Saves the Wife's Strength

In a dozen ways, Lalley Electric Light and Power save time and labor and strength for the farm wife.

With a Lalley in the basement, for example, the days of carrying water are over. For Lalley supplies the power to pump water to the kitchen, the wash house, the dairy—anywhere.

Lalley Light and Power save time and labor and strength for the farm wife. Lalley saves women the heavy work every day of the week—washing, ironing, sweeping, scrubbing, cooking, churning. As there are no lamps to be filled or trimmed many tireless hours a day are saved.

But let Lalley owners themselves tell you the story. They are much better qualified than we are.

Health and Fresh Air.

Springfield Republican: It has always been rather disconcerting to hygienists in their propaganda for fresh air to have it pointed out that many healthy people get on with very little of it. There is still room here for the old-fashioned distrust of "night air" survives, yet where the people seem sufficiently robust and rather given to dying of it.

It is well known also that sailors after exposure on deck in bad weather are affected in a snug fo'c'sle where the air, thickened with tobacco smoke, afflicts a landsman. A sailor, it is true, may be presumed to get enough sea air while on deck to carry him through the twenty-four hours, but recent experiments in British coal mines have brought out the curious fact that miners also require less fresh air than the outsider who lacks the vigorous physical training which the miner's work gives.

The habituating conditions of the rather tentatively being drawn is that by exercise the body acquires the ability to get what oxygen it needs from a small quantity of air worse air than would suffice for a person who is not in good training. The untanned person gained confidence in his strength and endurance by inhaling oxygen, while experienced miners were affected little or not at all because they were able to get directly from the air all the oxygen they needed.

These new facts, the physiological explanation of which may not at once be forthcoming, help to account for the good health of miners under abnormal conditions which nobody would choose on hygienic grounds. They may explain, too, why some hard-working people appear to get no harm from sitting with shut windows or from sitting in stuffy, crowded rooms. It is not clear that fresh air is not a good thing or that its importance ought not to be sedulously urged. But they do indicate that in this, as in many other matters, nature has a wonderful power of adjustment to circumstances. Hygienically the bad, such as foul air, is often compensated by the good, such as a vigorous exercise.

(Instructions given writers years ago to every reporter and writer on the Marion, Ohio, Star.)

Remember there are two sides to every question. Get them both. Be truthful. Get the facts. Mistakes are inevitable, but strive for accuracy. I would rather have one story exactly right than a hundred half wrong.

Be decent, be fair, be generous. Boast—don't knock. There's good in everybody. Bring out the good in everybody and never needlessly hurt the feelings of anybody.

In reporting a political gathering give the facts, tell the story as it is not as you would like to have it. Treat all parties alike.

If there's any politics to be played don't play it in our editorial columns.

Treat all religious matter reverently.

If it can possibly be avoided never bring invidious to an innocent man or child in telling of the misdeeds or misfortunes of a relative.

Don't wait to be asked, but do it without asking, and, above all, be clean and never let a dirty word or suggestive story get into type.

I want this paper so conducted that it can go into any home without destroying the innocence of any child.

HOSPITALITY IS DANGEROUS

Arrest Follows Invitation to "Have Something"—Other News.

Too much hospitality is sometimes a dangerous thing. An invitation to look over his "place" and have a "little something" with Philip McArchie gave to state agent R. J. Hart of Morrill county led to his arrest and the discovery of his still. Soon after Agent Hart arrested John Hartling of Bridgeport on the same charge.

Two human skeletons, apparently those of a man and a woman, were discovered on the bank of Omaha creek last week on the Jacobsen farm three miles south of Homer. A member of the family who was fixing fences noticed some bones, and digging disclosed the skeletons. No signs of coffins were discovered and it is thought the bodies might have buried the bodies. The recent high waters washed away the bank and disclosed the bones.

A body found floating in the river at Sioux City two weeks ago was identified as that of Henry Merstein, known as "Cool Oil Johnny," a traveling salesman for oil and kerosene-barrels. Infant mortality heads the death rate list in Sioux City according to latest statistics compiled by W. D. Hayes, city dairy and food inspector and member of the board of health. One-hundred twenty-nine infants under 1 year of age died in 1914 and 1916 while forty-three from 1 to 6 years of age died in 1914. The record for 1918 will be practically the same. The second highest death rate is found among people between 10 and 14 years of age.

