

COUNCIL TO EMPLOY ROHRBAUGH FOR 1921

Miner Passes to Allow Present Engineering Co. to Continue Construction Work Next Year.

CITY IS FOR MORE PAVING

A motion to continue the Rohrbach Engineering company as the city's engineers for such construction work as will be undertaken for the year 1921 at the same terms as this year was passed unanimously at the regular meeting of the council Tuesday evening.

Both Engineer E. M. Rohrbach and his partner J. C. Reynolds were present at the council meeting. Speaking of the pavement work Mr. Rohrbach advised the council members that the paving work early in the year had been completed. "I am glad to see that the paving work is being done so early," he said.

"If I took charge of the work Mr. Rohrbach said he should get the plans out once and be able to get the contracts out to let in December."

"I am glad to see that the members of the council if they believed the citizens of Wayne were in favor of continuing the paving work next year. Most of the council members are of the people of the city with only a few exceptions were in favor of such work."

"The material would be, if anything, higher, but that labor would be cheaper next year was the opinion of Mr. Rohrbach."

"I am glad to see," said his opinion concerning paving material to be used next year he said he disliked to give an opinion at this time since he thought the present material was the best which could be used.

Of the bituminous pavements he said one of the best was sheet asphalt pavement with the Barry bituminous cement would be $1.00 a yard less than brick. This pavement would last for seven years without repairs if put in according to Mr. Rohrbach's plan.

In speaking of the way in which he had directed the paving work this year Mr. Rohrbach said that every effort had been made to save money. Every bit of cement which had been made, he said had been done and an expert and an inspector of the work where the bricks were being laid, tested each carload to see that only proper material was used.

"I would like to continue the paving work at the same price and on the same basis that he had been doing the year before," he said. He took the work next year he told the council that his partner, J. C. Reynolds, would be in the city all the time next year.

"Reynolds has been with me five years and I know what he can do," said Mr. Rohrbach.

"I am glad to hear Mr. Rohrbach on behalf of the council that the latter had given very efficient and very careful service."

"The council and city committee was asked to meet with Mr. Rohrbach next year's paving and to make arrangements for the same. Another matter relating to future paving that was brought up was the width of the streets. Mr. Rohrbach said he would like to get the pavement too wide. He said that thirty feet was a nice width and that on some city streets a twenty-five foot width would be found satisfactory."

"The delay of the Katz Construction company to begin work on the new ditch was a disappointment to the council. Mr. Rohrbach said he had talked to J. B. Katz who has returned from the city and is now in the city. Mr. Rohrbach said he would like to get the ditch open as early as possible."

Charles Thompson who is digging a part of the ditch under contract with the city, said he would like to get the ditch open as early as possible. On being asked by the council if he would be willing to undertake the work of digging the new ditch, he said he would like to do it and would be willing to start the other work if he was instructed to do so.

City Attorney F. S. Berry who had already notified J. B. Katz and his bond company that the council was going to begin the ditch work, was not present at this meeting and it was decided not to send further notifications to Mr. Katz until the ditch work is started.

"The council will probably hold a special meeting the first of next week to make arrangements for beginning the ditch digging work," said Mr. Rohrbach.

"The construction company has not started the work by that time. The carload of brick was shipped to the Wayne October 13 and was to be shipped last Friday according to work received by Mr. Rohrbach. He thinks it will be impossible to finish the paving this year since the

TAKES HIS OWN LIFE IN GARAGE AT WISNER

H. B. Zook, Formerly of Laurel, S. D., and Mrs. O. G. Randall were called to Wisner last Thursday by word that the latter's brother, H. B. Zook, who had been absent for a year, had taken his own life. Mr. Zook was aged 49 years, and had lived twenty-three years in the vicinity of Laurel before going to Wisner where he was employed in a grocery. The funeral and interment took place at Laurel Sunday. He leaves a wife, but no children.

Last week's Wisner Chronicle gives the following account of his death: "Yesterday morning H. B. Zook was found dead in the C. A. Andersen garage. He had fastened the rope of an iron rod overhead with standing upon the rod and had hanged himself from it. He had left home in the east part of town at about five o'clock, which was the last seen of him alive. He telephoned home about five minutes before his asking him to come to his home. Upon going to the home Mrs. Zook was surprised at the sight of her husband and nothing of the order for him to make the visit. The body was discovered at about seven o'clock, after life was lost."

"Mr. Zook and family moved here from Dixon last spring, having bought a home in Wisner. He had sold his farm near Dixon and bought other farms, and it is thought that complications which arose in connection with these deeds had caused his worry over his financial matters."

"The part of the time for the paving work was laid Tuesday forenoon. To be exact, that part of the job was completed at 9 o'clock. Four miles of streets have been covered with cement and are now ready for the brick."

