WAYNE TEAM LOSSES TO
CHADRON STATE NORMAL

Believed Long Ride and High Altitude
Affected the Result.

Football game with Chadron Normal was played on the grounds of that school. The score was 28-0 in favor of the opponents. While the boys do not seek an "alibi," they do feel that the long night's journey to Chadron and the rain and high altitude were factors in their defeat. They would welcome an opportunity to play a return game with Chadron Normal, but this is probably expected to be one of the most interesting games of the season is to be played tomorrow at Chadron. The school grounds when Wayne and Peru will join battle. In the season thus far Peru has won from York, 37-0; Midland, 12-0; 12-0; Boone, 28-0; and Wesleyan, 1-0. The fact that Wesleyan defeated Chadron, 13 to 0, while winning from Peru by so large a score, indicates that the game will be close.

Face the Facts.
Lincoln Journal: We shall get along better with the problems of agriculture if we face the facts.

A representative of Nebraska farmers is quoted in dispatches from the cities as asserting that the "well organized conspiracy on the part of grain gamblers and some of our business financiers" is an oft-heard assertion.

It is not clear for argument that the larger causes account for at least the greater part of the trouble which produces. People familiar with economic laws knew the fall would come and warned the country to be ready for it. It is not clear for argument that no one warned it of the wrath to come, except any Jonah who wears a booming country of the burg as a badge.

Agriculture Notes

Getting Rid of Barbbery.
The common barberry, once a familiar shrub in all parts of the north-eastern and central western states, is being eradicated through the efforts of the United States department of agriculture, which found that the shrub was an enemy of wheat in that it harbored rust spores during the winter, or eradication campaign is being carried on in thirteen states.

Crop Record Book.
Catch-catch-can methods of conducting the farming business are being discouraged through the efforts of the county agent in Madison county, Ala. Farmers were first encouraged to keep expense-on-labor accounts on the growing of cotton. The practice has been a great assistance in the making of a subsequent year's work and has resulted in the saving of expense, the seriousness of which had not been realized when the accounts were kept. A number of farmers who started keeping accounts have learned the advantage of having a deposit in the bank and have acquired habits of thrift.

Reducing Hog Losses.
Losses by hog cholera have been materially reduced in Bullock county, Ala., as a result of the work of the county agent in training farmers in various centers throughout the county to use the serum and apparatus developed by the department. Forty-nine cars of hogs, 3,928 head, have been marketed from the county through cooperative work, with an estimated saving of $6,000. In Houston county the department's representative taught citizens how to vaccinate hogs. Six sets of instruments owned by the Dethan Rotary club were supplied to the demonstrators and a serum distributing point was established in charge of a reliable veterinarian. More than 9,000 head of hogs were treated. In many cases it was found that sickness, other than cholera, was due to some incidental cause, such as bad peanut meal, and balanced rations were advised. The county agent's work resulted in thirty-two farmers establishing pastures—some of which were being freed from many noxious weeds by the rooting of the animals, and prepared for cattle cultivation. Forty-four farmers in the county were interested in stump removal, and about 2,000 acres of land was cleared in this movement. Five tons of dynamite was bought for the purpose largely on the cooperative plan.

Road Improvements.
During the calendar year 1919, forty-six states of the union expended over $29,000,000 on the repair of roads and bridges, the bureau of public roads of the United States department of agriculture has estimated and reported. The total is made up of the actual cash expenditures for such items as labor, materials, supervision, and administration amounting to $289,456,391, and convict labor and statute labor, the value of which, not definitely known, is estimated at about $12,000,000. So far as possible, all expenditures on city streets within incorporated towns and cities and all items relating to improvements or the redemption and interest payments on road and bridge bonds have been included.

Prospective Turkey Shortage.
Francis Chief, if everyone who voted the republican ticket insists on observing Thanksgiving with a turkey dinner there will be an awful shortage in the turkey market.

He Should Worry.
Mitchell Republican: Why should President-elect Harding spend any of his vacation selecting a cabinet, when so many others in the country are doing it for him?

Road Maintenance.
It is better to build a cheap road and keep it in good condition by adequate maintenance than to build the most expensive highway and permit it to deteriorate for want of care. The originally improved roads in Maryland were comparatively inexpensive, costing only what the taxpayers were willing to pay. The first few years the average cost was less than $10,000 a mile. In some cases the work amply considered spreading and draining, but others it amounted simply to resurfacing the old turpicks, which had already been graded and drained.

Generally the roads built at that time were macadam, 12 feet wide and 4 inches thick. Soon the width increased to 14 feet. Later many were widened still further, some very successfully. By adding concrete shoulders on each side of the main macadam, this method of improving roads makes it possible for traffic to continue unimpeded on the road while the work is going on. The macadam roads in Maryland have given very good satisfaction, but continuous care has been largely responsible for high speeds. The roads are constantly patrolled and

Edison Was Right Again

THE prices of Edison Phonographs have increased less than 15 per cent since 1914—never, notwithstanding, that of this increase is the 5 per cent tax, which the Edison laboratories pay to the government.

The Edison phonograph of today is a better phonograph and a better value than the Edison phonograph of 1914. On the other hand, the dollar of today is worth, in purchasing power, only a little more than half as much as the dollar of 1914. Therefore, if you buy an Edison phonograph at this time, you are virtually buying a before-the-war value, with an after-the-war dollar.

Why was it that Edison did not increase his prices and how did he avoid the necessity of doing so? Any non-commercial agency and practically any investment banker can ascertain for you that the Edison phonograph laboratories were doing business, in 1914, on a thin profit margin of profit—then, the Edison phonograph of today is worth, in purchasing power, only a little more than half as much as the dollar of 1914. Therefore, if you buy an Edison phonograph at this time, you are virtually buying a before-the-war value, with an after-the-war dollar.

