

PUBLIC SCHOOLS OPEN SEPTEMBER 6

Cops of Teachers to be Announced Soon, Consists of Specialists of High Merit.

WORK ON COURSE OF STUDY Departments Have Been Remodeled and Improved—New Apparatus Has Been Installed

City schools open in two weeks, and the work of securing teachers, remodeling the building, and providing the necessary new equipment is well under way. Wayne is fortunate this year in the strong teachers it has been able to secure and the good combinations of subjects in which these teachers have specialties to teach. This is especially true in the case of the manual training, domestic science, and English teachers. W. W. Cabree, Douglas, Neb., who will teach manual training and coach boys' athletics, has taught manual training and had charge of the manual training course here in Minneapolis, Minn., and Superior, Wis. He is particularly strong in athletics. Miss Elizabeth Kallenmeyer, graduate of the domestic science department of Wesleyan university, who has specialized in girls' gym work and basketball, will take charge of the girls' athletics. Miss Lydia Bigler who comes here from English, is a graduate of the university at Boulder, Colo. She has taught in the Canyon City and Denver schools and comes here with a commendation. Miss Bigler will have charge of the dramatic work and the coaching of plays, a duty which she well understands. Several changes have been made in the building and some new equipment has been purchased. The manual training course has been put in good shape and new tools have been procured. The typewriting room has been extended across the front of the large laboratory in order to make a large room for the typewriting classes. New apparatus has been installed in the gymnasium. The whole school building has been thoroughly overhauled and cleaned, and the floors varnished and waxed. During the summer, Superintendent R. A. Anderson has directed the course of study for the grades, and the new course of study, thoroughly revised and modernized, is now in operation. New geographies have shown the changes brought about as a result of the World War. A complete list of the teachers for next year will be announced soon.

NEIHARDT, LEADING POET Former Wayne Young Man Wins New Distinction in Letters.

The following report in Sunday's Omaha World-Herald will be read by John G. Neihardt who used to live here: "John G. Neihardt, famous Nebraska poet, has been awarded first prize for the best volume of poetry printed in 1919, by Poetry Society of America. The winning volume is 'The Song of Hugh Fairweather' and the prize is $500. The judges were Prof. John L. Lewis of Harvard university, Edwin Arlington Robinson and Alice Corbin Henderson. "The Song of Three Friends" is a volume following 'The Song of Hugh Fairweather' and is a masterpiece of the life and development of the west. The latter volume has been printed in archaic editions and the two books are said by many critics to rank with great literature that endures."

WAYNE HEARS MEN'S BAND Wakefield Musicians Visit Wayne and Give Concert.

A treat in the form of a band concert with vocal numbers was given to the people of Wayne Tuesday evening by the men's band of Wakefield. Citizens of Wayne feel that the concert which was a voluntary affair, was a most impressive and good feeling between the towns. Many citizens of Wakefield accompanied the band, and over thirty cars in all were over from Wakefield. C. S. Beebe and H. B. Ware of Wakefield's Commercial club were in charge of the entertainment. One of the special numbers was a song by six young women of Wakefield; another was a vocal solo by one of the vocal members. A large crowd attended and it was thought that the enthusiasm manifested might stimulate Wayne to one of the large towns. After the concert the Commercial club took the band and the others from Wakefield to the Gem Cafe for refreshments.

PLENTY OF CEMENT AND SAND FOR THE PAVING

Brick Will Begin to Arrive September 1—Rain Interferes.

In spite of rainy weather and difficulty in obtaining brick, Roy King, superintendent of the paving, says there is no doubt that all the concrete and sand will be ready for the bridge to the Wayne Motor company's garage will be finished this fall. Plenty of sand and gravel to finish the work are now in sight. Two and one-half cars of cement are on the track and word has been received that four more cars were shipped today. Ten cars of gravel are already here. Mr. King says there is little probability of getting cars of brick before September 1. In one of the large plants in Lincoln where twenty-five cars of brick were received they have been able to get only twenty-five cars during all the month, he says.

