The Good Old Days... Fairbury News: A canvass was recently made among the business men of York to ascertain the sentiment regarding a Fourth of July celebration, and they were found to be almost unanimously against it.

The same thing has occurred in most of the larger towns in the state. This of course cannot be attributed to waning patriotism, but more properly to the changing public taste which are demanding more expensive amusements with each recurring year, and as the expense of these celebrations must be borne in the main by the merchants of the city, they naturally elect to side-step it.

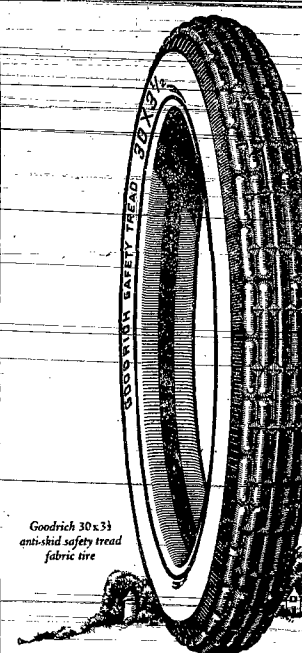

Time was when a Fourth of July celebration meant a shady nook remote from the business marts, a patriotic speech by the community's best orator, a chorus composed of the united choir of the city, possibly a concert by the home town band, a basket dinner followed by a platform dance, the indispensable merry-go-round, the water tank and lemonade and "double jointed, hump-backed peanuts at five a glass," and the day was topped off with an inexpensive display of fireworks at night.

Those were the celebrations which promoted good-fellowship, a gathering of the neighbors as one big family to partake of the picnic lunch when commercialism was forgotten and the day was one of veneration and rest and patriotic reflections.

Then or you hundred dollars in those times were sufficient to make a day long to be remembered. Now it takes as many thousand dollars to make an effective program, and the whole affair is weighed in the commercial balance.

Patriotism was conceived to renew and promote patriotism on those days, and we have often wondered if our modern celebrations are serving the purpose as well as if the business men and the citizens generally would not favor a more old-fashioned picnic celebration, showing the hard work of the antique and the expense. We may be old-fashioned but we would like to see it tried out in this community.

North Dakota Editor Explains Condition

Pierre Call—W. C. Taylor, editor of the La Moure County, North Dakota, Chronicle, every week publishes a reader column of "Psychograms." Last week he published in this column an article entitled, "What's the Matter With North Dakota." It is an entertaining and readable article and we publish the same below:

"A subscriber living way down in Illinois, writes me as follows:

"Years ago William Allen White published an article entitled, 'What's the Matter with Kansas?' The writer suggests that you take this line and give us something along the line of 'What's the Matter with North Dakota.' White's article apparently did some good. Think it over."

"I haven't time to think it over, but right off the bat I want to tell my Illinois friend and all the world besides that there's absolutely nothing the matter with North Dakota. Our climate is ideal; our resources are unlimited. In the eastern part of this state the soil is rich and its fertility is like that of the best parts of Illinois and Iowa. In the western portions of the state are immense deposits of the finest clay in the world, and under that six hundred million tons of coal.

"The best wheat in the world is grown in North Dakota. From New York to San Francisco flour with North Dakota brand on it sells at a premium. Farm buildings in Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota are a bunch of shacks compared with the splendid modern residences, the great barns, granaries and other outbuildings which grace the farms of North Dakota. Our country school houses are painful compared with those of the states just mentioned.

But perhaps my friend was thinking of North Dakota from a political standpoint. Oh, well, that's another price of political perfidy—that all politicians who are narrow between the eyes—who lacked vision, sympathy and understanding—floated the average well-to-do citizen the fundamental American principle of majority rule and the eternal fact that government derives their just powers from the consent of the governed.

"The farmers of North Dakota who are said to constitute 85 per cent of our total population; though they had a grievance or two. These had to do with the marketing system—the grading, weighing and docking of grain. They didn't like the idea of being completely at the mercy of the grading and dockage laws of Minnesota and the operations of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce. They thought as men in other lines of production and commerce do, they ought to have a little something to say about how their stuff should be handled and sold."