The story is dramatically interesting. The following is only the essence of it:

When the United States of America entered the great war, Mr. Edison dropped all his work at the Edison laboratories and enlisted in the army of American men of science, who pitted themselves so successfully against the world-famed German scientists, Cardinal Merck, on his recent visit to America, credited Mr. Edison with a large share in winning the war for the Allies. The New York American of September 5 describes, at length, some of the inventions, which Mr. Edison developed and placed at the disposal of the government. In this article, the New York American states that Mr. Edison appears American states that Mr. Edison appears in the moving spirit of the United States.

When Mr. Edison gave up his own business for the business of the nation, a very critical situation existed in his manufacturing laboratories, due to the inability to obtain various minerals, and the necessity of finding satisfactory substitutes for such materials. If there was ever a time in Mr. Edison's career, when his personal attention to his business was required, it was when he went to war. Thomas A. Edison had reason to believe that he was risking enormous losses, by deserting his business, at the particular time in question, but he did not hesitate, and his example had a remarkable influence on the men and women who remained behind. From the humblest workman to the highest-paid executive in the Edison organization, everyone seemed determined "to make good, while the Old Man was away." Vacations were passed up and doctors' orders were ignored by zealous employees, and, as a result, the Edison manufacturing laboratories were one of the few manufacturing concerns in the United States, where there was no loss of efficiency during the war, and where there was, in fact, an increase in efficiency.

During the war, Mr. Edison spent most of his time on the sea coast or at sea. On those rare occasions, when he visited the Edison laboratories, it was difficult to catch his attention for more than a few minutes, with reference to business matters. He did, however, state that the Edison phonograph was his pet invention and he hoped that his business associates would be able, in some way or other, to avoid any increase in price, and that, if there must be an increase, he wanted such increase to be just as small as it could possibly be made. Mr. Edison said: "I am willing to stand the gaff. Music is an important thing. Let us make it as easy as possible for people to have music in their homes in these nerve-racking days."

What was the result? The wonderful realism of the New Edison, "The Phonograph with a Soul," made it desired above all other phonographs, and the sale was stimulated by the fact that the increase in price was negligible. The demand soon far outstripped the supply. Overhead and sales expense were reduced to the minimum and, thanks to Mr. Edison's willingness to absorb a large share of the increased cost of manufacture, it was possible for the Edison laboratories, by accepting a merely nominal profit, to avoid any substantial increase in the selling price of the Edison phonograph.

It will be many years before the general level of commodity prices is as low as the present price of the Edison phonograph. Leading bankers have expressed themselves as willing to lend money on Edison phonographs—because they know the selling prices of Edison phonographs are not going to be reduced.

Let us reiterate that when you buy an Edison phonograph today you buy a before-the-war value with an after-the-war dollar. If you have any fear that there may be a reduction in the prices of Edison phonographs, we are prepared to give you full assurance on that point.

Population of Orphanage Increases.
The population of the Christian Home orphanage, located at Council Bluffs, Iowa, has steadily increased since January 1, 1919. The fact that more children have been placed for adoption in private families than ever before in a similar period of time. This institution is known nationally, and for nearly forty years has been a haven for homeless and destitute children and aged dependent women. It has a daily average of 250 inmates to provide for. It is non-sectarian, has no endowment, employs no agents, but is supported entirely by the voluntary contributions of charitable people from all parts of the country. The orphanage is endeavoring to raise funds at Thanksgiving to enable it to carry on its humane efforts. A Thanksgiving donation from you to this worthy work will help provide for some homeless, motherless child. Address, The Christian Home Orphanage, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Young people are likely to be injured more by excessive luxury and ease than by excessive work and hardship.

The tobogganing of four weeks has been checked somewhat by a general movement to keep up the wheat market.

The labor union's policy of shorter hours, increased compensation and decreased production has been materially relaxed of late.

Thanksgiving day will come next week hence. When people earnestly contemplate things from all angles, they will find a great deal to be thankful for.

Before the days of automobiles, travelers in wagons and burros had to look out sharply for approaching storms. Now an average automobile can beat an average storm and get safely under cover.

Fine weather for corn picking has been the rule at every pleasant day since largely to the number of bushels safely cribbed. Two weeks more of such weather and little corn will remain in the field. No more favorable season for gathering the crop could be asked for.

The broken that have been put on all kinds of buying everywhere the last few months may be expected to be regained materially during the next few weeks. With a cut out of the fields and more encouraging conditions, people will have the time and likely the inclination to loosen purse-strings and gratify their wants.

The street commissioner ought to arouse himself to extra effort for freezing weather sets in and smooth the side streets and especially the dumps leading to the paved districts. With this done, in conjunction with four miles of paving, Wayne will offer during the winter distinctly superior advantage as a trading and marketing center.

It is generally agreed that women voters in the late election, enjoying their first trial of electoral franchise, acquitted themselves with quite as much knowledge and judgment as men who have always exercised the privilege. It has even been pointed out that women have frequently shown a superior understanding of candidates and measures. It looks as though the enfranchisement of women would impart new and important intelligence to public affairs and lift the standard of American politics.

The exactions of labor unions, with frequent strikes, have hampered and delayed building operations during the past year. In consequence of labor difficulties and the scarcity and high cost of materials, the demand for new movements has been only partially met. But the prospect is said to be more favorable. The demands of labor unions will not be so great and building materials will be cheaper and easier to get. It is therefore to be presumed that improvements will be invited rather than discouraged, and that new buildings, long needed to answer the requirements of growth, will be realized.