The soon as a brick arrives the laying will be started, first on the green concrete, according to Mr. King. His estimate is that the work will be completed by the end of the month. The laying of the curb is proceeding in a satisfactory manner. Most of the work of laying the first block between Second and Third streets was finished Wednesday. It would have been finished as far as the Wayne Motor company is concerned Saturday if the rain had not delayed operations; now it will probably take until Monday.

A ten-day stretch has been the longest dry spell in which the work could proceed uninterrupted. Operations have had to be suspended one or two days because of the amount of rain and outside of the difficulty in getting brick this is the only thing that has hampered the work.

COUNCIL HOLDS MEETING J. S. Horney Appointed Clerk to Succeed Geo. A. Lamberson.

Discussion of questions relating to paving occupied most of the time at the meeting of the city council which was held Monday evening. The street and alley committee proposed to employ men to put the sidewalk aprons down. Estimates for shipping sidewalk material were discussed. The appointment of J. S. Horney as city clerk to succeed Geo. A. Lamberson resigned was approved by the members.

DEMOCRATS MEET HERE C. A. Killian Elected Chairman of County Central Committee.

The democratic central committee met Saturday, August 14, at the county courthouse. C. A. Killian of Leslie presided. The secretary and treasurer will be appointed by Mr. Killian.

Prof. A. W. Teed and family arrived home the first of the week from the Bigley ravine near Ponca where they camped out for several days. While gone they saw a quantity of honey over the protest of a colony of bees. The bees gave them a worse stinging than they had ever had a long time, though Mr. Teed confesses that he has been frequently and severely stung in the course of living during the last few years.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Rogers arrived home last evening from Princeton, Mo., where they spent two weeks with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Weeces, who moved there from Wayne last spring. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers say that Mr. and Mrs. Weeces are well satisfied with their new home, but that the country is badly overstocked with hogs on account of lack of rain.

Mrs. Lucy Cole and Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson of Detroit, Mich., who had been visiting at the Miller home here, left Sunday afternoon for Portland, Ore., where they are moving. Mrs. Cole is a sister of Max Miller. She and her daughter had been here for several weeks and Mr. Wilson was here on a few days before they left.

Train service is such that the afternoon train leaves for Omaha of the state later news than any other paper. Omaha papers are compelled to go to press much earlier to catch these same trains.

It gives the Lincoln Morning Journal a natural advantage, which you can enjoy. This is doubly true on rural routes, which cannot be reached by evening papers until the next day. Many towns are served by the Evening Journal. You always have your choice of the Journal that serves you best. The Journal at its low price of $5 a year is the biggest newspaper bargain in Nebraska. It is a giant for the helm of our great ship of state in these turbulent times, and we must choose between two pygmies. The republicans in such a situation, are all to the good because they would win on just the inertia of their natural majority, unless there is some mighty influence to change its direction.

Choice of Pygmies.

Mitchell Republican: Now that we have heard the two acceptance speeches, we will be agreed that the two candidates for the presidency are exceedingly mediocre. We call for a giant for the helm of our great ship of state in these turbulent times, and we must choose between two pygmies. The republicans in such a situation, are all to the good because they would win on just the inertia of their natural majority, unless there is some mighty influence to change its direction.

A fire box that serves

If you burn wood or coals you want a long fire box; if coal a short one; and so it goes according to fuel.

The fire box in the Copper-Clad Malleable Range has been built to meet any of these requirements. Take out the fire plate "A" and you have added much to the length of the box. It will then take a long stick of wood or a quantity of coals. Put it back and you can burn coal.

Note the thickness of the fire-back next to the oven.

