WILL WED PRINCESS

There is a new portrait of Victoria, princess who is engaged to marry Princess Mary, of England.

Letter From Coast For Herald Readers

220 Linden Ave., Long Beach, California, Dec. 21, 1921. To the Wayne Herald:—At this period of the year one's memory is especially drawn to word home and neighbors so will wish all a happy Christmas-tide.

Through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Ferguson I have been privileged to read the Herald each week. Now I am permanently located so should prefer to get it right at my door.

Second annual music week was observed here recently and I availed myself of the opportunity of hearing five very excellent programs. The 10 voices of the best singers in the city called the Oratorio society, gave an hour and half of beautiful concert. One evening Hollywood "700 strong" came and entertained us. Four hundred packed into the auditorium and two thousand were turned away.

poem "On Santa Claus" and gave the original version. "Glow-worm" is his to see her to love her; therefore her works. She tells she wrote "The End of a Perfect Day," while at the world renowned "Glow-worm Mission Inn" at Riverside after having spent a day on Mt. Rubidoux where the scene is one never to be forgotten. The entire Christmas program was given by the Long Beach high school and it was very creditable. One program was called, "The International Concert." Each person was dressed in the nation's regalia represented. A lady who spent several years in Alaska was reading relative to the North, Madame De Artil, the "Swiss Warbler," sang very beautifully. Two little girls danced the Highland Fling. One of the young ladies sang, accompanied by another Japanese lady who played by note, too. An Italian grand opera singer well known by hearing, although I did not understand the words, I thought the word "International" was correctly used here.

You can readily see I only mentioned some of the very best, and as all programs were free, it was well worth making a special effort to attend. I had not been in Long Beach week until I was invited to Riverside to visit friends and they insisted I stay ten days in order to be there for Armistice day. There were over 200 ex-service men and an excellent program was presented on the spacious front house lawn, and at 4 o'clock on beautiful Mt. Rubidoux a very impressive program was rendered: "Flag Day" call was given by scout bugler and raising of a fifty foot U. S. flag. Can you imagine how it looked swaying in the breeze on the mountain top? Sixteen other flags were stationed at intervals on the mountain-side and boy scouts were guarding them.

An impressive program followed. Then just as it was real dark searchlights illuminated the cross and others in pagant "Peace." During the program eight sworn judges dressed in flowing robes marched slowly up the mountain-side to funeral games played by the band; being met by the figure of peace who greeted them and bestows upon them the "arms of peace," then all followed her up to the foot of the cross where one in white flowing robes had been pleading with outstretched arms. It certainly was a beautiful wonderful scene. "Spring" was proclaimed and now to think the symbolism has become reality. Taps by my scout bugler and "Spring" was proclaimed and flags until 10 o'clock at night.

Perhaps I might later write of Mt. Rubidoux and other places of interest.—Laura E. Lyons.

Are Women Frost Proof?
Sioux City Journal. Do the young women of Sioux see in artificial henna and iron constitutions, or are they really chips of the fabled Spartan block? The advent of zero weather has made many a question in masculine circles, a moot question.

A hasty farmer, fresh from the wind swept prairies of South Dakota, with a management of his own language in his cap and between the margins of his turned up sheepskin collar at thirty inches of well filled silk hose. He stamped his feet, crossed his over-shoulders; blew his frost bitten fingers and stuck his head out from the protecting folds of the sheepskin collar and more conspicuous than of the marvelous sight.

His gaze started at the sidewalk and traveled up. First were the feet of the woman who had stepped over his shoulder, and next he rubbed his watering eyes to make sure that it was no illusion—two calves encased in the most magnificent silk fabric. The exposure stopped at the knee, where a lady skirt began. A thick fur coat assured him as to the woman's sanity until he noticed the throat, which was bare as flesh can be.

Main Attraction at Crystal This Week

A big attraction of the week is Will Carleton's "Over the Hill," which is being shown at the Crystal for three nights. This wonderful production will be shown for the first time on Friday night. The prices have been placed so low that no one can afford to miss it.

How quickly we are forgotten! It seems only yesterday that we could not attend a home party without entertainment without someone being called upon to recite Will Carleton's "Over the Hill," "The Hester" and "I am Out of a Game with a Handsome Man"—or some other work of this famous poet of his day. Will Carleton died in Brooklyn only nine years ago, but he lives in these times and people quickly forget.