It seemed to the farmers of North Dakota that the only solution would be to build terminal elevators in which their grain could be stored and sold direct to the millers. The plan might work or it might not, but they were willing to pay for the experiment. And if their plain instructions had been followed by their servants, the legislature, North Dakota would have been saved great humiliation, loss of prestige, reputation and property. The terminal elevator scheme would have been put in operation—and probably by this time abandoned as an impractical but comparatively harmless experiment.

"It is impossible within the compass of this column to go into details. The gist of the matter is that the legislators ignored the practically unanimous instructions from the people and one of them is said to have let the farmers who sent a delegation to the capital to sue for and stop their hogs and leave the weight-matters-of-legislation-to their hogs. Did that make the farmers mad? That was ready for anything.

"Everybody knows what happened. A little bunch of socialists who had been able to get nowhere with their own party, and who were led by a freestanding radical who had just had a hundred thousand dollars of his creditor's money trying to make a 'killing' as a bonanza flax grower, saw that a political gate was down, and they proceeded to drive right through. They organized the Non-partisan League, and the outraged farmers dug up membership fees with both hands.

"In the state election of 1916 the newly-organized league bought the opposition under an avuncular of votes and they grabbed every seat in sight, including the legislature. An appropriation for a terminal elevator was passed with scarcely a dissenting vote—and the Non-partisan League governor vetoed it. This act of treachery has never been explained, except on the flimsy ground that the same appropriation was not large enough to build an elevator of sufficient storage capacity.

"The truth that is an overreaching political success of the league went to the leader's heads. They concluded to ditch the original modest program of the farmers and go for state socialism on a big scale. A state bank, a home builders' association, a state compensation bureau and here we know what all was added to the list.

"Followed an era of tremendous exploitation. The league membership rose to over a million. Millions of dollars were collected in such promotion schemes as chain stores, banks, newspapers, etc. The farmers were the white. League majorities in the state elections fell from more than fifty thousand to next to nothing. The legislature passed which greatly modified the radical league legislation. The chain stores are in the hands of a receiver and no longer do business. Nearly all of the league newspapers are at the rocks, and the farmer stockholders are 'holding the bag.' Walls to say all about ten years from 'Are we rounbawtred? Not yet! We know that North Dakota is fundamentally sound. WE KNOW that it will stand up in ten years from now. Five years from now this little adventure in state socialism will have become nothing more than an episode in the history of the world. It will have been all but forgotten. File this prediction away and see if it is not a real prophecy."

BURK'S BIG Uncle Tom's Cabin Company Under a March Will Exhibit at Wayne, Saturday Night, June 18.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" is the most beautiful play in the English language and justly deserves its popularity. The only play that is identified with American history. It has endured 50 years, and each succeeding year but serves to add laurels to its wealth of popularity. It breathes of loyalty and liberty; it will inculcate in the youthful mind a love of Honesty, Morality and Christianity; it boldly stands for all that is GOOD, and upholds to scorn and contempt all that is bad, and for these reasons it appeals to all Christian People as the ideal of a great and master play. Some Practical Suggestions to Fathers and Mothers: If you cannot afford to visit but one show this season, this is surely the one. We will try our best to amuse and instruct the children and present nothing inimical to youth and innocence. It will arouse your best instruction in American history and wholesome recreation, more than ten times the price of admission. It is just what it is advertised to be. Moral and Refined and Instructive as well as amusing. Burk's Big Uncle Tom's Cabin Co. will exhibit at Wayne, Saturday Night, June 18, at 8 o'clock. Prepare for the coming event. A grand Gala Holiday for the rich and poor alike. J. H. H. H.

Anthracite Prices Too High. New York World: The Pennsylvania anthracite operators can do very little to do to find a market for raising the price of coal. They have discovered a fresh opportunity in the new taxation imposed on coal mining companies by the state legislature. It will mean no cost to them, but possibly larger profits. The tax is to be fixed on the value of the coal mined for any purpose collecting the tax in advance by an addition to the price of their coal. They are not likely to get successfully to make any error in favor of the consumer. When they have been required to raise the tax, they have never failed to reply themselves more than adequately for the increase in their payrolls.