Vice Presidential Emphasis.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: If the test of being a good vice presidential candidate were in being a thorough and unobtrusive satellite, then Franklin D. Roosevelt, as demonstrated in his acceptance speech, should qualify excellently for the place. For what he has said contains no ring of leadership; no outline of general and mild assertions, on the whole, to which many men of either great party might agree without being deeply concerned as to what they were agreeing to. If Mr. Cox is elected president, Mr. Roosevelt will be our next leading officer of the senate. But the prospects of Mr. Cox's election on account of Mr. Roosevelt are, if possible, sadder than the prospects of his election on any other account.

Becoming Humility.

Kansas City Star: Franklin Roosevelt says he accepts the nomination for vice president with humbleness, which probably is the correct feeling for a candidate for vice president to have.

B. L. T. in the Chicago Tribune: Mexico City reports that Huerta has ruled that "all games of chance must be stopped." Except that Huerta exhibits game of chance, life in Mexico.

COUNTY INSTITUTE SOON

Teachers to Meet Week of August 30—Well Known Instructors.

The Wayne County Teachers' Institute will meet in Wayne at the high school building, August 30 to September 3, inclusive. All of the teachers are expected to attend the sessions. Six instructors and speakers have been secured to appear on the week's program. The program this year promises to excel in the choice of instructors and the variety of topics to be discussed.

Dean B. E. McProud of Nebraska Wesleyan University will handle the subjects of "Educational Measurements," "Project Methods," "Discipline" and "Democracy." He will devote two periods each day to the project method of teaching and its application in special subjects.

Miss Rosabelle Reintzer, also of Wesleyan, will be the instructor in primary work and will devote attention to primary methods in numbers, language, spelling, writing and industrial work.

Miss Elizabeth Teirney, who had charge of the penmanship and music last year, will conduct the music instruction this year. She has been attending Columbia University and will no doubt offer new methods and new ideas in her line.

Mrs. H. H. Antles, secretary of the Department of Public Welfare, will be in Wayne, one day during the week to speak to the teachers on the subject of child welfare.

I. N. Clark, state rural school inspector, will appear on the program one day. His subject is "Better Rural Schools."

Miss Bess Johnson of Sioux City, will instruct in methods of drawing the first three days. She will draw the points of study in the usual in the rural schools and also show the place of drawing in the town schools.

TAXES MORE THAN DOUBLE

Will Cunningham Relates Experience in North Dakota.

W. L. Cunningham who owns land in North Dakota, and who spends some time each year in that state looking after his interests, says taxes there have more than doubled since the Nonpartisan League program was adopted. He says taxes in the rural schools are also showing the place of drawing in the town schools.

Mr. Cunningham says the league is on the decline in North Dakota where the taxes are sharply drawn between those who favor it and those who are against it. League domination is the only issue, and he says the way people voted in the late primary and the way they talk now encourage the belief that a quietus will be put on the prevailing regime in November.

We note the singular fact that one man was killed during the past week outside of an automobile accident.

The third party is called the labor-farmer party. The combination will work like hitching-two in horses together and starting them in opposite directions.

Christensen - presidential nominee of the third party, is amusing himself and trying to attract attention by propounding foolish questions to the candidates of the two leading parties.

The plan of the Russian bolsheviks has leaked out. It is proposed to spread out and capture the entire world, according to advices from the inside. It is proposed to apply everywhere the rough-neck socialism now being applied in Russia. While this cannot be done, it is confession of intention, and would be done if possible. The late cancellation of the third party did not justify the plan, but it is a pity that it did praise Russian bolshevism.

We feel a kindly sympathy for Columbus, O. We feel we have something in common, Columbus was a municipal lighting plant; Wayne is ditto. The plant has become a great and constant burden to Columbus; Wayne is ditto. Columbus is reported to have lost approximately $55,000 during 1919 as a result of its municipal ownership. It is safe to say Wayne also lost on its lighting plant during the same period, but how much, we don't know, and we doubt if anyone else knows.

The long struggle to secure by amendment to the United States constitution the right of women vote has finally triumphed by the favorable action of the Tennessee legislature. Tennessee was the necessary thirty-sixth state.

