Decrease Shown in Number of Marriages

The low price of corn, the scarcity of employment and the growing dependence of women have been suggested as reasons for the decrease last year in the number of marriages. With the possible exception of the years that the United States was at war, there has never been a year in the history of the county court as varied little each year.

New Nebraska Seal Designed.

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 30.—The outstanding features of the new Nebraska seal will speak of the agricultural, educational and historical, while in will be the shield, with the scales of justice and the accompanying motto: "Equality before the law," said a statement from Gov. McKelvie in reporting the design adopted by the state seal commission for a great seal of the state. The wheat, corn, locomotive, steamboat and blacksmith, symbols of the state's industry, and the capital architect of New York, executed the accepted design free of cost, the governor said.

Hughes Deserves Praise.

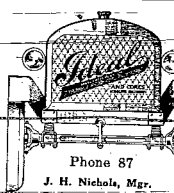

Springfield, Mass., Republic.—However the armament conference ends, Mr. Hughes will deserve high praise for his intense and incalculable efforts to realize the objects for which attainment of which the conference was called. Mr. Hughes has sought to go as far toward an ideal solution of the armaments problem as present conditions and public opinion in the several countries would permit. Some obstacles have arisen, but these the most part they were not of his making. There are still solid reasons for the confident belief that the conference will achieve a notable degree of success.

The Bloomfield Phone Rates.

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 30.—The state railway commission issued an order fixing telephone rates in Bloomfield, where almost the entire list of subscribers has been on strike since April 1. The net rates are: Business, metallic, $2.21; individual residence, metallic, $1.50; two party residence, metallic, $1.50; ground wire, $1.45; switching, $1.25. These rates are less than the order against which the strike was proclaimed, but higher than the old rates, which the strikers said must be restored. The original increase ran from 15 to 25 per cent.

The commission says that under the law of fair returns the company is entitled to higher rates than granted, but that it can do what the commission cannot, and voluntarily reduce rates, asked for the reduction from the established rates, as a peace offering.

That which man desires and every woman admires

How Mr. McKelvie Won His Way to Success

Russel E. Smith, in the American Boy: "It's a corker, Dad!" With a glowing face, the boy watched the new machine...

"Why, it would be doing any farmer a favor if I got him enthusiastic enough to buy one," said the boy earnestly.

When Farmer McKelvie got the women fence machine, all he expected of young Sam was to help run it, but his son, with characteristic enthusiasm, saw possibilities in the machine beyond the use of it on their own farm.

"Why, it would be doing any farmer a favor if I got him enthusiastic enough to buy one," said the boy earnestly.

Sam knew a good deal about farming for a boy. His father had often sent him on responsible errands when he was 13.

Natural Born Salesman Sam knew a good deal about farming for a boy. His father had often sent him on responsible errands when he was 13.

He used to enjoy talking to a soldier...

of and field man from one of the papers who came to solicit advertising...

paper in this state," remarked McKelvie senior. His son stowed the idea away in his mind for future use.

Then a chance came for him to realize one of his enthusiastic dreams—to get into the publishing business.

Mr. McKelvie read the letter and thought hard. He was enthusiastic about this job and about seeing himself in it.

Mr. Rosewater was astonished that Sam, a young man of only 19, had rejected applicants for the vacancy of his staff. It read:

"Lands the Job." Mr. Rosewater was having fun writing a public young man hurriedly. It was this Samuel R. McKelvie of the telegrams.

The salary of $265 a month seemed large then to the farm boy until he thought about his father's necessary expenses for traveling about among the farmers selling advertising. It seemed to get up a lot of money.

Mr. Rosewater explained what an expense account was and Sam learned with joy that his $65 was his own money.

That marked his real start. With what money he had saved he began to buy interests in the paper from time to time until he owned it also.

"Sam" says that he early became interested in political questions through the inspiration of his mother, but she is cared to have him see the public office.

Works Hard for State. Since Governor S. R. McKelvie has worked hard and used his enthusiasm for his native state, just as he had used his enthusiasm to live up to his father's expectations in stock deals when a leader.

One of his first undertakings as chief executive was to abolish eleven divisions of the state government and put the entire state affairs on a business basis, with six administrative departments, including finance, agriculture, trade and commerce, labor, public works and public welfare. Briefly, following out the party program, the state government was modeled on that of the United States, doing away with the numerous petty boards, commissions and departments, each with a special duty. The department of public stocks, hogs and cattle and weather and publishing were all intensely interesting to the farm boy and as he grew from this man from the publishing world, he got to thinking hard and enthusiastically about publishing.

Since climbing to summit of the heap, Gov. McKelvie has kept his head low as to his political business as well as his enthusiasm. No one has to give his age, telephone number and past life secrets to get to the top of Nebraska.

Manufacturers' Record: With about six per cent of the world's population and six per cent of the world's land area, this country has one-third or more of the world's accumulated wealth. It is producing one-half of the world's coal and iron and steel, and two-thirds of the world's sulphur, eighty-five per cent of the world's naval stores, the bulk of the world's phosphate, and seventy per cent of the world's petroleum.

And yet our people, possessed of such resources, ignore the power of the human mind to comprehend in their relation to world affairs, and as a basis for the creation of profitable employment and commerce.

In this great empire of possibilities, practically unexplored, of eight countries trading one with the other, there is room for expansion, room for profitable business, room for the solution of every man and woman in the country, even if we did not have any foreign trade, if we were rightly utilizing our limited resources in the lines of industry and agriculture and traffic.

