SPEAKER TELLS SOUTH AMERICAN EXPERIENCE

C. W. Ray, in Captivity of Savage Tribes in Yucatan, Tells Here.

C. W. Ray who recently returned from the Yucatan where he had been engaged in exploration and missionary work among savage tribes, delivered a lecture at the Wayne State Normal auditorium last Monday night before a large and appreciative audience.

The speaker, in telling of his experiences, related how his seven years' work as an explorer had led him through five South American countries and diverse tribes by one of which he was held in captivity six years. It was while a captive that he determined to engage in missionary work, and his talk was illustrated throughout with various articles of adornment. He gave a resume of the difficult and grilling process by which he was freed from his captivity, how "Father of Kitchens," leader mid medicine-man of the tribe, became converted to the faith which resulted in his being the speaker of the formidable club which had been the means of dealing death to thousands of his people.

Leads in Hay Production

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 16.—Nebraska's production of hay last year—5,770,000 tons places Nebraska first among the hay producing states of the United States. Last year's production of hay exceeds the crop of Nebraska in 1919, compared with Minnesota, by 805,000 tons, according to figures compiled by the agricultural statistician for the bureau of crop estimation.

While Nebraska ranks second in the production of wild hay and third in tame hay, the total production of both places the state first in the production of all hay. The order in rank of hay production from the eight highest states is as follows: Nebraska, 5,770,000 tons; Minnesota, 5,672,000 tons; South Dakota, 5,630,000 tons; New York, 5,547,000 tons; California, 5,135,000 tons; Wisconsin, 5,071,000 tons; Iowa, 48,000 tons; and Kansas, 4,688,000 tons.

With the exception of two states where irrigation is the principal source of water, Nebraska leads all states in average yield per acre of tame hay. William Lessman Sells Thirty Hereford Cattle

William Lessman, well known breeder of purebred cattle, sold thirty Hereford cattle at public auction at the Wayne pavilion Saturday afternoon. A large crowd was in attendance, and while prices were not considered high, the buying was prompt and buyers were well satisfied. As Mr. Lessman explained, breeders of pure bred stock have been hit the same as other people by the financial depression, and they do not expect their animals to bring fancy prices.

The judge of Herefords was in praise of Mr. Lessman's offering. Every animal came up to highest expectations, and every buyer had reason to believe he made a good bargain. Considering the condition of the times, the sale was not a disappointing one.

The cattle will go to buyers at Bloomfield, Hoskins, Randolph, Carroll, Laurel and Wayne, and the high standard of the Lessman herd will be reflected in many other herds.

Income Tax Facts.

Frequent inquiries are received by collectors of internal revenue from stockholders and other business men as to whether the taxpayer in business for himself may deduct from his gross earnings an amount of salary paid to himself.—Wages or salary drawn by a taxpayer from his own business are more in the nature of a charge out of profits than a charge against profits. If deductible they would merely be added to his income and the effect would be to take money out of one pocket and put it in another. Therefore, claims for such deductions are not allowable.—Salaries paid to minor children employed in the conduct of a taxpayer's business are not allowable deductions. If, however, a son or daughter has attained majority or is allowed free use of their earnings without restriction, a reasonable amount paid as compensation for their services may be claimed.

A farmer who employs a man to assist in the operation of his farm may deduct from gross income the amount paid for such services. Likewise, if he employs a woman whose entire time is occupied in taking care of the milk, cream, butter, and churns, or if her services are devoted entirely to the preparation and serving of meals furnished farm laborers and in caring for their rooms, the compensation paid her is an allowable deduction. If, however, she is employed solely in caring for the farmer's own household no deduction can be made.

In arriving at net income upon which the tax is assessed, deductions may be made for ordinary and necessary business expenses. The revenue act specifically prohibits the deduction of personal, family or living expenses. Such expenses include rent for a home, wages of servants, cost of food and clothing for the family, education of children, and all items connected with the maintenance, well-being, and pleasure of the taxpayer and his family.

Buyer is Now Big Factor.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: When the manufacturer said last summer that the price of his products could not come down because production costs still were up, he overlooked the fact that the market had turned from a seller's to a buyers market.

The Early Days in Two Counties

From Wayne Herald-February 13, 1897. Farmers are planning to take part in a wolf hunt. Many farmers intend to sow wheat this week.

Chas. Reynolds came up from the state university for a short visit. Early in the year Stephen Hamlin had $4,000 in gold stolen from his cellar.

A Massachusetts county estate is lighted with electricity by windmill power. Plum Creek wants a postoffice, a grocery store, blacksmith shop and a creamery.

Sportsmen predict an abundance of wild geese and ducks because of so much water. A Wayne club was organized with T. W. Moran president, and Harry Jones secretary and treasurer.

Mrs. Jennie Johnson, aged 70; died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. P. N. Nelson, February 14, 1897. Markets—Wheat, 52c; corn, 36c; flax, 56c; eggs, 9c; hogs, $2.70.

The bill providing for the construction of a canal through the labyrinthian swamps has been introduced. H. F. Peavy of Minneapolis, passed through Wayne yesterday. He is touring the state inspecting the corn.

Items of interest to old settlers taken from the Wayne Review, published at La Porte, 1881. L. E. Hunter, late of this office, has accepted a position in a Norfolk office.

Mr. D. W. Britton and daughter, arrived last Saturday. Mr. Britton will arrive soon.

Within six weeks the publication of the Review has been attended with great difficulties on account of lack of fuel, which could not be obtained for love or money, and great credit is due to our compositor L. E. Hunter, who despite cold weather and numerous suggestions, has successfully succeeded in getting the paper out on time.

(We notice in the commissioners' proceedings in this issue of the Review that Hunter & Childs were allowed $14.92 for printing, A. S. Miner, $5.00 for circulating a petition, and J. T. Brewster 50 cents for splitting wood for the county.)

March 24, 1881. The railroads were blocked again last Saturday.

And now Monroe Conover straightens himself up, puts his tie a little more on one side of his head, and announces "He will be a voter after March 10, 1902."

A small part of the snow which fell October 15, still remains, scattered about in the hollows on the prairie.

