

MILITARY FUNERAL HERE LAST SUNDAY

The Honor Paid to Memory of Edward Mueller, who was killed in Action in France.

FLAGS HUNG AT HALF MAST

Sermon by Rev. H. A. Teckhaus Services Conducted Under Auspices of American Legion.

The funeral of Edward Frederick Mueller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Mueller of Sioux City, Iowa, was held at the Evangelical Lutheran church in Wayne Saturday afternoon.

Flags were hung at half mast about forty legion men in uniform accompanied the body to the church and to the cemetery where the American Legion conducted the services.

Edward Frederick Mueller was born in Buffalo, N. Y., August 18, 1892. He was brought by his parents to Wayne, Iowa, in 1900, and died for his country in action in the battle and drive of Housekeeping Messengers Argonne Oct. 9, 1918, at the age of 26 years, 2 months and 1 day.

He started for Wayne, Neb., Oct. 2, 1918, for Camp Funston where he was in training about a month and was then sent to Camp Dodge at Des Moines, N. M., and remained there until June 29, 1919, when he was transferred to Camp Sherman, Ohio, and was sent to Camp Merritt, N. J., for overseas, and on June 29, 1919, he was sent to Camp Merritt, N. J., and stayed at that place two days. He landed at Tilbury, England, crossed the channel and arrived in Cherbourg, France, on July 1, 1919, and then went on to St. Agon to await further orders.

He was inducted into the 122nd Inf., 32nd Division, while on duty fighting on the Marne near Chateau Thierry and went to the front August 1, 1918, where he was killed in action in the Soissons sector and was active in the battle of Juvigny Soissons. He was sent to Rest camp at Susan Court, France, where he was moved to the Meuse Argonne sector and went into action August 22, 1918, in the Argonne forest where he was killed in action in the battle of Romagne Forest, Sept. 19, 1918. Out of his company of 19 that were left only 10 were returned. But through all the hardships he never lost his sunny disposition nor complained.

DANIEL M. MANIGAL IS WINNER IN U. S. COURT

Wayne Attorneys Establish Complete Defense Against Suit.

Norfolk Daily News, Sept. 21. The case of the Johnson Farm Loan company against Daniel McManigal, a local expert of Wayne, is now on trial. The loan company which is located at Fairfax, S. D., is suing McManigal for payment on a note amounting to more than $75,000. The defense is endeavoring to show fraud in the securing of the signature of the note signed by Ed. McManigal, the winner.

The return's badge, upon the stand, was being shown during the morning session. He stated that he was 79 years old and lived at Wayne. A contract which showed that originally about $100,000 was borrowed through the loan company was introduced by the plaintiff to show the method of taking the money in a transaction for which the defense claims its responsibility.

P. S. Berry and Daniel McManigal returned from Norfolk this morning, and report that the jury decided in favor of the defendant.

DECREASE IN RAILROAD TRAVEL TO S. C. FAIR

Special Trains Do Not Claim Large Crowd—Comparison with 1920.

The number of passengers to Sioux City interstate fair was far below expectations. Yesterday's special passenger train from Norfolk on the Norfolk-Sioux City line both morning and evening trips was well lighted. The special train was provided with nine extra coaches but would have been sufficient to accommodate the traffic. The record shows a total of 149 passengers who took advantage of the special trains and the special rates. Fifty-seven of these tickets were sold at the Wayne depot compared with 114 sold on the special day in 1920. Other comparisons show a like difference in the amount of fare received. A first-class three days of the fair during one year show the following result: 490 third day, 111 second day, 40 third day, 121 for 1921, first day, second day, 5; third day, 8. The totals for the two years including the first day are: 1920, a fair compare as a total of 70.

Grain Shipments Are Beginning to Move

Traight movements this week indicate a sharp turn in the corn and oats, is beginning to move. An average of two cars a day are going out of Wayne. Yearling cattle are being shipped from the city to Omaha centers are coming into Wayne to the local stock men. These cattle are fed rough stuff and saved for winter marketing. Usually between a car and a half of grain and stock is shipped in for immediate fattening, but this change seems prevalent this year. The shipping in of older stock will probably follow.

Shipments to markets are light this week. Out of Wayne yards, two cars have been shipped to Sioux City since September 15. Old city and soft coal are arriving daily at the Wayne station. Parties in town who stock large supplies of potatoes for winter consumption are expecting shipments in a short time from foreign potato fields.

Derailed Engine on Railroad Yesterday

The engine of passenger train No. 4, running between Omaha and Emerson, was derailed Wednesday morning on the Biggs siding, south of Lincoln. The accident was caused by the opening of the switch by the brake rod of the freight which immediately preceded the passenger. The west end switch caught between the switch points so the switch was opened. No one was injured when the engine was derailed and with the loss of the engine the wreck was righted within two hours. This derailed caused delay of the train so that the Omaha morning mail did not reach Wayne until evening.

