Reformation in Rural Newspaper Business

Laurel Advocate: "It is only within the last few years that the printing business—especially that of the country newspaper—has been placed on a sound basis. The war made this necessary. The writer will remember working in 'print shops' where to get the business was the main and sole object, no matter how much was set in the work, and advertising was carried at a price that would hardly pay for the composition. None of those papers succeeded financially. The paper composing the past few years is so unusual that people cannot be blamed in exclaiming that 'printers are beginning to do business as successful business men.'"

Speaking of this reformation the Windsor (Colo.) Courier-Valley says: "It has long been the custom of printers to gross the price $2 a job, and they generally guessed in favor of the customer—lest they lose $3 or $4 worth of business in a year, that is to say, when their new methods excite wonder and surprise."

"Printers using the Franklin printing price list are not bound by any set prices. They have the power to change the prices given. If they see fit to charge less than the list, that is their affair, but they would be displaying a lack of business sense as the banker who would say:

"Here, boys, is a stack of gold pieces; help yourselves as long as you can."

"But nobody ever heard of a banker doing this. And nobody ever heard of a merchant making a regular habit of selling goods at half the wholesale cost. It would not be good business and he couldn't last very long at it."

"The same rule applies to printers. They can do business on business principles and be business men, or they can be tamphugs—which suits their individual fancy, but the majority prefer to be business men."

"Who ever heard of a farmer bidding for his neighbor on everything he raises, his butter, his eggs, his wheat, potatoes, etc? Nobody ever did."

"But printers have been known to bid for business, on that silly basis—just to keep a competitor from getting a job. And their competitors have been doing the same until very recent years."

The Advocate has been a user of the Franklin printing price list the past two years. It has been nicknamed "The Printers' Bible," and a very fitting name it is. There would be far fewer failures in the printing business—from a financial standpoint—if more offices used this list.

Oakland High School Scores in Contest

A team composed of Albert Neiburg, Axel Becklund and Lloyd Carlson, representing the vocational agriculture class of the Oakland high school, made a good record at the recent annual state judging contest which was held at Lincoln. Albert Neiburg won first place in placing Percheron hogs, scoring 293 out of a possible 300 points; Lloyd Carlson tied for first place in judging Hampshire hogs, but failed to receive the medals due him for the reason that he failed to record his number on the place card. Oakland stood fourth in the contest in which twenty-two other teams were represented. In individual scoring, Albert Neiburg ranked highest on the team and Axel Becklund second.

A meeting of telephone patrons was held at Bloomfield last week, at which were present T. A. Anthony and J. E. Bagstrom, president and general manager, respectively of the Union Telephone company, the purpose of the meeting having been to see what could be done to adjust the controversy over rates which arose after the company had increased rates 25 per cent. The officers representing the telephone company addressed the patrons, but the latter remained ironed-faced, notwithstanding the explanations and the proposition to lower rates. Following the meeting, an ultimatum was prepared, stating that telephone service could be resumed with the old rates, unless became effective. The resolution, as passed, placed the company thirty days to meet the terms demanded by the people. Mr. H. Saunders, a well-known telephone representative, who had been in Bloomfield the past few days in an attempt to reestablish service, was denied the right to orate at the meeting, Chairman J. C. Hansen stating that the matter was between the "patrons" of the company and its officers, and could not therefore be settled by the representative of another company. No action has yet been taken.

Miss Florence Jones of the past year county nurse of Pierce county, has tendered her resignation to become effective the first of next month. All efforts to change Miss Lyons' decision have proved unavailing. It is said that she wishes to be near her mother, who lives in Ontario, Canada.

It is reported that J. C. Foltz, aged 64 years, of Dakota county, was paralyzed last week when he was thrown from a load of oats. It is said that he struck the front wheel in such a manner that several ribs were broken and his spine injured. Mr. Foltz has been a resident of Dakota county for the past 43 years.

Randolph Landmark Gone. Randolph the cow. The old livery barn known about Randolph for many years as the Mosher barn and later as the Larsen barn is no more. For some years it has been little more than a wreck and is now completely wrecked and marks the removal of an old landmark and spells the last vestige of what was once a flourishing business. The advent of the automobile was the beginning of the end of the old livery barn.

This old barn was owned by Z. Boughton who acquired it as a part of the buildings on the Boughton ranch east of town. Mr. Boughton moved the building, which was used as a horse barn on the ranch, to Randolph about 10 or 12 years ago, being the same fall, as Mr. Boughton remembers it, that the town lot site was held. W. R. Boughton had charge of the moving operations and it was quite a task to make the transfer, but it was managed. The first man to operate this barn was J. P. Hirschman, for many years a farmer near Belden. A. H. Terry was operating a livery barn at about the same time and the men were the pioneers in what was in those days a needed business and an important part in the transportation problem.

