Mill Will Shut Off Heat.
Wisner Chronicle: The Wisner Milling company has notified the patrons of its heating plant that the underground system of mains is in such a condition as to render it impracticable to supply heat in the future. This system of heating a number of buildings on main street has been in service eight years, which is said to be the limit for such plants. The exhaust steam from the boilers of the power plant at the mill has been used, and for a number of years has been very satisfactory, but the latter winter's have been giving the company a great deal of trouble.

The notice of an abandonment of the service has caused a rustle on the part of the patrons of the system for heat—stoves—individual heating plants. Steam plants are to be installed in Citizens National Bank and The Chronicle buildings as soon as possible.

APED-NAVY DEFEAT U-BOATS' touch with the problems to be solved.

"Listening Device." Because the German submarine menace, this invention claimed most of the attention of the board. To solve this problem Mr. Edison devised his traditional twenty-hour working days, and after overcoming many obstacles finally perfected his listening device. This contrivance was in the form of an outrigger suspended from the bow of a vessel and containing an immense phonograph diaphragm. By means of compensators, the noise which the vessel's engines was "heard" through the toughest seas.

With this device boats moving 1,700 yards away could be readily heard while the vessel was going full speed. A submarine bell five and one-half miles away could also be heard while a big storm was in progress and the boat still proceeding at full speed.

Mr. Edison followed this invention with a device for the quick turning of a vessel whenever the detector indicated that a torpedo was coming in the vessel's direction. He did this by means of strong contact canvas

Two horns at a fixed angle to one another, conveyed the sound to opposite sides of the same diaphragm and swung the horn system, both in horizontal and vertical planes, until there was no movement of the diaphragm, because the sounds conveyed by both horns were of equal value and therefore neutralized one another.

It was found very difficult to get zero readings, but with some tracing on the part of the observer the direction could be determined with considerable accuracy.

Having learned that telephone systems on ships were not very reliable, Mr. Edison devised one that was. He discarded microphones and substituted the receiving phone for a transmitter. The signals being weak he amplified with an audion, which made the signals so loud as to be painful to the ear.

Mr. Edison also invented an extension ladder which could be attached to the top of the mast and give an observer a location of the vessel above the top of the mast. This device increased the area of observation.

$100,000 Damage. The storm on November 1 did $100,000 damage to the property of the Bell Telephone company in this territory. The area affected was worst in the vicinity of Sioux Falls, S. D., extending from Belle Fourche to Canton and from Sioux Falls, S. D. to the Missouri river.

The damage in Nebraska extended from O'Neill east to the Missouri river and from Spencer to Neligh.

Between Sioux Falls, S. D. and Salem, S. D., 252 poles went down under the weight of steel and the force of a heavy wind.

Supplies and men were roused from Norfolk, Sioux Falls and Minneapolis to the damaged areas and service was restored promptly.

bars. A heavy rope was attached to the mouth of the bag, and a light cone in a slip knot, 10 feet long.

"Drag" for Quick Veering. When cut into the sea the water opened, filling the bag with water and thus acting as a drag. By pulling the lighter rope the small end of the gag was opened. This let the water out, instantly relieving the resistance. Four of these bags was from the side of a 5,000-ton vessel filled with 400 tons of coal caused it to turn ninety degrees from its course in two minutes, with an advance of only 200 feet.

Night sailing of ships next attracted his attention. By working day and night over the records of submarine sinkings he discovered that not more than six per cent of the ships took shelter at night.

Mr. Edison commenced to work on his plans for the ships to sail in and out of the danger zone at night. For as the old standard rules travel as much as possible, to anchor through the day in comparatively shallow waters and harbors where submarine danger was less, and to anchor only at night to other ports of anchorage on the way to their destinations.

Strategic Maps.

Mr. Edison prepared a new set of strategic maps which he charted the harbors in which there was safe anchorage for a long distance inshore in comparatively shallow, but safe waters, where submarines could not approach submarines.

Other warlike inventions by Mr. Edison were a cartridge for taking soundings; a convey light visible to all the world in the conveyer; an invisible from an underwater searchlight capable of throwing rays 200 feet; a projectile that would enter the water from an angle instead of ricocheting; a stabilizer for submerged submarines; and a time fuse to cause a mine to burst only six feet above the ground.

He devised a map to protect observers on the tops of masts from smokeless gun, turbine head or projectiles which enabled the latter to be fired from smooth bore guns and still have rotation and accuracy; and an invention for mining Zeppelins Harbor, and developed a method by which communicating signals between warships could be sent by means of wireless.

Preventing Sinkings.

Mr. Edison devoted a great deal of thought to various plans for preventing sinkings. He suggested a number of schemes to this end. One of these was a proposition to furnish merchant ships with a type of special sinking device which shells filled with an oilium smoke-producing compound with which to blind submarines if they had long range.

The problem of extinguishing fires in coal bunkers he solved with a small stream of liquid wind-fire. The most delicate strikes the incandescent body the small quantity of water in the silico. The body becomes coated with a glassy surface, excluding the oxygen and extinguishing the fire.

"Directing Fire." The study of a direction finder for hostile airplanes was undertaken to determine the direction of a plane before it was shot down. The direction of the source of the sound given off by its engines. This is how it was done.

Two horns at a fixed angle to one another, conveyed the sound to opposite sides of the same diaphragm and swung the horn system, both in horizontal and vertical planes, until there was no movement of the diaphragm, because the sounds conveyed by both horns were of equal value and therefore neutralized one another.

