The Farmer's Situation.

SIOUX CITY Journal: An Omaha paper publishes the picture of four open ears of corn on the farm of a Holt county, Nebraska, farmer, each ear containing 1,000 bushels. In addition, this farmer has 1,000 bushels of oats and 500 bushels of speltz under cover, with 100 bushels of alfalfa standing in the stack. These represent the farmer's still unmarketed crop of last year. It is stated that a portion of the crop will be fed to live stock, but that a large part of the grain will have to be marketed as grain. This farmer is only one of many in like situation. It is estimated that in Holt county alone there are 100 farmers holding 50,000 bushels of last year's corn, and Holt county is but one of Nebraska's corn producing counties. A percentage of this great surplus of corn will be fed and marketed as live stock, but there are not enough cattle in the territory to consume all of it, and farmers will be obliged to sell the grain if it is not to rot in such open and exposed cribs as have been referred to. It is not a happy situation that confronts the farmer. He is a loser if he sells, and he is a loser if he does not sell. With a next crop season opening favorably, he is not encouraged to hold his grain for higher prices, even though proper storage facilities, which will do it. He will probably take his losses and endure them with such fortitude as he is able to muster. It seems reasonable to suppose, also, that this year he will reduce his corn acreage considerably. The most certain way to enhance the price of corn or any other grain is to diminish the supply.

THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

If this is the millennium as suggested by a speaker in Wayne recently, we'd say it's not exactly up to specifications.

The petition from people on south Nebraska street for paving is an indication of the anxiety that will find their assurance all approved districts of the town.

The Omaha Builders' Exchange has voted to advise the superintendent of twenty per cent to stimulate building operations. It has been pointed out that materials have gone down and that workmen must act in the same direction if they expect to get busy.

An extra section of today's Herald is devoted mainly to the manufacturing and jobbing interests of Sioux City. This showing will give north-ward Nebraska a better appreciation of that city's growing production. Sioux City has made wonderful development as a manufacturing and wholesale center and due understanding of the facts will be of interest to this rich contiguous territory.

People have to pay for service. If they want promptness, accuracy and careful and guaranteed attention to detail, they must pay the extra cost. If they are not particular about how things are done, the price is paramount and should determine. People who are content to give careless service command high salaries and their product is necessarily more expensive. People usually get what they pay for, no more and no less.

It is claimed the total railroad deficit has reached $700,000,000, and is still growing. The problem of making the roads self-sustaining with salaries maintained and freight shipments and passenger traffic decreased is a serious one. As passenger rates are lowered, freight decreases and railroad earnings necessarily diminish. It would not be surprising if the roads would be impelled to rate reduction in order to increase their volume of business.

The passing of John Burroughs, the famous nature writer, at the age of 84, leaves a situation to a kindly old man who had been in love with nature all his life. The death of this noted lover of birds and flowers, at least more than four score years, reminds one of the great riches that may be contributed to a life by communion with nature and by cultivating a happy disposition. No good reason exists why advancing age should bring bad temper, slovenliness, destruction of worthy pride and indifference to surroundings. Age should be overcome by keeping in tune with nature and by imbuing the buoyancy of youth. Age should be defeated by increased rather than diminished attention to personal appearance. Cleanliness, neatness and everything that goes to strengthen an individual in the wholesome estimation of his fellows should be neglected less instead of more. It is said one is no older than his feelings and will feel younger than the facts would testify if he will develop an agreeable and well grounded personality.

THE PAVING COST

People anticipate a considerable reduction in bids for paving under a new contract in view of the following facts: Sand which is a large freight tax, costs no more. Asphalt costs no more. With the late drop in fuel, it is no dearer than the fuel of last year. The price of brick has dropped far enough to fully offset the increase in freight. Last year's bids were in the face of a rapidly advancing construction program, for the safeguard of an extra profit, while this year's markets are on the decline. Labor has dropped at least twenty per cent. The organization of labor has increased eighty or ninety per cent.

It is also pointed out that the Abel Construction company should be in position to make a lower bid on account of being on the ground and of avoiding the expense of moving. It is believed construction companies, like any business institution, ought to be satisfied with reduced profits.

The kind of paving material to be used is still in question. This will be determined by the city council after careful consideration. Some people favor asphalt concrete because while others favor the same material used in the first paving, being brick with asphalt and cement.

Agriculture Notes

Introduce New Methods.
Increasingly the farmer is turning to a stake or tree, which is the general custom in Guana, the boy and girl club members of the island built pens for their pigs. This method new to many of the islanders, is being encouraged by the Guam Agricultural Experiment Station, maintained by the United States Department of Agriculture, and through the club members it is being introduced into many parts of the island. Berkshire pigs are raised almost exclusively. Many of the boys and girls have Berkshire pigs and a large percentage of those who own native sows are breeding them to Berkshire boars. According to a report received by the United States Department of Agriculture, pig club members in Guam raised 294 pigs last season and made 74 exhibits of pigs at the district fairs.

Moisture Absorption of Wheat.
A recent report made by the Portland, Ore., office of the Grain Division of the Bureau of Markets, United States Department of Agriculture, indicates that some of the statements published with regard to the amount of moisture absorbed by sacked grain during the "rainy season" in the Pacific northwest are extravagant.

The report in question was based on 2,034 cars of wheat receipts sampled during recent years. The wheat of the Pacific northwest region is very dry at this time, and from then on until about March gradually absorbs moisture. Between March and August some of the wheat is given off. The average moisture content of wheat for the three years during which studies were made was 9.1 per cent in August, 11.3 per cent in March, and 10.6 per cent in July. The data for each separate year and section shows the same relative changes.

Grain Standards Grow in Popularity.
Eastern grain dealers, buying for export shipments, are demanding that their purchases be covered by Federal appraisal grade certificates, say marketing specialists of the Bureau of Markets, United States Department of Agriculture, in pointing out the growing popularity of the Federal grain grades.

Before Federal appraisal grade certificates can be had the United States grain standards act, which is administered by the Department of Agriculture, requires that the grain be first inspected by a licensed inspector and that such inspection be appealed to a federal grain supervisor. Ordinarily the filing of such an appeal is decided upon after the licensed inspector has issued a certificate of grade unsatisfactory to one or more of the parties concerned. The Chicago district office of Federal grain supervision, however, is now entertaining four appeals involving 220,000 bushels of shelled corn, the appraising of which was decided upon before the grain was inspected.

Market Courses for Farmers.
A big, expensive obstruction will be taken out of the road that leads from producer to consumer when the Bureau of Markets, United States Department of Agriculture, extends marketing science to the agricultural educational agencies as is now proposed. In growing his crop the farmer has done only half his work; his own profits and the satisfaction of his customers are not assured until the product has been marketed efficiently. For seven years the Bureau of Markets has been collecting information upon this subject, and this material has now been boiled down into such shape that it may be taught in schools and colleges along with the other specialties and sciences that go into the profession of agriculture.

