Losses caused by stinking smut in California were reduced to about 2 per cent on a wheat crop of 9,840,000 bushels in 1920 by treating seed by the biostatic method.

The same college of agriculturists estimates that stinking smut has caused losses ranging from 400,000 to 500,000 bushels annually. In 1918 the loss was estimated at 5.8 per cent of the total crop.

County agents in 1918 began advising and demonstrating the biostatic treatment for the stinking smut as recommended by the United States department of agriculture.

The same chemist through his encouraging results that seed treatment has since become quite general. In 1920 losses were reduced to about 200,000 bushels. It is conservatively estimated, on the basis of $1.50 per bushel for smut, that demonstrations on wheat-smut control given by the county agents in California resulted in a saving of $200,000 for the farmers of that state last year.

Carrying Disease Germs. Investigation of cucumber-beds wilt by plant pathologists of the United States department of agriculture have revealed a hitherto unknown method of plant disease carrying. They have found that the striped cucumber beetle not only carry the wilt bacteria in their jaws, spreading infection when they gnaw into a leaf, but that in some cases they hold the bacteria over an entire winter in their intestinal tract and deposit them in the spring, where they will spread infection the first time they come in touch with a gnawed or broken leaf.

The carrying of disease germs from one animal to another by insects was first established as a fact through the investigation of Texas fever of cattle, often termed tick fever, by the United States department of agriculture of these sales involved 417 head of cattle, which, it is said, were sold for $2,508.37 more than they would have brought had their owners placed them on the market individually the day of the sale. Assistance in organizing city trading was given to 150 wool pools, which handled over 100,000,000 pounds of wool. Assistance was given cooperative enterprises in three states in solving their accounting problems.

Better Marketing Work. Investigational and demonstrational work in the marketing of farm products is being carried on by the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, in cooperation with thirty-three states. This is a larger number than has ever shown interest in this work before.

The work in each state is performed under the direction of specialists in marketing, whose functions are to assist in coordinating the marketing activities of the various agencies in the state, and to give practical assistance in every other way. Specialists of the department say this work is important because it affords a means of developing a consistent national marketing policy. Leaders seem to agree that the most promising line is the one looking toward a consistent, interrelated, national policy that will prevent duplication of effort, cross-purposes, and conflicting currents of trade.

While complete figures are not available relative to the work of the agents in marketing, those that hand show that they assisted producers to form 183 marketing organizations, including fifty livestock shipping associations; fifty-seven fruit and vegetable associations; twelve cooperatives; and nineteen federations of existing associations. One hundred and thirty-eight groups of producers were assisted in making cooperative sales, many of which comprised one or more carloads of live stock. One

THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

If you are big enough to give another who has discriminated against you, a fair, square deal, you have an important requisite of success.

The Herald has been told of five men who now are receiving an advanced school elsewhere. They signified their intention to come to the Wayne State Normal for study next year as a result of their happy experience at the tournament here last week. This would seem to be a fairly direct benefit of the late meeting.

An event of importance and signal interest will be the annual meeting of the Northeast Nebraska Teachers' association, beginning at 9:30 a. m. A program will soon be ready to issue. Hundreds of teachers will come here at that time, and they should be made to feel—on equal, Wayne's generous and cordial hospitality.

The case of the Norfolk nurse who was betrayed by evil-purposed men but who made her escape after a struggle, is being watched with interest. It is the universal hope that officers will capture the guilty parties, and bring them to full justice. Official action should not be lacking to safeguard orderly young women in every Nebraska town.

National bank statements have become increasingly long and complicated as those who have had the courage to wade through them, have observed. The latest statements include a showing of bank assets. Whether the new administration will try to figure out something new to add or whether it will endeavor to shorten and simplify the exhibit remains to be seen.

It is not likely all people would agree on the exact time when Wayne should have paved. It is probable that the largest majority now would have had the town paved ten years ago. However, ten years ago no such majority favored the improvement. Some people who now wish we had paved ten years ago, frowned dubiously on even building cement walks at that time, as we remember, it is a fact that Wayne should have paved long ago. Since it did not pave before the time it should have done, how long should it have waited.