Now that William Fox has made a remarkable motion picture entitled "Over the Hill," which outlines the narrative of two poems from "Farm Ballads," and the photodrama is drawing capricious crowds, many people are asking "Who is Will Carleton?" Of course, older patrons of the theatre are quick to remember this gentle poet, for he enjoyed a nation-wide vogue not many seasons back.

Theatrical managers and motion picture producers have been wondering how William Fox happened to hit upon this material. One explanation may be found in the fact that Mr. Fox is an ardent lover and reader of poetry. Moreover, he believes that the dreamer of verse is the man or woman who will give us the greatest photoplays. As proof of this bent, it may be stated that Mr. Fox has turned to the notes for the following productions he has made: "Bonnie Annie Laurie," "Romeo and Juliet," "A Fool There Was," "Kathleen Maureen," "Orange Blossoms," and others.

Whether Mr. Fox turns to Carleton for further inspiration in the making of motion pictures, or whether producers will take up this writer's work, the presentation of "Over the Hill" has aroused a new interest in Carleton and his work.

Will Carleton was born on a farm near Hudson, Michigan, October 21, 1845. As a little fellow he trudged five miles each day to public school, and later to high school. Then he went to college at Hillsdale, Michigan, and began to write for various newspapers, magazines, restaurants, town halls and school houses, helped him pay his way through college.

During his senior year he wrote a poem on a local political issue and announced his own appearance to recite it in a small town near his home. He "blat" him and was the talk of a cheap dealer of wallpaper whom he printed with a hand brush his topics and something about himself.

Burning Corn at Bloomfield.
Bloomfield, Mich., Dec. 27.—The "Burn Corn or Bust" movement, organized by local farmers, is gaining momentum according to reports. Local business men and citizens have given their hearty support to the movement and reports come from other communities that steps are being taken to form like organizations. Each business man and citizen agrees to buy and burn at least two tons of corn the present winter. And no farmer is to sell more than two tons. All have pledged of that amount. The price agreed upon amounts to about 25c per bushel.

Wayne Defeats Emerson.
The first team and the midget team of the Wayne high school won basket ball games Friday evening against the Emerson school. The first team game was won by a score of 46-8. Moran shot twelve of the baskets for Wayne. The midget team won a game with the Emerson second team with a score of 28-5. Marcus Kroger was star basket shooter.

American Legion Dance.
The annual American Legion Christmas dance was held in the newly remodeled opera house Thursday evening. The festive gathering was attended by a capacity crowd from Wayne and neighboring towns. Music was furnished by Dawson's orchestra of Detroit City. During the evening the Woman's Auxiliary served coffee, sandwiches and water.

A REAL KISS BY MAIL

The young generation is certainly full of unique tricks. The latest is sending a kiss by mail to your sweetheart. The famous young person buys a colored substance on her lips and then presses her lips to a postcard or a card that goes into an envelope. The ideal substance is said to be a mixture of honey, gum arabic and cochineal. The cut shows Miss Clara Ward, a noted beauty, kissing a card and (below) a picture of the kiss.

CYANOGEN TO KILL PINK WORM

Picture in one of the seven poison plants on the Texas border where all tramps from Mexico are fumigated with deadly cyanogen gas to kill the destructive pink boll weevil whose home is Mexico.

(By Robert Fuller) Texas, Louisiana and New Mexico. The danger. Scientists claim that the insect does greater damage than the boll weevil, which now destroys $250,000,000 worth of cotton annually. The conference was held at Dallas, with Dr. C. L. Nairati, chairman of the federal board, Washington, D. C. in charge. Full powers were entrusted to the board to take such measures as may be necessary in one great united drive to eradicate the insect.

Forty friends of Lloyd Morris went to his parent's home last Thursday evening to help him celebrate his birthday anniversary. The time was spent in games, music and sociability.