As to Selling Land.
(Health)
Do not permit yourself to be deceived by the prating of any hanger of gloom or howler of calamity to the extent that you will sacrifice any Nebraska land that you may be the owner of at a price below what it has been selling for of recent years. Nebraska farm lands are a safe, sure investment today—as they have always been, and the present is a good time to buy and by the same sign, a poor time to sell. Just now money is scarce and hard to get, and some farm products are selling for less than the cost of production. However, the fact that this condition cannot prevail for long should not be lost sight of, and when conditions do change the price of land in the central west will go higher than it ever has before.

Railroads Add Men.
Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 16.—Increasing business has compelled the railroads doing business in Nebraska to increase their forces in the mechanical departments. The Burlington railroad will put on 550 men at once to take care of the mechanical work that has become necessary since the movement of crops increased traffic. Over 100 locomotive repair mechanics will be added at the big central shops at Havlock. Other railroads in the state have increased their forces. With the increase of traffic it will also be necessary to take on men in other departments.

Leaves Moving Train Hurt.
Grand Island, Neb., Sept. 16.—Jerome Jenkins, 38, fell or jumped from a moving train near here under the impression that it was Ogden, and that he wanted to get off. En route from the home of his daughter at Riverdale, that of his son at Howell, Mich., he says that some men had an electric rigging in a seat near him, with the purpose of "shaking them up." He also wanted to get away from that. Evidently he was badly confused mentally at the time. A sister at Gaines, Mich., has been notified. He leaves for that city today.

IS YOUR BARN SAVING YOUR PROFITS?

C Modern manufacturers pay large salaries to efficiency experts whose duty is to look their eyes open for needless expenses and to stop the leakage of profits. C On the farm you must be your own efficiency expert. C A leaky roof may ruin your hay lot. A broken down stall can injure your horses. A rotten, worn-out cow disease or break an animal's leg. A cold wind-swept barn is a bad place to house cattle. C When ignoring your profit and loss for the year, you will find these little things are sapping your profits. C Look over your barn's buildings, fences and sheds, and see if you aren't letting profits leak through with a little lumber and labor would stop. Then tell us what you want to do to stop this leakage, and we may be able to offer some suggestions. We will tell you what the materials for the repairs will cost. C Same rainy day when it is too wet to work in the fields and the help is idle, you can set to work repairing your barn and other buildings.

Come in and talk it over now.

UNCLE WALT
The Past Philosopher.

The Back Seat.
I often ride with Stephen Stues, in his green super-eight; it was a large and powerful bus, and strictly up to date, and was admired by every cuss who marked its queer-gait. I do not like to hear or know if it doesn't seem refined; but I would say every blade of grass is growing, in the way you turn your head to talk with those who sit behind.

The man who drives a motor car always looks ahead, and knows just where the culverts are, and also the wadlode road, or he may discuss, with a jab, and leave us jingling down the road. The seat behind would feel much better too, if you would keep your feeble mind on what you have to do, and make your foot in safety gear, until this fauna is through.

But Steve kept turning round to say his bright and witty things, and ran like a load of hay, and he hated all the springs; they took us home one day, in plaster casts and slings. And foolish Stephen Stues is the sort of all 'em sorts of all 'em. He landed squarely in the dirt with his body-head, and ruined his tweed-dollar shirt, all striped with green and red. And as I and to that poor tool, I say to every ceter: When you are driving, on the road keep all your glances bent, or your may soon have your abode beneath a monument.

The New Driver.
I said to James Augustus Barr, when first he bought himself a car, "shan streets where crowds are thick; hunt of some thoughtfulness, and then pound your maddening boat until you've learned the trick." The half-back driver is a front, and many priceless lives are lost for his boasted sake; emergency cases arise also, and then he steps down on the gas when he should use the brake. I hear you, J. Augustus Barr, to keep off Main street with your car, until you've learned to drive; because of drivers brash and rash to that they sleep beneath the dew, who still should be alive.

But James Augustus is above who knows it all, and then some more, and talks in a crowd with a gleam in his eye. He beat along, among the Main street shopping throng, and crippled seven guys. And of the seven five will sue him for the most; they feel dew for sundry broken limbs, and two in righteous wrath have said that they will punch the driver's head, and then both will sue him for the same. Certainly a shame that boos, before we've learned the game, may drive through crowded marts; the cops won't sue such a fellow for the same; straightway jail them over night, and confiscate their carts.

