Rahn-Brown.
Ralls County Record—New London, Mo.; Arthur J. Rahn of Lewistown, Mont., and Miss Elizabeth McWhorter of New London, Mo., were married in the holy bonds of wedlock Wednesday at high noon, Rev. T. A. Allison, pastor of New London Methodist church, officiating. The wedding was a very quiet one, only the parents of the bride and a few immediate relatives and friends being present.

The bride was becomingly dressed in a white organdie, prettily trimmed with accordion pleated ruffles with a gorgeous veil, and wore a corsage bouquet of sweet peas. Immediately following the wedding an elegant dinner was served by Mrs. Brown. After the happy couple was driven to Hannibal by Harold Bixen of Frankford in a car, taking the train there for St. Paul, Minn., where they will spend two weeks at a summer cottage. They will then go to Lewisport where the groom has a nice home property for a while.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. T. Brown of this city. She was born and reared here and we do not know of a person in or near New London who does not love her. She graduated from the New London high school several years ago and later went to Nebraska, where she engaged in teaching, lately being a member of the faculty of the State Normal School at Wayne, Neb. She is well qualified in every way, to make the man of her choice a model wife. He is fortunate indeed to win her for his wife.

The groom is one of Lewistown's best young men. He has charge of a large grain elevator at Lewistown and is popular with all who know him. He comes well recommended by all who enjoy his acquaintance and his worthiness of the good girl he has won for his bride.

The Record takes great pleasure in extending congratulations and best wishes to the happy pair. May they be happy and prosperous in our wish.

Are Republicans So Bad?
Chicago-Tribune.—What is particularly attractive in American politics is its warmth and vividness of opinion. As Mr. Homer Cummings, keynoting at San Francisco, explained to the Jeffersonians it would be much better for the country to be given over to the Prussian junkers, the seventeen year locust, and the tortoise plagues to permit a republican administration to take over the government. A republican, as Mr. Cummings made plain, wishes to put an autocratic government in charge, one which has spoils as its purpose and ruin as its inevitable consequence. He wishes to subjugate and rob the people, flout humanity, and mock all virtue. No American could harbor such thoughts and designs against the United States, and so we conclude that republicans are not Americans. They are enemy aliens. When there are more republicans than democrats in the country the land is in the hands of the foreign foe.

Lowden's Declination

Siox City Journal: Gov. Frank O. Lowden declines to become a candidate for re-election as governor of Illinois. As his nomination would be practically equivalent to election, it is easy to see that he stands on principle, just as his predecessor, the late Governor Forney, did. He does not believe in a second executive term. He has always opposed it. He repeatedly introduced a resolution in congress proposing a constitutional amendment to limit the president to one term. He has spoken in defense of his convictions and he lives up to them. He will be most respected for doing so. Gov. Lowden's position is in vivid contrast to that of President Wilson, who was elected in 1912 upon a platform one plank of which reads:

"I favor a single presidential term and to that end urge the adoption of an amendment to the constitution making the president ineligible for re-election, and we pledge the candidate of this convention to this principle."

That plank is interesting in view of a second term and the silence concerning a third term by the candidate who pledged by his party to the one-term principle. The crisis of a second term are just what Gov. Lowden points out. The first term is devoted to the construction of a machine to renominiate and reelect the incumbent. The last term is devoted to the perpetuation of the policies and machinery of his bossism in the hands of his successor. The Lowden doctrine is sound and appealing, and it will become the law of the nation in time, especially if the policy of handing the presidency around among the family members prevails for the time being.

The constitution of the Confederate States of America contained a provision limiting the eligibility of the president to one term of six years. That is the sentiment of the south today. It was the influence which wrote the one term plank in the 1912 platform of the party, and some of the opposition to the president in the south is based on his inclination to perpetuate himself in office.

Almost Unanimous

Troquois Chief: At the rate Harding and Co. continue to grow since the Chicago convention it looks as if by the time election rolls around everybody will be supporting the republican ticket except the democratic officeholders.

More Senatorial Bossip

Minneapolis Journal: Those pesky senators are bossiping things at San Francisco, too. Senator Glass is chairman of resolutions. Senator Robinson is permanent chairman. Speaker Walsh leads the reservationists—and so on.

The True Secret of Success

Is thrift in all its phases, and principally thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends, but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book with the name of a bank on its cover.

First National Bank

CROPS TO MOVE TARDILY

Farmers are Advised to be Prepared to Store Small Grain.

The Nebraska state railway commission asks the Herald to advise farmers to be prepared to hold all, or a large part, of their small grain indefinitely on account of insufficient transportation facilities. The commission's advice explains, under date of July 1:

"This year's crop will move more tardily than crops of previous years. Ordinarily enough cars are stored on sidetracks in Nebraska at this time of the year to handle one-third of the wheat crop quickly. This year there is no surplus.

