TO INSTALL ICE PLANTS

Pender and Harrington Plan Improvement—Other News.

Harrington may have to install an artificial ice plant to meet the need of ice next year because the ice house dam was completely destroyed by the flood this spring and to replace it would be too large a financial burden to repay the owners. Action will be taken soon about the ice supply. The matter will probably be discussed by the Commercial club.

Pender is to have a home source of ice supply for next season if the plans now under discussion in that town materialize. There are two positions open to the citizens; the erection of an ice house and the making of a freezing pond or the building of a tunnel plant using the city electric power and water.

Two men in a Hudson six, claiming their home as Council Bluffs, met with an accident during their car over on a road near Kefauver, one evening last week. No one was hurt but while trying to investigate damage to the car, one of them lit a match, causing the spilled gasoline to ignite. When the fire was extinguished only the wheels of the car were left.

Work has begun at Bloomfield on a new grandstand at the fair grounds. It will be 150 feet long and will seat at least 1,000 people. The first shoveling machine in the Wausa community was put to work here last week.

The work of laying paving bricks at Randolph was begun last week. The first few rods of brick laid had the sand cushion too thin and the result was that a large number of the brick were broken when the heavy steam roller went over them to smooth down the job. The precaution after that was laid an inch and a quarter thick, diminishing the amount of brick breakage. Engineer Rohrbach of Omaha is closely superintending the job.

George L. Hill, who had been manager of the Farmers Union store at Randolph, has resigned. George Courtney, a traveling salesman, takes his place.

Dr. K. W. HICKER and Geo. Carmack of Harrington, are planning to start a tankage factory in that city near the slaughter house. The purpose of it will be to utilize waste material from the slaughter house and convert it into hog food.

John Springer, 16 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Springer of the Kefauver vicinity, was drowned in a ditch southeast of that town last week. The young man had gone to the ditch near the place it empties into the river to take a plunge, and it was there that he was drowned. The body was recovered.

Stanton Farmer Quoted.

Drovers Journal-Stockman: "The biggest causes for present panicky conditions are without exception the reckless selling of stock by 'ex,' firmly declared Gu Woepfle of Stanton, Neb. 'Too much of our hard earned capital has moved into this state never to return to do us any good,' he continued. 'Mr. Woepfle, although a live stock man, and incidentally it might be said that he is the largest and best feeder of cattle and hogs in his section of the state, is also a student of economics and is a better student of the present conditions than the average man. Perhaps it is his interest and knowledge of affairs other than those of the stock market, and his marketing live stock that has brought about his unusual success as a stockman.'

Started at 17 years.

He has been feeding cattle and hogs ever since he was 17 years old, and although only 45 years of age now is regarded as one of the early pioneers. His first business was made to the Omaha market when he was a lad of 15, at the time the Union Stock Yards was yet in its infancy. He has witnessed the growth of the local exchange, in fact, he has grown right along with the local market.

It is a small year of feeding for Mr. Woepfle if he feeds less than 700 head of cattle and about the same number of hogs. Not one single head of cattle does he attempt to raise, but is satisfied with matching his judgment against that of the next man in buying his feeder stock. During the years he has made for the feeders, when the ordinary farmer and stockman went in debt thousands of dollars, Mr. Woepfle always managed to keep his head and shoulders above board and at least broke even.

The method of feeding, as followed by Mr. Woepfle, do not differ from those employed by the average stockman. His cattle and hogs are all fed and alfalfa, with a steady increase of the amount as the feeding period goes on. The one big point in his system is the buying of his stock. He has mastered the art of seeing a steer or heifer, not as it is today, but as it will be after fattened in his feed lots.

Always Buys Conservatively.

When Mr. Woepfle buys an animal, he buys it at a price that will enable him to come out even. 'Too many men beat themselves and then blame it onto the market conditions,' he stated. 'We feeders can't afford to pay too high prices

Victor Records for August

| GEMS FROM "APPLE BLOSSOMS" Victor Light Opera Company   | Number | Size | List Price |
|---|--------|------|------------|
| GEMS FROM "IRENE" Victor Light Opera Company  | 35977  | 12   | $1.35     |
| Favorite numbers from two successful musical comedies. The Gems from 'Apple Blossoms' include 'The Second Violin'—'You Are Free'—'When the Wedding Bells are Ringing'—'Brothers'—'Star of Love' and 'Little Girls Good Bye.' Those from 'Irene' are, 'The Last Part of Every Party'—'Alice Blue Gown'—'Castle of Dreams' and 'Irene.' |        |      |            |

| BLUE DIAMONDS Henry Burr  |        |      |            |
| 'Love Nest' is the hit of the musical comedy, 'Mary,' which was pretty much the hit of the comic opera season. Heads are going to rock and hearts are going to beat faster—wherever it is heard. Henry Burr has a lovely counterpoint in 'Blue Diamonds.'   |        |      |            |
| TIDDLE-DEE-WINKS Billy Murray   | 18677  | 10   | .85        |
| I LOVE THE LAND OF OLD BLACK JOE Billy Murray and Peerless Quartet  |        |      |            |
| 'Tiddle-Dee-Winks' is in the same set with 'Oh, By Jingoo' and she bids fair to rival that lady as the 'favorite nut' of the public that likes a little fun in its music. The song is a scream—stark, irresistible, human nonsense. 'I Love the Land of Old Black Joe' is a spirited number with some fine harmonies.                 |        |      |            |
| ALL STAR ONE-STEP All Star Trio   | 18675  | 10   | .85        |
| HYN DRI-FOX TROT All Star Trio  |        |      |            |
| The All Star Trio is keeping up its batting average this month with two more hits. 'All Star' is a light headed, rattling, but always sure-footed one-step of the kind the trio most delights in. 'Hyn Dri' is a cheerfully daddering, jaw-bawking sort of fox trot—a perfect 'hooey' to dance to.                                    |        |      |            |
| INTRODUCTION and TARANTELLE (de Sarasate) Jascha Heifetz  | 24626  | 12   | 1.75       |
| Now it is London that has gone wild over Heifetz. This month's record is another example of this young artist's transcendent genius. It has a slow introduction followed by a swift, bewildering but always lovely Tarantella movement. There are many wonderful expedients and many wonderful effects in it.                         |        |      |            |
| LAST NIGHT (Kjerulf) Mme. Homer and Miss Louise Homer   | 87570  | 10   | 1.50       |
| This is the first record by a new Victor artist, Miss Louise Homer, soprano, the daughter, and namesake of Madame Homer, the great contralto. Mother and daughter sing as if with one voice, and one soul. To hear them will prove an experience to all lovers of music.  |        |      |            |
| WHEN NIGHT DESCENDS (Rachmanninoff) M. McCormick-Kreiser  | 87571  | 10   | 1.50       |
| These two artists are interpreting one of the loveliest of Rachmanninoff's songs—a love serenade, with melody as pure and clear as a mid-summer moon, and with a violin obbligato as beautiful as the interlaced and intertwined blossoms through which its light pours upon a world entranced with beauty.                           |        |      |            |
| BLUE DANUBE WALTZ (Johann Strauss) Ernestine Schumann-Heink   | 74627  | 12   | 1.75       |
| The Blue Danube Waltzes played by Ernestine Schumann-Heink is a great symphony orchestra. No dance composition ever carried a listener so swiftly through the gates of oblivion into that world. All true dancers know it—where the whole universe seems to rock to the subtle and intoxicating rhythm of the dance.                  |        |      |            |
| OLD FOLKS AT HOME (Stephen C. Foster) Ernestine Schumann-Heink  | 88620  | 12   | 1.75       |
| It was a happy moment when Ernestine Schumann-Heink thought of recording this, perhaps the best-loved of all American songs. This great artist and great woman has the gift of evoking all that is noblest and deepest in human feeling. And her gift, in this instance, is most exercised.   |        |      |            | for our stock or we will go to the wall.