"The report that twenty-five cars of brick had been shipped a few weeks ago seems to have been incorrect. The Herald is informed that one car was shipped from Illinois October 7 with prospect that others will follow shortly. It is now ready to keep working here."

"It is estimated that 250 cars of brick will be required for this job. One gang can lay 1,000 square yards of brick per day. Two gangs may be employed, and in that event over a million bricks will be laid."

"The cushion and, which 100 cars will be needed, has begun to arrive. It is believed that at least the business district will be covered with brick yet this fall."

ed. readers. "Neihardt—Man and Poet": Not only locally, but in many corners of the world that title will awaken immediate interest. In London the discriminating were asking "Who is this man?" before American readers had ventured into the new voice was making itself heard, that the prairies had produced a singer of lyrics who had no peer. Dr. House and the publishers are both to be congratulated—the author because he has proven that a prophet is not always without honor in his own country, and the publishers for their foresight and power of appreciation.

In Dr. House's choice of a title there is a suggestion that this is something more than the usual biographical statement and literary criticism. It is, indeed, a sacred statement which the author more fully announces in his introduction. Careless readers omit the introductions to books. One always loses in so doing, for usually the introduction is either a warning or a source of illumination. Sometimes it is a forbidding vestibule, or indicative of the narrowness and continuous writing that one instinctively retreats. Again it is a welcoming hall, warmly colored, conveying intimations of treasures to be obtained from the far places and built into a beautiful unity, and one can not quickly enough divest himself of his impediments and enter to be conducted upon a delightful tour of the premises. In the preface one learns, too, by reading between the lines something of the author himself and his outlook upon life. One must beware of the dramatist who sees the landscape through too small a window. Here we have an author whose first page gives us the feeling of space and air. With what an easy touch he indicates the limitations laid upon the human spirit by a mistaken but dominant philosophy! With his knowledge of the movement of society from the individualistic to the social ideal, from the aristocratic to the democratic conception of political organization, he characterizes, in a line or two apiece, the great writers of the late eighteenth and the nineteenth centuries, "Byronic always deifying custom and exalting ego; Shelley, the philosophical anarchist."

These may be said to lead disposed to differ with these and other statements. It will shock some to find Browning described as "sentimental and impractical" and Tennyson as "groping" in puzzled bewilderment under the rule of an omnipotent and loving God. He does not mention Keats, or Matthew Arnold, nor Swinburne who so offended the orthodox religionists still in the majority, in spite of the considerable crop of aesthetes produced while the materialistic Darwinian-Spencerian philosophy prevailed. Swinburne's frank treatment of the evolution of the idea of God, so often misunderstood, as well as his marvellous facility for temporarily becoming for the moment the mentality he wishes to convey, resulting in such purely pagan attitudes as that of his hymns to Apollo, or prayer to Persephone, naturally are his own, and not shared by all but that small group who can enjoy a piece of work well done, and reverence the creator of such tremendous rhythms, whether he happens to express the ideas which they are accustomed to approve or not. We must assume that the names mentioned merely came to the mind of the writer as typical, and he wished to make no attempt to compare the work of other philosophical-English poets. Otherwise, as you have heard also the name of Emerson and that of his great though unconventional contemporary, Whitman.

Whether you like what he says or not, Dr. House nearly always forces you to think, and I commend you to the enjoyment of his preface, from which I venture to quote: "This study was undertaken with the purpose of finding out how a man achieved distinction in one form or another. To learn this it was necessary to discover the influences, social, economic and literary that have touched the life of the subject, and his reactions thereto. Thus we are able to discern his philosophy, and the means by which his personality developed and by which his workmanship took its direction and to place some tentative estimate upon his work." These you are. Observe that this is not an effort to convince us that John Neihardt ranks above most of the contemporary writers of verse. Nor is this to be the usual objective biographical narration and academic literary criticism. No, this is a sociological study that at once (if one may be allowed a paradox), scientific and philosophical. Dr. Veblen, in his study of the "Leisure Class" remarks that "Men differ in respect of transmitted aptitudes, or in respect of the relative facility with which they unfold their life activity in particular directions; and the habits which coincide with or proceed upon a relatively strong facility of expression or relatively great facility of expression, some of great consequence to a man's well-being." Dr. House has selected a genius and his best friend for study and proves himself a true sociologist by referring to him in his first paragraph as a "subject." (May one be permitted to smile?) He has been influenced in his choice, no doubt, by his conviction that this particular man differs so remarkably from others in both "strong specific aptitudes and relatively great facility of expression," that the unfolding of his genius is of even greater consequence to society than the well being of the (Continued From Six)

Lessman Manure Loader

Serves Economy

Are You Going to Market Your Oats at 45c per bushel?