"The causes are: (1) largely increased volume of business in the country compared to pre-war times; and (2) actual reduction in total rolling stock available because of war necessities.

"Relief cannot be immediate. The Nebraska commission and the interstate commerce commission will jointly do all possible to expedite crop movement, but their efforts will, obviously, have limited results. Shippers owe it to themselves to protect their harvest against loss due to lack of storage and we think they will do so if properly advised of the gravity of the transportation situation."

Made up 'Hoop Body'

Omaha, Neb., July 1.—Standing with bared heads bowed in grim silence, four men viewed the body of little Paul Rankin, 14 years old, whose street, who was run over by a three-ton Orchard & Wilhelm truck.

The object lesson took place in the Hoffman mortuary, Twenty-fifth and Dodge streets.

All four men had been arrested for speeding and were fined in municipal court.

The four men were: J. C. Eldredge, Fairacres, son of D. G. Eldredge of the firm of Eldredge & Reynolds; W. Rice, real estate salesman, 1912 California street; J. Gatchell, electrician, 1814 Corby street; and G. Myers, clerk, 208 Whitmore.

When the quartet faced Judge George Palmer, he said:

"The man for speeding has become so chronic in Omaha that besides fining you men, I must give you an object lesson, so you may know what you are speeding causes."

"You are sentenced to view the body of the little fellow who was killed yesterday, now lying in Hoffman's morgue, so you may know what a deadly weapon you make of an automobile when you exceed the speed limit."

Hopes for Hog Crop

Drivers: Journal Stockman: "If the territory tributary to the South Omaha market is as nearly cleaned out of marketable hogs as is our section, there will certainly be a let-up in receipts soon to come." Frank Postill of Lindsay, who had a mixed load of stock on Wednesday's market, the last of his year's feeding. "Farmers have not been putting quite as good a finish on their hogs lately as usual, due largely to the high price of feed. To some extent this is due to the fact that most of the farmers in our section consider it good business. While there were not as many sows bred in our immediate neighborhood as usual, litters have been large and on the whole we find ourselves with fairly good size litters. It looks as if we would be better to let the older hogs go, considering the high price of corn, and turn our attention to the care of the young pigs, which we hope to produce at cheaper cost."

"There is some discussion of early feeding, but I think the general sentiment is to await the development of the corn crop. It is not so mature so that it will grade high, nor is it expected to set in feeding time, but if the crop is in first-class condition a majority figure on marketing the grain."

"Our corn is just a little late. We had two heavy driving rains that packed the ground so that it did not make as good progress as desired, but most of it has been gone over the second time and a recent shower was of just the kind needed to aid in softening the ground and at the present time it is doing fine. The first cutting of alfalfa was fine, but the two driving rains mentioned before also ruined the oats crop some because of the packed condition of the ground and some of it is going to be too short to cut. The oat harvest should begin in the next two weeks."

Springfield, Mass., Republican: The ringing and even brilliant speech of the temporary chairman had been interrupted by one of the passages bearing upon the attitude of the president's critics toward him during his illness. It is better to ignore the personal fanfare of politics which never are long-lived and which sooner or later are displaced by the fiercer and lower judgments that come in the passage of time. That congress under republican leadership did not notice the illness of the chief executive and offered no kindly expression of inquiry or sympathy for one stricken almost unto death, must have been in fact what the president most preferred, for it was White House policy not to make public admission of the real seriousness of the president's physical collapse. That personal animosities and hatreds could be cultivated to the extent that they were by many individuals while the object of them was fighting a battle for life itself is a reminder of the inexcusable brutalities incidental to the struggle for political power, yet it is folly to make an issue of them. The sooner they are forgotten the better for everyone concerned.

We now have invoices for children's shoes shipped from Pennsylvania May 5, and they are not here yet. The ladies' low shoes offered in this sale should have been here for commencement when our sales to graduates are always large. For six weeks of our best selling season we had hardly a low show in the store. We wrote the Julian & Koenige Co., that we could not accept these shoes at this late day. # Lessmann Loader Attachment

Have Your Fordson do One of the Most Unpleasant But Most Profitable Tasks on the Farm

Load Manure Right Into Your Spreader or Wagon At the Rate of a Full Load Every Five to Ten Minutes

The Lessmann Loader Attachment for a Fordson is attached or removed in fifteen or twenty minutes, so no time worth mentioning is lost in getting your Fordson ready to do the manure loading.

The Lessmann Loader Attachment not only saves money and time, but makes you the largest per cent of profit by making it possible to get the manure on the fields.