Deliberation.
The things we do in haste make haste and conscience sore; rash impulse causes half the trouble that prudent men do. Like an arm-helve the money flies, because the joyous skate won't ask himself, "Now, is it wise this purchase?" (tempted) Oh, shall I lose this bundle lank, I've earned by labors hard, or put it safely in the bank, where it will be safe and sound, and won't sit down and view his wad, and think how much it cost, the strain that bends his shoulder, and the efforts that would exhaust. He won't call sin, his wife and aunt, their counsel wise to win; he'd think it was some sort of plan, if these girls butter-in. Oh, oftentimes I am impelled to seek the marts of trade where bargain counter sales are held, and love the coin I handle. But long ago I made a rule to think such yearnings o'er; and in a day said yeacings o'er, and I am sane once more. Today I'd buy the car that flies over gasping villages through; tomorrow morn I'll realize that my old boat will do. It's impulse leads the boys astray; the rash and thoughtless should buy himself a bale of hay, and sit on it, and think. And he should think how foolish 'tis to waste the hard-earned bones while molly spenders round him, whiz, and yonder paper groans.

Useless Knowledge.
With many vain and useless things my memory is stored; I know the histories of kings, and of the lands they bored; I know of hangings on earth four centuries ago; if any fact has little worth, that fact I'm sure to know. But when my motor car breaks down, and will no longer cheer, and I am forty miles from town, I don't know what to do. I lift the hood and view the works, and gaze at things always new. And he knows of ancient Turks won't help me worth a cent. And I am versed in all the lore that pleased the ancient Greeks; but that can't make my head less sore—the carburetor leaks. And I can stand on end and quote the poets by the hour but I can't figure when my boat is short of all its power. My neighbor, Johnson, never reads, no poets does he know; but when he plants his garden seeds the named things always grow. And he has lettuce prunes and kraut, and squash, and sparrow-grass; and all that I can raise is gourd, which isn't garden stuff. The Johnson's chicks are always lay, their output keeps him strong, while my old hens eat corn and hay; and give their eggs to me. I know a million useless facts concerning long dead kings, and I have air a million tracts discussing hot air things; but these things do not help, unless, when I am in a tuss, and there are moments when I wish I knew a whole lot less.

Hours of Despair.
I sometimes think of suicide, with guns or ropes or axes, for I admit I'm tired by all these modern axes. The moisture beads upon my brow, for 'life seems faint' and 'spiteful' show this so many faces; and all of them are as frightful. It is with dark and gloomy frown I pen my rhythmic rhapsody; assessors do me over town and church one through the alleys. I think about the good old times, and pray for their returning; while 'mud' could bring about the times that best be was coming. I used to walk the village square, before the war befell us and flash my bundle in the air, to make my neighbors jealous. And that's a comfort; no man knows in these harsh times of taxes; no voter will fix wd dis-close 't wages, instead of wages. I'm tired by city, county, state, and by the hungry nation; and every day I send a crate of kopeks to the station. And when I think of my life is still, my timber hushed forever, and I lie prone, by taxes killed, and done with all endeavor, the tax collectors tell me that I'm a swine; 'cause they'll trade, and with the law's assistance, strive to bear away my bundle. Oh, that's the meanest tax of all, as far as I'm concerned; that will approach the tier and pull, and rob a weeping widow. They tax us roundly while we live, and bring us rubbers, and all the tax-payers should give a corpse a real vacation.

Better Days.
When young I worried under the hills that children grow; my culic was a wonder, I had nine nuggets of or so. Then grandma made me swallow a stoup of castor oil; and life seemed vain and hollow, a thing of tears and all. If I should ever be a doctor, I would remedy was worse; the taste of oil of castor long weeks could not dispense. Then all our pills and jottons refused to ever digest, and then I stirred up emotions this age can't realize. Then every ailing critter was doomed to drink a tea made up of herbs as bitter as the words can be. But setepo is a dandy, its triumphs never stop; our pills are now like candy, our biters taste like pop. They used to hold our noses and put our jaws part, to pour down noxious doses designed to break—the heart. The old time methods savored for martyrs at the stake, but now our dose is flavored like lemon on a cake. And thus the world grows brighter in big old little ways, our burdens are now lighter, and summer days. My heart is light and tuneful, and full of glee I am, as I consume a spoonful of dope that tastes like jam.

Not For a Special Session.
Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 22.—Governor Kerkive is alleged to hold a different idea from the members of the state commission in the matter of proposed extra sessions of the Nebraska legislature. The governor has not yet given any indications that he intends to comply with the request of the members of the legislature to call a special session for the purpose of repealing duplicate laws passed by the 1919 legislature. The commission has urged speedy action because it alleges that it must complete its work soon.

It is reported that if the government should feel the demand he would not call an extra session until the end of the year, and that would be too late to help the statute commission. It has been indicated that the idea of the chief executive of an extra session would be one called to repeal any statute that may want to wipe off the books, instead of one to repeal certain laws to be specified in the call.

A False Alarm.
Norfolk, Neb., Sept. 16.—Answering a frantic summons for police protection in the residential district of the city, Acting Chief of Police Finkhouse, wishing faster locomotion, hailed a taxicab and made a dash for the scene.

