From Omaha Journal, October 23, 1870:

Omaha is making preparations for a grand blow out when Gen. Grant passes through that town.

The warm and pleasant weather of the past few weeks has caused vegetation to take a new lease of life in many places. Where fire burnt off the grass two or three weeks ago, a new growth has appeared, some of it four and five inches high, while trees and bushes are budding as in early spring.

On Tuesday, the oldest son of Mr. Levy, a lad fourteen or fifteen years of age, was riding on a wagon when a gun that he had with him was accidentally discharged, the full force of the load taking effect in his leg below the knee. The wound was dressed by Dr. Rowe, and the boy is doing as well as could be expected, although as a natural consequence of being made a lead mine of he will be obliged to keep very quiet for some time.

Mrs. John Barnes, Wayne, says, "I had been troubled with disordered kidneys from childhood. All these years I was more or less troubled with backaches and at times my kidneys didn't act right. This kept me in a run down condition. This trouble had been corrected in my younger days, thinking I would outgrow it, but at last when I was old enough to realize that something had to be done, I used Doan's Kidney Pills. It was not long before I was better in every way. Several boxes of Doan's cured me and I haven't been bothered in a number of years. I can earnestly recommend this grand old remedy."

A Matter of Good Taste

Some Facts Touching Cost of Road Work

The following story of the cost of road work in Nebraska was contributed to the monthly report of the Department of Public Works by Geo. K. Leonard, assistant secretary. "Our taxes are keeping up good and the next legislature should make no appropriation for roads. If we did not have to stand for the taxes on the roads, we wouldn't kick so much about the rest. I want to tell you something else too. This federal aid business is all bunk. We aren't getting that money for nothing. We ought to refuse federal aid and quit appropriating state money and then watch the taxes come down."

Needless to say, his remarks met with quite general approval. One of the listeners, however, had studied the tax receipt a little and hadn't formed his opinion from hearing other's talk. "Bill," he said, "How much land have you got in your home place?" "Two hundred acres," Bill replied. "What is its actual value according to the assessor?" "Bill hated to answer this, but finally he said, 'Well, it averages one hundred dollars an acre.' "How much do you figure you pay in taxes for these good roads?" "Well," said Bill, "I figure I'm paying around about fifty dollars."

You also save repair bills, lots of more pleasure out of your money. What, more-do you want?"

The speaker paused to let his remarks sink in and then resumed. "Another thing always interested me—a whole lot. Take as an example Lancaster county with 15,000 cars registered. This brings in about $150,000 per year in fees. In the city of Lincoln and other towns of the county, there are 12,000 cars which pay about $14,000 a year in taxes, the total. Do you know that more-a-dollar of this city or town, but inside the limits of any city or town, but is all spent on roads in the morning, running past the farmers' doors. The same thing is true in all the other counties. So you see, Bill, you spend $6.39 for construction and $15.00 for maintenance and you save $74.00 and then some, of expense. You fellows in the country also get Smith's $2.20 for construction and his $45.00 for maintenance.

"And don't forget, boys, maintenance is the thing that keeps the roads good and saves us our money, time and lives. Don't kick on the registration fee and if you see someone without a proper license, make him buy one like we all have to do. Every dollar collected on automobile numbers is sent in our own county in fixing up the roads and bridges.

Bill hadn't said anything for quite a while. Finally he said, "What about this federal money? Why should we take it? We all pay for it in the end anyway. Let's cut our construction work down one-half and just spend our state money. It will take a little longer to get the roads fixed, but it will not cost us as much each year."