'Feeder stock will have to be bought at a lower price this fall than before or the live stock men will not feed cattle this winter. Our bankers will not allow us to go over our heads. They preach the gospel of buying conservatively to us from morning to night. The time has passed when the banker meeting on the street would literally beg you to borrow some money from him. Now if he finds you do not meet him, he usually asks what you will be in to take up your last note.'

This conditions was largely brought about by the people who have been sending good hard earned Nebraska money back east for stocks and bonds in air cattle companies or to the eastern manufacturers for automobiles. Nebraska boasts of having more automobiles per capita than any state in the United States. She ought to be ashamed of that fact instead of boasting of it. Where has this money gone, and what benefit do we get of it?

'If nothing else, these stringent times we are now going through have taught us a lesson. Perhaps it is a bit hard to swallow, but it has made most of the straight minded people look twice before they let loose of their dollars.'

If the Nonpartisan league had been a success in practice it would not be losing out in North Dakota. It would not have been defeated in the neighboring state of Minnesota.

Senator Harding decries the effort to arouse class prejudice. He would not have activities in seeking peace for the old world but to the essentials of peace at home. He says he would rather have industrial and social peace at home than to have the international peace of all the world.

What good would an egg do if it were set on a rock? The illustration was offered at the chaucanque to emphasize the point that it was not so much what one said or did as how one said or did it that counts. This suggestion explains a good many failures in the effort to get along well with people.

The great middle class to which most of us belong, is suffering from a kind of social distress. It is being squeezed between the giant industrial heads on the one hand and the big trusts and corporations on the other. This condition is temporary, and the measures now being taken for its new treating the masses with cold indifference, will have to surrender to a more tolerable level of prices.

Congressman Royal C. Johnson of South Dakota told a Wayne man that Congressman R. E. Evans was one of the ablest, one of the most industrious and one of the most conscientious members of the lower house. He said he was sound and firm and that he had learned many tricks of a politician and always on the job in looking out for the best interests of his constituency.

We have just received a letter from Frank Harrison, Lincoln political leader, who is running for governor, in preference to Governor McKelvie, present incumbent. Frank offers us some very interesting volunteer's advice, the result, no doubt, of his profound political wisdom. We are convinced more than ever that his advice could succeed better by a larger increased majority.

Those who work little, produce little and expect much in reward, who spend all they get and tax credit to the limit, who envy more the distorted and untrue figures of their neighbors and who would take other men's hard-earned dollars without due return, without compensation, with the hands of gratitude, are among those in favor of socialism—popular ownership and distribution of everything.

In private conversation Congressman Royal C. Johnson, of South Dakota, was asked for the Wayne chaucanque on Saturday evening said taxes were two-thirds higher in North Dakota than they are in South Dakota. He said South Dakota farmers could not be persuaded to cross over the dividing line and buy any amount in North Dakota. South Dakota farmers look with compassion on their helpless northern neighbors, but they do not feel strongly enough for them to buy their lands.

One of the best speeches before the legislature was the one given by Congressman Royal C. Johnson of South Dakota. In the course of his constructive criticism, he offered as a remedy for the present social inequities, due to the war, the taxing of war profits. He would take from the accumulations of money that have been amassed fortunes, enough to lighten the burden of general taxation. He said millions in money would be given to the nation and the government and suggested that a liberal share of war profits might be justly apportioned into the United States treasury.

A woman from Russia talked at the dinner on Sunday afternoon and she showed that in a bad condition under the czar had been worse under bolshevism. In time the middle class will be persecuted and humiliated. Russia has swung from one extreme to the other, the autonomy of one class to the autonomy of another. Russia is suffering from the one being intensified by the other.

The story of Russia reflects a condition of "jeopardy-and-terror" that should inspire every American citizen. It is the story of a man and that he is under the protection of the stars-and-stripes. It was Russian bolshevism that the late Mr. Harms, in his Chicago paper, praised as a model for the United States. This praise of foreign bolshevism is one in a series of articles in which he properly killed the party while it was trying to be born.

SOCIALISM. "Hoskins, Neb., July 30, 1920. The Editor Wayne Herald, Wayne, Neb. Dear Sir:

Accidentally a copy of your paper of the 22nd inst. came into my hands. It proved very interesting on account of the article on Socialism. The first one repeated Mr. Harms' conception of the Nonpartisan league. Number two is your editorial in which you state that you would like to see a $10 that some farmer who got tired of "sitting tight and waiting" delivered into the hands of the "proletariat" who is on page four of your paper, a report of Mr. Lesman's sale of cattle.

"I would be greatly pleased to read the article on page 5, both in the interest of patriotic Americans and for the sake of enlightenment, an answer and commentary together with some proofs for contradictory statements, that you must make to the following:

In what respect is the N. P. L. charged and surcharged, with socialism and radicalism? Is government ownership of the mails socialism? If not, why should government ownership of the railroads, meat, sugar, and other industries be? According to you the N. P. L. is a socialist measure which has nowhere proved a success. How about the state hail insurance of Canada, the state controlled marketing of the United States, which has the lower rate of interest in North Dakota? What about its referendum ad recall?

"The socialists have long should a man like Mr. Lesman want a bit tight" when he gets $250 for the best steer of the year and the same for a second best, which is worth over $600 even after allowing more than 400 pounds for waste? If I were Mr. Lesman, I, the farmer, I'd be willing to let someone else $18 worth to see if I could get more for my steer and still enable the consumer in the cities and other places to get a steak for less money than he can do it now. Sincerely yours, J. Harms.

Rev. J. Harms, Hoskins, Neb.

Dear Mr. Harms:

If the Nonpartisan league is not charged with socialism, I wonder what you would call socialism? Is not the banking system of North Dakota proof of socialism? The establishment of the Bank of North Dakota, a measure which is one of the commitments of the Nonpartisan league in that state. The law creating the bank provides that all state, county, township, district, school, industrial and industrial institutions, and all public funds shall be deposited in the Bank of North Dakota. Here is another interesting provision in the banking law: "The Bank of North Dakota may transfer funds to other departments, institutions, utilities, industries, enterprises or business projects of the state." Doesn't that mean to use public funds to engage in all kinds of industry and business even to the extent of public ownership and management of farms and live stock?

What is wrong with the application of socialism? Wouldn't it be a trifle radical? If not, what would you deem radical? Why would you government ownership of the mails be deemed somewhat toward socialism, and I think I would say it has not proved self-sustaining. What is wrong with what it lacks in meeting expenses is supplied from other sources of revenues. But we will cling to it as the same as Wayne will cling to ownership of its burdensome lighting plant or if it would cling to a bear's tail if it were a bear.

It is because we accept long established government ownership of the mails—one public service institution in thousands—is the reason why we should not count on everything over to the government. You might just as well suggest, Mr. Harms, that because the Nonpartisan league is not owning and keeping up the local lighting system—an expression of socialism that is very costly and unwise. It would be just as well to own and operate every commercial and industrial institution in town. There are plenty of things the public can own, and in many instances doing, like paving country roads, developing water powers and building irrigation systems—without encroaching on fields developed by private enterprise and competition. Ideas about which the masses know little, and which they are not in a position to service, and in which they would not wish to assume risks and responsibilities. I would.