The satisfaction "People well" remember the efforts put forth by Susan B. Anthony and others for equal suffrage, and how their task thirty years ago seemed impossible to accomplish. Through united effort, women were unable to secure a majority, we never could understand why they should not be given the equal privileges of the ballot. The argument against them did not really have a sound leg to stand on.

We are vitally interested in the welfare of farming communities as well as the towns in this district. We are controlled by no corporation or individual, rich or poor. We have no more and no less respect for a man because he is rich, and we don't think less of a man because he is not rich. We will advocate for town or country, no policy which we think is a mistake. We think non-partisan league with a train of socialism, promises harm rather than good, and therefore we are against it.

Allen and Ponca are beginning to hesitate with the spirit of contest over the county seat which the former proposes to wrest from the latter. Each town has employed a group of lawyers and the fight will soon be on in earnest. Allen has been quietly planning for a long time to grab the county seat of Dixon county, and Ponca will now arouse itself to make a determined defense. As between the ambitious towns in central Dixon county and the staid old town on the Missouri where sentiment in retrospect rather outweighs hope in prospect, the Herald feels impartial, and it will view the clash of battle without bias and without effort to interfere.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, tall of the democratic presidential kite, is certainly profound and convincing in his oratorical exhortations over public questions. He is now out on a speech-making tour. He says "food in this country is too high, and that we should know why food purchased from the farmer is sold to the city man two days later at trebled figures." Why doesn't it occur to Roosevelt to invite the democratic attorney general to answer his query and prod the democratic administration to correct some of the inequalities which he mentions? He says "wages have been raised but not too much." This is for the consumption of wage earners, only. What does he mean to say is that everything one has to sell is too low priced; everything one has to buy is too high priced. Profiteering through hoarding is rampant.

The "democratic" administration has failed to do these things, it will do them if given another chance. This is of course buncombe of a very apparent variety and will tend to strengthen the republican position. We would suggest to the democratic managers that they say less about Harding's front porch and at the same time retire to their back porch and keep him there until the campaign is over.

"The Luck of the Irish," a Screen Classic.

At the Crystal theatre this Thursday and Friday is an Allan Dwan production, "The Luck of the Irish." It is the adaptation of the book by the same name written by Harold MacGrath which had a wide circulation and was one of the "six best sellers." The story deals with the adventures of Irishman plunger William Grogan. He is a man of great physical strength, but good natured, playful, and with a keen sense of humor. He delights in watching the feet of passers-by from the basement window of his shop. He longs to know them. One particular pair of dainty feminine feet commands his special attention, and he watches for them. Grogan is sure that the owner must be a school teacher in a near-by school, because on Saturdays and Sundays and during the summer months, he misses the familiar steps.

Grogan inherits a fortune and starts out on a sight-seeing trip around the world. On board ship he meets the same feet and meets the owner. The kid who is with him recognizes her as his school-teacher and introduces Grogan to Miss Ruth Warren.

"Ruth Warren is making the trip to get away from Colburn, a millionaire and one of life's wasters. She jilted him when she learned of his insincerity. On board the steamship is Camden, Hubbard's jockey, who has instructions to follow the girl. After the first reel of the story will detach from the picture which is full of intrigue, romance, love, laughter and fights. "The Luck of the Irish" deserves to be called a Thriller.

James Kirkwood, the screen favorite, is seen at his best in the character of William Grogan. Annette Nilsen makes an adorable Ruth Warren. Her poise, grace, acting and personality put her in the front rank of screen stars. Ward Crane as Norton Colburn and Harry Northrup as Camden make an excellent team of villains. Ernest Bottrich as the Kid is a great laugh producer.

"The Luck of the Irish" is a great screen play of extraordinary merit and is a sure-fire entertainer.