Fraid of Nothing. Galveston News: One reason a resurging revivalist has the courage to get down on his hands and knees on the sidewalk platform and dare the devil to come out of a knot-hole in the floor is that he knows the devil isn't there.

THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Some people are still trying to figure out how things cannot be done instead of how they can be done. It is worth while can be undertaken with the right spirit and right determination.

While this is the busy season, work no doubt is far enough advanced so that you can come to Wayne on special bargain days, Tuesday and Wednesday, next week, and extend acquaintances, hear the band play and take advantage of excellent buying opportunities.

The reason ex-President Taft is so popular is because he accepted criticism, just or unjust, philosophically, and was always a good loser. It is easy for such a man to "come back." He is no doubt held in higher and more general esteem now than ever before in his life.

Railway employees who advocate the "Plan" plan, and who are raising their eyes in protest, estimate that they may go out on a strike. Ordinarily one would think the railroads would be afraid of a strike. But from the way traffic has been reduced we would think they would be afraid their employees would not strike.

Rich children in a certain Chicago district are reported so poor in healthful recreation that fifty per cent of them are of subnormal weight. The more general who have plenty of wholesome exercise, test stronger. The rich children have too much ease and are spoiled by too much luxury. Their young lives have no chance to expand and develop. It looks as though welfare workers would have to turn attention to the children of the rich in the cities.

The most backward Nebraska community is fifty years ahead of farming in Connecticut, according to a report which appeared in a live stock paper recently. A dealer arrived on the Kansas City market to buy steers to be shipped to Connecticut and sold for use as ox teams. The report states that farmers down in New England not only "plow" with oxen, but still cut grain by hand. It looks as though enterprising manufacturers of modern machinery would prosecute a campaign of education in Connecticut and other states that are groping in primitive darkness.

The school annuals, notable example of which is the state university's Cornhusker, are often disappointing to people who "expect" a reflection of the culture supposed to be developed with education. Education is expected to accentuate, rather than dull, fine qualities in character. Many students have oddities or idiosyncrasies to a more or less marked degree. One person talks too much or too little; another is over polite or over cautious; one is sensitive and bashful. Eccentricities often draw ugly thrusts or attempts at burlesque and altogether at variance with the refining and burnishing influence of college life. While one student is offensively presumptuous and is rebuffed by multiple rebuke, many others are unwarrantedly kind because of rebuff to really fine qualities. These annuals are permanent records and should bear character with more kindness and more charity. The contents of the school annual should not rest altogether the judgment of immature students. If such publications are to endure, more responsibility should be assumed by faculty heads.

YALE ALUMNI JOLTED.
The story of Sinclair Lewis speaking before the Yale alumni, as reported in a Sunday newspaper, may not be true. As author of "Main Street" Sinclair Lewis undoubtedly developed popularity, and naturally enough many alumni would want him for a prominent place on the alumni program. Here's what he is quoted as saying: "I am surprised you invited me to this dinner. You knew I had written the best seller of the year, so you asked me to make a speech. During all the time I was in school not one of you did a kind act or spoke a kind word to me. You thought I was a nut. You avoided me. I've come back here to tell you all to go to hell!"
It is true that fine genius unexpectedly appears after a long slumber in the availing of the time that is supposed to college life, frequently surpasses in resplendent effect those who have shown greater brilliance during school days. It is also true that a suspicion of dormant genius in what seems an unimproving man proves a false alarm. No certain rule can be followed in determining in advance the size of the swath one is to cut. The shrewd student, very fitted with genius, but possessing hitherto unobserved weakness, may become a miserable failure. But on the other hand he may, with discipline, grow in brilliance and develop an increasingly successful career. The school which may possess talent that with the passing of youth, will break forth into definite, useful and distinguished genius. But, on the other hand, he may always remain a vague nut. One who is not brilliant in all things may have a genius for one thing, and in that one thing finally developed into a star of the first magnitude. Sinclair Lewis was probably hurt by neglect during college days. He probably did not make himself deserving of attention. Fellow students had not detected the buried talent. Granting that he suffered much neglect and humiliation, he could afford to overlook the past and accept a friendly relationship which, if quoted correctly, he rather abruptly repulsed.