It was found very difficult to get zero readings, but with some tracing on the part of the observer the direction could be determined with considerable accuracy.

Having learned that telephone systems on ships were not very reliable, Mr. Edison devised one that was. He discarded microphones and substituted the receiving phone for a transmitter. The signals being weak he amplified with an audion, which made the signals so loud as to be painful to the ear.

Edison Was Right Again

THE prices of Edison Phonographs have increased less than 15 per cent since 1914, and a substantial part of this increase is the 5 per cent tax, which the Edison laboratories pay to the government.

The Edison phonograph of today is a better phonograph and a better value than the Edison phonograph of 1914. On the other hand, the dollar of today is worth 10 purchasing power, while the more than half as much as the dollar of 1914. Therefore, if you buy an Edison phonograph at this time, you are virtually buying a before-the-war value, with an after-the-war dollar.

Why was it that Edison did not increase his prices and how did he avoid the necessity of doing so? Any commercial agency and practically any investment banker can ascertain for you that the Edison phonograph laboratories were doing business in 1914 on a narrower margin of profit than was true of any of the other established phonograph or talking-machine manufacturers. Why, then, did Edison manage to avoid an increase in his selling prices?

The story is dramatically interesting. The following is only the essence of it:

When the United States of America entered the great war, Mr. Edison dropped all his work at the Edison laboratories and enlisted in the army of American men of science, who pitted themselves so successfully against the world-famed German scientists, Cardinal Mercier, on his recent visit to America, crediting Mr. Edison with a large share in winning the war for the Allies. The New York American of September 5 describes, at length, some of the inventions, which Mr. Edison developed and placed at the disposal of the government. In this article, the New York American states that Mr. Edison appears to have been the moving spirit of the naval consulting board of the United States.

When Mr. Edison gave up his own business for the business of the nation, a very critical situation existed in his manufacturing laboratories, due to their inability to obtain various materials and the necessity of finding satisfactory substitutes for such materials. If there was ever a time in Mr. Edison's career, when his personal attention to his business was required, it was when he went to the front. The only reason to believe that he was risking enormous losses, by deserting his business, at the particular time in question, but he did not hesitate, and his example had a remarkable influence on the men and women, who remained behind. From the humblest workman to the highest paid executive was the Edison organization. Everyone seemed determined to "make good, while the Old Man was away." Vacations were passed up and doctors' orders were ignored by zealous employees, and, as a result, the Edison manufacturing laboratories were one of the few manufacturing concerns in the United States, where there was no loss of efficiency, during the war, and where there was, in fact, an increase in efficiency.

During the war, Mr. Edison spent most of his time on the sea coast or at sea. On those rare occasions, when he visited the Edison laboratories, it was difficult to gain his attention, for more than a few minutes, with reference to business matters. He did, however, state that the Edison phonograph was his pre-occupation and he hoped that his business associates would be able, in some way or other, to avoid any increase in price, and that, if there must be an increase, he wanted such increase to be just as small as it could possibly be made. Mr. Edison said: "I am willing to stand the gaff. Music is an important thing. Let us make it as easy as possible for people to have music in their homes in these nerve-racking days."

What was the result? The wonderful realism of the New Edison Phonograph with a "Soul" made it desired above all other phonographs, and its sale was stimulated by the fact that the increase in price was negligible. The demand soon far outstripped the supply. Overhead and sales expense were reduced to the minimum and, thanks to Mr. Edison's willingness to absorb a large share of the increased cost of manufacture, it was possible for the Edison laboratories, by accepting a merely nominal profit, to avoid any substantial increase in the selling price of the Edison phonograph.

It will be many years before the general level of commodity prices is as low as the present price of the Edison phonograph. Leading bankers have expressed themselves as willing to lend money on Edison phonographs, because they know the selling prices of Edison phonographs are not going to be reduced.

Let us reiterate that when you buy an Edison phonograph today you buy a before-the-war value with an after-the-war dollar. If you have any fear that there may be a reduction in the prices of Edison phonographs, we are prepared to give you full assurance on that point.

North Dakota's Senator. "Sioux City Journal": "The election of Dr. E. F. Ladd, the nonpartisan candidate for United States senator from North Dakota, is as much a victory for the republican party as it is for the nonpartisans. Dr. Ladd, who is president of the state agricultural college, is a republican of a very intelligent type. It is doubtful if he holds a membership in the nonpartisan league. He was its candidate, but he is not its official. He has been an ardent and efficient advocate of both productive and economical betterment in farming. He is opposed to the curbing of farmers through artificial economic laws. He believes the farmer should get a living price for his products, as much as a victory for the republican party as it is for the nonpartisans. Dr. Ladd was made pure food commissioner to enforce that law. He retained that position until he became head of the college by appointment of a board which was appointed by a republican governor before the nonpartisans got control of the state. When pure paints were added to the list, he was placed in charge of the work. In truth, whenever the state had any need, any one endeavoring to be popular, but essential law. Dr. Ladd has been chosen. He was appointed pure food commissioner under the republican administration of Gov. E. F. Scales and was retained through his three terms by Gov. John Burke, now treasurer of the United States. He was first administrator during the war and while fair in his administration of the office, he knew no distinction. He was fearless in his public acts and, if he ever carried public favor no one ever knew it. He is a strong believer in a protective tariff, in legislation for the agricultural industry, for better farm markets and in a constructive domestic policy for the nation. He will succeed Senator Griggs, who was the cunning of Senator La Follette.

