—Drank Wood Alcohol. The North Daily News, April 23: Gus Bathke came to his death as the result of drinking wood alcohol furnished him by some person or persons unknown, according to the verdict of the coroner's jury which concluded its inquest in the office of County Attorney Tyler just before noon Thursday after holding sessions off and on during the last three months.

The verdict was returned and signed after the jurors had listened to the testimony of Dr. E. L. Brush who repeated the story he told when he was first called by the Bathke home north of town. He stated that his opinion was that Bathke had died from the effects of wood alcohol. He also made a report of the chemical analysis which was made in the university hospital at Omaha where Bathke's stomach was examined disclosing enough wood alcohol to produce death.

Testimony had been previously taken from witnesses who said they saw Bathke drinking and that he passed a bottle around from which they also drank. The coroner stated that from no witnesses could a clew be found where Bathke got his liquor. Bathke who was a laborer was found in an unconscious condition during the night of the city manager election, January 22. He was taken to his home and died the following morning. The death caused considerable agitation among poisonous whisky.

Governor Vetoes Bill For State Censorship

The bill providing for a state board of censors over moving picture shows, passed in the closing hours of the legislature, was vetoed by the governor with the following explanation:

"I shall withhold my approval from House Bill No. 112, which provides for a board of review (censors), whose duty it shall be to determine what motion pictures may be shown in this state. It is with the sincerest regret that I feel impelled to take this action. I do not like to set my opinion up against that of a majority of the members of the legislature, especially upon a subject that has been so thoroughly considered by it, but I feel so keenly upon the principles here involved and I am so fearful of the violence that will be done to our free institutions by legislation like this that I must waive all questions of personal preference and act in accord with my conscientious beliefs, the most important question."

"There are many reasons why I think this is not good legislation. I might again refer to the danger that would be the creation of additional boards and agencies of government, the need for which is doubtful and the burden of taxation for the maintenance of these agencies is ever increasing. I might point out the fruitful field of discussion and discontent and recrimination that is developed in the public mind by this sort of regulatory legislation. But these are of minor importance when compared with the effect of free movement of pictures as it is provided in our fundamental law and as we have always cherished it and held sacred in all. Therefore it is upon this point that I shall dwell."

"Section 5, article 1 of our state constitution provides that 'every person may freely speak, write and publish on all subjects, being responsible for the abuses of that liberty.' This is a guarantee of free action that has always been cherished by us and no one who believes in American principles of government has for a moment tolerated its abridgment. That house roll No. 112 does promise to abridge this right is very apparent to me, as I believe also it must be to the people of the state."

"It is no reflection upon any of the agencies that influence public opinion when I say that there is no criticism to be made against motion pictures in the things that they portray that might not also be made of the legitimate stage, the most popular books of fiction or the press. Pictures are simply the portrayal upon the screen of stories that have already been told in some other form published otherwise. Murder, burglary, assault, homicide, kidnapping, offenses against women, fraud, embezzlement, marital infidelity and every other crime is told and retold with all of the attending details in the columns of the daily press. I do not believe the assertion that it would be a very small minority of our people who would favor the censorship of this character of news. Certainly, then, you must agree with me that to be consistent it will naturally follow that censorship of motion pictures must ultimately be followed by censorship of the press."

"The remedy for the ills that attend the showing of pictures that might properly be considered as subjects for censorship is clearly pointed out in the paragraph in the constitution that I have already quoted, wherein it says that every person shall be held responsible for the abuses of the liberty of free speech and the press. This means that the proper exercise of this liberty may be legally defined and punishment may be inflicted for violation of the law. Already we have such provision upon the statute books and they are enforced. To go further than this and anticipate the violation is to suppose conviction before the offense has been committed. Such a procedure would be intolerable under our theory of government. It would mean that the state would become the guardian of the individual, directing him in his every act and depriving of him all rights of initiative and personal opinion."

"But there is yet a finer and more fundamental remedy for these ills than by statutory law. It is the law of personal control, which embraces strength of character, moral rectitude, the belief in self-reliance, the habit of self-action, tolerance for the rights of others and the precepts of the Golden Rule. These, after all, are the things that shall forever determine our justice as individuals, as a people and as a nation, and their evolution will be wrought primarily and fundamentally through these free institutions which we cherish most—the home, the church and the school. So profoundly do I believe this to be true that I think the enactment of this law would stand as an indictment of these institutions as an admission that they have failed in their purpose, and their impotence would be consequently subordinated to the paternalism of the state."

