this resolution about the freedom of navigation on the seas."
That is a repetition of paragraph 16 of his fourteen points which reads:

"Absolute freedom of navigation upon the seas."
There are some qualifications in the text. But the fact is that every intelligent and informed person would have known that Germany at that point before he went to Paris, when the British government declined to accept it as the basis of peace, because it would have meant a peace resolution because it does not contain that which the president 'surrendered' months ago.
The president's desire to exact the pound of flesh from Germany is met with the vivid recollections of the public that when the German government was making frantic appeals to the president to end the war before Germany crumbled from within, there was talk from the president that he would let Germany off without paying the price her sins justified. With these things fresh in the public mind, the language of the veto to its profession of vigor in the punishment of Germany, as well as the surrender of rights, will set on-stony hearts.

50% More Mileage
In Boston, Green & Swett Co. watched the Miller records on some hundreds of large cars. They found that Millers increased the former tire mileage from 50% to 75%. They eliminated blow-out troubles. And only six tires in each 1,000 proved disappointing to the user.

$1,000 Daily To Reduce Your Tire Cost

The Miller Tire mileage, now discussed everywhere, is not an accident. Over $1,000 daily is spent in tests and inspections. Fifty inspectors guard against defects. Every lot of tread stock is first vulcanized and tested in the laboratory. Over 1,000 tires yearly are worn out in factory mileage tests. Every tire is signed by maker and inspector, and both are penalized if a tire falls down. Highly-paid experts spend their years in making betterments.

tests—Miller cords last year averaged 15,000 miles. The new Miller treads, in these tests, outwear the best of others by 25%. Defective Miller Tires are a rarity. Some large Miller dealers last year had not a single adjustment. If you don't know these new-day tires you should find them out. They are saving millions of dollars to motorists. Get one and watch it. It will give you new conceptions of a modern tire.

THE LAND OF OPPORTUNITY

Burlington, Kit Carson County, Colorado
Who has ever made a mistake by buying productive land at a low price? Universally men who have failed to do so when they had the opportunity, have regretted it, while the man who did buy has become wealthy.
A WORD TO THE HOMESEEKER AND THE INVESTOR
Last week Iowa was selling its land as high as $200 per acre. At the time this land was homesteaded and first settled no one dreamed it would ever sell at such prices. Some were afraid to buy it later at fifty dollars per acre, believing it would increase in value and be on the market at lower prices. But the new settler has since discovered that he can buy more and more as each year went by until now it has attained a price beyond the reach of any but the wealthy. There are those who figure the present values can never be maintained, but we think they are as disappointed as were those who expected to see excursions in the price was much lower. But here is the point: The lands that we handle in the Burlington District, Colorado, can be made to produce as many dollars per acre as the land in Iowa and Eastern Nebraska at lower prices. The reason is that our farmer has been more carefully and diligently as you farm in Eastern Nebraska you can produce an average per acre of 30 bushels of wheat, 40 bushels of corn, 50 bushels of oats and other crops in proportion. When this territory is settled by good substantial farmers, as it will be, it will be not reasonable to suppose, therefore, that it will sell at a figure more nearly in line with values of land in Iowa and Eastern Nebraska? Most assuredly it will. And those who buy now will be independent men.
Choicest farm lands $300 to $700 Per Acre

OBSERVE MEMORIAL DAY

Large Crowd Gathers in Wayne to Honor Departed Soldiers

Ideal weather favored Memorial day Sunday and a large crowd of people from town and country gathered at the opera house in Wayne in the afternoon to duly observe the occasion.

At the opera house, John Brasher, Jr., president of the chorus of friends, under the leadership of Prof. M. S. Davis, sang patriotic songs. The invocation was given by Rev. H. H. Peck, pastor of St. Paul's church.

Mr. Kiburn said liberation of the American colonies from British oppression was not only a worthy and glorious achievement, but it spread a spirit of democracy throughout the world. The free government instituted here was the beginning of freedom everywhere.

At the conclusion of the address, the singing of "America" and the playing of the national anthem followed.

Death of Bernice Brown Collins. Mrs. A. W. Collins, known as Bernice, died at her home in Circleville, Mo., May 9, five days after giving birth to twin sons, one dying "soon" after the other.