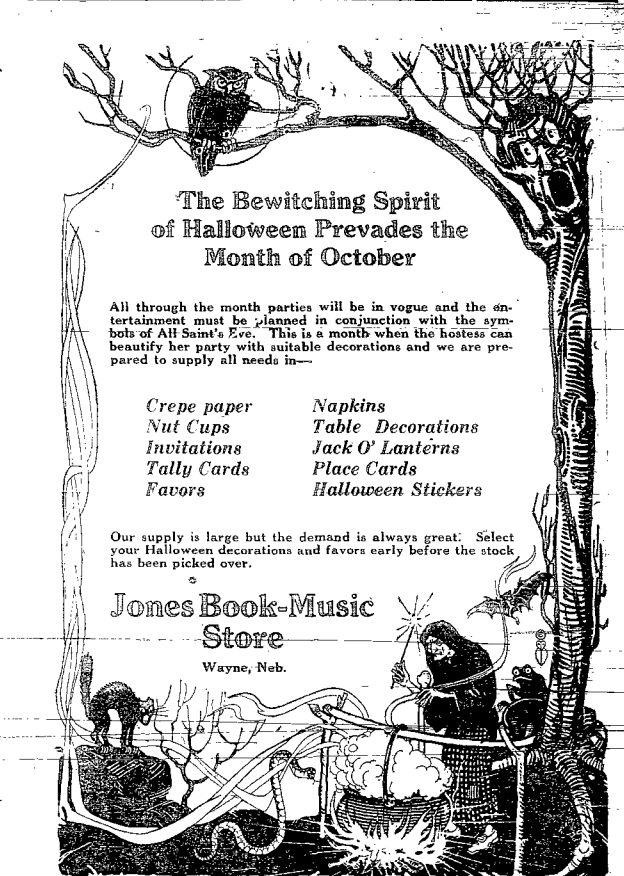

His friend replied, "I'll tell you, boys, about this federal money. It's not the congress appropriated $100 million dollars for federal aid to highway construction and said to Nebraska. Here is $1,200,000 for you."

"So am I," said Bill meekly. "We are going to have another $1,200,000 from the government. I don't know how much they will give us this time, but we want all we can get. Let's see that the state does its part and keeps the appropriations for good roads."

People should understand that Wayne's streets are an important argument in favor of the local business district.

In the event of a complete railway stop, airplanes, motor trucks and automobiles will be invited to show what they can do in solving the transportation problems of the country.

The threatened strike will vary and will extend a longer duration. The price of corn has held a monopoly for some time, but it will now yield somewhat to the impending railway paralysis.

In traveling between here and Lincoln, the best method is to make an elaborate road improvement. The automobile gets so into the habit of detouring that it is detour when it is not necessary.

Saluted people are the most fortunate. A few years ago they had reason to feel a trifle unwell because of those engaged in business for themselves. Now the man with assurance of a pay check has assured his savings.

If the railroads and their employees are interested in popular opinion, the least that they can do will be to adjust disputes and keep the wheels moving. The very next thing to do is to make a liberal reduction in transportation rates.

Ugly epithets were exchanged by two members of the national house of representatives in the course of debate one day this week. The exhibition would have been a discredit to eighth graders in a football game. The country has reason to expect a better example of poise and stability on the part of national leaders.

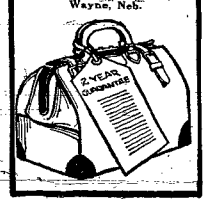

It seems that the labor board has been handling railway wages, while the interstate commerce commission has been looking after reduction of railway rates, but it appears that neither has served very triumphantly to date. The president is now bringing the two official bodies together in the hope of a settlement of differences that will prevent the proposed strike. Officers of the Washington are of the opinion that the railway union will not materialize.

The real test of a man's strength is shown in adversity. It is easy to row down stream. It is easy to steer one's bark when the sky is clear and the waters are calm. But it requires skill and courage to go up stream of a flood. It is a map to handle any sort of enterprise when cash is flowing freely. It is when the money market tightens and the traffic of trade becomes sluggish that one's greatest skill and resourcefulness and courage are needed.

A close observer, studying the industrial situation from the standpoint of the city, advises that a good worker will have to be prepared to escape work and responsibility. Many in the ranks of the unemployed have no serious inclination to work, and they will not be prepared to give the least possible effort for the largest possible return. Our informant thinks the gospel of work will have to sink deeper into people before industry will be restored to its pre-war status. Large rewards for small services has been an unfortunate habit, and many people are slow in getting out of it.

Whom which is about the size of Lak. Geneva, Wis., reflecting a district. It is not only paved, but has a lot of modern buildings that show off well. While its residence sections are still in the making, those of Wayne, its business district is superior and emphasizes the need of certain improvements in a town of this size. Why not devote some of the time and mental energy spent in contemplating the present inauspicious times to consideration of ways and means to build in the business district? Wayne's private capital will in time seek investment. Why not then invest the Wayne business district, putting some of the needed improvements that will return adequate revenues?