"I do not question the justice of the criticism that is made of the influence of some pictures upon the children by admitting the very words in this direction; it need not be also admitted that legislation is needed to control the situation. What shall we do of the obligation of parents to their children and the manner in which they must discharge this responsibility? We face the question of independent self-governing people? The laws that are made in legislative halls are of only secondary importance to laws that are formulated in the home, and the same may be said of law enforcement. It is still true that 'the hand that rocks the cradle is the world's hope.' It is equally true that there is no law that will repair the damage that is done when parents fail to exercise the proper direction and control over their children."

"There is no more reason to pass laws against the showing of pictures that do not have a strong moral influence than there is to prevent the publication of books and newspapers that carry the same stories as are shown upon the screen. The right kind of parents do not permit their children to read indiscriminately; neither should they permit them to view pictures indiscriminately. The guardianship of the child in these matters is a parental responsibility and to transmit it to the state would be simply to lessen the responsibility and minimize the importance of the home. What we want now is not that parents should be encouraged to relax their proper vigil over their children, but that they should be called to realize that the state must act to relieve them of these responsibilities."

"I am thoroughly convinced that public opinion, when it is left free to function, will control the picture picture situation. The motion picture business is young and many abuses have crept into it that are alien to those who have been successful in it. These abuses will be gradually removed as the business grows, and in the same proportion that public opinion is increasing, the showing of unclean pictures, producers will be prompt to remove that character of pictures from the screen. The movement has already begun, and I predict that before another legislative convenes in Nebraska, it shall have made such progress that the question of censorship will not even be suggested here."

"Let us then place the responsibility with the people themselves. Let it belong, realizing that if we as a nation are to be a strong, virile, self-governing people, we must assume the full responsibilities of citizenship without expecting the state to relieve us from the ills that are self-imposed and that are within our range to control without the aid or direction of statutory law."

"SAMUEL R. M'KELVIE, Governor."

The Hessian Fly.

Drovers' Journal Stockman: The Hessian fly is nearly twenty times as destructive to Nebraska's growing wheat crop as is the green bug, according to A. E. Anderson of the bureau of crop estimates at Lincoln, based on the yearly reports of crop experts over the United States since 1909. The highest loss for the country averaged 3.66 per cent, he says, but in the individual field the crop may be a total loss. "The year 1916 saw the largest percentage of loss of the past decade to the wheat crop of the United States from Hessian fly," the statement given out today says. "It is estimated that 3.66 per cent of the crop was destroyed at that time by this insect. The greatest loss from the green bug occurred the same year but in this was less than one-third of one per cent."

"There was a loss of 23,292,000 bushels of wheat in 1916, representing a value of $37,330,000. In 1915, the loss averaged 3.15 per cent, but since the acreage and production was much larger than in 1916, the loss reached a total of 23,212,000 bushels, and a monetary loss of $24,330,000; as the price was lower—less than—

"The average loss from Hessian fly for the period, 1909 to 1919, inclusive, was 1.27 per cent of the total wheat crop. While this does not seem large, it must be remembered that the losses in localities badly infested with the insect may be very high and in individual fields the crop may be a total loss. Hessian fly is prevalent in several of the important winter wheat states this year. The infestation in Nebraska is light, but widely scattered, and should there be an abundance of warm, moist weather which is highly favorable to the development of the insect, considerable damage may be expected. Green bug is present in some of the states but can hardly be considered a factor except for certain fields or localities."

Sow Pennies Reap Dollars

Such is the theory of saving. It is not the small amount of money, which starts your account today that counts, but what that amount will grow to in time to come. A dollar put away today will be worth considerably more in a year from now because of the interest it has earned for you.

Hence, there is a hint for everyone who has not acquired the saving habit. Take what few dollars you can spare today, bring them to us and watch how they grow while in an account here. Think it over, and act.

Even those who did not directly benefit by the recent bargain days in Wayne this week will say that were a success and wholly warranted in the interest of trade extension and friendly community spirit.

North Dakota is getting ready to apply the recall to its governor and generally get rid of its Nonpartisan League nightmare. A war campaign is developing. The state feels that the adoption of Townsmanism in order to get other bills was like jumping from the frying pan into the fire.