Parley Christensen, third party presidential candidate, rises out of oblivion long enough to remark that the democratic party is dead and that the republican party will be equally dead at the end of the next four years. He should not be so discouraging right at the beginning, but give the party a chance. He is liable to be disappointed.

Mr. Meyer's suggestion that Mr. Wilson accept the verdict of the people as justification to resign without delay will not be followed, though a legal arrangement by which a defeated president, together with the outgoing congress, would retire January 1 instead of March 1 would be good policy for the country. This would carry out popular wishes without long and needless suspense.

There has been talk of burning corn in place of coal on account of the cheapness of the former and the high price of the latter. There is already now a report that coal production has been enormously increased of late and that soft coal prices have been reduced. We don't like the idea of burning corn, and we hope it will not be considered necessary to do so. Coal prices should be materially reduced at the mines, and the reductions should be promptly reflected in quotations to consumers. Whatever the cause, coal prices have been too high, and should be hammered down without delay. In addition, transportation companies should speed up distribution and do their part in getting fuel into the hands of consumers.

A. L. Bibby recounts in the Lincoln Journal the prediction of a servant named M. L. Herr of New York that the Second Coming will happen in 1920 when the mark will be the twinkling of an eye, be turned over to the pure and good, and when the profiteers and other sinners will be banished to the Lord only know where. Though ordinarily credulous, we are afraid this man is talking through his tile and that this most desirable transformation will not happen in the manner and time mentioned.

We doubt if any class is freer from heart trouble than paper manufacturers. They have more than doubled the price of print paper the last year, and the market sticks to the high mark as bravely and confidently as though it belonged there and expected to always stay there. Unusual fear over dread heart disease is often dispensed these days when capacity to fix costs is really sensed and appreciated, and in case of paper mill owners we feel positive assurance that they will suffer no such disorder for at least a hundred years.

Unless prices for parking house products become more consistent with reduced markets for hogs and cattle, on foot, retail markets will likely be persuaded to do their own slaughtering and curings. Farmers may also be disposed to provide their leaders from their own yards direct. The practice of sending a humble hog to market, and then riding a treacherous journey and a rather harrowing experience, having it come back dressed or cured with an extra fancy price attached, would seem unnecessary. Additional labor in the market or on the farm would seem able to solve the problem and effect an important saving during a time when finished meats respond so suggestively to prices for live animals.

Two years ago the armistice was signed and the world was in an uproar of excitement and rejoicing. It signified the end of a long and bitter struggle. It meant cessation of slaughter and destruction, guaranteeing that American boys who had survived the struggle would soon be returned to their homes. Reconstruction in the two years that have elapsed, has been slow, and differences have no doubt retarded return to a pre-war basis. But settlement of problems growing out of the war is now encouraging, and the popular state of mind is less given to unrest. All others join surviving soldiers and sailors in observing with highest satisfaction the anniversary of the day when quiet and security issued from the chaos of battle and bloodshed.

If a man is going to take his imagination out for a little exercise, he should exercise it in the right direction. He should imagine things that will put hope and courage into tired and drooping spirits. Conditions were never so favorable that one could not, with certain colorings and emphasis, make them appear ugly and forbidding. A situation was never so inauspicious that there were not good reasons for optimism. Along comes one fellow who turns up his imagination and declares that times are getting worse, money refuses to circulate, fuel is high-priced and a tough winter lies just ahead. An optimist takes the reverse view, pointing out that crops are abundant and the price of their products are being reduced, the money market is booming, readjustment of prices will soon restore just levels, that the approaching winter will keep up the usual Nebraska standard and no more, and that peace, plenty and prosperity will prevail. The optimistic view is likely the more accurate, and is always the more encouraging and helpful. If you are going to alter the facts, make them appear better and not worse. See the bright side if you can. The world needs sunshine, not shadows.

Republicans are not loudly exulting over their late political victory. Instead they are turning serious attention to the many unsolved problems that will come to them from the democratic administration. The task of straightening out snarled affairs of government and giving to each class an absolutely square deal is approached with much gravity. It must be undertaken in a spirit of utmost earnestness, fairness, wisdom and resolution. The game of politics, which has been rather overworked by all parties, must be subordinated to policies of wholesome reconstruction along all lines, without prejudice and with special privilege to none. The republican party has plenty of capable men to draw into service and effect an organization that will make every branch of government function triumphantly and that will inspire confidence and impart stability. What people want is effective action in restoring normal and healthful times, putting to rest manifold evils and inequalities and guaranteeing opportunity and justice to all. This readjustment will take some time, and we believe the overwhelming voice in the late election for republican groups and policies to bring order and stability out of the jumbled mess will not be disappointed. Republican leaders can and will do it. They know they must do it. Therefore, it is no time for loud and idle boasting. It is time for serious consideration, preliminary to most prudent and comprehensive action.

Any assumption that the same rate should be charged for electricity, whether used for lighting, power or heat of any plant, publicly or privately owned, anywhere. The lower rate for purposes outside of lighting is designed to increase consumption during a period of the twenty-four hours when the plant would otherwise be idle, non-productive, and a source of expense. The lower rate for power and heat encourages and makes possible use of electricity instead of gasoline engines, kerosene, and coal. It gives the plant more working hours and makes it more likely to justify the operating cost. There is no question that different rates for different purposes will build up the business of the plant.

From Ponca-Journal November 11, 1880: The railroad between Covington and Omaha is about completed, but no passenger trains will be run for some time yet.

The weather continues dull a large part of the time. Evidently winter is near by, and from the present outlook it will not be a mild tempered winter either.