Why not clean up the feed lot and make nine times as much?

Every load of manure you haul out is worth $8 to $12 per load each year for at least five years.

Which at the end of five years paid the most for your one day's labor?

DID YOU EVER STOP TO FIGURE?

Using the following figures at present prices:

Oct. 1, 1920, hauled two loads of oats, 100 bushels at 45c	$ 45.00
Oct. 1 hauled fifty loads of manure at $8.00 per load	400.00
Continuing this one day's work for a period of five years as follows:
Ten loads of oats at the rate of two each year	450.00
250 loads of manure at the rate of fifty loads each day	$2000.00
Making a difference of	$1550.00

If every farmer would figure profits he would be hauling manure instead of oats. It being impossible to load this amount by hand, the Lessman Loader and your Fordson will load all the manure you have and many other things, such as loading dirt or gravel, making this machine pay more dividends than even your grain harvester.

We are prepared to deliver you one of these loaders on short notice and it will do all we claim in our folders.

Do not fail to see this Lessman Loader attachment on exhibit at the Wayne Motor Company.

It is helpful in the good feeling, friendliness and co-operation it creates.

There is value for you in the telephone smile in the knowledge that by your cordiality you win the higher regard of friends and associates. In the fact that it makes the day run smoother for you and for others.

UNCLE WALT THE POET PHILOSOPHER

The Rattlesnake

We were champed beside a lake, by a sculpin tree; someone hooted: "There's a snake! It's a rattlesnake! cheer!" Then we dropped our divers chairs in the twinkling of an eye; sane and useful tasks are hors when a rattlesnake is near. And we formed a ring around, round the tumbling race's foe, and our fingers clawed the ground for some holdovers you might throw. And we threw, with bated breath, at five feet of writhing silk; battle, murder, sudden death—done up in mottled skin! Rocks were flying, bits and fast, some threw crooked, others straight; and the serpent to the last, dared us with a deathless hate. He is Ishmael's snake, with his rattles on his back, when playing tunes, can wake terrors in the bravest mind. Harried to the barren lands, driven from the field and farm, even snakes of other brands view the rattler with alarm. He has not a friend at court, where snake advocates appear, but he is a dead game sport, and a stranger to all fear. And I felt a sense of shame when he killed that mottled thing; we had played a tricker game, throwing boulders in a ring, and the rattlesnake makes like your pains slide down my neck; even when we're killing snakes sportsmanship should be on deck.

The Fat Sufferer

The fat man sickens and like the chickens his tortured system feels; he has the glanders and yellow jaundice and gout in both his heels. When convalescent, his voice seepsent in the gutter, the scale of ailments he has to bear, he racks his body and make his hearers pale. He'd gain by spelling his blood clean, feeling pain still by the weight; but none will listen, no teachers glisten on sympathetic cheek. And when he pauses, for any causes, he hears some some-lacke, his yearn seems yellow, for he's a fellow who weighs two hundred pounds. He may have excess from docs and nurses to prove disease there; it doesn't matter, the man is fatter than sick folk ought to be. We grin and sipper when he would whimper his doleful sickbed tales; we mock his figure and snort and snigger and say he's full of prunes. If he were slender, with pity tender we'd mix our tears with his; we'd hear him twitter "of" or "at" or "under," and sigh, and "Go 'whiter!" But he is fatter than any hatter or plumber in the town; so when he'll battle and wily-gabble, we promptly turn him down.

Evened Up

With Fate unfair, I used to quarrel, because my fair was flimsy rags. My neighbor, Horn, had brown ringslets, that might adorn the brow of kinglets. I envied him his tresses shining, and life seemed grim, and I was pining. The years have sped as years should glide, and Horn's head looks like a saddle. And I have lain to feed the chickens; to Horn's despair it grows and thickens. I envied him when, as a youngling, I see in his glint see such envy kindle; oh, how he'd prize my hair all bonneted. I envied Mott his uncurled rishes, when I was hot from toil in ditches. All "Jealous-eyed" was I, until so weary to see him ride in gorgeous sarray, while I chensed hogs through prickly hedges, or whacked up logs with rusty wedges. But now he eats things unrefined, by pits and mashes he'd soon be bested. The doc dolos out his daily vittles; a Brussels sprouts, he slowly whitens, and feeds to Mott the sickly shavings, which make Mott not add states his ravings. Is his life sweet, or sad and string? And I can eat what I'm desiring. Van eyes-women, who the limit fit; of all bad dreams it is the limit.