You will note the machine cleans its own road. The fork being in front leaves the wheels always in a straight line. Nothing is changed on the Fordson. We simply add the Lessmann Loader Attachment to what is already there in such a strong and rigid manner, that when attached it becomes a perfect part of the tractor itself and can be removed in fifteen or twenty minutes.

The engine on the tractor does all the work. You know how to operate and guide your Fordson. There is nothing more to learn but push or pull a couple more levers. It's simplicity itself.

We are constantly adding new forks and scoops, so that practically anything around the farm or ranch can be loaded with the Lessmann Loader Attachment.

Manure is worth $10.00 to $15.00 a load in your fields and the Lessmann Loader will do the hard work of loading at lowest possible cost so you will get the manure on your grain-fields where it will make money for you. It sure is too valuable to leave it in your feed yard.

Makes one hard job on the farm easy. There is practically no limit to the amount of manure you can load with the Lessmann Loader Attachment.

Really makes the hardest job on the farm the most pleasant and profitable as well. Will clean manure right up from the ground in your feed yard and place it directly in your spreader or wagon.

The Lessmann Loader Attachment is designed and built for practical use. It is constructed entirely of steel and thoroughly painted so there is nothing about it to wear out.

We use an air brush in painting so every joint, crack or crevice is thoroughly covered with weather-resisting paint.

We know from experience and have been told many, many times that it is an impossibility to get men to load manure.

Manure on your grain-fields is the largest profit maker on the farm and we believe the largest money loser when left in your feed yard.

Why waste time and man strength loading manure when the Lessmann Loader Attachment will make you a thousand per cent profit doing the work and what is more you will get it done when it should be done.

Labor saving machinery is the big item for farmers and cattle raisers are looking for. What could be suggested of more importance than a Manure Loader.

When its real value is known the Lessmann Loader Attachment will be considered one of the most valuable pieces of machinery on the farm.

Just consider how much more valuable your manure spreader is the instant you have a Lessmann Loader Attachment to load it for you.

The Lessmann Loader pays for itself and more the first year.

We invite correspondence.

Place your order now for a Lessmann Loader Attachment and get the manure out on your fields this fall. It will double your next year's crop.

If your Ford dealer does not yet have the agency, send your order direct to us. Our terms are right. Price $285.00 f. o. b.

DES MOINES, IOWA

THE EARLY DAYS IN TWO COUNTIES.

From the Logan Valley Herald, July 11, 1884.

Sheehan is burning his second kiln of brick.

The postoffice has been removed from LaPorte to Wayne.

Mrs. Henry Lee will leave soon for her old home in Minnesota for a visit.

The hottest day of the season registered 103 degrees in the shade and was July 9.

Damages caused by fire lately are good evidence that Wayne needs a waterworks system.

James C. Blaine of Maine and John A. Logan of Illinois have been nominated by the republican party for president and vice-president.

The democratic national convention is in session and although no ballots have been taken, Cleveland seems to be the one who will receive the nomination.

Rev. Mr. Travis, the new Baptist minister, has purchased a residence for in Taylor & Wachob's addition to Wayne, and has begun the erection of a new residence.

A son was born July 4, 1884, to Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Ellis. Mr. Ellis is now the father of two sons, both of whom were born on Independence day and his only daughter was born on election day.

A little boy, 7 years old, was lost in the storm this week and strayed to the Indian reservation from his home in Leslie precinct. A man from the reservation brought him to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Christensen, the next day.

A new time table has been arranged for the railroad through here. A mixed train will be run from Norfolk to Wakefield, at which place the Hartington train will take all of the freight and the Norfolk will run as a straight passenger, arriving in Stone City at 11 a. m. and leaving there at 3 p. m.

County officers were: Treasurer, D. W. Britton, Wayne; county clerk, T. J. Steele, Wayne; county judge, J. M. Cherry, Wayne.

A. S. Miner, Wayne, county superintendent; J. S. Hake, Wayne, county surveyor; H. E. Harris, Wayne, coroner; J. W. Bartlett, Wayne; commissioners, J. J. W. Fox, Wayne, O. F. Crane, Wakefield, and A. T. Chapin, Winside.

Articles of incorporation are being published for the establishment of "The Wayne County Agricultural Society," the purposes of which are to improve agriculture, hold county fairs, and foster industrial arts and sciences. The members to date are: R. B. Crawford,

P. C. Maurer, E. J. Nangle, W. E. Chiles, J. E. Fickler, C. E. Dearborn, B. P. Feather, J. D. Slater, F. E. Moses, W. O. Gamble, D. W. Brinson, William Miller, I. F. Hood, J. A. Welch, Andrew Winchester, R. M. Goshorn, D. W. C. Moorhead and Frank Fuller.