Looking dourly on the present and fearfully to the future is a serious hindrance to the business of much talk of normalcy. Bemoaning and heresiding-in luck does not relieve any vexing situation. Conditions have been showing signs of improvement and the future offers reason for encouragement. Notwithstanding that fact, we find some communists who have a curious persuasion of the people oppress themselves by chasing financial hobgoblins and blue devils. The facts do not warrant their attitude. There is no one who should be leading a constructive policy are found loudly proclaiming the need of more money and breathing life into pessimism. They should accept the inevitable facts and courageously build on a new foundation. The pendulum had swung to one extreme during and following the war, and has now swung to the other. The happy medium will be restored when foreign credits are reestablished and world trade is again as possible. The worst is over, and the turn for the better has set in, as those familiar with universal creditage assurance. There is no good reason to lament over the bursted bubble of swollen values. A healthier era is dawning, and the way to do it is to resolutely accept the facts, buckle down to business, look forward cheerfully instead of backward gloomily, and if any magnifying is to be done, magnify the good instead of the bad.

How much we are moved by sentiment and how little by sound business judgment, we do not know. We often suspect that, put to a test, the former would predominate. But it is a fact that sentiment offers most appreciable headway, whereas ultra-conservatism sits down, hangs to what it has and makes little progress. Thus, we were anxious for meeting ten years ago when it could have been done for comparatively little. We have been in favor of it during every waking moment since. We wish paying had been started sooner, so that a large sum of money could have been saved to the town. But we are glad it was no longer delayed, and that fraction of sentiment is now partially realized. We may feel a good deal of sting when we come to pay our taxes, but we will try to not think of it in advance and soon forget it afterwards, rejoicing in the assurance that the levy has been snatched from mind and given to the modern improvements to which it is entitled by commercial importance and rich surrounding resources. We are impelled—perhaps by sentiment—to express approval of the action to undertake additional paving without waiting. Whether waiting a year or two years would save much money to the city, we don't know. We doubt if any one knows. But we don't want to wait. We want and

THE SUNRISE HOUR.

An editorial writer of the Sioux City Journal has evidently drunk deep of the ocean of the early morning hour, and prescribes the experience for those who would become exhilarated and inspired. Listen to him: "To those who are accustomed to rising before or with the sun, the first morning hour is the finest time of the day. The first hour of the day has an exquisite quality that no other hour in the day owns. It is then that the new day is received fresh from the creator, clean, keen, cut and sparkling as a precious jewel. The early morning hour has a stillness, a freshness, a sweetness and a fragrance that are all its own. To know what beauty is, one must be up before sunrise and witness the slow and steady approach of the day, the gradual gathering of the forces of the light, the wonderful shifting of colors on the eastern horizon, and emerge above the horizon's edge. The light effects to be observed between dawn and sunrise are as indescribable as they are heavenly. One must witness in one must breathe the cool and fragrant morning air, cleansed by the alchemy of night and moist with the dew of heaven. It is in the morning hour, even before the sun has risen, that the bird chorus chants its matins, and the wind sings a song of joy and fullest and liveliest. At no time do birds sing so earnestly and joyously as in the early morning. We do not get up to the sights and sounds of nature alike; but even the least sensitive person should be able to draw inspiration for his labor from the brightness and beauty of the morning hour. It is to be feared, however, that the number so inspired is somewhat limited, for the reason that so many of us choose to sleep through this golden period of the day and never sense its fragrance. For the most part, only those compelled by the necessities of their jobs are astir at sunrise. The delight of an additional hour of slumber, however, is in no way adequate compensation for missing the wonder and the mystery of the sunrise hour. Sleep is the cultivation of that which is chastened, but beauty ministers to the refreshment of the mind which is spiritual. To cultivate the spiritual is to gain from life its highest joy and greatest reward. The last few hours have their beauty, and the evening its peace, but no moment of the day has the uplifting quality of the sunrise hour.

Grant by Labor Leaders. Chicago News: During the last ten days the good name of union labor in Chicago has sustained two hard knocks from persons inside its own ranks. Forty members of a union in one of the building trades sent a letter to the Dulley commissioner, writing in behalf of the state legislature is investigating building conditions in this city, charging that the head of their union and its business agent were the "two worst crooks in the building industry." These officials said the protesting forty had called numerous strikes for the bribes they could obtain by calling off the strikes again, and further, had collected from building contractors money to pay for "time lost by the men" and had never given to the men the money so collected. A member of local No. 111 of the Upholsters union has lately sold under cash in court how he and gangs of ruffians that he had organized administered brutal beatings to workers who would not obey a strike while the money in payment for the beatings, according to his testimony, being handed out by the business agent of the local union under the direction of an international vice president, who had come to Chicago from a distant city to help win the strike.