The Hesprick pool hall at Hadar was robbed of about $600 worth of goods two weeks ago. Robbers entered by force open a window at the back of the hall and took almost everything the place contained. The Oldest Established Paper in Wayne County.

The Wayne county fair will show up a lot of resources people will review and appreciate.

The news editor of the Omaha World-Herald is the object of a general distention. Robbers entered his home and stole $2,000 worth of oriental rugs, besides a lot of jewelry and clothing. We would like to know how an editor happens to have that much stuff to tempt burglars.

Every well regulated town has a few people who get a few fact-checked and inapplicable ideas into their heads when they deem vital to current political issues, and then bore anybody who will listen. No town would be considered normal and complete without them.

The bumps and hollows in the automobile business have made the business of selling automobiles brings unusually brisk. Spring leaves leak out as the churning goes on and finally not enough are left to support the load. Dealers have had to carry extra stocks of springs, and have found the demand sufficient to justify the supply. When the paving has been finished, the cost of automobile upkeep will be materially reduced. It will be a glad day in Wayne.

The statement has been made by a local lawyer that the best land costs thirty-two cents an acre for $1 per acre on land under crops. A Wayne county farmer says he has sold under the Nebraska law, 100 acres at a rate of forty-two cents an acre for $45 an acre. It cost the Wayne county farmer $42 for insurance of $1,500 on 100 acres. According to the Nonpartisan League boat, the same insurance of $1,500 on 100 acres in North Dakota would cost about $20.

A proposition is to be submitted to a referendum at the November election to raise the more direct primary relating to the nomination of lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state treasurer, auditor and county accounts, attorney general, commissioner of public lands and buildings and members of the Nebraska railway commission. It is figured that it would be more practicable and less expensive to nominate the officers mentioned in some other way. It is interesting to note that the Nebraska Nonpartisan League, attorney for the Nebraska Nonpartisan League, submits, in the course of a pamphlet treating the proposed change, an agreement in holding the present plan of nominating candidates. Mr. Sorenson's warm espousal of the present plan is entirely contrary to the League's policy to use the machinery of either party to name candidates.

We have just received copy of speech delivered by Senator Reed Smoot last February, showing up the extravagance of government expenditures in the use of print paper. He said from July 1, 1916, until September 15, 1919, a total of 30,144,362 speeches had been printed at government expense and distributed over the United States in order of executive departments and other independent establishments of the government. He says in the United States railway administration alone 3,065,000 speeches were printed and mailed. He charges the department with wasting acres and tons of print paper in that way, and causing a great and useless burden of expense in printing, mailing and distributing. He says that the printing and free use of the mails are often made to gratify selfish political ambitions, frequently yielding nothing to the public and encroaching on the rapidly diminishing paper supply of the country. This gigantic abuse of privilege

CAMPAIGN FUNDS.
Charges of excessive campaign funds have been filling the air in the closing of the national campaign and both of the old parties have been busy the last week wrestling with the subject. This causes the Omaha Bee to make this editorial observation: "The other day some paper whose name we forget spoke of Governor Wallace as a millionaire of four or five million dollars. Since then the New York Tribune has mentioned him as a millionaire, and the Wall Street Journal as a multi-millionaire, quite familiar with Wall Street. "He is the first millionaire in the history of the country to be nominated for the presidency, and as astounding thing about it is that the democratic party, which has damned plutocrats for a generation as necessary enemies of the common people, should have been looked by him. "For Jim Cox, whose fingers are yellow with the gold of Big Business, to go about saying nice things of other excessively rich men is certain, by a joke on the "poor man's party," as they used to call the democracy, it is as funny as Cox's hypocritical horror over a mythical eight-million-dollar republican campaign after the statement of the New York World that the plans of the democratic flyers to raise a campaign fund of 10,000,000. Can it be that it has all happened because the people are not loving in the democratic party this year?"

Just So Long.
Anamosa Eureka: As long as people buy $2,000, $3,000 and $6,000 automobiles, they will buy the kind of fellows drawing $8, $10 and $12 or more dollars a day—as long as they buy 28-cent gasoline to burn up in their cars, and as long as they are maintained at costs of thousands of dollars—just so long will there be conditions not snoring with what people can use and the antiquity under the reign of Old Dobbin.

He says the parties who sent for him, promising a contract for 100,000 brick, crave-fished when he got there and would not contract for 1,000. They would, however, very graciously allow him the privilege of making brick at that town if he wanted to—which he didn't.