GREATEST HORSE NOW MUNCHES BLUEGRASS

Man of War the greatest horse ever bred has stopped his five-mile in competition. The other day at Lexington, Ky., a track before thousands of admiring eyes, he plowed his way through mud in long strides his last exhibition. Philadelphia has retired him for breeding purposes to a Kentucky farm. Now his owner, S. W. Ryan, has him here on a matched race at Windsor last fall, set a record for length never attained by a horse before—fourty three and one-half miles. His record of 13 1/2 of the mile was made when he ran for a sixteenth of the way to his victory. He has never been to the top.

after the war? If it should not have started when things were up as last year, should it have waited until things were down as this year. If so, now is manifestly the time to pave. When material and labor are high-priced, money is apt to get at low rates of interest. When material and labor are cheap, money is apt to get at high rates. Which condition is the more inviting for public improvement? We had one extreme last year, and the other now. Shall we turn to advantage a time that avoids both extremes? This will soon come, and in that event we are showing some reason for the improvement, and keep it going from time to time until not an un-paved street is left in the town. The town is growing, and the work is being done in the town. The town inexperienced in the business. The experience thus gained will serve advantage in handling future contracts.

WORK AND FAITH AS SETBACKS

An interview with Cardinal Gibbons, touching the hopes, aspirations and possibilities of young men, appears in the current number of the American Magazine. The cardinal is 80 years old, and in speaking, he draws from a great fund of experience and observation. Reviewing progress that has been made in education, human liberty and tolerance, he emphasizes the fact that the world is truly getting better and that greater opportunities than ever are now presented. The cardinal points out the essentials of work and faith. Touching the value of work, he is quoted in part:

"Without work no amount of talent, no amount of influence, will carry a man very far in this world. I am amazed—at the point of view of some modern young men—who look at the success of a man of the day as if they supposed success to be an easy matter—giving rich gifts and requiring little in return. I wonder what they would think if they could see the average day's program of one of the men they would find more Roosevelt, who was my friend for so long a time, in correspondence that of itself involved more work than the average man does in his active life. Yet it represents only a small part of his activities."

"The higher man climb, the longer that working day. And any younger man with a streak of laziness in him might better make up his mind at the beginning that mediocrity is to be his lot. Without immense, sustained effort he will not climb high. And even though fortune or chance were to lift him high he would not stay there. For to keep at the top is harder, almost, than to get there. There are no office hours for leaders."

"Referring to the importance to faith, he says in conclusion: 'I have lived almost three times as long as the average age of your generation. I have created men climbing up to success, hundreds of them, and of all the elements that are important for success, the most important is that of a man ready to fight. His hands in discouragement when the first snow falls, fail to protect them the sunshine of spring returns. And in the majority of a man ready to fight, less he has courage, even in dark days, to expect great things; to expect them of himself, of his fellow men, of America, and of God.'"

The Inaugural Address. Omaha World-Herald: It is eloquent in the president's familiar style. It is more factitious, more analytical and synthetic. But its message is peculiar in that it is balanced, restrained, qualified. It is not the boastfulness of a man ready to fight, less he has courage, even in dark days, to expect great things; to expect them of himself, of his fellow men, of America, and of God."

Sioux Falls Argus-Leaders: While the address is written—as one would expect—in excellent English, and shows the character of a man who Language Germany Understands. Kansas City Times: It is believed that before long Germany will be persuaded that the allies are not engaged in a bargaining proposition, that they are in earnest, and that the reparations—which do not constitute so great a burden on Germany as the interest of the war debt alone impose on France, half Germany's size—will be collected. There is one language that Germany understands. She is about to be addressed in it by Marshal Foch.

Railways Are Not Singular. Kansas City Star: The ordinary business, finding patronage falling away, must take energetic and intelligent action to bring it back. It must spruce up, introduce more efficient management, reduce its prices. The transportation business is subject to the same depression that has hit other industries. It will have to meet the situation in the same way that other industries are meeting it.

Moscow Wireless Dump. San Francisco Chronicle: Another silence has fallen upon the Moscow wireless. Is it the dumbness of a Russia frozen beyond expression or are things going too badly in sovietland to be advertised to the world? Certainly Lenin has nothing that he considers good news, for whenever affairs take a propitious turn his wireless chatters as busily as a woodpecker driving a stump.

Tilden 34, Wausa 15, Randolph 25, Homer 13, Norfolk 42, Wakefield 21, Bloomfield 22, Stanton 21.
Friday evening—(Class B) Tilden high 23, Butte 15; Howells 25, Wisner 13; Neigh 29, Normal-high 16; Osmond 18, Emerson 17.