R. Wilbur has lost seventy head of cattle all told through the winter in addition to one male and a valuable horse.

Last Sunday the Logan creek was the highest it has been known by the oldest inhabitants. All the bridges in Wayne and Dixon counties are gone or wrecked except one near Frank Crane's and that over the Dogwood branch by L. T. E. Lash's house and his whole farm was flooded. Twenty-two persons took refuge in the house of Geo. Childs during the flood.

April 23, 1881. The estimate of the county expense for the ensuing year amounts to $20,500.

John Beckenhauer's little girl was bitten by a rattlesnake last Sunday.

May 13, 1881. The scramble for county offices is going to be as hot as the weather during the coming summer, and there don't begin to be half offices enough to go around.

Yesterday afternoon our town was visited by a hail storm which to the sizes of the chunks of ice that fell, beats anything we ever witnessed. Some of the hail stones that fell measured eight and one-half inches in circumference after the storm was over.

E. F. Feather went to gain a residence on his homestead last Saturday.

Arthur T. Chapin, who last fall purchased 800 acres in township 35, range 2, arrived here this week from Washington county.

May 13, 1880. A. T. Chapin will see the breaking teams during the breaking season.

Mr. Morgan and family arrived Tuesday night. Mr. Morgan is sister to Mrs. Jas. Britton and Mrs. J. W. Agler.

County Clerk Hunter was called to Madison county with a portion of the records of the county as evidence against one of our colored citizens, but owing to the rain he did not go.

May 26, 1881. The new town of Bookdale is being surveyed and platted this week. One of our real estate firms has made sale of thirteen quarter-sections in two days of this week. J. M. Strahan of Malvern, Iowa, arrived this week with 1,450 head of cattle. June 9, 1881. We hear rumors of a change in the name of the new town from Bookdale to Wayne. What's in a name, anyway?

A brick kiln will soon be started on E. S. Cooper's place four miles north of La Porte. The proprietors claim to have as good a brick clay as can be found in the county.

June 16, 1881. Pat Dixon rejoices over the possession of a young daughter, born last Friday.

K. H. Skiles has the best piece of corn in the county, so says Sheriff Miner, and he knows.

Real estate has changed hands lively during the past ten days and the era of cheap lands in Wayne county is rapidly passing away. Already we see in the future of Wayne county one of the richest counties in northern Nebraska.

Died—in La Porte, June 13, 1881, Clark, son of Cyrus E. and Marc E. Hunter, aged 7 years, 2 months, and 24 days. He was buried in the cemetery west of La Porte on the following day; the services conducted by Rev. F. H. Calder.

From Ponca Journal, February 16, 1892. It is a fact that troubles when they commence coming along, generally make it easy for a man before they get through with him. Now to demonstrate this we will relate a little experience we had last week.

On Thursday morning the junior proprietor of this establishment was taken suddenly and violently sick. He had to go home and go to bed, and the doctor who was called to hover around him and thrash out the fever which afflicted him, issued a mandate that he may keep perfectly quiet for 2 days or two, or else sooner trials might be expedient.

Thursday is the day on which this paper goes to press. And it happens that on last Thursday, when the Junior Literary wrester of this sheet was taken sick he left us in a very precarious condition. We could not get enough to fill several papers, if we only had time; and give us time enough, say a week or ten days, we could probably have made up the forms and placed them on the press, provided however, that in so doing we did not reduce the whole to an anarchal and diabolical mass of pie. But as long as we had only a few hours left in which to get the paper out it looked as though our remarkable sheet would have to evolve itself out of virtue of its own energy, or else not get out at all.

Even in desperate cases we do not generally give away to despair. We hustled around and invited in J. W. Wigton and Lovel Jones, who came and stood up some type. Then we hunted up Professor Munn, and he came and made up the paper, locked it in its forms and sketched it upon the press. Then we tackled J. D. Smith and he came and went through the Herculean exercise of running the press. The Christian forbearance of Mr. Smith in assisting to get out a paper in which we had taken particular pains to skin him alive, is worthy of imitation, and shows the exemplary and forgiving nature which we, who run newspapers have.

Hence, notwithstanding the future looked dark Thursday morning, we had by Friday night run the grist through the mill, and on Saturday deposited the papers in the postoffice for subscribers.

This will account for the delay last week of two or three days. If health and help do not desert us, this paper will hereafter be out on time.

The "U. S." Bootee

Why every farmer needs a pair

YOU know how quickly leather shoes get water-soaked and caked with mud around the farm.

Here's a handy rubber shoe that's as watertight and easily cleaned as a rubber boot. First designed for miners, who must have a waterproof shoe that will not tire their feet, the U. S. Bootee was made to withstand the roughest wear—absolutely watertight—and yet light and comfortable.

It fits as smoothly over your sock as a leather shoe—you're sure of solid comfort all the time. And even in five or six inches of water it keeps your feet absolutely dry.

Ask your dealer to show you a pair of U. S. Bootees. Note their watertight, smooth rubber surface—feel how pliable and comfortable they are—examine for yourself their wonderful built-to-wear construction.

Other types of "U. S." Footwear—built for rough service

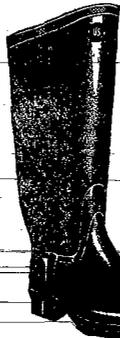

U. S. Boots have all the wear and comfort which the accumulated improvements of 74 years have given them.

U. S. Walrus combine the warmth and convenience of a cloth-top arctic with the protection of a rubber boot. They slip right on over your leather shoes, and you can wash them clean instantly while they're still on your feet.

The U. S. line of footwear has a type for every need—arctic, rubber, "overs." Every one is backed by over half a century of experience. The rubber comes from our own plantations—the whole process of manufacture is supervised by experts.

Always look for the U. S. Seal—it means solid wear and long service for your money.

People should not turn over to the schools and courts the training and rearing of their children. The responsibility for the habits of the young rests on parents, and the burden cannot well be shifted to other shoulders.