Wayne celebrated on the Fourth with an excellent program and an unusually large attendance. The parade in the morning consisted of a representation of Uncle Sam, the Goddess of Liberty, and the thirty-eight states portrayed by young ladies. The procession led the crowd to the grounds east of the village where the program was given. Lieutenant Norris giving the address of the day. The G. A. R. post served the dinner consisting of beans and corn neck. The afternoon entertainment included potato races, pony and horse races, foot races and other contests. Seventy-five couples attended the dance of the evening in the evening and enjoyed themselves until the fire alarm was given, announcing that the courthouse was burning.

The burning of the courthouse between the sheriff's office and the printing office caught fire. As it was apparent that the flames could not be controlled with buckets of water, the county records and the printing plant were removed in safety from the building. A fire engine had been erected at a cost of $4,000 and was insured for $2,500.

From Ponca Journal, July 13, 1881.

The comet is becoming dim as it recedes. It every day switches its tail 300,000 miles farther away.

As a result of the heavy rains, the creek overflowed its banks on Sunday and ran into the grove. In the mill the water was about a foot deep.

During the storm Monday night wind blew down an old elevator located near the railroad depot. The elevator is the property of E. H. Stone of Sioux City.

A ferry has been established between Ponca landing and the Darcors and so that the people of that watery country can now come over to Ponca to do their trading.

What has become of the cemetery association? If that project fails through the people here had better cremate their dead, instead of burying them in such a cattle yard as the Ponca burying ground has now become.

The Z Has More Than Rated Power

The work delivered by the "Z" Engine goes beyond the horse power rating we place on it. This gives greater value for your money—increased service—longer life.

The "Z" has large inlet and exhaust valves—easily accessible—insure smooth, steady running—complete fuel combustion. Tight compression in the compactly assembled and polished cylinder increases "Z" engine power—reduces fuel and power losses to minimum. Positive, dependable Bosch ignition adds to power output—provides hot, powerful spark—insures quick starting. Complete combustion gives greater power from each gallon of fuel—prevents formation of carbon—means more power at lower cost.

Other "Z" features are: Runs on kerosene, coal oil, tops, as well as gasoline; built in Bosch high tension oscillating magnetos; every part interchangeable; clean, efficient design; long-lived endurance. Come in and see this celebrated engine today.

Added 50% To Tire Mileage

A Boston tire dealer, for three years, has gathered data on Miller Tires. And he reports as follows:

Users find their tire mileage increased from 30 per cent to 75 per cent.

Blow-outs have been eliminated.

Uniform mileage has been accomplished.

Only six tires in 1,000 come back for adjustment—only five Miller Cords in a year.

A Louisville dealer compared wear and mileage on 116 styles of tires which he repaired. The constant Miller supremacy has caused him now to handle the Miller Tires only.

A California stage line made million-mile comparisons with 21 leading makes. And the Miller won by long odds.

You owe yourself a comparison on your own car. The Miller is the tire of the day.

UNCLE WALT THE POET PHILOSOPHER

TJUJANA. In Mexico, across the line, Tijuana merchants sell you, up, or any kind of sudden death with which you like to paint your breath. And dead game sports go there to drink their favored libations of purple ink and cough up seven bits a throw for little drinks of liquid vice. And when they're toured through smoky bars they climb into their motor cars and thrash on all the motor's power and hit a hundred miles an hour—and sometimes they break their necks—and have their costly autos wrecked—and failing this, some moral cop stands in the road and his them stop, and leads them to the nearest jail, and then a jurist takes their case. Oh, gent, who mourn your freedom lost, and say the day is a frost, cease-slaughtering tears and journey down to old Tijuana, freedom's town! There you may drink a peck of gin and cheer sheets and run you in, and though you wade in beer and eye, no magistrate will bat an eye, And when you've had your poisoned

SEASIDE MUSINGS. I WOULD BEHOLD THE sea any more, among the surge lashed rocks; the waves roll up and wet my shoes, and spoil my green silk socks. It seems to me—the ocean's sound is some great endless knell; its waters are the battle ground of all that in them dwell. Like cannibals fish make their meals of animals that pass, the swordfish fills itself with eels, the dolphin eats the bass. All fishes are voracious—yes, by every fathoms means, the salt-water codfish, bristly goes, pursuing coddle sardines. I sense an endless tragedy where'er the breakers boom; the swirling spray of the sea, the white and foamy foam. And if I had the warfare cease, I'd simply waste my breath; in vain I'd preach a balmy peace to those whose trade is death. I till the end of stars and suns the hungry fish will slay; the big will chase the little ones and stow the same way. The sharks would look on me with mirth, or bid me amble hence, just as the people do on earth. I talk peace and science. And on the land as in the sea red blood must always flow; slack, alas, and vice is me, that such things should be so.