Depreciated Currency Costly. Washington Post: Germany is in worse condition than any other nation excepting Russia. The German people are working hard, but their efforts are more than neutralized by the destruction of their money. The government cannot tax them fast enough to keep pace with the depreciation of money value. Some Germans have made money by selling the mark to foreigners, but more being forwarded in Washington and Germans have been victims rather than victors in the downfall of exchange. Germany is paying France some reparations "in kind" but these contributions reduce to almost nothing the ability to pay in real money. Paying for Strikes. St. Louis City Journal: Who is paying for the strikes that are in progress? Well, the strikers pay part of the bill, their employers pay another part, and the public which is everybody, pays the balance in one way or another. The price is paid in loss of wages, in loss of business, in high prices and in the preservation of order. It cost the Federal government a huge sum to establish peace with federal troops in the West Virginia coal fields. It cost the state of Iowa $7,000,000 to send state troops to Ottumwa. It is going to cost the state of Kansas thousands of dollars to police the coal fields of that state with troops. These are only a part of the costs of strikes. What folly it is to do these things this way. It is not creditable to our common sense that we can find no better way.

Advantage Taken of French. Kansas City Star: The French representatives at Washington seem to be assured that their naval proposals should have caused the sensation it did. The French diplomats are not accustomed to being taken so seriously. Working Under Handicap. Washington Post: An efficiency expert says you should put more happiness into your job. Ever try to put more happiness into your job with an efficiency expert hanging around to see who's to be fired?

More Light Cattle Than Usual.

Drovers Journal-Stockman: John Dixon, farmer and feeder of Ft. Calhoun, who was in Friday looking for another batch of feeding lots, reports the cattle feeding business on about a normal basis in his neighborhood. There are more light cattle than usual being fed, but the number in the feed lots is about the same as a year ago, he said.

"The cattle business is not showing much interest in the winter. It has for the last few years, but the profits are small as a rule. One year I fed cattle that doubled my money but corn and small grain averaged so high there were some cattle fed up around Blair this year that were reported to have paid a dollar a bushel for the corn."

A fair acreage of winter wheat was put in around Calhoun last fall, Mr. Dixon says, but prospects are not so bright. The yield will probably be much the same next year that they were the past season.

Corn husking was finished some days before the weather turned bad, and the bulk of the crop is well cribbed, almost none of it being in the open. The farmers had been having a little corn, for which they got about 35 cents a bushel, but on the whole the movement has been small up to this time.

Lower Grain Rates January 1.

Lincoln Trade Review: The latest announcement in regard to the proposed reduction in rates on grain, hay and other agricultural products is that the railroads will file tariffs making these reductions as ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission outside of the New England states, effective January 1.

This week the Nebraska railroads made application to the Nebraska State Railway Commission, asking for a reduction that would comply with the interstate commerce ruling on the Illinois conditions of business. The Nebraska application at first called for reductions that would be made effective not later than December 27, but later this date was changed to January.

The Nebraska State Railway Commission, of course, has replied this proposal as to state rates, making them conform with the interstate commerce ruling as to interstate rates. This reduction in interstate rates, will mean both for state and interstate rates a 17 1/2 per cent reduction on all wheat; a 27 1/2 per cent reduction on corn; and a 10 per cent reduction on hay. The carriers have also made a supplemental request which has been accepted which means that a 10 per cent reduction will be made on all rates on products of the garden, farm and ranch which embraces all products of the land and a great number of commodities.

This decision on the part of the railroads and the final clearing up by the state commission and the interstate state commerce commission as to the amount of reduction and exact time when this reduction will take place, shows a condition which has settled our question been a great check to business for the past few weeks.

With the opening announcement weeks ago of these proposed rate reductions, the shipping public immediately looking forward to a reduced cost for the near future, inclined to put, off all shipments that could be deferred until this reduction came.

The shippers anticipating that the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission that this reduction would be made effective at about the time that it is announced.

This means a great impetus to all lines of business with the opening of the new year. For seaboard points, this reduction means a decreased cost in shipping corn of from 4 to 5 cents, a great per cent when the low selling price of corn is taken into consideration. This reduction in all agricultural freight rates removes for a considerable time at least, any hesitancy that has taken place since past few months due to uncertain freight conditions. It can be well expected that there will be a greatly increased movement of many products following the first of the year.

Railroad facilities both for this state and any other states of the middle west have been falling off and these new rates should result in a real recovery in volume of transportation for the roads which may mean enough of an increase to compensate the roads for this reduction.