The true definition of socialism as quoted from an encyclopedia, "Socialism is the name given to a system of social organization in the present order of society, and which seeks to introduce a new distribution of property and labor, in which the surplus value of the product of competition should be the dominating principle—under the conviction that the happiness of the race and especially of the classes without capital, would be benefited. "Historically considered, socialism, like many of the significant prophecies of our age, is a product of the French Revolution. The objection to the theory is that it makes human happiness too much dependent on governmental gratification that it robs man of that energy that springs from ambition, that it unphilosophically individualizes and inequality to which nature itself has given her inviolable sanction, and that by the abolition of social distinctions, punishments, and neither holds out any hope to the industrious, nor excites any apprehension among the indolent.

"Now, Mr. Harms, have you seen leading socialists been at work in North Dakota in the interest of the Nonpartisan league? Would they be there if they were doing anything else but socializing? In your next letter I wish you would cover this point and give me the names of present socialists who are entering over the Nonpartisan league in North Dakota. As I may see if they correspond with those mentioned in the literature on file here. We already have state hail insurance, the referendum in Nebraska. We also have the primary law by which a man who is aggrieved out of sympathy with the principles of a political party may become the nominee of that party—again without the legislature will do nothing. The primary law so it will not be cast in the primary law. The first few words about Denmark which you give favorable mention: Denmark proper contains 15,042 square miles with a population in 1917 of 2,574,000. Denmark has 77,520 square miles with a population in 1910 of 1,922,214. Denmark is cut up into little farms, mostly containing between eight and eight acres—a man sometimes living out of seven and a fraction acre; he would have to co-operate closely with many others in the same unfortunate lot. The small patches called farms in Denmark would not argue for the big independent spirit that pervades the broad and fertile farms of Nebraska. Would we still in Nebraska if we could the hampering conditions prevailing in Denmark?

In reference to the Lesman steer, you mistook the percentage saved in dressing the price of the animal. The price of the steer was not given. Assuming, however, that Mr. Lesman did not get his full share for the steer, how would you give any assurance that the league's system could, by adopting the price of the Lesman steer? Would a North Dakota steer, grown under the inspiration of the Nonpartisan league, sell for more in the city than the same steer in Nebraska? A few years ago the farmer realized well, and he will do it again as due adjustment is developed. As a farmer, I will give myself to do recently, his prices went up first, and came down first. Dressing rates will increase as the price of the steer goes up. Happy solution of problems will not be hastened by stirring up class animosities and by introducing a theory of universal socialism.

This answer to Mr. Harms is longer than I intended to make it, though I have left much yet to be said. I will resume in answer to his next letter. "The Editor."

Note for a Real Candidate.

Omaha, Mo.: Frank A. Harrison, whose designation to bolt the party nominee threatens to become a habit, is urging his friends to elect Gov. S. R. McKelvie and state Arthur C. Wayne as the "Committee of Four-Six" candidate for governor. In the same breath, he undertakes to foment a bolt from Harding by Nebraska's republican party. He offers Hiram Johnson's nomination. If it were anyone other than the esteemed Mr. Harrison who made such a suggestion, one would be forced to doubt both his consistency and his sincerity.

Harrison deprecates McKelvie's claims to republican support because, he says, he did not receive a clear majority in the republican primary. But neither did Senator Johnson at Chicago. He was elected at no time mustered more than one-seventh of the delegates to his banner. Wayne has no claim whatever to the position.

No one knows better than Harrison that Wayne cannot be elected. The race is between Governor McKelvie and former Governor McKelvie. A republican dissenter who votes for Wayne votes in reality for McKelvie. It is a vote for the republican factor for McKelvie.

Let the issue be fought fairly and openly. The records of both real candidates are well known. One or the other is to be the best governor of Nebraska. Voters who take their citizenship seriously can readily justify wasting their ballots as hopeless volunteer candidacy.

What's Harding's Interpretation. Chicago Daily News: "Prof. Tatnell says that the Harding interpretation of one way and Senator Johnson interprets it quite another way. 'It might be well to have Senator Harding give an official interpretation.'"

THE STERLING HOME

By IDA W. GOULD.

He name was Zarella, flow, and she was neither young nor pretty. Her eyes were blue and mis-stated. Her hair was not attractive. Over her desk hung a motto, "Nothing worth winning except by hard work." The face of this woman's work surrounded her. A bust of Clytie, earned by the sale of "The Sailor's Revenge," stood near the set of Dickens, regulating for the "Midnight Mystery." Once the energy slackened, then she let her eyes refresh themselves with the sight of her red antique prayer book, bound by the same of "Another Child." Over the piano hung a well-earned water color, one made possible for her by selling "The Double Barreled Gun." From the easel hung a painting of bits of pottery. The very robe Zarella wore in was a Japanese kimono, delicately embroidered in red, the color which resulted from "A Temperance Tale."

With splendid health and a small income from investments, she lived as she pleased and she was the envy of many other business women. Her courage was supreme; no amount of rejected manuscripts restrained her sensibility.

As early dawn shimmered, the woman flung her last production upon the light, and slept till noon. By six afternoon she went the way-out to the editors of a literary contest which had been running some weeks. She applied to build a small hut, one illustrated in "Star House." A faint odor of heliotrope pervaded all her belongings. In her plan of a house a bed of heliotrope plants just outside her windows was indicated. Heliotrope was her mother's best-loved flower. Zarella always bought heliotrope perfume instead of the more common violets.

She remembered her mother, working at the common tasks in the old homestead, and a saying of her mother's brought the most vivid and tender memories to her.

"Always keep something sweet smelling that grows about you, to take your mind off your dreary life." She would have a Dutch colonial house, box trees (like grain old ones) on each side of "The Trick" which she was planning for her father, a brass knocker on her front door, a blue bust, a shelf for pictures, and a "ephorbia" on the wall.

She remembered when her mother had a large, white horse, and she had a white cat, and she had a white dog, and she had a white bird.

"The sea captain had an absolute passion for white paint. How kind everyone had been to him. Perhaps the foggy morning had passed along those same happy memories to some little girl, when she really owned her Sterling home.

"The captain had given her a bunch of catnip and a shell at parting. The shell still dilt duty as a paper weight. The catnip had long ago been consumed by cats long since deceased.

"Zarella's musings were interrupted by a knock, followed by the entrance of the top floor mantron: "Good-evening, Miss How. A special delivery for you, just come; boy's wait."

"Zarella broke the seal, read the contents of the letter, exclaiming in a delighted cry to the astonished listener: "Hurry, here this; so fast, tell the boy, here's the receipt for the letter."

"No bad news, Miss." "Good-good—nothing like it ever came out of my box. Then come back, but don't tell anyone." Mary made haste and was soon seated admiringly fastening her eyes on the beauty of the kimono.

"Listen, Mary."

"Madam—Enveloped had our check for six thousand dollars." "What? Six thousand? Not for the cleverness of your last lines, but for the sustained interest shown. Out of 20,000 entries I have chosen for the honor of my contest sending an answer every day since the contest began.

"It is, if I am not mistaken, a 'Glory be to God, Miss, it is writing brought-ye-thus?'" "Yes, Mary—and you don't get me into a new tunic, with green blinds with the annex."

Farmers Live Longer. This, on the authority of the bureau of labor, which has been compiling statistics on the life expectancy of farmers, they do. An open-air life, coupled with fairly dry hours, sufficient food and sleep, and lack of opportunities for some of the more wasteful extravagances of diversion, must needs conduce to longevity. The farmer reaps the reward of this virtue—event if the virtuous only Senator Harding's. Counting the odds, it will be found in faulty food combinations, frequent exposure to cold and wet, and long spells of idleness in the winter. The farmer's aim is distinctly a farmers' alliance.