One of our living near Lenia, has this season been experimenting on the profits derived from bee-keeping. Last spring he had twenty-one stands of bees, which have now multiplied to forty-eight stands, besides making for him during the summer $300 pounds of honey. The increase of the bees is worth $90, while the honey at the market price of 20 cents a pound will bring him $170, making a total profit of $260 in one season on twenty-one swarms of bees, or an outfit of about $70.

Press Meeting at Hartington Recently—Other Neighborhood News—

A meeting of the Cedar-county Ben Franklin press association which had been arranged at Hartington last Sunday had only a small attendance due to the bad weather. One Mack of the Harvard County, and secretary of the Nebraska Press association, was in Hartington for a few hours Monday.

Walter Ralph Hill and George Hill of Plainview, were dressed in Laurel Thursday night in connection with the stealing of an automobile. Three gallons of booze were found in their car.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Day of Laurel left last week for Long Beach, Calif., where they expect to make their home and where Mr. Day expects to go into the business of erecting and selling bungalows.

Oakland Independent: As County Judge J. A. Singhaus was driving toward Tekamah, last Saturday evening about dusk, he overtook a man on foot and stopped to offer him a ride. This man, unrecognized by Mr. Singhaus at the time, was Jim Rankin, a farmer whose wife the judge is said to be representing in a divorce case. Rankin took the rear seat and without warning dealt Mr. Singhaus a terrific blow with an air gun.

Rankin was arrested by Judge Singhaus on or near the law and was so forcible that he lost consciousness and was in that condition when found lying on the floor of his car. The judge is now able to get to his office for a little while each day. Several witnesses had to be taken to close the case. The assailant has not yet been found.

Tekamah Journal: We heard a story the other day about an editor, having to be carried home on a stretcher as the result of having received a kind word over something he had printed. The shock simply unnerved him. But just as he reached his home some one gave him a good cuffing about another article he had printed; and he got up and returned to work.

Randolph Times: W. and Francis Blotz last week attended the sale of A. G. Moderaw & Son, Stanton, breeders of some of the best Duroc hogs in the state. Messrs. Blotz & Son purchased a splendid herd headed at this sale, a March pig of great size and rich in quality, both individually and by inheritance. This pig is a grand son of Great Orion Sensation 28879, world's champion sow and breeding boar. This breeding is in a class by itself and leads all other strains in the production of prize winning stuff. A pig of practically the same breeding, the dams being litter sisters, was sold at a town sale at $560, and Messrs. Blotz & Son are carrying out their aim to breed only the best class of hogs, much can be expected from their next year's lot from this sire.

J. A. Miller's grocery store at Randolph was badly damaged by fire on Sunday of last week.

Randolph Times: Grandma Maria Fox of this city has lived long enough to vote and she is 93 years old. On Tuesday she went to the polls in the Second ward and marked her ballot for Harding and the republican ticket. During her long life she has had many women been talked and agitated and pioneers in the cause of equal and suffrage have passed on. Grandma Fox, however, has not seen the actual consummation of the hopes of American women. At the age of 93 she cast her first ballot, and commenced an action against John Dovedat, as defendant, in the district court of Wayne county, Nebraska, wherein said Dovedat is the plaintiff.

There's always room at the top for Highest Possible Quality at Lowest Possible Price. 'it's more like a Smoke!' There you have Spur's big reason in a nutshell. It's what an American Legion man said after he had puffed a Spur for a moment or two. He knew cigarettes. Found how comforting a good one is. Had 16 months in France. And he knew what he was talking about when he said: 'More Like a Smoke!' That's because you can taste the good tobacco in Spurs. You get the aroma of a new and delicious blend of the finest leaf grown in Turkey, fine Burley and other home-grown tobaccos. Unmarred by starch because the seam is crimped not pasted. Longer and sweeter in the smoking—slower in the burning. Fresh and fragrant as you open the pack—because it's triple-wrapped. Priced to be popular and packaged to be select. See for yourself—'more like a Smoke.' LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO CO.

Grandma Fox is 100 per cent American and comes from a hardy American ancestry, and as an American woman considers it her duty to register her ballot for those whom she believed best fitted to be entrusted with the government of state and nation. She is in fairly good health and active for one of her years. Grandma Fox's first vote gives no indication that it will be the last. The average of this sturdy American woman might well be followed by every woman of the country, and by a good many of the men. Randolph Times: The election returns from Cedar county show that Attorney C. W. Peasinger of this city was elected county judge by about 200 majority over Judge Bryant, present incumbent. The surprising part of it all was Mr. Peasinger refused to have his name before the primaries, but it was written in by many voters and he was thus nominated. He didn't want the office, made no canvass, didn't dream of election, but neglected to demand that his name not be placed on the ballot. Now that he has been elected, he doesn't know what to do with the office that the people voted to him. Mr. Peasinger came to Randolph from Omaha and purchased here a law and law practice the late C. B. Wiley. He declares that he is here to build up a law practice, and he is in the job every day of his life. His business affairs. He cannot afford to move and lose the business, and nor allow his future to be placed at the mercy of the people at the polls. Mr. Peasinger can't afford to take the judgeship and is on record as not having changed his mind expressed at the time of the primary. Legal Notice: To John Dovedat, defendant. The members of the parish presented Mr. Gaertner with a large flashlight and Mrs. Gaertner with a gold-plated berry spoon. Cards and music made the evening pass swiftly and pleasantly. To Announce Engagement.
Mrs. C. M. Madden entertained a few friends from 2:30 to 5:30 Tuesday afternoon, to announce the engagement of her daughter, Miss Pearl May, to Mr. Melbourne Jones, son of Dr. and Mrs. M. J. Jones of Chicago. The date for the wedding has not yet been set.