Last Week Mr. Mikessell showed us a mammoth egg which had been laid by one of his hens. The short end circumference was seven and one-half inches; its longest circumference, nine and one-fourth inches; weight, six and one-fourth ounces. It was nearly double the size of the brace egg discovered in Sioux City a few days ago, and indeed was the largest specimen of the hen's egg which there is any record. On breaking open the other shell, a yolk was found and also another egg of large size in a shell on it. Don't you forget it, sonny. Dixon county beats the world on eggs and babies.

Breeding in Hen Counts

Devores, Journal-Stockman.—Seven pullets won in the first Nebraska national egg laying contest, conducted by the college of agriculture, have this 200-egg record each since November 1 and are thereby retained the standard recently set for recognition in the official record of performance. Nearly two and a half months still remain before the end of the first contest and it is expected that quite a number of birds entered in the contest will qualify for official recognition before the end of that time.

Thirteen states and provinces in the United States are now conducting laying contests under official supervision. Representatives of these contests have organized a registry council, one function of which is the determination of a standard which will entitle birds to recognition in the record of performance. A production of 200 eggs for the pullet-laying year and 180 eggs for the second laying year has been agreed on as a standard.

Essential to success in the laying contest is to encourage the breeding of better laying strains of poultry. Plenty of evidence is now available to show that breeding has a great influence over egg production, according to Prof. F. E. Mussel, head of the college of agriculture, poultry department and in charge of the Nebraska contest. Nearly all the pullets in one entry in the first Nebraska laying contest had already attained records near the 200-egg mark, while some others in the same house and having the same care were below the 100-egg mark.

Breeding programs form an important part of the egg-laying contest work, contestants being encouraged to use their better laying hens as determined by the contest, to mate with pure bred cockerels with high laying ancestry. It is the belief of Professor Mussel that egg production can be doubled by proper breeding and feeding. Farm flocks are now averaging about 65 eggs per hen a year. This ought to be 125; eggs, poultry specialists say.

As evidence of what can be accomplished with farm flocks, Professor Mussel cites the case of S. C. Bassett of Gibbon, Neb. On an estate of 160-acre farm, Mr. Bassett's poultry and egg sales amounted to one-seventh of the gross sales of all farm products last year. He has 150 Brown Leghorns here. During the first seven months of this year they laid a total of 49,000 eggs, which were sold at from 31 cents to 48 cents a dozen, bringing a total of $475.44. The hens run at large on the farm. They receive grain raised on the farm—corn, barley, oats and a part of the separated milk from two cows. During the summer they act as scavengers or gleaners about the farm.

Breeding in Infancy.
The indications are that Mr. Bassett's hens will go considerably over the 125-egg possibility for farm flocks. Several of the hens may even go over the 200-egg mark. They averaged more than 100 eggs for the first seven months of the year.

Poultry breeding work is still in its infancy in Nebraska. Professor Mussel said much of the stock sent to the national egg laying contest the first year was rather immature and not in the summer they received more of the entries are not making the showing they should. The contest as a whole, however, has established a keen interest in poultry keeping and much better birds are expected for the second contest. To assist poultry keepers in the selection of good layers, Professor Mussel has written a circular for free distribution called "How to Select Good Layers."

Entries are now being received for the second egg laying contest. Thirty-five poultry raisers having entries in the first contest have already entered. Professor Mussel has a $1 bird to help cover the cost of keeping records is charged. All birds are transported and monthly reports prepared of the results.

The "Z" Lives a Long and Useful Life

"Z" Engine endurance is proverbial—it's a lifetime engine. That's because every part liable to wear is case hardened. Push rod rollers—valve stems and cams—contact parts through-out—are made immensely hard by heat treating.

The "Z" has an extra large crankshaft. Not one has ever broken. All "Z" bearings are die cast and removable. Every "Z" part so carefully made that it is absolutely interchangeable. A triple lubrication—positive, well-balanced, correct mechanical design—help make the "Z" the "lifetime" farm engine. On the job—dependable—powerful—strong.