Basket Store News

Do You Remember

Just 18 months ago when the Basket Store began a Cash Business? Of course you do! Many thought at the time that little would ever become of the apparently new idea—but today proves that the Cash and Carry System by far surpasses the old-fashioned, expensive credit methods. The proof lies in the fact that the Basket Store has been able to accomplish many things which under the old methods would have been utterly impossible. This store today raises the claim that it has sold more groceries to people in and outside of Wayne within the last 12 months than any store in this section of the country. If we were not a success we could not make such a claim and be willing to stand back of it. Our increase in volume of business has been the creation of a new factor in our store, namely:

Our Wholesale Department

We had found that many people did not wish to pay the same prices for goods which they bought in quantities as they did when they bought only one or two packages of the goods. The same is true with us. With quantity buying we expected a quantity price. The urgent demand for better prices brought about the establishment of our Wholesale Department. With this new department we are now better able to meet and compete with the Order Competition. If you are thinking of sending to some Mail Order House for a list of groceries we only ask you to treat us as we wish to treat you—Fair and Square. We ask you merely to make out your list, then come in and compare our prices with those in your catalogue. In quality goods we will meet all Mail Order Competition. Just give us a trial and see if you cannot save just as much and maybe more money by buying from the Basket Store Wholesale Department instead of sending to some Mail Order House.

Attention! Thoroughbred Stockmen

BUY OR TRADE for a fine quarter section farm adjoining the city of Wayne. This farm is exceptionally well located and well improved, most of the buildings being nearly new. It is an all-around good stock and grain farm and is an ideal location for someone wanting to engage in the thoroughbred stock business; and at the same time enjoy the advantages of the city, such as schools, churches, electric lights, etc.

Owner wishes to leave the farm and it is too good a place to rent out, so he has decided to sell for cash or very easy terms, or will consider an exchange for cheaper land but wants something good and in Wayne county if possible, something that he can rent out to advantage.

UNCLE WALT

THE POET PHILOSOPHER

WOE IN THE WEST.

A deadly blight is sweeping along the Western Slope, and men give way to weeping, and fear-frenzied to hate. And heartsick wives and daughters beneath those azure skies look upon the waters with hard and stony eyes. The children, they are wailing, their little bosoms sore while in the dust they're trailing the toys they use no more. There's moaning in the cabin, there's groaning in the hall, the future's bleak and drab in the eyes of one and all. The daughters of affliction are crouched beneath the stars, and in the choicest diction they cause their stranded cars. The tourist shakes his hat at heaven with a snort, for when he'd buy a gallon he only gets a quart. In vain the glitzy is waving his wad of good long green, and futile is his raving—he can't get gasoline. "No gas!" The sign is hanging from caissons everywhere, with travelers haranguing the dealers in despair. Talk not of grief or sorrow, of troubles you have seen, till you can't buy or borrow a quart of gasoline! Talk not of fortunes the cruel, oh, vain and phony man in you can't buy five feet or push your leg aside! Speak not to me of anguish, of pain of any sort, until you wait and languish two days to get a quart!

EVIL TIMES.

Oh, these are crucial times my friends; each day presents its warning; and every time the night descends we think there'll be no morning. Our statesmen rag us from the stump, until they're in a lather, and we're going to the dump, where all the how-wows gather. Our sacred rights are trodden flat, our bulwarks badly shaken, and if we don't do this or that we're bound to lose our bacon. It is the boggy gray and old, of Presidential seasons, the wrath that makes our feet grow cold, and undermines our reasons. At other times we do not think of chaos. An our hurry; our bulwarks may be on the blink, but we don't pause to worry. The country seems to slide along, and nothing yet has wrecked it and if its works are badly wrong we simply don't detect it. And then we put up candidates to top the White House honor, and these potential magistrates must the land's a-goner. If a'other fellow wins the prize, becomes the agition's master, then we'll confront, with startled eyes, a kind of black spider. Once in four years we get this scare when candidates assemble; we walk the edges of despair and bring our hands and hearts to tremble!