Saturday morning—(Class A) Tilden 21, Randolph 15; Norfolk 24, Bloomfield 11.
Saturday evening—(Class B) Tilden 32, Wayne 18; Neigh 35, Osmond 14.
Saturday evening—(Championship classes) Howells 41, Neigh 13; Norfolk 36, Tilden 45; Wakefield 22. Games which were of especial interest during the tournament were the Tilden-Yonks game Thursday evening, the Stanton-Bloomfield game Friday afternoon, the Tilden-Randolph game Saturday morning, the Neigh-Normal high and the Emerson-Osmond games Friday afternoon.

The contest between Tilden and Osmond was of interest because the match represented two of the strongest teams of the tournament. It fact also interesting because the fact that both teams were coached by men from Randolph, both of whom had played on the same basketball teams through high school and college. The first half ended 13 to 12 in Lyons' favor, but the fact that the Tilden team collected in team play brought by the victory.

The Stanton-Bloomfield game marked one of the most hotly contested combats of the tournament. The contest throughout the game one team was ahead of the other by about two points, which was reversed over and over again. During the last minutes of play, when the score stood 20 to 20 in Stanton's favor, a lucky basket by one of the Bloomfield men gave the contest its decided result.
The Tilden-Randolph contest was attended by wild "rooting" on each side previous to and during the game. The fact that the Tilden half showed Randolph 8 points ahead of its opponent made the Tilden players come back stronger in the last half.
When the score stood 13 to 15, one of Randolph's strong plays was taken out because of fouls. The Tilden men stood 6 points ahead of their opponents at the final blow of the whistle. "Pigmies versus giants" was the expression elicited from many lips when the Neigh players and the Norfolk high teams appeared on the floor Friday evening. Several times during the game, the Norfolk high team was in the lead, but the Neigh men were able to "wind" their adversaries and the end of the contest found the Neigh team in the lead. It was remarked by many that the Neigh men were taken at a disadvantage by reason of the fact that some of the players on the Norfolk high team were so small that their opponents were afraid of hurting them. The game however, was clean-cut and the contest found the Neigh team in the lead. at the termination of the tournament Saturday night, the following appointments for a first and second all-state team in Class A and Class B were announced by a committee composed of Frank Morgan, Prof. O. T. Marston and J. M. Strahan.

Class A (first all-state team) Best, Norfolk; Milenz, Stanton; Sherwood, Randolph; Harlow, Tilden; Isaacson, Norfolk.
Class B (first all-state team) Lippert, Folds, Howells; Moran, Wayne; Leisy, Wisner; Baker, Neigh; Lambert, Folds, Howells.
Class A (second all-state team) C. McLeod, Neigh; E. Jensen, Emerson; Mestle, Howells; Brinnard, Wayne; Christensen, Osmond.

The class B finals Saturday night between Neigh and Howells forced a postponement for the former team, Howells retaining a comfortable lead throughout the entire game. It might be said, however, that the Neigh players were handicapped because of the fact that they had been up most of Thursday night to make train connections and had been forced to play Friday before becoming properly rested.

The class A finals the same evening marked the close of the tournament and saw Norfolk the champion in the Tilden-Norfolk contest. The Tilden team is to be commended upon its performance in the contest. The Norfolk team, upon its speed and the work of its star forward, Guy Best. The former players have an enviable record in only two contests lost out of nineteen played, while the latter record but one defeat during the entire season. Class A contests were decided only two contests lost out of nineteen played, while the latter record but one defeat during the entire season. Class A contests were decided only two contests lost out of nineteen played, while the latter record but one defeat during the entire season.

It was reported by Prof. E. J. Huntermer that the receipts during the season amounted to more than $800, thus enabling the Athletic league, after deducting other items, to pay 60 per cent of each team's record work which was commuted from long distances, the expenses often amounted to more than $115.00, as in the case of Chambers. This meant that the league paid almost 87 per cent of Chambers' expenses. Considering that various teams going to the state tournament under about 1000 miles of travel, it is a 57 benefit, the ability of the Athletic league to pay 60 per cent of total expenses would seem huge in comparison.