The impoverished condition of North Dakota is attributed by non-radical league leaders to the heavy hand of capitalism, and by anti-organizational leaders to the wild and radical antics of the league bosses. In any event, an effort is being made to float a bond issue of $6,000,000 to relieve the state's sick and depleted treasury.

Reports from New York encourage the belief that the work is over on the part of their radical friends. Bankers, manufacturers and others express themselves optimistically, believing the coming year will see conditions stabilizing and prosperous. Says Judge Albert H. Gury, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation: "In my judgment, there is no difficult situation to overcome. Notwithstanding the most disagreeable features of our daily life, which we bear or read, we have passed through out of them, or nearly so. We are rapidly returning to more normal conditions."

P. M. Corbit, chairman of the county board, who had charge of the Ross Jones family, wishes the Herald to express his gratitude for the generous contributions of clothing and other manifestations of humane and kindly interest. On the other hand, Mr. Corbit deserves appreciation for the considerate and tactful manner in which he handled the case. The spread of destitute and helpless little children—father gone and mother bereft of reason—quickly reached the heartstrings of sympathetic people. And the Herald is glad the big-hearted commissioner has reflected fine sentiment in the wise performance of his official duty.

A speaker at the press meeting in Lincoln last week pointed out what he believes to be the tendency of the editorial page, and another speaker deplored such a tendency if it was a fact. Through the editorial page may sometimes be out of accord with the will of our readers; it believed it should not be dispensed with, because it reflects or should reflect the character of the editor.

While people may not always agree with him, they would rather have disagreeing opinions than none at all. After reading the news, a reader usually wants to know if the editor has expressed an opinion and turns to the editorial page to find out. If a reader disagrees with the opinion, he may cuss a little and lay the paper aside. But if he never finds an expression of judgment on any subject, he is inclined to derisively deride the editor as a weakling and a fit subject for a backbone specialist.

Adoption of the new state constitution last September raised the salaries of state officers from $2,000 to $3,000. But the salaries of deputies and others employed in the different departments remain unchanged. This is considered unfair and unfair. For instance, the salary of the secretary of state is $1,800 a year, and the amount has been so inadequate to living requirements that he has been compelled to employ side lines to make ends meet. The other subordinate officers have had the same high struggle in fighting high costs. While many lines of employment have been raking in large rewards, the state's deputies have been underpaid. They have expected that the present legislature would plainly see the injustice which they have suffered and come to the rescue with more nearly adequate compensation. The measure is now before the session seeking such relief. It looks as though enough could be easily saved in many ways to amply make up the extra pay that ought to go to the subordinate officers of the state. It should not be necessary for them to pore around out of office hours to make enough to live on. It would seem no assault on economy to pay an employe what he earns and what he must have to afford a change of clothes and sufficient daily nourishment. We believe in strictest economy, but we don't believe in practicing it on those who are not rich enough to be in the public service merely for their health.

STUDENT-FACULTY PROTEST
Students and faculty members of Creighton university evidently do not agree with the favor expressed for the Smith-Towner bill by a speaker before a meeting of educators at Norfolk recently. The protest, signed by 150 Creighton university people, was sent to Senator Norris with a request that he do his utmost to defeat the proposed law. The resolution reads as follows:

"We respectfully notify you of our very determined opposition to the passing of the Smith-Towner bill. We consider the bill not only un-called for, but thoroughly un-American, a menace to American constitutional principles. It is obviously intended to promote education and stealing American citizenship, but we are convinced that it is in effect inimical to both.

"We hereby request you to bring these objections to the notice of congress; and to use your power to prevent the Smith-Towner bill from becoming law under any form."

New York Times: When Mr. Harding addressed the senate in December, he expressed the hope that the session would be one of hard work. What would he have thought then, that must be think now, of Senator Foraker's cool proposal to throw even the appropriation bills over to the extra session of the next congress? And all for the sake of a meeting, or worse, nine or ten days out and miserably partisan debate over a tariff bill which all admit cannot become law!

Bloomfield Postoffice Robbed—Nearby News

The postoffice at Bloomfield was broken into Thursday night and $600 worth of stamps were stolen from the safe. A careful checking up by the postoffice officials revealed nothing else gone. A previous attempt to break into the postoffice was made last November. It is believed that the same party is responsible for both attacks.

Mrs. Moses M. Warner, aged 60 of Lyons, died February 6. Mr. Warner is the editor of the Lyons Sun and for the past twenty years was always accompanied to the state press meetings by his wife. News paper men all over the state of Nebraska were acquainted with Mrs. Warner.

James Leese of Omrod, was sentenced to 60 days in jail for sending vanilla extract to a barber in Omrod. Complaints of relatives led to Leese's arrest.

The handicap chess tournament at Bloomfield closed Monday, February 7. Philip Kalar, Forrest Liddell, T. McGee and Leo McCann won the highest. Another tournament without a handicap being allowed, is planned for the near future.

Since the formation of a Radio club by the high schools of Lincoln, Nebraska, a new interest in wireless telegraphy has sprung up in Wayne county. This was the first of the club's headquarters of the club are located at Wayne, Neb. Prof. Britton, head of this phase of the work, recently sent a very cordial greeting via wireless, to all members and friends of the club. The work at Wisner is the work of Miss Agnes Graham, a Wayne graduate. Those belonging to the club must be able to receive twelve words a minute in order to qualify for membership. At present there are eight members in the organization.

Work was started at the Cedar county courthouses at Hastings recently when County Treasurer Robinson refused to transfer into the general fund a sum of $45,000 which had accumulated for a special bridge fund. Upon his refusal to honor the order and warrant, proceedings to issue a writ of mandamus against Mr. Robinson have begun. It appears that a board of county commissioners made an extra levy in 1919 of five mills on a dollar to create a special bridge fund, the levy of which was in excess of the 15 mills levy, the maximum required by law. The extra levy brought into the treasurer's office the sum of $45,000 and it was over the disposal of this money that the war started. The commissioners appropriated money from the general fund to the bridge fund to meet the emergency created by a storm until such time as the money could be transferred back again. This was refused by County Treasurer Robinson when applied for on the ground that measure was illegal. As yet this matter has not been decided, however the case is being watched with great interest by people in Cedar and surrounding counties.