Borah Is Mistaken. St. Paul Pioneer Press: When Senator Borah says the people have lost confidence in the future, he doesn't know what he is talking about. Confidence remains the biggest national asset. If the senator doesn't believe this let him come into the west from which he hails and learn its ways and spirit. Perhaps he had been so long in the atmosphere of pessimism which enshrouds the east that he has lost his power of correct vision.

Keep Politics Out. Sioux Falls Argus-Leader: After the holidays, congress will take up the question of the huge debts due us from Europe. Let us hope that the question will be dealt with as a financial and economic question and not as one of politics or sentiment.

CONSOLIDATED WITH THE WAYNE PUBLICATION

WAYNE SHOWS YEAR OF IMPROVEMENTS

Includes Improvements of Pavings, Colored Campus, City Power and Opera House and City Park.

PAVING IS MOST IMPORTANT

Private Building Includes New Residences, General Remodeling of Homes and Farm Betterments.

Public improvements during the year 1921, took precedence over private building.

The additional paving put in during the past year made a total of eight and one-half miles and cost $95,120.67.

The city has expended approximately $19,500 for new equipment at the city power plant.

The principal building improvement at the Wayne State Normal and Teachers College is the enlargement of the main building.

The opera house was remodeled by the owners, the members of the Women's club, and the building was modernized by putting in a new floor without a raise.

A community play ground has been made of the city park by the addition of equipment such as swings, slides, merry-go-round and sand box.

Though private building has not been as general as in former years, many houses, stores and business construction in the city and contracts are being let for several residences to be erected during 1922.

The following list includes the more important building done by private individuals in Wayne last year:

- H. V. Cronk, barn, $300. Opera house, remodeled, $10,000. Francis Jones, five houses, $25,000. Joe Kay, house, $2,000. Geo. Francis, house improvements, $3,000. Wayne Auto Radiator Repair Co.

RADIATOR WORK IS OUR BUSINESS

Service is what we are giving and we guarantee all our work. Some people have been misinformed that it does not pay to repair a radiator; we show you that it does—and also saves you money. We guarantee that you will receive $43.66; we guarantee that you will not pay a new one for that. Our new radiators are heavy steel tanks, with double proof cover and sell for less money than many other good radiators.

Aluminum Soldering and silver soldering is done with our modern, up-to-date tools.

All work is guaranteed; if not satisfactory, we will do it over free of charge.

If you wish a price to repair or recore your radiator, we tell you in a few minutes; you then will know what to do.

Call us up and we will get your radiator and bring it back to you.

UNCLE WALT
The Poet Philosopher.

Slippers.

Oh, I have slippers, fancy-sewed, and slippers profane and grimy; and slippers come to my abode on every floor. The postman's test on lagging feet, for he is old and frail; I see him coming down the street with slippers by the "bale"; as he goes by my door he looks at the shod a weary man; I often think that Christmas gifts should be for slippers. I send a gift to my Aunt; she says she'll give me a pair, and she cries, "Hully chee!" And she sends me a "hully chee" pair of slippers she has made; whereas I am wearing my hair—the blamed things—do not fit. The little children love the things we send by Santa's mail; they're the things that are the best made things state; I hear them shouting in their joy, and love them for the din, in raptures of some flashy show that's made of good or evil. But when a grown-up gets a gift, in Christmas ribbons tied, all wearing like makoth shift, to see what is in it. And waiting for the time to come, as he upsets the chair: "More slippers! And already I have forty-seven pairs!" The Christmas tree its light, whereas, a pleasant thing, now let the children have the gifts—I hope there's none for me!

Christmas Time.

Again the Christmas season brings gladness to the land, and he who is whose soul does not expand, who does not feel like to be at the altar, who does not loudly advertising his joy, to beat the band. Old Santa Claus is freighted with presents on his sleigh, and little boys and girls are waiting for the day; and though my years are eighty, and I have burdened weight, I'd think myself cheap-skate of a gift that's made of good or evil. But when a grown-up gets a gift, in Christmas ribbons tied, all wearing like makoth shift, to see what is in it. And waiting for the time to come, as he upsets the chair: "More slippers! And already I have forty-seven pairs!" The Christmas tree its light, whereas, a pleasant thing, now let the children have the gifts—I hope there's none for me!