Food Dangers Ahead

In Washington some people have been suggesting that in order to reduce the cost of foodstuffs, an embargo be placed on exportation of grain and meats.

And then, when one talks about an embargo on shipments of foodstuffs, does he realize that the farmer will have something to say on that subject and will demand the rights so that no embargo shall be placed on his product unless an embargo also be placed on cotton and iron and steel and lumber.

GAS HAND CAR IS WRECKED
Collides With Freight Train Between Wayne and Carroll.

A gasoline hand car was wrecked midway between Wayne and Carroll Monday morning. The train which stopped to distribute material along the track, was moving too closely followed by a hand car operated by two section hands. The brakeman on the freight signaled the "high ball" to the men on the hand car but they were going at such a rate of speed that it was impossible to avoid a collision. The two men jumped in time to avoid serious injury, but the planks were torn from the hand car and the gasoline tank smashed. The impact caused the gasboze to be showered with gasoline for a third of its length.

River on Rampage.

O'Neill, Neb., May 30.—The highest flood stage in twenty years is reported on the Nebraska river here. Holt and Boyd counties as the result of a heavy rain in Nebraska and it is believed the three big river bridges connecting the two counties may go out. The big bridge, between the Harvest trail, between O'Neill and Spencer, is reported as about to go out and the river is cutting a new channel on the west side of the bridge. No fears are entertained for the Parshall state aid bridge south of Hartsville, as it is a concrete bridge and already under water and are not expected to hold.

The river is going immense damage to both farms and fields. The heaviest rains in years in Cherry county are reported by the Valentine weather bureau, where more than eleven inches of rain fell in two days. A six-inch galefall in Bassett flooded business houses and offices. As most of the rain fell in the Nebraska water shed, not much rain in the Elkhorn is looked for. The Elkhorn, still high from previous rains, rose five inches at O'Neill.

No Reason to be Discouraged.

Lincoln, Neb., May 31.—There is no special reason to be discouraged over the 1920 corn crop prospects, declare agricultural experts at Sioux Nebraska college of agriculture. While it is a little late, corn planted this week, or even next week, has a good chance of making a satisfactory average crop or better, especially if the season is favorable. Corn, even late varieties, planted at the Nebraska agricultural experiment station here as late as June 5 made ninety bushels to the acre.

May 15 to 23 is considered the ideal time to plant corn, and it is generally always planted some after May 20, hence the lateness this year is not as great as apparent.

It is noted that weather conditions corn planted by June 1 will have time to produce a crop. One hundred and twenty days are about the average number required for corn varieties to mature. The average date of the first killing frost in southeastern Nebraska is October 12, which would give corn planted June 1, 135 days, or two weeks longer than the average time required to reach maturity.

The corn will start off with sufficient moisture to last several weeks, and barring the slight lateness in planting, present conditions are considered favorable. Continued favorable weather will bring the corn up quickly and produce rapid growth which to a large extent will offset the delayed planting.

There is no use to fuss and sweat over a hot cook stove all summer. A good oil stove will do the cooking without discomfort to the cook.

We handle many well known lines of oil cook stoves, such as Clark Jewel, Perfection, Florence and Detroit Vapor or Red Star. Stocks are limited and reorders this year are almost out of the question. Our advice to those who intend buying a kerosene cook stove this year is to buy it of somebody now; if not of us, then of some other dealer, but buy it now.

MAN'S BODY IN DRIFTWOOD

Remains Found to Be Those of C. A. Davis, Drowned April 28.

Tilden, Neb., May 31.—The body of C. A. Davis, drowned while attempting to cross the river April 28, during the flood, was discovered Monday morning by a local fisher.

Mr. Davis' death was communicated with William Dahnke, who went to a Tappan residence and showed the news to Tilden. The body was found on the north side of the river, two and a half miles east of the spot where Davis was drowned.

It was impossible to identify the body excepting by some of the spectacles and a truss in the right side of the body. The spectacles were presented to Mr. Davis by his wife at Christmas. There were no papers of identification on the body. At the time of the drowning he was wearing a sweater and a coat, and both of these had disappeared.