Douglas Jeffrey and Walter Tuttle, two 13 year old Allen boys, ran away from home last week. They rode to Sioux City in a freight car and were found there by the parents. Douglas Jeffrey took $87 from his step-mother to defray their expenses.

Reports sent to indicate that the people of Stanton are doing their bit to alleviate the suffering of the people's starving children. The Stanton Weekly Picket states that recently R. A. Freiburg, a farmer living in the vicinity of Stanton brought in a corn-bush of 2000 pounds of corn, and then not satisfied with his donation, contributed an additional $5.00.

The 27th anniversary of the Stanton Sorosis club on February 8, was thought by many to have been the most elaborately celebrated anniversary ever recorded in the annals of Stanton's social history. The husbands of the members and several invited guests were ushered into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Drowle where the decorations, the courses and the attire of those serving the bountiful four-course dinner were all in keeping with the spirit of St. Valentine's day. The final part of the program took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Howe, where the guests found that the home had been converted into a veritable theatre, the living room and dining room being transformed into a ballroom and breakfast room, the stage. "Those Husbands of Ours," a farce in one act, told of the pitiable condition in which the ladies in the play found their homes upon their return from a vacation taken at the suggestion of their husbands. An original song, "Those Husbands of Ours," composed by Miss Alberta Nixon, concluded the program.

Charles Rutherford, an Aurora druggist, recently pleaded guilty to a charge filed against him by superintendent of schools, J. A. Doremus, for selling cigarettes to high school boys who were minors. Mr. Rutherford was fined fifty dollars and costs.

J. D. Howe of Storm Lake, Iowa, formerly a harness maker at Nemaha, after having hastened to catch the Milwaukee train, collapsed when the train had progressed but a mile out of the city limits. He died a few minutes after. The conductor had the train backed to the station where a physician pronounced the case one of acute dilation of the heart. Mr. Howe was 72 years old. It is believed that he had hurried too much in his attempt to catch the train.

Friends of Mrs. Swan Swanson of Oakdale, surprised her recently on her eightieth birthday. Though Mrs. Swanson has been blind for the past thirty years and is dependent upon others for support, she still remains a cheerful octogenarian.

Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Love of Pender celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary by the home of their daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Walter on February 9. One of the features of the evening's entertainment was the removal of Mrs. and Mrs. Love by Rev. Geo. Bray, in which the little grandmother, Alice Weller, presented the ring to the old couple. Mr. Love is a veteran of the Civil war. The couple came to Nebraska in 1871.

The members of the first basketball team of the Bloomfield high school recently pledged themselves to undergo strict training for the honor of their school, and the "best interests of the team." Among these pledges were total abstinence from spirituous liquors, tobacco, and lunching with meals. The boys also pledged themselves to observe regular hours for resting and a high scholastic average. Expulsion from high school athletics will follow any infraction of the pledge. The Bloomfield Monitor highly commended the boys on the step they have taken, believing it to be a victory for clean athletics.

The Citizens State bank of Orchard was robbed at 8 o'clock Sunday morning, Feb. 6. The doors to the bank vault were broken and the contents of the deposit boxes taken. OUR complete showing of woollens and styles for the spring season are now ready for your inspection: 1,200 woollens and 100 styles. You'll find in the line this spring many fine woollens that we have not been able to show you for several seasons.

Prices for the spring of 1921 will average at least 30 per cent lower than they were last season and the prices have been stabilized for the entire season. Therefore, there is nothing to be gained by postponing the buying of your spring suit.

Use Our Time File on Your Spring Orders

Come in and leave your order now and secure a selection from our complete line for spring. Have the finished garment come out whenever you want it—to suit your convenience—as late as June 1, if you choose. This insures your getting the pattern you like.

A man walked into my shop the other day and said "Morg," (That's my pet name) "Do you remember this suit?" I didn't but he looked for the pocket ticket and found that he had bought it the spring of 1913. He left his order for a new outfit and he didn't say much about the price.

Perhaps you, too, have gone through the peak of high prices with one of those good Ed V. Price & Co. suits. We are now in a position to sell you another one like it for about the same price.

—That is the song that he sings today As he wanders his way Through the twilight gray. For his bones are sore, and his feet are clay.

There is nary a shakest in his purse, And he can't rehearse A consoling verse As he wanders, and daily feels worse and worse.

And some of the rest of us, too, are sore, And sullen—we roar And there is no more Such grand profiteering as heretofore.

But, let us take courage, my fellow men, I see from my den - The dawning when We'll all get our feet on the earth again.

Sioux Falls Argus-Leader: A southern bishop declares with much rhetorical flourish that he would like to have the pessimist killed, and adds: "Hard times is the cry of a coward." No doubt a man who occupies a high and well-salaried position, lives in a fine home, almost a mansion, and receives many perquisites, is welcomed in the best homes, and is given a goodly share of the fat of the land to enjoy, cannot see any reality in the hard times we have just gone through and which for many, are still the real thing. It is too bad a leading churchman should be so much out of touch with the people, their actual conditions and their needs.

Flopping Avetics.

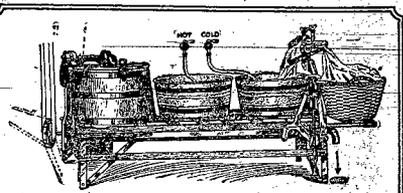

Nebraska State Journal: When you see a young lady going along the street now with high artics flopping around her ankles, don't stop and offer to buckle her up. The flopping things are in the very latest style. Why it is so heaven only knows. But it is true. A Lincoln man walking in Chicago the other day said that about every third woman he met on the boulevard had 'em on.

Give Congress Absent Treatment.

Chicago News: Now is the time to begin planning the radish garden. It will take the mind off the new cabinet and what congress is not doing.

No time for Spring Plowing.

Kansas City Star: Probably it is illustrative of bolshevism in general that we should hear more about spring drives in Russia than spring plowing.