The Bureau of Markets will not attempt to create new educational agencies, but will use those already provided. Schools and colleges will be given an opportunity to offer marketing courses to their students, and moving pictures, lectures, and pamphlets will carry the information to those who are unable to attend regular institutions. The subjects now ready for such extension include organization methods and business methods for cooperative associations, the standardization of farm products, better packing and shipping, transportation, market inspection, market information, exhibits and demonstrations, and warehousing. Practically all the farmer's marketing problems are reached by these subjects, but in cases which require it, the subjects will be modified and specialized to suit particular needs.

Atchison Globe Sights.
Every lazy man thinks his boss is oppressing him. What the average girl sees on a short skirt she spends on silk hose. The man who has the most doubts is the man who does the least thinking.

It really appears that one can't engage in "social service work" without becoming a nuisance. About the only man certain Atchison men ever pray is when his banker asks payment of a note.

The man who starts out by saying, "I admit I am not an angel," is never getting ready to pay himself a very nice compliment.

One has to be a considerable effort to induce a person who seeks an education merely to become able to contradict somebody else.

Denists Ignore History. —Minneapolis Journal:—The price of having a tooth forcibly removed from its old premises has suddenly slipped up 150 per cent. Evidently we are still engaged in a terrible war with Germany.

Hard to Demobilize Democrats. —National Republican:—It was a great deal easier to mobilize the German army than it will be to muster out the grand army of job-holders recruited under the Wilson administration.

Achieves Glorious Sights. —Some men who never touch liquor become intoxicated on flattery. There is always room at the top of the ladder and in the front row at church. The rating agencies say many of the war-profiteers haven't any of their profit left. When a reporter wants to make fun of another reporter he refers to him as a journalist. The man who says he refuses to argue with you probably is getting ready to argue until midnight. Living hasn't gone down as much as the employers say it has and it isn't as high as the employes insist it is. A good many people must have a good future before them, for there hasn't been anything worth while in their past. An Atchison girl who is very good looking, always picks out a homely girl chum, so that her own beauty will be more alluring by contrast. Most business trips made by small town business men to larger cities are nine-tenths pleasure and one-tenth business that could just as well have been transacted by letter.

MIX YOUR CROPS TO DODGE HARD TIMES

Don't put your eggs all in one basket is the lesson which falling crop prices have taught agriculturists in southern states, say Texas farmers. And one that might well be observed in every state in the Union. Many southern states have "diversified with cotton" through fat and lard profits since—always at a big sacrifice in the end—that as these pictures show, amidst the cabbage and radish—Texas at least are implying that the cotton the point for cottoners will grow greener by trying their fields will give it the opportunity.

The bill is now in the sitting committee in the lower house.

Nepotism Bill Passed.
The house last evening passed the bill making it unlawful for any person, board or commission to appoint a person related by blood or marriage to a clerkship where the remuneration comes from public funds. The house also passed the state hail insurance bill after accepting the senate amendments. The amendments provide that only ten per cent of the premiums must be paid into the state before November 1, when the balance will go into the state treasury.

The Dreesdow bill, forcing county commissioners to paint county bridges white was passed at the lower house on third reading. The house concurred in the conference committee's report on House bill 164, the Omaha banking and commerce bond bill. The conference committee cut that section of the bill which would permit continuation of bonds not in excess of $5,000,000 every two years without submitting the proposition to a vote of the people.

Tax Bill Taken Up.
Authority of the state tax commissioner, granted in Senate File No. 65 to order the reassessment of property already taxed in a county was assailed in the senate by Senator Hoagland of Lincoln county when that bill, which revises the revenue and taxation laws of the state sum-up for the first time in the committee of the whole. When the senate adjourned at 4 p. m. to convene at 9:30 Tuesday, it had reached Page 7 in the reading of the seventy-page bill. The bill was a special order for the afternoon.

New Film Bill Offered.
A measure licensing film companies operating in Nebraska, specifying how far they can go in showing sex and crime pictures and giving an unpaid commission power to withdraw the license and force film companies to forfeit license money will be submitted in the senate judiciary committee as a substitute for the moving picture censorship bill.

Good Words for Corbit. Norfolk Daily News: Talking about men who do a lot for their country and are never heard about, why not consider P. M. Corbit, road builder and Nebraska booster up in Wayne county? Corbit doesn't know it, but everybody who drives a car through his county compliments him. They come back to the avenue and they praise his efficiency and ability, and one of them rises to remark that Wayne county boasts the best dirt roads in the corn-husking state. Corbit does his work solidly and surely, it keeps a good road when he drives over one. They made him the highway commissioner of Wayne county because everybody knows Corbit's hobby is good roads. He makes his own dirt roads, and once a week, when the automobile can never tell when Corbit is going to come along. He drives them if they don't work and he tells them nice things when they do. That's why all of his old fore-aids with him and that's why he has the record of having the finest maintained roads in Nebraska.

The Townley Store
Fargo, N. D., March 28.—Hearing on the financial condition of the co-operative stores company fostered by the Nonpartisan League in North Dakota, will be held April 2 in the state district court at Minot. The company, which recently went into voluntary receivership, continued in its business with W. G. Johnson of this city as secretary, treasurer, and receiver. This is the fourth year of the Consumers United Stores, and it is today operating thirty-seven stores and a creamery. It has 10,000 members, according to Mr. Johnson, and "with any kind of crops and any kind of prices this year will overcome financial difficulties."

state where the drought had hit hardest. Other reasons given by Mr. Johnson as contributing to the company's straits were the collapse in grain prices, a slump in business caused by the winter and falling prices which caught the company with stocks bought at high prices. Goods handled consist mostly of kitchen utensils, and made-to-order suits. While contracts under which stores were placed in a community program, which is to go into a store building, may be used in part for educational work, cooperative lines, Mr. Johnson said that no money had been expended for that purpose. The company's largest creditors are the closed Scandinavian-American Bank at Fargo and the Peoples State Bank at Grand Forks, both of which were regarded as friendly to the Nonpartisan league. The co-operative company owes the first named bank $100,000 and the latter $12,000, its total owed to banks aggregating $300,000.

Prof. Urges Revival of Arbor Day Spirit

Lincoln, Neb., March 28.—The annual observance of Arbor Day in Nebraska a forested state apparently has died during the last generation. Prof. Raymond J. Pool, head of the botany department at the University of Nebraska, says the 300,000 acres of timber planted in the state by the pioneers thirty to fifty years ago are now a constant factor because of the "lapse" of present-day care-givers to care for the plantations.

Professor Pool says it is time that Nebraskans bring about a revival of the Arbor Day spirit that prompted the early settlers to plant trees. Unless the people of the state get busy and plant trees again and care for the ones they now own, Professor Pool says, it is only a question of time until all the trees in the state will be worthless.