JIM THE PENMAN.

The greatest forger of his day, of international renown, the other morning took his way, all footsore, to his native town. There were no greater human sharks in all the recesses of the past; he skinned unnumbered easy marks, and cleaned up millions, first and last. And now we see him sadly bend, to seek the town where he was born, without a buck, without a friend, all in, world-beaten and forlorn. "Why, yes," the Village Fathers cried, "there is a haven for you here; the poor-house doors are open, wide—rest there. O wretch of yesterday." There Jim the Penman found a stall, nor will he leave those doors again, and there he sits, against the wall, and thinks of all that might have been. And to the poorhouse or the jail, nearly all the kings of crime, whose crooked plans for reaping kale use up the efforts of their prize. The man who early earns his money by industry, can't smile—the hoodoo dollar is the one that's gained by trickery and guile.

HOMESICK.

Jack Johnsing, of the golden smile, remained abroad for quite a while. And when he left our western shore he thought he would return no more, for prison doors were swinging wide, with warders beckoning inside. He'd lead a good free life abroad, and pain and blow a princely wad, and chum with foreign cars and dukes and baronets, and other flukes. He stood the gain for eight long years, still gaining homeward through his tears; at last he rose and cried, "Oh, gee my native land looks good to me! These foreign countries all grow stale—I'd rather be at home in jail!" Said Emma Goldman, when she went, "Your boasted land's not worth a cent; I shake its dust from off my boots; it's ruled by grafters and by plagues; in Russia they've the more place founded on the rights of man." She's had some months of Russia now, and grief is thrown upon her brow. She, like a dead game snort, admits that she is tired of Russia's fits, and she would give her roller skates to see again the good old States. Unhappy is that weary night who to this country says, "Good night," who sees the lights upon our shore, and knows he'll see them never more.

EVERGREEN.

You'd say I'm in the yellow leaf, if you should count my years; but I don't travel much with grief or stosh around in tears, and so I work a gorgeous bluff that's based on seventy-four per cent prosperity. I'm young enough for anything on earth. I have all kinds of pea-green pains along my legs and back; but when a lot of jakes and javes are calling at my shack, on maladies I waste no words. I don't discourse of woes; I talk of hams and hummingbirds, and cheerful things like those. A man is old when he begins to talk of ailments dire, to sigh all day and toast his shins before a fitful fire. A man grows old when he is prone to boost the yanked time, to view the present with a groan, and swear it is a crime. If I should live eight hundred years, composing helpful rhymes, as Noah and such prophets hung on in ancient times, I'd still be young as I am now, though old and decrepit, with heavy furrows on my brow, and whiskers to my waist. For when I see what old men do, I do the other thing: their vain repining I eschew, and whoop around and sing.

GOVERNMENT.

Wise government can do a lot to brighten up our days; wise government will lift our spirits, and cheer our ways. And still we'll have to buckle down and save our share of oak; if we'd have credit in the town and not be always broke. Good government will help us all, if we should help ourselves, and we'll have pictures on the wall, and ties upon the shelves, and a goodly store of gold, and when we earn a shining bone, its ours, to have and hold. And we're protected in our car, and in our bed, at rest; good government will go that far, when it is, at its best. But it won't take the place of toil, by which the product we receive; it will not hook the weedy soil, or keep the corn alive. I don't depend on man-made laws to help me dodge life's ills; the smoothest law that ever was won't pay my monthly bills. The noblest statute in the book won't keep the wolf away, or buy a sack of spuds to cook, if I loaf round all day. I leave my shack at morning, bent on hours of useful toil; I don't depend on government to make the kettle boil.

BATTLES WITH CAT FISH Encounters Fish and Birds of Prey on Trip Down Mississippi.

Washington, Mo. August 15, 1920.

