Encouragement
Drovers Journal-Stockman: However gloomy the commercial and industrial outlook may seem, it is comforting to reflect that we are still living in a land of plenty, and that no country with vast resources of raw material is in very great danger of the more vital ill that may beset a dependent nation. There is plenty of coal left in the mines of this country, plenty of uncut lumber in our forests, plenty of wool stored in our warehouses, plenty of cotton in the South and there is an abundance of corn in our granaries and elevators. The American people are prosperous, if abundance is in any way related to prosperity, but we are now passing through a transition period during which prices must seek their true levels. The necessity of price readjustment, involving labor as well as commodities, is the main trouble with business at the present time. Going back to pre-war conditions means a steep descent and there are many laggards in the procession.

Digging Test Hole For Proposed Capitol

Lincoln, Neb., April 19.—Shovel men engaged during the last two weeks in digging a test hole for the proposed new state capitol received plenty of free advice from the hundreds of persons who have stopped to watch the progress of their work. The hole is approximately 40 feet deep and 15 feet in diameter. During the last 20 feet the workmen have blasted their way through hard sandstone.

The whole has been a great attraction to people passing the capitol grounds, and their eyes and ears were busy. Children of the community have played in the sand that is being thrown out and have watched with interest the blasting by dynamite. Old timers, who say they were around when the first capitol was built, spend a good deal of time telling the shovel men what kind of soil they will come to next. Others have told them that the digging of such a large hole is nonsense.

"Blasting Shakes Old Building."
The blasting caused the first building of the capitol to shake and tremble. State house workers, however, soon became used to the rumbling noises caused by the blasting, and their work as usual, nothing unusual was taking place.

The test hole has also been an attraction to many legislators. Most of them have spent at least a few minutes watching the first actual work towards the erection of the proposed new capitol.

New estimates of Nebraska's proposed capitol are now on display in a number of state offices and downtown show windows. In comparison to the first capitol erected in Omaha in 1855 the proposed new edifice seems unreal. The first capitol building, the territorial days, was a two-story building 35 by 75 feet, and cost about $3,000. The new structure will blaze a new trail of capitol architecture, having a tower that will soar more than 400 feet in the air, 20 feet in diameter. Preliminary estimates on the cost of the new capitol show that it will cost at least $3,000,000.

Capitols Grow With State.
History of Nebraska shows that the size of its state capitols have grown with the population and prosperity of the state.

The territory's first capitol, built at Council Bluffs, Ia., a company known as the Council Bluffs and Nebraska Ferry company. The success of the company depended upon the growth of Omaha, and to boost that city, this company built the first Nebraska territorial capitol. The first territorial legislature met in this building in 1855.

The second territorial capitol, also located in Omaha, was a more pretentious affair. The federal government appropriated $50,000 for the construction of this building, but the entire amount was used by the time the first story was completed in 1857. Local subscriptions followed, and the building eventually was completed. It was a two-story structure with high columns on the front and side. A description of this capitol was printed in the Cincinnati "Gazette" as follows:

"The state house is a plain brick building about 120 feet by 70 feet, painted a lead color and relieved by Corinthian pilasters. Its plan is that of a youthful state. By people who began life in log cabins it would be considered magnificent."

Locals Become Capitol.
While Nebraska was striving for admittance to the union the legislators were at the same time attempting to locate the state capitol somewhere west of Omaha. It is an interesting story which tells of the selection of the paper town, which was later named Lincoln, for the site of the new capitol.

Nebraska's capitol. President Andrew Johnson was proclaimed March 1, 1867, making Nebraska a state and in December of the same year work was begun on the new state house at a cost of $300,000. It was first planned that the building's cost should not exceed $40,000.

There was many a pioneer in the state who remembers the first Nebraska state capitol, an impressive building in those days with a tower and dome, having many windows on each side which appeared to supply ample space for state officials. Many Additions Made.
The present capitol was built like a proverbial farmer's house—an addition to the original every time there was a good one. The legislature of 1870 appropriated $75,000 for the erection of a west wing which was to be the beginning of a new capitol. In 1878, an appropriation of $300,000 was granted for the construction of an east wing and the completion of the west wing. In 1883, the legislature authorized the board of public lands and buildings to take bids for razing and removing the old capitol, the two new wings having been completed. The removal cost $200,000 of the main building at a cost not to exceed $40,000. The present capitol was completed in 1885.