Undertaker Marshall and others went to the spot and recovered the body and brought it to town and it was taken immediately to the cemetery.

Mrs. Davis, who was visiting at the time with Mr. and Mrs. E. Burnham at Norfolk, was communicated with and was met at the train by friends and relatives, who went with her to the cemetery where burial was made following a brief ceremony.

Since the date of the drowning, searching parties have combed the river day and night. The intensity of the investigation has not been as great recently as during the first two weeks, when the entire community turned out.

Mr. Davis was a farmer, 65 years of age, and had also been in the business in Tilden. He was a considerable length of time, surviving him are his widow and a brother who lives in Holt county.

Do-Nothing Population.

Omaha Bee: Perhaps we shall have next winter or spring a great exodus from the cities of men in search of food. We shall surely have it if farm production this summer is insufficient. INFLUENCE OF ARMY LIFE

Wife and Boy Explain How He Felt on Return from Service.

Journal-Stockman: "The train as I received the army, and the life led while in the service, a largely responsible for the feeling of discontent that is felt among the young men on the farms," declared Louis W. Rehms, a young shipper from Wymore, while on the market with a load of stock. "I am speaking from experience, as I served fourteen months in the late Sain's army, and I can well sympathize with the returned farmer's son.

"It took me several months to shake off the restless, lazy, carefree feeling that had come over me while in the service. On the farm I was lost—me, I was discontented with my work, dissatisfied with the amusement the small town in my neighborhood offered me after having been in the larger cities so much. I craved the companionship of my buddies. I wanted more excitement than could be found on the farm—and it was to be told, I was an awful feeling to have. This feeling has been driven off, and I am again content to live on the farm. In fact, I appreciate the comfort and advantages of farm life more than ever.

Brother Managed Farm.

"While the manager was brother, F. J. Rehms, took charge of my farm, which adjoins his, and now we are working together. I farm the home place, and brother owns the 160 acres next to me. There always was considerable live stock raised on our farm when dad ran the place, and we are going to follow his program just as nearly as we possibly can. This means that we shall continue to raise live stock as well as grain crops. My brother and I have a load of calves on pasture now, that we shall fatten for the market later on, and the chances are there will be a load in Omaha to buy more feeders next fall.

In spite of his youth, Mr. Rehms is a big, strong, athletic fellow, and has some other distinctive and laudable ideas about farming which are based on firm facts. He is a firm advocate of the tractor, and stated Mr. Rehms: "We found the expense of keeping and operating a tractor amounted to more than $1000 a year. We know how expensive a proposition that turned out to be this year. The horse raising business is booming in my neighborhood just for that very reason and the fact that good horses are in demand. Many farmers are going back to breeding their brood sires in the way of them, but they are not so well equipped as I did. There are twelve horses kept on my farm, and I honestly believe I wouldn't stay on the place one day without them."

Crop Prospects Bright.

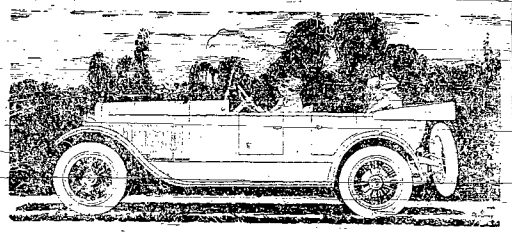

"The prospects of getting good crops this year are bright in our part of Wayne county. We are just about ready to cut our first crop of alfalfa and it sure looks like it will be a bumper yield. The wheat crop is a backward, but has shown wonderful promise within the past ten days or so. Our corn is sprouting and from the ground but that remains to be seen, as it is a long time before harvest time."

Caution in Trade.

Sioux City Journal: The cautious tone in trade, which has been emphasized during the last seven days, is not a necessary result of an effort to establish trade on a new and more conservative level. Liquidation continues. Reductions of prices and cancellations are being made. Merchants are displaying caution in confining purchases to present demands, and venturing on long in advance orders at present prices. Behind all these influences is the sentiment of the public against high prices. The inclination to stop reckless buying and extravagance.

