Belgian Industrious.
Lincoln Journal: Belgium seems to be coming back faster than any other European country. Belgian bankers have astonished their American conferees by offering to take a block of $30,000,000 Argentine bonds. For a country that was the world's ward less than five years ago this is doing very well indeed. Belgium of course is fortunate in being the recipient of the first reparations payments, but it also thrives because of the marvelous industry of its people.

Railroads Hopeful of 1922.
Sioux Falls Argus-Leader: The railroads are looking forward to the better year in their history during 1922. We hope they are right; for when the railroads are making money, it is proof that general business conditions are good.

High School Class Play Well Presented

The senior class play, "A Couple of Millions," which was presented at the opera house Friday evening, received the compliments and approval of a large audience. The play was well chosen and the various parts were well balanced in importance, so that each member of the cast had equal opportunity to show his merits. A little-remembered of the scene which improved the setting of the play. The manner of the cast spoke distinctly and their voices carried clearly, so that little was missed by the audience. The relative positions of the characters in the different scenes were well taken, giving the audience a pleasing setting at all times.

The plot centered around Bonim Bennington, a young man, who according to his uncle's will would inherit $2,000,000 at the end of the year, if he should spend that year in a town of less than 5,000 and earn $5,000 by dint of his own labor and marry by the end of the year. Ben Moran in this role of the leading man, assumed his part with vigor and accuracy. He came in contact with each character in such sincerity in his part that it was convincing that all should he won over to his side.

The first act of the play was in the law office of Jeremy Wise, Bennington's guardian. The part of the lawyer was ably taken by Paul Crossland, who in the role of a confirmed bachelor, gradually falls from single grace. His office force, consisting of Genevieve McElly, the stenographer, and James Patrick Byrnes or "Stubby," offered opportunity for several scenes full of clever repartee and action. Irma Rensick in the roll of the young, romantic "skit," played her part with assurance and ease. Henry Ley as "Stubby" was most popular with the audience for he played his part with evident enjoyment of the role, making it most convincing.

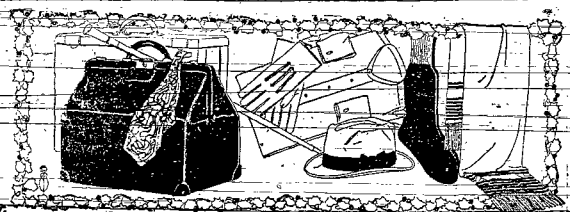

The part of Professor Noah Jabbs, from Opelaca, Alabama, who was to receive the fortune if Bennington failed to fulfill the conditions of the will was taken by Harold Preston. With apt ability, he portrayed the grasping, insincere man, who finally absconds with money belonging to others when he sees that he is to lose the $2,000,000.

The parts of Mrs. Clarice Courtney and Pay Fairbanks, the ladies from Opelaca, Alabama, were assumed by Frances Sarber and Bessie Hiscox. The former playing the part of a mature woman, a widow who offered her money to Bonim Bennington in his scheme to make $5,000, hoping that she would be his choice of a wife, played a difficult role with unusual stage presence. Bessie Hiscox was very attractive in her assumed character. She played with all sincerity the scenes with Bennington whom she thought to be the one-wooled content and with spirit the scenes in which she defied her aunt, Mrs. Courtney and she and Bennington made known their marriage, thus fulfilling the conditions of the will.

The part of Sammy Bell Porter with whom "Stubby" falls in love, was charmingly portrayed by Phyllis Lewis, who gracefully assumed the simplicity of her role. The negro girl, "Pink," was played by Alice Crockett and her rendition of the part was very good. Guernsey Laese, as Beverly Loman, the sheriff, and John West, as Spirit Piper, played minor roles with a finished touch. Even the non-speaking parts of the citizens of the lazy southern town, played by Ralph Reiffard and Roland Rippon, proved that even the minor details of the play were developed to perfection.

To Mrs. Cecie Robinson, director of the play, is due credit for the success of the play, which was developed beyond the stage of the usual high school dramatic production.

Soviet Responsibility.
Dr. George E. White, president of Annapolis college in Annapolis, Md., who is in this country in the interest of near east relief, in an interview in Minneapolis asserted that the soviet is to be blamed for the suffering in Russia. The soviet killed industry by sovietizing it, he said; it destroyed capital by sovietizing it, and without capital there can be no labor. Dr. White stated that there are more men in Russia carrying bayonets than there are in business; that soviet rule is more tyrannical than the reign of the czar and more bloody than the terrorism of Robespierre. The Russian people do not want any more revolutions, he said, but will not retain control of itself and by hard work win the place among the nations to which it is entitled. Dr. White's report is similar to other reports coming from Russia. The peasant groans under the burden of the soviet government, but he has been schooled to patience and anger through centuries of oppression, and he is not likely to rise in revolt against the present misgovernment of Russia. The soviet government will solve the problem and reveal the destiny of Russia. Before the problem is solved the world will have now possessed the spirit of the Russian.—Sioux City Journal.

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher.

Here's Hoping.

I hope the traitors may decide to junk the implements of might, and send the battleships that ride the waves, scuttled. Let us hope for such an outcome we have cried since this great confab loomed in sight. The great world war has done its worst but still remains in its wounds and snarls; for peace we hunger and we thirst for long calm years of useful and happy life. The traitor may make first scrap evil nations in their hearts. Oh, we may sink our ships at sea, and turn our swords to pruning shears, and mold our shears so they'll be acceptable as shears; crops, but man will find a snicker. If he is bound to scrap, gadoodle! Disarmament's a noble plan, will worth the bibical statement while, but it must be an also-ran, and change still must be in style, until we fill the heart of our heroes, jealousy and grudge. If he can't have a battleship with which to soak the measly foe, he'll heave a boulder at his hip and happily lay a dozen, or he will let the arrows rain on deadly excreta from a bow. If he can't send out poison gas or train big guns on yonder ramp, he'll make a ragged sign of glass or brain the woman with a lamp; I hate to say it, but alas, he's just the sort of rattled scamp! So we must march with our hates as well as battleships and guns, throw them forever from our gates with broken lances, terns on terns, and then for us the Great Peace will last while there are stars and suns.

Super-Heroes.

Abolish war! It's a noble sentiment, designed by monarchs ratted; our cars can kill us fast enough—we don't need hosts embattled. War's such an out and outworn means of death it makes us sickers; our trucks, cars and limousines can do the job much quicker. War kills its legions while it lasts, but when it is suspended with its small and its small blasts, the butchery is ended. The veterans forget their scars, and turn to sane endeavor; but when come to motor cars, and to blow flies on forests. If populations are too thick, the figures growing taller, there always is the speeding high that makes the oceans smaller. The roadster and the limousine are killing people daily; we pile the bodies on the grass and cry, "Willoway!" The touring car and large car around the town are racing, and every hour another man is ruined by a racing. The speeding man, the center gray, upon the highway hills are run down by the brisk coupe that knocks the speed laws silly. Abolish Mars! And on his brow let all the cheap cars of winter, for we have deadly engines now that knock him and thither.

Haines' Warning.

It's Dry Law Hains who now explains that bootleg drinks are deadly; so let's eschew the poisoned brew, and cease to pain things redly. This Dry Law Haines is taking pains to warn us of our danger; he hates to see the graveyard tea kill off the pilgrim stranger. The bootleg drinks are made by sinners who are not moral dandies, and he is wise to all their eyes, their bourbon, guns and brandies. Of poisons dire and liquid fire they are a sinful medley and Bro-Haines, he still maintains that bootleg drinks are deadly. And Comrade Haines, a man of brains, should know of that he's speaking, he tells among the jug and bung and spout sadly looking. He samples you and finds it lye, all kinds of booze he hangs, he finds one who has a good blue suit by Gode and Yards. "Oh jakes and janes," cries Hainful Haines, "let's all apply the same to the bootlegger, and get rid of all that makes the reason totter. It strikes men blind and wrecks the mind that once was grand and gaudy; so let us try the heartless law who sells this honeyard toddy." Thus speaketh Haines; applause he gains from sane and sober thinkers who've cracked the fact that seems to wait for bootleg whisky drinkers.

The Safe Side.