In politics, the popular idol of today may suffer tragic defeat tomorrow. Four years ago, President Wilson won reelection amid the plaudits of the country. Now he goes down to defeat, his administration repudiated and his health broken. Former President Taft was chosen national leader only to be humiliated and cast off four years later. Taft was such a rock in the sea that he has come back into popular favor, probably stronger than ever. President Harding is now the center of universal interest. He will soon meet the acid test to which every president is subjected. He will go on an extended tour of the world in the next other four years if his judgment proves sound and his administration constructive and successful.

Sense of good humor saves people from a great deal of suffering. It dulls the sting of adversity, removes a greater measure of the weight of any misfortune. One should be serious enough to be sensible, but not so serious as to be morose. He is deeply hurt by inevitable calamities and obstructions. It is an advantage to be sensitive if one is alive to the quality of good humor. If one is called a Abster, he should not try to assume proofs or pretexts to believe that he is not one. He ought to admit that he is one, and that as labors go, he is rather superior and more of an ornament to society than critics reasonably expect. If you feel deep down in your soul that your accuser is a postiferous crochaker, fight the thought with lively good humor. Try to convince yourself that he is not one. Don't be too serious. Develop sense of good humor. Find the sunshine, not the shadows.

THE CITY MANAGER PLAN

Norfolk has started a movement to adopt the manager plan of city government, which reminds us that Wayne has talked of a similar change for a number of years without doing anything tangible in that direction. As we understand, if Wayne wants to consider the manager plan, next year would have to be circulated and other definite steps taken before the first of the year. Otherwise the change cannot be made at the election next spring. It might be advisable for the local Commercial club committee to consider the proposition.

The secretary of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce received a letter from a Dubuque, Ia., friend, who suggested that the manager plan put into operation in that city last spring. The letter has this to say:

Our council was elected on April 13, and our new city manager, Mr. O. E. Carr, was selected by them and took office the first of June. I have given the city's finances. He found over half-million dollars delinquent taxes and nearly $300,000 floating indebtedness. How to balance these two has been his chief worry, but we believe we are going to solve the problem through the formation of a corporation to buy these delinquent taxes at the December sale, the stock of which is now being sold to every public spirited citizen.

When I have a city manager who is an experienced engineer and has had experience in managing other cities, you are likely to get action quickly on important projects. For instance, the first of October our electric company notified everybody of a change in rate Oct. 6. The city manager called the council and the electric company officials together and got them to agree to give him until Nov. 1 to investigate the proposed change. He got an appraisal company from Kansas City to make an appraisal of the plant, their operating expense and the income and on Nov. 1 submitted to the council evidence showing that the proposed raise was entirely too high but that a slight raise was justifiable and with the facts and figures before them the council authorized the slight raise he recommended which will give the electric company 7 per cent on investment. This action has saved the citizens of Dubuque thousands of dollars and cost but a comparatively small amount. It is worth while to have an experienced man of this kind in charge of the city in order that it may be run in a business like way as any other corporation is managed.

Ice and Prohibition.

Springfield, Mass. Republican: Soft drinks require more cracked ice than hard drinks, and therefore prohibition has benefited the ice business. This year of the eighteenth amendment was duly recognized and affirmed in the fourteenth annual convention of the Eastern Ice Manufacturers' association at Atlantic City this week. If we study the economics of prohibition from the ice dealers' point of view, it may follow that prohibition will also have the permanent effect of increasing the price of ice.

Women and the Pipe.

Cedar Rapids Republican: The latest is that women are taking to smoking pipes. But that is not new. There was a time in old "Indiana" when every pioneer mother smoked her pipe—and many did it even in Iowa where the women were wiser. As was an ugly habit and women soon dropped it. There may be no more harm in a woman smoking than there is in a man doing so, but it looks a lot worse—and it is a lot worse. What woman can look wholesome with a pipe hanging out of her mouth?

Merely Academic.

Minneapolis Journal: Incidentally Massachusetts had a referendum on the 22nd of June and gave a 79,000-600 majority. That shows the state of opinion in Massachusetts, but it does not provide the liquid.

When Landis Empires.

Kansas City Times: With Judge Landis as empire it's a good guess that from now on official rulings on the law will be as simple as the standard and on the field with a considerably increased amount of respect—and silence.

Assisting the President-Elect.

Sioux Falls Argus-Leader: By the time President-elect Harding returns from his winter trip, his cabinet will be complete, if our old friend David Lawrence is allowed to continue his activities.

Roughnecks Take Notice.

New York World: Now that Judge Landis is to be the head of baseball, may interest the roughneck element to know that he is the man who once fined the Standard Oil company $29,000,000.

Bixby: The tide has turned and it is either "back to the farm, boys," or "over the hill to the poor house" for some of us.

Blankets at Half Price

For a Short Time Only

Take your choice of any blanket in our store and pay just one-half the regular price. This means $1.50 blankets go at 75 cents, $5.00 blankets at $2.50, $15.00 blankets at $7.50, etc. The sale starts Saturday morning and closes as soon as we have sold one-half our stock. We make this remarkable cut to get our blanket stock down to where it should be. The warm weather and high prices have hurt blanket sales badly and our stock is just twice as large as it should be. You have not bought blankets as cheaply in years as you can get them at if you buy during this sale, and it is doubtful if you will get them anywhere as cheap during the next few years. We are just simply overloaded, and are willing to take this loss rather than carry the stock until next year. Come early. 150 pairs are all we will sell at this great reduction.

Cotton Blankets

Blankets for three-quarter beds at $1.50 will sell at 75 c. $2.50 and $3.00 full I-I-4 blankets will sell at $1.25 and $1.50. The largest size, $4.00 to $6.00 sizes will sell at $2.00 and $3.00. All fine, perfect goods, pretty borders and shell stitched edges.

Wool Blankets

All grades from the regular army blanket, made for service only, up to the finest, softest all-wool blankets, made up in beautiful plaids and finished in silk and satin bindings. These would make elegant Christmas gifts for the married sons and daughters. At half price only until 30 pairs are sold, so come early.