Domestic liquidation and deflation have been checked by the freight tie-up. Millions of dollars, borrowed from banks and rediscounted, are tied up in goods, "frozen" in the blockade, which cannot be paid for until the goods are delivered to the purchasers. Such loans have been extended, and the extensions have reduced the volume of deflation for the time being.

I believe in working, not weeping, in booting, not knocking, and in the pleasure of my job. I believe that man gets what he goes after; that one deed does today is

I believe in today and the work I am doing, in tomorrow and the work I hope to do and in the sure reward the future holds. RANGES RUST out from the inside, because the sweaty asbestos lies flat against the range body.

Moisture rusts iron. Any kind of sheet iron and every kind of steel sheet rusts unless protected from moisture.

With one exception—all malleable ranges are of three-ply construction. The outer casing or main range body, then a layer of asbestos—then an inner lining of iron or steel.

When you build a fire the heat drives the moisture to the other side of the asbestos onto the cold range body. There it condenses or sweats on the cold iron. Rust begins with the first fire and is fed by this sweating condensation every time the range is fired up. The rust is on the inside.

You don't know you never suspect it until it rusts through. Then it is too late. In the Copper-Clad Range the asbestos is clad with a sheet of copper which never rusts. The sweat never gets to the iron body. It can't rust out.

Come and Let Us Show You. See the Asbestos. Sweat. Know for Yourself.

Let Your Bull Endorse Your Note. The Better-Sires campaign conducted by various states in cooperation with the Bureau of Animal Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, is developing the fact that bank credit is as available to the progressive livestock farmer as to the progressive business man of the city.

A letter received by the Bureau of Animal Industry reports the following announcement published by a Wisconsin bank to its farmer patrons: "Why not keep some of those purchased Holsteins home? Many fine animals will be sold at the first annual sale of the Brown County Holstein Breeders' association to be held in the Brown county fair grounds, West De Pere, Wis., on Monday, May 10. The bank is ready to stand back of any of its customers who wish to purchase some of the stock to be offered for sale and who do not feel able at present to carry the investment. Call at the bank, and the accommodation can be easily arranged."

Graded Eggs Bring High Prices. Can it be that Canadian citizens are profiting more by the advice of the Bureau of Markets, United States department of agriculture, regarding the marketing of eggs than our own people for whose benefit that advice is intended?

Because of the superiority of Canadian eggs, due to grading, packing and shipping methods similar to those advocated by the bureau of markets, Canadian eggs sell for 3 to 12 cents higher in British markets than American eggs.

Canadian eggs are carefully graded as to quality, size and color; packed in clean cases with clean fillers of proper weight, and provided with adequate refrigeration.

The wide difference between the selling prices of American and Canadian eggs should not exist, say marketing experts of the bureau of markets. Canadian hens do not produce better eggs than American hens; and that being so, all that is necessary for American shippers to secure high prices is the use of greater care in preparing eggs for foreign markets. The same principles apply to eggs marketed at home.

Full information as to methods to be employed can be had upon request to the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Should Know Market Conditions. In addition to knowing the grade and staple of his cotton, the cotton farmer must be fully informed regarding market conditions and must have proper outlets for his cotton if he is to secure its full commercial worth, say cotton specialists of the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture.

Every farmer offering cotton for sale ought to know the course of the futures market on the particular day; the course of the spot market in the city or cities to which his own market is tributary; the course of the spot market in other cities that are comparable to his own, and other special conditions that may affect the value of his cotton.

The bureau of markets is supplying a part of this information through its price quotation service. The cotton belt is divided into five districts, with headquarters at Charlotte, Memphis, New Orleans, Dallas and Atlanta, and from each of the four first-named points a bulletin is issued on Monday of each week giving disinterested and trustworthy information as to the course of prices and market conditions. As soon as available markets can be secured, similar bulletins will be issued also from Atlanta. Any farmer requesting this service will receive free of charge the bulletins issued from the headquarters of the district in which he resides. As prices vary from day-to-day and from hour to hour, farmers may make arrangements to secure by telegraph any information contained in the bulletins.

Bailer and John Deere Cultivators and Hay Tools

It is high time to place your orders for cultivators and hay tools. Implements are short and hard to get, and there should be no delay in making your needs known.