"The time has come," said Colonel Hays, "when patience fails and fails and we shall shoot all jays who try to rob the mails. Too long too long have peace-lovers stamped me to a pulp, and I'm taking a little rest. And now at last you've spoiled the bears; they've shocked the voters' souls, and I've smacked the bears' heads on their full of holes. The ocean soldiers are on guard, no more shall bandits scold, and he who steals a mail car will find me well on his way. The postman comes to my abode and tired and sore he feels, for he has dragged along the road a couple of weeks, and he's landed down with guns till life seems flat and stale, for he must guard the precious duds that come to him by mail. I've smacked the bears on his back, and all equipped to kill, he still delivers at my shack the tailor's dog-eared bill. With his brass knuckles he smacks the bears on his nose and smoke behind, and he looks like a War Lord Hun who has 'Ded' in mind. Now peace-embarras me with wine and beer, and I'll give you my soul, for I can mail a priceless poem, and feel 'twall reach its goal. And when the grocer sends his bill with

The Long Winter.

"The winter will be long and cold," observed the prophet, bent and old, who knows the grouse-bone lore; "the signs and tokens all agree that there'll be weather fierce to see, and stormy and blizzardous the weather of the woods have stored up nuts and other goods in quantities immense; in hunting deep and storm-proof lairs the grouse-bones and the grizzly bears have manifested sense. The bark is thicker on the trees," the prophets say; "such signs as these were never known to fail; we'll have a winter long and stern, and he who'd have some coal to burn should salt away his kile." The signs and tokens all agree, and yet the seers don't worry me, for always they are wrong; I never knew a prophet yet on whom a man might safely bet; the winter won't be long. The winter won't be long or cold, since length and fierceness are foretold by these prophetic boys; the skies

Canned Kings.

The man who's once held down a throne is good for nothing else, it seems, and though he's exiled and alone, the reigning great still fills his dreams. King Carl tried twice to nail the seer who'd said he'd been fitted from his brow; his former subjects turned him down, and he is on the hog in his own land. And people say Ex-Kaiser Bill yet dreams of going back once more to ply a scepter with the skill that got him in the soup before. And though doubtless Kronprinz William hopes to be a monarch, wearing bells, as he is sliding down the slopes of that far island where he dwells. To be a king these days and years, and wear a brass, machine-made hat! Oh, no, one can be safe and sane, and long to hold a job like that. Once kings could sit around in state and watch the palace fountains squirt, but that bright day has pulled its freight, and monarchs now are cheap as dirt. Once kings were proud and haughty guests with courtiers kneeling at their feet, but now they look like thirty cents, and wish they had enough to eat. Far better see five cords of elm, with moisture on the reed bow, than try again to rule a realm, the way all kingdoms stack up now.

To Our Patrons.

With the approach of the holiday season, I wish to again make a few suggestions in regard to Christmas mail that will be of mutual benefit. Please have your parcels well wrapped and securely tied. Address them plainly on the lower right hand corner including street and number. (Use ink for addressing is possible.)

Place your return on the upper left hand corner.

Mail them as early in the season as possible and as early in the day as possible in this way you will insure their arrival by Christmas day and help avoid congestion. You may mark them "Do not open until Christmas." Follow the above suggestions and your parcels will reach their destinations with their Christmas appeal intact.

I also wish to call your attention to the annoyance and delay caused by the customary use of too small and too large envelopes. The minimum size should be not less than 2-3/4 by 4 inches and the maximum not greater than 4-3/8 by 10-1/8 inches for the following reasons:

1. Addresses will be obliterated by cancellation mark.
2. Too small and too large to fit through facing-machine necessitating three extra handlings with consequent delay not only to this but other mail.
3. Delay in cancellation because of awkwardness in putting through cancellation machines.

4. Delay through difficulty in sorting.

5. Liability to loss or damage as small sized do not fit in letter packages and can not be tied securely.

Please cooperate with us by using stationery of the proper size.

Particular attention is invited to the fact that "unsold, frosted" post cards are unsalable unless inclosed in an envelope.

Beginning Monday, December 19, parcels will be accepted for mailing at the side door as usual, until 7:30 P. M.

Wishing you a merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year.

Yours for effective service,

Some people are so dense and egotistical that they don't know when they are making fools of themselves. Scotty looks on, amazed and disgusted.

Christmas managers have been named in Wayne's business districts, and local dealers are evidently receiving a liberal share of the season's trade.

If it is possible for one to be happy at any time of the year, he ought to be merry during the Christmas season when little children are looking forward with joyous expectations.

As we have not received one response to our invitation for contributions treating the subject, "What's the Matter With Wayne," we conclude that there is nothing the matter with Wayne, for which we are profoundly thankful.

While some workmen are striking because of inadequate pay, others are compelled to quit their jobs on account of the depression and lack of work. As a result, there are hundreds of men here and there out of employment in railway shops at Baltimore, due to decreased business.

A representative of the Northwestern Banker says he is convinced, after a trip of inspection—which took him 10,000 miles and extended from the east coast to the west coast, that business conditions are everywhere improving. He says he encountered the most pessimism in the middle west but that there is a great deal more improvement and ample ground for encouragement.

The death of Miss Elizabeth Kingsbury, noted in last week's Herald, marked the passing of an exemplary character. For twenty years she lived in Wayne, she endeavored to benefit to the town and its citizens, and those who express in their lives the principles she inculcated will go on to win the shield and will long live in the memory of those who know her or who were enriched by her influence. Without ostentation, she exemplified high ideals and reflected high scholarship. Such a life is an inspiration to noble people.

The trials and losses falling to merchandising of late are treated at considerable length in the last Saturday Evening Post. Mentioning the depression which has gripped the big stock on hand when prices are good, "reticent," has been a good deal like "the experience of being a farm at top prices only to see land values shrink until one's capital stock is materially reduced. One merchant quoted by the Post says, "I've never seen a market so seriously figured. In all lines of investment, the process of readjustment has been costly and severe."

Are people working and planning and otherwise using their heads in their chosen occupations as much as they should? It is probably a fact that the ease with which earnings were raised in "dough" time of high prices, made people indolent, careless and thrifless; and that they have been slow to return to pre-war habits of industry and intelligent application. A current magazine says a desire to live without work is the basis of our troubles; and that if we would get down to business, stop the idleness, and get that automating and other amusements which would soon return to much talk of normalcy.

A man who knows one thing well is apt to regard as deficient in learning another who has not attained the same accomplishment. We recall a doctor of philosophy remarked that he had been taking for another kind of doctor and accordingly had been expected to know a number of bones in the human body, which of course he did not assume to know, specializing in anatomy being out of his line. The student of physiology would expect him to be able to not only give the number of bones but name and locate them. On the other hand, the doctor of philosophy may be a little disappointed if he finds a mathematician or chemist or an expert in animal husbandry or horticulture or agriculture who cannot quote from Homer or paint a word picture that rings with the orthography and rhetoric. Truth is, we are living in an age of specialists, and the man who knows little of everything, though not much of anything, is likely to excel in mediocrity, get nowhere in particular and make small headway in accomplishing a great purpose. The aim of science or letters should not regard with scorn the mental powers of a man who can organize and carry forward successfully a big commercial or industrial enterprise, and neither should the latter consider contributions to knowledge from the former's research and study as unimportant. Specialists give to the profane and education of one another. Specializing makes effort more productive and enlarges the benefit to society.

Fued Dance Don'ts.

Sloax City Center. A new hope for the future is encouraged by the promise of Northwestern university that the young women will be made the main attraction in the dance. They are not to engage in a wrestling match. From sedate Evanston—scat. In some but not in all things—catch-can dance will not be tolerated among the students, who, it seems, have sought to develop a peculiar brand of gymnastics and athletics on ballroom floors. Ceeds are given the chaperon ukase that some of the dancing "holds" which are so closely related to the ball, follow the wrist locks and the reverse bodies long familiar to devotees of the ring, will not be permitted, and by that token a new hope is born.

"Don'ts" greet the eyes and ears of the Northwestern gym students from all sides when they flutter out upon the dancing floor. They are told that they must not "clutch the body" in their participation, the half Nelson, so well known in wrestling, is not to be permitted. Again, no cheek to cheek proximity is allowed. Among the "don'ts" include the possibility of gaining a decision by butting, another wrestling indulgence sometimes employed even if in violation of the rules. The decent disparity between the bodies of the dancers is demanded, absolutely, so dancing is seen, most perfect what is known in real life. The dances of the dancers, it becomes convincingly obvious, is a very important thing in the plan to prevent the evolution of dancing into wrestling. Of course, if the dancers are made to maintain a distance from each other that is the negative of proximity, wrestling holds are prevented.