Looking Better.

All round me men are building buildings, and they're building, and they'll plant sweet peas and lilies, and materials for chills, and the renthens have the willies as they put up in their beds. Oh, the better days are coming when the building booms begin, and the plumbers they're the plumbers, and the trimmers gavy; they're every gent will have his cottage where the flies succumb to swatage, where he'll eat his humble potage—and the renthens' growing thin.

Winter Night.

When winds are shrieking and clouds are leaking and things are freezing, it's doubly pleasing a cheery home to know. The storm grows louder, and like which power the drifts are through the cracks; the drifts are pling, but I am smiling, and life is such as wax—here in my shanty, with wife and son, and grandsons nine or eight, I read my paper while stormdrums taper and howl their hymn of hate. For I kept busy till I was dead before the cold-blast came; with vim and ardor I stocked the larder and spoiled Old Winter's game. The round plunks earning, no fair job sporting, and I'm a success; now I should worry when wild winds scurry out, side my comfy den. A squaw named Hubbard in my garden, I've given her a kinder break-up; in the garret there is a carrot, and cordwood in the shed. And all is paid for; the rent I play for my own, and winter's squealings don't hurt my feelings, since I have saved my mon. Let winter thunder! I got from under be-

For the tempests came; alert and heedful I save the needful, and hope you did the same.

Oh, Happy Day.

It will be splendid when wars are ended and peace has come to stay, when words are hushed and cannony rusted, and in one yearns to stay. Through all the ages, in futile rage, the sons of men have fought, in war found pleasure, and none can measure the evil they have wrought. The soil we tread on was scraped and also by the use of tyrannous might, early savage war wrought to ravage, and hill of other days: 'AVE' so doctly, so vain and naughtily, that we can't quit our old tricks; we'll forever attempt to sever the domes of other hicks; it is all our yearning for higher learning is wish for some disguise to cloak our long for armies thronging, and death for countless guys? Oh, donnerveries, are we no better than men who lived in caves, whose daily labors were in knighting with Peace a-fighting through all our golden years.

The Critics.

The critics gather round me when I would play my harp, attempting to confound me with caustic words and sharp jests, not in the manner in which I hold my lyre; I smite it with a spanner, and that stirs up their ire. "Your poems are hollow," they say, "they're empty; don't you try to follow where Homer led the way?" And once they used to give me a lot, now I care no what they can't vex or grieve me, or place me in the soup. For evermore I'm clinging to one old-fashioned plan, in saving or in enjoining the best, and that is, that what you're doing the critics will understand, and that is, that you should say so when you can. If you have a taste in paint would shock our seven senses, and make an artist faint, and they will rate you soundly if you are writing verses. You are writing verse so roundly if you are herding geese. There are always the knockers who watch you while you talk, and they're always harrowing the soil; but if you keep on doing the best that you know how, their caustic cotton-chewing should never cloud your brow.

The Return of Confidence.

Washington Post: The practical effect of the Washington conference upon industry and economic prosperity is a subject that is beginning to attract attention. No one thought of the conference as a potent agency for promoting recovery, but it is proving to be such an agency. Its decisions are beginning to exert a worldwide effect upon finance, industry and production. The business of the world have been appalled by the conditions which confronted them in attempting to transact commerce. With exchange devalued, shipping uncertain or non-existent, labor costs excessive, raw material supplies diminished, raw material prices rising, and the buying power of consumers impaired by crushing taxation, it seemed that years must elapse before the disordered world could knit again the strands of commerce. But the process of recovery is setting in with vigor in several portions of the world, and it was accelerated from that moment when the great powers announced their agreement to work out a plan for cutting down naval expenditures, and the lines of exchange were re-established. Secretary Hughes in behalf of the United States.

A Cate in Point.

Mississippi Journal: The present condition of the beet sugar industry in the United States furnishes an apt illustration of the need for elasticity in tariff schedules which the present pointed out in his recent message. The competition of cheaply produced Cuban sugar threatens the great beet sugar industry or considerable share of it with extinction. The present $1.60 tariff protection against Cuban sugar, provided in the emergency tariff measure, has been carried over into the permanent tariff bill passed by the house and now pending in the senate. In ordinary times, cheap sugar would be the result; but the radical liquidation of the overstimulated sugar in Cuba following last year's break in prices, has produced a condition analogous to that which has been produced in Cuba with her beet sugar labor to produce cane sugar and lay it down in the United States at a price that means an almost total destruction of the domestic sugar industry. Cuban labor cost has returned to pre-war levels; American labor cost has not.