Business.
SIOUX CITY JOURNAL: June has not brought all the trade development that was promised by events in May. The public has not even considered that business is no better than it was last month, and also that the outlook is not so promising because of the failure of some cherished plans to work out. This view could be influenced by a number of things, among them being the involved railroad problem, the persisting high prices of building materials, notably lumber and steel, the continued unemployment, which makes the question of human digestion. The public cannot be blamed if it is not altogether optimistic. Things are moving slowly toward business recovery, as it is being to be seen, but they are moving. That is better than if they were at a standstill, and so long as there is movement forward, however slow, there is ground for hope.

Some observers are of the opinion that the big interests are more or less responsible for this slowness of movement in business progress. One makes the pointed suggestion that, since there is every evidence that steel prices are to be cut, they ought to be met now for the sake of the influence it would have on general business conditions. That looks like a sensible argument. B. C. Forbes, in the Philadelphia Public Ledger, which is one of the most alert of the eastern observers and writers, made the suggestion that such action has become necessary. He writes:

"Is the importance of doing everything possible to hasten business recovery sensed by responsible financial and industrial leaders? I hardly believe it is. The big fact that every man of affairs in a position to help or hinder the return of activity should make in front of him, is that more than 4,000,000 workers have been idle for months. Winter is not so very far away."

Following up his suggestion that the financial interests ought to do everything possible to hasten business recovery, Mr. Forbes says: "It would be business statesmanship to act now and thus tend to hasten the recovery that most people now look forward to with more or less confidence, but which is not being accelerated as it ought to be accelerated." So much for the industrial leaders, but he has some advice for labor chiefs as well. He suggests that "labor leaders will also do well to act thoughtfully regarding wage reductions demanded by economic conditions for unwise action in this connection also will cripple recovery." This is in line with the Journal's reiterated suggestion that both capital and labor should recognize their mutual duty and their common prosperity, or loss, and work out together the problem that confronts them.

Pittsburgh predicts lower steel and iron prices are to come. The Journal believes with Mr. Forbes that, if they are to come, the better thing is to create them now. The influence such reductions would have on the railroad situation and building conditions would be invaluable. Merchants are more hopeful. Chicago shoe factories having received orders for sufficient goods to justify operation at almost normal capacity. Bumper crops are ahead, but these will have to be moved as usual in trains, wherefore there is not permitted to forget that exorbitant freight rates have to come down before the harvest. Otherwise a most unwise economic condition would be created with lowered profits for the producers and increased prices for the consumers. It is not conceivable that at the same time the financial, industrial and labor leaders who have been about the results denied, can not do it.

ADVERTISING

Some people are still trying to figure out how things cannot be better. Instead of how they can be done. Usually anything worth while can be undertaken with the right spirit and right determination.

While this is the busy season, work no doubt is far enough advanced so that you can come to Wayne on special bargain days, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, and extend your shopping to the bandwagon. Take advantage of excellent buying opportunities.

The reason ex-President Taft is so popular is because he accepted criticism, just or unjust, philosophically, and was always a good loser. It is always a good loser to come back. He is a good loser and is higher and more general esteem now than ever before in his life.

Railway employees who advocate the Plum plan, and who are raising wage reductions, intimate that they may go out on a strike. Ordinarily one would think the railroads would be afraid of a strike. But from the way traffic has been reduced we would think they would be afraid their employees would not strike.

Rich children in a certain Chicago district are reported so poor in health. The recreation that fifty per cent of them are of abnormal weight. The poor children who have plenty of wholesome exercise, test stronger. The rich children have too much ease and are surprised by too little activity. Their young lives have no chance to expand and develop. It looks as though welfare workers would have to turn attention to the children of the rich in the cities.