The Journal would express both gratification and satisfaction that the wives of the Northwestern professors, who act as chaperons at university dances, have reached a decision in the matter. Wrestling is one thing and dancing is quite another. Any attempt to combine the two would result in the destruction of both, and while the Journal would be sorry for wrestling, it would rejoice if dancing, which is a healthy and enjoyable recreation, should be multiplied among the young people.

Organization is Urged.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 14.—Dan V. Green, member of the Executive Council of the Nebraska Farm Stock Association and Green and Lane stock association convention that are commencing here tomorrow, said the problem of getting what he termed the "right prices" for farm products.

He said farmers' agents should be stationed at central markets to keep in touch with the producer and when the latter had some stock to sell the agent would act as the broker, ask the price, and if it is too low, the producer could hold his stock at home. Such a scheme would prevent shrinkage, he declared.

The Early Days in Two Counties

From the Wayne Herald for December 19, 1901.

A daughter was born on December 15, to Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lane. The trains have been in the habit of being late pretty generally during the cold spell.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Sloan Skiles Friday evening, December 13.

M. Ward of Harding, S. D., and Mrs. Della M. Blakesley of Carroll, were united in marriage.

Frank Reising and Rosa Ellis of Albion, were married at the Methodist parsonage yesterday.

Claus Lage fell accidentally in getting up out of a rocking chair and sustained a dislocation of the hip.

D. is reported that Hoskins is to have a drug store, a butcher shop and a hardware store in the near future.

The coldest winter ever known in December, was that of Friday and Saturday, the thermometer registering twenty-four degrees below zero Saturday morning, and as a result, few farmers ventured to face the demand to come to this city.

Miss Maude Beneshoff will have a Christmas tree and appropriate gifts at her home in the Hughes district Christmas eve.

As in years past, there will be no holiday vacation, the only day off being Christmas day, and aside from that the work will go on as usual.

College notes: Through the courtesy of the railroad company, students may secure holiday rates as early as December 20, and good to December 30.

Mrs. Frank Fuller and sons, Ben and Trevett, have left for Washington, D. C., where they will spend the winter. They will visit in Chicago with Mr. and Mrs. P. A. DeBorchert.

Mrs. Nick Hanson who resided near LaPorte, took some concentrated lye by mistake and died from the effects. A doctor was hurriedly summoned and everything possible was done to relieve her suffering. The deceased was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jans. She leaves a husband and six children.

Wayne's improvements during the year show a total cost of $34,700. Among the new buildings are the new brick M. E. church, costing $17,000; D. C. Main's residence, costing $9,000; and Herman Henney's residence, costing $1,300. The Nebraska Normal college has erected a new dormitory at the expense of $8,000. Three brick business blocks are to be built in the spring.

The Misses Bayer gave a 5 o'clock tea. The rooms were decorated with ferns. Each guest was asked to write a love story with every word commencing with "L". Miss Craven received the prize for writing the best story. These present were Misses Craven, Mary and Jennie Mettles, Mason, Brookings, Davis, Wilson, Weber, Britton, Phillips and Mrs. Surber.

Everybody Satisfied.

Kansas City Star: Charles W. Morse cabled from France that he would like to return if the federal authorities wanted him, and the federal authorities called him to do so at once, as they did want him. The popular thought here ought to be glad so simply and easily.

Tip for Song Writers.

Yank Press and Dakotan: "It isn't what you call it, but it is that counts," says Senator Borah. The popular thought here ought to be able to do something with it, whether the diplomats can or not.

December.

They do you wrong, rare season of the snows.

Of crystal grottoes built by fairy hands;

They have no praise but for the June-brown rose.

For "crystal" gold, as plenteous as the sands.

There are no blossoms on December boughs.

But these are dreams within December hearts;

The firelight throes its cheer athwart the night

And wakes the fancy to a wild career;

Youth lives again; and hobbling age departs;

Love, spurned of old, returns to play her parts.

And heaven dawns, amid the golden light.

The spring is sweet, when lilies burst the mold,

And summer gardens arc as dear as song.

October boughs bend low with rustling gold,

But to December brightest thoughts belong.

Then comes the snow, which in a night mingles with the wind,

Can rear a palace fit for Gullenveig; The best of care goes skulking to its den

As children laugh beneath the frosty snow,

And such scenes can any shed a tear.

For roses dead, for branches stark and bare,

Hear high the wood! Glad Winter's here again!

Coterie Dinner Party.

The Coterie club and their husbands enjoyed a dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Ley, Tuesday evening. Little Lulu Marie Ley received at the door and presented the guests with tally cards made in the shape of Christmas bells, stockings, trees and leaves, in red and green color combinations. The rooms were artistically decorated with Christmas trees and garlands. The fireplace was hung with red stockings and the lights were shaded with red crepe paper shades. The table center piece were in keeping with the Christmas season. Christmas trees, a sparkling snow man and snow banks with miniature sleighs and riders, an ice pond with skaters and glistening snow on the banks. Hanging upon tiny Christmas trees at each appointed place were the place cards in the form of paper toys. A great Christmas stocking was hung containing a gift for each one of the guests. As some of the presents were musical instruments the guests were entertained by a real royal band.

Following the dinner, the remainder of the evening was spent in music and cards. The committee in charge of the affair were Mrs. W. E. Jenkins, Mrs. A. T. Cavanaugh and Mrs. E. E. Elsworth. Miss Goldie Chase and J. W. Strahan were guests of the club.

Former Wayne Man Relates Experiences

Professor F. M. Gregg of Nebraska Wesleyan University, spent Tuesday and Wednesday of this week in Wayne. He was head of the science department of the old Nebraska Normal College under the presidency of friends in Wayne and in northeast Nebraska. Professor Gregg came up to Wayne for the first time in 1898, when the Wesleyan endowment drove, but took time from a busy day to accord an interview to a representative of the Herald. He is very generally well interested in what he had to say:

"What do you think of Wayne's growth and development since you first knew it?"

"When I first came to Wayne this morning I could not help thinking of the difference in the appearance of Wayne since I first saw it. That was in September, 1898, and President Pitt met Mrs. Gregg and me (nowadays) in the old phaton house by the depot. As we went up the long slope toward the stand-pipe in the middle of the street, I had the feeling that Wayne was a somewhat raw but very promising western town. As one looks up that long slope now and makes the same drive in a modern automobile, over the magnificent pavement, one is impressed with the fact that there is a splendid modern metropolis. Here are many most attractive buildings, the streets are well paved and the streets and alleys are so much better kept."

"When I saw in the Wayne city council in later connection with Reg. Guertner, Goldie and Judge Brittain, we installed a new electric light plant, and voted to accept Dresser Park and began its development. But the ill kept streets were always a source of irritation to me. It was in those days that that famous farmer residing in the city before the council asking that a resolution be passed requiring automobile drivers (Dr. Leisinger, particularly) to cover a "red devil" with a red cloth before an oncoming team should pass the "red devil" of the highway."

"What change do you note in the Wayne Normal?"

"It was impossible for anyone in the old days of the Nebraska Normal college to conceive the picture that the new Wayne Normal now presents. One wishes that President Pile might return to earth and behold the transformation. In my judgment, the Wayne Normal is the most superbly and best housed educational institution in Nebraska. President Cannon has been a great builder, and best of all, he has kept the Normal free from the political aroma that has arisen from every other state institution except the Madison normal. It is a great achievement."

"What can Wayne do to add to its attractiveness as a residence city?"

"I have been saying this all the years that I have lived in Wayne as one of the finest places in which to live that I know in the state. From the physical side, Wayne now has every desirable feature for a modern city. Soberly, it is not too old and staid, and it is equally fortunate. The curse of modern society is 'corporations' by which we are the victims of folks to fall into small groups and to pray to the Lord to 'bless me and my wife, my son John and his wife, my daughter and her husband.'"

