Conference Must Be Open.
Editor and Publisher: The people of America are going to demand the details of the deliberations of the statesmen who gather in Washington for the coming conference on the limitations of armaments. They are already making it plain that they do not want the details in the form of vain recitals after the meeting is over. The press is under obligation to supply not only the details of our international agreements, but the reasons that led to the final conclusions as well. For this reason the press of America must demand as its right a place at the council table as far as the American public.

C. E. Nevin, pastor of the Laurel Advocate, has left for San Francisco, enroute for Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands, where he will attend the annual convention of the national educational association. The United States' representatives have chartered a special boat for the occasion. During Editor Nevin's absence, the Laurel Advocate will be in charge of Chas. S. Harris who has until a recent date been editor of the Colorado Blade.

Laurel Advocate: Rev. T. C. Osborn, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Scottsbluff and at one time pastor of the Presbyterian church at Wayne, as a means of relieving the unemployment in the vicinity of Scottsbluff, has proposed that an auto road be built to the top of Scottsbluff overlooking the valley. He would have 500 people in Scottsbluff and 250 in Gering give a dime a day to pay the cost of the work. At the top, on the highest 100 acres in the state, he would have erected a building to house relics of historic men to be found in this region and to be a museum of Indian trophies. The view from the top of the bluff is magnificent and is said to be one of the finest in the country. To ascend now it is necessary to follow a steep trail and only a hardy climber can reach the summit.

The outcome of the telephone strike, which the United States' subscribers launched is uncertain. Subscribers voted to have the strike take effect October 1, but already some who ordered their phones out, have canceled the orders. About one-third of the subscribers have joined in the strike.

Agriculture Notes

To Help Potato Growers.
The temporary field station opened at Alliance, Neb., August 25, is among the first makeshift field stations established to assist producers and others in marketing the potato crop of western Nebraska. The office will operate during the heavy shipping season or until about November 15. During this period daily reports will be issued showing primary destinations, shipments for the country by state, shipping point conditions and prices in the six important producing sections and surplus quantities. Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago, and Omaha. The station is one of many established by the Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture at various important producing sections throughout the country during the past few seasons. Through the daily reports issued at the stations, producers and shippers are able to market their crops to better advantage.

On Corn Belt Farms.
Data gathered by the United States Department of Agriculture regarding the daily gain and the amount of feed and pasture consumed by 34,394 steers fattened on Corn Belt farms during the last two winters, are of value to beef producers as an indication of how much feed is required on the average Corn Belt farm to produce 100 pounds of gain.

The average weight of all the cattle at the start of the feeding period was 786 pounds, while the final weight was 1,070 pounds, the gain amounting to 284 pounds in a period of 174 days. The average quantity of feed consumed for 100 pounds of gain was 680 pounds of grain, 62 pounds of commercial concentrates, 391 pounds of dry roughage such as hay and corn fodder, 863 pounds of silage, and the equivalent of 20 days of pasturage.

In addition to these cooperative feeding trials with cattlemen in Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, and Wisconsin, the United States Department of Agriculture is conducting investigations in southwestern Wisconsin to determine the costs and amounts of feed required to fatten cattle on grass, with and without a supplement, and of the feed required to maintain a breeding herd of beef cattle for the year, and to raise calves from weaning time to yearlings.

Yeast Not Good for Hens.
Preliminary tests in the incubator carried on by the Poultry Husbandry Division of the United States Department of Agriculture in the use of yeast for the purpose of increasing the fertility of the eggs, have shown the theory being that this material was extremely high in vitamins and particularly valuable in the dietary of the hen. In the use of yeast in the yeast was dissolved in warm water, added to the mash, and the mixture allowed to stand for 24 hours until the yeast had become fully permeated the feed. While the hens ate this mash fairly well, with the result that their egg production was slightly increased, the mortality period, apparently they soon tired of the mixture and did not consume it with a relish. Subsequently, decreased egg production and increased mortality among the fowls which received the yeast was noticeably higher than in the pens not receiving it.

It is thought that this mortality was due to changes occurring in the mash which developed while it was being held in a warm condition for the 24-hour period previous to feeding, rather than as a result of the yeast itself. The most marked loss of weight was observed in the pens were put on dry mash containing one percent of dried fresh yeast. The condition of the flock improved materially with this change, and the birds soon resumed their normal appearance with fair egg production.