Many state offices already have moved their quarters away from the state capitol.

It is planned that the proposed new capitol will be started next spring. It probably will be five years under construction.

Now is the time to clean up back yards and alleys, haul off ashes and cans and get rid of the winter accumulation of rubbish and filth. Clean and wholesome premises will discourage the propagation of flies and germs which are the trouble that will infest the community during hot months to follow. Nothing so much serves health and comfort as clean alleys and yards and they should be among the first things given attention in the vernal assault on filth.

Readers from education and soft peddling in state papers issued to other governments by Secretary Hughes and others are the number of the president's cabinet is refreshing and encouraging. People like clear, concise direct statements that cannot be misinterpreted. The policy of taking a "civilities" course, employing phrases of doubtful meaning and leaving the reader to guess at the meaning, is not the kind of statesmanship that appeals to unfeigned Americanism. The simple, unaffected, unambiguous style of Abraham Lincoln is the type that hits a responsive chord.

If crimes have become more numerous as the record seems to show and if morals have deteriorated as popularly believed, the burden of blame rests on delinquent home training. The quest for money has become so great that parents often fail by neglect and precept to put integrity above avarice. They also frequently neglect to inculcate habits of propriety, and instead allow girls too much freedom in dress and conduct in the mistaken belief that they are cutting a wide social swath. The home has more to do with shaping character than any other institution, and must bear the large share of responsibility.

The fact that we were able to survive a world at war should be good proof that we can finance our selves at peace. If we could carry out the principle of a "right struggle" we arms we ought to be able to bear the trials of reconstruction and readjustment. What we need to stimulate demand for farm products is the opening of foreign markets. This accomplishment is dependent on foreign credits which have been at a low ebb and which furnish a big problem for the solution of the national government. The demands of labor have retarded the process of readjustment. They have added reduced consumption and reduced production, and thus increased unemployment. Industries that have sought to reap former profits have diminished their volume of business. The railroad situation is perhaps the most perplexing of all. Deficits are attributed to increased operating expenses, and massive wage increases. Passenger rates at a time when markets are slumping, fail to overcome deficits because the action is followed by largely diminished traffic. The program of higher rates to take care of high operating expenses, being inconsistent with the demand for lower price levels, does not pan out because the volume of business becomes materially less and accordingly the revenues are greatly reduced.

JOHN G. NEIHARDT
 Poet Laureate of Nebraska.

As a result of the unhealthy railway situation, thousands of railroad men are out of jobs. Harmony in price standards is an essential to revival of industry and business, and the difficult problem of readjustment, involving foreign markets, and the demands of labor and capital, will have to be worked out under the inspiration of a large measure of altruism—giving and taking and having consideration for all groups and all lines of industry and business. While the problems of—reconstruction—seem burdensome and often perplexing, they can and will be met and solved by the American resourcefulness and courage that have never failed in an emergency crisis since the founding of the republic.

Norfolk is planning to extend its paving again this year, and has numerous signed petitions looking to such end. That city finds that the brick paving which was laid with a sand filler instead of asphalt is now in need of much repairing. It is recalled that the first paving was accomplished in the face of many obstacles, and that in order to satisfy objectors, fifteen cents per square yard was saved by using sand instead of asphalt. Norfolk's engineer also recommends the construction of a storm sewer to take care of waste water. It will be observed with some regret that Norfolk's unfortunate experience in laying brick without asphalt filling and getting along without storm sewers was anticipated and provided for in the city's paving operations. In considering the kind of paving to use, on which some differences of opinion exist, careful investigation should be made before departing from the kind now being put down here. We understand that concrete and asphalt at Norfolk, down only a few years, are now in need of repairs. We should not make the mistake of adopting a kind of paving that is cheap but short-lived.