"Down in Oklahoma they have been having a great contest among the cities to discover which city could make the best showing as a place for a man to grow up in. I have not learned the outcome of the contest, but it is a great idea. One of the things which is the relative church and Sunday school attendance. Any town that does not exalt the higher social life, but substitutes for it small and selfish group indulgences is certain not to progress. Every church should have a committee or a sub-committee which will include social, recreational and academic activities are included in the scheme. Commercialized recreations are slow in determining the moral fiber of modern society, and the church can and must supply the medium of democratized and wholesome social contacts. It can easily be shown from physiological psychology, from biology and from sociology that dancing where there is a free contact of the sexes, is demoralizing, especially to high school boys and girls. It is the business of the churches to afford a higher type of social recreation. There are a number of the churches in Nebraska doing this thing successfully, notably one of the churches in Kearney."

"How is the Nebraska Wesleyan endowment coming on?"

"Last Saturday night the subscriptions total over $50,000. The previous nights of this week it will have passed the million mark. Next Sunday will see another $100,000 subscription. In that way the final lap of $227,500 will be covered in four days. It is inconceivable that the 7,400 Methodists of Nebraska will permit the source of the most prevalent religious leadership to fail through lack of support."

"Nebraska Wesleyan University is endeavoring to teach a modern social gospel without surrendering any of the vital fundamentals that have been held down through the years. In a generation it has prepared 99 preachers and thirty or more. There are scores of other students who have 700 students, of whom the majority are preparing for the ministry and as many for foreign missions. There are scores of other students who are definitely decided

Pilger Defeated by Wayne Cage Team

The Wayne high school basketball team defeated the Pilger high school team before about two hundred spectators at the opera house, Saturday evening, by a score of 14-10. The Pilgers made only two field baskets, ringing in the rest of the total score by free throws. The Wayne boys showed lack of training, since the senior practice had just begun, and they fouled considerably, giving their opponents opportunity to increase the score. The line-up included Peterson and Latta as centers, Stone, Moran and West as forwards, Brainard, Rippon and Keesey as guards.

Friday evening a double header will be staged with Carroll high school, at the opera house. The two first teams will meet and the Wayne Pilgers will play the Carroll second team. A good game is expected as the Carroll teams have been practicing longer than the Wayne players.

The Farmer Should Advertise. Drivers Journal-Stockman: No longer is the farmer so isolated, isolated. Modern conditions, the railroad, the telegraph, the auto and the telephone, have created popular communities where formerly there existed only lonely homesteads. Whether he waters it or mires it, his farm and family are no longer cut off to a great extent from society; they are part and parcel of the neighborhood, the only difference between the city and the country neighborhood being the matter of distances—"squares" in the city and "sections" in the country.

Those who are farmers who have been "ground out" they have altered the occupation of farming as well as the character of the farmer. Agricultural in recent years has become less and less merely work, labor from morning to night, a constant warfare against the elements of nature, a wresting of a living from the soil. Agriculture is now a real business, an avocation, a profession. This too has been forced on the farmer. He must recognize it and live up to it, or he must fall behind in the race.

To another thing the farmer must do is advertise. Every good business man is a good advertiser and the successful farmer nowadays must be a good business man. He has a broad and one thing to advertise, things to sell and things to buy, and he has access to the same advertising mediums as the city man. His "display front" is certainly much larger and more attractive than the city store owner. If the passing crowds are not enough, the columns of his county paper invite him to offer bargains to his neighbors while his daily farm paper gives him a still wider field in which to find both bargains and buyers.

In short, the modern farmer is a business man, not perhaps that he particularly wants to be, but because he is compelled to be, and for this reason he must study the use of business methods and apply these methods to his line of production. No business succeeds nowadays without organization and order and plenty of advertising, and the farmer who would make a success of his business today must work along these lines.

Letter Describes the Army and Navy Game

Mrs. G. J. Robertson of Brooklyn, N. Y., in a recent letter to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Keith, gives an interesting description of the Army-Navy football game which was played in New York Thanksgiving day. Lieutenant Robertson was recently transferred from a naval hospital station near Chicago to the eye, nose and throat department of the New York navy yards dispensary and for the game—Lieut. and Mrs. Robertson had inside sheltered seats at the game. The reserved seats for the Navy people. Extracts from Mrs. Robertson's letter show the great interest which centers around this annual game.

"The Army vs. Navy game was a wonderful sight. Always known as a spectacle, this was especially so because of the large attendance of the foreign army and navy officers in this country, who came up from Washington. Of course the weather man chose this day to give us a down-pour—but there wasn't an empty seat in that vast stadium and seats were at a premium. Army and navy officers were given seats but outsiders were paying ridiculous prices for them. We know of one man that morning who gave another man story for ten seats. Newspapers claim that there were over 50,000 at the game.

"Before the teams came on the field, the West Point cadets and Annapolis midshipmen each gave a drill and exhibition. This is a spectacle that only one football game can boast of and old grey heads say it never becomes tiresome. As one newspaper puts it, 'it is the one game that claims the interest of every American boy, woman and child, whether within the spacious boundaries of the country or in foreign lands.' It is a clean-cut, well-kept, sportsmanlike struggle between Uncle Sam's two greatest and most honorable arms of service. Who could help being enthusiastic? The crowd was close to tears and cheers when a glimpse was caught of the entrance of those rival regiments, spruce and span in their blue and gray. First enter the grounds were the midshipmen from Annapolis, headed by the famous navy bands; next, the cadets led in a grand march with shining brass buttons on solemn gray uniforms. No one can describe their column tents and circles by four, but every one held his breath. And when they broke ranks for their seats, the cheering sections broke forth in those inimitable roars, with no other college song more appropriate than the song of the navy with a score of 7-0 and the minute it was over the midshipmen rushed from the stands into the field—a pell-mell mass of blue. Under the goal posts they danced in that sea of mud and water, while they looked on in smiling approval, and foreign notables in open-mouthed wonder at 'American pep.'

"The weather failed to keep any of the leaders in military and civil society at home. The presidential party sat on the army side during the first half of the game and at the intermission of halves walked across the middle of the field, mud and all, to line themselves up with the forces of the navy. Secretary of War Weeks and Secretary of Navy Denby were both present on their respective sides of the field. General Pershing was up to the neck in looking on in illness, but he sent his direct representatives. Representing the city of New York was Mayor Hylan and his official staff. Also there were foreign notables, who played thump from national affairs at Washington and Europe. The foreign delegations were generals, diplomats and naval officers in strange uniforms and accoutrements. The foreign delegations made such a splash of color. Foremost of these was the much beloved Marshal Foch of France. General Lord Vaux, the hero of England, was conspicuous because of the red insignia, he wears on his cap. Admiral Eberle, commander of the Pacific fleet, jotted down notes from the Pacific coast, just to see the game. It was a rare sight—and a game marked by affectionate interest and indulgent good humor on both sides."

What an Editor Sees At Rochester, Minn.

Law Shelley, editor of the Fairbanks News, who is at Rochester, Minn., for an operation at the hands of the Mayo specialists, writes his paper interestingly from that place, and the following excerpts will be read with interest generally:

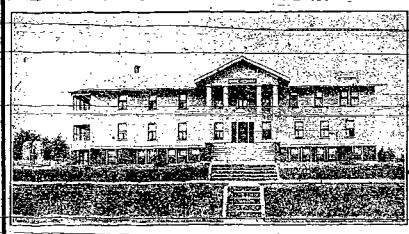

For three days now Mrs. Shelley and myself have been milling around the streets of Rochester, Minn., in the corridors of the Mayo clinic building in this land of fog, hotels, hospitals and heterogeneous cripples. Most people in this day and age have seen Rochester, Minnesota, and it is well they have, for it would be very hard for one who had just emerged from the horrors of the night to give an unbiased pen picture of the place.

Everyone here will tell you that Rochester has 15,000 inhabitants, although one hotel man was honest enough to admit to me that 5,000 of this number is transient. The town has seventeen hospitals and forty-four hotels—good ones, too. In the hotels, on the street, in the restaurants and stores, everywhere you are continually passing a mournful procession of invalids whose looks indicate they have left all hope behind. When I talked to some of the people I see here I am ashamed to admit that I ever had any trouble. A man in the lobby of my hotel asked me this morning what I was here for and when I told him I expected to have an operation he said, "Lucky man!" When I asked him to explain himself, he said, "Well, my trouble is where they dare not operate, and there is nothing left for me but to go home and die."

I met another fellow in the clinic today who was scheduled for four major operations which would require a year in the hospital. His wife was dead and he had six small children dependent upon him, while previous hospital bills for the family had taken all his money. That fellow has troubles!