Auto Robes

Eight fine wool auto robes are included in this half price sale. They would make splendid gifts at a very reasonable price. Fine for couch-covers and extra covering of any kind. Regularly priced $11.50 to $25.00. Your choice now at just half.

On an eastern road it would be done in two hours and perhaps in less time, for forty and often more miles per hour is not an uncommon speed. But one car has gone to Niobrara district, therefore this is the way it has to be done. First, you take the 8 a. m. train from Sioux City, where you arrive at 10 o'clock. You are now twenty-five miles further from your place of destination than when you started. You look around the metropolis of the northwest until 2 o'clock, at which time you board the train running up through Dakota territory to Sioux Falls, and so far as Canton, seventy-five miles from Sioux City. You arrive at Canton at 6 o'clock p. m., and are still as far from Niobrara as when at Sioux City, and twenty-five miles farther off than when you set sail in the morning. You now rest and rattle down the line for an hour or so, and then you start on the main line for Marion Junction, arriving in an hour or half and at 4 p. m. Niobrara is as far off as when you started. At Marion Junction you change your car and then at the safe of ten miles per hour, you go on your way. The morning I also had a bad case next morning. UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher.

Time Passes.

Fall soon the blizzards will be coming, and hanging snow wreaths on our brows, and we'll be asked to do our shopping as early as the law allows. It seems no time since bells were ringing proclaiming Christmas peace once more, that happy time when I was bringing a ton of jinnicks from the store. It seems no time since old Kris Kringle promised his filver through the night, the echo of his sleighbells' light, seemed all around me as I write. And now we're facing Winter baby, and soon each street at which I glance will say, "Please do your shopping early, and give the weary clerks a chance." No doubt the children think the seasons have much like souls or turtles—dead; but we old folks have sundry reasons for cursing Time's indelible haste. A summer's gone before we know it, and the autumn smiles, and then it's through, and e'en a highly moral note is moved to language warm and blue. The sexton to his ring is coming, to ring in Christmas joy and cheer; and soon the old bell will be ringing some other bells—and we won't hear. The sky is gray, the wind is sure, now desolate the landscape grows; oh, let us do our shopping early, and give the sway-backed clerks repose.

Jay Walkers.

The men who drive the choo-choo lights are pinched and fined, and are punished, when they're discovered, speeding, and all the witnesses appear when justice is done. I don't know why they get fined when they're speeding. The motorists are much to hull or movie show. I have a sympathy profound for all the fish that scoot around the bay, their fins and tails, their tails, the sharks, the devilfish, the whisks. I would invite them from the deep, and give them beds in which to sleep, and places where they might get dry, and noggins of denatured eye, but they can't understand the tongue in which the invitation's sprung. And maybe, as they see me stand in solemn grandeur on the sand, they wonder why I don't wade around like them, and hold the trenchant fin.

Bury Me.

Some of us are gifted speakers and we make the welkin sound, fad and the lesser shriekers who may argue and expound, and our grave yard is flowing when we come before you bowing—but the farmer with his plowing makes the old world's wheels go round. Some are farmers, with our guns and butcher knives; and a lot of us, as writers, by the fodder for our wives; others on the stage, or in the ring, through the lines of "Hamlet" staying, but the farmer with his hay is the man who saves our lives. Some are all their lives devoted to the well known public weal, and in congress, silver-throated, you may hear them ably speak; and they have our admiration, our applause and adulation—but the farmer saves the nation, when he feeds the calves their meal. Some are pointing gorgeous pictures designed to lead us sane, and despite the critics' strictures, they will get there just the same; some are preachers, and their morals, some are galting singers' laurels—but the farmer with his sorrels, or his bayhorns, plays the game.

All the farmers say, and we do not see him stopping, yelping for a six-hour day; when the early dawn is breaking, and the sun is just coming, and his honest bones are aching, when at night he hits the hay.

Litering Flies.

The flies should all be dead when bleak November comes, but some are on my head, a-twiddling of their thumbs. And when, for some reason, I to my couch repair, they climb around my nose, and make me rub and sweat. They're out of season now, and so hang my eyes, and caressing on my brow and tickling like a plague. In summer we expect things won't seem correct, if none should greet our eyes; but when November brings the frost we've long desired, the buzzings and the stings of insects make us find. The flies I'd gladly teach, if I had half a chance, that there's a time to preach, and there's a time to dance; and there's a time to crawl upon a mortal's head; and there's a time to fall and slumber with the dead. All things, when out of date, are toying to the soil; in summertime we hate to blow ourselves for coal. We do not love the guy who jests when jokes are wrong; no, we like the fly that sticks around too long. Leaves have their time to fall, and roses to depart; the fly upon the wall should take this truth to heart.

The Wre-Hone.

I stand upon the shore and deep at creatures that infest the deep, and sort of things with fins and scales, from sharks and lobsters up to whales. (Of course you'll say, with scornful grins, these haven't either scales or fins; smart alecks always gather near to show where little breaks appear.) As I was saying, on the shore I stand and hear the breakers roar; and wonder how the things that roam forever in that briny home can stand such moisture all their lives, and not get mad and beat their wives. No magazines or books are there, no glowing hearth, no easy chair, there's nothing for a fish to do but soak itself the long years through, and judge the bigger fish that strives to catch and swallow it alive. There's no place for a fish to go, no lecture

Unexplained.