Worth of Fordson
Power Proven

The success of the Fordson power farming demonstration held at Lincoln last week, July 28, 29 and 30, proved to the farmers and dealers in attendance that the Fordson is the one tractor that brings the best results at least expense for purchase and upkeep. The Fordson handled very successfully all farm tools built for the Fordson Tractor. These were in actual use at the state farm demonstration.

We are now taking orders for Fordson Tractors and would advise you to place your order early for a tractor for fall plowing.

WAYNE CHAUTAUQU TO CLOSE TONIGHT (Continued from Page One) week was Tuesday when Bland's orchestra provided the entertainment. This orchestra was composed of talented young college men and their program was full of variety. The Phillipino Royal String quartet, the Lyceum Arts Trio and the Milano Sextette were the musical attractions of the week. The mixed quartette of the last named company sang a select repertoire of ball and opera numbers. The pianist gave some delightful piano pieces and the accordion player proved an interesting novelty. Wednesday afternoon and for the prelude that evening the Edward Clarke Concert company entertained. Each of the three members of this company is a talented artist and gave a truly classical program which was well applauded. This evening at 8 o'clock, prior to the closing concert, the boys and girls of Junior town will present the play, "Modern Crusaders." This play consists of speaking, singing and dancing. The children will wear costumes appropriate to the parts. The boys and girls have worked over the week and the direction of Miss Clarion Leshner, junior superintendent. They have practiced their parts at the Strunk out-let. Junior town meeting and story-hour have been conducted each morning. There are nearly one hundred children in the play and most of these will be in the pageant this evening. Junior Town was organized the day and officers elected: Ralph Morris, mayor, and Joy Ley, clerk. The committee chairman and their helpers are: Law and order, Mrs. J. E. The True Secret of Success Is thrift in all its phases, and principally thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends, but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book with the name of a bank on its cover.

WITHOUT claiming any special merit as heirs aside from that which may be acquired by any conscientious hard working Chiropractors, we feel justified in taking the public into our confidence at this time and asking whether or not our system of healing must not be one of merit to have reached its present proportions as the result of six years' conscientious work among the people of this vicinity. It might be easy to have created a temporary rush from those afflicted for a short time by misleading advertising; but with genuine faith in the efficiency of the Chiropractic method of healing we have consistently advertised its merits that the sick and afflicted may come and investigate and if convinced of any merit have the benefit of restored health.

TO WHAT extent we have succeeded we leave you to judge after you consider the record of adjustments given in six successive days at our convenient home office.

Monday 81; Tuesday 72; Wednesday 78; Thursday 74; Friday 73; Saturday 83; a total of 464 or a fraction more than 77 daily

This is just a week record and only one of fifty-two weeks of the year. It is an evidence of the faith coming to the people as they study and learn of this true method of healing. We invite those not in perfect health to investigate this healing method. We will gladly provide you with literature needed, and also give examination and analysis free to all who come, with honest opinion as to whether or not Chiropractic adjustment will benefit you.

UNCLE WALT THE POET PHILOSOPHER

PASSING-OUT.
So live that when you lie in bed, afflicted with the flu and Dr. Reed, was shakes his head and says your journey's through, you are not filled with vain regrets for things you've left undone; may you observe, "I've paid my debts, and death is bully fun." The debts behind look black as pitch, and spoil your spirits ease, when you are dying of the rich, or hoof and mouth disease. Your widow, draped in trailing black, and bearing soles of woe, may take in washing at her slack to pay the bills you owe. And she may scrub some scrubbing floor, or wash the big stone step, a thought like this makes death a bore, and from it knocks the pep. I'd hate to sit upon a star in my nice moustache strand, and watch my widow scrub and char, among earth's madding crowd. She will not have to do such tricks—I'm not the least afraid; you bet when I have crossed the Styx my debts will all be paid; and there'll be troubles in the bin, the products of my rhyme; and Jane may blow said money-in, and have the dearest time.

THE CHANGEFUL SEA.
One day the sea's a brilliant blue, and gayly it goes skidding; the next it has a somber hue, it's mottow slow, forbidding. One day I camp upon the shore and watch it as it surges, and there's such raths in its roar I feel like crooning dirges. Next day its message is so glad it asks no mortal's pity, and I produce a pen and pad and spring a buoyant ditty. One day the waters run like wine, in froth and foam they're boiling; the next they have a somber hue, white as though they needed oiling. One day they're green, and everywhere the note of mirth's prevailing; the next they're darker than the midnight, and wave to wave, like Old Neptune has a wondrous lyric.

that touches all emotions, and on it like a house afire, he plays among his oceans. Now sweeter than the lullabies of mothers in the gloaming; and now the notes like thunder rise, along the octaves' ruzzing—Old Neptune, in his solitudes, his might to huff at the waves, he has a sorrow for all our moods, a note for every passion.

HOT ENOUGH?
Replying to a million jays, my dulcet voice I hereby raise, and admit—though not with glee—that it is hot enough for me. I meet these jays at every turn; they watch me scize, scorch and burn, and they behold a wilted bard reduced to streams of melted lead; and they inquire, the whole blamed crew, "Well, is it hot enough for you?" And I assure that as I feel that it is not enough for me, I've always been a bear for heat; I don't suppose you'll ever meet a gent so maddly fond of sweat, and sunstrokes are my one best bet. Death Valley is my native place, and on the desert, burning face I used to play; when child, with rattlesnakes and all things wild. And there I learned to love the heat, and look upon the desert. And in the stoke-hole of a ship I shoveled coal one ocean trip, and gloried in the ardent heat, as I danced around on smoking feet. But I admit, and I allow, I've had enough of warmth just now. I do it hoping that the jays who weave around me all my days, will give me a query, moudly-bud: "Well, is it hot enough for you?"

CAR REPAIRS.
I have had my auto mended, had its valves and dudads ground, and today it's running splendid; with no harsh or parring sound; but my heart is in a panic, and my roll is also-ranic for the heaven-built me, chant touched me for my bottom pound. Oh, the sun is shining brightly on the meadow and the sea, and the birds are singing lightly, but they bring no joy to me, there, yet is smiling my grievard for the to his us—this day I pod, will be no kindly thought of that, from A to Izzard, stripped me of my bed, and sleepless spend the night my final V. Oh, he fixed the car, but he made the charter start, and he rubbed his greasy sweater over the cushions, rich and smart; all the busted parts I showed him, and I stood around to gaud him; then he told me what I owed him, and I had a broken heart. I had planned to save some money for the wintry years ahead, so in age so hot it cooks the reed and the I might have honey and molasses for my bread; but I see I'll get me busy paying up that wizard wizard, who repaired my old tin lizard, but he kept me digging till I'm dead. Oh I wonder what the wizards do with all the coin they make; do they throw it at the lizards? Do they dump it in the lake? Do they live in regal splendor on the wad of legal tender, that, for fixing my old fender, from my pocketbook they take?

SMOKE OF BATTLE.
The smoke of battle now will rise, and for four months obscure the skies, the two great parties now are set to make things hum, already true. The candidates, good men and true, with ardor or alarm will vie, and show catastrophe begins the day the other fellow wins. The roadbacks that our fathers knew will trot around a time or two, with fierce old gags deaved and wiled, and chestnuts of the log rag heard. We who have struck for higher pay, and shorter hours, and cheaper hay, will now be asked by statesmen-birds, as we've been asked, so oft of old, to strike for altars and for fires, and for the green grasses of our sties. And sounding platitudes will soar around our ears and prove a bore. We view the fuss serenely now; we won't throw bricks in such a row, but in three weeks or maybe six, you'll see us busy throwing bricks, and dodging rocks by others heaved—all will be rattled, and and peaved. And when the smoke has cleared away, the morrow of election day, we'll wonder-say we asked thus, and tore our garments in the fuss.