However, the egg yield was not greater than that from check pens without the yeast. Thereafter, 3 percent of yeast which was air and sun-dried and fed in a ground condition was used in the mash without any perceptible increase in egg production. These tests in the feeding of yeast were not conducted on a very extensive scale, nor long enough to determine thoroughly its value. The results were not promising and unless some better method of feeding the yeast is found, this product is not likely to be of much value for laying hens.

Unusual Weather in Past Year.
According to the Weather Bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture, the abnormal summer of the current year was due to important changes in the distribution of atmospheric pressure over the globe in comparison of which the usual seasonal interchange of air between equatorial and polar regions was seriously disarranged. Two conditions stand out prominently in this connection:

First, the mild winter of 1920-1921 with very little snowfall and a much decreased thickness of ice in lakes and streams. An unusually warm February rendered practically all of the snow cover in the United States and even in the northwestern Canadian provinces by March 1; thereafter in that month the solar heat that would ordinarily be expended in melting snow and ice was devoted to warming the soil and the atmosphere.

The second event, and it is spoken of with less certainty than the first, was an increase in the height of the barometer over parts of the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans commonly known as regions of "sempermanent high pressure." In other words, the level of the barometer over parts of the oceans was higher than usual; the effect of this rearrangement of pressure was to change the course of rainfalls which usually pass from west to east along the northern boundary, to higher latitudes, viz. central and northern Canada. The result has been a season so dry that yields of some crops have been seriously curtailed.

WHY DID PRICES ADVANCE?

Editor the Wayne Herald, Wayne, Nebraska.

Dear Sirs:

Prices went up in 1916 to 1919 because the United States had ten billions of dollars to the allies. The allies needed munitions, food and all kinds of supplies. They offered advanced prices for our grain and farm products, and our war consuming public had to bid still higher to retain enough for their own needs. Again the Europeans raised their bids, and again the people at home had to meet and raise the bids. Repeatedly the European market put prices of everything out of sight. Now when the war was closed, Europe stopped buying, which finally stopped our exports both Europe could cut its breath, financially speaking, thus throwing back on the markets all the increased output of our farms and factories. Surpluses began to accumulate in all lines, lack of a market without the support of the effort to maintain prices resulted in stagnation—then followed the increased output of our farms and factories, until dire necessity compelled the movement of all prices toward their normal and lower price levels. A big crop in 1920 made the fall in grain more pronounced and European corn crop makes recovery in grain prices even more difficult.

The present situation of our grain nearly 125,000,000 bushels of grain would push prices to the zero point without the support of the future buyers on the open market of Trade.

The next war will never come if the people of the world are convinced and their voices are above.

The wisest politics congress can pass will be to state foreign credits and make possible foreign markets for American farm products.

Less sticking for church dogmas and more on spiritual truths and habits of living would help the world, and what helps the world will help our "ennoble" eternity.

We remember when a man who owned a fine driving team, he considered especially fortunate. He belonged to the club. His total investment, however, did not amount to as much as the cost of tires on one good automobile.

Public improvements have been advised to give employment during the coming winter. Wayne's paving commission have been a source of important employment for six months and has added not a little to the activity of the town. Lincoln is to build a new wood yard which will give employment and furnish fuel. It might be that some such plan would be practical and serviceable in smaller centers in the state.

It is said that the triumphal reception of "Patty" Arbuckle on his return to Hollywood, following his release on bond in San Francisco, was staged, and paid for by those who wish to restore the popularity of the modern star. It is stated that those who acclaimed the return of Arbuckle were hired for the purpose rather than "that they were rejoicing in the spirit of the glory of movie performers." The least that can be charged against Arbuckle is that he is a moral leper, guilty of continuing the normal sense of decency. How many movie stars conduct his low standard of living is not known, but it is hoped not many.

People who know E. R. Gurney and sense his fine qualities of mind and heart, will be pained to learn of circumstances which have brought grief and trouble to his door. However, ever he may have become involved by failure of foresight or lapse of judgment. We believe his motives were bad or that he over-extended to gain personal advantage or profit to the loss or injury of another. Gurney was first known in northeast Nebraska as a struggling school teacher. He was self-made. Pluck, endurance and keen wit were his capital stock. From the school room he stepped into banking in which he accommodated many people, made many warm friends and justified every confidence placed in him. He moved rapidly. Finally, at a critical time, he spread out too far and was not able to retract. He lost his value set in. He was caught in mid-ocean with sails flying when the financial storm struck and he was unable to avoid a wreck. Those who knew him, those who have been befriended and helped by him, will regret his present unhappy plight with profound sorrow.