And so I say, if you sometimes think the cards are stacked against you in this battle of life, come to Rochester and you may find out that you have much to be thankful for.

Omaha World-Herald Sees Wayne Bungalow

The Omaha World-Herald of December 10, gives the following description of R. A. Clark's bungalow on wheels, en route to California:

Has Omaha beat the world on a traveling automobile bungalow? It looked that way when a family of eight started from 4615 Grant street, Omaha for Los Angeles, in a twenty-foot, two-hundred-pound bungalow with an observation-platform in the rear, and every convenience for modern housekeeping within.

For the past six months R. A. Clark, assisted by H. E. Griggs has been building this wonder-work, and each day has seen some added improvement. Some ingenious design make it a perfect abode, and traveling machine.

This is a description of it as given by Mr. Griggs: as he deftly opened and closed, raised and lowered the multitude of conveniences one would rarely have believed could have been put in, unless each had been demonstrated.

It has an eighteen and one-half foot wheel base—a base for thirty-six and one-half feet wide; sixteen windows, a kitchen in the rear containing a cold process, gas range with a small tank underneath which by a system of air pressure converts the gas into a perfect gas, a kitchen cupboard beside it and a sink in the rear corner. Just room between them all for the cook to turn around in. In the center are benches on each side with movable chairs, which can be swung to one side and hooked to the wall when a passage way is necessary, and after the family sitting on the benches on each side have eaten dinner from it swung in the middle it can be cleared off and thrown away up to the ceiling entirely out of the way.

An Adjustable Table. At one end a table is fixed on one side adjusted and hooked, and a chiftoner on the other. Above the half partition is a good mirror. Between the benches swung by wires from the ceiling is a table which can be swung to one side and hooked to the wall when a passage way is necessary, and after the family sitting on the benches on each side have eaten dinner from it swung in the middle it can be cleared off and thrown away up to the ceiling entirely out of the way.

The front end is occupied by a very comfortable revolving seat for the driver, and another beside it possessing in need a toilet. The door is at the side of front. In the rear of enclosed part is an extension platform suspended by wires with hood above, that can be raised against the back when desired. Underneath are tanks for 40 gallons each of water, a 50-gallon one for gasoline.

Both Mr. Clark and Mr. Griggs are carpenters by trade, and Mr. Clark has been ten years in the automobile business. But he says, "when I see a car that I desire to move he is not carefully good until he satisfies his desire, so I am spending about all I own on this and when I get to California I shall start in again." If he counted his labor it would have cost him at least $5,000, he says. He made his own chassis; the rear wheels, 38x7 cost over $230, and if any doubt as to the ability of the mechanism to do its work a look at them removed it. The engine is a Studebaker.

All the family, and Mrs. Clerk, Robert and Harold and Charles, Ruth and Doris are equally enthusiastic over the trip, and Mr. Griggs, who has a family of children grown and married, leaving him alone seems the happy good uncle of the family.

The expect to take the southern route and soon be away from the possibility of cold and storms. Mrs. Clark does not seem at all worried about the prospect of preparing the "best" for the family.

Inter-Collegiate Association Meets

Lincoln Journal: York will forfeit the football games she won prior to her game with Cotner this fall for playing an ineligible man. This decision was reached Saturday afternoon by the Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association in its annual meeting at the Y. M. C. A. The two games which York won prior to Cotner's charge that she was playing an ineligible man were with Peru and Hastings.

R. D. Overhalt of Peru, was elected president of the conference for the coming year, F. E. Weir of Hastings, was elected vice-president; and H. A. Pease of Keesee was chosen secretary-treasurer. A committee of three, W. E. Tiberg of Midland, J. A. Moss of Cotner and F. E. Weir of Hastings, was appointed as a championship committee for the coming year.

The spring track meet of the conference will take place May 20 at Hastings. Wesleyan was considered but Hastings, owing to her inability to take the meet at the last moment last year, was given prior consideration.

The championship committee reported on awards and gave the 1920 basketball championship to Doane, the 1920 track championship to Wesleyan and the 1921 football crown to the Methodists as well.

Graduates of Wayne Normal Send Letters

At the 15th annual gathering of the graduates of the Wayne State Normal, it was decided that one-fourth of each member of the alumni association should write President S. C. Daley of his whereabouts and adding any interesting items about his work. The first week in November was set for the time for the writing of letters, and during that week and since then, numerous letters have been received. A few extracts from these letters were selected by Miss Clara Schaefer, school registrar, and they follow:

Charles Daley, president of the class of 1920, writes a very interesting letter regarding his work. He is now attending Clarkson College of Technology at Potsdam, N. Y., taking electrical engineering. Relative to his change of residence from the west to the east he writes: "My impression of the east here as compared with the west has not yet been formed, but it is safe to say that there seems to be a noticeable difference in the attitude between the young people in general. The majority of them seem to be more interested in having a good time instead of preparing for some life service. This, I think, is a fault of the age as the average high school boy and girl without having learned to think and of course, spend about two-thirds of his college life in trying to get the habit. My training at Wayne has been a great help in these things and I cannot help but wonder."

the University of Minnesota this year.

Paul Becker, '15, attends a coaching school at the University of Illinois. He reads the library-organized editions, "To Coach Dole and the team that tied for the state football honor."

Edna Clayton, '16, is in Omaha this year engaged in work with the Northwestern-Bell Telephone company.

Joe Cox, '20, attending Massachusetts Institute of Technology is ranked a regular junior and finds his work more difficult than that of the average student. Mr. Cox is employed part time in the postoffice.

E. V. Cutsokos, '13, has the position of chief clerk to the superintendent of the Black Hills division of the C. & N. W. Railway company, and lives at Chadron, Neb.

Interesting Report From City Library

A recent work of the work accomplished by the city library shows the wide range of territory and people deriving benefit from its use. The report for the year ending September 30, 1921, is summarized that the library at the Wayne State Teachers' college fills the literary desires of a large group of the city people besides the students of that institution.

During the month of November, 304 books were loaned to adult, 541 books, children and young people. Among the most popular books were "The Brimma Cup," "The Flaming Forest," "The Pride of Valmar," and "Helen of the Old House."

Reference books were read extensively. The librarian recently sent letters to Laurence, requesting connection with a club program. Books have also been sent to Wisney and Carroll.

Enough fines are taken in to pay for postage, magazine covers, folders and other small items.

She contemplates further study along the lines of education at Columbia University next summer.

Miss Genevieve Hanley, '17, is teaching her fifth year in the Butte, Mont. city school. In the Butte system there are twenty-three schools, not including parochial and private schools. Miss Hanley is teaching second primary work.

suffered a fracture of the ankle in that accident and was just able to be about on crutches when he was killed by the train. It is believed that on account of the injuries to his ankle he lost control of his car and was unable to stop it before it appeared in front of the on-rushing train.

Early advices from Creston stated that the train was about an hour late and Mr. Luedtke, thinking it had already gone, came down a steep hill without using much precaution. This theory, however, is not substantiated in reports to the railroad office here, which states that the accident occurred at 4:30 p. m., while train No. 309 is due at Creston at 4:20 p. m.

Fatal Auto Accident.
Norfolk Daily News: Struck by a train on the crossing one-half mile east of Creston Tuesday afternoon, Herbert Luedtke of Creston was almost instantly killed and the car which he was driving was demolished by thirty yards and demolished. There were no witnesses to the accident and information from Creston is meagre. According to reports reaching Norfolk, Luedtke was struck by Chicago and Northwestern train No. 309 at 4:30 p. m. Tuesday. Conductor A. McGregor and Engineer W. N. Fisher were in charge of the train which was running about thirty miles an hour and the engineer did not see the automobile until it was too late to stop. Luedtke died while he was being taken from the demolished car.

Dr. P. L. Fink of Newman Grove, was on the train and gave what assistance he could and the body was taken to Newman Grove.

Mr. Luedtke was a young farmer of near Creston, about 22 years old, and unmarried.