Dear Mr. Hulse:

Here we are in Washington City, Mo., on the fifteenth day of our vacation. It is going to keep us bustling to make the full distance in the allotted time. The river has gone on a strike down here, slowed up on its run and left us to do most of the paddling. It is like a man who undertakes too much and gets no where. It spreads its wings and forgets it is going to a destination at all. Sometimes however the wooded hills come down on both sides and put into operation the squeeze play and then it gets up and darts. When the current goes strong we just sit still and let it go. This is my favorite way of going.

We have had some very thrilling experiences on the trip through Missouri. Yesterday Francis was attacked by a big channel cat fish which kind is very vicious. He managed to come out unscathed. Francis did—and the only thing to show for the battle is a scar or two on the paddle. That is maybe the heaviest paddle was caused by the fish.

A little farther down the river a mighty bird of prey—a barn swallow—few straight at us, but having a couple of Catling guns and ammunition a calm front, the rabbit monster was foiled and we got safely by.

We are looking forward with a great deal of expectation and nervous anticipation to meeting the bill frogs and man eating mosquitoes of the lower reaches of the continent. There is no paradise without some flaw and no garden without a weed and our little floating paradise, our little marine garden has its own flaws and weeds. We would be perfectly happy if Francis Jones would not persist in wiping the dishes on his socks, and using all the cold cream, vasoline and Men-min's Borated talcum powder on the end of his sun-burned nose. That nose of his is a wonder—it is a trail post painted red by day, and a pillar of fire by night. But we need all the help to navigation we can get.

J. W. BEARD.

Water Power and Conservation.

If there be any water power, coal, or other mineral resources in Nebraska, and if the people can keep control of it, nearly all of us are agreed that none of these things should pass into the hands of private monopolies. The argument of the private monopolist is something like this: There is no water power or mineral resource belonging to the state worth bothering with, therefore give the expensive, undesirable thing to us. Let private capital develop it.

This has been the argument by which this country has alienated and wasted a very great portion of our natural wealth. The result is that now we pay high tribute in various ways to our coal barons and lumber kings. There are interests in the state and in other states that are ready to appropriate such sources of Nebraska in the same way unless the people are alert. And according to our best authorities, Nebraska has a great wealth of water for irrigation and for power purposes. Some say there are a hundred thousand horse power. Our experience during the recent war taught us that we had great water power. There are other mineral resources just beginning to be appreciated.

The recent constitutional convention provided that the salt springs, coal, oil, mineral, or other natural resources on or contained in the land belonging to the state shall never be alienated, but provision may be made by law for the leasing and developments of the same.

It also provides that "the use of the waters of the state for power purposes shall be deemed a public use, and shall never be alienated but may be leased or otherwise developed as may be provided by law." Another provision fixes the priority of uses of water for domestic, agricultural and power purposes. The people should not be deluded by any of the arguments pointed out already as fallacious nor be frightened by the bogey of "big game" and "big game" which the state waterpower enterprises. Development can be by districts, or even by private capital, but must ever be under the control of the state. The people should make it a point to vote for these provisions on September 21.

J. G. W. LEWIS.

Small Town Rules.
Omaha, Neb. The small town rules America because, instead of being a place of hotels, restaurants and amusements, it's a place for "worrying" where you walk home to lunch from their offices and mow their own front lawns and weed the backyard garden and bid their neighbors across either fence the time of day; where they not only live today but remember yesterday a plan for tomorrow where families and communities retain, cherish and transmit traditions, cherish and transmit traditions. There beats the heart of America.

Speaks Against League

Former President William Howard Taft Hits the New Cult.

New Nebraskan: Speaking in Helena, Mont., the other day, William Howard Taft, former president of the United States, expressed the belief that in certain sections of the country the Nonpartisan League was something of a factor in the fall elections. He characterized the league as a plague, such as sweeps over the country occasionally. To the people of Helena, he said: "A year ago when I spoke under the auspices of the League to Enforce Peace, I went to Minnesota and while there I gave an interview to a newspaper reporter in which I stated that the Nonpartisan leaguers are just populists raised to the ninth degree and in ten years they will so destroy the credit of North Dakota or any other commonwealth where they gain a foothold, that their name will be an anathema for years to come," said Mr. Taft in Missouri.