EDITORIAL RAMBLE
Our people everywhere have been thrashing out the truth in construction for six months, and still see nothing but hobgoblins and delusions. Plenty of money is in the country, but it is largely out of circulation, due chiefly to lack of credit. Some products are too high and others too low, and often especially when the four or five millions who are idle, are dissatisfied because of no compensation. Millionaire producers are dissatisfied and are dissatisfied because of the burdens of the income tax. As revenue must be raised, they would perhaps endorse a policy that would increase the tax on the taxation of those of moderate means, believing literally in the scriptural injunction that "unto those that hath shall be given," and that those that Little shall be shinned out of it, or work to the effect.

On the other hand, sinister socialism, scenting a favorable opportunity, comes trooping along, hawking its dangerous nostrum. It would have us forfeit our rights to an oligarchy of radicals that would not only destroy investment and credit, but encourage and outrage the great middle classes on whom production, constructive effort and the wholesome currents of civilization mainly depend.

While compelling millionaire citizens to shirk no duty, let us fight shy of the misnomer of socialism. Conditions have been worse but they will be better. We are here, and no place on earth is better. We might as well stand and fight it out. Furler expenses are high, and it would be cowardly as well as costly and possibly precarious to invite eternity as a source of relief. A better day will dawn. This is sure. In the meantime, let us show the country in paying for the war that we showed in prosecuting the war.

The members of the high school basketball team, assisted by Miss Marrow and Mae Rasmussen went to the Tom Sandahl home Friday night for a party. At the close of the evening, ice cream and cake were served. All had a very nice time.

Wakefield School Notes.

The Wakefield football team, fighting against odds in the shape of older and heavier players, met defeat Friday, when they played with the Normal reserves. The final score of the contest was 7 to 2. Captain Swanson's drop kick was spectacular. Vinston Johnson, playing at left end featured in his aggressive tackling and in the end zone punts.

Fire drill was practiced Monday forenoon under the direction of the local fire chief, Robert V. Hanson. The scenes were not used in the bottom landings at the south end of the building are six feet above the cement walk. The board of education is taking steps to have extensions attached.

More New Dresses

Would you like a real fancy out of the ordinary gazerette or crepe de chine waist for special dress occasions? Something individual and different from what you have seen or any one else is wearing? We bought just a few of the nicest ones we could find; no two alike of course. They are certainly beauties. Come and be tempted. You'll take a lot of pleasure out of such a dressy blouse.

New Trimmings

This will be a great year for home-made Christmas gifts. We surmise this from the great amount of fancy work materials of all kinds that we are selling. We are constantly replenishing this stock with new stamped materials and threads and you will find a big assortment from which to choose the materials you will want for your own Christmas work.

Sweaters

You see many pretty sweaters worn just now. A great many of them were bought at our store. We expected a good demand for them this fall and prepared for it with a nice assortment. Each week we have ordered a few new ones to keep the stock fresh and up to date and if you are interested in one of these useful and good looking garments you will find something to please you here. Prices are very reasonable, $5.00 to $8.50. We also received some nice ones for the little girls this week. Youthful styles and pretty colors, priced $3.50 to $5.00.

The New McColl Pattern—"It's Printed!"

You read how to proceed. Instead of perforations—those puzzling circles that took so much time to clearly understand—now—words that are printed on each part of the pattern. To understand the parts, you don't need the envelope at all, as in the old way. One look and you know what's what—that's how it saves time.

Oxfords

$5.75 and $6.75 oxfords continue to be the best sellers in ladies' footwear. These shoes are very reasonably priced and good looking practical footwear. With wool hose they can be worn well into the winter as they are strongly built of good calf skin that will stand lots of wear in rough weather.

You can't tell much about the wearing qualities of a boy's or girl's shoe by looking at it. You can play safe on this point however by buying your boys' and girls' footwear here. We will make good on any shoes we sell you that don't give you your money's worth in wear. We won't ask you to pay any fancy price to get this kind of footwear either. $3.00 to $4.50 will buy this sort of shoes here, the price depending on the size.