Wins Place as Poet Laureate of Nebraska

The first official recognition of an American poet by a law-making body came during the recent session of the legislature of Nebraska when the senate and house of representatives passed a joint and concurrent resolution declaring John G. Neihardt poet laureate of Nebraska.
 The official action on the part of a great western state was taken by way of recognizing the significance of the American Epic Cycle upon which Neihardt has been working steadily for seven years, and which William Stanley Braithwaite has characterized as "one of the profoundly notable and one of the few original things in the development of American poetry." The text of the resolution is as follows:
 "Resolved, That the closest connection between the growth of civilization and the development of literature, and the wise commonwealth, in all ages, have recognized this relation by lifting the poet to the same plane as the statesman and military chief."
 Whereas, John G. Neihardt, a citizen of Nebraska, has written a national epic wherein he has developed high heroic courage with which our pioneers explored and subdued our plains, and thus has inspired in Americans that love of the land and the heroic spirit which great national traditions are built and perpetuated, and
 Whereas, our people wish to exalt the virtues of the human spirit, therefore be it
 "Resolved and enacted, by the house of representatives, the senate concurring, that John G. Neihardt be, and hereby is, declared poet laureate of Nebraska."
 As the reading public is aware, the heroic verse published by an American during the year 1919. A school edition of "The Song of Hugh Glass," with annotations by Dr.

Julius T. House, was published a little over a year ago and is being studied as a classic in many of the schools of the country, the fourth printing being just off the press. Neihardt is now engaged upon the third issue of the cycle, to be called "The Song of the Indian Wars." A striking indication of the growing interest in this poet's work is to be found in the fact that Neihardt clubs are springing up in the West, perhaps the largest having its headquarters at the State Normal school at Wayne, Neb. This club, though only a few months old, already has a large, active and honorary membership, drawn from all parts of the country, of which more than a hundred are men and women who have won distinction in literature.

The Early Days in Two Counties

From the Wayne Herald April 22, 1897.
Many times have been set out this spring in different parts of the city. The average of wheat sown in Wayne county this year, is doubt that of last year.

H. C. Heckt and Miss Mabel Phillips were married in Hoskins Thursday, April 21, 1897.

W. C. Jackson of Wayne, and Miss Mary J. Smith of Homer, were married April 19, 1897.

Peter Pietz of near La Porte, was badly cut when he fell from a disc sent into one of the sharp blades.

Markets, April 22, 1897. Wheat, 57c; corn, 10c; butter, 8c; potatoes, 25c; oats, 9c; flax, 56c; eggs, 7c; hogs, 20c.

The 9-year-old daughter of Win Wieland was seriously injured when a large barn door fell on her breaking a leg in two places.

From Ponca Journal April 25, 1878:
A woman was operated for including a patent cosmetic for the face. She wanted it to take off all wrinkles and put in new ones worth a bagful of the old.

Unless there is more jury business before the district court than there was this term, it looks like a useless expenditure of time and money to hold court so often. A grand or petit jury once a year is certainly all that is needed.

District court convened in this place on Monday, Judge Valente presiding. On Monday evening the petit jury was discharged. Hence there were no jury trials. The grand jury met on Monday and was discharged Tuesday morning.

The streets are now being filled up very rapidly, a large number of teams are hauling dirt, and we shall soon have the satisfaction of seeing high and dry thoroughfares instead of the swampy singleholes which have hitherto impeded travel through the town.

Some weeks ago we related a short tale concerning a cow and the C. & B. H. R. company. We have just heard of another little transaction of the same kind, only the party of the first part was not a cow, but a bull.

good healthy reserve in addition to the 50 per cent. Those who took the trouble to find out what people in the country and small towns were thinking of knew that the reserve was there, waiting to take orders, and that J. Barleycorn was already in the death chamber. So we stated the facts with a good deal of certainty, and for a year now we have been giving our city friends the most disagreeable combination of words in the English language, viz., "I told you so."

How It Was Put Over.
George Ade: How often have we heard some puffing trumpets in a city club say that prohibition was sneaked through while the boys were in France; that a fraudulent minority outwitted a somnolent majority; that the Anti-Saloon league—hypnotized and bulldozed a lot of feeble-minded lawmakers, who were not able to their responsibilities! Oh, must! When an ex-peaceer with a white necktie compels a hard-boiled politician to sit up and bark, "win over-and-play dead" it is not because he is a Svengali, but because he carries a gun. The decisive action of the Anti-Saloon league were effective because congressmen and state legislators were deadly afraid of the weapons carried by the league. And they wouldn't have been afraid of the weapons if they hadn't already checked up the sentiment regarding "shoot 'em" in every respect which they represented. They signed any kind of a pledge put in front of them because they had the trembles every time they thought of the farmer vote, the church vote and the imminent voices of women. A lot of them would just as willingly have voted for wood alcohol in order to save their various little one-cylinder, sheet-iron political machines. The man responsible for the dry tide was the bright lad who first suggested that the opinions of the minority shall govern the behavior of the minority. The crushing leverage of the Anti-Saloon league began to be felt as soon as it had definitely lined up a