Later on the barn was operated by Mosher & Bruner and for some 18 years just passed by Peter Larsen. The old white team was about the last one to make drives out of this barn.

Now the lumber in this dismantled structure has been hauled back to the ranch from which it first came and will be used in the construction of four hog houses. The old structure will not be used for a new building for the present at least.

Old Settlers Honored. Homer Ashford, president of the Thomas State bank, entertained fifty of the business men of the county at S. A. Combs, who with his wife has departed for Boise, Id., where they will make their home.

Mr. Combs has been a continuous resident of Homer and Dakota county, coming to this county in 1868 and engaged in the milling business at Oakland and after a few years came to Homer and conducted a mill until a number of years ago.

Silly Talk from Crisinger. St. Paul Pioneer-Press: When he says "the law of supply and demand is as dead as a New England Minnow," Crisinger is wrong. Crisinger Crisinger lays himself open to the suspicion that he is talking just to hear himself talk. The law of supply and demand is as immutable as the law of the Motion and Perilous. Its operation may be impeded, thwarted temporarily, set aside even being conditionally, but it will inevitably reassert itself. It cannot be repealed and from it there is no appeal.

which specialists of the United States department of agriculture cooperated with state and local authorities, a survey was made which disclosed the fact that as a result of the campaign 6,000 people had increased their consumption of milk. During the campaign it was found that 2,300 school children in Spokane drank no milk, but that during the campaign 2,100 started to drink it. Truly "free specialists of the department have cooperated with the state extension forces in conducting milk utilization campaigns in a number of cities, all of which have resulted in an increase in the consumption of milk. Campaigns are never conducted in a town unless the supply of milk is known to be absolutely clean and of sufficient quantity to take care of increased consumption.

For All-Year Roads.
Wyoming is attempting to construct federal aid roads which may be used as highways throughout the entire year. This is being accomplished in some parts of the state by maintaining the grade lines at an elevation which will insure the roadbed being swept clean of snow.

During six or seven months of the twelve in Wyoming, there is likely to be snow, which is generally accompanied by wind. Any portion of the highway which is below the surface of the surrounding ground will drift full of snow to a depth equal to the height of any nearby object above the grade, say specialists of the United States department of agriculture.

By building the grade at an elevation slightly above the surrounding ground and the brush or weeds which border the road, it is possible to have a road which will be free from snow and present a soft, muddy roadbed, when the snow melts.

This can not be accomplished in every case, but on flat or generally rolling country it has been found that snow can be practically eliminated from the roadbed by carefully studying the conditions and placing the grades accordingly. In many instances the excavation quantities may appear to be excessive, as where the grade is kept high when approaching a knoll in order to keep the per cent of grade low and at the same time to raise the roadbed sufficiently high over the knoll to prevent drifting of the snow, but slight increase expenditure in this way at the time the road is built will save large expenditures later to clear away the snow.

Hurtful Exaggeration.

Farm Life: Mortgages have been foreclosed before—tenants have given up their leases—farmers have been busted. There have been forced sales and bankruptcy, every year. But there are more of these failures now than in normal times. Men tried to go into high priced farming on short capital. They were not prepared for a disastrous price break. They could not finance or deference payments on their contracts for the expensive lands they had bought. Conditions have been much worse in certain sections of the state in certain periods in the past, within the memory of men now living. But we have forgotten the old troubles, and we are not making the same mistakes. Men who are not paid much attention to in normal times. At any rate, we cannot help matters by an able surrender to other tales of trouble. We must work out our own salvation. It is useless to complain to the government to make good our losses or insure our future profits. The nation cannot guarantee every man who goes farming and protect him from loss. It cannot boost prices against a world condition, even if it were willing to try such a doubtful experiment. The nation cannot extend credit where credit is not due, or lend money where there is no hope of repayment. It cannot guarantee the good judgment, or shrewdness. It is admitted now that a large percentage of the farmers are "swindled through," and while everybody is sorry for the tenants and farm owners who suffered losses, it is absurd to say that "agriculture is flat on its back in the gutter."

Senatorial Primary for Wealthy.

Minneapolis Journal: The inevitable tendency toward the direct primary to shut out from running for senator all but those who can afford to spend large sums, or who have friends ready to spend large sums for them. It would be a device calculated to bring us close to the practice of pure democracy, the direct primary is in fact quite to opposite. It restricts the popular choice in too many instances to those who have riches or access to riches.