I told the Minneapolis people then that the leaguers were taking a course likely to bankrupt the state, that even though the Nonpartisan leaguers might have just grievances that no remedy existed in the law, they were trying to put into practice.

Shortly afterward I was taken to task for my remarks by a representative of the league, and asked if I had made such a statement. I admitted that I had. And now I want to reiterate it and correct every word of what I said a year ago.

Of course the league will be a factor in Minnesota, in North Dakota, possibly in Nebraska and South Dakota, perhaps Montana, and maybe in Washington. In North Dakota it is actually losing ground because it has had a trial, a test, and has failed. But in Minnesota the league is winning with the radical laborites and the socialists, especially in Minneapolis and St. Paul, and with the wonderful primary laws you have in these parts the Nonpartisan leaguers, were prominently and help select the candidate of every party and thus break up the solidarity of the party and make it difficult for regular republicans to be nominated. And regular republicans simply will not vote for republicans who are nominated by the Nonpartisan League even though they appear on what purports to be and actually is the republican ticket.

"The Nonpartisan League is the kind of a plague which sweeps over the country semi-occasionally. The singular thing but a happy omen nevertheless about these cults which spring up and then blow away is that the participants give their leaders a very great deal of power. The result is that the leaders, intoxicated with the new powers, know just how to handle them in order to get greater powers.

"Tadac was surely the medicine I needed, for it has not only relieved me of all my sufferings but has built up my whole system." -Mrs. Annrose H. Haskewitz, 1627 South Second street, West Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

"I had suffered from stomach trouble for four years. My appetite was very poor and I had indigestion so bad I could seldom retain a thing on my stomach and there was a bad taste in my mouth all the time. After eating there was a feeling like lead in my stomach, and if I ate anything it felt like hard to digest. I had terrible cramping pains, would bloat up dreadfully with gas, have severe headaches, and such awful spells I just had to sit down until they passed off.

"I had but little strength or energy left, and my nerves were so badly upset that my sleep was broken. I could not get the rest I needed.

"After reading several statements about Tadac, I decided to try it myself, and after finishing my first bottle the results are really astonishing. My appetite has returned and I can eat just anything I want without suffering a particle afterwards.

"I no longer have headaches or dizzy spells and I sleep like a child all night. In fact, I am a well man in every respect and owe it all to Tadac."

Tadac is sold in Wayne a191

And "There Ye Arre"
Sioux Falls Argus-Leader: Several large tanneries in the country have closed-down because unsoft leather is piling up. Other tanneries are working at half time. The tanners declare that the best grades of leather can be bought as cheap as several years ago, while the shoe manufacturers tell us that shoe prices must continue high because leather is high and scarce. And as Dooley says, there ye arre.

Unpledged.

Sioux Falls Argus-Leader: President Wilson and Gov Cox have not had the time to tell us just when it was that the people of the United States pledged themselves to go into the league of nations. They never have, and the present prospect is that they never will.

Perils of Pacifism—Kansas City Star: If Senator Kirby is defeated in Arkansas, as seems probable, public office holders will begin to class pacifism among the dangerous occupations.

The Speeches Will Keep. Bernaford Republican: We wonder how many people are actually reading all of those able-public specimens being made these days by the candidates for the higher offices of the nation. Facts are the temptation to live lightly, think lightly and keep cool are too great for the average man to give the heavy matters attention during the warm weather. There is the call of the wild, the living close to nature, the fisherman's story and the swimming pool. And we are not going to criticize either. A little more of the living in the open and less of believing that the future of the nation rests upon our shoulders will increase the number of the days of our sojourn on earth.

Minneapolis Journal: These are the times when one should, where opportunity actually offers, speak a kind word for the landlady.