No Time to be Discouraged.

Omaha World-Herald: The Hughes program makes plain that there is no time to be discouraged toward reduction of expenditures on naval armaments. It vindicates the ability of nations to reach an understanding. This gives hope that further association of nations is possible, and further achievement. Until the nations discover a common interest in peace, the policy of destruction, the people should not be content. Neither should they be discouraged.

"Pretty" is Overworked.

Editor and Publisher: Isn't the word "pretty" overworked by newspapers in describing young women? From the number of times it is used it appears that about nine-tenths of the women who get into print are either "pretty or beautiful." Rarely is the young woman who wins a tennis match, or who rides hobnob in Central park, or who is knocked down by an automobile, or whose body is in the river, "plain or ordinary" looking.

Gold Dust Flour

Fancy Patent

Not since the war have we sold a flour that's "made good" as did Gold Dust. Every day we secure new customers on this flour, nothing unusual to sell seventy-five to one hundred sacks a week. Try Gold Dust next time—we are sure you will say as others are saying, "Include another sack of Gold Dust in my order. It's the best and costs less." The price is $1.85; special prices in lots.

Are Your Hens Laying?

If not, a small investment will place your hens on a paying basis. Full O' Pep Laying Mash is a staple seller with people who know it does all we claim for it. $1.00 buys fifteen pounds and we guarantee results.

Powdered Butter Milk

$10.00 Per Cwt. This is another well-known item. Many farmers are feeding this to fat pigs with good results. It's not for sick hogs, but a food that keeps pigs in good growing condition and ready to resist disease. 100 pound sacks $10.00.

Security Calf Food Makes Fat Calves.

Feed in this way; you save the difference and produce better calves. A trial is sufficient to convince you.

Eat More Prunes

Prunes are nature's own drug store. A dish of stewed prunes every day will do wonders to keep normal every member of the family. We sell none but Santa Clara sweet prunes. Medium size, two pounds for 35 cents; six pounds for $1.00.

Special Sale Winesap Apples

150 bushel baskets, $2.35. This is a low price to clean up stock on hand. The best offering in apples this year. This price will sell them quick.

Jersey Cream or Moore's Pancake Flour

Both of these items are staple sellers. Prices reduced to 30c for four pound bags. We have new goods arriving every week. Let us supply you.

Holsum Bread

Never fails to please. Holsum maintains a standard that's always dependable. Every loaf wrapped; always uniform. Arrives fresh every day.

cash subject to check. On motion and with the consent of the claimant the claim was rejected and treasurer ordered to distribute the tax. Andrew Okeson for the year 1920, was assessed with a valuation of $5,500.00 on lots 1 and 2, block 2, Hoke's addition to Wakefield, the tax upon which amounted to the sum of $138.70 which was paid under protest for the reason that the building was not completed. The board after due consideration rejects the claim for a refund for the reason that the assessor had knowledge of such facts when assessed, and the treasurer is ordered to distribute the funds. Peter J. Church and Berbert Sheldelf having been assessed for the year 1920 in the village of Carroll on an actual valuation of $150 or $30 assessed valuation on a part of lot 1, block 1, original town of Carroll, said particular piece of ground being a three cornered strip 128 feet by 45 feet by 100 feet which made the tax $3.96 which was paid under protest for the reason given as to high a valuation. On motion the board rejects the application for a refund on grounds that the time has elapsed for the fixing or changing of valuation and the treasurer is ordered to distribute the funds. John A. Tell for the year 1920 was assessed with a valuation of $4,375 actual valuation of $375 assessed valuation on lot 7 and the s/w 1/2 of lot 8 in block 1, Hoke's addition to Wakefield which makes the tax $111.13, which was paid under protest for the reason that the house was in course of construction or erection and that said valuation was too high. On motion the board rejects the application for a refund on the grounds that the assessor should have had knowledge of such facts and that said assessment was based on such knowledge and that the county treasurer is ordered to distribute the funds. F. H. Bensch for the year 1921 was assessed in the city of Wayne on an actual valuation of $130.00 being for a Maxwell automobile, which makes the tax $5.44 which was paid under protest for the reason that he did not own the car on April 1. On motion the board rejects the application for a refund on the grounds that it made no difference whether it was the automobile or money on hand to make the purchase, which tax would amount to the same thing and the county treasurer is ordered to distribute the funds. Mrs. Charlotte F. Willert for the year 1920 was assessed with a valuation of $1,200.00 actual valuation or $240.00 assessed valuation on lots