Useful Bill

I watched Old Wilhelm as he wrought, and knocked the stately hat from his head, when I saw some of thought the sweat of honest effort rolled. Of old this Wilhelm seemed no good, when he was hooded by a crowd, yet now he whacks up cords of wood—you can not keep a good man down. There is no nobler goal than his, now cost him what he will to get; I watch him make his buckaw-whizz, and cry, "Old Bills our one best bet." When he is ruler of a realm he earned no high and rich reward such as he earns while saving aim and pulling down six bits a cord; now, when he goes to roost at night, he has no crown and no scepter, but the record of his day is white, and Wilhelm is our one best bet. If we'll all do as Wilhelm does, and ply our buckles in the sun, but that in our bellies buzz would find their futile errands done. We ply the saw and stress "jaw" until his hinges crack and rattle when we should wield the trenchant saw and pile up ricks of helpful oak.

Peril

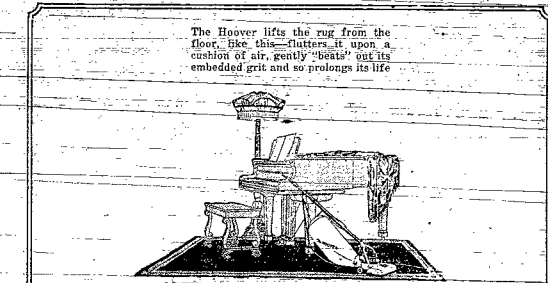

I fear to cross the village street, where all the auto wind and mix, for I am shaky on my feet, and can't do acrobatic tricks. I want this street, just for luck, to dodge across to Johnny's store, and I got tangled with a crowd of men and boys, and may be more. By my mother's way, I'm badly hurt, I cannot ramble near of far, but some one climbs me with a Ford, or spels my person with a Tribune for the best display of sweet potatoes at the fair. James Britton was appointed member of the republican central committee for this district—the tenth—by the state convention. Rev. G. H. Schuur will preach his farewell sermon at the Lutheran church Sunday morning at which time he will give a history of the church during his connection with it. C. D. Martin has declined the nomination for county surveyor tendered him by the democratic convention; the republican nomination of the efficient surveyor has been submitted.

W. C. Manter

W. C. Manter brought several reports of feeding steers from Chicago Tuesday which he claims are the finest in the country. He expects to make export cattle of them by a few weeks' feeding. S. W. Smith & Son's weekly price: No. 1 Salt, per bushel, $1.85; No. 1 butter, per pound, 10c; eggs, per dozen, 40c; potatoes, per bushel, 25c; corn, per bushel, 15c; beans, per pound, 14c; flour, per 100 pounds, $2.25 to $3.00. The last recession of the season since last evening, Dr. Crane Gridg informs us that forty-eight economists came over the river and divided themselves about equally between Pender, Hartington, Colver, Wayne and the country west. A. S. Mangold, who has been in Wayne for some time superintending the erection of the mill, left yesterday morning for Omaha, his assignment completed. During his stay here Mr. Mangold made many friends who regret his departure. His ability to fill the position he has with Strang & Co. is shown by his excellent work on the Wayne mill.

From Ponca Journal, October 10, 1878:

The coal company have now, as we learn, about 2,600 acres of land. Mr. Lewis will commence work in a few days. The prospects seem most favorable. A fight scrimmage occurred in this town one day this week in which one man smote another on the snout. This would hardly be worth mentioning were it not for the fact that fights are now almost unknown in town. We merely refer to this one incident to fill up the columns of our valuable paper. The beautiful valleys of Dixon county are receiving a large number of settlers this fall. Every municipality of the food substantial citizens of eastern states arrive. It looks as though the population of the county would double within a year hence. From Nov. to four o'clock Friday morning of last week, a wonderful display of meteors lit up the heavens. Three quite large meteoric fireballs were seen and some thirty or forty smaller ones were seen, their course being from east to west.

The Hoover lifts the rug from the floor like this—then, it uses a cushion of air, gently "beats" out its embedded dirt and so prolongs its life.

For years, in the finest mansions of two continents, the Hoover has been prolonging the beauty of the costliest rug that has been woven. It constantly has beaten out all the harmful embedded dirt, swept up all the stubborn filth, brushed through the velvety nap, revived the rich colorings and suction cleaned the surfaces. Only the Hoover does all this. And it is the largest-selling electric cleaner in the world.

You may have a Hoover placed permanently in your home for a nominal sum, and its purchase arranged on convenient terms. You may also have it demonstrated for you at any time, either in your home or in our store.

Foundation of Prosperity.
 It is said that the housewife realize that the coming winter will be a hard one. This realization will not split neck firewood. What all the children of men need first to know is that all the prosperity on this planet is dug out of the earth and fished out of the sea. Where digging and fishing cease, the planet becomes an inhospitable globe, in winter and summer, and the evening and the morning are the same day.