Reform Has Been Delayed.

Springfield, Mass., Republican: The twelve-hour work day still exists for hundreds of thousands of men employed by the United States Steel corporation, according to speakers at a dinner of the survey associates, notwithstanding the fact that the survey labor has ceased. The virtually promised reform seems unaccountably slow in arriving.

You Simple for Diplomats.

Yankton Press and Dakotan: The reduction of armaments by the process of referring from being the ownership and letting the old ones wear out in such a very simple solution that no trained diplomat in the world could ever understand it.

Agriculture Notes

On March 30, 1921, his findings of a violation of section 237 of the United States grain standards act on the part of O. Vanier, Fairbury, Neb. The findings show that Mr. Vanier purchased from the Jansen Milling Co. 27 tons of No. 1 white, one carload of No. 4 or better white corn for shipment to Atchison, Kans. Atchison weights and official grades. Upon arrival at Atchison the corn was inspected and graded by a licensed inspector, who found it to be No. 3 white, with a moisture content of 17.7 percent. When the certificate was received by Mr. Vanier he altered the same to show a grade of No. 1 white, with a moisture content of 15.1 percent, and transmitted the certificate as altered to the shipper, the Jansen Milling Co., thereby representing to that company that the corn had graded No. 1 white at Atchison, whereas in fact the license inspector had found it to be No. 3 white.

Control Alfalfa Weevil by Spraying.
The county agent under the reporting to the United States department of agriculture says the spray developed by the office of cereal and forage insect investigations, bureau of entomology, in the department has increased the production of the sprayed over the unsprayed alfalfa fields by an average of one-half ton to the acre. This spray is made of two to two and one-half pounds of lead arsenate or calcium arsenate to 100 gallons of water. It is applied in a fine mist with a power sprayer at the rate of 80 to 100 gallons to the acre. The state leader says 351 farms were included in the demonstration, which covered 10,111 acres. It is estimated the saving effected by this form of alfalfa control amounted to $69,987.

Printing of "Return Card" on 500 Envelopes

In the mind of the average "layman" the printing of a "return card" on a box of envelopes consists simply in "setting 'er up and running 'er off." The following operations, however, are necessary in the correct printing of such a job:

1. An envelope "return card" is what is termed "hand-sell", that is, the letters or types are taken from the case by hand, one at a time, and assembled into lines and properly spaced.
2. Form is locked up. This operation consists of locking the type tightly in an iron frame or "chase" which is placed in the press.
3. Press is "washed up," all old ink being cleaned from ink plate and press rollers (a dirty, disagreeable job) and new, clean ink distributed. This ink must be exactly the right amount, and particularly suited to the work in hand. Printing inks for the ordinary classes of work cost from $2 to $10 per pound.
4. Press is "made ready" or "dressed." This is done by placing the proper number of sheets over the surface printed against, and bringing each part of this surface or "platen" to bear evenly and with exactly the right pressure upon the form to secure a clear print and still not "punch" or show from the back of the sheet. This operation sometimes consumes a few minutes; often considerable time.
5. Proof read and corrected, the printed job being carefully compared with the "copy" and corrections, if any, made by taking the form from the press, unlocking, and changing letters.
6. Envelopes are "opened." By this is meant, the flaps are raised and folded back, one at a time, by hand. This is made necessary on account of the "card" being printed partly on the flap and partly off. The same number of thicknesses of paper must be beneath each part of the surface printed upon. Also with the flap "closed" lumps in the glue often injure the type which unless replaced, causes an unsightly job. Various makeshifts are employed by printers to avoid opening of envelopes, but none of them are satisfactory or result in good work.
7. Envelopes are printed by being fed into the press one at a time, by hand, printed, and taken out. This operation is one requiring greatest accuracy.
8. After being allowed to dry, envelopes are again closed and replaced in box.
9. Job wrapped and delivered.

The greater part of the above labor is performed by high-salaried help and with the aid of expensive equipment.

In addition to the cost of the blank envelopes, to which is added a small charge to cover cost of freight, carriage and handling, the printer receives for 500 envelopes, $2.50. This charge is supposed to cover the expense of the combined operations listed above, together with all overhead, and to leave a small profit.