SUMMER-MONTHS.
July's months that makes me sad, while on my errands trotting; the air is hot, the flies are bad, and I'm kept busy swarting. Though August is my month, and I've yet may all remember a few short weeks will bring relief—the next month is September. But in July I feel, and and peaved. And when the spirit; for August will be twice as hot, and so we dread and fear it. And as we drink our bitter cup, and chase the bugs that bit us, we say to friends, "Cheer but they bring no joy to me, there, yet is smiling my grievard for the to his us—this day I pod, will be no kindly thought of that, from A to Izzard, stripped me of my bed, and sleepless spend the night my final V. Oh, he fixed the car, but he made the charter start, and he rubbed his greasy sweater over the cushions, rich and smart; all the busted parts I showed him, and I stood around to gaud him; then he told me what I owed him, and I had a broken heart. # Champion High Sensation Durocs

Erwin's Great Offering of Classy Sows and Gilts to Be Held at Concord, Neb., Monday, August 9

A great offering of some of the best individuals of the breed and mated to a boar that stands out as a leader—High Sensation, the Grand Champion at the Nebraska State Fair and a boar that has sired some of the most noted boars and sows of the breed.

25 Bred Sows 15 Open Fall Gilts 5 Open Spring Gilts 5 Fall Boars

The Erwin herd is noted for its great herd boars, High Sensation and Long Orion Sensation by the World's Champion, Great Origin Sensation, dam Uneda Lady, the $5,000 sow. Long Orion Sensation is a full brother to the boar that sold to Studer Brothers a short time ago for $10,000.

The twenty-five sows setting in the sale have been mated to the above mentioned boars and they carry the blood of such prominent boars as High Sensation, Pathfinder's Likeness, Top Model, King Cherry and Paramount Sensation. No better lineup will sell in the summer season anywhere.

The fifteen open fall gilts are all sired by High Sensation and this is one of the most uniform and grandest lot of open sows that will sell. They are all of one type and conformation and they are out of some of the best producing sows of the breed.

The five open spring gilts are by High Sensation and Long Orion Sensation.

The Herd Boar Buyer Need Not Look Any Further

The boars selling in this sale are sired by High Sensation. Sons of High Sensation are heading some of the best herds in the west, and you couldn't buy them for $5,000 to $10,000. An advertised boar will do more to give your herd prestige than any other line of endeavor. Buy in this sale and end your boar troubles.

Write for catalog at once and if you can't attend the sale send your buying order to G. F. Anderson of the Nebraska Farmer.

THE EARLY DAYS IN TWO COUNTIES.

From Wayne Herald for August 4, 1893:

Dr. Williams' sang to the world's fair. Mrs. John Harrison is visiting at Oakland. P. M. Corbit returned from a visit in Iowa.

An addition is being built to the cigar factory. Judge Malvern, Iowa, was a business visitor here. Mrs. Burdick of Chambersburg, Penn., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Stambaugh.

G. P. Hitchcock of the Wayne Marble Works, visited W. M. Martin in Laurel. Judge and Mrs. A. A. Welch and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Chace went to Chicago to attend the world's fair.

Mrs. J. W. Egler arrived from Florida and will visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Phillo in Lafayette. J. F. Sberbahan has added a cable car railway for hauling the milk from the pits to the machine in his brick yard.

S. D. Relyea is building a store next to the Wayne National bank. Those who were in Sioux City this week were: Mrs. Walter Weber, Miss Maud Tucker, Mrs. A. J. Ferguson, Mrs. McNeal, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Olinstead.

The city council has had to dig new wells for the city water supply. It is thought that the supply from the new ones will furnish sufficient water for maintaining all uses.

Sam Barley has been unable to work the past few days because of injuries sustained when he fell from a scaffold while working on a building at the James Gades farm on the Carroll. He fell a distance of ten feet and struck on his neck. The tennis game between the clubs of Wayne and Wakefield, resulted in favor of Wayne in the contest between Mr. Erwin and Mr. Mines, and Mr. Harsh and Mr. Pearson; and in favor of Wakefield in the game between the Kimball brothers and Mr. Chace and Mr. Tower.

From the Ponca Journal August 4, 1893:

On Monday of this week a party of four back Indians passed through our town going northwest. A few miles they stopped and arrayed themselves in war costume and put on ominous black and red paint, thus indicating that they were on a mission not wholly peaceful. The secret of the matter was, two of the Indians were going out to fight—a duel. They were two young Sioux, named respectively Silt Lip Bob and Sam Squire. They had been down to the Omaha reservation on a visit and while there had both fallen in love with an Indian squaw named Silt Molly, the beautiful daughter of old Bill Bumbottle, one of the chiefs of the tribe.

The two Indian beaux, Bob and Sam, went dead in love with the alluring Silt, and according to Indian custom, each tried to buy her of her affectionate parent. His price was twenty-four ponies, which was not high, considering that she was a stout, strapping squaw, good tempered, and capable of hoisting corn, taking care of papooses and doing the housework.

Consequently both the beaux were willing to pay the twenty-four ponies, and the question then naturally came up as to which one it should be. The case was referred to Silt herself, but she could not fully decide, as she liked them both almost equally well. They were indeed both fine Indians, and in many respects well matched. If there was any advantage at all, it was probably in favor of Sam, who was younger than the other and had already got two wives, whereas Bob was the possessor of four helpmates. But Silt could not decide which she would make happy, and her two swains agreed to settle the matter by fighting.

So they started on Sunday, bringing with them two Indian friends to act as umpires and bottle holders, and, on Monday, passed through town as before related. After donning their war paint, they went up to a secluded spot in the Lime creek hills, and then laying the side all weapons excepting two stone headed, war clubs, they mounted their ponies and tackled one another with great fury. After circling and whooping around as a sort of preliminary exercise, the combatants came to close quarters, when Bob delivered a fearful blow with his club at Sam, which slipped one side and the blow fell on the head of his pony, and made him feel very demure for awhile. Then Sam got in a blow which lamed his opponent's leg severely. They then fell to, and whacked and banged away at each other, but without much effect until finally from exhaustion both dismounted and sat down on the grass and gazed at each other in silence. And now the spirit of peace, compromise and conciliation stole over them and Bob proposed if Sam would give him five ponies, a revolver and two knives, that he would throw up the sponge and let his rival have the girl without further trouble.

Sam, justly angered to this, and then washing off their paint and dirt, they and their two friends returned back to the agency, where they probably arrived yesterday. Today without doubt triumphantly and love favored Sam will be united to his Silt and Bob, constituted by his five ponies, his revolver and his two knives, will rejoice in happiness second only to that of the bride and groom.

The incidents were related to our reporter by one of the Indians who attended the fight, and are substantially correct, excepting in the names of some of them, which, as our memory is not good in such matters, we may have mis-called.

Notice on Settlement of Account.

In the County Court of Wayne County, Nebraska.

The State of Nebraska, Wayne County ss. To all persons interested in the estate of James Hixcox deceased: On reading the petition of William A. Hixcox, administrator, praying a final settlement and allowance of his account filed in this court on the 28th day of July, 1920, and for distribution of the residue of the estate, it is hereby ordered that you and all persons interested in said matter may, and do, appear at the County Court to be held in and for said county, on the 14th day of August, A. GROCERIES

Peaches for Canning

California Peaches are now at their best and there will be a good supply on this market for several days. We advise you if you are going to can peaches to do it while these fine California free-stone peaches are on here.