Thousands of persons on reading these charges have accepted them as evidence of the condition in and the purpose of labor unions generally. This is unjust to organized labor. The average trade unionist does not countenance the payment of thugs for money contributed by his union dues by himself and his fellow members. Nor does the average trade unionist approve of labor boss who keeps him out of work and wages by calling strikes merely for the gratification of his selfish desires. Unfortunately, however, there are to be found in positions of leadership in various trade unions, as there are in some offices in the public service, cooks and graders who manage to win positions of trust solely for the purpose of enriching themselves by surreptitious methods.

Agriculture Notes

Early Birds Have Advantage.
The early bird—referring to poultry—not only gets the worm, but seems to have every other advantage over the one that is hatched late. Upon early hatching largely depends the success of poultry keeping, say specialists of the United States department of agriculture. Early hatched chicks, they say, produce well matured, vigorous pullets; which will begin laying in the fall and early winter. It is only from such early laying pullets that the best production and greatest profit can be secured. Early hatched chicks also mean hens which grow broody earlier the next spring, and these in turn allow early hatching to be continued to a greater degree when natural methods of incubation are resorted to.

For several years the department specialists have conducted early hatching campaigns. The movement has been encouraged by state officials and county agents until now such campaigns are conducted early in the spring over practically the entire country. Reports from poultry specialists and other sources indicate that early hatching is being practiced more and more each spring than ever before, the favorable weather conditions being largely responsible for this fact.

Use of Milk Increased.
The use of milk was increased as a result of a campaign held in Winston-Salem, N. C., recently, to such an extent that an amount of milk of a large volume of business, dealers were able to distribute the milk at 10 cents a gallon less. The campaign was successful in that it was being conducted in various states by dairy specialists of the United States department of agriculture in cooperation with state and local officials.

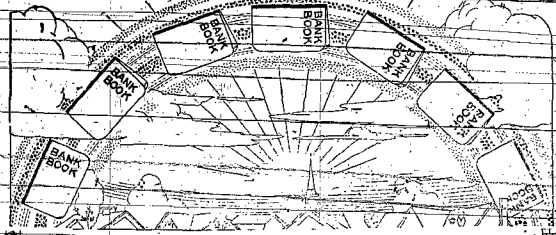

Before the campaign was conducted a survey was held in Winston-Salem, and it was found that the per capita consumption of milk was less than one-half cup per day. Many school children were undernourished. The health authorities, who were active in this campaign, weighed and measured 1,866 white school children and found that 16 per cent were underweight, which indicated insufficient nourishment. Similar records were taken with 1,806 colored school children, and 15 per cent were found to be underweight.

During the week of the campaign an effort was made to determine the number of school children who receive milk daily. Of 107,000 grade children questioned, it was found that 2,738 received milk daily and 2,125 drank no milk, while 2,127 were receiving milk once a week.

As to Shape of Fence Posts.
Some people believe split fence posts last longer than do round ones. Probably as large a number hold the opposite view. The Forest Products Laboratory of the United States department of agriculture says that one will last about as long as the other if the percentages of heartwood and sapwood are the same in both. If the percentage of sapwood is increased by splitting, the posts will be less durable, while if the percentage of heartwood is increased it will be more durable than the round one. Exceptions to this should be made if the posts are of spruce, hemlock, or any of the fir, whose heartwood and sapwood are about equally durable.

If the posts are to be treated with creosote or some other preservative, the round post is preferable to the split, because of the comparative ease with which the sapwood can be treated. Experiments at the laboratory demonstrate that the heartwood faces on split posts do not, as a rule, absorb the preservative as well as does the sapwood.

The Spring Clean-up.
The spring clean-up time, using a regular annual feature of town and city life, can not be observed on farms in the same season because of more pressing work. Efforts are made constantly, therefore, to encourage picking up the odds and ends about the farms in the slack time between fall plowing and early spring. In many towns, however, the home demonstration agents give their organizing ability to furthering such work in the early weeks of spring. In Spokane, Wash., a campaigner called the "Alley and Back Yard Beautiful," began in 1919 to extend through the year. This work was initiated and guided by the city home demonstration agent, whose reports show excellent progress. Newspapers give constant publicity to the work, urging the repairing of screens, windows, and outbuildings, and the planting of shrubbery, trees, and flowers. In 1920, in the city of Spokane, more than 8,000 grape cuttings and rooted plants were set out. Fifty chambers of commerce throughout the thousands of small towns are drawing attention to the duties of citizenship, particularly for home owners. In many states as a result there are to be green purple grapes, the stately hollyhock, the modest foxglove, and many other flowers growing thickly about the yards. In one yard, freshly painted fences, in one yard, 50 by 12 feet, the hitherto neglected vines reduced more than a ton of grapes last year. In the work this spring Spokane is being directed for a beautification campaign to be conducted precisely as the Liberty Loan campaign was carried.