Quaker Minister Is Grateful to Tanlac

Rev. Parker Moon

Nearly everybody in Southwest Missouri either knows or has heard of the Rev. Parker Moon, who for a full century has developed his life and talents to Sunday school and organization work for the Society of Friends or Quakers.

"Uncle Parker," as he is more familiarly known, came from the old rugged Quaker stock, and there is not a better known or more highly respected citizen in that part of the state. In referring to his remarkable restoration to health by Tanlac, he said: "About five years ago I suffered a general breakdown. My principal trouble was nervous indigestion. My appetite was very poor and my food seldom agreed with me, and I had to live on a very restricted diet. I suffered a great deal from headaches and dizzy spells. I had severe pains across the small of my back and was badly constipated most of the time. In fact, I was so weak and rundown I was not able to attend to my duties. "This condition made me very nervous and I could not sleep at night. Frequently I would lie awake most all night and year in that condition more or less for five years. My physician said he could not do anything for me and suggested a change of climate. I then moved to Texas and went back and forth three times but did not get the relief I had hoped for. Finally, I got so bad off I was not able to get around with any degree of comfort. I was also told I had heart trouble.

"I had read about Tanlac and, as it had been very highly recommended to me, I decided to try it. I got a bottle and had taken only a few doses until I could notice a marked improvement in my condition. I noticed especially that I was not troubled any more with sour stomach after eating, which was a great relief. "I kept on taking Tanlac until I fully regained my health. My appetite is splendid; I enjoy my meals and I do not find it necessary now to take any laxative medicines of any kind. I can sleep much better and am not nearly so nervous. "I take great pleasure in recommending Tanlac to anyone who needs a good system builder, or who suffers with stomach trouble. I have recommended Tanlac to a great many of my friends and am pleased to reach others by giving this statement for publication."

Tanlac is sold in Wayne by H. J. Felber, in Carroll by L. R. King, and in Winnside by B. & C. McIntyre.

Agriculture Notes

At the end of the last calendar year there were in the United States more than 5,000 accredited herds from tuberculosis. On Jan. 30, 1920, there were 3,870 such herds and six months later, on December 30, there were 5,013; according to figures just compiled by the bureau of animal industry, United States department of agriculture. During the six-month period there has been a marked increase in the number of herds that have successfully passed one test. On June 30, there were 15,639 such herds, and on December 30, 27,842. The department issues a report each month showing by states the number of herds that have been tested, the number of cattle that have reacted, and the number that have been found to be free from the disease.

Minnesota, with 731 accredited herds, leads all other states with Wisconsin second with 436 herds, and Pennsylvania third with 425. During December, 1,474 herds, in which there were 13,979 cattle, were tested in Mississippi. In Wisconsin 851 herds in all 15,414 animals were tested.

Stock raisers of California have become alarmed at the approach of the alfalfa weevil to its Oregon and Nevada borders. The insect is one of the most destructive alfalfa pests known. For this reason efforts have been made to limit its spread by quarantine and methods of control have been developed through seven years of experimental work by specialists of the United States department of agriculture.

Spraying with arsenate of lead and arsenite of zinc has been found most successful. Arsenate of lead is used at the rate of two pounds of powder or four pounds of commercial paste to each 100 gallons of water applied at a rate not to exceed 100 gallons per acre. The poison is stirred in a little water until it becomes a thin paste without lumps, then diluted and strained; two pounds of laundry soap, which assist in making the solution spread more readily and stick to the leaves, is added.

Control methods are described in Farmers' Bulletin 1186 which may be had upon application to the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Cost of Road Building. Every kind of road cost about twice as much to build in 1920 as it did in 1917, according to the chief of the bureau of public roads, United States department of agriculture, and highway construction suffered more than any other class of work through railroad congestion, strikes, labor troubles, and material shortages.

After the war there was a great public demand for improved roads. Many roads had been seriously damaged by war traffic, and it is estimated that the return of men from military service would provide an abundance of labor. The army of laborers which was expected to apply for the work did not, however, materialize. On the contrary, there was a distinct shortage of labor, and wages reached their highest level in the history of the country. In 1917, competent labor could be secured for from $1.50 to $3.00 per day, but the corresponding wages in 1920 were from $3.00 to $5.00 for a shorter day's work.

In proportion to this demand there was also a pronounced scarcity of construction materials. Sand, gravel, stone, and cement, and materials commonly used in road work increased in price between 1917 and 1920 from 50 to 100 per cent. Naturally, these increases in cost were reflected in the prices paid for the roads for road work. Gravel roads increased from $4,525 to $7,250 per mile; concrete from $21,165 to upward of $40,000 per mile, and brick roads from $33,000 to $55,000 per mile.

As funds available for road construction are largely limited by statute, or by the returns from taxation, a majority of the states this year have deliberately withheld work, the plans for which had been completed, until they could get a greater return for their expenditure.

Springfield, Mo. Republican: The senate democrats, in consenting to a vote on the emergency tariff bill, reveal a desire to afford President Wilson the opportunity to veto it. The president will enjoy the opportunity and even Mr. Penrose will shed no tears.

A normal training inspector, Arthur L. Burnham, was in the city long enough Monday to talk to the students of the high school. One of his remarks that elicited applause was that to be successful a student must "go crazy" about the particular subject or subjects in which he is interested.

Last Friday evening the junior class of the high school had a "heart-time" party at the home of Ruth Swanson. To carry out the "heart time" idea, toothpicks and string were served as the first course. Finally, however, a luncheon, not at all in accord with the name of the party, was served to the guests.

Nebraska Egg Market Lower Than in Year

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 13.—Eggs are cheap enough to eat again, is the comment of the lover of the hen product. Eggs are selling for less money in Nebraska today than at any time during last year, all because the hens of the country have been back to work on a pre-war basis.

Frank E. Mussel, of the poultry department at the University of Nebraska, says that from the four big egg markets in the country—New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago—more than twice as many eggs were put on the market during the last week than during the same period last year.

Farmers of Nebraska are receiving less money for their eggs now than they did at any time last year, and are getting approximately 15 cents less for eggs than they did this time last year. During the past week, buyers purchased eggs in unlimited numbers at 25 to 30 cents a dozen. A year ago farmers were paid from 40 to 45 cents a dozen. At no time last year, egg buyers here say, did they pay less than $10.50 a crate for eggs, or about 35 cents a dozen.