Other "Z" features are: Runs on kerosene coal oil, kerosene, as well as gasoline; built-in Bosch high tension oscillating magnetos; more than rated power; every part interchangeable; clean-cut, efficient design.

the specklers who rush their cars along with terrors dire they fill us, they make us weak and pale, they try to ruin or kill us, and grumble when they fail. The specklers are scenes of danger, where speed laws won't stay put and heaven help the stranger who tries to cross on foot. Some reckless, head-on driver will promptly climb his frame, and will not care a stiver how many more he'll maim. Oh, every night, I wonder, when I retire to bed, that I'm not torn asunder, that I still have my head. For all the day I'm dodging death cars, pushing back fuses, and when I reach my lodgings the sweat drips down in pools. I count my legs and knuckles, my shoulders and my hair, my garters and my buckles, to see if I'm all there; and if there's nothing busted I feel that I'm in luck. For I've been chased, disgusted, by auto, ford and truck. It's surely time to punish with more than poetry—fines, those reckless guys and

Song and Success

When I'm not toiling at my lyre, producing thrilling waves of sound, I'm busy as a house fly, in my small plot of garden ground. When I've turned out an anthem sweet, designed to soothe men's troubled souls, I sputter the dirt around a beet, and teach my beans to grow on poles. A bard may chant an ode or two, may write, perchance, some morning serenade, but to his day he's out of luck if he neglects to pull the weeds. For what this country needs just now, when everything is kerfummled stands, is not the product of the brow—it is the product of the hands.

Too many bask on beds of ease, and write or sing or paint or play, when they should be hoeing and weeding and pluck the fragrant blade of hay. If I were young, I'd soak my lyre, and quill this idle craft of song, and in the furrow I'd perspire, or whack an elm the whole day long. But I am old and full of lard, and when I've worked an hour or three, the nightingale leads me to the bird's nest, and I eat a cedar tree. And so I foot the poet's horn, but when I've earned a sawbuck better, I strive to grow an ear of corn, a carrot or a lima bean.

The Mortgage.

I had a mortgage, years ago, on my pretentious home, and Worry and its brother, Woe, were camped upon my dome. I couldn't keep a smile on my "straining" but unfortunate lips; I tasted Mortgage when I ate, and dreamed it when I slept. It spoiled for me the Sabbath day, when I set in my pew; the choir, in singing, seemed to say, "When mort-gages are due,"—it cast its shadow on my door, and like a seven crackle, it took the roof from every chore, and spoiled the weed I smoked. They took away my House of Pride, by means of writ and sick; and next then it's been occupied by one who's rich. And he is welcome to it all, stone steps and tufted floor, he's welcome to the stately hall and varnished cellar door. I have a cabin of my own in which I chirp all day, and do not owe a single bone to any human jay. No mortgage flaps against the pane when winds are blowing keen; no mortgage makes me pause again when I'd buy gasoline. Oh, how good it is, and how glad, and one, no man a red, than vainly try to be a swell, with mortgage over-erbed.

UNCLE WALT THE POET PHILOSOPHER

The Bathing Beach.

I view the heaving ocean, that sight of sailors' graves, and have no English notion of splashing in its waves. For men in bathing garments, when they are old or fat, are silly looking varmints, there is no doubt of that. The kammer for a winner when it is nearly drest, when all around one's dinner there is an ample vest; when pants have tailored creases, and coats are trim and neat, men loom up to their noses as something cute and sweet. But—no more a dandy, when from his garments free, on scrawny legs and bony, he lumbers to the sea. I see fine men and stately go by my punk abode, and I admire their neatly and dress them in and out. They linen's nicely laundered, their duds inspire the muse, and money they have squandered for forming their shoes. I say: Their sons and daughters must view such duds with pride; and then, into the waters, I see the fire men slide. They splash among the billows with idiotic glee, and look like cheap gorillous escaped from some museum. I watch fat men, denuded, go, frisking in the sea, and my old tub, cracked, is good enough for me.

Travellers.

We act as though we planned to stay on earth for countless years, but soon we'll have to move away to some uncharted sphere. At the while we charge around, and put up ice and grass, then to the village planting ground in solemn state we pass. And there fill time as dogs, we'll wait, and no emotions heed, so what's the good of all our hate, our envy and our greed? The evil thought corrupts the mind and turns the blood to bile; so let our thoughts be always kind—we're here so short a while! Bad passions spoil this world of ours and make the spirit sick; far better deck a foe with flowers than soak him with a brick. If there's a neighbor you detest, and whom you'd gladly slay, admit forgiveness to your breast, and send him a bouquet. All bitterness is a mistake; try kindness instead; for any morning you may wake to find that you are dead. Each evening when I go to rest, I spring a prayerful spite for those whom I've been traduced, who for me hatred feel. I would hate to die tonight and in the silence start across the darkness, to the light, with malice in my heart.