Prairie fires are numerous. — Hugh Price and R. O. Jones started for Wales last week.

Work has been started on the erection of a telephone system. The Y. M. C. A. rooms are being improved. A reading room has been added.

Vaughn Davis, the assessor of Sherman Precinct, found $14,877 worth of personal and $56,293 of real estate in his district.

The city council passed a new ordinance cutting down the saloon license to $1,200, the school board to receive $500 and the city $700.

Editor Edward Rosewater, of the Omaha Bee, has been selected one of five delegates of the United States to attend the world's postal congress at Washington.

From Ponca Journal April 28, 1881.
On Tuesday prairie fires in different parts of the county burned considerable hay.

The ferry boat at the Ponca landing and the one at Mattison's mill, six miles above, were both carried off by the flood.

At Omaha on the 23rd inst., the river was twenty-three and a half feet above low water mark. It was higher than was ever remembered before.

The weather is getting very warm. From the winter of a few days ago, this country has been plunged into summer. We have no spring.

If the thousands of dead cattle now distributed along the Missouri valley, are not buried as soon as the winter, a pestilence will be the result.

While the greater part of the northwest was blockaded by snow during the past winter, with no communication with the outer world for months, Ponca for most of the time enjoyed the blessings of daily trains and mails. But we have yielded up the rails and are now as effectually blockaded as any place ever was. We could stand snow and master it, but when it comes to floods we respectively take a back seat.

The Sioux City Journal states that A. Hale, a traveling man, was offered by W. P. Carr, a $2,000 house for his old buggy. The house and buggy were a few days ago seen floating down the river from Vermillion, side by side. We can add a little to the story. Mr. Hale's buggy, Mr. Westbrook of this place a day or two ago discovered a buggy in the river. He captured it but it escaped and sailed along down the stream. It was an old, worn-out, tumble-down, jim-crow concern, and it was hardly worth an attempt to save it. From the description, it must have been Mr. Hale's buggy.

Any well-established printing house has sufficient equipment to turn out a good job of printing promptly. It is the brains governing the equipment that the customer depends upon. Employing the proper head work on a job before it goes to press is almost an infallible sign that it will come off the press as you expect and desire that it should.

Our employees are skillful and efficient. —our equipment is complete and up to date— we take pride in our work, and we are considered very willing, but

Slacker List Tinkish.

Lincoln Journal: It is well for the war department to be cautious in publishing of the list of draft slackers. It is well known that boys have been searched for as slackers when they were actually in the trenches, having listened to volunteers before their names were placed on the list of eligibles. To avoid these cruel errors it will be well to withhold the publication until every available means can be resorted to to secure accuracy.

Steamship Rates Not Quoted.

Lincoln Journal: Arrangements of luxurious and swift connections are now beginning to appear to lure Americans into foreign travel. It is noticeable that few of these advertisements mention so vivid a thing as the cost of a steamship ticket. The fact is that rates are still so high that to stress this feature of foreign travel would only serve to stimulate the movement to "see America first."

MARKET REPORTS BY WIRELESS TO FARMERS

Most of reports by wireless for all the farmers in the United States are now being furnished. This shows the formal inauguration of the service from the Post Office Department building in Washington, Secretary of Agriculture J. C. Wallace, at the head of the line.

Declamatory Contest at Stanton on May 14

Due to the efforts of Supt. W. F. Flake, it was decided by those having the matter in charge, to hold the state declamatory contest at Stanton, May 14. Because of the fact that most of the contestants hail from this part of the state and because of the railroad facilities, Stanton received more votes than any other town putting in bids. Clarence Welch who won first in the humorous class of the district contest at Wayne recently will represent this district with "Father's Talking New."

Patrons at Bloomfield are still "standing pat" on the telephone question, says the Bloomfield Journal of April 26. Though it is believed many patrons would like to have their phones re-connected, they are remaining silent on the issue, abiding by the wish of the majority. No further action relative to lowering rates has so far been taken by the company.

The Randolph Times-Enterprise of April 28 states that about forty Randolph boosters have pledged, themselves to make a trip on June 20 to Omaha to take in the A. K. S. B. show which is to be staged at the Omaha. It is planned to take the band along and to boost Randolph along the way. Stephen F. Browne has been appointed Ambassador Extraordinary by King Sampson. It is expected that King Sampson will visit Randolph in the proposed excursion.