"The area of planted timber in Eastern Nebraska," Professor Pool says, "is decreasing as a result of the constant uncertainty in regard to the financial soundness of the whole wood lot idea. In many parts of the state the tree planting zeal of the pioneers has been entirely lost, and although the products of their labors have been and are being harvested, there is little tendency to offset this loss by new plantations. The Nebraska farmers should now plant trees with the idea of reaping a profitable harvest of woody products, such as so-called profit from high yield and garden crops."

Professor Pool says farmers of the state can make big profits planting their own waste lands with trees. While Professor Pool's appeal primarily is directed at the owners of large tracts of land, his words home owners of the city will "increase the value and beauty of their property by planting shade trees."

will grow in any part of the state. Professor Pool says, "if given proper attention." The main thing in making a tree grow, he says, is to see that it has plenty of water. Few people in the state realize that Nebraska was the first state in the Union to observe Arbor Day. The late J. Sterling Johnson, secretary of the Nebraska department of agriculture, originated Arbor Day in Nebraska in 1872. His advocacy of this observance was successful the first year, and is declared to have been still more so during the succeeding years. During the first two years of Arbor Day in Nebraska, a careful census of the trees planted was taken. This custom has not been continued in recent years.

Fordson

More and more every day the demand for the Fordson Tractor increases because the Fordson has demonstrated so much usefulness, so much economy, so much labor saving, so much money saving, along so many lines of activity. The farmer has discovered that not only for plowing, harrowing, discing, seeding, moving, reaping and threshing, but a multitude of other uses: cutting wood, food, grinding feed, churning, washing, turning water in the house, making electric light possible in the house and around the barn; so that, as a matter of fact, there is hardly an hour in the day when the Tractor cannot be made a profitable servant. There is ditching to do; there are roads to fix; and so on all down along the line of the numerous calls that constantly face the farmer the Fordson steps in and does the work, shoulders the complete burden of the toil and the hard work, one might almost say "drudgery."

This is the Age of Machinery, the day when man plans the day's work, or the year's work, and then turns it over to the Tractor to execute. Get the book, "The Fordson at Work," because it is free. If you cannot call for it, write and we will mail it to you. The Tractor is not only a necessity to every farmer, but is an established utility along a great many commercial lines. Let's have your order now.

Canned Fruits

We have selected very carefully a brand for this part of our grocery stock. We have tried out and found that we need not apologize in any way for Sultana canned fruits. They are packed under the best of conditions and in canneries that are noted for the products they put out. Canned fruits put up under the Sultana label are all packed in an extra heavy syrup. The fruits are all carefully selected and are packed ripe, giving the best that can be had for the money. At present this excellent brand is selling at

45c per can

Grocery Service

This store is in position to give you the best of service. We want to call your attention to the fact that we carry no large stock and can give you fresh groceries at all times. Our purchases are all made two or three times a week and the way the market has been the past few months we have found that it has been to your advantage to buy in this manner as we have at all times been able to give our customers the best values possible for the money.

We are at all times ready to give you all the information that we have in regard to the market advances and declines. Many of our customers have been able to save considerable money on their grocery bill in this manner.

Another thing that enters into the service we are giving is the fact that we are able to do business on a small cash order and the quick turnover we are getting through the fact that we carry a small stock and buy often. Why not give our grocery department a trial and let us prove that we can save you money?

Coffee

We are very proud of our line of coffee. You will find sold here exclusively coffees roasted by E. B. Millar & Co., who have been in the coffee trade a good many years and have built a big business on the basic principle that it is right to give the best that can be had for the money. We wish to especially call attention to Magnet coffee which is considered one of the finest grades of coffee that can be roasted. Magnet coffee is sold today at 45 cents which is considerable less than the same grade coffee can be had for elsewhere. Other brands that are packed by E. B. Millar & Co., are Nut Brown, May Day and Trojan and sell for 40c, 35c and 30c per pound. We really believe that with these brands of coffee that we can really give you value received and invite you to try one of them.

We want to call your attention to Tac-Cut coffee, another recent addition to our coffee department and we recommend this coffee at 40c a pound.

Canned Vegetables

The same thing holds good in canned vegetables as in canned fruit. We feature the Sultana brand with the seasons give put up under the Tacco label. Under the Sultana label you may find the best that can be had. We take especial interest in getting the best that can be packed and in several articles have obtained things that are above the average products that are canned and we ask no more than you will have to pay for many brands of canned vegetables that are inferior.

M. E. Church Notes.
(Rev. F. M. Drulliner, Pastor.)
The Easter bazaar given by the Ladies' Aid society Saturday afternoon, despite the rainy weather, was a triumphant success, $76.65 having been cleared. Many favorable comments were heard following the bazaar, not only upon the appetizing food which was served, but also upon the articles which were on display. The stormy weather kept many country members at home, but those in town responded well. It is said that Rev. F. M. Drulliner went to Plain Tuesday evening to attend a district conference which convened at that place Wednesday and Thursday. The pastor spoke at a special meeting in the Methodist church at Bloomfield last week. Mrs. Drulliner responded a vocal solo. Plain Titus and Mrs. F. M. Drulliner sang a special duet at the M. E. church at Sholes last Tuesday.

Following a report of a committee on investigation to the effect that the parsonage was in need of repair, a committee to estimate the cost of the proposed repairs was appointed and will report as soon as proper investigations have been made. The choir will go to Sholes Sunday afternoon and give its cantata. (Continued on Page Seven.)

Women are enthusiastic over the new frocks, the new suits, the wraps. One reason is the many new styles. Every woman can find a mode best suited to her type. For instance, one sees influences from the directoire period, moyen age and the orient. Graceful princess lives vie with the Spanish silhouette. Who could ask for greater variety? It is essentially a woman's season, when decorative feminine touches were never more intriguing.

Navy Tricotine

Forms Smart Spring Wraps

What could be trimmer, more redolent of Spring itself, than a wrap of navy tricotine, braided-of course. Springs come and go, but the navy wrap continues to hold a favored place in feminine regard. Of course, there is a practical side to these wraps. From both the angle of price and the angle of service they are unusual values.

Smart Suits

Many outdoor days make every woman want to look her best, to have a new Spring Suit in which to shop, to stroll or to go calling. They are not possible to have several blouses with which to vary the suit costume.

The Latest in Hats

Bird's-Eye View of Sioux City

Sioux City, Iowa--The City That Serves

LESS than two generations ago the land upon which Sioux City is located and the territory for hundreds of miles around lay in its primeval beauty, with no sign of civilization. The red man of the prairie was unmolested in his rich hunting grounds. The wild buffalo roamed at will over the beautiful natural lawns of vivid green, upon the rolling prairies and lovely valleys. The rich carpet of nature made his home beautiful and furnished him with an easy luxurious living. The solemn stillness was broken only by the war whoops of the Indian, the lowing of the buffalo and the hungry cry of the wolf.