The most backward Nebraska communities fifty years ahead of farming districts in Connecticut, according to a report which appeared in a live stock paper recently. A dealer arrived on the Kansas City market to buy steers to be shipped to Connecticut and sold for use as ox teams. The report states that farmers down in New England not only plow with ox teams, but still cut grain by hand. It looks as though enterprising manufacturers of modern machinery would prosecute a campaign of education in Connecticut and other states that are groping in primitive darkness.

The school annuals, notable example of which is the state university's Cornhusker, are often disappointing to people who expect a reflection of the culture supposed to be developed with education. Education is expected to accentuate, rather than dull, fine qualities in character. Many students have oddities or idiosyncrasies to a more or less marked degree. One person talks too much and too loud; another is over polite or over cautious; one is sensitive and bashful. Eccentricities often draw ugly thrusts or attempts at burlesque altogether at variance with the refining and burnishing influence of college life. While one student is offensively pre-emptive and is berated by public rebuke, many others are unwarrantedly hard because of refusal to really fine qualities. These annuals are permanent records and should treat character with more kindness and more charity. The contents of the annual should not rest altogether on the judgment of immature students. If such publications are to endure, more responsibility should be assumed by faculty heads.

YALE ALUMNI JOLTED.

The story of Sineclair Lewis' speech before the Yale alumni reported in a Sunday newspaper, may not be true. An author of "Main Street," Sineclair Lewis suddenly developed popularity, and naturally enough his alma mater sought him for a prominent place on the alumni program. Here is what he is quoted as saying:

"You invited me to this dinner. You knew I had written the best seller of the year, so you asked me to give a speech. During all the time I was in school not one of you did a kind act or spoke a kind word to me. You thought I was a nut. You avoided me. I've come back here to tell you to go to hell."

It is true that fine genius unexpectedly appears after a long slumber. It is a warning sign, frequently unsuspected in college life, frequently surprises in resplendent effect those who have shown greater brilliance during school years. It is no true that a suspicion of stormal genius in what seems an inconsequential out- proves a false alarm. No estab-lished was followed in determining to advance the size of the swan one is to cut. The showy student, sur- leited with praise, but possessing un- derneath unobtrusive modesty, may become a miserable failure. But on the other hand he may, with due poise, grow in brilliance and develop his outstandingly successful career. The school dullard may possess in- tellect that with the passing of youth will break forth into definite, useful and distinguished genius. But, on the other hand, he may always re- main a rapid nut. One who is not brilliant in all things may have a genius for one thing, and he has some- thing finally developed into a star of the first magnitude. Sineclair Lewis was probably hurt by neglect during college days. He probably did not make himself deserving of attention. Fellow students did not detect the budding talent. Granting that he suf- fered much neglect and humiliation, he could afford to overlook the past and accept the friendly relationship which, if quoted correctly, he rather abruptly repudiated.

Business.
Sioux City Journal: June has not brought all the trade development that was expected by some. May the public may even consider that business is no better than it was last month, and also that the outlook is not promising because of the failure of some cherished plans to work out. This view could be influenced by a number of things among them being the unworked railroad problem; the persisting high prices of building materials, notably lumber and steel; the continued uncertainty which brings realization of human distress. The public cannot be blamed if it is not altogether optimistic. Things are moving slowly toward business recovery, as is bound to be seen; but they are moving. That is better than if they were at a standstill, and so long as there is movement forward, how- ever slow, there is ground for hope.

Some observers are of the opinion that the big interests are more or less responsible for this slowness of movement in business progress. One makes the pointed suggestion that, since there is every evidence that steel prices are to be cut, they ought to be cut now for the sake of the in- fluence it would have on general busi- ness conditions. That looks like a sensible suggestion. R. C. Wilson, in the Philadelphia Public Ledger, who is one of the most alert of the eastern observers and writers, made the sug- gestion that such action has become necessary. He writes: "Is the importance of doing every- thing possible to hasten business recovery sensed by responsible finan- cial and industrial leaders? I hardly believe it is. The big fact that every man of affairs in a position to help is hindering the return of activity should paste in front of him, is: More than 4,000,000 workers have been idle for months. Winter is not so very far away."