The increased production of eggs at this season of the year has been brought about by modern practices of poultry raisers and by climatic condition. "Poultry raisers everywhere," he says, "are hatching their chicks earlier." The extremely moderate weather of this winter has also influenced hens to lay earlier. The fact that corn and other grain are so cheap has prompted farmers to feed their hens heavier. This, too, has tended to increase production.

Prof. Mussel says it would be speculation to say whether or not the price of eggs is going lower. He says the present price of eggs, like that of any other product, is too low, and predicts that within a month eggs will be higher than they are now.

Among Other Editions.
Painful News. What is this we hear from Lincoln? Representative J. A. Axtell—our own Jim—has introduced a bill requiring all automobile drivers to carry a bond of $5,000 with the state to indemnify the general public against his carelessness. We can readily see why every automobile insurance and bonding agent in the state ought to be for that bill, but just what would be any other person to favor it is clear beyond our comprehension. It looks now very much like Jim has bobbed.

Coleridge Blade: Our movie manager, F. W. Anderson, finds that the most popular pictures are the wild west type. He has many asking when there will be another western play. He has put on some of the very best shows to be purchased and they did not sell so well as do the wild and wacky. That is why did not suit the majority as well. There is a thrill in the typical western play which any modern society play lacks. The resort must be that human nature, at large, likes to see principle in the raw. Like takes to like. Deep down in the average person must be a physical bravery not known to his average fellows for this type is played up strong in the western movies. There too must be hidden a keen sense of rugged integrity, morality and justice, for these characteristics are brought out in strong relief. More finished plays show these same human characteristics, but they are silk-shirted. The civilized coating is missing. Sometimes it is so thick that any true principle doesn't show at all. So if we were to have a censor of the plays here by the people they would want to see the good old days of a couple of years ago when everyone was happy, everybody had plenty of money to spend and every one was talking about the good old days of a couple of years ago when life was simple and honest and distance does lend enchantment and how short is our memory. Two years ago every one was talking about the high cost of living, willing to hunt and hang the elusive profiteer and sighing for "the old days when things were cheap." The point is that there is no time like the present, no opportunity such as we have right now and the only way to get it at any time is to work.

Hartington Herald: No doubt there are some objectionable features about "moving pictures" which should be eliminated, but some of the bills which have been proposed to regulate the business are preposterous. The effect of these bills, if enacted into laws, would be to put the moving picture industry out of business. We all know that the purpose of the drama is, as Shakespeare said, to "hold the mirror up to nature" and this purpose would be utterly defeated if some of the critics had their way. Life is a mixture of good and evil, and to eliminate every representation of evil from the screen, as some of this legislation aims to do, would be to present false and abnormal views of life that would interest nobody. The whole idea is absurd and fantastic, and, if the principle were carried out to its logical conclusion, it would not only close the moving picture houses, but would also suppress the newspapers, eliminate nine-tenths of the magazines, send Shakespeare, Dickens and every other book that portrays life to the discard, and dump all the histories of the world into the depths of the sea. You can not cut all the evil out of the drama and have it remain true to life, but what you can do, and what we believe most dramatists aim to do, is to portray life as it really is and then to show that the evil in life is eventually overcome by the good.

Big Poker Party is On.
Lincoln Journal: News from the labor board of Chicago reminds one of the discussion following the supreme court at Paris. If wages are reduced on the railroads a general transportation strike will ensue. On the other hand, if wages remain the same and the corporations will go into bankruptcy and general paralysis will follow. The suspicion intrudes that we are watching another colossal poker party.

Harvester Company Brands Story False

DURING the past month, reports have come to us that at farmers' meetings charges have been made, sometimes directly and sometimes indirectly, that this Company has purchased a policy of refusing to supply repair parts for old machines in order to compel the purchase of new ones. This statement is absolutely false. Such a policy has never been considered by this Company nor suggested to it.

Ordinarily we ignore such reports, because we have learned that any large company, no matter how fair and high principled, is subject at all times to unjust criticism. The facts are this Company has always recognized the importance of repair service and has used every effort to make IHC service the best. We believe we can truthfully say that the repair service furnished wherever this Company's goods are sold is equal if not superior to that furnished on any manufactured line.

We call attention to the fact that machinery "Fix-up Weeks," instead of being something new and originated by the farmers in 1921, as some seem to think, were really an outgrowth of the movement started by manufacturers and dealers' associations in connection with the Council of National Defense as a war conservation measure. Perhaps no other agency has done so much to promote "National Repair Weeks" as this Company.

The farmer needs machines which will be efficient and economical. If his old machines can be repaired so as to render efficient and economical service, he would be foolish to purchase new ones. Whether the farmer utilizes and repairs his old machines or buys new ones is a question for him to determine. But in making his decision, we give to every farmer who owns any IHC machines the assurance that a full stock of repair parts will always be provided by this Company.

Today, our repair stocks on the territory available for the farmers are 21 per cent greater than ever before at this time of the year. An average of a quarter million pounds of repairs are shipped from IHC factories for every working day in the year. Thirty million dollars' worth of repair parts are now ready, as insurance for the farmer when he needs this service.

In every International Harvester Works manufacturing orders call for repair parts first and even when furnishing them has meant cutting down production of new machines for which we had orders, repairs have always had preference.

At every one of our 91 branch houses repaired men are on duty to see that all orders are filled and shipped promptly. Thousands of dealers scattered everywhere with an assortment of repairs in stock are always ready and willing to render every assistance.

This service which this Company has rendered through the years to those who have purchased its machines has been a matter of great pride to the Company, and is the foundation of the cordial good-will existing between it and its customers.

We feel it is due the Company and those who have purchased its machines that we give the widest publicity to the fact that this service of repairs will be maintained and improved, and that any charges to the contrary are untrue.