Ice Cold Watermelon

Do you like good cold melons? We have at all times a good supply of melons that come directly off the ice to you. Why not try one of these? They cost no more than those that are delivered to your farm.

Sugar

The sugar market is down some and it is hard to tell just what it will do. We are now in position to deliver you sugar at a price that is somewhat lower than it has been for the past month.

Coffee

Many people are discovering that Millar's coffees are the best they can buy. It is not a line of coffee that is sold for a few weeks as a "trout" but one that has been sold here for years and has stood the test. They are blended by experts and brewed by a house that has a standing second to none in the coffee world.

Staple Groceries

Every family purchases at all times a great many staple groceries, such as different kinds of breakfast food, jelly, baking powder, soaps, etc. Do you ever ask the price of these items? It would pay you to, and then compare them with the prices we are getting and we believe that a big saving can be made by purchasing these items here.

Quality

This store is giving quality merchandise at a price that is generally asked for poorer grades of groceries. We are glad at any time to explain to you how we can save money for you on your grocery bill and yet give you quality merchandise. We have no special deals nor no long story, except to say our increasing business proves that REAL QUALITY MERCHANDISE are reasonable prices is what is wanted by the people.

Why the Convention Proposed Districts

The constitutional convention arranged to divide the state into districts—temporarily the congressional districts—for the purpose of electing regents for the state university and six judges of the state supreme court.

There were two principal reasons for this: to have these officers better distributed over the state and therefore more representative of the state, and to give the people a better chance to know whom they are voting for.

At present, five of the board of regents live either in Lincoln or Omaha, or within a very few miles thereof; the sixth lives about seven-five miles from Lincoln. Nebraska is a large state; its university should reflect not only the interests of its large cities but also of its rural communities.

Somewhat the same situation exists with respect to judges of the supreme court. They have a tendency to come from the larger centers, not because all the facilities there, but because the ability is getting prestige and votes are better there.

Furthermore, how many citizens can honestly say they have voted in the supreme court? They have a tendency to come from the larger centers, not because all the facilities there, but because the ability is getting prestige and votes are better there.

know in each case, a man from their own district, than to vote for a half dozen men and vote blindly.

For reasons similar to the above we would protect our counties by having two or more representatives in the legislature should be so distributed as to permit the election of one member from each district. Frankly this applies especially to the case of Omaha.

Omaha sends seventeen members to the state legislature. Each citizen of Omaha must know seventeen candidates who are good enough for the legislature. It is worse than that. Presumably each one will have a dozen candidates.

Or what possibilities in the direct primary? The Omaha citizen-suffrage law made through a list of some fifty candidates and picked out seventeen men of whom he knows anything about.

This facilitates the making of "slates." If the average citizen does not know whom he wants in the legislature, the "interests" do. The "interests" will concentrate on their men usually. It is always easier for such forces to concentrate. The other voters will be divided. The result will be a "massive government."

Omaha needs help to save herself. So does every large city. Furthermore, it is usual in the case of large cities in the United States, such as Chicago, for instance, to divide them into districts as we propose for Omaha and Lincoln. Not only will these cities be benefited by so doing; the whole state will be better off.—J. C. W. Lewis.

Crops Here are Good.

Wahoo, Neb., Aug. 2.—T. W. Porter of Wahoo, secretary of the Nebraska Spotted Poland China breeders' association, who recently returned from a trip through northeastern Nebraska in the interests of the association, advises that the crops in this part of the state are in fine condition.

Both wheat and oats are a good crop and the prospects for corn are excellent.

Mr. Porter says that he saw fine herds of Spotted Poland and that while most of the breeders of spotted hogs in Nebraska are new at the game, he has seen no better animals this year in the older states. He predicts that many Spotted Poland China pigs will be shipped to Illinois, Iowa and Indiana when the buyers from these points get to see the Nebraska offerings this fall and winter.

Money in Hares

Not "rabbits" for pets, but Flemish Giant and Belgian Blue for meat and fur. I have a few pedigreed breeders for sale at from $5 to $10. Some of these will be worth $25 when matured.—C. F. Whitney, P. O. Box 75, Wayne, Nebraska.

ON WAY TO MEXICAN GULF

Rev. J. W. Beard and Francis Jones Reach Omaha in Their Canoe.

Florence, Neb., Aug. 1, 1920. Dear Mr. Beard: If you read this writing you are a good one indeed. In fact, we do not expect you can, but we are going to keep our promise and write. You will have to judge for yourself as to the truth of things herein contained.

We just finished our second day of the long planned trip. If we could go no further, and had to give up the rest of the journey, it so far has been worth all the cost. We left Sioux City about seven o'clock Saturday morning, going out through the Floyd river. This river should be taken out of the map. It is not a self-respecting body of water and it respects no body, and nobody respects it.

There was a real thrill when we swung into the old Missouri, and one of its greatest hungry hounds of whirlpools reached for the little boat. But she slipped over with a laugh and we were on our way rejoicing. By the way, we have shipped over several mice, whirlpools I think.

Nothing more of interest till noon. At 12 o'clock sharp we landed on a desert island to get dinner and Francis and I had a little "stepped out on the hard sand" and went into mud almost up to his neck. It was at least up to his shoulders. Since then we find where it is dry.

We ate our first dinner in mud, and some of the mud was in mud, but it was not just the same. The sand took the place of sugar, and it is fine when you get used to it. The mud looked like pepper and the good looking like—ask John G. Neihardt for a fit simile. I am not enough of a poet to meet the situation.

After dinner we did nothing till supper. That is we only sat in the canoe, stuck the paddle in the water and—just add a little more sand and mud to the coffee and fried potatoes of dinner and you will have supper.

Slept all night on a big island. The good spirit of the island—that is he would be good—if he would just change his mind and let us go—let us go with a perfectly lovely murder story. Francis tried to turn pale, but couldn't, for he was too sunburned. So I helped him and turned pale for both of us. After the old dinner left, we got out our artillery, both light and heavy, oiled it all up, placed it in position, built our barricade of suit cases, navy bags, first aid for the injured, etc., and started in for the night.

Wish I could describe to you the glorious sunset of last night; it was one of the most beautiful I have seen. Wish I could describe the beautiful green along the river, and the joy of two fine days along this river road that has no hills on it.

One thing I hope we escape on this trip, don't know if we can or not. That is fitting ourselves for membership in the Ananias club. You see the river itself is such a jar at night. It is a real nice feeling to think you haven't been killed through the night. Just try it and see.

Well just pick out as much of this as you can and believe that, let the rest go.

So far the trip has been wonderful.—John W. Beard and Francis Jones.