Following up his suggestion that the financial interests ought to do everything possible to hasten busi- ness recovery, Mr. Fisher says: "It would be business statesmanship to act now and thus tend to hasten the recovery that most people now look forward to with more or less confi- dence, but which is not being accel- erated as it ought to be accelerated." So much for the industrial leaders, but he has some advice for labor chiefs as well. He suggests that labor leaders will also do well to act thoughtfully regarding wage re- ductions demanded by economic con- ditions for unwise action in this connection also will cripple recovery. "This is in line with The Journal's re- iterated suggestion that both capital and labor should recognize their com- mon duty and their common prosper- ity, or else work together to solve the problem that confronts them."

Pittsburgh predicts lower steel and iron prices are to come. The Jour- nal believes with Mr. Post that, if they are to come, the better thing is to create them now. The influence such reductions would have on the railroad situation and building con- ditions would be invaluable. Mer- chants are more hopeful. Chicago show factories having received orders for sufficient goods to justify opera- tion at almost normal capacity. Bumper crops are ahead, but these will have to be moved as usual in trainloads, wherefore one is not per- mitted to forget that exorbitant freight rates have to come down be- fore the harvest. Otherwise a most awesome economic condition would be created with lowered profits for the producers and increased prices for the consumers. It is not conceiv- able that, as time goes on, the finan- cial, industrial and labor leaders who can bring about the results desired, will not do it.

Kansas City Times: "A Japanese expeditionary force that has been re- ceiving orders to disband, but does not want to take the lead for fear of turning the prerogative of nations better entitled to do this than them- selves with Japan; it is so damned diffi- dent, not to say shrinking."

Springfield, Mass., Republican. The nation's minor politician whom Senator Penrose saw in Phila- delphia does not support the view that he is preparing to retire. The only retiring he is capable of is to pre- viously-prepared positions.

Culled From Herald's Exchanges For Week

Merchants in Craig, Oakland, Becker, West Point and Tekamah have been duped by a man who appears to have an abundance of counterfeit checks. He went into the stores and each time offered a check somewhat larger than the amount for his purchases. Each time he got away with a substantial sum of money. Authorities have warned other merchants to be careful in cashing such checks.

The majority of the business houses of Tekamah have been duped by the half-brother of the man who is the remainder of June and through July and August. Business will close promptly at 2 o'clock each Wednesday afternoon. Merchants are warned again at 6 to enable people to do their trading before supper. The Tekamah Journal is unable to observe the holiday on Wednesday, but will let the force off each Friday afternoon.

Clarence Boh of Laurel was badly injured when the car in which he and Lawrence Raabe were riding struck the cement bridge two miles west of town Wednesday night, June 8. The half-brother of the man who is the remainder of June and through July and August. Business will close promptly at 2 o'clock each Wednesday afternoon. Merchants are warned again at 6 to enable people to do their trading before supper. The Tekamah Journal is unable to observe the holiday on Wednesday, but will let the force off each Friday afternoon.

Sherriff Kellogg discovered a still hidden in a manure heap on the farm of Gus Hagemann, south of town Saturday, June 4. The liquor was enclosed in a rough box and then cunningly hidden. Hagemann was arrested when the still was located and received a sentence of thirty days in the county jail.

Filiger will hold a three-day baseball tournament on July 2, 3 and 4. The first two days will be devoted entirely to baseball, but the fourth will be observed by a picnic and other attractions.