I READ a story.
ABOUT a fellow.
WHO SLIPPED.
ON AN icy HILL.
AND STARTED to slide.
AND TRIPPED up.
A FAT lady.
WHO SAT on him.
AND RODE down hill.
TO THE foot.
AND THEN he wheezed.
"MADAM, YOU'LL have
TO GET off here.
THIS IS as far
AS I go."
SO WHEN a new clerk
WHO DIDN'T know.
MY REGULAR smoke.
TRIED to sell me.

SOME OTHER kind.
OF CIGARETTE.
I REMEMBERED that yarn.
AND TOLD the clerk
JUST WHERE to get off.
OTHER KINDS will burn.
AND GIVE off smoke.
I'LL ADMIT that much.

THERE'S ONLY one kind.

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher.

Groundhog Day.
The Day of Groundhogs closes grows—let nothing you deject! The groundhog then will break his doze, the climate to correct, and all the banks in town will close, in token of respect. Throughout the month of snow and rime, the lusty groundhog snorts, but soon, with motives most sublime, he'll quit such doze-chairs in every state, in every clime, the banks will close their doors. The groundhog, from "stumpy's" shackles comes from his hole, he'll grin, and if no shadow he'll produce, he'll bid the winter stop; and, having such a good excuse, the banks will shut up shop. And if the good old groundhog sees no shadow, he will say, "The folks will simply have to freeze till winter fades away"; and, notbing all such facts as these, the banks will close all day. The groundhog is a wild old beast, he does not rank with borses, he gazes west, he gazes east, and then resumes his stores; and bankers say, "By Judah's priest! We'll have to close our doors." The holidays come thick and fast, and weekdays are but few; 'twas different in the gaudy past, before my nose was blue; then bankers didn't close, dodgast, whenever a cow cried "moo."

The Busy Bard.
I punch my lyre to buy a tire or sparkplug for my fivver; I sing a lay to purchase hay and gas and honey and liver. The poet knows but small strain; these days of stress and strain; he works the muse for sorbous to wear when it is raining. He swats the harp to buy a cup to feed his aunts and nieces; he turns out loads of hot-stuff odes, on ancient Rome and Greece, and on greasers say, "That rhymin' guy takes life so beasily easy, while we must hump or hit the dump, where go the banks and cheese." And plumb the sigh, as they go by, "That poet's graff's a daisy; he merely sits and throws his rite, and he is fat and lazy, and his poor ginks fix busted sinks and fix faucets that are leaking, and when we're done and ask our work the patron's always shrieking." As people walk I hear them talk about the snap I'm owing; I look at ease and write my wheeze while working men are groaning. But oh, the times when decent rhymes won't come, for all my tryin', when my old dome won't frame a pome that men might call undying! The barren days when cheer-up lays it seems, cannot be written! The ghastly nights when he who writes is by the brain-fag smitten! Oh, then the hard word deal in land, or plumb with plumbers gaily, if he could soak the harp whose smoke has risen yearly, daily.

Contentment.
When sets the good old shining sun, thus winding up another day, if I have left some chore undone, I do not feel serene and gay. I depend my fivver I recline, and try to read some helpful tract, but in this old bald dome of mine there bobs up one disturbing fact. I did not fix the kitchen roof, which lets in nineteen kinds of rain; and so contentment keeps aloof, and all my thoughts are tinged with pain. I cannot read "The Cloven Hoof," or other novels, good or fast; I did not fix the leaking roof, and I can only think of that. The almanac has jest and spoof, o'er which I ought to rounchly laugh; but I neglected that old woff, and contentment is a bitter gaff. When all my duties are performed according to the rules of Hygiee, my head with wisdom is warmed, the rich reward of honest toil. With duty done one can, in truth, the evening hours in cheer employ, and I can read of Nick, the Sleuth, without a cloud up on the sky. There may be men who do not care what they have done or left undone, when from the sun's easy chair they watch the setting of the sun. But peace won't camp up on my brow if I recall, at close of day, the old blue goose he gave the cow, or give the old blue goose her hay. And I am glad I'm fashioned (Rius, though I may miss a lot of fun; I don't admire the careless cuss who reckes no boot-for-tasks undone.

Larceny.
Some fellow came and swiped my cow while I was fast asleep, but sorrow does not crease my brow, I do not wail and weep, for I was not and washed at all—it is because I'm sick to think a fellow has the gall to play so punk a trick. For it is plain that he's a thief, and he's a thief, it is a fake; his life will be no grand sweep, so he'll just one long drawn sneeze. He'll snick about his nifty law, a haunted moral wreck, in fear that some policeman's hand will grasp him by the neck. He'll drift along from crime to crime, for fear of carrying kate, and when he isn't serving time he'll be out hunting bail. And so I don't denounce or hate the boob who snatched my cow; I merely pity such a skate, and mourn his future, now. When any person does me harm, at first my words-are-prim: I say, "I'd love an unpaid farm for my things with him. If I could meet him face to face, with ardur I maintain, I'd steech his cane, and her the place like leaves upon the plain. But when my royal wrath has cooled, and I have ceased to cuss, I soon regret the things I drov out of my foolish fust. A punishment severe and strong is sure as things can be to hit the man whose doing wrong—but 'twill not come down on me."

The Sorehead.
For years I went to Grocer Gregg's to buy my prunes and cheese and eggs; I went to him for butter, and more, and wore a path around his store, till every board I could recall, and every nailhead in the wall. And when each month of trade was done, I always paid him hand-made money, and never said "Please chalk it down, until my goat comes back to town. Then, for a change, I bought my goods; my prunes-and-cheese, at Grocer Wood's. I thought I'd trade there for while, but when I saw the price is all the style, and then return to Gregg's once more as in the festive days of yore. But, meeting Gregg again in the street, with cane and a greeting sweet, he handed me a frozen stare, as grucly as a grizzly bear. Oh, he was sore and full of bile because I left him for while; he seemed to think he owned my soul and had a mortgage on my roll. The good old years will roll away, and whistlers will hange to gray, and dynasties will rise and burst and bow-wows turn to wiewerwulf heaves. I go to Grocer's again, and my hard-earned roll men. The merchants in this world of ours should always speak their thoughts with their hands; if they do not, I'll put thoughts with bricks they drive off patrons by such tricks.