The following paragraph from a letter just received from a young man associated with the publication of a high-class weekly newspaper at Lak. Geneva, Wis., reflecting a generous outside estimate, may be of interest to local readers: "For a senior thesis in the course in Journalism at the University of Wisconsin during the last year, I chose a study of the country newspapers of the middle west as a subject. You will perhaps be interested to know that I was a subscriber to your paper. The Wayne Herald was selected as the best in the state of Nebraska and was placed with the best in the states of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Ohio and South Dakota, considered the best in their respective states."

The impending strike of railroad employes approaches at a time when the country is not in the best frame of mind to resist the high transportation rates and employees have fought to maintain high wage standards netting already burdened and harassed by the exacting and tedious process of reconstruction. If the inevitable struggle between railroads and their employes is not averted, the public becomes the greatest sufferer. The public becomes an innocent victim of an industrial war which a spirit of fairness and sound judgment ought to have averted. In this crisis, the public would feel best if it were to see the railroads give less justification to employees if freight and passenger rates had been reduced. Notwithstanding larged by degrading tariff reductions have been earning comfortable dividends, according to a Washington report. While farming communities and most of the rural population are forced large losses in the crucible of readjustment, it seems that the railroads have been making good cash returns. The decrease in freight and passenger rates would have been met long ago. These reductions would have warranted reduced wage scales if it were found that operating costs prevented due net revenues. According to the showing of earnings, railroads could have reduced wages if it were found that operating costs prevented due net revenues. According to the showing of earnings, railroads could have reduced wages if it were found that operating costs prevented due net revenues. According to the showing of earnings, railroads could have reduced wages if it were found that operating costs prevented due net revenues.

Free Press Wins.
Yankton Press and Dakotan: Newspapers and the press that has been gratified over the issue of the suit of the Chicago Tribune, a suit which would have wiped the press out, was so intended. A free press is more necessary in times like these than when things are normal.

An Indiana View.
Indianapolis 'News': One reason that living in New York is so high is that everybody is ready to pay graft in one form or another.
Janitors Are Economical.
Omaha World-Herald: They are lighting more furnaces in the steel mills, but the furnace in the flat, as usual, is reluctant to get started.

The Crop Report as of October 1. Lincoln Herald: It is significant that the latest report on crops for the entire country shows that when comparison is made with this month of last year, that, with the exception of the estimated yield of all the major crops is below that of a year ago.

The truth is, however, that there has been produced, according to the latest estimate this year, less corn, less winter wheat, less flax, less barley, rye, potatoes and apples than a year ago—in the face of the greatest exports of what and corn in history.

In this state, the comparison of this year with last, runs along almost parallel with that comparison for the entire country. The 1921 year's corn crop is estimated on October 1, at approximately 217,400,000 bushels, some 38,118,000 bushels below last year, but still 16,474,000 bushels over the average for five years. The more important figure, however, is the showing that the October 1 estimate is 3,783,000 bushels below the September 1 estimate.

The estimated oat yield is 67,872,000 bushels as compared with 70,000,000 bushels for 1920, this latest estimate for this year also being approximately 1.2 bushels below the 1920-year average. The latest estimate on all wheat, which is approximately 56,500,000 bushels, is about 5,000,000 bushels below last year's estimate of last year, and on potatoes, the shrinkage from last year is estimated at approximately one and one-half million bushels.

These figures, with all the decreases in estimate for thirty days, however, show a tremendous production for the year, but if values have been placed, month by month—upon estimates, this recent turn, so general in the entire country, fits the estimate only in this state, but in the entire country in amount, of such magnitude as to direct more than passing attention to the forward movement in these markets, particularly so if demands for export continue at the level that has prevailed for a considerable period this year.

Canada Must Come of Free Will.
Minneapolis Journal: If the Canadian empire is to be a free nation of free citizens, it must be by their consent and at their option. Only in that manner would they be valuable to the world. It is not in that manner that our political and civil life they might become invaluable, owing to their decided qualities of individual initiative, moral integrity, love and habit of liberty. The gravitational force between the two contiguous domains must desert with every decade of closest association. Canada will not desert the mother country, but is not there fore precluded from growing into one. She may act, indeed, as a mediator between the United States and the British commonwealth of nations, in the forwarding of civilization and the preservation of human freedom.