According to advices received from Creston by the Northwestern offices here, Luedtke was in an accident about two months ago with a runaway team of horses. He

Importance of Dairy Cow to Every Home

Drovers' Journal—Stockman: "The cow is the mother of prosperity," said Ralph A. Payne of the agricultural extension department of the International Harvester company in a recent address before the agricultural committee of the Omaha Chamber of Commerce. "What is a home without a cow? The cow, of all farm animals, produces the most food and the best food at the least cost. She converts the cheap roughage of the farm into protein, and you people of Nebraska, with millions of tons of roughage on the farm, should well make note of this fact. Go to any dairy community of the United States where proper methods prevail that you will find that the community is prosperous."

Food Produced by Cows.
 Referring to the utility of the cow and the food produced by her, the speaker during the course of a single year was equal to the food value in the bodies of five 110-pound men. An excellent way to compare the relative values of farm animals is to compare the amounts of human food produced by these animals from each 100 pounds of crops with which they are fed. Making these comparisons Mr. Hayne stated that "it is not at all surprising that a cow brought eighteen pounds of milk for food: When 100 pounds of food was fed to a pig, fifteen and seven pounds of pork were produced; to a calf, eight and one-half pounds of food; to poultry, four and two-tenths pounds, and when 100 pounds of crop materials were fed to sheep, two and six-tenths pounds of food was the result."

"We do not take into adequate consideration the food value of milk," said Mr. Hayne. Milk is one of the finest possible foods for the child. Within the last few years we have heard of the vitamins and their relation to the development of the body and to health. The work of Dr. McCullion has shown that milk contains much of this vitamin material. I expect five years of my life in the south, in that section which is occupied by the poor whites, I have met the boys and the girls of that section in the schools, who have talked with them. I wish that you could have seen them, undernourished, emaciated, afflicted with hookworms and with other diseases which are the result of undernourishment. You could go into that region and not find an average of more than one to 100 acres of land. The children lacked the milk and the other essential materials that are found in milk. Mr. Hayne then showed a picture of two rats, one of which had been nourished on cottonseed oil and the other on butterfat. The butterfat-fed rat was healthy and well developed in comparison with the undernourished condition of the other. He stated that the difference in the essential food contents of these two materials, particularly the vitamin content, was the reason for the difference.

Leslie News
 Chas. Thompson purchased a car load of feeders last week. Mr. and Mrs. Jens Jensen spent Thursday with home folks. Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Chign were business callers in Leslie last week. Carl Leonard purchased about forty stock hogs of Austin Bressler last week. Revival meetings are on a full swing at Pleasant Valley. Everybody is welcome. Asen Neuenberger put down a new well on his farm tenanted by Anton Nelson. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jahnke were entertained at a duck dinner at John Lott's Thursday. J. P. Clauson and son, Clarence, went to Omaha last week where each purchased a car load of cattle. Mrs. Geo. Buskirk, jr., is suffering from a severely sprained wrist as the result of cranking a Ford. Mr. and Mrs. Jens Jensen were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank, near Wayne last Saturday.

Dairying and Soil Fertility.
 Dairying is of much importance solely from the standpoint of soil fertility, according to Mr. Hayne in his paper, "The Dairyman's Interest in Marketing Those Products which Take Away from the Farm the Minimum of Those Fertile Elements Necessary to Make Our Farms Fertile." He then showed the following table illustrating the value of the plant foods found in various milk products from the farm.

Value of plant foods in marketed products:

Three tons alfalfa	$28.42

Two tons clover	16.89
Fifty bushels corn	14.70
Fifty bushels oats	9.70
2,500 pounds milk	2.50
400 pounds fat cattle	1.90
500 pounds fat hogs	2.40
100 pounds butter	1.50

The table shows that marketing fat cattle, fat hogs, milk and butter removes from the farm a minimum amount of plant food as compared with marketing alfalfa, clover, corn and oats. Mr. Hayne pointed out that marketing dairy products in the form of butter involved a very small amount of plant food as compared with the skim milk on the farm for feed for calves, pigs, etc. "It is a mistake to think that all dairymen are prosperous," said Mr. Hayne. "In the state of New York there are many farmers who milk cows and who sell all of their milk on the market. They have no milk-by-products as is the case of the farmers who separate their milk and sell cream or butter. We find that at the present time these New York farmers are hit pretty hard. On the other hand, we find that where the dairy farmer has part of his milk home in the feeding of children, calves, pigs and chickens, he is the one who is enjoying the greatest amount of prosperity. He does not put all of his eggs in one basket."

Differences in Cows.
 "A lot of folks do not realize the disadvantages of the cow in the buying of cows," said Mr. Hayne. "Of course cows have to be bought, but considerable care is necessary in the buying. In no testing proper discretion in the buying of cows, one may secure cows that are apt to be culls, cows that have some disease or that are not adapted to the local conditions. Such producers that they do not produce enough to pay the cost of keeping, and cows that cannot improve the herd. We have learned that there are great differences in cows. We have four methods of finding out the real value of a cow: First—four wire the milk scales; the Babcock test, the feed record and the milk record."

"In Illinois, there was a certain cowtesting association organized. One man was made the laughing stock of the neighborhood because he had only one cow on which to keep records. One of his neighbors had forty cows. A record was kept of the production and of the feed consumed. At the end of the year the man who had only one cow reported that he had made a profit of $34.00 for the forty cows and his wife family had labored hard during the year. The trouble was that he had the wrong kind of cows."

When Mr. Hayne stated that he was glad that the committee were interested in the establishment of more dairying in the state of Nebraska, his audience seemed to mean more prosperity.

MINE BOSS SAYS HE WAS HELPLESS

Arizona Man Was Simply Down and Out and Couldn't Even Move Himself - Feels Fine Now.

Harry E. Scott, a well known mine boss, whose address is Box 669, Douglas, Arizona, writes: I was down and out nearly all the time with rheumatism and finally got to where I couldn't even move, even feed myself. My wife thought I would never get well again and she knew my condition better than any one else.

It was absolutely helpless when my wife started to die. She had been in four days' state a heavy meal for the first time in many months. Taking puting on my feet and I am back on my job, working hard and feeling just fine. I have gained eighteen pounds in weight, too.

Result of Governor's Price Investigation

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 9. - Synopsis of findings of the state board of investigation into the subjects of wheat, corn, barley and eggs, to be sold with labor and transportation, their distribution, conducted by direction of Governor McKelvie, was announced today. No recommendations were made by subjects - the findings briefly follow:

Wheat - Farm labor reduced in the early part of 1920 nearly 50 per cent, but rents of farm lands remained uniform during period of 1919 to 1920 inclusive. During 1920 wheat sold by the producer netted him an average of about $2.45 a bushel; during the early part of marketing season of 1921, wheat retailed at about $3 per bushel, having since been reduced to an average of 90 cents per bushel.

Flour - Considering millers are able to buy their mixture wheat at an average price of $1.10 per bushel, we find they can dispose of their by-products for approximately 20 cents for each bushel milled. It is shown that the increase in value of flour over wheat is about 48 cents per bushel of wheat, or about 57 per cent advance. Price of flour to the retailer at $1.65 per sack is being sold by the retailer to the consumer at from $2 to $2.30.

Baker's Profit Large.

Bread - Fifty-six so-called pound loaves of bread are obtained from one bushel of wheat, the latter costing $1.92. Adding ingredients, these 56 loaves are being sold to retailers at 6 cents per loaf, which realizes a total of $3.36 for the baker, or an increase of 155 per cent over the price he paid for the flour and an amount the housewife pays for the amount of flour used.

Corn - The farmer receives about 25 to 30 cents per bushel for corn in selling to the miller, feed yard and elevators. A bushel of corn is milled into about 20 pounds of hominy feed and about 36 pounds of cornmeal or a net to miller of about 50 cents for corn from each bushel milled. That part of a bushel of corn going into cornmeal is commensal or a net to miller of about 50 cents, the packer, in five pound bags, 72 cents and the retailer $1.08, paid by the consumer.

Flour - Spring variety wheat net the farmer 16 cents a pound is sold by the wholesale dealer at about 50 per cent over the price paid the producer. The consumer pays for the bread in dressing, which increase is about equal divided.

48 Per Cent Increase. - Eggs - Fresh eggs are being sold for an average of about 50 cents per dozen by the producer and mostly disposed by the retailer at about 70 cents. The average consumer pays about 45 per cent for eggs the year around than the average producer receives.

Restaurants - Lincoln restaurants arrange a business basis so that food or raw material shall cost about 30 per cent of the service price, labor and other expenses 15 per cent, leaving a profit of from 10 to 15 per cent.