This was a hundred years ago, but today there is Sioux City, a center of industry, standing as a monument to the pioneers who pushed forward to the west and founded a city destined to become the metropolis of the north-west. The history of Sioux City is one that captivates the mind and inspires one with a sound confidence in the city's splendid future as a commercial and industrial city and a city of homes.

No longer must the western retailer send east for his products or the farmer ship his live stock and grain a great distance, for there is an industrial city within a short distance. Sioux City has long since been recognized as a manufacturing center, a jobbing center, a live stock market and a grain market. A history of each of these important industries in Sioux City is a story within itself. But the question is: Why has this city become known as the Industrial Center of the Northwest and what has been the cause of the steady, rapid growth of Sioux City? The answer is: It is the inlet and outlet of the richest territory in the world. Because of its wealth and income it has become the recognized market of this great northwestern agricultural region.

Since the early pioneers first crossed the Appalachian Mountains and started across the continent, the trend of modern industry has been rolling irresistibly across the country, moving westward to the powerful, inexhaustible markets of the great plains states, manufacturing plant, jobbing house, sales office—all have been westward bound. In this westward movement, no city of all the wonderful cities of the Great Plains States offered such opportunities to business men as Sioux City. Here was a rapidly growing city right in the very lap of the richest area in the world. It has been said that Horace Greeley must have had Sioux City in mind when he said, "Go west, young man," because the men who have come to Sioux City have prospered far beyond their rosiest dreams.

Nested cozily at the junction of the three states, Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota, it lies in the richest part of the richest states in the world's greatest food producing region. It is easily reached from all directions.

When you know that Sioux City ranks 99th in population and yet is about 44th in business, you get some idea of its power as a commercial center. Over three hundred factories and an equal number of jobbing houses pour out their products. However, do not think of Sioux City as altogether an industrial center for it is also a center of culture and learning as well as of industries. Besides Morningside and Trinity Colleges there are several trade schools and an exceptionally fine city school system.

Live Stock and Packing Industry

JUST a half century ago, in 1871, the packing industry was started when a packing plant was opened at Fifth and Water streets. Just previous to this a river boat loaded with wheat had sunk in the Missouri river near Sioux City. This was raised and purchased by James E. Boogie, who then had to find some way of using the wheat so he purchased some hogs to feed. Not being able to ship the hogs except at a great loss, he decided to butcher and sell them. This he did and thus started what is the leading industry in Sioux City. The city now ranks sixth in live stock and packing in the country.

The first plant consisted of four walls and a roof under which some four or five head of stock were killed a day. Now, however, things have changed. Approximately two million animals are slaughtered annually in the Sioux City packing plants.

Practically the first traffic in live stock was that of a handful of men banded together to furnish feeders to a limited territory surrounding Sioux City where farmers wished to utilize their surplus corn and fodder to the best advantage by furnishing young stock for the packers. At that time as now, Sioux City is the logical location for a live stock market being located at gateway to the western plains as well as at the door of the great corn producing country. It is small wonder that the city has within the span of a man's life time grown to sixth place in rank as a live stock market among the cities of the United States.

Perhaps no industry had so great difficulty in getting started. The first yards were built at Division street, but were wiped out by the flood of 1892. The business was then transferred to its present site and started on a much larger scale, but the following year of 1893 marked the nadir of depression and it was only by hard work and close management of the directors that they pulled through that and the following years. However, once over this depression, and the Sioux City Stock Yards history has been one of growth, prosperity and expansion. Every year this market reaches out a little farther and brings in stock from new sources until today it receives shipments from practically every stock raising section on the vast western plains.

The coming of the big packers, a few years later put the live stock market on a firm and insured its success. The Cudahy Packing company was the first well known concern and to them is due much credit for the establishment and maintenance of a stock market here. A few years later Armour & Co. established themselves and now with plants of two of the largest packers in the world, Sioux City became not only a recognized live stock market, but also a recognized packing center. Swift & Co. and a number of smaller independent firms have long since realized the unlimited opportunities here and have established their plants.

Nearly 4,000 people are now employed in the packing industry in Sioux City which is by far the greatest number of people in any one line of activity in the city. The large plants are modern in every respect and equipped with the latest machinery. Some idea of the enormous business done by the plants can be had when you notice that over $107,000,000 worth of products was the combined output of the local plants in 1920. Adequate precaution is taken to provide for sanitary handling of meat. Every article undergoes government supervision to guarantee its purity. The inspection starts with the animal on the hoof and continues until it is ready to be shipped.

Not only do the local yards supply the plants located in Sioux City but also many eastern concerns. Over three and a quarter million animals are received here while about two million are slaughtered. Because of its location and advantages as a market for live stock, many concerns maintain buyers here to purchase stock for their plants in other cities.

As a purebred live stock market, Sioux City leads the world. Since the beginning of this industry here, the stockmen have encouraged the raising of pure breeds and through their influence have caused a marked improvement in the quality of stock. Farmers now pay particular attention to the quality of the feeding stock they buy.

The Sioux City Stock Yards have built up a good horse market as well as cattle, sheep and hogs. Following the war period, the horse business had gone down because of the coming of the truck and tractor. However, there were some who still saw possibilities in the horse and last year special efforts were made to promote sale of horses. The result was a good year and a start this year that promises to bring back the horse market to its pre-war basis.

The year 1920 showed a marked increase in live stock in every market in the United States in cash values, but Sioux City had the smallest decrease with the exception of one other live stock center.

Sioux City's Financial Institutions

Sioux City's banks have very ably kept pace with the city's increasing business. Twenty-one banks and trust companies with a capitalization and surplus of $8,000,000 handled by 15000 visited business men care for the financial interest in this industrial city. In 1900 the bank clearings were $66,311,692 while in 1920 they were only a little short of a half billion. The deposits have grown from three million to fifty million in the last twenty years. But these figures do not give an adequate idea of the growth of these financial institutions.

The banker in any town, whether he be in a thriving industrial metropolis or a small country town, usually is looked upon as the substantial and conservative business man of the community. Upon him to a great extent depends the success or failure of any new concern. In the larger cities, the banker is responsible for the success or failure of the smaller bank throughout the surrounding territory. Then a successful bank should be controlled by the leading and most progressive men of a community. In Sioux City there are large strong banks which have been under the same control for ten, twenty, and in one case for thirty-seven years. The banks, like the officers, have been proven reliable and valuable assets to the city, and today are rated the strongest in this section of the country.

The first bank was established in Sioux City about 1855 by George Weare in an upstairs room over a hand office. A dry goods box served as a counter and the front line was the vault in which was placed the $1,000 capital which was brought overland from Council Bluffs. Their banking operations were very limited, being confined almost entirely to government land dealings. It is said that at that time interest ran as high as forty per cent. This firm was called the Weare & Allison bank. John P. Allison arriving in 1857. In April of 1859 John McElhugh became cashier of the Iowa State National Bank and two years later this bank took over the original Weare & Allison Bank.