A Monarch Range

In Your Kitchen Would Make Your Work Hours Fewer and Pleasanter

And anyone can afford the luxury of using this World's Finest Range. In fact, one can't afford to do without it, for the old type of range with its disagreeable qualities, is at the same time very extravagant in the use of fuel and expensive to keep in repair when compared with a MONARCH Malleable Range. The reason that MONARCH Ranges need less fuel is a simple one—they are built so they stay tight after years of use. It's just as reasonable that tightness in a range saves fuel as that it costs less to heat a well-built house than a shack with open cracks around the doors and windows. Tightness in common stoves and ranges is secured temporarily by filling the bolted seams with stove putty. Tightness in MONARCH ranges is insured permanently by riveting the joints tight and solid—a construction only made possible by using castings of an unbreakable material, MALLEABLE IRON. With a range that stays tight and gives the same satisfactory service year after year, the matter of protection against RUST, the common enemy of all "Steel Ranges," becomes of great importance. The Monarch's value to the user is made easily double that of its nearest competitor by its Vitreous Enameled Flue Linings which fully protect the flue walls against damage from the RUST that threatens constantly from the inside, not the outside as is often supposed. Besides these two big essential features, malleable construction and Vitreous Enamel Rust Protection, the MONARCH offers every convenience in finish and equipment which would have any real value in actual service. For example:—Micro Process Top—a polished finish of uniform blue-black color on all parts of the Top, requiring no stove backing. Smooth Nickel—no carving or ornamentation to collect grease and dust. Wellsville body—the highest grade of polished steel, needing no backing of paint.

Cash and Carry

ON taking possession of the Central Market August 10, I will adopt a strictly cash and carry plan, doing away with expensive bookkeeping and costly delivery.

We are all interested in reducing the cost of meats, and we know we can make liberal headway in that direction by the system proposed. The Central Market's enviable reputation for high qualities will be fully maintained, and cash and carry will enable us to make the market more attractive in price reductions, thus materially relieving the burdensome cost of living. The best meats from one of the most sanitary markets in the world, with prompt and courteous treatment to all, will be our constant aim.

Adds 308,000 Telephones. The Bell Telephone system has already added 308,000 telephones to its system in the United States this year, according to an announcement which has been furnished to all telephone subscribers with their August rental statements. This is a new high record.

In addition to this unusual gain in telephones, the announcement says, there are 20,000 unfilled orders for telephones that are held up by delay in getting materials and equipment.

The announcement states that the Bell system is a great network of toll lines, local exchange lines, switchboards, buildings and other telephone properties, which together affords telephony facilities for connecting over twelve million subscribers in the cities, towns and rural districts of the United States. This is nearly two-thirds the number of all the telephones in use in the entire world.

AGRICULTURE NOTES. Scientists' Aid Cuts Insurance

The average cotton-ginning plant in the south or southwest is insured for about $6,000. At the rate of $4.30 for each $100 the insurance premium amounts to $270. The high rate has been based on the number of fires caused by the accumulation of bales, especially in the working machinery. The bureau of chemistry of the United States—departments of agriculture comes to the aid of growers with a device for grounding the current, so effective that this year the insurance companies decreased the rates on protected plants twenty-five cents on each $100 insurance. There are approximately 40,000 ginning plants in the south, and the decrease averages $15 to each plant—a total saving of $600,000. If all the gins were insured. It is considered likely that next year will see a reduction still greater.

Somewhat similar grounding apparatus, together with special dust-collecting and dusting and winter department and installed on trashing machines to prevent grain-dust explosions and fire. This brought an insurance-rate reduction of twenty per cent with the probability of further decrease. This is an important item where disaster insurance rates run as high as $280 and $100 for each $1,000 of thrasher property.

Shows Labor Various Crops

The approximate amount of labor required to raise some of the more important crops has been determined by the office of farm management, United States department of agriculture. The results show that it requires the work of one man and one horse for a 10-hour day to cut, cure, and harvest an acre of hay. Oats, wheat, barley, rye, lucerne and millet require more labor; under normal conditions these grains require the labor of a man for two days and for a horse for one day. Corn for the silo in the central states consumes three days of man labor and 2 1/2 of horse work. To have an Kentucky uses thirty-five days of man labor against eight days for the farm horse, but onions, as determined through studies in Ohio, sold in bunches, top the list of vegetables in the amount of man labor they require. Onions use 149 days of man work, but only ten of horse work. Beets and carrots, also sold in bunches, come next, with eighty-two man-days to each acre and eight days horse labor.

It is interesting to note that a horse, in the eastern states, requires twelve ten-hour days per year from his master to care for him, and he contributes only three-quarters of one day to his own up-keep—hauling feed, etc. Dairy cows need eighteen days from the man and two from his horse each year.

These figures are given in Farmer's Bulletin 1139, to aid the farmer in an analysis of his business. They will be useful in assisting the farm operator to estimate his labor needs for the next season.

TB in Middle West Poultry Flocks. County agents in certain sections of the middle west report the finding of tuberculosis in some of the chicken flocks in their localities. In order to locate and check any further outbreaks of this disease they are requesting all farmers whose chickens die without any apparent cause to notify the farm bureau and to send the livers of the dead birds for examination. The disease is likely to show in this organ most plainly.

Tuberculosis of fowls is a chronic, contagious disease characterized by the development of nodules called tubercles in various organs of the body, but most frequently in the liver, spleen, and intestines. It is readily communicated to many species of birds and to several species of mammals, but it is almost impossible to communicate the tuberculosis of man and cattle to fowls.

One practical course to take when the disease is found in a flock is to kill off the whole flock as quickly as possible and to disinfect thoroughly all the houses and runs immediately, says the bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture. Unless disinfection is thorough the new flock is likely to contract the disease when placed in the infected houses and yards. When possible new birds should be placed on new ground. Another method of combating tuberculosis is to dispose of all hens after the second laying period and to destroy affected fowls as soon as symptoms appear.

The eggs of the diseased birds frequently contain the bacilli, experiments prove, and young chicks hatched from such infected eggs are diseased.

Fine Modern Home For Sale

As I have disposed of my business and expect to leave Wayne, I will sell my modern home, situated about half way between the High School and the State Normal.

This house has six rooms, pantry and bath, besides full basement, cemented. Closet out of each bedroom. Everything is modern and in excellent repair. The furnace is so adequate and works so perfectly that the house is easily warmed with use of a small amount of fuel. A large cistern insures ample soft water which is automatically carried into the kitchen and bathroom.

The ground is 75 by 150 feet with a fine lawn and garden with sufficient shade from stalwart maples.

This is an opportunity for anyone wishing a good modern home in Wayne. Let me show you.

Trend of Trade. Sioux City. Iowa. Factors both large and small, important and unimportant, entered into trade conditions of the last seven days. Among the large and important ones were the fuel situation, betterment of transportation, checking of credit indulgence by the federal reserve banks, readjustment of business to meet the railway wage increases, growing tendency on the part of the buying public to cut out extravagances and the optimistic outlook for normal crops. The small and unimportant factors include slight trends toward reduction in prices in some of the commodities which have been fluctuating for months, the uncertainty of fall trade and the possibility of short orders and cancellations.

The freight situation shows a slight improvement, not so much due to changed base conditions as to the improved handling of traffic and the gradual disappearance of the part of the lines to overcome the difficulty. The general acceptance of the wage award is reflected in the improved handling of traffic and the gradual disappearance of the part of the lines to overcome the difficulty. The general acceptance of the wage award is reflected in the improved handling of traffic and the gradual disappearance of the part of the lines to overcome the difficulty.

On the business side, the increased freight rates, which the interstate commerce commission has authorized will require a readjustment of prices in almost all commodities for the increase will be added to the cost and passed on to the consumer. The roads are still short of rolling stock sufficient to handle the traffic. They have been unable to borrow, except at high interest rates, and then only in limited quantities to remedy the rolling stock shortage needed. The government advance does not meet the requirements of the lines. The crop conditions are not optimistic. The government reports show a 10 per cent decline in July average for all grains from last year, though the yield is estimated at only 3.3 per cent less. The present estimate is that the grain crops will be about 1.4 per cent below the average five-year yield. The wheat crop, which is both of good and winter, while below that of last year, averages 1.6 per cent below the average for the five-year period prior to 1918. Oats, rice, and corn samples show an improvement over a year ago. On the whole, the total of food crops is about an average of 30 cents in the fall at wholesale, and will remain so except for unfavorable weather conditions.