Money for Everybody.
New York World: Everybody is supposed to be hard up, yet 250,000 people, mostly New Yorkers, found their way to the diamond district of Wall Street to spend in watching two ball games play. The fact that the great Standard Oil company of New Jersey is preparing to spend $2,000,000 in construction work and repairs to relieve unemployment, figures in the news as an important item. Yet almost half the population equivalent of a day's wages for 200,000 men, is spent in New York in eight days for baseball. There is plenty of money for the purchase of life, for amusement and the luxuries. It is only the cost of necessities which pinches. It is too late, of course, to hold an auction of idle labor in front of a baseball park, but the choice of that site for the sale would have a grim significance.

Brotherhoods to Learn.
Mitchell Republican: The railroad brotherhoods should know that the public realizes that money is a capital invested in the railroads is given a limited return under the Esch-Commins act, the public is not satisfied with the wages of the railroad employes. The public is willing that they should be liberal. But never will the public consent to compare the wages of the wages figures. If the brotherhoods really have any doubts on this subject, they will be quickly resolved by the fact that the public is not in a whole country is clamoring, with one voice, for lower railroad rates.

Lack of Leadership Shows.
Chicago News: In the alignment of United States Senators, the Borah Panama tolls bill the country was afforded a striking illustration of the truth of the charge so often made that lack of consistent leadership in congress is chiefly responsible for the aggressive tactics of so-called "blossers" and "blacks" who are the threat party disruption, for the broken revenue bill now before the senate, for "punching" the tariff bill, for doing no good, but do provoke retaliation by other nations, and for other faults of commission or omission.

day. The moving, inspiring thought world has learned—that peace may that came to the great masses was rank with victory.

Armistice Day.
Sioux City Journal: Bedlam broke loose in every hamlet, town and city of this country on November 11, 1918, the day that marked the ending of the greatest war in all history. Everywhere it was the same kind of demonstration, people massed and celebrating, filling the streets and stopping traffic, shouting, laughing, crying, beating on drums and tin pans, blowing trumpets and whistles, using noisemaking devices, neglecting their work at desk or bench for the more important thing, which was recognition of the armistice signed that day. Nothing like it probably ever will be seen again in America, for it is very doubtful that such a day will ever come again. November 11, 1918, goes down in history as one of the greatest of all time.

Observers of the vast multitudes that milled and marched in utter confusion and with wild but harmless uproar on that day agree that a desire for the perpetuation of democracy was not so much because victory had been won as it was because men and nations fight. A demonstration showing how the people are committed to a program of peace is not to be targets for guns after that day.

Important Indeed.
Washington Post: One of the most important Pacific questions to be handled by the administration is to keep California safely republican.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: If it were as easy to get a job as it is to get a pistol the crime record would not be so bulky.

Legion Favors Disarmament. Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 18.-At a meeting here of the executive committee of the Nebraska department of the American Legion, a resolution was adopted declaring in favor of a practical disarmament program, "one that will do away with useless expenditures that increase the taxpayers' burdens, and which will help guarantee satisfaction of the institutions of the United States."

The resolution says further: "The Legion does not desire to be misled by the propaganda of the extreme pacifists nor frightened by the false alarms of the jingoists."

Unfair Income Ratios. Sioux City Journal. Students of the unemployment situation and general business conditions need not go far in their investigations to understand what really is the underlying cause of the continued depression. With that clearly understood, the next step, of course, would be the working out of a solution which would meet the demand of a sure remedy. After that, the only thing necessary to bring about a complete recovery is time.

The basic importance of agriculture in this country long has been recognized, but a mistake has been made in not accepting the fact in practice as well as in theory. The economic scheme of the country fails absolutely without the farmer. Everybody knows that. Food has to be produced to sustain the life of the city and the town would not last long without the farmers producing it.

Selfish interests, however, have permitted their greed to treat the farmer as an unprofitable. They have not been willing to give the farmers their chance, for the reason that they wanted more profits themselves. The farmers' purchasing power is about 40 per cent of the population. That means billions in trade between the farmers and manufacturers. It is unreasonable and unfair that an even ratio be allowed to continue between the income of the farmer and that of the manufacturers, merchants and laborers. That would penetrate the high prices for commodities and labor sold to the farmer and the low prices paid to him for what he produces. The condition exists today, much to the discredit of the economic system ruling in this country.