N. P. Ploughmann of Laurel, received a patent last week on an ornamental staple that has been invented here. Ploughmann filed application for a patent two years ago. "A most grotesque tragedy occurred on Monday afternoon at the Harrington Herald," when Mrs. Wm. Peerman, aged 20 years, committed suicide by blowing out her brains with a shot gun at her home, west and one-half miles northeast of town. The sheriff was notified of the awful tragedy by one of the neighbors and he immediately called a coroner and undertaker drove at once to the scene, arriving about four o'clock in the afternoon. When they reached the place, they found Mrs. Peerman in the kitchen floor in a pool of blood. According to the husband's account of the shooting, he was in the field at the time and his wife and two babies and his mother were in the house. The senior Mrs. Peerman was in the bedroom with the babies, and the young woman was in the kitchen. The actual occurrence, of course, no one knows, but the circumstances indicate that the despondent and desperate woman, soon to become a mother again, took down the shot gun, slipped a shell into it, and, holding her head down close to the muzzle, pulled the trigger and blew the top of her head off. Her brains were scattered over the room, and the woman fell where she stood. So the quest was considered necessary by the officers, as the evidence of suicide was unmistakable, and the body was taken to Reiter's undertaking rooms. The funeral was held Thursday from the undertaker's and a service at the grave was conducted by Rev. S. A. Williams. Mrs. Peerman was only 20 years of age, and her husband is 45. They were renters who had come from Iowa three years ago. Mrs. Peerman was the mother of two babies, one two years old and the other, eight months, and she was in poor health.

destiny of her neighbors, the poor woman who committed suicide on Monday was unhappy and despondent, and appeared to be greatly worried. She is the same woman who left her baby at the Walkup a few days ago, and hired a car and drove out into the country. She seemed at that time to be much distraught and agitated, and it is supposed that her ill health, worry and despondency were the cause of her rash deed. Mrs. Peerman's girlhood home was in Arkansas, where her parents now live. She also had a brother and sister in Kansas City.

The Methodist conference was granted a clear title to the church property in Hastings following a long and bitter court case at that place last week. Some time ago the Methodist and Presbyterians united to form a new Congregational church which occupied the property formerly held by the two Methodists. The Congregationalists had secured a title which had expired. The Methodist conference, headed by Rev. E. J. T. Connelly, had the title quitted and then demanded that the sum to be loaned. Refusal to pay any such sum led to the court battle.

This was followed by a song by the faculty. His rich baritone voice, particularly pleasing. President Coit and Miss Elsie Ford Piper each gave an address of welcome. Prof. H. B. Britell talked on "The Normal School and Northeast Nebraska." The program closed with a violin solo by Prof. W. C. Hunter. Both Prof. Hunter and Prof. Lucas responded to an encore.

Father Flanagan's Boys Coming. Father Flanagan's boys of Omaha will be in Wayne, June 17, at the opera house.

The boys' program here will be of special interest, for it includes several vocal selections by the boys so-called, as well as addresses by the "little boy orators." There will be choruses and recitations coupled with many other numbers—all by the boys. A three-reel moving picture will be a feature of the entertainment. It is hoped that all the residents of this community will get on hand to welcome the boys and to show their appreciation for the splendid efforts of the juvenile performers.

Father Flanagan's home is the only one of its kind in the country, for it is open to all boys regardless of race and color.

During the short space of time this home has been operating, about three and one-half years, it has received over 1,200 boys and their efforts have been without funds or families. Twenty-one little fellows have been sent from our city with only tags on their coats directing them to the home. Yet these little fellows have developed into manly young men and noble real American citizens.

During Wednesday night of last week Sioux City was visited by a most ferocious hail and rain storm, which broke out windows, crushed through roofs and damaged the residences and business houses. The Journal places the damage by broken glass and spoiled goods at $10,000. The hail stones are reported as being ten inches in circumference, which part of the storm seemed to be gotten up for the special benefit of Sioux City, no hail falling for half a mile from the corporation in any direction. Use Doan's Kidney Pills for weak kidneys—the remedy recommended by your friends and neighbors. Ask your neighbor! "A number of years ago I had occasion to use Doan's Kidney Pills and I found them to be all that is claimed for them. There was a constant dull, nagging ache across the small of my back which at times made it difficult to bend over or lift anything of much weight. I had read of Doan's Kidney Pills helping others and was sure they would help me. After using a few I was much better in every way. One box of Doan's was all I needed as I took them in time and I have had no signs of backache since. This proved to me that Doan's are sure a reliable medicine." Price—60c at all dealers.