Arriving at the house, saturated by rain after leaving the cab deserted of a block away, Chief Finkhouse made a reconnaissance and found two women in one room, one with a huge club in her hand and the other elaborately armed, fixedly staring into the entrance of the front door. "In there," one of the women managed to say, Chief Finkhouse says, "there is an intoxicated man."

The chief entered and soon came out with a blinking, startled small water spaniel dog. Later the chief recognized it as that belonging to a member of the city fire force. The chief is undecided whether it was a frame-up.

Cell Breakers Arrested.
O'Neill, Neb., Sept. 16.—Robert and Maynard Bailey, escaped prisoners from jail at Albany, Mo., were arrested for auto stealing here, arrested by Sheriff Duffy at Emmet last night and brought here. They were running a garage at Emmet when their arrest was being brought into the Standard oil station here and at Atkinson and the Mutual oil station at Atkinson. Marvel of Loop Antenna.
New York World: With a one-meter loop antenna and a special wave-length receiving set, remarkable results have been obtained of late in Paris says the Scientific American. Even transmitters of low power have been heard some 5,000 miles away under conditions by no means ideal. In fact, messages have been recorded on photographic tape at times when commercial radio companies were greatly troubled with static. The twelve tubes employed for the receiver serve to detect, amplify and even filter the signals so that static and other parasitic disturbances are weeded out.

Bacteria Thrive on Ice.
New York World: It has long been known that no degree of cold yet attained will kill bacteria. Yet it might be supposed that they must at least be dormant when imbedded in eternal ice. Yet Dr. A. L. McLane found them alive and active in the ice many feet below the surface in the antarctic expedition conducted by Sir Douglas Wawson in 1911-1914.

Peace Has Its Problems.

Some people can stand a good deal of handling without compunction of conscience or injury to health.

Complaint is made by some people against Governor McKelvie on the ground that he is in favor of high salaries and high taxes. Others complain that he is unnecessarily squeezing down salaries and otherwise curtailing expenses. The contention of grounds is likely to draw a lot of support to him.

Farm renters complain that in a good many instances land has not come down, and that they can't pay the old prices for farms with farm products in view. The general level of farm prices and the fluctuating values placed on farm products, it has been suggested, the transfer of shares is the way to be absolutely fair to all concerned.

Don't lose confidence in other people if you doubt the wisdom of less confidence in you. While it is often necessary to regard another with discreet caution, it is not necessary nor advisable to cultivate general suspicion and distrust. It hurts the one who does the cultivating and betrayal of confidence does not happen often enough to justify it.

While the funeral cortege bearing an American flag, moved along the streets of Wayne toward Greenwood cemetery Sunday, some witnesses stood up and uncovered their heads. This is eminently the proper thing to do. It is due respect for all that the stars and stripes mean and sign of respect to one's feet and off one's hat when the flag is seen in any line of march.

Snobishness is not an evidence of refinement. It is evidence of ignorance, dwarfed soul and bald conceit. Let one cultivate decency in all things, kindness and charity; let one develop the habits of industry and useful production, having in mind service to society quite as much as service to self, and he will have all time for inclination to understand as a snob.

If congress would appropriate small sums of money for government buildings in towns like Wayne, more towns needing the improvement could be supplied, and the public treasury would not be severely taxed. The trouble is that when a town goes after a federal building, it demands more than it needs, and as a result it usually gets nothing. Wayne needs a federal building, and its wants could be adequately served by a comparatively inexpensive structure.

Perfect understanding exists between the Ku Klux Klan and the Nebraska Investment Chancellor. Averly issued a statement that membership in the Klan by any student would be considered ground for instant dismissal from the university. The Klan's committee followed with a declaration that no university student would be admitted to membership. So there will be no quarrel over student membership. Authorities are moving in the direction of grabbing the organization and putting it out of business. A Mississippi congressman has introduced a resolution branding the Ku Klux Klan as "un-American," and adding that it is in the interest of the United States to prevent the granting of franchises being charged with unlawful seizure, abduction, trial and punishment of certain free citizens and residents of the United States.

A cartoon in the Nebraska Farmer and reproduced in the Literary Digest, shows the city laboring man deriving larger cash returns from eight hours' work with no risk than the farmer from sixteen hours' work with no risk. The cartoon says that the people who would make us work that the interests of union labor and those of the farmer are identical. It is true that the interests of the cities is important to create buying power for farm products, but it is also true that excessive wages and shorter hours increase costs for things a farmer wants to buy. Anything that will help the country will help all lines of endeavor, but any condition, such as the one given, which advances to labor unions will work hardship on farming communities, and it is not reasonable to expect wages and the city laborer to help organize a movement against themselves.