In 1909 Mr. McHugh and his associates bought a controlling interest in the First National Bank and this bank took over the Iowa State National Bank with Mr. McElhugh as president. This is interesting in that today Mr. McHugh, now in New York, is considered one of the foremost financial men of the country. He was recently appointed chairman of the Board of Directors of the Foreign Trade Financing Corporation, a hundred million dollar corporation for furtherment of our trade with foreign countries. He is one of the business men of the country who have developed in Sioux City's business world.

The Sioux City clearing house association was organized about thirty-five years ago, growing each year in importance, bringing the numerous banks into closer cooperation and assuring the business men that their best interests will be served.

The strong financial institutions of a central trading point are always stabilizing influence in the surrounding community in cases of a money stringency for when money is needed to carry the farmer or the merchant in the country town the smaller bank has a means of supplying the wants of his customers because he can negotiate loans from the larger banks until such time as obligations are discharged. Sioux City banks have been a great help in this respect. In their territories thousands of dollars were made available in order that business and trade could be carried on during the depressing times of the last few months. These facts are sometimes overlooked, but should be kept in mind and credit given to men and the institutions they control for the things they do when necessary. After all, it's the man behind the gun who keeps the ball a-rolling.

Sioux City banks today compare most favorably with those of other and even larger cities, and the reason for this is because Sioux City bankers are constituted of sound, conservative and broad-minded men.

Seed Test Campaign

Daily Drivers Journal-Stockman: The co-operative work that is being carried on by the Iowa Agricultural Experiment association and the State Experiment station at Ames in a better seed campaign is becoming more popular as the extent of its operations becomes more fully realized. All progressive farmers of the state are being urged to take part in the work as far as the supply of seeds will permit. It is desirable to have these seeds tested out in as widely scattered sections as possible.

Along this line the college has just called attention to its Ames Amber Syrup Sorghum. The authorities are making further distributions of this seed this year and are anxious for as many to join in the test as possible.

"It is the best sorghum that I have ever had," says a grower in writing his report regarding the Ames amber syrup sorghum. Farther down on the report blank it is found that his yield was sixty-six gallons from one-half acre. Not an amount to be disregarded last year during the high price of sugar, when you consider that this is from one growing tier at an initial investment of 15 cents.

"I have been in the sorghum business since 1904 and have worked most all kinds of cane. I think you can fully recommend it in every way," says a syrup maker from the southern section of the state, after he had tried the one pound of seed last year.

"It is the best I have tasted this year. I operate a cane mill," is another statement which comes from a grower in the northern section of Iowa.

"The man that made the sorghum for me said it was the finest quality he had ever made, with rich flavor and pretty color. He has already ordered seed from me," is a statement from a grower in the central section of Iowa.

The above are representative statements which have been received from a large number of growers of the Ames amber syrup sorghum distributed in 1919 and 1920, by the Iowa agricultural experiment association.

In 747 tests in 1919 it proved to be a very good syrup sorghum and very high in sugar content. In the tests in 1920, of which there were only 432—due to the scarcity of seed—the quality was the superior factor. It gave, as in the previous tests, excellent syrup and proved to be better for Iowa conditions than any other.

Jobbing

The jobbing business began as early as 1852 in Sioux City when Joseph Leons brought a large quantity of merchandise up the Missouri River and opened two stores, one in a log cabin and one in a tent. This was the beginning of the jobbing business. Now over 300 houses job annually two hundred million dollars worth of their wares which include practically every necessity of the home, the farm, and the business. A list of these articles would be compiled only after studying volumes and volumes of catalogs of the various jobbers. There are single concerns who write their annual business in seven and eight figures. The six trunk lines with their eighteen branches lead out to the corners of the vast western farming region, bringing thousands of towns within a day's journey of a recognized jobbing center. With the steady increase of population in the city and the region to which it supplies commodities, it can easily be seen that the jobbing business of Sioux City has only begun. No other city in the United States has so large a scope of country without a single rival in the way of a jobbing center. New wholesale houses are springing up constantly to supply the demand made on the city by the ever increasing trade territories. These jobbers are useful and of vital importance to the thousands of retailers in small towns who must go to a city for their supplies. Sioux City is that city at your very door.

The buying powers of the jobbers are enormous. Their buyers reach the greatest markets in the world, commanding variety, quality and price of products. Some own their own factories thus eliminating the middleman in selling from their own plants direct to the retailer. Millions of dollars are tied up in the products which they keep in warehouses ready to send out constantly at the call of the buyer. Of the jobbed goods, foodstuffs lead with $120,642,000 worth annually, including every product for the table. Second to this is the automotive business. Five cities of the size of Sioux City can boast of over eight million dollars' worth of automobiles, trucks, and accessories jobbed in 1920, which was a low year at that. This enormous business is again drawn to Sioux City's excellent location with railroad and highway facilities for reaching the most thickly populated with automobiles section of the country. The recent government truck survey showed that with the exception of the eastern gardening regions no other territory contained as many farm owned motor trucks as the section of the country immediately surrounding Sioux City. There are enough automobiles in the combined territory covering parts of seven states that should the entire population decide to move they could all go at once in motor cars and still have room for part of their luggage. Over nine million dollars' worth of hardware and plumbing supplies are jobbed annually out of Sioux City, which go to equip homes and shops in great distances over the country. These concerns are some of the largest single firms in the city. Cigars, tobacco, drugs, paper, paints, seeds and electrical supplies are some of the other well established lines of jobbing. Most of the large wholesale houses are located on tracks where hundreds of cars are shipped every day. These cars and packages cars cover the entire trade territory as efficiently as your local grocery car serves the town in its small way. There are over 5,000 people who are engaged in the jobbing in Sioux City in addition to the hundreds of traveling men. Excellent roads in this part of the country make it much easier for men to call on their trade than a few years ago. Motor trucks run regularly out of the city supplying the trade in smaller towns. Some of the trucks are owned by the jobbers themselves, but several motor trucks express companies operate out of the city. Of all the wonderful opportunities that are visible in Sioux City perhaps none offers such a great future as the jobbing business. It has shown a steady increase every year. During 1920 when factories were closed, when the public cut buying prices and when things were quiet in most lines, jobbing was gaining, and the total volume of business for last year exceeded 1919 by over seven million dollars. Why this? It is because Sioux City can give the service to the country merchants; it can supply them with goods at lowest prices and save freight. It is strictly a business proposition. Sioux City has the location, the jobbers, the business, and the railroad facilities. The thousands of retailers throughout the immediate trade territory of Sioux City are looking more and more to this city for their wants.

good, pure Ames syrup sorghum seed will be furnished which will plant about a half acre. This is a pure strain based at the experiment station and selected for high sugar content and is especially recommended for use in the making of sorghum syrup. The seed may be planted either in rows or in hills and a report will be required of the number of gallons of syrup made. Complete instructions will be forwarded to each experimenter at the time the material for his experiment is shipped and each co-operator who conducts his experiment carefully and sends in a reasonably accurate report will be made a member of the association for one year, without payment of membership fee. The association has some Ames amber syrup sorghum seed for distribution in one-pound lots which may be secured by sending 15 cents to cover cost of material and postage, to Joe L. Robinson, Secretary, Ames, Iowa.