U. S. Has Not Forgotten.
St. Louis Globe-Democrat: The United States has not forgotten that it fought a great war quite recently, it has not forgotten why it fought, whom it fought nor who were its allies. It has not forgotten that Germany only three years ago at this time was threatening the destruction of democracy and seemed about to execute its threat. It has not forgotten the appalling calamities brought to the United States and all of Europe by the acts of Germany, nor is it likely ever to forget.

Surplus Hay Is Big Problem For Farmers

Devoes Journal-Stockman: Hay which is to be done with it. Thousands of tons this year will remain in the stack unmarketed and uncounted.

Another serious interference with the marketing of hay is the cost of transportation. Hay is a bulky load and it takes a very high price to cover the cost of transportation.

The question arises, what can be done to improve this condition? L. Hoeker, discussing this farm problem, says: "It is hard to forecast the hay market, still harder to give accurate predictions of the weather will be a severe drought.

might cut the pasture and hay for this coming season, and then this may lay for a ready market, but the condition is hardly looked for as it would be a very exceptional drought which would bring about the conditions which we are now facing.

seriously about adding some live stock to their farms.

"Period stock farming is now making rapid advancement. A splendid opportunity has been offered during the past few months for securing some of the best cow bred and reasonable prices. Many young farmers have availed themselves of this opportunity, and some good herds have been established.

"There is a real value in purebred stock. Take for example a good dairy cow which is capable of producing from 15,000 to 20,000 pounds of milk per year. It is easy to figure how such an animal can be worth $1,000.

"Puredbred stock of all kinds naturally has a higher value than common stock, and any farmer who desires to study his subject and give special care to his animals can easily build up a valuable herd in a few years.

Pierce Has Community Day—Other News

Both the Pierce County Call and the Pierce County Leader, in last week's issue, contained four pages of advertisements, calling attention to the "First Community Bargain Day" to be held on one day only, Wednesday, April 29. The papers state that the day bargains are to be offered in a big kitesailing sale. It is said that other sales will follow.

At a meeting of the Pilgrimage men last week, a committee was appointed to see about securing an electric street fire whistle. Another committee was also appointed to see about repairing the hook and ladder cart. Officers were elected.

The Bloomfield Monitor of April 14 states that many of the surrounding towns, and especially the State Journal were taking under a misapprehension in supposing the great trouble there between the telephone company and patrons. The Monitor absolutely denies that a representative of the state railway commission had been invited by come to Bloomfield to adjust the matter. It also stated that a "fake" message had been sent presumably from the railway commission, stating that the signatures of the 650 patrons were not sufficient to overcome the high rate of the company. It is said that the commission disclaims any knowledge that the message had been sent. The Monitor further states that the agents of Bloomfield would "stand pat" on the proposition and that they were not afraid of any chemical trouble which the State Journal painted in such alluring colors.

Street paving was completed at Pierce last Monday, the Pierce County Call states in its current issue. Non-arrival of brick and inclement weather delayed the work. The work was done by Robert Bros. of Lincoln. About 18,500 yards of pavement were laid.

The old Wagon City Hotel, which was recently purchased by William Rosenbach, is to be remodeled and will be converted into a rooming house. The plastering has been torn out and a modern steam heating plant will be installed. The exterior of the building will be covered with stucco.

B. Ready was recently appointed county attorney of Cedar county to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation some weeks ago of R. J. Millard. It is said that there were two other candidates for the position. B. Ready received the unanimous vote of the county board.

A banquet was last week tendered by C. O. Stauffer of Oakland, who leaves soon to take up his new residence in Omaha as judge of the district court. Stauffer presided at the banquet as toastmaster. Several toasts were given, after which the men retired to the region hall where they enjoyed a "smoker."

A fire truck is to be added to the Emerson fire department, states the Emerson Enterprise of April 14. A committee was appointed to look after the matter.