TACKS. A man must work like blazes to come away with any profit. Fancy phrases will take the place of toil; the worker is the winner who has an ample dinner; the dreamer is the stammer who has no hen to boil. Our sacred rights are precious and should not be a wreck, and grievous wrongs smother us, and seek us in the land if we quit our believing, to stand around rag-chewing there will be nothing done when you are on deck. No—cautious! It is each man's duty to get work to speed; or trim the ghastly high front by putting up a speed; it is best to cut out the humble stipend drawing, however sore we feel. For no amount of ranting will get the work we need, or sustenance, but our ranting with whippers gone to seed, would long ago have gotten relief from evils rotten, and they would all be rotting in Egg street, indeed. Oh, work, and let the others with their zeal attack the incubus that smother your soul and breaks your back; cut out the long vacation, for work is the salvation of this hornsogged nation that whoops around the track.

THE PELICAN. Some pelicans around the salt, as I wind up my life, that I may eat the slice of kate to buy a rubber tire. The pelican is most absurd; it has no warbling skill; it is a bonehead sort of bird that largely runs to bits. It catches fish before my door, by every artful means, instead of going to the store and buying canned sardines. It hangs around in my front yard, close by its feeding place, and doubtless thinks an old fat bard should sing its charms and grace. I've witnessed many laboring fellows in my long sad career; I've gazed on hazzards, crows, and owls, in countries far and near. I've looked at vain strifes, large and small, on mudhens and such things; the pelican outclasses all, for homeliness, by jings. And yet it thinks of a bride; it stands before this bit of mine; and seems to point with pride. Along the beach, antlers, as silly as an ancient beaver who ogles blooming maids. It thinks it is a shining star, pure radiance to gaze upon. I think, like my car, it mostly runs to bill.

SUMMER DAYS. A summer sun now hands us one, and paints out maps with freckles; we cry "See Whiz!" For cooling breeze we have no hand. The heat of his. Though summer's bad, and from the grad we willingly would drive it, some simple rules, not taught in school, will help us to survive it. The heat will flay that bonehead jay who's gone to be a glutton, who hereery eats all kinds of meats, including pork and mutton. The same galeots who live on fruits endure the summer grandly; the sun may fry the whole blasted sky, and they'll regard it lousy. I cut out hams and feed on yams, which cool my fevered bunions. I sidestepped cheese and from the trees I pluck the fragrant outans. Rich pies and cakes and chops and steaks, I find there is a curse on; I eat no more than I can store with comfort in my person. And so I live and smile and give sage counsel while I frolic, while those who eat large slabs of meat are doubled with the fat. I have eschewed all heating food, I've sidestepped beer and skittles, and all my tynes are based on prunes and other wholesome vitties.

OVER ANXIOUS. The man who is too keen to sell such goods as he may have displayed is headed wrong, and he may well drive from his door the choicest of his wares. I was in a foreign town, I sought a barber, very limbed, and in his chat I sat me down to have my priceless whiskers shaved. And as he wrought he spied away; of tonics for the hair he told; and they would change my ringlets gray into the finest of red gold. And he had dyes of every hue, made up from barks and herbs

How Did It Keep Out? B. L. T. in the Chicago Tribune: Reading Mr. Cummings' impassioned story of the great war and the great democratic party, one wonders how the administration managed to keep out of it so long, in spite of republican opposition. For, as Congressman Mann said as late as 1917: "God knows whether we will land if this country enters the war."

The entertainment planned for the young people of the Baptist church as a result of the contest in the B. Y. P. U., was enjoyed very about fifty members and guests last Thursday evening. Mrs. Carlos Martin was at the head of the organizing group. Progressive entertainment was planned, the guests meeting at the J. H. Rimmel home. Here they indulged in games and were served water punch and crackers. They were then to find the next person by whom one is talking to anyone? Lucille. "I thought you Samantha." "And who are you?" "My name is Ruth." "Well, I thought it was I, see you at the picnic?" "Bring Dorothy!" After the contests, refreshments were served and all felt the party was a success.

Motor Mania

Springfield, Mass., Republican: That the craze will subside may be taken for granted, for that is the nature of crazes. The automobile is a very wonderful thing and the desire for it increases and increases. One is perfectly natural the wide diversity of opinion as to whether this indulgence is profitable for multitudes of people who in ordinary time would consider such an outlay an unwarranted extravagance. By a far larger social law any such development points to a powerful pressure upon multitudes of other people who do not specially care for motoring and could spend their money more advantageously in some other way, but who come to feel that motoring is necessary simply to be in fashion. This is what constitutes the "craze" and like other crazes, it will pass. Relatively few of its victims can afford to turn over to professional experts the mechanical worries of automobiling, and not all Americans are mechanical geniuses or passionately addicted to tinkering with machinery. When the novelty wears off it is possible to think of many amusements which compare favorably with motoring—a reluctant tire into place, coaxing a balky engine or arranging for a tow home on three wheels. When all the time spent on the road is for the purpose of motoring, it will balance after the pleasure to be got from it some alternative way of spending all too limited income.