A man with sideburns may be wise, a shining light to other guys, but an unman out of nine or eight will wonder why a deathless hate, and wonder why he'll thus behave when twenty cents will buy a shave. And when the man who can explain why sideburns don't seem safe and sane? Why do they make most men see red, and yearn to touch the wearer's head? The man who leads a dog around may be a scholar most profound, may be endowed with virtues fine, equipped in all crowd to shine. But men who see him will remark, "He ought to do that after dark; a man should be seen by being to lead a dog—swish with a string when there are chores that should be done ere yet the night obscures the sun." I cannot tell the reason why, and yet we all detest the guy, who travels parang and verst, and leads his living verewurst. The man who's free with good advice may have a nature sweet and nice; sincerity may mark his rede when he would counsel, guide and plead, but still he keeps us seeing red, and would bounce a brick upon his head. We are a cranky bunch, say I; we loathe and love and don't know why.

What Do We Mean

There's always room at the top

We put Spurs on the market with our eyes open. We knew "There was Room at the Top" for highest possible quality, at lowest possible price"—and we said so in print.

And now Spurs are perched at the top—but we didn't put them there. Smokers did it themselves. You can't keep a good thing down—and it didn't take smokers long to discover that Spurr had something they wanted.

What was it? Just that good old tobacco taste—that quality of bygone days. Spurr's blend is choicest Turkish, fine Burley and other home-grown tobaccos—and it's some blend.

Now—how about smoking a top-notch cigarette?

LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO CO.

Set this down, too! Spurr are cranked—not panted; You'll see it in the seam of every Spurr. You'll find it means better taste, easier drawing, slower burning.

"Notice the belt and sleeves of the 'gown' and the skirt," said with ironic black dir.

Professor David Todd, America's greatest astronomer, will endeavor to prove that life exists on the planet Mars by ascending as high as possible in a gigantic, dirigible and taking photographs. By taking a great ascent of perhaps many miles, the pictures will have been accomplished; fixing out of the small particles of dust on the surface of the earth that are such a hindrance in photography and also by getting the best possible photographs which will be closer to the earth in 1922 or 1923 than at any time for the past.

CONSOLIDATED WITH THE WAYNE REPUBLICAN

WAYNE HERALD, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1920.

VOL. 34, NO. 24

EXTENSION OF R. R. PROPOSED Report That Sioux City-O'Neill Line Will be Pushed Westward

O'Neill, Neb., Nov. 16.—Intimations from semi-official sources that construction of the proposed extension of the Burlington Sioux City-O'Neill line from O'Neill to Thedford, Neb., where it will connect with the Burlington main line, will be begun next summer, receive partial confirmation by the activities of the company along the present line and an inspection of the Sioux City-O'Neill line concluded by high officials of the road last week.

The company has been at work and has maintained work trains and work crews all summer widening all cuts along the line, placing the road in shape for heavy traffic and reinforcing the equipment and bridges, particularly the one at Allen. The work was inspected last week by a party including General Superintendent Flynn of the lines west of the Missouri, Division Superintendent C. C. Allen, Trainmaster Connett, Head Master Harthe, and Master Carpenter Fred Heddingen.

Make Close Inspection.
They came to O'Neill Thursday night in his private car of the general superintendent and left early Friday morning on the inspection engine of the general superintendent. They made a more close and careful inspection of the new work. Commercial club officials and local business men were not informed of the contemplated arrival of the party and while in the city the officials did not discuss railroad matters, but inspected local roads and the forty-two acres of ground acquired sometime ago for roundhouse and yard enlargement. The activities along the line this summer and fall, and the recent application of the company to issue nine millions of securities for development work indicate, it is believed, the intention of speedy construction of the Thedford extension, which has been a part of the development scheme of the road for years.

writer that he is figuring on a sale and has been approached by several prominent brewers to take his offering to Wayne. However, while he admits that the invitation is alluring, he thinks that Emerson will probably get his sale, believing that it is a good point for people to get to and return home the same day—and also the fact that he is a booster for Emerson, because it is his home town. He is a strong advocate of establishing a sale pavilion in Emerson, and would be glad to donate $200 toward the project.

R. W. Ley arrived home Friday from a trip to Kansas City and other southern points. He reports that the financial situation is more favorable and encouraging here than any place he knows of. He says there is no danger of a panic in any part of the country, however, and that there is no reason to feel alarmed. The tightening of the money market is due to excessive loans the last few years. People have bought extravagantly and often speculated unwisely, frequently abusing credit in the hope of winning large returns. The pendulum has swung to the other extreme. As readjustments take place and as credits over the heavy loans, a normal money market will be restored. Mr. Ley thinks people have no cause to become uneasy or fearful. He believes Wayne county is the most favored spot in America today.

Davis have been in Ponca this week looking after the interests of Allen in prosecution in the district court arising from the county board over a request for a special election to vote on the question of relocating the county seat. The board denied the petition on account of the signatures of a number of women who were needed to make an adequate number. Allen contends that the women were legal signers and should be counted.

Harding and T. R. Kansas City Star: An attractive feature of Senator Harding's character is his disinterest in connection with his relations with Roosevelt. He broke with Roosevelt in 1912 and his newspaper said some of the things of the progressive candidate. Later they were drawn together in the emergency of the war and Roosevelt turned to Harding for help in getting permission to raise a division of volunteers for service in France. It was the "Harding amendment" that carried the authorization which President Wilson specified.

When Harding became the presidential nominee he was subject to a bitter attack from democratic politicians who always had fought Roosevelt, for what his newspaper had said in 1912. Its editorial attacks were widely quoted. It happened that Harding had not written them, but of course he was responsible as owner of the paper. He did not wish and take refuge behind the technicality of authorship. When he was locked on the subject he simply said: "A good many of us said some darn fool things in 1912 that we have been sorry for ever since."

He did not use that fact that he had led the fight to enable Roosevelt to raise the division, nor would he permit publicity to be given to some cordial letters he had from Roosevelt in recognition of his services. He refused to use the words of this great American people like to see in the men they honor.

dead man to assist me in the campaign," was his explanation to the newspaper man.