As To March: Lincoln Journal: March is not distinguishing itself for mildness of behavior. The county has been visited by a heat wave, followed by a period of cold that has already done an enormous amount of damage to prematurely opened fruit buds. All of this is a reminder that an early spring brings with it not only worries that accompany the lingering of winter far into the month of April. So far as the basic crops are concerned, they do not seem to have been injured by the madness of March, but some of the trimmings have undoubtedly been badly frosted.

Tariff Obstruction Foreseen. Sioux Falls Argus-Leader: Of course the New England congressmen and senators who opposed the tariff on farm products may yet have some of the western members to deal with when it comes to getting the kind of a tariff they want on their manufactured articles. The game of tariff obstruction is one that can be worked both ways.

A Small Lathe for Big Values

A Sioux Valve Lathe equips your shop to reface any valve from 1.3-8 to 4 1-2 inches in diameter, with either 30 - 45 or 60 degree angles.

This simply designed tool requires no bothersome adjustments. The 30 - 45 or 60 degree angle adjustments are permanent parts of the tool, each changed merely by inserting the degree plunger into another hole.

The valve is self-centering in the Sioux Valve Lathe. The swivel-center device on the up and down center adjustment insures perfect alignment for absolutely accurate work on the valve.

A distinctive feature of this tool is the round cutter. Its shape insures smooth, clean cutting without ridges or shattering. Its movable circular edge provides unlimited cutting edge.

Any novice can operate this tool. It will quickly pay for itself in any shop.

"Fresh Fruits from Everywhere"

As a Grain Market

Sioux City, Iowa, has made wonderful strides in the last year and a half in a grain market. The city is located in the heart of a great grain belt covering northwestern Iowa, southern Minnesota, South Dakota and northern Nebraska. The territory immediately out of Sioux City comprises the richest grain producing sections of each of the states named. It is the most important corn producing section in the United States. Sioux City has always been ideally located for a grain market and milling center, but it has for a great many years been handicapped by lack of competitive freight rates. The Board of Trade was organized in 1907 but was unable to accomplish much until 1914 when active steps were taken to put the city on the grain map. The men who organized the board were strong business men who saw wonderful opportunities here for the city as a terminal grain market and they were determined to make it one. Many of these men are still active members of the Board of Trade and are realizing their ambitions several years ago. Some idea of the importance of the board can be had from the fact that the original membership on it was $25 while today it has advanced to $5,000. There are about 100 members at the present time.

The increase in value of a seat on the board was due to a decision approved in 1918 by the Interstate Commerce Commission which placed Sioux City on a parity with Omaha, to points along the C., B. & Q., the C. M. & St. P., the Northwestern and the Illinois Central railroads. This gives Sioux City an equal chance with other terminal markets for grain from northern Nebraska, all of western Montana, Idaho, Utah and Colorado for reshipping from the Missouri River to eastern territory.

With an equality in rates established and official recognition afforded Sioux City as a terminal grain market by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the movement to build terminal elevators was started on a big scale. One year after the rates were accorded and the grain market open in Sioux City, it had done a business far in excess of expectations. Two years and it is one of the recognized grain centers of the northwest with several large reinforced concrete elevators being equipped and with facilities for handling millions of bushels of grain. One of the largest elevators is that of the Terminal Grain Corporation. This elevator itself embodies all the latest ideas in construction work of this kind, including ventilators to prevent dust explosions. Its capacity is 800,000 bushels but has sufficient grain handling machinery to care for 1,000,000 bushels additional storage. The warehouse is 216x1 and 175 feet high. The storage bins are 82 x 115 and 102 feet high. The Terminal Grain Company has built near the first mentioned. This elevator is 178 feet in height. The building proper is 61x12 and is divided into 20 bins. It is equipped with two 10,000 bushels per hour receiving legs, one 10,000 bushels per hour shipping leg, two 6,000 bushels cleaner legs, two 2,000 bushels hopper scales with four 2,400 bushel garner, above. Each unit is electrically equipped and modern in every respect.

The second largest elevator is the one owned by the Western Terminal Elevator Company. It has a capacity of over half a million bushels and has two northouses. This elevator is 69 x 100 and 140 feet high and like the others is modern in every respect. Alongside each of the elevators are grain elevators of large capacity for protecting the grain received. The Farmers Terminal Grain Corporation has started work on a giant elevator which will rank in size and importance with the others mentioned. The plans are for a 1,000,000 capacity plant. In addition to these large elevators there are several smaller ones and numerous others are being considered for construction.

An article in Northwestern Miller C. M. & St. P., the Northwestern and the Illinois Central railroads, is witnessed at that the grain interests at Sioux City witnessing the material development of the past year, and that so many heavy years of waiting, should feel optimistic over the outlook for the future. They contend it is only the beginning, that the business facilities for grain will attract the manufacturer and that other mills will be built there to convert the grain into flour and other cereal products. In fact, it is intimated pretty strongly that one of the two terminal facilities is already piecing together mills alongside its elevators, and that announcements of construction work thereon may be looked for before long. They want to see an increase in the shipments of Sioux City's manufactured products as well as in grain.

Pullman Company Nefarious.
Alexandria, S. D., Herald: A newspaper heading says "Pullman Passengers Robbed by Bandits." The only wonder is that the passengers' heads were left for bandits after paying Pullman fare.

Potato Hill Philosophy.

The great trouble now, next to the effects of the late war, is the laborer. You may say the labor union men are getting no more than is coming to them. I shall not argue as to that; but the fact remains that the labor union men, by the fact that they say is no more than justice, are responsible for the present disagreeable state of affairs, next to the late Kaiser.

It is generally agreed that something is wrong with the world. What it is, I should not say. It is that no one of us is doing as well as he might. There is no such thing as a man who does not know better than he is doing. If we all did as well as possible with our opportunities, the world would be a rather pleasant place. I like it pretty well as it is; with all their fool ways, I find much in the people to admire.

A good many writers "pick at me" because of my statement that professional writers are not as fair and reliable as business men. There is no doubt of the truth of the statement. Let my critics remember that I mean "professional writers." Many business men are excellent writers. Andrew Carnegie was; his autobiography is one of the best things in recent literature. Judged merely as a piece of writing, and it contains ideas sufficient to set up a hundred professional editorial writers in business. Proficiency in writing is a natural gift; first of all, in the second place, it is a matter of practice; like painting a picture. But every man of really great genius in literature was born with the gift; he didn't acquire it with practice. Some writers make great strides as a result of infinite patience and toil in constructing their sentences, but the masterpieces were written by natural-born geniuses. Abraham Lincoln made a few notes on the back of an envelope, while sitting to the life of Gettysburg, and a masterpiece was born. He had it in him; it went on paper as easily as words from his lips. American writers should not be too easily offended because of criticism of their work.