They are good looking shoes too that you will be pleased to have your children wear.

The wholesale fruit houses will ship carloads of apples and vegetables directly from where they are loaded to Wayne within in the next few weeks. We will have our share of these car lots and when these cars are here we will be a good time for you to buy because there is a good saving in freight in these car lot shipments and freight is a big item in the cost of fruit and vegetables.

We bought part of a car load of good cheap flour which came to Wayne this week. We are permitted to sell it with the guarantee that if you are not satisfied with it after the first baking you can return the unused flour and get your money back. That is more than fair and well worth a trial.

PROSPEROUS FARMER'S WIFE NEARLY STARVED

Declaring she was actually starving to keep from suffering awful misery, Mrs. Amy Peterson, wife of a prosperous farmer of Lakewood, Mass., gave out a remarkable statement, recently, in confession with her relief through the use of Tanlae.

"Sometimes I wonder how I lived through it all," she said, "I would have attacks of acute indigestion nearly every time I ate anything. Those terrible champing pains and the distress from gas and bloating were almost unbearable and I just thought there was no hope for me. But now I'm eating anything and I feel as strong and well as I ever felt in my life. I've gained back all the weight I lost and six pounds besides and I know from my experience what Tanlae will do. It's the best medicine in the world." Tanlae is sold by leading drug stores everywhere.

UNCLE WALT

The Post Philosopher.

Old Friends.

Old friends drop in from time to time and to staid historians give tongue, and talk about the far-off clime wherein we dwelled when we were young. It always shocks me when I meet some friend, now in days gone by, who used to walk on buoyant feet, and who was eager, strong and spry. For we remember old time friends as we last saw them years ago, forgetting how time's passage lends to ruddy locks the sheen of snow. Just yesterday James Foster Frizze came feebly to my lute; once he was strong and bold and big, and fit to whip a grizzly bear. And he ex-celled in many games, untired he roamed the wooded ways; and thus I always thought of James; the hero of my younger days. And now he's bent and weak and ill, his voice a cackle, shrill and drone, and when he has to climb a hill he always shifts to second gear. I showed amazement as I stood and watched him creeping to my door; was this the hero who withstood the greensward champions of yore? "Great Scott," he cried, "can this be me, and am I pleasing to the sight? And now your yearn abstracts the view, your pibald whiskers are a sight." We paked old memories that slept, and dragged them forth at bitter cost; and as we talked we sighed and wept, each found the other such a frost.

Idle Regrets.

My heart is sore and heavy now. I'm feeling far from gay; for I am thinking of the cow that I ran down today. Ah, black and bitter is my mood, and small relief I find in saying that the cow was stewed, or had a feeble mind. The man who has a motor car, the whiff he tries to steer, should scan the highway near and far, and see that all is clear. But I was rubbering around as drivers often do; I did not gaze upon the ground, or keep the curves in view. My thoughts from this gray world of men afar had roved along in fancy; I was treading then the shining peaks of song. The cow appeared upon the pike, ahead, a rod or perch, and oh, the impact then was like the falling of a church. The undertakers found it hard through all the week to plow and harder yet to till the land from motor car or cow. The cow is planted in the earth, beneath a cairn of stones; the owner tells me she was worth at least five hundred bones. My car is in the junkyard gone, and it no more will zip along the highway in the dawn—it's made its final trip. And I sit here and nurse my wounds, in misery, interest, and cry "Od-fish" and likewise "Zounds!" and wish I had some sense.

Divorces.

Divorce news fill the public prints, and jar the gentle readers; and dames in silk and gowns in chintz for court deuces are pleaders. They form a dismal caravan, these dames who tire of marriage; and now and then a loosed man looms up with mumble carriage, "Gedzooks!" we mutter, as we head "od-fish and eke gee-whizzle!" Is matrimony gone to seed? Are wedding vows a fiddle? Our institutions are at fault since sacred vows are shifting; is it not time to call a halt? Oh, wither are we drifting? But where one feeble, and one goes to court to have her vows rescinded, and be the melancholy sport of lawyers broken-wed, a hundred men looms up with old-fashioned homes adorning, and cry "cherish still the filmy things they wore one marriage morning. The pike with axes of many tints, who want a separation, all break into the public prints, and make a large sensation. But happy wives who hold the fort, don't get that sort of mention, they air no grievances in court, and so escape attention. So when you read of divers dames, with troubles true or phony, who ask to have their maiden names and ample alimony, remember that for every one who takes these public courses, a hundred other women shun the court that deals divorces.