Red Years.

It is a strange and savage time; there is a carnival of crime, that never stops or rests; the slayer to his victim wends, and voters kill their lady friends and ship them off in chests. Assassinations fill the land; we find dead gents on every hand, they clutter up the news, and peelers and detective toil, and vainly burn the midnight oil to thrash out stacks of clues. Here where Pacific billows rear three murdered guys were washed ashore within two weeks or one; and inland other chaps were slain, and no one offered to explain just why the deeds were done. These beastly crimes we all abhor are but the outcome of the war; the years of deadly strife, where men who fought for flag or king, soon felt that nature's cleansing thing is still called human life. For years we talked of doom and death—and every time we drew a breath it seemed to taste of gore; we read of dead men piled in ricks and all the blame upon the deceased; freighted corpses o'er. The peoples all have learned to slay, and now, if some one's in their way, they see that some one dies; oh, may we see the times again when gents won't swat their fellowmen, as they would swat the flies!

GRAIN SHIPPERS' FEEL

Lincoln, Sept. 1.—Large grain shippers in Nebraska are protesting to the state railway commission against a rule adopted and put into force by the Omaha grain exchange, which virtually sets aside the commission's freight rate order allowing 25 per cent increase within the state, and compels them to stand for a 35 per cent increase.

The commission of North Platte complains of the new rule and sends to the commission a letter asking for a decrease in the value and beauty of the same.

This deduction is made on the theory that all grain shipped out of Omaha is ultimately destined to Chicago or some other market beyond, and in order to get the customary interstate haul, the Omaha buyers and commission men must hold out enough when remitting to their customers to cover the 25 per cent increase on that portion of the total haul which lies within this state.

Shippers in country stations are up in arms over the new rule. They say that the cost of shipping out of grain, which is sent to Chicago, goes no further and is either consumed there in feeding livestock or milled into flour for local consumption.

It is absurd, they say, to assume that all grain shipments are interstate in character.

Whether the grain firms at Omaha are violating the commission's order is a question that it is beyond the authority of the commission to decide.

BEAVERS DO MUCH MISCHIEF

Property Owners in the Adirondacks Are Anxious Over the Situation They Have Created.

Because the limited intelligence of the beaver goes no further than its own immediate purpose, owners of property in the Adirondacks are wishing that the beaver was less industrious and seriously wondering what is to be done to stop the increasing amount of timber destruction.

It is estimated that the beaver is doing $200,000 worth of mischief in the Adirondacks each year. The damage is done by cutting down trees and by damming up streams.

LIGHTS BY FITS AND STARTS Acted So Intermittently, Crystal Had to Suspend for Night.

The electricity was nearly out of commission for a time Saturday night when one of the sauciness connecting the motive anatomy at the power plant got to slipping, due to defective footing. In other words, a certain necessary foundation had cracked, loosening a certain belt, which wouldn't pull the unusually heavy load. The Crystal had to give up in the middle of a picture. The heroine in the picture was left in an awful plight, and members of the audience were left in the dark as to how she managed to escape.

Regarding the County Seat Removal in Dixon County.

There appeared in the issues of August 26, of a number of the papers of Dixon county, an advertisement purporting to advance arguments regarding re-locating the county seat to where it would be more centrally located and more convenient for the majority of the citizens of this county.

Finding no arguments against advertisement, the article drifts to other subjects, like an imaginary $300,000 court-house and the county building, and a $200,000 court-house. This imaginary $300,000 court-house would certainly be a magnificent structure, when it is considered that there was erected in Allen last year, a thoroughly modern fire-proof, three-story school building, 70 by 110 feet, constructed of the best brick and concrete, trimmed in Redford stone, for the contract price of $55,000.00, which is amply spacious and slightly enough to meet the requirements of a court house. This imaginary $300,000 court-house has evidently emanated from the

All Asbestos Sweats

This Sweat is a Great Enemy to the Life of Ranges. It Causes Them to Rust Out From the Inside.

The Copper-Clad, of all the ranges made, is the one range that successfully combats the sweat-rust caused by the sweating asbestos. This is accomplished by placing pure sheet copper between the sweaty asbestos and the outer body.