We are stronger in everything than the writing. The English, French, Germans and Russians write much better than we do. The skill of the better-class foreign writers in handling words is a wonder to me. We will acquire it, and pass them, but we will be hundreds of years in doing it. We surpass the foreigners in newspaper writing and reporting, but when it comes to the more substantial stuff, we must admit inferiority.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Former Wagner Picture Man Scores Success

J. E. Hostetter, who was at one time proprietor of the Crystal Theater in Wayne, having come here from Bloomfield, has gained large success in the picture business according to an article in Sunday's Omaha Bee. Following is the story of achievement:

These opportunities and ventures were the harbinger of success or failure were the hard struggle that shook a vibrant chord in the evening achievement of the Hostetter brothers, J. E. and J. O., heads of the Hostetter Amusement company. From a capital of one theater valued at $3,500, four years ago, these two men are today the chief executives of theatrical holdings throughout Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri worth more than $1,000,000.

Establishment of the main office of the company in Omaha is an asset to local bank clearings in that the company has one of the largest financial accounts in the city.

The trade among Omaha film exchanges has increased 30 per cent since the Hostetter Amusement company began purchasing all its film through local exchanges instead of in other cities.

The number of theaters under the Hostetter banner has increased from 64 during the past four years.

First Venture.
Chance afforded J. E. Hostetter, then in the cigar business at Wayne, Neb., his first venture in the theatrical business.

He took hold of a small motion picture house at Waterloo, Ia., on the style of the eastwide nickelodeon. The transaction involved $3,500, and not a little nerve for J. E.

Then it was that opportunity stepped into the limelight for the Hostetter brothers. They hoped on a hard rode to success.

Opportunity led them to the purchase of another theater in Waterloo and one in Marshalltown, Ia.

This venture was the foundation of their business rise.

Bigger Business.
The Hostetter brothers put their heads together for bigger business. They kept their plans to themselves. They saw clearly ahead of them. No red cloud obstructed their vision.

They forged ahead.

Venture then entered into the category of the business advances and the two executives paved their way into Nebraska, Missouri and Kansas.

Their holdings in these states, together with those in Iowa, are located as follows: Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Charles City, Cedar Rapids, Sioux City, Waterloo, Marshalltown, and Clinton, Nebraska; Lincoln, Hastings, Norfolk, Kearney, Grand Island, Holdrege, Central City, Fairbury, Beatrice and Wahoo, Kansas; Atchison, Missouri; St. Joseph, Mo.

Big Contracts.
It is a small matter for J. E. Hostetter, president of the concern, to sign contracts for pictures amounting to thousands of dollars. Present contracts held by the Hostetter Amusement company amount to thousands of dollars, according to a report of the company.

The company employs 700 persons.

New Secretary of Agriculture and wife just plain folks from Iowa.

Henry C. Wallace of Des Moines Ia., farmer, stock raiser and publisher, new Secretary of Agriculture in the Harding administration, with his wife delights to be known as just plain "home folks." Mrs. Wallace does all her sewing and has mothered six children. The Wallace family and former president Roosevelt were visiting friends.

Quite Conservative.
To steady J. E. Hostetter, one does not find him to be an overly enthusiastic executive, too hot in business ventures. Rather, he is of the conservative type but ready to snatch an opportunity.

Speaking of his venture, he said: "The theatrical game has been appealing to me. I saw opportunities and I merely took advantage of them. Of course there was much hard work and difficulties to overcome before I even had confidence in myself, but good luck has helped me right along."

M. E. Hostetter predicts that he will open a theater in every metropolitan town in Nebraska.

Home in Omaha.
He has established his home in a beautiful residence in West Omaha.

Explaining the policy of the Hostetter Amusement company in operating his holdings, Mr. Barcl, general manager, said: "The appeal for pictures is left to the public mind. We try a picture in a city and if it meets with ill respect in general, we retreat." The company places a strong bet, however, on Great Britain on immoral or suggestive pictures, as we have learned that the biggest profit in the end is in clean and elevating stories."

Held to District Court.
Madison, Neb., March 30.—Henry Lewis who "shot off" the town of Meadow Grove recently, will have to answer for his crime in the district court when it convenes at Madison again. Lewis was given his preliminary hearing before Judge M. S. Mitchell in the county court. Tuesday afternoon and he furnished $1,000 bail—which was demanded by the court before he was released.

The landing over to the district court required but a short time. The man is charged with shooting with intent to kill and murder in a complaint drawn by County Attorney Pyle who was present for the state to prosecute Lewis. The complaint is signed by two Meadow Grove citizens who were wounded when Lewis, pushing around with a shot gun, fired point blank at a passing automobile loaded. He missed the car, the shot, and hit bystanders. Sheriff Smith found the village aglow with lights and armed citizens patrolling the streets when he arrived. He found Lewis on a farm near the town, arrested him and took him to the county jail. A number of Meadow Grove citizens were in the court room when Lewis was bound over to the district court.

John Hash who was on the streets of Meadow Grove at the time of the shooting and who was arrested by the sheriff on a charge of being intoxicated, pleaded guilty in Judge McDuffee's court. Hash told the court that he obtained the booze from Oscar Moritz of Meadow Grove. He was fined $5 and costs.

Manufacturing

Do you realize that within a few hours' ride of your home there is a manufacturing center producing over $155,000,000 worth of goods annually, employing over 10,000 people in the manufacturing business, and shipping over 250 different products? Sioux City is doing this. With a population of 71,287, Sioux City supports over 300 factories. It is the variety of products, rather than the size of the various factories that has made Sioux City famous as a western manufacturing center, but there are many that stand out as leading in the world in their line. One of these is a cranberry which is easily the largest in the world and whose products are known within shipping distance of the city.

That is one industry that originated in Sioux City and has since spread to all parts of the country. It would be difficult to find a single farm in the entire territory tributary to Sioux City that does not have at least one metal-product bearing the "made in Sioux City" mark. It may be a tank, waterer, cupola, feeder or any other of the 100 or more farm specialties for which the city is known. The reason for this is that Sioux City is the home of this industry and today leads the world, making over 1,000,000 pieces of metal over $1,000,000. The automatic non-freezeable waterers were first put on the market by a Sioux City firm which does an enormous business. It is a recent industry, but has taken wonderful strides in the past five years.

Crippled by the war taking away its raw material, it has now reared on a larger scale than ever before. More factories and more people are engaged in the manufacturing of food products, including packing-house products, than any other line. There are several brands of grocery products bearing Sioux City trademarks. These are known throughout the west to the Pacific coast. Four large candy factories daily turn out enough sweets to tickle the palates of thousands of kiddies who know instinctively that a Sioux City lollipop or day sucker. Ranking with the best in the country, are the high class chocolates and fancy cakes and confections. In buying any food product made in Sioux City, you are assured of getting not only the highest in quality but also the freshest, for located as it is in the heart of the producing region, raw products are quickly obtained, converted into manufactured articles and again sent away to the consumer.