WASTE OF PUBLIC FUNDS

Appropriation of $1,000,000 for the Lincoln Journal of recent date, emphasizing an example of inexcusable governmental extravagance in the building and maintaining of Fort D. A. Russell near Cheyenne, Wyo., we are invited to suggest a remedy for such abuse of political power. A remedy is easier to suggest than to realize. We would say that the remedy lies in large part in an educated and quickened conscience—a little more practical altruism and less of the selfish spirit which would profit without yielding anything in return. The conscience is often so elastic and so agreeable to its possessor that it easily finds excuses for a doubtful policy or a proposition that serves a selfish interest.

Getting back to the Journal correspondent's criticism: It seems that Fort Russell is an elaborately built and luxuriously finished place of sufficient capacity and equipment to accommodate from twelve to fifteen thousand soldiers. The whole plant is provided with "water, sewer, and lighting facilities, posts, stores and warehouses, and everything needed to care for a large soldier population," so the report says. But it appears no soldiers are there, never have been in any considerable number and probably never will be. The fort with its costly buildings and furnishings is a creature of Wyoming politics. The problem is to prevent the Wyoming delegation in congress from diverting millions from the federal treasury for an enterprise that does not serve any sensible purpose, but merely helps support the political career of the state.

Instead of using public money for unnecessary investment, as for the Wyoming fort, society would be better and more permanently served by appropriations to develop the natural resources of Wyoming—mining, oil production and an extension of irrigating projects. These would contribute valuable production and return in public benefits the worth of appropriations.

It would seem that other delegations in congress should familiarize themselves with the facts, and help Cheyenne to pry herself loose from chronic political mawkishness, help her build through enforced denial, on a more wholesome foundation, and not longer rest on the ambition to laide out of the public treasury funds that give only passing benefit to self.

While the Cheyenne case is a glaring example, it is not the only one that illustrates the abuse of public money, should be restricted. Federal and state institutions seeking appropriations, will not often hesitate to ask for more money than is needed. Useless appropriations hamper worthy purposes. A public institution whose value to society is decreasing, and whose reason of existence is political pull, have too much money to the sacrifice of another whose demands are legitimately greater. Money devoted to such a needless channel as the Wyoming fort could be used to harness the waters of the Niobrara and other Nebraska rivers, which is a boon it would prove to society in the saving of fuel. We should not wait for necessity to kick us into the practice of such manifest economy. Cheyenne should not wait for an aroused outside public conscience to force it to make a living for itself and not depend on federal gifts that are obviously misused.

RECENT LEGISLATION.

Washington correspondence in the Brooklyn Eagle states that practically every constructive act of congress during four and one-half months has been in the interest of farming communities, which leads the New York Journal of Commerce to object on the ground of class legislation. This is effectively answered by Wallace's Farmer in the following paragraphs:

"In the first place, one-third of the population of the United States actually live on farms, and in the second place the productivity and buying power of this one-third of our population determines more than any other one thing the prosperity of the remaining two-thirds of our population. Fundamentally, the only question that arises is whether or not it really will increase the productivity and buying power of the farmer. If it does, it is in the interest of the whole of the people in the cities as much as it will the farmers.

Agricultural legislation never will be "class legislation." It may be unwise legislation which will not enable the farmers to increase their productivity or to buy their power and it may be legislation designed to keep certain politicians in power, without benefiting the farmers. But any legislation which actually does benefit the farmer can not be "class legislation," for it will benefit the whole nation as well."

TOUCHING ARBUCKLE CASE.

"Billy" Sunday disapproves us in his reference to the Arbuckle case, as quoted in an editorial in the Sunday paper. He is correct in that Sunday blames "booze" rather than Arbuckle for his crime and attaches equal responsibility to the dead girl. Then, too, she would have been "equally responsible," perhaps, but the charge of murder would be properly applied to Arbuckle, and the moral culpability would rest upon his soul.

What's the use of blaming anyone or anything else?"

"Booze" in Arbuckle's case. The institution of private property in another. The institution of monogamous marriage in another. The love of power in another. The dread of detection and punishment in another. What is it that drives men to sin and crime? Hunger, cold, lust, greed, fear, ambition, revenge—then, too, she would have been "equally responsible," perhaps, but the charge of murder would be properly applied to Arbuckle, and the moral culpability would rest upon his soul.

"Booze was responsible for it all; what's the use of blaming anyone or anything else?"

Arbuckle case, let us quote a few paragraphs from the World-Herald's editorial criticisms of "Billy" Sunday's opinions:

"She was equally responsible with him for what happened." It may be so. But presuming she had placed a gun in his hand and had urged him to kill her and he had killed her. Then, too, she would have been "equally responsible," perhaps, but the charge of murder would be properly applied to Arbuckle, and the moral culpability would rest upon his soul.

human progress, not to mention the Christian creed of which Billy Sunday is a preacher? According to that theory a just God has placed us in a world wherein we are surrounded by evil and assailed by temptation. The righteous man, who inherits His kingdom, is he who is tempted and overcomes temptation. He chooses, of his own free will, admonished by conscience, his mentor, and his god rather than the bad. According as he chooses he is rewarded or punished.