On Independence Day—a monument, containing a bronze tablet on which are inscribed the names of the thirty-four Knox county soldiers who sacrificed their lives in the world war, is to be unveiled on the court house square at Center. The memorial will be a pillar of granite and it will be ready for erection July 4.

Farmer Ends His Life.—Newman Grove, Neb., April 30.—Joseph Duhateck, a farmer living about four miles west of Newman Grove, committed suicide yesterday afternoon by blowing out his brains with a shot gun. No cause for the act is known unless it was that he had been in very poor health for some time. He was about 40 years old and is survived by the widow and three children, the oldest of whom is about 10 years.

Mrs. Duhateck and the boys were in town in the afternoon and when they returned to the farm discovered that Mr. Duhateck was missing and after a search discovered his body in a corn crib. He had put the stock of the farm in the corn and the rest with a stick. Death is believed to have been instantaneous.

Congressman Evans Introduces Bills

Hearings on the bill providing a tax upon future sales of grain on any market, providing for the collection and dissemination of information as to grain markets, providing a penalty for the violation thereof and for other purposes, have been started before the committee on agriculture in congress. The bill was introduced by Congressman Robert E. Evans and is a re-draft of the bill covering the same matter which he introduced in the Senate last congress. There have been several other bills introduced covering the same and similar evils, and hearings were started on such bills last week.

Congressman Evans also introduced several other bills among which were several private pension bills and bills providing for the donation of a cannon to each county in the Third Congressional District. Also the bill admitting the Virginians to statehood to prevent their return to the government in the court of claims was introduced. This bill was caught in the net of work of the last congress and received no action.

Copies of any of these bills may be had by requesting the same of Congressman Evans, P. O. Box 11, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

Business.—The weekly business reports on domestic trade for the past week indicate slight gains for April over March, but the total results of spring buying do not bring the figures up to what they were a year ago. Business frankly admits that it is yet far from a recovery, although it tends to be reassured. Bradstreet's review of the week conditions that the industrial pace seems somewhat better and that an undeniably more optimistic feeling is voiced in most reports. This agency, one of the most conservative in the country, in making such assessments may indicate a more healthful condition for industry than its mere statements signify. The reports show that the results of the week "have been mainly on the favorable side."

One outstanding feature of domestic trade has been that buyers were more eager than retailers expected them to be. Spring orders exceeded in many instances the supplies of goods on hand, which caused a healthier outlook for the fall trade, with production quickened in various lines such as shoes, leather, motor cars, and so on. The reports also show that the railroad situation to promise any immediate change does not seem to have affected business. This is due to the fact that the railroads are public in the ultimate settlement of the perplexing question. Shipments have not been greatly increased and freight rates largely governing the movement of goods.

The agricultural rehabilitation of the country is of prime importance at this time. Crop conditions are generally good with a promise that the winter and spring crops will be increased some 44,000,000 bushels over the estimate of the government report made in the first quarter. The government experts suggest that the crop will be only one-half better than the average of the last ten years. With farm production costs reduced and the assistance to the farmer that marketing changes will yield him a higher net profit, there is every indication that a year of gratifying agricultural progress will be enjoyed.

The banking position is much stronger with a large volume of loans and which helps domestic local transactions by creating more confidence; but eastern interests rather deplore the fact that gold is streaming from abroad in running so swiftly. Their view is that this condition does not help, but makes worse the embarrassing exchange problem. Europeans are sending so much gold to the United States that this country is getting topheavy as the gold market has the word, in a word, Americans now have too much money, but it may strike many as a paradox, but it is easily explained. It is granted that the shipments of gold to America will make money rates lower here, but such large amounts are coming from abroad that it is impossible for us to manage to buy goods which they need. They have not the ready cash such transactions would demand and the credit system here has been much weakened by the heavy trade balance in America's favor. That condition slows up production in the United States and destroys in part the market for the American surplus. If gold were being shipped to other countries their currency systems would be strengthened and their credits re-established.

Exports show what has happened in the United States. Exports in March of this year were $844,000,000, as compared with an average monthly shipment of $620,000,000. March imports were worth $265,000,000, as against $224,000,000 for the same period last year. The high cost of dollar credits abroad is working steadily against foreign trade, which only sharply to mind the necessity of adjusting all abnormal conditions growing out of the war. It becomes quickly apparent that much of the comfort and prosperity of the American citizen depends on what is done by the administration in furthering the understanding of foreign relations.