When this frame of mind becomes general a craze is beginning to subside. It is not necessary for the alarmists who say that motor mania will ruin the country. Just now America may be spending on its recent joy-riding more than it can afford either in money or in time. But if it is an evil it is one only of excess and will take care of itself. The time when possession of a motor car was a distinction to be coveted long since passed. The multitude automobiling for pleasure has become rather tiresome; no doubt those who have come to it since they no longer need the same experience, and the motor car will become increasingly an instrument of utility rather than a toy.

The Presidency. Review of Reviews: Much of the confusion of mind produced by the writers of newspaper editorials about the merits of candidates results from the fact that these writers have no common standards. The presidency is a peculiar office, and no one can be quite sure in advance about the way in which any particular man would meet the exigencies of the position. One man thinks of the president as a public servant, while another man thinks of him as a ruler, a public master. There are those who have formed the habit of speaking in the harsh terms about congress and government, and another group of men would prefer as our form of government a quondam dictatorship. One man imagines that to have a president surrounded by a cabinet made up of men of great weight and authority, so that these policies for instance, shall be dominated by a great secretary of the treasury like Alexander Hamilton or John Sherman, and foreign policy directed by a great secretary of state like Daniel Webster or Elihu Root. Other people think of the presidency as an office that ought to be filled by some sort of universal genius, capable of directing domestic and foreign policies and requiring a cabinet merely for the routine conduct of department work. It is quite possible that the country needs harmony and definiteness in its public policies more than anything else, with partialization, reduction to a minimum, and happy relations among president, cabinet, and both houses of congress.

HOLD SPECIAL SESSION

Ordinances to Trim Trees and Prevent Damage to Paving.

The city council held a special session last Friday evening to pass ordinances relative to trimming trees and driving heavy trucks and tractors over the paving.

In regard to the trimming of trees, the ordinance provides that the telephone company and the electric light company have a right to trim any trees that interfere with the wires. The trees have caused serious circuits in several parts of town lately during the storms, and burning of the wires because of this has made extra work for the firemen. It is necessary to shut off the electricity Monday to repair the damage. Citizens are obliged by the ordinance, too, to trim their trees to prevent any interference to pedestrians or vehicles.

The other ordinance passed by the council—Friday evening stated that no trucks or tractors of six tons or more capacity, with lugs, spikes or any projections on the wheels that might damage the paving, could be moved over the new paving. This also set a penalty for any damage to the curbing, guttering or paving of the streets of Wayne.

No other important business was brought before the meeting, and the council adjourned to next Tuesday evening.

THREATENING LIVE WIRE

Timely Warning Saves Woman From Fatal Electricity.

The electric current was discontinued for several hours early Monday morning due to the severing of a high tension wire near the residence of Mrs. Emma Baker. Mrs. Baker saw the burning wire about 2:30 and went out to investigate. H. B. Gasson, who lives across the street, also saw the fallen live wire and Mrs. Baker approaching it as if to pick it up. He called to her to stop and she turned back, which would have proved fatal if touched, was evidently broken loose by the swaying of the trees during the heavy rain Monday morning. It burned for about three hours when the linemen repaired the damage and the current was re-continued at 6 o'clock.

YOUNG POLKS IN CONTEST

More Than 3,000 Nebraska Boys and Girls in Competition.

Lincoln, Neb., July 6.—More than 3,000 Nebraska boys and girls are competing in the production of crops and livestock, canning, and cooking and baking, for prizes consisting of several hundred dollars in money, free trips to the international live stock exposition at Chicago, free trips to the annual state boys and girls club week and silver medals, cups, trophies, etc.

For these prizes boys and girls in a score or more counties have organized standard clubs under the supervision of the United States department of agriculture and the state college of agriculture. The following clubs have been formed: Pig, calf, poultry, corn, potato, garden, canning, cooking and baking. Free instruction is sent the clubs by the state college of agriculture.

More than 300 clubs have been formed within the state, with an average of more than twelve members each. Seward county has thirty clubs, the most of any one county. Each club member raises pigs, calves, poultry, vegetables, corn, potatoes, or does canning or cooking and baking according to the kind of club of which he or she is a member.

Prizes Offered.

Automobiles now share with explosion in making up the toll of dead and injured on the Fourth.