Asbestos is necessary to the construction of all good ranges. Without it the heat would pass from the range quickly, as it does from a sheet iron heating stove. It would be necessary to shovel fuel at all times and regulation of cooking and baking heat would be impossible.

Thus it would be folly to try and do away with asbestos in constructing a range.

In the Copper-Clad the sweat of the asbestos lays against the pure sheet copper lining and copper does not rust. In this way the weakest point of all other ranges is made the strong point of the Copper-Clad.

The Copper-Clad Patents cover "any rust-proof material placed between the asbestos and outer casing or range body."

You will find this feature in no other range. Come in and let us explain. We will show you how the asbestos sweats.

BUICK

POWER, sturdiness and dependability have been qualities of Buick Valve-in-Head Motor Cars from the time that the name Buick first became linked with the automobile industry. Today, in equal measure as in the past, the Buick Motor Company is dedicated to a continuance of the policy that has caused the Buick car to occupy the position it holds in the public mind:

To all that the name Buick has meant in twenty years of automobile history, the new Nineteen Twenty One Buick brings that grace of movement, that refinement of every line and feature, that sheer beauty of design which inspire a pride of ownership in a fine motor car.

The new Buick line comprises seven models, one for every possible demand. Each has the famed Buick Valve-in-Head Motor, as rugged and powerful as ever, yet refined into a mechanism of unusual quietness.

The improved radiator hood and cow lines give a finished touch of trimness to the body, yet without any sacrifice of Buick individuality.

A more resilient spring suspension gives these new Buick models a riding comfort as delightful as their exterior appearance is pleasing.

Each of these seven models has its own value particularly adapted to a distinct class of service. All possess those inherent Buick qualities that assure the owner the uninterrupted use of his investment.

PICNIC SCORES A SUCCESS

Good Program and Weather Bring Crowd to Winside Thursday.

The Old Settlers' picnic and American Legion Athletic carnival Thursday at Winside was attended by a large crowd. The first attraction was a parade made up of beautifully decorated cars and floats. The following people won prizes for the best decorated cars: John Loebach and son, first prize; Paul Koplins, second prize; Farmers State Bank, third prize. The following floats were awarded prizes: American Legion, first prize; Britne & Co., second prize; Schneider & Rhudy, third prize.

In the afternoon a speech was given by Judge Bryant of Hardington, and a baseball game was played by the Winside and Carroll teams. The score was five to six in favor of Carroll.

A wrestling match between Pat McGill of Winside, and Jess Queen of Omaha, was another feature of the entertainment. McGill gained the first fall in 13 minutes and the second in 8 minutes.

The boxing match was called off because a substitute was sent in place of the boxer who had been asked.

A couple of tree attractions afforded much interest and the Justin-Romain dramatic company which was there for the week, gave a couple of plays during the day.

The day was ended by a dance attended by a large crowd, Johnson's orchestra of Fremont furnishing the music.

The Dollar's Value.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: An unidentified magazine writer makes a good point which is worth carrying still further to advantage. He wants America to get rid of the dangerous and half-baked idea that a dollar is only worth a half or a third of what it was. His philosophy is to remember that it is only the spent dollar that has lost this part of its purchasing power and that the saved dollar is just as valuable as ever it was. Nothing can be lost in assuming that the dollar is worth as much as the sumption continues that the time is coming when the price level will descend approximately to normal. That it ever will return to the plane of ten years ago is open to serious doubt, but what is certain and beyond all doubt is that the saved dollar has the same debt-paying power as of old. It may not buy as much in the store, but when it comes to paying a note or lifting a mortgage it will go as far as in the cheapest period in our history.

Would Expose the Men.

Chicago News: Voting schools for women are being formed, but it is fervently hoped that men will be employed as teachers, otherwise women will soon know more about voting than do men.

MORGAN RIVALS FIRST MAN

Wayne Man Near Championship in Golf at Kearney Tournament.

F. S. Morgan arrived home Saturday morning from Kearney where, according to news reports, he proved a popular and successful golfer as his local friends would expect. The Kearney Hub of August 28 makes these references to Mr. Morgan's expert playing in the closing events of the tournament: Kearney's first annual golf tournament came to a close at a few minutes before six on Friday evening, marking the conclusion of the final rounds in Class A for the tournament championship between F. Morgan of Wayne, and Harry Tollefsen of Kearney, which was won by Tollefsen with two up and one to go after playing the seventeenth hole. The match was a beautiful exhibition of golfing with a number of sensational plays by each of the rivals.