A novel way of announcing the engagement was employed by Mrs. Madden. When the guests entered the home they saw a table mysteriously covered with a white cloth and held, many guesses as to what it contained. After it had been ascertained that the cloth covered a communion service, and that a person was concealed under it, and that the table held various other improbabilities, the hosts removed the cloth, showing a picture of the bride-to-be at the corners of the picture were guests and wedding rings were fastened with bows of white ribbon and below it lay an orange and a blossom.

A two-course luncheon was served in the dining room, while the guests spent the afternoon at Kensington.

LOWER PRICES— Here are the Facts

YOU'VE heard a lot about "Price Adjustments," "Prices Reduced," "Following the Market," "Raw Materials Cheaper," etc. Manufactured goods of all kinds, including food products, do not come from the manufacturer to the retailer in a few days. It takes time to buy new priced raw product, it takes time and as much money to manufacture it and move it to the retail trade, and the market is bound to be governed accordingly. When cotton goes down the manufacturer can make cheaper cotton goods until he gets the new prices on cotton.

Every item in our stock that has been reduced on the wholesale market has been marked down accordingly. Outings that were sold for 50c are now 30c; gingham, muslins, percales and many other "piece goods" are lower. Big reductions have been made in the prices on coats, suits and dresses while the ready-to-wear jobber's prices are practically at the same place they were last fall. We are taking every opportunity to extend our trade the benefit of our buying experience, closely watching market conditions, buying quality goods at lower prices. It pays to shop with us.

Death of Earl Mapes.—Earl Mapes, well known lawyer of Norfolk, died at Corpus Christi, Texas, shortly after his arrival at that place Sunday morning. He had been suffering from heart trouble and complications for several months, and left Norfolk on Tuesday last week in the hope that the change of climate would benefit his health. The body reached Norfolk yesterday, and the funeral and interment took place there.

Speaking of the deceased, the Norfolk News of Monday said:

"Although physicians had held out no hope for Mr. Mapes' recovery for several months, his death caused general sadness throughout the city and in other parts of this state where he was well known for his kind heart and charitable work. Among men he was known as a 'man's man without a bad habit.' Throughout his life he had been ready to give his aid in distress and those who were suffering. He took an active interest in politics, being a life-long republican. In his thirty-seven years of activity in north Nebraska, he gained the respect of those who came in contact with him in business, social and private life. He always told intimate friends that he loved Norfolk and Norfolk people."

"Earl Mapes was born in Orange county, New York, on Aug. 10, 1854. He lived with his parents on a farm until 1884, attending the New York state country schools. Charles E. Wagner then became associated with his school master. Then he went to Lebanon, O., where he graduated from the Ohio state university with a B. A. and B. S. degrees in 1884. During his university life, Mr. Mapes was among the students who worked their way. He was the first to enter the labor during his early years. After graduating, he came to Norfolk and read law with H. C. Brown until the spring of 1887 when he was admitted to the bar. He then formed a partnership with Mr. Brown and later the firm took in H. T. White, when Mr. Brown moved away from the firm. Mr. Mapes served two terms as county attorney and was the city attorney of Norfolk, at the time of his death. He was a member of the board of education. He had been elected a delegate to the national republican convention in 1916. He was to attend an account of his ill health."

Business Unchanged.

Sioux City Journal: Seasonal weather in some sections of the country during the last seven days has given some stimulus to a retarded and restricted retail movement, but aside from that influence, which is strictly local in its effects, trade remains around present levels until the beginning of the new year at least, but several things have occurred to upset these anticipations. Large mail order houses announce heavy cuts in standard lines of commodities and other dealers are forced to follow in their anticipations. which the lumber industry has been enjoying is also wiped out. Refusal of the public to buy or use lumber products at postwar prices is the reason why the manufacturers are anxious to reduce prices without sacrificing themselves of profiting. The closing down of the Overland Automobile company plant and the throwing out of work of 15,000 employees is only a straw the industrial wind, but it shows the direction in which the wind is blowing. Employment will be slacker during the winter months than it has been for three years. Wages will be lowered. Whether the reduction will come temporarily or will follow because of slack employment is not clear at this time, though the indications are that price declines will lead wage declines. Prices are being lowered but in fact wages have not generally been lowered. These influences are seen in business circles today, though they will not become active elements for some time. The day of the profiteer and the shirking worker is at an end. Hereafter profiteering must stop, else people will refuse to buy, and the shirking laborer who does the least for his wages it is possible to do will find himself out of a job at a time when he needs a wage.

"Get Together" Banquet.

A "get together" banquet was held in Omaha Thursday noon at the Home hotel by members of the Wayne Normal school faculty, students and alumni. The following account of the luncheon is given by the Nebraska State Journal:

W. R. Bowen was toastmaster at the Wayne State Normal dinner, at the Home. Short addresses were delivered by President U. S. Gorn of Wayne State Normal, and D. B. Waldor, president of Kalamazoo State Normal.

Prof. I. H. Brittel was in charge of the initiation of new members of the faculty. Miss Edith Beechel had charge of arrangements.

Loose Grip in North Dakota.

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 6.—Confusion of anti-tore great holes in the Nonpartisan League's control of North Dakota state government in the election Tuesday, returns show. The league won only three important victories apparently. They secured the reelection of Lynn J. Frazier as governor for a third term; election of Dr. E. F. Lund as United States senator, and re-election of J. S. Dickinson to congress from the third district. The league apparently lost its majority in both houses of the state legislature, although the count is doubtful.