Rented Homes.
I hear men saying every day, as I loaf round the village square, "Oh paying rent has made me gray, and killed my life." I have seen the man who rented home, in pre-war years, was something people might endure; but later came the profiteers, who raised the price and made the rent high. I wonder why they shak whose shingles flop in every gale; the rent I pay has sprained my back and used up all my hard-earned kate. I don't plan to build a home, however humble it may be, and life therein will be a pome, a picnic fraught with harmless fun. A long year I've tried the same old-put, which cut I shall no longer tread; '41 build myself a lovely hat, and the landlord took my money. Methinks a million weevils, from whom the rent-hogs drew a groan, will in the near-by future rise, and put up shanties for their own. The bitter years have made them long to own their rooftops and their homes, wherein to chirp the evening song and sweat the fies upon their domes. The tenants in disorder stand, for they've been charged and soaked to death but they'll build throughout the left undone, when from the sun's easy chair they watch the setting of the sun. But peace won't camp up on my brow if I recall, at close of day, the old blue goose he gave the cow, or give the old blue goose her hay. And I am glad I'm fashioned

Come In and See The WETMORE 12-25 Tractor

Was just designed and sold as a two-plow machine, but has an abundance of power to handle three plows in any ordinary condition. With two bottoms in public plowing contests it has repeatedly out-plowed three plow and even four plow tractors. It has a record of plowing five acres, six inches deep, in two hours and eighteen minutes pulling three 14-inch plows.

We believe that the Wetmore Tractor comes nearer meeting all the requirements of the farmer than any other tractor today. It was not built for one particular job, but for all the work on the farm. It is an excellent machine for plowing and still is not too heavy to disc, drill, harrow or do any other kind of farm work. If interested we would be pleased to demonstrate on your farm.

Fatal Cerebro Spinal Meningitis.
The home of Edward Morris was saddened Tuesday, February 8, when Wesley, the second child of the family, a lad of 4 years, died from cerebro spinal meningitis.

Burial took place in Bethany cemetery last Friday, Rev. W. D. Jones of the Presbyterian church southeast of Carroll, officiating.
Friends and relatives are with the family in their sorrow.

Wins From Laurel.

The game played at Laurel last Friday night between the Carroll and Laurel basketball teams resulted in victory for the local team, the resulting score having been 19 to 17.

The first half furnished a thrill for the Carroll boys, having ended 12 to 6 in favor of Laurel. However, the unfavorable score acted as an incentive, and the last half of the game gave Carroll the desired laurels.

School Notes.
The senior review class of reading was much benefited last week when they spent two days observing the primary and first grade reading classes, taught by Miss Jones.

The botany class will be occupied with very practical work the next two weeks, the project being seed setting. They request that seed corn be brought in, in order that proof of their ability as a class may be demonstrated.

Last week marked three successive perfect days in the high school for no one was absent nor tardy. Supt. Jones, much elated over the fact, announced that a half-holiday would be given if the perfect attendance continued, but at the crucial moment somebody spoiled it all. The next day they started all over again and so far there has been no tardiness or absence recorded. Probably, after all, there will be a half holiday.

Social.
Mrs. James Edlin entertained the young people of the Baptist church at her home last Monday evening. Refreshments were served.

C. A. T. Club.
The C. A. T. club held its regular meeting with Miss Edna Jones last Tuesday. The ladies spent the time in social chat and fancy work. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

The recreation room still remains a center of interest. Checkers, various board games, and other amusements, and other table games are enjoyed by the young people.

Bank in New Quarters.

The First National Bank of Carroll moved into its new modern home last Saturday when a public reception attracted large numbers of people in the afternoon and evening. The new building was inspected and thoroughly appreciated. Cigars, punch, wafers and candy were served to all visitors. In the evening, several talks, among them speeches by Hugh J. Boyle of Norfolk and Rev. F. M. Druliner of Carroll, were given. Music by the West orchestra of Carroll and the Carroll band, lent a pleasing note to the occasion.

The new bank building, a structure 26x97 feet, is equipped throughout with mahogany furniture and with decorations of Grecian marble

The beautifully-wrought friezes are giving examples of Greek architecture, as are also the electricians' wiring room, cashier's and president's rooms, and a burglar-proof vault equipped by the American Bank Protection Company, besides fountains and other appliances, add greatly to the beauty and convenience of this building. An art glass partition divides the president's and cashier's rooms. It is evident to the observer that no expense has been spared in an attempt to make the First National bank building an ideal business place, and it is further evident that the attempt has been triumphantly successful.

The following are the officers of the bank: DANIEL DAVIS, president; J. A. Jones and P. E. Francis, vice president; Lucian W. Carter, cashier; Esther Boehler, assistant cashier.

Roggenbach's Leghorns.

Dear Friend: Once again it is our pleasure to make you greater profits on the farm flock. As in the past season, we have endeavored to give you the best possible value in your favorite breed. Our breed this season contains some of the best S. C. White Leghorns in the middle west. Our flock is headed by as fine a specimen of Leghorn males as you could wish. Plenty of size, a neat, five-point comb, a real back and tail is a chalk white. The past season we brought a breeding pen from Geo. Ferris of Cedar Rapids, Mich., consisting of a cockerel and four pullets, costing $75.00. They were of the 264-egg strain—the cockerel set at a $500 cock. This new addition to our pens will increase the popularity of our flock. Being located almost exactly in the center of the United States we can serve our patrons in all sections promptly and with the least shipping expense. Our prices on cockerels are $2.00 each. The customer pays the express charge. Cash must accompany all orders. All orders are filled in rotation. We also sell hatching eggs in season. We take this means to thank our many friends for their complimentary letters. Wishing you a successful season, we beg to remain, yours very truly, W. E. Roggenbach, Winfield, Neb.

The Policy of The Wayne Roller Mills

We save you from 25c to 50c per sack on flour.

With prices continually changing, cannot give permanent prices on flour. Can only say our prices are always lower than others. No middleman to pay. No overhead expense. Quality the best. From manufacturer direct to consumer.