He would not violate the canons of good taste in order to further his campaign, any more than he would hold out false hopes to the Irish of help from the next administration in order to get their votes. The incident revealed the sort of spirit the American people like to see in the men they honor.

ADJUSTMENT WITHOUT PANIC

No Financial Crash in Sight in Return to Lower Price Levels.

Omaha Trade Exhibit: Post-war requirements, which the com-try has been making, finally is at hand with no prospect of financial panic in sight, according to Archer Wall Douglas, chairman of the committee on statistics of the chamber of commerce of the United States, whose monthly report on business conditions was made public the first of the week.

The course of prices, the report sets forth, will continue downward. Merchandise stocks by January 1 will be smaller than for many years. "We are over the top and on the down grade in most phases of industrial and commercial life," says the report, "although there still continue to be exceptions to this general statement. Finished lines of metals, drugs and automobile sundries are among the most notable exceptions, especially as to price changes, which are few as yet in these particular branches of business.

"Demand in all lines is slackening. It is everywhere a case of most conservative buying rather than any great increase in supply. We are having a vivid illustration of how usual volume of business is made up largely of things people do not really need. Also, we see how people will get along without things they once thought indispensable, once the fit of economy is on them.

"Manufacturing and mining are meeting the situation, in the usual fashion, by running reduced time or shutting down altogether. This has already meant, in some cases, reduced wages. Zinc, lead and copper business see no call for going on producing when they cannot sell their ores and when prices keep on declining. Just now, the need of the situation is to stabilize prices rather than money production.

"Talk of stabilizing prices, so as to save the situation, no longer interests any one save a few hopeless theorists. The laws of supply and demand will, in time, regulate matters.

"The entire business world is steadily trending to that adjustment which we have talked about so long. We have been through it before, several times, and we will go through it again, and successfully. This time it is robbed of its greatest terror, financial panic and ensuing danger. And through it all the federal reserve bank system will be a refuge.

"Theories of great and startling changes in the framework and organization of manufacturing life are dying out, in view of the exigencies of the occasion as to how to maintain adequate production at seasonably remunerative prices. Industrial life, in time, will doubtless be more decentralized than at present, but we do not dissent in the direction of running factories by committees.

"The entire commercial world is setting its house in order by reducing commitments, collecting outstanding accounts, and bringing down stocks of merchandise to the requirements of reduced demand. And it is all being done soberly and advisedly; all are awaiting that psychological time, the first of the year, when the current of events and general trend shall be more readily discerned and more easily interpreted. Meanwhile, much definite action is being postponed. Mercantile stocks in general will then be far less than for several years.

"The distinctly cotton sections of the south are sorely distressed because of low priced cotton and very little demand, especially for low grades. It is not a new experience to the south, and the south has always recovered ere long and gone on to greater prosperity. But it is an acute phase while it lasts. It is due not only to cotton mill inactivity in this country but to the general slump in European demand, especially from central Europe, which cannot buy as of old, no matter how desperate her needs.

"In the grain sections, low prices of farm products have put a crimp in the buying power and inclination of the farming community. Experience shows, however, from seasons more readily seen than analyzed, that depressions in agricultural sections because of low prices of farm products are neither so lasting nor so severe as those in industrial centers which proceed from lack of manufacturing activity and consequent unemployment. On the whole, the farming community can furnish its own subsistence and tide over bad times. Also the accumulated supplies whose abundance caused the depression are daily diminishing in volume and cannot be replenished until another harvest. This year's crop and demand of the lower supply and demand tend to remedy the trouble."

Weather and Trade.

SIoux CITY Journal: The advent of a cold wave which spread over most of the northern states and extended well into the south stimulated trade last week, especially in clothing, underwear and general apparel. The improvement was noticeable mostly in retail trade, wholesale and jobbing trade getting little benefit because most of the supplies sold to consumers were in the hands of retailers before the advent of the weather conditions.

Outside of the seasonal improvement of retail, trade and industrial conditions were little changed by developments of the last seven days. The dominating influences extend over longer periods. The most pronounced influence on general business was the withholding of the crops from the market. That policy not only affects the volume of trade but is reflected in the credit situation. The farmers are withholding their new crops from a declining market. Practically none of the new corn crop has been marketed, while the marketing of the oats crop has been scattered. Every farmer is holding his material, including his wheat. The result of these refusals to sell the crops is a scarcity of available business money in the agricultural regions. One of the direct results of the holding of the crops is an increase in the number of mercantile failures. During the last week in October there were more than double the number of failures of the corresponding week in 1919. Collections of raw material slowing up in the bottom growing regions of the south and the grain growing regions of the west.

With the volume of bank loans higher than they have ever been and with the ratio of gold reserve to note circulation far lower than it should be, the effect of withholding payments of loans on crops as well as the payment of current mercantile accounts which in turn would be utilized to reduce mercantile loans now overdue and pressing is obvious. Whether loans to the farmers through the federal reserve banks, which would have enabled them to put the value of their crops into circulation instead of the price of the crops realized from their sale on a low market, would have bettered the financial situation is debatable. Certainly, it would have enabled the farmers to pay their current obligations and thus relieve the mercantile stringency. The trouble is not that there is no money, but that there is not enough flowing through the customary channels.

H. B. Dirwidde wrote an encouraging word from a central American point; Miss Agnes Glenn wrote a touching account of her Japanese Sunday school work, and the aggressive campaign she and her co-workers are carrying on for souls in Clefti Ken province. A late word from India shows twenty converts in the Punjab district, which news was especially appreciated as the circle has been praying for a certain state in the Punjab, India, where over a million souls have never had any ray of gospel light till last week a worker entered there. It was a fine meeting.

Mrs. Wagner will be hostess next Tuesday.

Masquerade Party.