Class Adoption and Rally.

Modern Woodmen lodges of Winde and Wayne will hold a combined class adoption and rally at Wayne on Nov. 19, 1920. Both lodges have been working for new members who will be initiated at this time. A supper will be served at the I. O. O. F. hall after the meeting which begins at 8 o'clock p. m. W. O. Hansson, George Van Norman, Henry Cosad and W. B. Vail are on the committee appointed to take charge of the supper and the general arrangements.

It is desired that all members be present at this meeting. If you are thinking of joining the Modern Woodmen of America, now is a good time.—J. B. McClure, Clerk.

Bisby in the Lincoln Journal: Jake Frous, the governor-elect of Minnesota, made no play for the votes of nonpartisan leaguers. He opposed the organization from start to finish and carried out his suggestions for it. Somehow the people like a man who has convictions and isn't afraid to give them utterance.

Task for a Hercules.

WALKS NINE MILES TO VOTE

Teacher Goes to Election Polls on Foot When Train Falls Her.

Some of the female gender in Pierce did not care enough about voting to exercise their right of franchise, but here is a young school ma'am that was bound that the railway company was not going to best her out of her first vote, as the girls she might not live to see another presidential election.

Mrs. Bryan Powers, of this city, is one of the instructors in the Foster schools. She makes the trip every morning on the passenger and returns on the afternoon passenger. Tuesday afternoon, after school had closed, she went to the depot and enquired how late the train was. When informed it was 4 hours late, she saw visions of losing her first vote. Realizing that "Where there's a will there's a way" and resolving that the passenger train could not be changed out of her first vote, she resolved to walk the nine miles arriving here about supper time. Of course she put one in for Harding and Goodale and took proud of the fact that she was on the winning side. Not many of the young ladies and men— for that matter—would walk that distance to vote.—Pierce County Call.

Fifty-nine head of the steers, averaging 1,412 pounds, were sold to Cudaby for $4,000, which is a new position. Even though the women were not qualified at the time the petition was circulated, they would be qualified now. Mr. Lessman says he would like to see a rearrangement of county boundary lines by which Logan township in Dixon county would become a part of Wayne county.

JOHN L. SOULES IS PROMOTED
New Duties and Responsibilities Thrust on Him by Election.
John L. Soules who first gained distinction by swimming whirlpool rapids, and who has almost continuously since then held distinction by intrepid and efficient service as constable of Wayne, has had new responsibilities and honors thrust on him. In the late election, he was chosen justice of the peace for Wayne, receiving an unopposed majority over all competitors. Whether he will be able to hold the office of constable while presiding over the district court, the Herald has not learned. It is believed he will qualify for the judicial task, however, and sacrifice the constableness if necessary. When he don't the judicial sash, he will be known as "Judge," and when a case is thrown on the scales in his court, lawyers and litigants are assured of receiving equal and exact justice.

Touchdowns were made by Laurel in the second, third and fourth quarters.

Cattle Now and in 1896.
Drovers' Journal-Stockman: On October 31, 1896, S. S. Sutton, of North Park, Colo., sold 37 head of grass-fattened cattle on the local market for prices ranging from $2.35 to $4.00 and claims to have made a big profit on them. Wednesday of this week this same Mr. Sutton sold 56 head of steers coming from the same country, fattened on the same kind of feeds and fed on the same ranch, for $12.70 and $10.50 and states that these animals lost him considerable money.
Mr. Sutton, who is one of the pioneer ranchers from northern Colorado, had the original account of the sale for his early life. 24 years ago he was 152.54 out of his 1896 sale, the gross income from Mr. Sutton's 24-year-old sale was $4,543.87, while his latest sale amounted to $7,829.02. This shows an increase of $2,729.08 in spite of the fact that there were 21 head of cattle less in the consignment. Mr. Sutton pocketed $152.54 out of his 1896 sale, while the net proceeds of his recent sale amounted to $6,735.70. A comparison of the overhead expense on these animals sold at the North Park times discloses the fact that the cost of marketing each head, that is, from the time the cattle were loaded at the North Park pens, had increased practically 100 per cent, while the price of cattle mounted up more than 300 per cent. The cost of feeding each animal in 1896 was $4.98, while the overhead expense per head for his recent shipment was $9.41.
The cost of handling the cattle in 1896 was $1.25, while the overhead expense per head for his recent shipment was $3.41.
The cost of the land on which the 1896 steers were raised was $1.25 an acre. The following year he staked out a homestead and has been increasing his land holdings ever since. Thus, recently he sold a 1,000-acre ranch for approximately $50,000

North Park has long been known as one of the leading hay and cattle producing centers in the West. For a long time Mr. Sutton limited his operations to feeding cattle until the hay market began to show signs of life. At this juncture he discontinued the cattle business entirely and sold hay for a living. This spring when he had more hay than he could sell he bought some cattle. He is now planning to enter the cattle business with full steam ahead.

Mr. Sutton is planning on carrying on the cattle business along a rather unique system. He will purchase several registered Angus bulls and cross them on well bred Shorthorn cows, and the calves will not be weaned until the spring following the time they are born. He will then market them in the fall after they have had their run of good grass land either as yearlings or will hold them until the next fall and sell them as two-year-olds.