"Did not Arbuckle know right from wrong? Had he not the supreme privilege of a free choice? Had he not a conscience to guide him?"

If "booze" was to blame, what of him who unlawfully provided it, for himself and for his guests, knowing and intending the effect it would have alike on them and on himself?"

Report of Audit of City of Wayne, Nebraska

August 25, 1921. Hon. Mayor and City Council, Wayne, Neb., Gentlemen: As per instructions I have made an examination of the books and records of the City of Wayne, Neb. for the fiscal year ended May 3, 1921, and submit my report herewith.

I found the records in the various offices accurately kept as to total receipts and expenditures, but no records were kept either in the city treasurer's office, on the city clerk's office showing the actual sources of receipts or disbursements.

There is no available record from which I could determine the value or investment in your light and water plant.

No record from which I could compile a classified statement of miscellaneous receipts, such as occupation tax, dog taxes, fines, licenses, etc.

Would recommend that an inventory be taken of the close of the present year of the light and water plant and equipment. Same to include all under ground pipes, poles and transmission of machinery, etc., all to be inventoried and the final totals to be entered in the city clerk's general ledger as the value of the property and equipment.

The miles of underground mains can be furnished by your city engineer, and the following items should be shown and valued separately in the inventory: Real estate, buildings, water pipes, meters, plant, machinery, poles, transmission wire, tools, etc.

I have ordered the books for the city treasurer and city clerk and instructed them fully in regard to their use. The city clerk will open a consumer's ledger for the sale of light, heat and power and miscellaneous, also the same kind of ledger for the water consumer's record.

By so doing you will be able to tell at any time desired the gross receipts classified by your light and water plant, and will have a permanent record. He will also open a classified cash journal for the light and water plant which will show all the expenses of the plant classified under their proper headings.

In conclusion I wish to extend my thanks to the city clerk and city treasurer for courtesy extended and assistance given me.

Respectfully submitted, W. F. Chambers, Public Accountant.

Tracy Kohl is With Relief Commission

Tracy Kohl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip H. Kohl of Wayne, having finished his schooling at Oxford, England, is now continuing his education with the American relief administration headquarters at Vienna, Austria. The administration is under the direction of Secretary Hoover, and is said to be a very powerful and effective organization.

The following excerpt from letters written by the young man to his home folks will be read with interest.

"June 18.—By the time this reaches you, I will have completed a year at Oxford and ended my scholastic education. Next I will have 'swank', signed and delivered' their diploma in economics and political science. Last week-end have been in London. Beginning next Monday are the continuation exercises. The past few days I have been trying to collect myself and things to get ready for the next grand shift. Needless to say, I had been a grand and wonderful fellow. Last week-end the American club, some 150 men, gave a dinner to the 'Old Men' who were 'going back' this year, and I was one of the most important members. It is a very important event. I also told you, did I not, that I had become a member of the 'Grove' club, the committee of Tory club of Oxford. There are only two other American men who are members, but it gives one an insight into contact with that kind of English."

"The week-end I just spent in London very interesting most of the time I spent with the Mitchell family. Mr. Mitchell is with the Anglo-Russian Co. here who are dealing in oil and other commodities. Last Saturday they took me out to see the American Polo team play one of its championship games at the Graveney club in London. At the present writing I am rooming here with this Graveney boy from California. He has been a mighty busy man for some weeks because he is the leading tennis champion of Oxford and has been running all over England playing tennis—Sunday last with the Duke of York, the king's second son. They are to play the finals in London here today."

"The Graveney family from New York, and he wants me to spend the next two weeks with him here in England, and then on to Norway and Sweden for the wedding of his fraternity brother of mine who wants me to be one of his ushers. They talk when the wedding is to be in Gotzenberg and one of the 'beautiful spots of that country'."

"The 'Communion week parties' they have started here, and the town is full of English girls—and their chaperones. Every now and then one sees an American girl among the crowd and you surely can tell the difference. They take the eye of the crowd for style and 'swank'."

July 21.—Left London about the 17th, and making a fast 'loop' through England and Scotland with this American who owns a motorcycle. Wonderful and interesting trip. We are traveling nicely this way. Left Oxford last Friday and took in all the interesting places on the way north to Cambridge, then through Lincoln to see the famous Lincoln cathedral, the bishop of which founded Oxford college in 1457. Then on to Dorchester that night and the next day (Sunday) we visited the York minister, another great cathedral. Then on to Durham which has the most beautiful Norman cathedral in all England. And it is a wonder. We spent a whole morning there and then hurried on up to Newcastle. The trip from there on up to Glasgow was certainly glorified. The weather all the way. Specter a night in Inverness (from which I sent Mary, some feather trimmings from the famous Scotch goods and the 'feather' down the Caledonian canal to Fort Williams. From there to Glasgow and then back to England. On the way I had a storm we had heard frost—can you imagine it? The air here is wonderfully bracing and nature seems to be no night at all. Not as we know it—the twilight merely fades into the dawn. I am writing this now on my knee. I sit in the wicker and it is delightful at 11 P. M."