Will He Be the Umpire?—Chicago News: Japan's crack baseball team will soon be playing in the United States. It naturally occurs to the sporting mind that here is a way to settle the Yaps dispute without resort to arms.

"More Business in Government"—Chicago Tribune: The United States senate on Tuesday practically without opposition passed the McCormick bill establishing a national budget system. A similar measure has been reported to the House. There is little doubt that a conference will iron out the differences and carry the bill through for the president's signature very shortly. Thus will the administration make good its policy of "more business in government."

Russia Our Benefactor.—Dell Rapids, S. D., Tribune: More ought to be a good deal more grateful to Russia than she is. Last year Russia took Emma Goldman off our hands; and now she has taken Bill Haywood.

Divorces Shun South Carolina.—Chattanooga Times: South Carolina stands squarely by her feudalistic traditions, and the courts of that state are refusing to recognize divorces granted in other states.

Mrs. Blomquist Dies Suddenly.
In the sudden death of Mrs. C. U. Blomquist of Wakefield, last Sunday, the community lost one of its ablest women, and the Salem Lutheran church of which she was such a devoted follower, one of its best Christian women. Death was due to appendicitis.

Mrs. Ida Marie Sophia Blomquist, nee Carlson, was born Dec. 26, 1858, and died at her home April 29, aged 62 years, 4 months and 3 days. On Dec. 4, 1880, she was united in marriage to C. U. Blomquist, emigrating to America three years later, and making their first home in Essex, Wis.

In 1887 they came to Wakefield and have resided here ever since. Their union was blessed with five children, three boys and two girls. These, with the husband, survive, except one son Fred, who died in 1913. Those who remain to mourn the death of a loving mother and wife are the husband, C. U. Blomquist; and four children, Rev. C. G. Blomquist, Omaha; Oscar Blomquist, Wakefield; Mrs. Hjalmer Lund, Wakefield; Mrs. P. O. Grandquist, Hancock, Michigan. The last named was the only one of the children who was unable to attend. A brother, Rev. J. G. Dahlberg of Berwyn, Illinois, and a sister, Mrs. Nelson, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, were also present at the funeral.

Services were held Monday afternoon from the residence at 2 o'clock and from the Salem Lutheran church at 2:30. Rev. E. G. Knack officiated.

Interment was made in the Wakefield cemetery.

PARIS BANS DANCE BUT HAS SHIMMY DRESS

Paris has nothing to do with our American shimmy dance, but has adopted a shimmy dress, which is sans sleeves. This new picture from the French city center shows the newest fashions there, sans sleeves, but skirt only 12 inches from the ground.

William A. Brady, president of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, declares the dancer or exhibitor of immoral and indecent motion pictures ought to be sent to prison. He doesn't seem likely to set the point. The present agitation for reforming the "movies" is directed chiefly against those impure offenders who keep safely within the law.

The Old Tariff Story.
St. Paul Pioneer Press: The practical operation of the wrong kind of tariff is made clear by the picture of the automobile makers. Their attitude is symptomatic and in that respect significant and important. What Canada will do by way of retaliation reasonably may be expected of every other country whose commerce is affected in the same way. This reality is made clear

HE COULDN'T ASK MORE FOR MONEY

Cedar Rapids Man Restored to Perfect Health by Tanalaf After Suffering Three Years.

"I couldn't ask more for my money than what I have gotten from Tanalaf, and I want to let others know the medicine I took from Cedar Rapids. I had a very poor appetite and the little I did manage to eat would lie in my stomach and digested. Gas bloated me all up. I had a disagreeable taste in my mouth constantly and often became nauseated. I couldn't eat meat at all often it seemed like I was going to smother. My work was an awful task for me and frequently I just had to sit down and rest."
"Well, this was my condition when I got hold of Tanalaf. I had no appetite and I can now eat meat and anything else I want without causing me any trouble. I've already gained eight pounds in weight, my breathing is free and easy and I'm feeling just fine."
A. Open Flats to Children.
Boston Globe: New York has legislated against the lap-dog-and-the-canary and in favor of the child, the making it a misdemeanor for a landlord to refuse to rent to a family which has children.

homes may have electricity available. The number, however, is increasing rapidly, owing principally to the advent of the small farm electric power plant. In addition to this means of supply, some farm homes are so situated that electricity can be obtained from high-voltage transmission lines that pass within a reasonable distance; others are near streams of water which may be developed as sources of energy for farm or community hydro-electric plants; while in some localities successful windmill-electric-generating plants have been constructed. Detailed directions for conducting preliminary surveys to determine the possibility of a particular stream have been given by the bureau of rural engineering of the United States department of agriculture and can be obtained for the asking.