With the basketball tournament now a thing of the past, many schools are looking forward to practice in track work which will culminate in a field meet at the Wayne State Normal athletic grounds about the middle of May, at which time most of the schools who were represented at the basketball tournament will be back to vie with other schools for honors.

Work on the athletic field at the Normal grounds will commence next Monday.
Kansas City Times: It is much easier to announce a grand picnic than to embody them in a workable program. The test will come in translating the inaugural address into workable picnic necessities, sincerity and sense of responsibility have impressed the nation. He has a right to find the great bulk of his policy construction ready to help the administration to realize the high hopes of its leader.

When You Bought That Suit

—last year, you thought one season's wear was all you could normally expect.

BUT the clerk was right—there was GOOD quality of wool in the material.

Of course were it not for Dry Cleaners and modern cleaning methods, you could not think of using it for GOOD wear again this season.

And right there is where we fit in. Our methods are modern. And if we have that suit or light coat NOW—we will have it ready for delivery the first spring day.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet-Philosopher

Ambitious Husband

I've seen some husbands get with horns and might have learned to sing and dance, had—but their wives, the dimpled deers, but given them a decent chance. I'm thinking now of Hiram Hick, who presses hard against the hampers, and life's to him a gilded brick because his wife has "social time." She gives a pony every week or two of some other kind, and Hiram sees his routines lack, she makes his assets hard to find. A tea to honor Mrs. Jones may be the proudest thing to give, but Hiram's shy a hundred bones, and wonders why such semantics live. His wife must have a costly gown appropriate to each event, and Hiram totters through the town, and smokes a torch that costs year, and it makes good money every year, and if his wife would mend her ways he well might read his title clear to Easy Street and happy days. But she must trot with richer folk, and mingle with the Upper Ten, and so poor Hiram's always broke and sighing for his lost iron men. But in his grief he's not alone; a million husbands toil and spin, and every time they toss a bone their wives go forth to blow it in. A million husbands, long may they lodge, along in weary feet; and if their wives would let them save, they all might dwell in Easy Street.

The Safe Course

I haven't anybody's name, or kidnapped anybody's child; I've followed up my old time plan when all the world was running wild, and I haven't swiped a Henry car, or gathered in illegal spoils; but I have picked in a jar the small rewards of honest toil. I pity men who rob and slay, who will not like good souls behave; they never have a decent day between the cradle and the grave. There's no use talking fire, or frost, unless we dodge all sin with skill; our breaks are made at frightful cost, but every man must pay his bill. We can't be happy of serene as through this world of ours we go, unless our records are as clean as is the well known driven snow. Oh, some for long may I judge the cops, and carry on a course of crime, but when we sit all comfort stops, we cease to have a bully time. We have no joy, no peace of mind, our nerves are racked, our hearts are sore; and reverberate in wall behind, and averting, it's all before. I pity those who cheat and swindle, or slug a stranger for his roll; their lives are bleak, they never feel the peace that warms the white man's soul.

Hollow Promises

I hired a dozen delegates, at divers times, to prune my trees, and do odd jobs on my estates, like washing dogs and cutting hair. No fellow carries such shoddy shills, such so-called oaths and hilly chees. I had to do the work alone, for no one came to give me aid, though I was fixed with buck and bone, to see that laborers were paid; I had to lift a ton of stone and dig a paschelle with my spade. No fellow carries my fool, no toiler to the vineyard comes; there is more fun in playing pool or rolling bones down in the penit, and this is why, when nights are cool, the parks are full of busted bums. We read about the unemployed, and o'er their sufferings men sob; but all such tales are real and void, the empty frothings of the mob, and I would be quite overjoyed to find a man who wants a job. I'm twenty and disheartened now. I've tried an effort to find out why they'll come and paint the cow and make the trusty buck saw fly, and all are ready with a word, and every grinning is a lie. More break-downs with a grin, when they should wing their hands and weep, and when they ought to toil and spin they calmly snuggle down to sleep, mulling for our setting ain is making wows we do not keep.