The Wayne Churches Observe Mothers' Day

Mothers' day, Sunday, May 8, was appropriately observed in the various churches of Wayne.
Rev. Mr. Ridgway, of Omaha, preached a sermon commemorating Mothers' Day at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning.
At the St. Paul Lutheran church the pastor, Rev. J. H. Petrotz, delivered a special sermon on "Mothers." The choir rendered an anthem suitable to the occasion.
Rev. Wm. Kilburn of the Methodist church, talked on "The Training of Moses," touching on the care and devotion of the mother.
"The Mothers of the Bible" was the title of the sermon delivered by Rev. R. H. Pratt at the Baptist church. The choir sang special recitations appropriate to the day. In the evening Prof. J. G. W. Lewis and Prof. E. E. Lackey of the Wayne State Normal sang a duet, "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight." Prof. Lackey also sang a solo, "Mother Machine." A number of "Mother songs" were given by the choir.

Nineteenth Birthday Is Duly Remembered

Geo. Pickering, who makes his home with his daughter, Mrs. J. J. Williams, in Wayne, was reminded of his nineteenth birthday anniversary on Monday by the visits of scores of friends and the receipt of many letters and cards and flowers. Mr. Pickering was working in his garden when his friends commenced gathering to offer congratulations.
Mr. Pickering was born near Stratford on a farm, England, in 1881, and came to America in 1886. His family consisted of his wife and young son and daughter. While on the voyage, the daughter was taken sick and died and her body was committed to the waves of the mighty ocean. Another son and daughter, the latter, Mrs. J. J. Williams, of Wayne, were born in America. The mother passed away eight years ago at the age of 82 years. One son, John, died at Iowa City ten years ago, and the other son, William, died at Seattle eight years ago. Mr. Pickering and Mrs. Williams are the only survivors of the family.

Mr. Pickering is active for one of his advanced years, with a mind that is clear and a body with few ills. His friends look for him to pass the century mark. He thoroughly enjoys the "cheerful words," spoken and written, by friends here and elsewhere, and surrounded by beautiful flowers, he regarded the present and looked to the future with a happy content.

Resolution.

Whereas, our friend and comrade, John B. Stallamith, has answered the last roll call;
Whereas, it is right and fitting that in recognition of his loyalty to his country and to the past, a proper memorial be placed on file on our records;
Therefore, be it resolved by Casey Post No. 13, A. O. U. W., that in the death of our comrade we have lost a true and loyal citizen and a faithful member of this post.
Be it further resolved that the sympathy of Casey Post No. 6 be extended to the family of our deceased comrade.
R. H. Skiles, Committee,
I. A. Haines, wot to Norfolk Monday on business, returning Tuesday morning.

Baseball League to Include Wayne, Talked

Norfolk Daily News, May 9: An effort is being made to organize a baseball league of towns in this vicinity. Winside, Pilger, Stanton and Wayne have already expressed their desire to enter the proposed league and it is believed that other towns may enter. It was also planned to have a Norfolk team in the league but as yet none has decided on whether it would favor the plan or not.

It is pointed out that nearly all the towns in northeast Nebraska are entering some kind of a league and that those who do not belong to an organization will find difficulty in completing their schedule this season.

According to present plans none but home players would be permitted in the proposed league. F. E. Manning, manager of the Pilger team, is one of the principal backers of the league idea and towns in its vicinity desiring to join the organization have been requested to get in touch with him.

Plans to have a professional team in Norfolk have practically been abandoned and unless some of the towns desiring to enter the league in Norfolk will not witness any sensational ball playing this year. However, some of the new entries in the baseball field are making an exceptional fine showing for the time they have been in the game and some good games are promised on the local diamond.

A league composed of teams in Madison, Plattsmouth and Cozad counties was recently organized under the name of the Tri-County League, which in which opened on Sunday, May 1. Towns in the Tri-County league are Cordele, Creston, Hawkeye, Leigh, Lindsay, Madison and Platt Center. All towns in the Tri-County league have for years had some of the fastest teams in this part of the state and the new organization promises to become one of the main factors in northeast Nebraska baseball.

Illustrated Lecture To Be Given May 17

"Getting the Most Out of Retailing," a business lecture will be given by W. H. Farley, expert lecturer of The National Cash Register company of Dayton, O., at the Wayne State Normal auditorium Tuesday evening, May 17. The lecture was brought to this city through the efforts of the Commerce club. Reports from other cities indicate that it is one of the most interesting and educational lectures ever brought east. Admission will be free.

The great value of newspaper advertising to the retail merchant will be told by Mr. Farley. He will tell the proper way to prepare newspaper advertisements, how to get the best results, and why the retail merchant should adopt a continuous advertising policy. The matter of window displays, store organization, store system, arrangement of goods, etc., will be taken up.

The lecture, which will be illustrated with 6,000 feet of moving pictures, contains the best facts of retail merchandising gained in thirty-five years' experience of a large company in dealing with merchants in all parts of the world. It is a comprehensive lecture and from indications every merchant and sales person in the city will attend and gain a better knowledge of business methods.