We have a few Bailer two-row cultivators with tongue truck. The Bailer two-row cultivator is a time and money saver. It is completely built. The entire gang length being no greater than the diameter of the wheel, permits uniform penetration. The wheels being large in diameter, cause the cultivator to pass evenly over slight depressions and ridges. This allows even depth cultivation in all parts of the field. Excellent balance to eliminate jounce whip and next weight is possible at all times. The seat can be adjusted forward or backward to offset the operator's weight. The low, close hitch offsets neck weight and reduces draft. The action of foot levers turns the wheels on pivot axes, guiding the cultivator in the desired direction, enabling shifts to be made to follow crooked rows. We also have a number of the well known John Deere single row cultivators.

Mowers, Sweeps, Rakes, Stackers

We have the John Deere and Dain lines of hay tools, and it is well known that none are better. We have the Dain self-extending stacker with mounding. Here are some of the superior features: Starts low and finishes high. Heavy hoisting arms with no friction. 2. Simple construction walking beams on A-frame. Extension sills used. Easy to stack. Good delivery. Telescoping is complete before stacker starts to discharge the load. Long compression springs, no delivery shock on the horses, positive return. 4. Positive action in both directions, no binding or sudden dropping of the head. 5. Light draft, uniform, no hoisting shock on the horses with any adjustment. Telescoping of the stacker is performed during the period of best leverage. 6. Dain stacker head construction. 7. Hoisting arms and side braces extend under both carrier bar and armored-beveled bar. 8. Head always starts at same point close in to the stack. 9. Quick, convenient adjustment for changing the height, no wrench required. 10. Fast to top out the stack. Safe to descend.

Let us know your wants and show you how we may serve your advantage.

Automobile vs. Unique Testing Stunt with Aeroplane KISSEL SIX

A 5,000 MILE TRYOUT FOR THE NEW CUSTOM-BUILT CHASSIS

"A unique test for motor and chassis and one that you will admit would show up any weaknesses if there were any, was that of the test. Kissel gave the new Kissel custom-built motor and custom-built chassis on which the new Kissel models are mounted," says C. J. Dutton of the C. J. Dutton Automotive Co., local Kissel distributor.

"While the Kissel factory has been conducting regular tests on all our cars before they are shipped, Kissel engineers were particularly desirous of putting the new motor and chassis through something extraordinary in which conditions would be encountered—cross racing, cross country runs, hill climbing, sand, mud, water, rain and cold weather.

"A leading Wisconsin newspaper that was arranging a series of races between an aeroplane and an automobile at different Wisconsin fairs, gave the Kissel engineers the big opportunity.

"Without any extra preparation a standard Speedster on one of the new custom-built chassis with a new custom-built motor was given a thorough tryout at the race track in Milwaukee, in which it gave the aeroplane the hardest fight it ever had to speed.

"Throughout last fall this car was put to some of the most grueling tests ever recorded an automobile. It was driven by Harry Rowland, popularly known as 'Brownie,' former racing driver and an automobile editor of national reputation, who wrote the following account for the Milwaukee paper:

"Never before in the history of motoring in Wisconsin has a car been called upon for a greater variety of service than was the Kissel custom-built Speedster during its brief career as racing car, aeroplane pilot and cross-country conveyance.

"The car failed to exceed the 100 m.p.h. mark, but the total of 4,978 miles covered by the Speedster is far more than the entire mileage of the average car for a season. Then, too, few stock cars have ever been called upon to compete with an aeroplane. But it was really on cross country and general utility work that the Kissel really showed its mettle.

"Out of the 4,900 miles allotted to cross-countrying, practically every conceivable road condition was met, and in only one instance was outside help required. This was on a new fill-in where it became so thoroughly mired that it not only took one, but two men to get it out, as well as a man armed with a tractor to extract it. For nearly a half hour after being released it was giving an exhibition on the half mile track at Black River Falls with no adjustments and at better than sixty-five miles an hour.