Mind and Muscle
Oh, forty learned professors toiled on the low years through, they were no sleep-john grinders, and they knew the things they knew; the midnight oil was burning that they might gather learning; all dissipations spurning, they delved where knowledge grew. They toiled while vain carousers assailed the victor's vats, and they wore baggy trousers and prehistoric hats; for not of learning never get much for their endeavor, the coin's for fellows vixer at punching others' slats. The fighter meets a fighter, exchanging blows, and he gets the winning bligter with Colonel Cooper's trust, who would not be a bruiser, when 'em the battle'd tuser become a waulder, and he says some city lats? A Dempsey calmly seizes two hundred thousand bones for whipping sundry chases or infatuated thumps, and he gets the learning! They always are returning to navvies with a yearning to get some transient loans. They seek their holes of snuggles, and they get the cows and cats; their sons must go to college, their wives must have new hats; their income is so slender each wears but one summer; mugs get the legal tender for slugging domes and slats.

Incontinent
Things are most inconsistent here in this world, sad and dumb; you cannot buy a stein of beer, but you can buy a gun. The steel in the hand of a wicked thief, there is no doubt of that; it sets a million bats a-ving beneath the drinker's hat. And yet, while the goods are in the cities, there, when placed in sinful hands, it boosts the business of the hearse and corpse and mourner's hands. It boosts the carnal of crime which in the cities thrives, where men are shot down in their prime, and yield up useful lives. The youthful toughs, whose wealth is in the cities, their cents, at midnight leave their haunts and holes and shoot down worthy gentes. You cannot walk into a store and buy a slug of gin, but you can the sheriff in; and this is very well, indeed; it's well such traffic stops; for seldom do fell mortals need so much as forty drops. But you can walk into a store to buy a deadly gun; the clerk will try to sell you four, if you're equipped with a roll. It's worse to buy a demjohm than 'tis to buy a gat, and so the wave of crime goes on, and coroners was fat. Along the road, in the cities, with slain men by the ton; you cannot buy a flowing bowl, but you may buy a gun.

The Plute
Three years ago, in Estes Park, I met an old-well millionaire, and life for him was just a lark, without a trouble or a care. His was the finest car in sight, for his own use designed and built, and when he went to most at night he had a coach and an ermine quilt. Naught was too luscious for his blood, he had the price, and then some more; his royalties, in countless the most real estate in the shore. But yesterday I sat me down upon a San Diego bench, to watch the cops patrol the town, and I mark the uth and on the 11th day of June, A. D., 1921, at 10 o'clock a. m. I was full and rich and sweet, but fortune is a fickle crew, and now I live for things to eat, and wish you'd take me with a bone." Thus gentlemen go their giddy ways, today they're rich, tomorrow poor; today chances fill their busy days, but nothing's certain, nothing's sure. The rain-bow's end they always seek; no rain-bow's end I want in mine; I'd rather earn so much a week, and put the product down in brine.

Nesbitt Covers Case

Attending Physician in the Rubin Talk Sickness Makes Public Statement

Dr. R. H. T. Nesbitt, attending physician in the Rubin girl case has become incensed apparently over the wide publicity that has followed the case. Accordingly he has written this communication to the Sun in which he expresses himself:

Editor-Daily Sun: I am compelled to ask a little space in your paper. I am deluged with letters and phone messages from discerning, thinking people who discredit the notorious, sensational and highly exaggerated, fabulous accounts published. The family have been annoyed by the continued low fiction in exploiting the case. Just five minutes ago Mr. Rubin, the father, remarked that there was not five per cent of the "write-ups" true.

First—The medical men were not baffled; nor at the end of their resources.

Second—Medical measures and remedies have been constantly administered and there was gradual improvement, and the morning before the chiropractor gave his treatment the child had normal temperature, and the child had several intervals of sleep. The functions of the body had to be kept acting by medication and other means. Otherwise we might have had fatal results.

Third—There was no mal-alignment of the spine or any dislocation of the vertebrae. As four capable medical men had carefully examined the spinal column and the whole body. Subluxation of vertebrae is a talking proposition of a certain clique of spinal manipulators. Authorities state there is little or nothing to it. Pressure on nerve processes impaired function or paralysis, not excitement.

Fourth—It is not true that there was a sudden cessation to all symptoms. No medical man, surgeon, physiologist, no neurologist, psychologist or psychiatrist of any analytical mind would for a moment think that an excited state of the speech center buried deep in a lobe of the brain could be quieted by any snap of the neck or thumping of the spine. The blood test demonstrated irritating agents circulating through the exciting cells concerned in the faculty of speech,—as did other centers causing the restlessness. The talking was only one of the symptoms.