In spite of the fact that he is a pioneer in his section of the state, Mr. Sutton claims he has never spent a winter in Colorado since the winter of '96. He claims he is nothing more than a tramp and has toured practically every section of the country from California to New York. He has attended several world's fairs and in 1908 was a witness to the inauguration of William Howard Taft as president of the United States.

NEXT NEBRASKA LEGISLATURE

State Senate, Solidly Republican. Three Democrats in House.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 6.—Returns of Tuesday's election were compiled and save in six representative districts, show that the state senate is unanimously republican and that only four democrats are members of the lower house.

The unanimity of the senate became certain when returns were finally received from the Eighth and Eleventh districts—the only ones where no definite information had come in. In the Eighth, C. H. Randall, republican, was re-elected with 4,000 votes over John C. Mordant, nonpartisan league candidate, and in the Eleventh H. C. Beebe, republican, had a margin of 4,200 votes over R. C. Hegan, democrat, with J. S. Wendorf, nonpartisan, running third.

Additional returns for seats in the house are located as follows: A. L. Heuereux, democrat, won the race in the sixty-first district. He increased his party's membership in the lower house to three. Henry Book in the Thirty-seventh district, and Theo. Osterman, in the Forty-ninth are the other democrats.

14 P. Leaders.—16 Members. Fourteen members of the new house and two senators bore the endorsement of the Nonpartisan League of the people. The Retiring President

St. Paul Pioneer Press: Persons of this generation are regarded as inferior when administration leaves office so thoroughly discredited. However, the late President Wilson, and what has come to be known as Wilsonism—and our readers are familiar with our own views on this subject—cannot but realize that an historic figure will leave the White House in the person of its present incumbent. Mr. Wilson played a famous part during the war, and the peace negotiations, and whatever you may think of his work, none can fail to credit the tremendous progress he has left upon the table of these stirring years. Statesman Mr. Wilson is not. The statesman is judged by his achievements—and Mr. Wilson's achievements are stamped this morning with a reputation that is positively appalling. But we can afford to recall that there was a time when Mr. Wilson's voice was the most powerful voice on earth, and to agree that it is best elected to remain in the pulpit his claim upon history would have been secure. But Mr. Wilson came down into the market place and took part in the bargaining—and he was not a good bargainer. He offended his associates at home, and doped those abroad, by the assumption of authority he did not possess; he made of his office a first consulate; he treated the legislative branches of the government with ill-concealed contempt, and conducted the presidency as he might have conducted a class in political economy at Princeton. As a consequence he finds his party crushingly beaten, his whole work set at naught, his international association of nations a complete failure, and his own health fairly wrecked. One recalls few more pathetic episodes in history.

Agriculture Notes

Cooperation

Cooperation between bankers and farmers in the acquisition and distribution of high class animal and plant stock is helping to promote a prosperous condition in Wisconsin. The United States department of agriculture is advised. The Bankers' Exchange conducted under the auspices of the Wisconsin Bankers' association listed 2,131 head of cattle, valued at $281,000, during its first year of operation, and estimated inquiries for 1,698 head. The exchange has its headquarters at Madison, the state capital. A commission of one per cent, paid by the seller is charged on all sales made through listings to cover expenses, but no charge is made on sales outside the listings.

When a farmer lists live stock for sale he signs a statement on the listing blank that the animals are healthy and sound, except when otherwise stated, and that the cattle have been or will be tested for tuberculosis. Male animals to be used for breeding purposes must be purchased. With every transaction, two blanks and the exchange are concerned, and if there is any dissatisfaction, both banks know it. A breeder can not afford to risk his standing with his bank by misrepresenting his product. Should he attempt it, he loses the privilege of the service. The farmers are fast becoming acquainted with the exchange and are forming the habit of reporting their wants to the lead banks.

Prevented Motor-Oil Famine.

Alertness on the part of the county agent in Umattila county, Ore., this year prevented a motor-oil famine, which threatened many thousands of dollars in loss of crops.

Later in the spring it was found that the motor-oil famine was due to one operating gladly in solving only such resistant varieties. To prevent infection by spores in the soil it was required that all wheat sown this fall should be treated. A central treating plant was established and equipped in an old potato-shipping shed, where approximately 200 farmers had their seed wheat treated. With the apparatus provided four workmen were able to treat approximately 1,000 bushels a day.

deeded in having about twenty-five carloads of distillate shipped into the region.

The orders of farmers were pooled in banks were instructed to honor demands on account of those in the need. The first shipment of two carloads of 440-gal. drums was distributed in 113 farmers in May and saved them $9,060. During June two more cars and July eight more cars were distributed, making a total of 28,287 gallons of distillate. It is estimated that the entire savings totaled at least $19,000. During the month of June similar service was given to 28,287 farmers in the counties of Sherman and Waseo counties. In these three counties a total of 195,000 gallons of distillate were received and distributed at a great saving.

Teating Seed Wheat.

The first large-scale attempt at community treatment of seed wheat with the combined copper sulphate and milk of lime method has just been completed in Madison county, Ill., where approximately 49,000 bushels of wheat grain at a central treating plant under the supervision of representatives of the bureau of plant industry, United States department of agriculture.

In the spring of 1919 leaf smut or flag smut was discovered in wheat fields in Madison county, Ill. This disease had long been known as destructive in Australia and elsewhere, and its introduction to Illinois was considered a source of great danger to American wheat growers. The United States department of agriculture immediately made a survey of infested farms and a local quarantine was placed on an area of 47 square miles by the Illinois state department of agriculture. Since that time every effort has been made by the national state agencies concerned to stamp out the disease.

sented with a suit of money as a birthday gift. Out of town guests were Rev. and Mrs. P. Pearson of Concord. The day happened also to be Rev. Pearson's birthday.