"I had to do some fast moving to get up to Gotzenberg for the wedding. I had to get away just in time for the first London—London things seen from then on. To make a long story short, I can say it was most amusing and unexpected trip. I met and was entertained by some of the oldest and best people in the world. In Sweden I hope to see truer of greater hospitality. They couldn't do enough for us. And once again I was impressed with the high regard most of the continental people have for the Americans. The bride and bridegroom are coming to America in the next few days. Will live at Steamboat Springs, Colo."

"I was successful in getting the Danish, German and Austrian 'Vests' on paper and the leaving soon for Copenhagen, Denmark—and then from there to Vienna via Hamburg. Everyone seems to appreciate business is dull now in selling foreign securities but The National City Co. took for some change. London is the only office at present in the British Isles. They want to expand into Ireland, Wales, Scotland and other good money and business centers if possible. That will mean some expansion in London and they think will necessitate someone to keep the contact between these branches and the London office."

"An American who is still here at Oxford wants me to join him in working for these next few months with the Hoover American Relief association at Vienna. And let me tell you that the consensus of all Europeans here today is that there is no better organization on the continent. Their policies in central Europe almost make and unmake kingdoms. And any American business man—big or little—who comes over this way always uses the American Relief association. It is a tremendous organization doing an unexcelled and wonderful work. I have been offered a chance to work with it, and think I shall take advantage of it."

Schwens-Young. Cecil J. Schwens and Miss Geraldine Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Young of Coleridge were married at the home of the bride's parents, Tuesday, September 20. Miss Young attended the State Normal at Wayne and has been here several years in this part of the state. Mr. and Mrs. Schwens, accompanied by a few friends and relatives drove from Coleridge Tuesday afternoon to take the train. They expect to take a trip to various Colorado points. They will be home Wednesday afternoon. Their friends in the vicinity of Hartington and Coleridge.

People Inspect Plant of Telephone Company

The Northwestern Bell Telephone company held open house at the local office Friday and Saturday of last week and many from the town and country took advantage of the opportunity to inspect the work of a telephone office.

There are three departments in the local telephone office, the business office, the repair department and the office where the actual work of answering and connecting parties takes place.

In the business office in Wayne, this account is kept, not only of the local exchanges of thirty-three towns in this district. Records are very complete and exact. Each subscriber of the local exchange has a card in which recorded all the necessary data about his telephone. Records are kept of installation, removal and repair of all phones. These records show at any time the number of phones in the community. During the past year the local office has made a net gain of fifteen telephones. Records are kept daily of the returns from the pay stations in towns located in the central office and the town having the central office. The business office has the keeping of all the recording and accounts for the towns in the district, the settling of invoices and general management of the local exchange. R. S. Krause has been manager in the local office but has recently received orders and returned to Columbus. His successor, O. L. Randall comes from West Point and is now working with Mr. Krause before being acquainted with the situation at the local office.

In the department of repair and upkeep, Will Padue, is the manager. Here the tall lines come in for most every morning and if there is any complaint from any patron the trouble can be first located from the local office by testing the individual phone. If wires are crossed at any point the trouble can be investigated by the volunteer and the spot located within a mile. The power for telephone service is received from batteries located at the office. These batteries are charged daily by a generator, which the company has installed in the repair department. Two cables, containing 1600 wires each, connect the office and the switch board has a capacity of 600 phones.

In the switch-board room where the actual work is done there are three local boards and three toll boards, though all are not in use all the time. The number of operators at work depends on the hour and time of day. The busiest times of day are in the morning when business men are transacting their affairs and immediately after school at night. Sunday is not such a busy day as the other days of the week when much business is transacted.

The local long distance operator has to take charge of all calls not only from local patrons but also from neighboring towns and villages through this station. An accurate system is employed in caring for long distance calls, recording the number of calls and the amount of call. The operator has a clock near at hand on her desk which has a mechanism attached by which the length of time the call took can be stamped on the card and saved for reference. An automatic phone has been installed and as soon as the change is made in the Sioux City office, the Wayne operator can call Sioux City people who have the automatic phone without making a call through the Sioux City operator as is now necessary.

It is an interesting and enlightening experience to see how the local calls are handled. An operator sitting at one board, on which are most of the numbers of the local exchange, can reach all the numbers by reaching to the right or left to the adjoining boards. When the receiver of any number is taken down, the corresponding number at the board falls into place and the operator opens up the connection by reaching to the right or left to the number she can plug in the hole corresponding to the number wanted and ring the party. As soon as the radio points, they will be home Wednesday afternoon. Their friends in the vicinity of Hartington and Coleridge.