The wrestling bout held last Tuesday evening at Tokamah between Pat McGill of Wisner and George Coleman of Oklahoma, was awarded to Pat McGill following an attempt on the part of the Oklahoman to "slug" the Irishman on the head. The first fall was won by McGill in five minutes. When the wrestlers came on the floor in the second round, Coleman "slugged" McGill several times about the head and the referee, "Tommy" Denny Ryan, of Omaha, put each man back in his corner to start the second round again. When the Oklahoman repeated the fouling several times regardless of the efforts of the coach to stop him, the match was awarded to McGill and the sheriff placed Coleman under arrest for assault and battery. He was given 60 days in the county jail with an appeal bond fixed at $1,000.

The Winside baseball players finally decided not to enter the baseball league which was to have included Beemer, Wisner, Wayne, Pilger, Stanton and Winside. One of the provisions of the league was that "winners" were to play for a week on Wednesdays and Saturdays and that the proceeds should be divided on a 50-50 percentage similarity to that prevalent in the big leagues. According to the league, those eligible to play were only home men.

A H.S. convention was held in Tokamah April 8 and 9, which included eighty boys of high school age. Two leaders were also in attendance. The final banquet was held Saturday night. Speakers were chosen from among the boys. Members of the committee also participated to make the occasion a success.

An exhibition of Thurston county fetal school work was held in the museum at Pender. Many premiums were awarded for best work.

Mrs. A. J. Gallagher, one of the earliest residents of Nebraska, died at her home in Laurel the past week following a 36-hour period of unconsciousness. Mrs. Gallagher's remains came to Nebraska in 1852. The funeral services were held at 10 o'clock. The body was taken to O'Neill for burial. Mr. Gallagher had a daughter who lives in Chicago.

Business.

Some of the business conditions now may be conducive to acceleration in spite of the fact that the acceleration is slow. It is well to keep in mind the fact that the best gains are those that are steady rather than spasmodic. Such gains have been made in the past week, although not so large as some and it is believed that the movement for better commercial relations will be measurably quickened from this time onward. The interesting fact and small, desire such a quickening of trade, and since they are the agents to create that condition, it may be expected that they will create it. Only in part, however, will they be able to effect the result. The confidence of the buyer must be restored and a part of the responsibility for such restoration belongs to him.

Circumstances may be called to the attention of the buyer that should strengthen his confidence. Among the conditions calculated to have a wholesome effect in this particular are: The announced position of the administration on the tax, tariff and foreign relations questions; an improvement in the railroad situation brought about by the "labor peace" situation; the foregoing developments most certainly have a direct bearing on business, with the influence undeniably good.

President Harding's congress to abolish the excess profits tax and to ease up the various burdens brought by inadequate taxing methods. Industrial investments will follow abolition of the excess profits tax, replacing investment of excess profits in non-taxable securities. Congress already has a bill on the suggestion that an emergency tariff was needed, and the house has passed the Young bill providing protection for agricultural interests, which the senate approves. Early relief to shippers is expected in the promised settlement of the railroad troubles, made possible by the railroad labor board. Lower freight rates will result, shipping will be stimulated and buying made easier. The higher quotations on railroad stocks in Wall street are directly due to the labor board's decision, which also can be reckoned as having affected better grain prices at Chicago. Lowered steel prices will contribute to enlargement of the building program, especially in industrial and railroad construction.

Confidence of the general public has been restored to an appreciable degree by the convening of the special session of congress and its vigorous application to a study of the various problems. The public should not forget, however, that all the ills cannot be cured by legislation. Congress can and will cure some of them, but must have in the process the cooperation of the people. An example of this may be found in the case of the railroads, which now may be able to reach a settlement with their workers without aid from congress. If they can do so, it will be a much better way. The idea of individual responsibility never has been more dominant than at this time.

An Impression.

Ohio State Journal: We sometimes think that success in public life in this country depends chiefly upon the candidate's ability to come out in a general way for God, for country and for home and make it sound perfectly fearless.

Old Stuff to "Makeup."

Minneapolis Journal: Prof. E. E. Stein explained to a newspaper reporter that time and space were limited. The "makeup" in the newspaper composing room, trying to close the forms to catch the mails, has suspected this.

Democracy?

Wall Street Journal: Government by gab has an irresistible appeal to the incompetent.

The Reward of Careful Attention

There's no accident about successful cattle raising. Good buildings are a first essential.