A community improvement film and illustrated song will precede the business lecture.

Spengler's petition states that, on Oct. 1, 1920, Barge represented to him that Charles Spengler was indebted to the bank in a large sum of money and if the plaintiff would sign four notes in the sum of $44,000 due on Feb. 2, 1921, and permit Barge to keep the notes until right after Nov. 1, 1920, Barge would return the notes to the plaintiff and that the notes were later only as a favor to help the bank temporarily.

There is a better trade trend, according to the federal reserve board, which, recurring in a cold, analytical way some of the features that are retarding recovery, does not express as much of the hopefulness as the interests themselves. This can be ascribed very naturally to the official view of things which deals more with apparent facts than with the hopes of the business leaders.

"The only time in recent years, except during the miners' strike, when the production and transportation of coal were anywhere near so small as they are now was early in 1919. The situation now, however, is much more threatening than then. Not only is less coal being produced than then, but the country entered the year 1919 with a storage supply of about 39,000,000 tons; the largest amount ever on hand at the beginning of a year, while it entered the year 1921 with comparatively small storage supplies."

Coal cannot be cheaper with existing mining wages and freight rates. There is no immediate prospect of a reduction of either. Coal cannot be stored at the mines, nor can dealers store enough to protect this community.

Feeding Grain to Cows.
Drovers Journal-Stockman: Does it pay to feed grain to cows on pasture? The answer is that it depends largely upon how much milk the cow gives, and how good the pasture is. C. H. Eckles, chief of the division of dairy husbandry, University farm, St. Paul.
If a cow is producing less than a pound of butterfat each day, the necessary food can be obtained from a good pasture. If she produces more than this, some grain can be fed with profit. This means that a cow should be able to get food enough from grass alone to make 25 to 30 pounds of milk only, and a guarantee of energy about 20 pounds. It will pay to feed grain to all giving above this amount as it is impossible for the animal to gather sufficient feed in the form of grass.
To produce a pound of butterfat daily requires at least 25 pounds of dry matter. Fresh pasture grass contains only 10 to 12 pounds of dry matter in a 100 pounds, making it necessary for a cow to gather and digest from 200 to 250 pounds of grass to produce from 20 to 30 pounds of milk. It is clear from this that it is impossible for a really high-producing cow giving 40 to 50 pounds daily to do so long on grass alone.

A cow yielding a pound and a half of fat daily should receive about five pounds of grain, and about seven or eight pounds of grain for two pounds of fat. When not more than five pounds of grain is needed, it may be corn, barley, oats or any combination of grain that is cheapest. The grass supplies a good amount of protein, and the danger of a shortage of this necessary material is not recurring. With a high-producing cow requiring more than five pounds of grain daily, a small amount of bran, linseed meal, or other high protein feed should be added.
These recommendations hold good only when pastures are good. In early summer it will often be necessary to feed more grain to high-producing cows or to give some silage or green feeds to help out the pasture.

League Program Debated.
Salina, Kan., May 11.—Charges that the leaders of the National Non-partisan league were associated with the I. W. W. and the socialist party, and counter charges that opposition to the league is fostered by "grain gamblers," insurance companies and other business interests, were made in a debate here last night between William Langer, former attorney general of North Dakota, league foe, and A. C. Townley, national leader of the league. The question was "Resolved: That the Non-partisan league program as managed by the Non-partisan league has been detrimental to the people of North Dakota."
An audience of approximately 1,000 persons, many of them farmers, attended the debate. Rain began falling shortly after Langer opened his argument and made it difficult for his audience to hear.
Langer, the challenger, accused most of his time to attacks on Townley, who he declared was "farming the farmers." He declared Townley had "robbed" the farmers of North Dakota through the formation of the United Consumers Store company, a co-operative agency, and that he had a half million dollars in state funds deposited in the Scandinavian-American bank of Fargo, which he knew was insolvent.
Townley replied, "I am the origin of the league and gave practically all his time to explaining the league program in North Dakota. He did not answer charges that the league managers in every state are either I. W. W. or socialists, and said in future debates he would reply to some of the many charges made by his opponent."

Washington Post: President Harding keeps the value and stability of our outdoor exercise. He realizes that to be mentally fit, alert and capable of solving "fit" problems, a man must be physically fit. Where there is a healthy and sane mind there must be a sound and clean body. The president learned the lesson long ago. It will save the burden of the tasks he carries on his capable shoulders and react to the benefit of the United States. The great demands to be made upon the strength of the president will find him physically able to cope with them.