A personal of the girls who work at the local board might be interesting to you. When they are called, Miss Anna Jacob is head operator, supervising the work of the girls, training new operators and acting as information Miss Belle Fox is chief operator and long distance operator at night. Miss Daisy Fox is a night operator and also works part of the day. Miss Gladys Fox is the long distance operator. Other operators at the local boards are Miss Gladys Myers, Harriet West, Miss Eva McKim and Miss Rachel McKim.

An operator is on duty eight hours of the day and the work of operators on duty changes at different hours of the day. The work is exacting and it takes about a

The crop of small grain is light, but the prospect for corn was never more favorable. It is mostly out of the way of frost.
There has been a large amount of sorghum cane raised this season. I am surprised that there is no more of it raised than ever has been. It is one of the surest crops that can be raised. It saves thousands of dollars from going out of our country for sugars and syrup that it all more or less adulterated, and it could be made a large source of revenue, if proper attention were given to the raising and manufacturing of it into sugar and syrup. It is safe against grasshoppers, and the seed is worth nearly as much for feed as corn.

L. T. Hill has three acres of the early amber cane that looks very fine. That is the only kind that will make sugar profitably.
I understand that arrangements are being made for a grove meeting somewhere on Iowa bottom, the services to be conducted by the Rev. Silas Wakefield. He is a gentleman of superior talent, is a very fine and eloquent speaker, and never fails to interest an audience with his rare knowledge of the scriptures, and his easy and simple manner of presenting his views.

Is there to be an election this fall? We don't know of any candidates. Rattle them out, and let's see them.

Shaping the Conference.
Washington Post: There is now a pressing need that the governments seem to converge in Washington are now exchanging communications of the utmost importance. The views now being developed are shaping the conference. If the preliminary discussions are successful, the conference will be successful. If these discussions take an unfavorable turn, or if the governments reach a deadlock on the question whether certain problems shall or shall not form a part of the agenda, then the conference cannot be expected to prove an entire success.

Lily Symbolizes Progress.
St. Paul Pioneer Press: There is every reason why the Lily should be congress' symbol. Our congressmen toil not, and the only things they spin are yarns.

Taking Joy Out of Life.
Pittsburgh Gazette: Democrats profess to believe the Washington conference will be a failure. There will be no joy in living for them if it isn't.

There is One Thing We Would Like to Know

In the light of everything that is sane, logical and reasonable, how can you afford to pass up the service we offer, and purchase where you get less. Personal service has been the big factor in building up the reputation we enjoy. We fully appreciate that when you need petroleum products you need them in a hurry—and we see that you get them in a hurry. No order too large or too small, and remember—prompt action is our motto.

Say: Boy! the world's all right, all we need is a little old-fashioned nerve and old-time honesty with sufficient grit, grace and gumption to apply same—in all our daily activities.

For your convenience and safety we have installed the free air service to the west of the station, where there is plenty of room and no danger from passing traffic. Drive in—blow up.

Maximum service gasolines and oils make a better motor, and keep your motor better. Drive in, let us attend to your motor fuel needs—you may then step on 'er with confidence.

Order to Show Cause. In The District Court of Wayne County, Nebraska. In the matter of the application of Frederick Brueckner, administrator, for license to Sell Real Estate. On this 12th day of September, 1921, Frederick Brueckner, administrator of the estate of August Brueckner, deceased, having presented his petition under oath, praying for license to sell a sufficient amount of the real estate of said August Brueckner, deceased, to bring the sum of $13,000.00, including the sale of the southwest quarter of section thirty (30), township twenty-five (25), north, range two (2), east of the 6th P. M., in Wayne County, Nebraska, for the payment of debts owed against said estate, and for mortgage incumbrance now due on the balance of the real estate of said deceased, and costs of administration, for the reason that there is no personal property in the possession of said Frederick Brueckner, administrator, belonging to said estate to pay said debts and costs.

It is therefore ordered that all persons interested in said estate appear before me at Chambers at the Court House in the City of Wayne in said county and state, on the 28th day of October, 1921, at the hour of 9 o'clock A. M., to show cause, if any there be, why the license should not be granted to said Frederick Brueckner, administrator, to sell the said southwest quarter of section thirty (30), township twenty-five (25), north, range two (2), east of the 6th P. M., in Wayne County, Nebraska, and so much of the real estate of said deceased, as shall be necessary to pay said debts and expenses.

It is further ordered that a copy of this order be served upon all persons interested in this estate by causing a copy to be published four successive weeks in the Wayne Herald, a newspaper, printed, published and of general circulation in said county of Wayne, Nebraska, to-wit: Amos A. Welch, s1511. Judge of the District Court.