When the farmers' purchasing power is reduced for any reason or by any cause the result is seen by the manufacturer and his employ by the merchant and his salesman and by everybody who depends upon selling something in order to live. It is estimated that at this time the farmers are buying about 60 per cent of what they purchase in normal times. In some cases the buying power of the farmer has been reduced to one-third of the normal. Taking the first figure of decrease and 40 per cent as the buying power of the farmer, it is plain enough that the decrease in general buying is 20 per cent, or one-fifth that much of a decrease in trade, especially when domestic commerce has fallen off, is disastrous to business. When the income of the farmer is lessened, as is done when his prices are forced down to figures far below the average for other commodities, all lines of business suffer. It does not require deep thought to see that when conditions in agriculture, the leading industry of the country, have got to be restored to put business back on a solid foundation, unless the farmer buys more manufactured articles, machinery, clothing, building materials, prepared foods, etc., the demand for these articles will be correspondingly decreased production falls. That, of course, throws workers out of employment as well as cutting down the value of capital. It really is very simple.

The first result of depression when the farmers' buying power is diminished is felt in the small towns and cities. The farmers buy directly from the small town merchants who buy from wholesalers in the bigger towns and dealers who, in turn, demand their stocks of manufacturers and other producers. The depression is exactly like a poison injected into the capillaries of the blood system which traverses the entire circulation and impairs it. If capital and labor engaged in manufacturing and transportation could forget their own demands long enough to study the cause of it, they quickly would realize that the source of the trouble is the farm. Nothing but an adjustment of the unfair ratio between the incomes of the various elements of life in this country will bring better times, and the sooner the adjustment is made the quicker better times will come.

The Plight of Corn. Lincoln Journal: With last year's corn harvest above 200,000,000 bushels the new crop going into the elevators in most Nebraska communities at less than 20 cents, the subject of corn as a fuel becomes again one. Corn now brings about $7 a ton. Fairly good coal costs just about twice that. By burning corn the farmer saves the cost of hauling the corn to town and the cost to the country. The fuel value of the coal must accordingly be more than twice that of the corn for reasons to justify the burning of corn instead of coal.

The staple memory of cheap corn to the present generation of Nebraskans goes back to the winter of 1896-7. Much corn was sold that winter for 9, 10, 11 and 12 cents. The new crop of corn this winter is apparently to have a money price of about 80 cents higher than the famous low level of twenty-five years ago. But the dollar of this year is worth less than one-half the dollar of 1896. In actual money power, accordingly, corn of 1921 is considerably lower in price than the famous cheap corn of 1896. Fifty bushels of 10-cent corn bought a ton of good coal in 1896. It takes seventy-five bushels of corn to buy as good a ton of coal now. A hundred bushels of 1896 corn bought a fairly good suit of clothes. It takes about 150 bushels to get an equivalent in clothes value now. As to the difference in taxes, one choice when he considers it, it goes down the list, with only a few exceptions.

These comparisons show how extraordinary is the plight of this year's corn farmers. And let there be no doubt about it, this means a corresponding plight for those who live by trade with the farmers. The coal miners will feel it. The railroads, losing two tons of traffic for every ton of corn used for fuel, will feel it. We must face the fact, therefore, that unless our national circumstances severely the industrial and financial problem, not of the corn belt only, but the entire country, Secretary Wallace is right when he tells the machinery manufacturers that there is no hope for rehabilitated prosperity until a new relation has been established between farm prices and the prices of other things, either by a rise in the former or a fall in the latter. While we revert to 1896, it should be added, we can not hope there as well as despair. When corn was below 15 cents in that period many men with a little capital at command cribbed up quantities of corn to hold for higher prices. Much of this cribbed corn was sold within two years for as much as 35 cents. Recovery from the depths of 1921 is not likely to be as rapid as was recovery from the depths of 1896. Then it was this country only that was depressed, now it is the entire world. But that there will be a recovery in some measure we can be sure. This fact is a safe basis for the hope on which we must survive the coming hard winter.