It is not true that the child was delirious and irrational. She was not only RATIONAL, BUT VERY bright and witty, amusing us frequently with her quick and clever answers to our questions. She was perfectly docile, taking her medicine and submitting to any handling necessary without complaint, always with a thank you.

Fifth—It is not true that the temperature fell suddenly. The betterment is what could be expected for the time the affection had lasted and the medical treatment she had received. The temperature kept persistently up during spinal chiro treatment. Several days ago I ordered all spinal so-called adjustment stopped, for previous to the chiro treatment the patient had not a pain or ache anywhere. She became so sore and tender that she dreaded the operation and dreads anyone to touch her.

Miriam Rubin is still a very sick child, but I hope with long continued absolute rest and internal medication and soothing applications to the back she will be restored to perfect health.

To Corgal Only Wild Antelope Herd Left

O'Neill, Neb., March 7.—A roundup of what is probably the only herd of wild antelope now at large in the United States may be held in Holt county this spring by the state and federal game departments, and the antelope removed to the federal game preserve at Valentine.

HIS WEATHER GUESSES BEAT SCIENCE

Billie Hart, toll-taker at the International bridge at Eagle Pass, Texas, has a national reputation as a weather prophet, being more reliable than Uncle Sam's official scientific department.

Some ranchers are of the opinion that it strayed in from the Black Hills several years ago, others that it is but the natural increase of several pairs of antelope which escaped from the Valentine preserve.

Ranchmen do not want the antelope killed, and neither do they care to have their cattle stampeded, so the attention of the state and federal authorities probably will be called to the herd. Just how a herd of antelope could be founded up is a problem yet unsolved.

IS YOUR BUSINESS STATIONERY DISTINCTIVE?

Does your business stationery say to your customer, "I am substantial and reliable," or does it give him a negative, false impression of you? Golden opportunities to reinforce prestige are often sacrificed for the saving of a few pennies in printing. Probably no money-saving was effected.

Every letterhead, envelope and billhead does more than carry the message itself—it conveys an impression to the one who receives it. Don't dress your fairly in rags. Make it distinctive.

We are specialists and qualified to supply the nucleus of favorable impressions—excellent and appropriate business stationery, properly printed. We quote fair prices—the same to everybody—from the

JOB PRINTING DEPARTMENT THE WAYNE HERALD

Other Editors

Hartington Herald: In his great essay on education, John Ruskin says: "It lies in his opinion the 'principle of virtue' lies in a power of denying ourselves the satisfaction of our desires where they are not authorized by reason." What a splendid rule of conduct to follow, and what a magnificent race of men and women we would be if it were generally adopted.

Hartington Herald: President Harding will be not an idealist, but a man of ideas; not a dreamer, but a statesman with a vision; not a theorist, but a doer of deeds who will accomplish results. He has a hard proposition to tackle at Washington, but he will conquer in the same determined way he has others, and he will give this country the best administration it has had in many years.

Lincoln Journal: A correspondent at Wayne endorses Mr. Epperson's resolution declaring John G. Neibaker and the "prairies." In order that this may be no empty honor it is suggested that the University of Nebraska should confer a citizenship fellowship upon him, under terms that will enable him to finish the great American epic on which he has been engaged for years. This is not an unreasonable request. It is true that the university is cramped for funds, but the amount required to enable Mr. Neibaker to go on with his work would be insignificant when compared with the importance of the task and the standing the portion already written has won in the world of letters. Neibaker's presence on the campus would be an inspiration to the students, just as the completed work will stand as a monument to the commonwealth to have some part in the creation of the American epic.

Fairbury News: "Daylight-saving" legislation is again proposed. Why daylight by going to work an hour earlier do so. According to the Almanac, which we have consulted, the sun rises about 6 a. m., or earlier and sets about 6 p. m., or later. For ourselves, we are able to do all the work we want to do by daylight between these hours, and no changing of the clock could save us any sunshine. In the long days of June, the sun comes up about half past four and sets about half past seven, giving about 15 hours of sunshine—enough for any reasonable man, with a margin at both ends of the day sufficient to satisfy the most exacting.