No better location could be found in the country for manufacturing of cereal products, because 20 per cent of the nation's crops are produced in the Sioux City trade territory. Corn, oats, wheat, and alfalfa—the raw materials for flour and cereal mills—abound in greater volume in this territory than in any other section of the country. Twenty per cent of all America's corn, 21 per cent of all America's oats, 20 per cent of all America's alfalfa and 14 per cent of all America's wheat is right here ready to be converted into food products. These wonderful opportunities have been realized by numerous companies who have placed their plants here. Flour, meals, bran, cake flour, granams and other cereal products are now being manufactured. A breakfast food factory is being built here. Flour, meals, bran, cake flour, granams and other cereal products are now being manufactured. A breakfast food factory is being built here.

But foodstuffs are not the only important manufactured goods in Sioux City. All kinds of work clothes from shoes to caps and hats are made by a dozen factories. One of the largest soap factories in the west makes it possible to have clean clothes and clean homes. This factory turns out a fine quality of soap annually besides other special makes.

The automotive manufacturing business plays no small part in the industrial life of the city. The largest factory in the world making exclusively valve grinding tools is located here. This plant was started in 1915 with one man, the inventor, turning out tools. Today they employ one hundred five men in the shops and have twenty-five men on the road constantly. Besides selling in nearly every state of the United States, they sell in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Italy, Cuba, Philippines, Islands, Hawaii, England, and Spain. They maintain offices and representatives in Sydney and Melbourne, Australia, and advertise in three different languages. They make annually over a million dollars worth of their tools which are used on automobiles, trucks, tractors, airplane motors, or any other internal combustion engine. A tractor is manufactured in Sioux City which has won the world's record in plowing and a truck which is well known throughout this territory and has invaded foreign countries. In 1919, the National Motor Truck Development farm was founded here. The Sioux City made truck was one of the few to finish with a perfect score, making the 3,500 miles in 60 days. This same truck is still in operation and is giving good service after traveling over eight thousand miles. They are used in every line of industry in cities and on farms throughout the middle west. In addition to these, there are tires, auto tops, spark plugs, piston rings, and various other accessories manufactured in Sioux City. Machine

McClenahan of Iowa
 And may his shadow ne'er grow dim

 "Which profit was a help to him."
 The aggregate, I think, is true.
 Made fat his modest bank account.

Then jealous people rose last year
 And howled and whispered—no one screamed—
 "McClenahan's a profiteer."
 And as such ought to be impeached."
 These whispers grew from week to week
 Into a wild, discordant shriek.

McClenahan now holds the sack
 For, when the noise became too loud,
 Darned if he didn't put it back

And still the clamor of the crowd,
 So that the people to a man,
 Now shout "Hurrah for Clenahan."

It takes a deal of nerve betimes
 To take the stump and spout for pay.

Or charge for writing foolish rhymes,
 Neglected by the argus leader.
 But I would say there is no lack
 Of nerve in him who puts it back.

Theme—deserves another line;
 The "business" motto suits us
 thus:

"If I can grab it, it is mine;
 'What we secure' belongs to us."
 I sing the praise of one live man.
 On earth. His name? McClenahan.

 To Whom It May Concern:
 On the night of December 26, 1919, I was taken sick with chills, followed with a fever and sore throat. The following morning, my eyes appeared on the bridge of my nose, and extended over to the malar bones. This I called Dr. E. C. THE OUTLOOK

(Given Before C. of C. Membership Meeting)

In forecasting financial conditions we are not without precedent, from which we can form, not always accurate, but reasonable conclusions based upon our entrenched reserves, and the constant shifting conditions, which usually follow excessive inflation.

Hence, when asked, ARE WE GOING TO HAVE A PANIC, we may emphatically say "No," as there is no indication that respects the important financial storms through which our country has passed, when unjustified contagious fear caused strong men's hearts to thump, and their faces to pale.

For more than fifty years, our people in this productive middle west have grown rich and for more than three years preceding the last, we have through inflated values upon everything we bought or raised, received more than has ever entered our most fantastic dreams, and those who saved and safely put away a good part of their excess profits of such period are now, and will continue to be, much better provided for than ever before.

During the late world war, our Government appealed to the banks to extend credit to our people, to increase their herds and the products of our farms, to feed and clothe the allied armies, and our banks patriotically responded in that most worthy cause, which assisted to bring the hostilities to a close and released more than four million consumers, being soldiers, sailors and others engaged in war work, who returned to their former vocations as producers, causing natural deflation and readjustments through which we are now passing, but no merchant, manufacturer or farmer anticipated a deflation in six months and in the inflation of six years, which is causing now, not a panic, but embarrassment to many farmers and all branches of business.

We must, however, meet the conditions as big and brave men should, and those who have been working along the lines of legitimate business may, in our readjustment, depend upon the co-operation of their banks, supported by the great Federal Reserve Banking System, and while there are in normal times failures, through indiscreet expenditures and investments, which naturally continue, we should not during the present tension, allow them to change our perspective.

We always have, and I assume always will have, in every community, those who are temperamentally pessimistic—they are so born. They can see no sunrise or sunset, or at night the bonfires of life. The birds do not sing for them; the flowers do not grow for them, and the smile of a child has no meaning for them, and such people are likely through their graveyard talk, and woe begone expression to discourage all who may give them time, which might be better used, and if there are any such here tonight, I implore you to go into your attic and get down on your knees and pray to God for a new birth and a new outlook.

329,063 Autos in Sioux City Trade Territory

The Farmer and Breeder of Sioux City has recently compiled and issued a detailed chart showing number of automobiles and trucks by counties in the Sioux City trade territory. It shows a total of 329,063 cars, and 29,271 trucks in the four states, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska and South Dakota, there are 65,644 trucks of which 31 per cent are in our trade territory. In these states are 922,022 cars, 36 per cent of which are in our territory.

This gives some idea of the tremendous automotive business done throughout our trade territory. A large portion of this goes directly through Sioux City.

Another Way to Hasten Building.
Chicago Tribune: It may be that conspiracies retard building. It was so found in New York by a commission which the legislature authorized to investigate. There have been some indictments of building material men and building trades officials here, but it still remains possible that an investigation authorized by the legislative powers which it can grant would break down obstacles and stimulate building.

State is a Poor Fixer.
Kansas City Star: Some persons think it would be fine to have the state take charge of everything. They believe it could adjust supply and demand much better than free individuals are doing it today. Possibly, but Bussia is trying state action to make the necessary adjustments and the results are not so enviable as to incite the United States to follow its example.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: Half of the republicans of California are reported to be disgusted with the tactics of Senator Hiram Johnson. His stony yet hostile to the Harding administration and his arrogant rule of the California state organization are said to be forcing a revolt which threatens the senator's grip on matters political.