Cheap Skates.

Cheap skates are men whose idleness no same results are giving, who loaf and argue while their wives attempt to earn the living. While men of vim and merit chase around in high endeavor, cheap skates sit in the marketplace and thrash stale themes forever. They play cheap games for cheaper stakes in joints where skates assemble, and talk of well with hoses and rakes will make them flinch and tremble. Cheap skates are men who never pay us, unless through verbiage or judgment, their promises of yesterday but show what bunk and fudge meant. They spoil their stand-off at the start, they mangle and beggah it, and there is no store or mart where they can buy on credit. Their children have to blush for shame, their wives are well, are blushing, white they bring them back again unless the pedlers make them. Cheap skates are abundant in every town, and rank next with its glories; they hold the shade benches down, and tell the shady stories.

Together.

Today has little sorrow, it is a good, safe lot; but we believe to-morrow will show up better yet. And all through life we're groping, with slow and heavy tread, still hoping ahead, hoping for better things always. And so our heads we're bent with patience, day by day; few pilgrims are despairing, though weary be the way; for in us is implanted the faith in joy to come, in Eden lands enchanted, where birds are singing some. Without this faith we'd falter, and quit our useful service for progress and reward; to drag us from our doors. Ah, then no fine incentive this state life would afford, no spur to minds in questive for progress and reward; then all our pep would vanish, and we would sink in sloth, and grow-ing absurdities, we'd end up in the broth. But all well balanced mortals have faith in bliss ahead, and so they greet with choruses the bogies dire and dread. What is today's tonight, for progress and reward, before? We haven't long to suffer—tomorrow is at the door. What if we're overloaded, and galled and chafed and vexed? We shall not long be goaded—tomorrow's turn is next. And so we erring critters toil onward day by day, and bravely take our bitter—the new-ber's on the way.

Farewell Summer.

When sizzling Summer pulls her freight, and lets the Autumn in, my lyre hits up a better gait—mayst hear the merry din. When Summer's getting in her work, I spring a little bluff, and, with an optimistic smirk, I say that she's the stuff. Oh, where, I ask, would be our wheat, our rubies and beans, if summer didn't send the heat that ripens all such greens? Oh, where would be the luscious fruit, the pumpkins and the maize, if Summer's sun refused to shoot its justly famous rays? But even as I delfly spring coun-drumms such as these, I wish that Summer would take wing, and send an early freeze. It is no trifason now, it's over, or fading to its rest, to say that Summer is a bore, and now and then a nod. I'm always glad when Summer goes, and Autumn makes her bow, and hands us hints of early snows to cool each fevered brow. When sizzling Summer comes again, if I am still on earth, I will point ahead to melting men her virtue and her worth; and as I hoist her varied charms, I'll sigh, in accents dear, "I'd gladly give two upland farms if Autumn days were here!"

Farmers Not Blind.

Farm Life: Most farmers, we believe, have a friendly feeling to railroad men, and other organized workers, but they cannot be blind to the fact that high wages and big profits in the industries impose a hardship upon agriculture when country wages and profits are low. In fact, the farmer suffers both ways, when it comes to big railroad rates. He has to pay the freight on what he buys, and upon what he sells. And if the question of reducing railroad wages comes to a crisis, the weight of country sentiment will undoubtedly be with the companies. But this does not mean, when the final reckoning comes, that the farmers will submit to exploitation or profiteering on the part of the companies. A fair level of prices, all around, is the only thing that will bring about a permanent revival of business.

The Early Days in Two Counties

From the Wayne Herald for October 14, 1911:

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Mell Case on October 1.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Tom Moran, October 3.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Mitchell have returned from New York.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Winterburn entertained a party of friends.

Supt. E. A. Lundberg went to Emerson to attend a teachers' meeting.

A young son of Pete Swanson has an arm broken by falling from a hay stack.

Charles B. Bright, principal of the school at Winside, the republican nominee for county superintendent.

The rains of the past week have delayed farm work and it will be several days before farmers can begin to plow the corn crop.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lenzowicz of Winside and Mrs. August Choum of Illinois were guests at the Joe Choum home north of Wayne.