A well-planned cattle barn soon pays for itself. You can almost see the difference in the condition of your stock. It is one more safe-guard against loss from disease.

In planning your cattle barn, you naturally have problems of your own to take into consideration. The size, location, and interior arrangement must be adapted to your needs.

Instead of putting up a separate building you might find it better to build an addition to your present barn equipment. In any event you will consider the convenience to yourself and your hired help of having a building of ample size.

Talk it over with us. We want to help you decide upon the one best building for your purpose.

From State Capital Touching Legislation

(By Ole Buck)

Both houses have approved a bill concerning the next session. The bill provides that the next session shall be held in 1922 instead of 1921 as in the past.

After being pulled back and doctored for the second time, the bill was advanced to third reading by the house.

The senate approved a bill providing for the placing of non-partisan candidates on the regular ballot but without party designation.

The Bebebe substitute for the house movie bill passed the senate by a vote of 17-10. The next question was what the house will do with it.

J. P. O'Purvey, vice president of the Nebraska Press association, was elected vice-president for Nebraska of the National Editorial association.

The Foster resolution recommending that the governor and board of control do not employ convicts on state work was practically laid on the table without debate.

The house and senate finally agreed to the salary of the governor, the private secretary and deputy state officers at $2,640 per annum. The original bill provided for $3,000, but the house thought $2,500 was enough.

The senate advanced the American Legion bill which limits admission to the one dollar. The senate also advanced the co-operative banking bill.

The senate revived a bill that was killed some time ago which provides for transferring the state bureau from the university to the clerk of the supreme court. It was advanced without discussion.

The senate changed the Douglas primary bill so it only provides for the election of judges instead of three judges. Howell made a fight against this bill. He says it means the death of the primary.

Adjournment is still a live subject and is becoming more pressing every day. Some think the work will be done by April 23, others think that it will be the first of May, at least before the law makers can quit and go home.

At the time this was written the governor had signed ninety bills, sixty-six from the house and twenty-four from the senate. The house has sent 207 of its bills to the senate, passed forty-five senate files, killed 411 of its own bills and twenty-six senate bills.

Senator Reed says H. R. 100, passed by the house, is the largest tax law school law which has been passed in two years ago. The bill was under careful consideration in the senate in order to remove the objectionable features.

The senate approved the bill providing for statehood for a revision of the state seal, after changing the word flag to banner, also the bill allowing cities and towns to make a tax levy to quit and go home. Both bills have been signed by the governor.

House members get considerably out of sorts with the senate. They say the senate adjourns regularly from Friday until Monday and otherwise proceeds as slowly as though it was the beginning of the session instead of near the end. The house members are anxious to see the senate show a little speed.

The house reached a high water mark of speed on Saturday, April 9, when it acted favorably on thirty-seven bills and only killed one. The last days of the session when every bill is anxious to quit and go home is the time when bills fail to receive all the attention they deserve.

After more or less switching back and forth the house finally approved a bill that makes it impossible for a member of a board of supervisors or a county commissioner to act as county highway commissioner in counties having more than 100 miles of road.

McBRIDE AT LEAST PILOTS SENATORS

George McBride is at last managing the Washington team, on which he had years as a middle. Clark Griffith, former manager and owner, announced that he would resign. Mr. McBride said that he would devote his time to the business end.

The senate refused to concur in the house idea for changing tuition in high schools by increasing the bill so it provides that high schools shall charge actual cost only. When this feature was under discussion in the house it was claimed that such a provision in the law would provide for an endless number of lawsuits.

Nebraska now has a law creating a commission to license and regulate horse races. But the commission will have nothing to do with races at state or county fairs. An old law prohibits racing at fairs and does not allow fair funds to be used for purses but another law allows trials of purses which answers the same purpose.

The house took another crack at the supreme court commission bill and this time, it is believed, killed it dead so it will stay killed. It is predicted that this action will result in a new supreme court business. One reason the court is unable to keep up with its work is because a part of its membership is physically incapable of work.

The house killed the child welfare bill which provided for a board of child welfare in each county. This was the last of the important child welfare measures which provided good jobs. The original bill provided for a paid superintendent of child welfare in each county. This was cut out in committee of the whole but it was finally thought best to kill the entire bill.