According to the time-honored custom, the senior class of the high school entertained the sophomore class at a masquerade party at the high school last Friday evening. At 7:30 o'clock the party assembled in the superintendent's office where a solemn oath was taken by the guests. A tour of the recitation rooms was then made, after passing a satisfactory examination in each room, the guests were conducted to the music room where games furnished entertainment. At 9:30 o'clock, the party repaired to the gymnasium where a banquet was spread on miniature tables covered with the most delicious of newspapers. It was observed that the dignified seniors set on chairs of regulation height, whereas the little red chairs from the kindergarten were given to the faculty members and the sophomores. Donald Miller presided as toastmaster. Toasts were given by Lydia Griggs, president of the senior class, and Mrs. Pollard and Miss Rowe, sponsors of the senior and sophomore classes, respectively. Mr. Armstrong, host for the evening, but his voice having deserted him earlier in the day, he was compelled to resort to pantomime.

The costumes worn by faculty members and students were very striking. A bread wrapper, the prize for the best costume, was given to Mr. and Mrs. Perivall Goppenheimer, a bride and bridegroom, who are known in school hours as Miss Christine Weber and Miss Otha Kemnick.

The second prize, a soap wrapper, was awarded to Roland Rippon who was arrayed as a demure maiden.

It is needless to say that the fun did not lag at any time during the evening. The story of the party will be pasted in memory books with other never-to-be-forgotten high school functions.

Prohibition Divided.

Lincoln Journal: "The city of Bozeman has received a definite dividend from the policy of prohibition. During the last year of the open saloon the city sent 52,700 people to the institution at Deer Island. In the last year of war prohibition the number fell off two-thirds. The money saved was turned into the city treasury. It amounted to $250,000 in a single year.

A Threatening Fact.

Springfield, Mass., Republican: H. G. Wells, who has so often peered into the future, was a keen observer of conditions in Petrograd and Moscow, but he passes by as secondary much on which others have put stress, and says: "The dominant fact for the western reader, a threatening and disconcerting fact, is that a social and economic system very like our own and intimately connected with ours has crashed."

Beginning of a Republic.

Springfield, Mass., Republican: The victory of the 8-year-old Polish wizard, Samuel Rezasewski, over 19 of West Point's most accomplished chess players, suggests the possibility that the new republic in eastern Europe may some day have the world's greatest military strategist.

Kind of Cattle to Feed.
Drovers John-Stockman: "It will be the longest, well-finished beef that will give the corn-belt feeder a profit for his work this year, rather than the shorted, roughly finished cattle," firmly declared E. C. Brackner, an Iowa feeder of many years' experience, who bought 73 head of good western steers for his winter feeding pen.
"There is too much shorted stuff coming to market and not enough cattle being retained for longer feed periods to do the farmers any good, under the present condition," he continued. "In order to get cattle which would make rapid gains on a short feed this year, it was neccessary for the corn-belt farmer to buy the best stock on the market and consequently he was forced to pay rather heavy prices for the cattle. In spite of the financial stringency, I know of several instances where Iowa farmers have allowed their good judgment to be overruled in buying this short feeding stock, and have paid prices for them which are clear out of reason."

According to Mr. Brackney, with the market price of feed at its present level, the longer a steer is fed this season the less the expense will be—figuring proportionately. He claims that the most expensive gains within an unit of time is when feed is placed on a steer, founding his contention on facts which he has been able to learn after handling cattle for market approximately 40 years.
Mr. Brackney, whose home is at Red Oak, has retired from the actual feeding business, but purchased his stock for his men to feed on his farm near Anderson. He retired and resided up to a short time ago. He is planning to turn the cattle into the cornfields for a short time and then place them in the feed lots and give them a concentrated ration of corn and hay. He expects to have them ready for market within four or five months and is figuring on having them weigh from 1,800 to 1,900 pounds. The 73 head of western steers which Mr. Brackney purchased here weighed 979 pounds and cost him 9 cents a pound. At this price, Mr. Brackney says they cannot help but make him a profit, as the price of corn and beef will need to drop below 10 cents a pound before he can say the cattle lost him money.

The City Manager Plan.
Omaha Bee: Get this straight—Adoption of city manager plan in business affairs can be handled by a city manager does not mean that local government will be taken out of the hands of the people. It does not mean that the governor will appoint the manager. It simply means that the important business of carrying on the city administration will be under the care and control of an experienced, capable man, just as that of any going business concerns under the direction of a manager, the head who is responsible to the stockholders. Each citizen is a stockholder in the community. He has a personal direct interest and concern in the proper management of the business of governing the community, for he pays the running expenses of that government. Therefore, he is vitally interested in having the administration as efficient as possible, because it means money in his pocket. Only where authority and responsibility are concentrated is efficient management possible. For this reason the old city council was abolished and the commission plan adopted, the chief argument in favor of the change being that it would centralize control and fix personal responsibility among the commissioners. To a certain extent this has been accomplished, but the plan is a failure because it does not do away with the conflict that arises from overlapping jurisdiction between the several departments and provides no central power to say what is to be done. It permits the formation of a majority and a minority group in the commission, with the friction naturally and inevitably flowing from such a condition. This can be done away with only through the plan for a city manager.

City Commissioner Ure proposes a reduction of the commission from seven to five in number, and would permit the division referred to, reducing it from 4 to 3 to 3 to 2, just as a commission of three would be divided 2 to 1, and a commission of two members would frequently split 50-50. It is well and proper that a majority control, but when public business requires immediate and unanimous action, a single control makes it absolutely certain.
The city manager plan contains no house-poor, nor any magical formula for curing public ills. It proposes to adapt business principles to the handling of public affairs. That is all.