G. J. Savage has made a five-inch well for R. H. Johansen. It will be used for filling the lake which Mr. Johansen is having excavated. This well is superior to any other in the county.

James Miller has gone to Lincoln to join the university fraternity.

From there he will go to Minneapolis to see the foot ball game between the universities of Nebraska and Minnesota.

Gertrude Weber entertained a party of friends at "High Five," complimentary to her guest, Miss Bondesson of Omaha. Ten games were played. Miss Brookings won the lady's prize and Harry Fisher won the gentleman's prize.

Mrs. E. E. Funston, living south of town, met with an accident. When ready to return home after doing some trading in town, when she got into her buggy, the horse commenced backing and became unmanageable, cramping the buggy and throwing Mrs. Funston out. The horse stepped on her and then ran away, pulling the buggy over her. She was considerably lacerated and scratched, but there were no serious injuries.

The seventh annual convention of the Federation of women's clubs is being held in Wayne. Nearly two hundred delegates are present from forty-one clubs. The reception committee from the Wayne clubs has the following members: Mesdames Fuller, E. Laughlin, Frazier and Davis. The committee on arrangements, Wilbur, Pie, Welden and Blanchard. Mrs. J. T. Bressler gave the address of welcome at the opening session. Mrs. J. M. Pile read a paper at one session on "Woman's Relation to the School." The last evening a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bressler. It was undoubtedly the most brilliant social function ever held in the city.

Correspondents from three daily papers attended the meetings. Among the delegates elected to the biennial session to be held in Los Angeles, Mrs. Matheson of Wakefield and Mrs. J. M. Pile of Wayne. Among the alternates were Mrs. Bressler and Mrs. Fuller of Wayne and Mrs. J. D. Haskell of Wakefield.

From Ponca Journal, October 4, 1921:

A heavy frost Wednesday night.

As the evenings lengthen dances are everywhere in order. The young people evidently intend to have amusement to chase away the gloomy sadness of the long winter nights.

Uncle Bill Clark, the mighty Nimrod of Dixon county, returned from a trip over on the Bow after deer, this week. He says he saw one track where a deer had passed two years ago, but he did not think it worth while to follow it up.

Tuesday's Sioux City Journal states that wheat took a big tumble in price on Monday, in consequence of the fall in Chicago and Milwaukee. Only 85 cents was paid. The receipts were 1,800 bushels.

Some trouble is being kicked up on the Mexican frontier, by the cattle stealing greasers. Gen. Ord says he has intention to follow them, and mete out punishment to them, if it be at the very gates of Mexico.

The railroad line between Ponca and St. James, it will be necessary to build not less than one hundred bridges. Although it is now getting late in the season, we have not heard of anything being done by the company towards this construction.

Our poet laureate, Mr. Rockwell, we feared was going back on us, and would bring us no more poetical offerings. But he called on us this morning and stated that he would soon again tackle the muse in our behalf. This is encouraging. We hope will be kindly ordained that next week, or the week after at farthest, our poet will favor this paper with one of his soul stirring rhapsodies.

Spotted Tail and Red Cloud are once more engaged in sampling Washington fire-water and palavering with the Great Father. At an interview with the President on Monday, they expressed a desire to become good "Indians and get their living in a civilized manner. As a result of their next meeting with the Great Father, they made the modest request that the government furnish each of their followers with a mowing machine, a wagon, a yoke of oxen, an overcoat and forty dollars in cash. With this little "setting out" Old Spot thinks that his braves would be able to climb the rugged hill of civilization in a very comfortable manner.

Wasteful Taxation is Telling.
Omaha World-Herald: It is the burden of thoughtful and sane taxation, the vast bulk of it for war purposes and for purposes of too much and too oppressive and too meddlesome government; that is today the greatest menace to our own government and our own civilization. It is the chief reason why business is stagnant, why agriculture is in distress and why millions of men face the coming of winter jobless and penniless.

You Can't Afford to Wait

Why put up with that old range of yours? It's costing you money every day in wasted fuel, repairs, bad baking time, trouble, etc.

What little you might save in the lower cost of a Great Majestic next year, is nothing compared with the expense and worry of putting up with that old range through another winter.

You'll not save a cent by waiting.