The Lincoln hearings have been completed and the board announces similar investigations may be conducted in other cities of the state in the near future.

Chicken-thieves, who had stolen chickens between West Point and Oakland, have been arrested and pleaded guilty to the charge. They had stolen the fowls and then sold them in Stanton and Wisner. The men had caught many more birds; chickens were found in a haystack and the fender laid in wait for the return of the thieves.

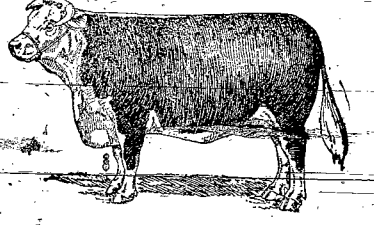

Carl C. Danneberg, Emerson, recently returned from a three weeks' hunting trip in the extreme northern part of Saskatchewan, Canada. The object of the trip which he made with a Sioux City friend, was to kill a moose. They were accompanied by guides and Mr. Demme succeeded in making his kill after ten days away from headquarters and about forty-five miles from any camp. His kill will reach Emerson about the first of January. The animal was killed across a large swamp which had not frozen sufficiently to hold up a team

Car Owners Select New License Numbers

Much interest has been evinced in the selection of 1922 license numbers by Wayne county automobile owners. As an entirely new system of numbering has been instituted in the state this year, owners are not to renew numbers as in former years. Wayne county's serial number is 27 and the individual license numbers will range from 1 to 2000 at the present. Various requests were made for specific numbers by seekers after 1922 number plates. County Treasurer W. O. Hansen reserved 27-1 for his own car. Leslie Ellis, clerk of the district court and C. H. Fisher both requested possession of license number 27-13. The latter won out as he backed his request with a wish to duplicate his telephone number. Leslie Ellis selected 27-23 as second choice. Charles Reynolds, county clerk, at his request, possessed the number 27-37. The number 27-1886 was given to an automobile owner who wished the license number to be that of the year of his birth. The first truck license went to David Herner of Pender.

counties reporting over 100,000 acres each in winter wheat.

The southern and western parts of the state showed a noticeable increase in acreage, while the north-east district reported a slightly smaller acreage, the report generally reads.

Christmas Bells.
I heard the bells on Christmas day
Their old familiar carols play,
And wild and sweet

Of peace on earth, goodwill to men!
And thought how, as the day had Passed, the hours of Christmas
The trifles of all Christendom
Had rolled along
Of the unbroken song
Of peace on earth, goodwill to men!
Till, ringing, singing on my way,
The world revolved from night to day,
A voice a chime
A chant sublime
Of peace on earth, goodwill to men!
Then from each black accursed mouth
The cannon thundered in the south,
And with the sound
The carols drowned
Of peace on earth, goodwill to men!

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 12.—The cultivated land in Nebraska totaled 16,107,050 acres in 1921, inclusive of the same hay acreage, according to assessors' reports to the department of agriculture.

Corn was planted to 45 per cent of this area, winter wheat 23 per cent, oats 16 per cent, and alfalfa 7 per cent, according to the reports. The remaining 9 per cent was devoted to minor crops such as spring wheat, rye, barley, speltz, popcorn, potatoes, sugar beets, hay and beans.

"Over the Hill" To Be Shown in Wayne

One of the great epoch-making photoplays of many years is the beautiful William Fox photo drama of mother-love entitled, "Over the Hill," which will be seen at the Crystal Theatre in Wayne, December 22, 23 and 24.

Founded upon the famous poem by Will Carleton, this simple story of the devotion of a mother for her children in spite of the trials and tribulations to which they subjected her, is one of the most appealing and lovable stories ever screened. Staged under the direction of Harry Milind, it has roused the great strength with the public upon the simple theme and plain story of a mother and her family whom she would risk her life to protect.

There is no suggestion of big massive scenes, no spectacular effects, no excess—nothing but the simple, thrilling and powerful story that touches the heart of all humanity and brings everyone to realize the love and affection with which a mother's memory should always be revered.

Produced in New York by William Fox in September of 1920, without ostentation, without undue exploitation, without any furore or newspaper works, the fame of the simple and beautiful picture "Over the Hill" spread like wild-fire. All who saw it sent hundreds of their friends. Newspapers hailed it as one of the great and crowning artistic triumphs of the motion picture world. Clergymen preached sermons about it. Editors wrote editorials advising every mother's son and daughter to see "Over the Hill." The result of this word-of-mouth advertising was to send such crowds to see "Over the Hill" that William Fox repeatedly extended the engagement, leasing one theatre after another and moving "Over the Hill" continuously until it was finally presented at six different theatres on Broadway. It must be remembered also that "Over the Hill" was presented in leading first class Broadway theatres, at the top scale of $2.00 for the best seats, and for many weeks this single attraction playing daily matinees drew the remarkable gross business of more than $22,000 per week. These figures are absolutely accurate and have been the marvel of all who have been familiar with the presentation of feature pictures on Broadway. The story of "Over the Hill" deals with a mother, acted by Mary Carr, who endeavors to raise her children at that end in view she makes every sacrifice so that her children may have the proper schooling and comforts. Unfortunately her husband is a general good-for-nothing, who even goes so far as to become involved in a crime rather than work. In the family, there are four brothers and two sisters. John, the black-sheep of the family, is a lovable, haum-scarum boy, who is constantly getting into mischief; while Nancy, the eldest, is a cad and a hypocrite.

Finally, the children are grown to manhood and begin life's occupations. The cad, becomes a prosperous business man, and only John, the black-sheep, is left alone with his mother, although he, too, has a sweetheart. The father, careless, lazy, and good-for-nothing, is accused of horse-stealing, and endeavours to escape to protect his father from going to jail John takes upon himself the burden of the crime. It almost breaks the heart of his mother and of his pretty sweetheart when he is sent to prison for a crime he did not commit, but the weak father, hesitating to confess the truth, permits the sacrifice.

Three years pass. John is released from prison and comes back home to find his father is dead, his mother has been neglected by all of the other children, and the hypocritical Isaac has even appropriated for his own use the money that should have gone to support his aged mother. She has even been evicted from her own home and sent to the poorhouse. How John comes to the rescue, saves his mother from poverty, punishes his hypocritical brother and drags him through the streets, is told in vivid and dramatic scenes. John's faithful sweetheart, ever convinced of his innocence, welcomes him with open arms, and it is a happy home indeed when the mother returns to her old home to find that, although some of her children may have neglected her, the black-sheep turns out to be the only white one, all wool and a yard wide.

This beautiful and convincing story, and exquisite photoplay of mother-love, is presented with a special musical setting.

Putting Corn on the Table. Lincoln Trade Review: While there is nothing particularly new in the many ways and means suggested for increasing the use of corn as home food, there still awaits a widespread opportunity to push these many ideas to a more successful conclusion.

About a year ago the Federation of Nebraska Residents in convention passed resolutions urging a larger and more varied use of corn and in addition inaugurated a "corn week." The press of the state did its work in bringing to the attention of the people the many ways in which corn could be made a palatable dish with the result that this corn week was observed with success in many localities.

Since that time there has been held in scattered communities corn banquets fostered by the local chamber-of-commerce or other organizations and results have come from these dinners fully in proportion to the scale upon which this plan of education was undertaken.

We still need of corn dinners being held here and there over the state with the menu entirely of items such as corn bread, corn fritters, corn syrup, corn mush and on down the line of an almost unlimited number of corn dishes. These dinners are aided by talks and an open discussion on the ways and means of giving this idea a greater impetus and making it a move that would attract and bring universal attention to the use of corn as a food. These dinners are more than just a novel stunt. The possibilities of making a wider and hence a more permanent market for our greatest crop are opened up to every individual who attends such a dinner.

Every club in the state can well afford to take up this idea and develop it in the immediate community. At this particular time, when the character is prompted through a desire to meet the present emergency in lack of demand for corn. The possibilities of making a wider and hence a more permanent market for our greatest crop are opened up to every individual who attends such a dinner.

Mrs. W. S. Payne and daughter, Miss Clover, were called to Omaha Monday by the news that Dr. Payne who is in an Omaha hospital was not getting along as well as expected.