"It would be foolhardy to state that all this was done without mishap and yet, the repairs and adjustments shown were such that anyone would be lucky to get through an entire season with as little. The front spring, which was broken in a muddy, rutty road where no choice was left but to take every bump, and seven of the ten cars over the same base that day came in with spring trouble. Two valve springs, one exhaust and one intake, as well as a man armed with a tractor to extract it, were due to take care and also to its inability to properly cool at high speed, a type of radiator which has since been discontinued by the Kissel factory. The muffler was twice pulled loose because of high road beds-in-construction work.

"As for riding qualities, the Kissel is easy riding and free from skips as any I have ever driven. Another feature which was noticeable was its paint. Despite the hard usage its paint was still in good condition at the finish of the trip.

"As for tire life, the Kissel is a tire saver. Cords with which we started out were still in good shape at the finish—the only changes we made were due to punctures.

"While the Kissel car is not the fastest car I have driven, yet for all around performer it ranks far above my expectations. At the start I am frank to admit, I thought as others do, that 'it was good to look at,' but its performance stamps it as one of the best all-around cars in its class."

We Sell Gripwell Tires

We are not recommending the Gripwell Tires just because we sell them.

We sell them because we recommend them. There's a difference.

Back of the Gripwell product is a conscientious desire, not merely to "make tires," but to make tires right, and it is that determination, more than anything else, which puts the extra miles under your car.

We can fill your wants in either cord or fabric tires, and tubes.

Remember that prices are advancing on account of the scarcity of fabric, and that it is highly important to supply the summer's tire needs now.

 the great struggle for national life.
 We hear the tramp of marching music of the Boisterous drums, the silver voices of the heroic bugles.
 We see thousands of assembled banners around the pathway of our heroes; we see the pale faces of women and the flushed faces of men and in those assemblages we see all the dead heroes there we have eyes and with flowers. We lose sight of them no more. We are with them when they enlist in the great army of freedom. We see them part with those they love. Some are walking for the last time in quiet, woody places with the mad eyes of the soldiers. We hear the whist and the sweet-sung of eternal love as they lingeringly part forever. Others are bending over cradles kissing babies that are asleep.
 Some are receiving the blessings of old men. Some are parting with mothers who hold them and press their hearts against them, and say nothing; and some are talking with wives and endeavoring with brave words spoken in the tones of so brave and so true. We see them part. We see the wife standing in the door with the babe in her arms—standing in the doorway sobbing and weeping of the road the hand waves—the answers by holding high in her hands the child. He is gone, and forever baby that are asleep.
 We see them all as they march proudly away under the flapping flags, keeping time to the wild drums. We see them marching through the streets of the great cities through the towns and across the prairies—down to the fields of glory, to fight and die for the eternal right. We go with them, one and all. We are by their side on all the joy fields, in all the hospitals of pain, on all the weary marches. We stand guard with them in the wild storm and under the quiet stars.
 We are with them in the ravines fighting with the foe, and in the fields. We are with them between the contending hosts, unable to move, wild with thirst, the hills moving slowly away among that withered trees. We see them perced by balls and torn with shreds in the trenches of fort and in the whirlwind of the charge, where men became iron with nerves of steel.

 We are with them in the prison cells, where the faint, but human speech can never tell what they endured. We are home when the news comes that they are dead. We see the maiden in the shadow of her sorrow. We see the silvered head of the old man bowed with the last struggle.
 The past rises before us. We hear the roar and shriek of the bursting shell. The broken letters fall. These heroes died. We look, instead of heroes, we see men and women and children. The wand of progress touches the auction block, the slave pen, and the whipping post, and we see homes and fireplaces and schoolhouses and books, and where was want and crime, and cruelty and fear, we see the faces of the free.
 These heroes are dead. They died for liberty—they died for us. They are at rest. They sleep in the land they made free, under the flag they rendered stainless, under the solemn pines, the glad hemlocks, the tearful willows, the embracing vines.
 They sleep beneath the shadows of the clouds, careless alike of sunburn or storm, each in the windowless palace of rest. Earth may run red with other wars, they are at peace.
 In the midst of battle, in the roar of conflict, they found the gentleness of death.
 I have one sentiment for the soldier living and dead—cheers for the living—and tears for the dead.