Where farm homes are supplied with electricity from transmission lines, central stations, or farm hydro-electric plants taking current directly from the generator, it is usually supplied at 110 to 115 volts. Windmill electric plants may be of this voltage, but on account of the relatively high battery investment, they are more likely to be of the 30 to 32-volt type. The engine-driven farm lighting plant, which is multiplying rapidly at present, are mostly of the 32-volt type; but many of the companies making these plants operating at 110 volts.

Uses Almost Unlimited.
The uses of electricity in the home are almost unlimited. The man who may install it primarily for lighting will soon find himself applying it to other uses. He will begin to see what it can do for him and the multiplicity of its uses becomes apparent. He will realize how few electrically operated devices the farm home, are almost unlimited. The man who may install it primarily for lighting will soon find himself applying it to other uses. He will begin to see what it can do for him and the multiplicity of its uses becomes apparent. He will realize how few electrically operated devices the farm home, are almost unlimited.

The first thought of electricity usually for lighting, but it should not be overlooked as a source of power.
The utility motor adapts itself wonderfully well to a number of uses, thus saving the expense of installing a separate motor for each use. Sometimes a support rod is attached to the motor base to steady it when in operation. This is a desirable asset.

Then there are the many tasks of the kitchen where a little motor can do a fraction of the time consumed by hand work jobs that, though not particularly tiresome, are nevertheless tedious, such as grinding meat and coffee, stuffing sausage, mixing bread, or sharpening knives.

The electric range will be better appreciated as its advantages become better known, and will be used where electric plants of sufficient size to operate a range are available. Many washing units, such as table stretchers, fireless cookers, water heaters, griddles—and others, are already in use and are proving themselves to be desirable under different conditions. The washing machine, electric iron, vacuum cleaner, sewing machine, motor, and motor-driven pump or sprayer are all helping to make life on the farm more enjoyable and appreciated.

ANOTHER MAT STAR FROM FARM IN WEST

From the farms of Nebraska and Iowa have come the greatest wranglers the mat game has ever known. "Fritz" Gately, for years a member farm boy, followed his footsteps. Then came another mat champion, Earl Cuddeback of Iowa. His record was 21 wins and the championship from Stecker.

Now comes "The Wisner Wizard," Earl McGill, 21 years old, a typical farm lad of Wisner, Nebraska. His is a combination of Cuddeback and Stecker with the former's manliness. Class and speed together with the latter's strength, and it is being said that he will not be long before the "Wisner Wizard" will wield the power from the front row in the heavyweight division.

Big Criminals Favored.

Minnesota Journal: It's a queer system of justice we have that permits the arch-criminal of the I. W. W. crew to get away, while the wardens go to jail, a mere counter-felony or a bootlegger couldn't get away with that stuff. But convicted criminals like "Big Bill" are different; they are entitled to consideration and a chance to jump their bail.

Two Prophets.
New York Tribune: The only practical hope of a better world is in re-converting the bonds which united the allies in the war. Clemenceau was right, and Wilson wrong.

It was time to wake up, all right

MY BRAIN was busy.
BUILDING AIR castles.
FOR I wasn't sleepy.
FINALLY I dozed off.
AND PROMPTLY dreamed.
THAT I was awake.
BUT WOKE right up.
AND FOUND I was asleep.
THEN I got thinking.
OF A wonderful formula.
FOR MAKING cigarettes.
SO MUCH Turkish tobacco.
BLENDED just so with Burley.
AND OTHER domestic leaf.
AND I knew that BLENDED.
WOULD MAKE a hit.
I COULD just see.
CROWDS of happy people.
THRONGING INTO stores.

TO BUY THE GREATEST THEN LIGHTING UP. SMACKING THEIR LIPS. AND SAYING, "Oh, boy, IT'S THE exact copy. OF THAT 'Satisfy' blend." AND THEN I came to. AND SAID to myself, "THIS TIME you're dreaming. FOR SURE. WAKE UP, you darn fool. WHY THAT 'Satisfy' blend? SIMPLY CAN'T be copied."

THAT'S a fact—the "Satisfy Blend" can't be copied. It's our own secret—putting those good tobacco leaves in a way that gives you every last ounce of their fragrance. You'll smack your lips over Chesterfield. And remember—you can't get "Satisfy" anywhere else.