York Republican: By a decisive vote the Nebraska house killed a bill to require compulsory medical examination of school children in every public, private and parochial school in the state. The bill required the board of education of every school to engage the services of a physician or registered nurse to test and examine every child within fifteen days after the opening of school each year. There are over 7,000 school districts in Nebraska. The enforced contribution to the reigning school of medicine would run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. But that is not the worst of the measure. It would inflict censorship that would be a prodigious source of trouble without accomplishing any great benefit. Compulsory examination without compulsory treatment would be void; and compulsory medical treatment according to one school of physicians when there are a score of different methods of treatment of disease, each having its devoted adherents, would be impossible of enforcement. The vote in the Nebraska house is an encouraging sign that personal liberty is still considered by the law makers to be a sacred and undefiled principle of government.

A man who has been busy all his life makes a mistake when he drops everything because he wants to "live easy." He will be far more uneasy than he would be had he continued his regular routine. There are men today, ninety years old and over, who are at the head of large and important concerns and are exceptionally successful. Their experience and wisdom are a most valuable asset. Had they dropped out at seventy they would have been in glory long ago. One old colleague that we know about organized a large company when he was past seventy and now, at the age of ninety-three, is still at the head of it and managing it successfully. Moral is, die with your boots on.—Tim Sedgewick.

On active life don't lose your hold. A moment may all be over. Don't think that you are growing old. Just grab the lines and drive.

Get out of bed at peep of dawn. If you would hold your grip. And put your working garments on. And don't give up the ship.

If friends give way to aches and pains. Due to "advancing age." Pay no attention to your brains. And let the heathen rage.

If you thin face the music, man. You will miss both to thrive. Go forward, do the best you can. Just grab the lines and drive.—Bobby

Entitled to Unanimous Support

Washington Post: Obviously the prime duty of every American is to turn his back upon the past that closes at noon on March 4. This is not only a republican, but a democratic duty, as is acknowledged by many patriotic democrats. Just as all Americans supported Mr. Wilson during the war, without regard to politics, so all Americans should now support Mr. Harding in the work of building up prosperity. The outgoing president fought the war gallantly, but the fact stands by itself to his credit, the incoming president is moving toward an attack upon the common enemy—hard times. He should be supported by every American, in a vast volunteer army. The war against Germany was not a partisan war, and the war against hard times is not a partisan war. If President Harding wins all Americans will win, not merely republicans.

Australian Suspicion of Japan. San Francisco Chronicle: Some people of Australia are of the opinion that what the Japanese government is really after is control of the continent of Australia. Australia is handicapped to Japan than the United States or Canada and is as yet very sparsely populated. For the present those in Australia who hold this view think that the British alliance is desirable to Japan. In one way and another they say that the Japanese seek to promote ill feeling between this country and Great Britain, expecting at the proper time when possibly Great Britain is fully occupied in India or elsewhere, to cut loose from the alliance, swoop down on undefended Australia and gobble it up.

Mrs. Alice Graham Dodd, mother of first American soldier killed in France, who gives entire credit for recovery of her health to the well-known medicine, Tanlac.

The following remarkable statement was made recently by Mrs. Alice Graham Dodd, the mother of Corporal Jas. B. Gresham, who was the first American soldier killed in France. The statement was made at the Gresham Memorial Home, which was presented to her by the patriotic people of Indiana as an evidence of their appreciation of the services rendered to his country by her son.

The shock of her son's death resulted in a serious breakdown in Mrs. Dodd's health. But every one will learn with interest and pleasure that she is now in splendid health again. Mrs. Dodd gives the entire credit for her recovery to the celebrated medicine, Tanlac.

She said "After my dear boy's death I had a general breakdown in health. At first it was just indigestion. My food would upset me and I had to diet myself very carefully. I also had rheumatism with severe pains in my shoulders, back and arms and at times I would suffer greatly and my joints would become swollen and stiff. I was hardly able to do but very little about the house and at times could not even cook a meal. I became very nervous and restless and at night would lie awake for hours.

"A friend of mine advised me to try Tanlac. I am glad I did, for it proved to be the best medicine I have ever taken. It soon gave me a splendid appetite and relieved me entirely of indigestion. My rheumatism also disappeared and I am now able to do my housework with the greatest ease. My nerves are steady and strong. I sleep well at night and my health is better than in years. I shall always be grateful for what Tanlac has done for me."