The Hog Market.
Drovers Journal-Stockman: It begins to look as though the hog raisers are not shipping their young hogs and that the spurt of receipts last week was brought about by Wakefield hog raisers who were frightened into selling unfinished hogs by fear of much lower hog prices and the G. T. & Co. of Chicago in their week's review of provisions trade. We do not believe hogs are going to come plentifully enough to bring about a fulfillment of 100 hogs that was talked so freely a short time ago, at least not during 1920. What may happen after the first of the year will depend on the demand that exists and of course what the supply is.

Many well informed traders in the stock yards think that our winter supply of hogs will be 25 per cent short. We expect quite a shortage if the decrease in the stocks of provisions for the last sixty days is to be taken as a guide as to what the world's demand is for hog products. Live hogs will not be a drug on the market any time this winter.

The stocks of lard in Chicago on November 1 went down to 17,987,725 pounds; and 16-claimed, 200,000 part of that has been sold. On October 1 the stocks were 64,805,730 pounds. This is an enormous decrease in lard stocks. The stock of ribs held in Chicago at the present time is practically nothing. There is only 600,828 pounds as against 3,001,137 pounds 39 days previous and we will not get any rib making hogs for 30 to 40 days to come. The fact of the matter is that the surplus stocks of hog products are well cleared up. The total stock of cut meats at Kansas City, Omaha, St. Joseph, Madison, St. Louis and East St. Louis on October 31 were 178,256,804 pounds against 240,096,004 pounds a month previous, 240,096,004 pounds a month ago and 241,777,463 pounds two years ago.

We are going into the new packing season with nothing tumbling over our hand. This, of course, is not necessarily a bullish factor in provisions. Packers are naturally inclined to buy hogs as cheaply as they can during the winter packing season to fill cellars and they will be very indifferent as to any bull campaign in hogs this time of year with their cellars empty. Nevertheless, we think this will be rather an unusual year. Conditions point to a good trade with not enough hogs to supply the trade from day to day and nothing on hand to tide us over until we get a more liberal supply of hogs. Lard seems to be the one commodity that is trade continues very liberal in this lard, even with a good lard season drawing towards a close, in a stronger position than usual and we do not think the time has yet arrived to look on the bear side of January lard.

Duty of the Republicans.
Philadelphia Public Ledger, rep. Now the responsible republican leaders know how largely the country trusts them. They could have discarded all the irreconcilable materialists in Chicago and still won handsomely. The American people were wholly determined not to permit so much as a rumble in a continuation of Wilsonite rule. Cox was such a "chance." So Cox or any other democratic nominee was doomed before he was chosen for it. My opinion is that the republican party had been enough to get in the way of the thundering republican express-train they would have been unmade. They could not again have given the national government to the democrats. Today it is the duty of the republicans to live up to the expressed will and confidence of the people. They must no longer allow the "fifth wheel" to their coach to mistake it for a rattle in the music that makes the pluck and the perspicacity to avoid disappointing the nation which elected Harding and not Johnson. They must sustain the general belief that when the American people vote for republican rule they will get republican rule—and not a feigned, dictated permission of self-interest and straightforward republicanism.

The Man Who Likes His Job.
Minneapolis Journal: To watch someone find his music is a real inspiration. Here is the man who likes his job and puts his heart into it. No frills about him. Eight-four and a half men are in the line, $14 and three-quarters. Sousa walks on; 8:15 he swings his baton and has his hand on his way. "A number in the band follows the leader in ten seconds by the watch the band is playing an encore. No stops at way stations, no delays, the Sousa method has a definite music and makes it. Number follows number, encore follows encore, until a program of nine selections has lengthened it to twenty-five. Yet the program doesn't seem long or tiresome. Here is a man whose enthusiasm for his work infects the audience. Apart from his stirring music he impresses his audience as putting his whole self into his task—it task for him it may be called. If you haven't your heart in your work your mind on your job, you are not in the right niche. No one can be enthusiastic about a job he doesn't like, and he alone does good work and inspires others to follow his lead who likes everything about his job—and naturally shows that he does.

Revival News. The Carroll revival campaign conducted in the gospel tabernacle has brought great results. There has been a growth in interest and a deepening and widening of religious life from the first Sunday to the fourth.

The week of special nights last week proved to be both interesting and successful. The parade staged for last Friday night was surprisingly successful. In spite of bad weather conditions several hundred took part and turned a fine four deep marching several blocks. They were led by the Carroll band which gave several selections during the preliminary part of the evening program.

The fourth Sunday of the campaign was the record breaker of the whole series in many different ways. Several hundred dollars were raised to cover the whole expenses of the campaign and in a very few minutes time, and in a manner that has brought no criticism. It will not be necessary for any more nightly offerings during the remainder of the campaign for expense purposes.

The Carroll citizens have proven to be not only musical but generous as shown by the raising of all the expenses as well as the cost of all the singers. The choir was at its best Sunday and a chorus consisting of about twenty-five of Carroll's best male voices led by J. A. Jones rendered different selections which brought applause from the audience.

The Rev. Charles H. Harrington was his best in the Sunday services.

This week there will be illustrated songs and sermons with tableau effect, aside from special singing. Tuesday night will be cross night. Wednesday will be Welch night with special songs and a quartet sermon. Thursday night will be patriotic night in memory of the Signers of the Armistice. The American Legion will be present in a body and several features will be arranged suitable for the occasion.