It's a good investment and downright good sense to buy your Great Majestic range this fall.

With a Great Majestic in your kitchen all your range troubles are over—perfect baking, plenty of hot water—less fuel, and more time out of the kitchen.

The pleasure and satisfaction of the new, Beautiful Great Majestic is worth a great deal to your family—why wait?

Many, many years of perfect service at minimum fuel and repair expense, makes the Majestic cost per year, a trifle compared with the yearly costs of a cheap range.

SIMPLE INVENTION FOR YOUR BOY

Here's how your boy can make his own Jack-o'-Lantern for Halloween, providing he has one of those inexpensive flashlights that many boys have. He takes a common collar or hamster box and cuts the eyes, nose and teeth in the cover. In the bottom of the box he cuts a circular hole into which he fits the flashlight. That's all, except to turn on the light! Copyrighted feature from Popular Science Monthly by special arrangement.

Wasteful Taxation is Telling.
Omaha World-Herald: It is the burden of wasteful and insane taxation, the vast bulk of it for war purposes and for purposes of too much and too oppressive and too meddling government, that is today the greatest menace to our own government and our own civilization. It is the chief reason why business is stagnant, why agriculture is in distress and why millions of men face the coming of winter jobless and penniless.

You Can't Afford to Wait

Why put up with that old range of yours? It's costing you money every day in wasted fuel, repairs, bad baking, time, trouble, etc.

What little you might save in the lower cost of a Great Majestic next year, is nothing compared with the expense and worry of putting up with that old range through another winter.

You'll not save a cent by waiting.

It's a good investment and downright good sense to buy your Great Majestic range this fall.

With a Great Majestic in your kitchen all your range troubles are over—perfect baking, plenty of hot water—less fuel, more time out of the kitchen.

The pleasure and satisfaction of the new, beautiful Great Majestic is worth a great deal to your family—why wait?

Many, many years of perfect service at minimum fuel and repair expense, makes the Majestic cost per year, a trifle compared with the yearly costs of a cheap range.

North Dakota A Battlefield. Beatrice Express: It is evident that a considerable proportion of not a majority of the voters of North Dakota have grown weary of the process of harrying the state which has been carried on by the non-partisan league. A recall election for the governor, attorney general and the commission of agriculture and labor has been ordered for October 28. On the outcome of that election will depend whether the league will pass from the stage in that state, or be given a further lease of power.

The fact that it was possible to get enough signatures to force a recall referendum has been considered as proof of the waning strength of the league. The various socialist enterprises which were inaugurated by the non-partisan league are either total failures or in the hands of receivers, with few exceptions. Even the bank of North Dakota, with deposits between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000 refuses to pay checks, though still open. To end the mismanagement and restore the state to a position where it is the lawful property of the present movement.

However, it is not proposed to abandon all the enterprises in which the state has invested money, if the coalition is successful in the election. The state projects on which millions have been expended will be given under careful management a chance to survive, if survival is possible. The movement is at least a step toward the return to sanity in commercial affairs and in the hands of suspicious men there is no reason why North Dakota should not regain standing.

Just Got Over a Cold.

Look out for kidney troubles and backache. Colds overtax the kidneys and often leave them weak. For weak kidneys—well, read what a Wayne woman says:

Mrs. J. L. Soules says: "A cold settled in my back and kidneys and put my kidneys in a badly disordered condition. The muscles of my back were stiff and my kidneys were so sore and weak I could hardly get around at times. Many times it was impossible to get a night's rest, on account of the worn out and miserable condition of my back and kidneys. A friend told me one day about Doan's Kidney Pills helping her. After using a box from the Wayne Drug company, I was much better in every way. I have not had to use Doan's for some time as my back feels stronger, my kidneys healthy."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—The same that Mrs. Soules had. Foster-McMinn Co., Mrs., Buffalo, N. Y. of old.

Bible Printed to Read. Philadelphia Public Ledger: Children in school know as little of the Bible as they know of current events. In their minds it is associated with the repressive gloom of the Puritan Sabbath, with all that is solemn and severe. The Bible needs to be emancipated from association with all that is dry and dull and made to seem readable and companionable. Familiarity with the text is almost indispensable to skill in the use of our tongue, whether in writing or in speech. It needs to be made plain to some who have chiefly a vicarious knowledge of its contents that to reverse.