An obvious objection to politics is the way in which the likelihood of being a popular idol today and a political outcast tomorrow.

Furnishing both presidential candidates, Ohio will be the center of political activity during the forthcoming campaign. Incidentally, Ohio seems to be well satisfied with its share of honors in this year's elections.

William J. Bryan was steam rolled and defeated at almost every junction in the late San Francisco convention, and his sharp criticism of Governor Cox, who received the nomination, will make it exceedingly difficult for him to support the nominee.

Both presidential candidates have had long and successful newspaper campaigns and we would argue with additional evidence, that any one who can surmount obstacles incident to running a country newspaper should be fitted to triumph over problems incident to governmental leadership.

It is reported that Governor Cox was elected chief executive of Ohio not because of extraordinary ability or personality, but because of his sympathy with the labor interests. The same force is believed to have been instrumental in securing his nomination by the democrats in San Francisco.

Towns that selected Saturday in preference to Monday for Independence day celebrations showed wisdom even if they did not know it at the time. Pilgrims is the nearest word to the celebrated Monday, and that town is soaked so often and so elaborately that a rain storm would not likely interfere with its plans or dampen its enthusiasm.

The refusal of a seat in the Democratic national convention for Senator Amos A. Reed of Missouri, ascribed by that gentleman to his hostility to the administration's league of nations. On his return to Kansas City, Senator Reed addressed a mass meeting giving expression to savage criticism of the impetuous and intemperate attitude of the administration. "If there is one lesson this country needs to learn," declared Senator Reed, "it is that this is not a one man country. It is a 36,000,000 man country and as the senator seemed to have the Missouri crowd with him."

We have been advised by the state railway commission that farmers should be prepared to hold their small grain on account of inadequate shipping facilities, which have been seen elsewhere in today's Herald. It is surprising that transportation facilities have been so wholly insufficient. It would seem the condition is aggravated by increased shipping and decreased rolling stock.

demand for more cars...to have been looked forward to in shape to move crops. It is not encouraging to farmers to grow big crops and then be unable to send them to market. A permanent solution, of transportation troubles will be paved highways leading to big centers and the substitution of motor trucks for railway cars.

Before introduction of modern highways the Fourth was a hard day. People got up at daylight and started early for the point of celebration. They traveled long distances in lumber wagons and slowly broiled in the hot sun. Few trees in the early days made the erection of board coverings necessary. Once and the celebration, people were rewarded by seeing a parade, largely made up of girls representing the states and the goddess of liberty, usually a band and, sometimes, a group of callithumpians, and then by hearing the declaration of independence read by some one who talked through his nose. Patriotic songs and a speech completed the morning program. Catching a great deal of kindness and sympathy in the afternoon, A feeble display of fireworks occupied attention in the evening. When people reached home at midnight they were tired and sore, and they left their hats had enough celebration to last at least a year. Fargest commensurate feature of contrasting the daily routine with the labor of attending the celebration. Now, people spin out in their luxurious upholstered automobiles, and the tedium of distance is entirely eliminated. When they reach their destination, they are still very fresh, and the modern Fourth of July program is made of sufficient interest to justify patronage. At the old-time Independence day events more sociability was probably the rule.

THURSTON DEFEATS TEAM Wayne Loses to Visiting Baseball Players by Score of 5 to 3

In one of the most exciting games seen here this season Wayne lost to Thurston by the score of 5 to 3. Fast hitting and good base running were largely responsible for Thurston's victory. Kees's handling nine chances without an error, many of which appeared to be the subject of the morning sermon, was the outstanding feature of the game. The Wayne team on the whole played a good game, but lack of practice was quite noticeable throughout the game.

Business Stagnant. Sioux City Journal: The excitement of politics with the natural uncertainty of the action of the democratic convention left business decidedly stagnant during last week. But politics was not the only cause. It was merely a contributing factor. Depression is traceable to other causes. Midsummer business, quiet is not unusual at this season. But as a rule industrial plants are running full on fall and early winter orders at this time, thus preserving a general balance between industry and trade. But in some lines, notably wireless, industry is showing a decided slackening up; and in some instances a complete suspension.

Decline in the volume of clothing bought is assigned as a reason. Fall orders have been canceled or materially reduced in bulk. The retail trade in line shows a total decrease which, while not alarming, is significant.

Credit expansion instead of credit contraction is evidence. But the expansion is caused by the demands for money for agricultural purposes. On speculation is checked. Many of the bubbles of stock selling have been punctured and investors in them who were looking for big returns either from a resale of their purchases or from extravagantly proclaimed dividends, have been brought back to earth and to common sense. The money based on inflated credits which went into such investments cannot be withdrawn from the volume of circulation, but there is now no disposition to borrow on substantial credit for wild speculation, so that the speculative tendency in this direction is over.