10 and 11, block 7, north addition to Wayne, which made the tax $40.28 which was paid under protest for the reason that the same was too high. On motion the board rejected the application for a refund on the grounds that the time has elapsed for the adjustment of valuations made by the board of equalization and orders the treasurer to distribute the funds. John Schmalus was assessed for the year 1920 on an actual valuation of $800.00 or $120.00 assessed valuation on lot 22 of Taylor & Wachob's addition to Wayne which made the tax $17.54 which was paid under protest for the reason that the same was too high. On motion the board rejects the application for a refund for the reason that the time has elapsed for the adjustment of valuations as made by the board of equalization and orders the treasurer to distribute the funds. G. E. Garhart having for the year 1920 been assessed on an actual valuation of $2,000.00 or an assessed valuation of $400.00 on 2, block 11, Britton & Bressler's addition to Wayne which made the tax amount to $58.80, for the reason that the valuation was too high and that an error was made. On motion the board rejects the application for a refund of tax on the grounds that the time has elapsed for the further adjustment of valuations as made by the board of equalization and the treasurer is ordered to distribute the funds. John S. Lewis for the year 1920 was assessed with an actual valuation of $3,000.00 or $600.00 assessed valuation on lots 1, 2 and 3, block 6, of Crawford & Brown's addition to Wayne, which made the tax $88.20 which was paid under protest for the reason that the tax was too high and that the valuation was an unjust valuation and out of proportion to property adjacent. On motion the board rejects the application for a refund of tax on the grounds that the time has elapsed for the further adjustment of valuations as made by the board of equalization and certified to the state treasurer and that the treasurer is ordered to distribute the funds. Mrs. Hannah Marotta having been assessed in the village of Hoskins for the year 1919 on a cash item of $6,000.00 that she paid the tax under protest for the reason that it was an investment and not the same as real property. On motion the board rejects the application for a refund on the grounds that the item of $6,000.00 was subject to taxation and not exempt and the treasurer is ordered to distribute the funds. Whereup board adjourned to January 5, 1922. Chas. W. Reynolds, Clerk.

A Truce to Propaganda.
Minneapolis Journal.—The nations have sanctioned the International Postal union, whereby speedily and uninterrupted passage of letters from one state to another is guaranteed. The next thing in order would be some kind of a union to encourage the free flow of unbiased information from one country to another.

Good Money in Cigars.
Kansas City Times: Commissioner Worth says the police raided a south Clark place where there was only $8 worth of cigars, but $300 in the cash register. The explanation probably is that they had just had a big Christmas cigar sale at that place.

A Long Pedigree.
Boston Transcript: A Bostonian was boasting about his ancient lineage when another man roughly told him that he was a mere midstream. "Why," continued the speaker, "when I was in London the pedigree of a particular family was shown me which filled five large parchment skins, and near the middle of it was a note on the margin: 'About this time the world was created.'"

Lord Young's Wit.
Hospitable England in the "Seventies," by R. H. Dimsie.—Lord Young chancing to meet Austin, the great laureate, asked him what he was doing. Austin replied: "I am writing my last will to keep the world from the door." Lord Young, quick as a flash, replied: "Do you read the verses to the will?"

Trying It Himself.
Boston Transcript: A girl of 5, taken to a vaudeville show, was much impressed with the ventriloquist. That evening while saying her prayers she asked God to look after her brothers and sisters and to make her a good girl, then, after a brief pause, she was heard to say, sotto voce, "All right."

Up to Uncle Sam.
National Republican: The New York World says that if it had joined the League of nations it wouldn't have been necessary for France to maintain a large army. Certainly not. Europe would have put it up to Uncle Sam to furnish both the men and the money.