 (From The New Nebraskan, July 29.)

Seven suggestions which might properly be called the "seven commandments" prescribed by A. C. Fowler, of township organization crew, in Nebraska as in North Dakota, give in resume the procedure that these teams are ordered to follow in soliciting funds from the farmers to promote the Nnpagatigan league and fighting its enemies. The "seven commandments" are from an original copy sent to a member of the league, and are as follows:

1. Get at least four influential league members in each car.
2. Only one man should talk at a time, but each should present some argument to the prospective league member.
3. When the member has been enrolled write his name on the crew statement. Fill all the blanks.
4. Get a book of checks from your local bank. Use the form checks provided by the league as little as possible.
5. Accept cash or cash checks in payment of memberships. Secure all the cash you can, but if it is impossible to secure cash accept post-dated checks due not later than October 1, 1920. Encourage every man to give you a cash check. Your enemies fight with cash—not with post-dated checks. Make all checks payable to the captain of your crew.
6. On a separate slip of paper write the names and addresses of all men who refuse to join the league, giving one reason for their refusal. This is very important and should not be neglected.
7. After the completion of your work, send all checks properly endorsed, together with your new report and list of names of all men who refused to join, to your county manager, who will issue and mail membership receipts to all members.

Daily Statement.
 Take your daily statement with you when a man joins the league or renews his membership, write his name on the statement and legibly in the appropriate blank spaces. Give his rural route, town, township and range. If he wants the German Leader make a notation in the blank spaces marked "Ger." If he pays cash or gives you a cash check write the amount "$1800" in the column entitled "Cash or checks." If he gives you a post-dated check write $1800 in the blank marked "P. D. Check" and in the date the check is due in the column marked "Date Due." If the man is an old member write "yes" in the space entitled "Old Member." If he is not an old member write "no" in the same blank space. Do not fail to fill all these blanks.

The guests departed at a late hour wishing Mr. Bressler many more birthdays.

Pine Nebraska Hereofers.

Sioux City Live Stock Record: J. M. Sherlock, of Emerson, Neb., sent in seven carloads of cattle this morning that was not only the biggest single consignment on the day's market, but in the lot were sixty-one big Hereford steers that were about the finest bunch of cattle seen here in months and that topped the market at $16.25, with twenty-four handy weights at $16.15.

"There is no money in the cattle feeding game this year," said Mr. Sherlock, "and the fellow who breaks even is doing well. The big cattle that I had averaged about 930 pounds when I put them in the feed lots on the 15th day of November, so that they show a gain of nearly 600 pounds during the feeding period. The 1,132 pound bunch averaged 670 when put in about February 1. They were prize winning cattle at the Stocker and Feeder show at Sioux City last fall, capturing second honors in their class."

Corn and alfalfa were the rations used by Mr. Sherlock in his feeding operations, and the good gains made by his offerings and the out-feeding quality speak well for his ability as a judge of feeding stock and a producer of the best animals.

Mr. Sherlock's twenty-one head of cattle this year and three or four loads of hogs.

In reference to the coming fall and winter feeding season, Mr. Sherlock stated that none of the feeders of that section had started buying stock as yet, waiting to see how the corn crop was doing this year and then to make their turn-out. "They will no doubt take on about the usual number, he thought, provided they can purchase the stock at less money than successful weeks prior to said day of hearing.

J. M. Cherry, County Judge (Seal)

What Is Villa's Plan?

Springfield, Mass., Republican: Anyone may guess why Villa has agreed to surrender with a simple promise of his freedom. Has he made a contract to appear in the movies? There must be more money in such an engagement than in banditry, and all the excitement to be desired in the "stunts" that would befall for.

Prohibition Not Endangered.

Mitchell Republican: Prohibition is safe, however much political candidates may conjure with the thirst of the thirsty ones. The body of sentiment which believes in prohibition is too impressively large. No astute office seeker will court engagement against it.

Flight As of Old.

Sioux Falls Argus-Leader: Those Greek soldiers surely know how to fight. The spirit of Leonidas seems to be in them.

Rearsome.

Washington Post: The Russian bear was fearful enough when led by the czars; but, let loose by the rudd, he's a grizzly terror.

Putting Two and Two Together.

Mitchell Republican: Wheat prices are crumbling. The farmers are getting ready to sell wheat.

B. W. Davis, farmer, Wayne, Mo., says: "I know Doan's Kidney Pills. I have used them for kidney ailments. I have felt a lameness through my back just over my kidneys. I noticed the trouble mostly when I caught cold, and it settled in my kidneys. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills helping others and was led to try them. It didn't take a full box of Doan's to relieve me. I have been bothered several times since but a few Doan's have always fixed me up again in a day or so."

Lalley Light and Power

Saves Labor-After Dark

Lalley Light is a complete unit—engine and generator—with 16-cell storage battery. It supplies ample electricity for lights, water pumps, washing machines, cream separator, fanmills, etc., etc.

Farmers must do certain chores before daylight and again after dark. They need every moment of daylight for productive work.

That is one of the reasons why Lalley Light is a farm economy. It not only saves labor after dark, but its brilliant light makes the work easier after the sun has gone down.

Abe Tumison, a man of 57, who has lived on his farm at Orleans, Neb., for 40 years, says Lalley Light beats all the farm improvements he has ever had.

With a light in the yard, he says "you can see a pall anywhere." He calls the yard light best of all; and says ten teams can hitch up at once and all have light.

"We don't mind working in the fields until night, and milking and doing all the chores after night," says Tom Chat-ham, of Harrodsburg, Ky., "for Lalley Light makes it as light as day in the barn and barn lot."

"We don't do the feeding and milking after dark now that we have Lalley Light," says Bob Langford, John Dry the same can hitch up at once and all have light. "We now do most of our chores after night, giving us a much longer day in the field."

Save—save—save. That is what Lalley Light does, from morning till night, before sun-up and after sundown. It saves labor. It saves time. It saves money. And it gives you an endless supply of sure, safe electric light and power. You need Lalley Light—and you need it now.

A. G. Grunemeyer, Wayne, Neb.

Lalley Light saves time, saves labor, saves money.

Titan 10-20 Kerosene Tractor

We have a number of the new, improved machines in stock. They are stronger than the old type with wider fenders, wider platforms and water air strainers.

Remember this when you buy a tractor—Harvest service is a reliable and very important thing you get "thrown in" when you buy the tractor named above. It safeguards your entire outfit—Power, Machine, Hitch! Later on, if you need a tractor part you will get it with the same dispatch and certainty of perfect fit that you have experienced in connection with your binders and mowers.

Titan 10-20 kerosene tractor is built to operate from start to finish on low-priced kerosene (cost 30) or distillate. It does more than simply run on kerosene—it delivers its full-rated horsepower or does any kind of work within its capacity on any kind-of oil fuel above 39 degrees Baume.

This means that at the present prices of gasoline and kerosene in this locality you will save fully one-half your fuel costs over a tractor of equal horse power operating on gasoline. Getting down to a dollars-and-cents basis, if a Titan 10-20 is used, you will be able to make a saving of $1,000 on fuel alone in five years of 1,000 hours' work each.

A Titan 10-20 will furnish dependable power in all seasons. For field, road or belt work it can be used day and night if the case demands. It will do this work at the least possible expense. It will give you an advantage to know the Titan 10-20. Come in and look it over. The best time is now.