The crop outlook at this time is above normal. But the mounting cost of everything the farmer must buy is taking away his profits without reducing the cost of his commodities to the consumer. The people realize the conditions which must be met, and extravagance is decreasing among the intelligent - conservation reduces purchases, which in turn mean a substantial saving for future emergency.

Money rates remain high, and the needs when the crops come in. It begins to look as if in the general scramble for cars he who scrambles most will get most.

A Man Killer. St. Paul Pioneer Press: The presidency is gaily called the nation's highest gift. The other side of the story is that it is the nation's most man-killing job.

The attendance at the celebration in Wakefield Saturday was most gratifying and the weather ideal for the program. Several thousands of people from all over the state spent the day here. The American Legion party is receiving merited commendation for the success of the celebration.

The Fair also received first prize in the poultry parade. The Security State bank was awarded second prize for its float. Although the parade entering the parade was not large, all were beautiful.

Hen. A. J. Weaver of Falls City, made the patriotic address in the morning. He was president of the Nebraska constitutional convention at Lincoln the past winter. His eloquent experience and ability were most in the address appropriate to the day.

The baseball game played in the afternoon between Concord and Wakefield was a victory for Wakefield by a score of 12 to 5.

The dance in the bowery in the evening, the band concert, the races, fireworks display and theaters furnished pleasant amusement for the visitors.

What the Automobile Has Done

Automobiles Have Raised the Value of Farm Lands

A remarkable effect of the automobile's utility has been its development of the country. It has overcome the objections and added to the attractions of country life.

Heretofore the attractions of a city home has been its convenience. Travel between cities and surrounding country has been something of a task. Now the motor car has made it a comfort and a pleasure. It has caused the improvement of roads in every direction.

It has made profitable the shops and amusement of small towns. It takes families to local places of entertainment and adds to the interest of the recreation.

The Small Town Benefits From Automobiles

The housewife can secure all the necessities of life without delay. It is a pleasure to stop in her car. By means of the automobile delivery systems the merchant brings merchandise to residence doors.

Farms are closer at hand where fresh produce may be obtained often at less than city prices.

The automobile has made neighbors of those who would otherwise see each other seldom because of distance. It promotes social life.

It is due to the modern all season automobile that these advantages can be enjoyed the year "round."

Keep Young.
 People with bad backs and weak kidneys are apt to feel old at sixty. Pills help them keep young. Ask your neighbor. Here's a Wayne case:
 "Mr. Mary Beckenbauer, says: 'I can surely recommend Doan's Kidney Pills for I have used them. When I leaned over I had awful pains in my back. I was never without a dragging ache in my back and could hardly get around. I tried many medicines and my kidneys didn't get right. Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me of all the symptoms and an occasional use has kept my kidneys in good condition.' (Statement given July 17, 1916.)
 On May 29, 1920, Mrs. Beckenbauer advised: 'I still think the same of Doan's Kidney Pills now as I always have. I am never without Doan's and use them at different times whenever I feel I need them. I am convinced they are a good reliable medicine and I don't think there is a remedy like Doan's that a private can use to keep their kidneys healthy.'

Sunday the baseball team drove overland sixty miles to Bloomfield to play the team at that place. It was a hard fought game but the Wakefield team got 9-4. Bloomfield played in Wakefield one week from Sunday and then the home team will prove to the Bloomfield team that it can win from them when in its condition to play.

Ma has some new kept of the game Sunday, by the Wakefield team. The batteries for the two teams were: Wakefield, Dittis, Hyuse, Truby; Bloomfield, Hires, Burtis. Bloomfield scored 6 hits; Wakefield 3.

Newspapers and the News
 Kansas City Times: Editor, from the likes of us to deny that newspapers are human and fallible. They are. But still they manage to convey to their readers a pretty fair picture of what is going on in the world. Take the two conventions, for instance. There is no distortion in news service between them. Both are reported impartially in every city in the country. Each has the opportunity to give its views of the other party with the greatest frankness to all the readers of the important papers. At no time is there any suppression of essential news and discussion. The big newspapers have been in the business for many years. They have given a lot of thought to their work. Their existence has depended on their success in giving the masses the mass of people what they have been in severe competition with rivals, and they have survived because they have been more successful than the others in meeting their readers' needs.

Submission to Wilson
 St. Paul Pioneer Press: However skillfully the game might be played and the wires pulled at the democratic convention, the working of the machinery is as plain as daylight and the hand of the administration may be seen in every one of the different manipulations. Whether the boots and breeches it is a Wilson owned and ordered majority subservient to the least hint from the White House and with ear strained to catch every inflection of "his master's voice."