Tanlac is sold in Wayne by H. J. Feber, in Carroll by L. R. King, and in Winside by B. & C. McIntyre.—adv

Defective fires were the cause of a fire in the furnace chimney of the McCook high school, the heat of which was so intense that the joints caught fire and resulted in the destruction of the senior high school building and the partial destruction of the junior high building. The structure was comparatively new and the fact that the walls were built fire-proof accounts for the saving of the walls. During the process of rebuilding, the school was closed in various vacant rooms about town.

An automobile accident occurred near the Fred Nordgren farm near Newman Grove when a truck driven by Conrad Volk and Andrew Anderson slid into a ditch throwing Mr. Volk through the windshield. The little village of Trumbull in the west of Hastings had its last store wiped out by fire when A. L. Bauman's general merchandise establishment was destroyed. The extent of the loss was estimated at about $10,000 and was covered by insurance. The destruction of the Bauman store makes the sixth fire in Trumbull within the past two years. Whether or not the fires have been incendiary origin has not been determined.

Whether or not the Nebraska Gas and Electric Co. at Beatrice will resist the order of the city commission to reduce the rate on gas from $2.15 to $2.00 per 1,000 cubic feet remains a question. Manager B. H. Conlee expressed surprise at the issuance of the order and said that he felt sure explanation of the present rates would be warranted by the commission after he had submitted a report of the expenses and profits of the company to that body.

When Fire Inspector P. E. Dowling visited Bloomfield last week he reported that the city, on the whole, was in a good condition, and that, with the exception of some faulty electric wiring and careless stove installations, the condition of Bloomfield compared favorably with that of other towns. Mr. Dowling made a total of ninety-eight inspections. Following is given a classified list of the faults which the inspector found: Faulty stove installations, 11; defective electric wiring, 32; defective chimneys, 5; clean-ups ordered, 12; fire escape insufficient, 2; miscellaneous orders, 5. The reason given by authorities for the defective wiring was incessant change in wiring specifications.

Kearath, the 13-year-old child of Mrs. Agnes Peterson of near Osmond, was killed when a Ford car, driven by the latter, turned over, burying the four children underneath. The mother escaped with only a few bruises, and hastened to a farm house where she secured aid. The other three children were rendered unconscious for a time, but are now reported on the road to recovery. Mrs. Peterson is a widow.

The Laurel Commercial club recently ordered the C. St. P. M. and O. railway to build a cement sidewalk to the station, install a ladies' washing room, drinking fountain and other improvements which the citizens of Laurel think they have a reasonable right to expect. In order to create interest in the new project, the club will hold a smoker and lunch in the near future at which they will have a good speaker. Citizens of Laurel believe they have taken a step in the right direction.

Fred Hickman, owner of a soft drink parlor in Cedar, Neb., was charged with larceny, February 25, charged with the illegal possession of liquor. Sheriff Kinkaid received a number of signed letters from Hadar, telling him that liquor was being sold there. A drunken man arrested in Norfolk told the police that he had obtained a quantity of liquor from Hickman. One of the Hadar establishments revealed a case of "rough and cold medicine," over 42 1/2 per cent alcohol. Many of the bottles of the medicine had been suffering from "bad cuts." Hickman was pronounced guilty and was sentenced to sixty days in jail. He maintained that he had a right to sell the liquor.

Poor Sportsmanship. St. Paul Pioneer Press: Hunting from an airplane is the poorest kind of sportsmanship, because the birds have no chance to escape. The plane can mount as rapidly and can fly much faster than the game or ducks, so that entire flocks are annihilated. Such slaughter, if not prevented, would soon spell the sport for hunters on the ground, and would mean the ultimate extermination of the wild game fowl.

Congress Willing to Wait. New York Times: To pledge economy in the future is virtually to confess extenuation of the present. The figures of public expenditure will be no more tractable two years from now than they are today. The way to cut down is to cut down from the first opportunity. In the necessary process of deflation upon which the country entered last year every financial authority worth considering puts a reduction of government expenditures first among the essential measures.

Corrupt Practices Law Needed. New York World: The World does not profess to know the processes by which a federal corrupt practices law can be enacted which will meet the evil and come within the constitutional powers of congress. The task is as difficult as the need is great, but if public faith is to be maintained in the honesty of presidential elections congress cannot continue to treat these recurrent campaign funds scandals in the equanimous manner in which it has treated them in the past.