At the end of the first round Morgan was two up, and halved on holes one, four and five. The spectacular play of this round was Tollefsen's birdie on the eighth hole. On the second round or "coming in" Tollefsen took the first hole 5 to 7, and Morgan number two with 4 to 5. Tollefsen was on the third green in two and holed in five. Morgan got two bad lies on the edge of the lake from which he could not recover. Tollefsen again took number four, the "water hole," thus tying the score on the thirteenth hole. Number five was halved with still a tie on the fourteenth. Then something unusual happened when Tollefsen reached the "Killian" green in one, and holed from the ditch on the west side of the green in two. Morgan could not outdo that feat, which gave Tollefsen a lead again of one. Each holed in the seventh in three with sensational putts. Morgan's charge on the next hole on the eighth, the hole going to Tollefsen 5 to 6. The score was now Tollefsen two up and one to go.

The game was then played in an intensely interesting even from a professional standpoint. Both are "home town" players of an exceptional type. Morgan made many friends during the tournament and deserved them all, and shared in the compliments that were bestowed upon his successful competitor.

One of the popular visitors was Frank Morgan of Wayne, an all around athlete, always right at the top in tennis and golf, and having a state reputation. He is a business man and a good one, who believes that the man who is to take care of a business and a family properly must first see that he has a good mind surmounting a fit body.

August End Trade Dull.

Sioux City Journal: The pre-September season, which generally brings a certain amount of activity in trade in anticipation of the early fall stimulus, is lacking at this time. Trade remains irregular and uncertain in developments. Industry has fallen into a general quiet which, while not yet making itself felt in reduction of employment, may develop into that if there are no rallying forces found within the next few weeks. Retail trade is hectic. Special sales for stock reduction purposes are widespread. Prices in these sales are considerably below those quoted when the goods were on the regular sales counters. The special sales lines, first confined almost entirely to apparel have gradually increased until a score of lines are advertised with cut prices.

The optimistic feature of the last week, though it concerns either trade or industry only indirectly, is the decided improvement in transportation. The freight congestion is being cleared up. Traffic is moving with more celerity. More cars are available for shippers as a result of the application of transportation experience to the handling of cars. The roads are meeting the demands for coal in a satisfactory manner and stocks for winter consumption are rapidly accumulating in the northwest, while eastern sections are being provided with sufficient supplies to meet the consumption requirements with a gradual gain over the former reserve deficit.

No change of material significance is found in the cost of living. The government theory that the large crops would force down prices to the consumer is not materializing. In a few commodities, such as potatoes, prices are lower than they were last spring, but the general price level to the consumer is not reduced sufficiently to have any effect on the household budget. Until lower prices are reached on food supplies there will be little relief from the price inflation from which the country is suffering.

Further reduction of speculative interest in the banks and higher discount rates by the federal reserve banks might force stocks now carried by speculators on borrowed capital into the market and thus drive down prices. But there is no assurance of such a course being brought about through the banks, though loans for nonessential business are being more restricted every week.

Exchange rates have gone lower, due largely to the increase in foreign buying of cotton and grain. Railroad securities are stronger than they have been for some time. This improvement is the result of the betterment of railroad operations and the relief from freight congestions and also to the better feeling prevailing among railway employees since the labor board wage award under the provisions of the Cummins law.

Listen, good friends, and you shall hear why some Cigarettes are so all-fired dear

SOME cigarettes are packed in pretty boxes that certainly don't grow on trees. Next, they're dolled up—and flavorings are sure getting expensive. And then, they're priced a bit high so they'll seem "exclusive." But read how Spur Cigarettes offer the highest possible quality at the lowest possible price:

If there are any finer tobaccos from the Orient and the good old U. S. A. than those selected for Spurs, they must be a secret that the world has never heard. And when we got these combined in Spur Cigarettes, what do you suppose was the result? Just the best taste and aroma that any cigarette could give, and Willie Doll-up or Freddie Flavoring hadn't a thing to do with it.

Spur is "class" all throughout—even to the smart "brown-and-silver" package, triple-wrapped, that keeps Spurs fresh and fragrant. Try out a package of Spurs. You'll say "made and priced for popularity."