For Speaker of Nebraska House.
Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 15.—The ninety-two republican members of the Nebraska house have a job on their hands selecting the speaker to preside over next winter's deliberations. Several members have already announced their candidacy or have hinted that they will shortly enter the race.
These are: Anderson, of Lancaster; Snow of Dumas; Drusner of Douglas; Byrum of Franklin; God of Nebraska; Rodman of Kimball and Axtell of the Jeffers. In addition to these, Williams of Fillmore, Epperson of Clay and McEllan of Hall, who are mentioned as good-timber if the members cannot make a choice between the candidates.

At Agricultural Meeting.
Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 15.—Gov. Henry J. Allen, of Kansas, and Henry C. Wallace, editor of Wallace's Farmer, of Des Moines, have been added to the list of prominent men vitally interested in agriculture who will speak at the meetings of organized agriculture at Lincoln January 3 to 7. Gov. Allen will speak at the general session Wednesday, January 5, and Mr. Wallace will deliver two addresses on Friday, January 7, before the Nebraska farm bureau and the committee is in correspondence with other prominent men and women, including the Canadian minister of agriculture. Indications now point to these meetings being the greatest assemblage of farmers ever held in Nebraska.

Reason for Their Defeat.
Los Angeles Times: Gompers has attempted to cover up the overwhelming defeat of the political department of the American Federation of Labor by asserting that fifty congressmen whose records were condemned by organized labor have been defeated. He seeks to give the impression that their defeat was due to the activities of the walking delegates. But a scrutiny of the list proves that nearly all of them lost their seats to republicans, that they owed their defeat not to their opposition to organized labor, but to their allegiance to the democratic party.

The Proper Sequel.
St. Paul Pioneer Press: If a building trade quarrel was the cause of murdering nearly forty innocent people in Wall street, in no way connected with the controversy, the story needs another chapter--of the electric chair for the guilty parties.

Good Picking.
Stillwater, Okla., Gazette: The fact should not be overlooked that the choice he alleged to have been made by "half a dozen senators" was indeed by a majority of more than 7,000,000 of voters. Good picking, we'll say.

MRS ELDER WRITES OF TRIP

With Companion Visits Palm Beach and Cross Lake Okechobee.

Mrs. Guy Elder, who with her husband and Harold Elder, left two weeks ago for Moore Haven, Fla., writes a letter to a friend, from which the following excerpt describing their trip is taken.

"The trip was really fine. Having a private car and a chef made the party very exclusive. We reached Moore Haven at midnight last Monday and stayed in the sleeper until morning. Cars were waiting for us and we went to a boat owned by the company where the boat-chief and the porter who had preceded us were waiting to serve breakfast.

"After that we agitated in the cars to go out over the land. There must have been at least ten cars. First we went to places under cultivation, and we certainly saw wonderful crops. Then the new-land just drained was shown and enthusiasm reached a high pitch. The soil is covered in a shaggy forest that told last year that we joked him about not being stretched were nothing more than we saw mile after mile.

"We went out all day, coming back to the boat at 6 o'clock for dinner. When all were off board and the boat was under way, we started on our trip down the canal.

"There were fifty in the party. The boat accompanied us for the dinner we all went up on the deck where a beautiful moon made the surroundings as bright as day. From the canal we crossed Lake Okechobee and crossed its thirty-five miles, and during the night entered the other canal through locks. Coming back during the day we saw just how the big gates of the locks were swung open. Generally there is a two-foot drop but at present the water in the canal is low and there is a level.

"In the morning we had landed at North Palm Beach and after breakfast we delivered an address at this convention on "Teacher Training."

restored, will be equal to transporting from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 Europeans to "the land of the free." Commissioner Wallace estimates that from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 Italians and more than 3,000,000 Polish Jews are preparing to come over. From 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 Germans will endeavor to come as soon as technical paper is resumed. There are millions composed of Greeks, Bulgars, Serbs, Magyars, Poles, Bohemians, Austrians, Romanians, Little Russians, Armenians, Syrians, who are eager to come. Europe's recovery from the war depends first of all upon relief to congestion afforded by emigration, just as was the case following the Napoleonic wars.

The case today is more aggravated than after Waterloo. There are more millions in today's Europe to feed and proportionately less to feed them. Possibly a fifth of Europe will have to find homes outside Europe, in Siberia, in the Americas, in Africa, in Australia. But as to come here is to follow the line of least resistance, hither, unless deflected by restrictions, the bulk of the world will pour.

We have been trusting in our institutions operating by themselves, in our economy which can industrially absorb the influx, in our good intentions and in God—who as Mr. Taft said, takes care of babies, drunks and the United States—by taking such a chance as probably no people can take with impunity. The third international, in Europe, pointing to the catastrophe which competing nationalities produced, hopes to unite the European proletariats. The preceding internationalists failed to do, because national loyalties proved too strong. German, French and Italian socialists supported the war. In America, no longer obligated by their ancient loyalties, and not yet devoted to the new, the different groups can better be re-annihilated into a revolutionary whole. The third international of its successor will find a promising field in the United States after there shall have entered here 20,000,000 to 40,000,000 Europeans whose minds have been bolshevized, communized, socialized, what not.

Paying the Bill. New York World: Wars are very expensive luxuries and they must be paid for in many ways quite apart from the continuing burden of taxation. The American people are only beginning to pay for this war. The taxes that they have been grumbling about are only one small item in the bill, and the first thing they need to learn is that there is no political remedy for great economic evils. Where they rely on government at Washington to find a quick cure is legislation the more serious will be the consequences.

The Inflowing Tide. Minnesota Journals: A million and a half emigrants will have entered the United States in the year 1920. This is at the rate of 15,000,000 newcomers in a year. The rate will doubtless be exceeded, may be doubled or tripled. It can be measured by the straits capacity of the United States for services, which this year has been limited to a million and a half west going passengers, but which, when