At the time this was written the big fight was on in the house over the new taxator bill. It is impossible to predict what the outcome will be, although it is expected that the bill will be passed in some form. It is apt to be radically different however, from the bill passed by the senate. A representative of the Minnesota tax department was invited by the house committee to explain the workings of a similar law in that state.

The senate killed the house anti-Jap bill and adopted in its place a substitute prepared by Senator Hoagland which includes all aliens. Also, the senate committee reported have five years in which to establish their citizenship. It is claimed the substitute accomplishes all that was proposed by the house bill in the way of keeping Japs from acquiring real estate and also applies to all aliens who fail or refuse to become citizens. The features of the substitute mentioned in the house debate.

The senate finance committee added $1,360,000 to the appropriation bill. This raises the total of the bill to $22,860,000. Of the added amount $1,000,000 is for the university, $500,000 is for a new gymnasium on campus that an equal sum be raised by a tax on the university. The remaining $360,000 for the university is for general expense and improvements. The other items added to the bill are for various state departments and for some special purposes.

After a debate that was more or less a repetition of the previous one, Senator Reed's bill requiring state registration of voters. Registering will be done by the assessors but voters are not required to register unless one changes his residence. The object of the bill is to compel voters to register by changing name, address, occupation, & voter may change his party affiliation by notifying the county clerk not less than thirty days before the election. The bill is being aimed directly at them and all of them voted against it.

Senators who opposed the house movie bill and favored the Bebebe amendment resent the charge that they are not in favor of clean pictures. They say that they do favor improving the quality of the moving picture industry. The Bebebe bill will do more to accomplish the desired result than the house bill. All kinds of predictions are made as to what the house will do with the Bebebe bill. Some say it will not concur and that there will be no movie legislation at this session. Others say the bill will be accepted. Probably no one knows at the present time.

Jack Walsh now probably has a better opinion of the legislature. His county seat was a success. He was elected ago and then, last week, it was lifted by the house and passed. If this bill becomes a law, as it now seems likely, Crete will not have to wait ten years before making another attempt to secure the county seat. Several other counties are interested in the bill. One of the objections to it was that it would start county seat fights all over the state.

The final big fight in the senate on the movie bill occurred on Monday, April 11. It resulted in the defeat of the bill. The defeat was due to it of the Bebebe amendments, which are, practically, a new bill.

The Bebebe bill specifies pictures which are to be shown without penalties and will otherwise regulate the pictures without leaving the question to anyone's opinion. This did not settle the fight, however. The bill next has to pass the senate on third reading and will then have to be carried by the house. Some think this will not be done and that there will be no movie legislation at this session.

The Revised Version. Wall Street Journal: "Don't give up the hip!"

There is an attraction about work that is most fascinating. Some men find the greatest enjoyment in building a fire or in putting up a shelf or in digging a hole in the ground. They enjoy it because they know they are creating something, doing good, making the world a better place to live in. The man who never drove a nail and cannot drive one is to be pitied. He sought to learn how to pass it. Even the salesman he may feel in seeking the woman will run right if he and the hammer finally win.

Channing wrote: "Labor is discovered by the great discoverer, reaching and building up nations more surely than the proudest battles."

And Osgood offered: "Labor is life! 'Tis the still water lilies; even despair, bewaileth; Keep the watch-word, for the dark rust attacks."

Archison Globe Sights. A real foreman is a man who can make his men work and smile at the same time.

Modern fashion reveals the fact that a Kuhldige girl is walking about on a couple of lamp posts.

Just about the time a man begins to appreciate the glories of spring-time, the women folks begin to clean house.

This is the kind of a town Concord is. A high school teacher there is still riding a bicycle he bought in 1892.

A common fallacy is the common opinion that the gentleman would make a fine congressman because he delivers a fine speech.

The women who shed tears control their husbands better than the women who are rolling pins, stove burners and similar household utensils.

Harding's Address Satisfying. Mr. Harding and all old business men and financiers have reason to be satisfied with President Harding's first address to congress. There is definite in it sound where it is indefinite. None is left for the belief that wise counsels will prevail on the administration.

Cincinnati Enquirer: "An indication of the perfect teamwork under the new administration can be seen in the way the war department offered to sell gas masks cheap right after the agricultural department made an appeal to the country to eat more oats."

Albany Journal: "Sunday some of the way the war department offered to sell gas masks cheap right after the agricultural department made an appeal to the country to eat more oats."