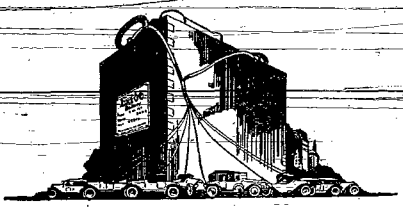

Mrs. Herbert Worth and son, Fritz, returned Sunday from Norfolk, where the father had been in a hospital for several weeks, following an accidental gun wound.

Rock County Prairie Fire Worst in Years

Bassett, Neb., Dec. 12.—Four persons were badly burned, one seriously, in one of the worst prairie fires this vicinity has experienced in a decade. The fire raged all day Saturday and Sunday, covered an area of over twenty miles and burned approximately 200 stacks of new hay.

Joseph Zink was severely burned on the face, arms and legs when his clothing caught fire while fighting the flames. His unfortunals were entirely burned from his body and it is thought a leather jacket which he had on under his unfortunals prevented him from suffering more serious injury.

John Hagemeister, Frank Keller and Mrs. John Strelow were painfully burned about the face. The fire was discovered four miles east of town Saturday afternoon and it was finally brought under control late that day after twenty-five stacks of hay had been destroyed. Guards were placed to watch the fire during the night and by morning it was thought safe to leave.

Flames Burst Out Afresh. About 9 o'clock Sunday morning the flames burst out with renewed fury and with the aid of a strong northwest wind, the conflagration swept down on farms and ranches, spreading ruin and devastation in its wake over a large territory, destroying crops and thousands of tons of hay in the stack. No homes were burned but many had narrow escapes.

The flames were soon far beyond control and distress calls were sent to Bassett and Newport and all available men from those places were rushed to the scene to try to stay the progress of the advancing flames. Later the fire fighters from those two places were reinforced by large bodies of men from Stuart, Atkinson and the south part of the county and even as far away as Keara. Many county on the north until there were over a thousand men trying to stop the mad rush of flames and save their homes.

Checked Near Farm Home. The fire was not safely under control until late Sunday afternoon, when the fighters succeeded in dividing it and heading one branch into a small creek where it died out. The other branch was stopped by fire guards on the edge of a farm home place, within a few feet of the house and barn.

It is estimated that the total loss of hay alone was approximately 220 stacks or between 1,500 and 2,000 tons. Out of a total of fifty-two stacks on one ranch, fifty were destroyed. Another farmer lost twenty stacks, all that was on a single quarter section of land.

The Enoka Valley school house was another place that narrowly escaped being consumed by the flames. The outside of the building was badly scorched but no other damage was done there.

One-Fifth National Budget

Lincoln Trade Review: The president's message in Congress this week was primarily a transmission to Congress of the proposed budget as drawn up by Director Dawes.

To those who have been skeptical about the possibility of effecting a real reduction in governmental expenditures, this presentation of the estimated costs for 1922, as compared with 1921 and the year just closed, shows that real progress has been made and that we can now go on with some real saving in governmental costs without sacrificing present or even increased expenditures for departments that will need an increase the next few years.

The budget as presented in the president's message calls for three and one-half billion dollars for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, an amount over $42,000,000 less than for the fiscal year that we are now in and over two billion dollars less than expended for the year ending June 30, 1921.

A comparison of the different items of the 1922 budget with the one for 1921 shows some appreciable cuts in expenditure and also an increase for some departments. The legislative, the treasury department, both the war and navy departments, the department of commerce, and the shipping and fleet department, all show reductions in their allotment for the year 1922. Yet, when it comes to expenditures for good roads, for the year 1922, there is to be an appropriation almost twenty per cent more than for this year. The department of labor will have more funds at hand and the government is providing for a greatly increased amount for use by the United States veterans' bureau as well as for the federal board for vocational education.

In this budget, in estimating total receipts for the year 1922, the government has not placed reliance on any income whatever. Instead, it has turned to loans to foreign governments, a source from which there was received over eighteen million dollars for the fiscal year just closed but for the future this income will not be taken into account until such time as the proposed funding operations are taken up.

It has only been a short time since provision was made for Mr. Dawes' bureau. The public had had word from time to time that possible savings that could be effected here and there, but the presentation to Congress this week of this budget for this year and the next year, does mean a realization of that thing for which Director Dawes has worked for.

This is practically the first time in history that the government has had drawn up for it an all-embracing statement and plan for the expenditure of public funds. At the very dawn of this country's history, at the time of Alexander Hamilton, such a budget was proposed, but was not carried into effect. Since all the years following this country has gone on paying out great sums, creating great deficiencies in the many departments and bureaus without any previously laid plans for obtaining this revenue nor any line of demarcation laid where such expenditures should cease.

With this budget system, with plans outlined in advance for public expenditures, the taxpayers will at least be informed more or less as to what is expected of them. They will be better informed as to where the money goes and there will not be the tendency on the part of the different departments to exceed all bounds in expending funds for their particular departments. The president's message is emphatic that efficiency appropriations, the bare of present day public financing, would be eliminated entirely, wherever possible.

This is just the beginning. As this budget idea is developed year by year, we will find ways and means for conducting necessary business at a lower proportionate cost. Ways for saving will be found in many quarters and the saving thus effected will in the end result in either decreasing costs to the taxpayer for the conduct of our government, or else these funds will find a better and larger use in the material public development work.

Lower Freight Rates on Grain

The new revenue bill just signed by the President of the United States eliminates transportation taxes and the effect of the new law is to repeal as of January 1, 1922, not only the 3 per cent tax on freight, but the 8 per cent tax on transportation of persons, and the 8 per cent tax on Pullman tickets.

It is also gratifying to this Exchange, as the department has agitated the repeal of this tax for the past year. We have been in constant communication with all our representatives in congress, placing before them facts and figures to increase the rates on the products of the farms, the returns, the burden placed upon same by the excessive freight taxes and finally the added burden of this tax.

Our representatives in congress were particularly impressed with our figures, where we pointed out to them that in arriving at the tax on freight of 3 per cent the Ways and Means Committee only took into consideration the rates in force in 1918, while as a matter of fact since that time the freight rates have almost doubled, thus placing by far a greater burden on freight than the Ways and Means Committee had originally intended.

How to Regard Reckless Driving—Omaha Bee: That truck driver who was discharged from his employment because of reckless driving will not find much sympathy. If the streets are to be made safe no means of discouraging careless driving must be avoided. If there are any employers whose schedule of work is such as to call for unduly fast travel by their chauffeurs, they should lighten the requirements. The blame is not always easily placed, though there are to be seen on the streets many youthful truck drivers who cannot yet have learned either caution or respect for the rights of others.

Another Side to Labor. Philadelpha Public Ledger: Organized labor is showing itself in proper forms in these strenuous days of new adventures in industry. The forms range from threats of nationwide strikes in the interest of wages to constructive efforts of an upbuilding kind. But the objection has been made against awarding the work that a navy yard cannot give a guarantee against cost exceeding the estimate. The employees of the navy yard want that job done there. It is something like 2,000 of them would be busy for at least a year. So they Omaha World-Herald: Some day there will be an awakening to the truth that our being a creditor nation is not all beer and skittles. Congress must awaken to the disadvantage at which our commerce compares with other nations while foreign exchange depreciation stands where it is. ### Poultry vs. Mining.

Sioux City Journal: The Home-State mine in the Black Hills is one of the richest and most productive gold mines in the world. The Sioux Falls Argus-Leader credits it with a production of $8,000,000 worth of gold per year. Large as that sum is, however, it is but one-fifth of the value of the product of the hens of the South Dakota farms, which amounts to $80,000,000 per year. Eggs are a by-product of most farms, but the figures suggest what the poultry industry might be made to produce if more attention were given to it. Beginning Wednesday, December 14 and ending Christmas eve, we will reduce the price of every man's suit and overcoat in stock one dollar each day excepting Sunday. You save a dollar every day. Suits and overcoats are plainly marked at bottom prices. Every morning, a dollar comes off the price. A suit worth $30.00 or an overcoat worth $30.00, sells for $29.00 on December 14, and so on until on Christmas eve you would pay only $20.00. Of course you run the risk by waiting of not getting the garment you want. You save each day, but delay might mean disappointment. See what we have to offer and make your choice. Watch the sliding scale of prices. But don't wait too long.

This is not a high-pressure sale---no wild closing out carnival. It is merely your opportunity to save materially on your new suit or overcoat and have it before Christmas.