To say that depression in America was an inevitable outcome of the war shows a narrowness of vision and an utter failure to comprehend our vast might have been our prosperity if our financial system had been guided with wisdom and how our prosperity would have created world prosperity.

That our financial system had been guided with wisdom and how our prosperity would have created world prosperity.

St. Louis, Jan. 24.—An official forecast of business conditions, composed of a Washington symposium headed by the white-robed steel magnates, has been published for the first time in the history of the country.

Various situations are pointed out as contributing to this optimistic view. It is shown how unemployment has decreased and is still declining; an improved railroad condition has been effected, with promise of still greater revival of the "road" has been passed by all industries, with fewer failures than the most cynical observers expected; agriculture is showing a sign of recovery, with the old year ending at a time when corn was demonstrating a remarkable strength on the principal grain markets and better prices in European countries are beginning seriously to study their economic problems, which affect the United States.

It is declared that the domestic business situation is not up to what it may be, but the foreign situation which centers the greatest American interest is in such a state that the trade fell off approximately $5,000,000,000 in a year and that meant that a big American program of recovery of Europe, their business has been recovered before America must be fully recovered, and we must be fully recovered, and we must be fully recovered.

The Early Days in Two Counties

Wayne Herald for January 4, 1922.

There were eighty-nine marriages here in 1921.

Chas. E. Watson was over from Platte visiting his brother, William, northeast of the city.

The markets were new corn 55¢; wheat 62 1/2¢; oats, 39¢; hogs, $5.00; butter, 15¢; eggs, 25¢.

A. R. Wilson, of the A. C. Wilson Bros. of this city, will engage in the meat business at Allen, Okla. Sheehan received word from his home in Chicago that he had been born in 1870.

Twenty-five ear loads of cattle were shipped from Winslow by J. W. McClasky, A. T. Chapin and others.

Following the power plant fire, the carpenters worked all day Sunday to get the roof and cupola on the water works and electric light building.

H. B. Jones, the efficient cashier of the State Bank, has disposed of his interests in that institution to Henry Ley, who will be assisted by his son, Rollie.

Faith Davis of Sherman, in company with George Yarsan, Will Vaughn, Ward Williams and L. Evans have gone to Charlie, Mix county, S. D., to look over the country with a view of purchasing real estate.

A. P. Larson, northeast of Wayne, is the fortunate possessor of a cow that gave birth to three well developed and healthy calves just before Christmas. Last year the same cow gave birth to two calves, which Mr. Larson still owns.

C. O. Fisher has purchased the lumber and coal business of Harrison, Okla. Fisher formerly engaged in the lumber business here. His son Harry will assist him.

Henry Kellogg has sold his home place, one mile east and one mile north of Wayne to Chas. Worth, for consideration of $12,000. Mr. Kellogg expects to become a citizen of Wayne. O. W. Foster has been in charge making preparations for new land at that place, of which he is to be cashier. The charter has been received and the bank will open within a week.

An article on the Bank of Normal reveals the fact that the entire expense of the new building is $125,000. Tuition is $1 per week, good board is $4.00 per week and room $1.50 cents per week.

Calvin church will dedicate the new building at Winslow, January 12. Rev. J. H. Karpenstein, the pastor will be assisted by Rev. Wm. Nitzsche of Ponca, and Rev. C. J. Ringer of Wayne.

From Ponca Journal January 3, 1922:

Indians are hunting deer and other game along the Logan valley.

It is almost impossible to drive a horse over them without injury.

Jackson must be the top's punger. Hummer may be in the class. "Whop!" Big drunk, only two bits.

It appears from the La Porte Review that the citizens of that energetic little town have a literary society.

We understand that the Summit is going to send a lively place. Large quantities of wheat and pork are marketed there.

The had roads have hindered people from coming to the town market for the past few days. As soon as the roads become good again, we may expect that any quantity of wheat, pork and hay will be brought in.

The Dakotas City Eagle states on the word of one of the engineers of the C. & B. H. R., that the whole amount of money expended thus far by the company, between Ponca and St. James, is over $120,000.

Some miserable whelp of iniquity is making a business lately of visiting the suburbs of our city at night and sharing the tails of horses. Several have been served in this manner during the past week. If some one would "day" for the account, we would have his diagram with him shot No. 1, it would be about the correct thing to do.

We are an old man. Our hair is getting thin and our teeth are falling out. For many years we have squatted on the editorial tripod, miles and miles of lead pipes have we weighed up, and many events we have frantically covered. All this and much more have we done, but we never did see quite such a severity of fiscal policy as this country has in the period time. Here, both are a drug in the market when compared with in.

It is no longer possible to correct by Ayer Bros., from J. S. Mocking, Esq., the superintendent of the C. & B. H. R. campaign in which he is engaged, that he has been ordered to withdraw from Ponca to Sioux City. The withdrawal is being intended. The members of the committee understand that the framers have agreed to give it to them.

The Retailer's Side.

Devoers Journal (Stockman): All of us are more or less dissatisfied. We vented so fully our present difficulties that we are inclined to think we were somewhat in a public mood. Therefore glad to get the other fellow's point of view so that we can consider the whole situation without so much bias.

Producers farmers and stock growers have been all but ruined by this post-war deflation in prices. They have had to sell their products at that point and the very best that they were hit so hard was responsible for the slowing up of business all over the country. It is not so hard and so unfairly in most cases that they are inclined to believe they got it all. But, did they?

There is a certain amount of relief of the farmers in their distress. Congress came to the relief of the banks when they were threatened with ruin. The government has been making an eleventh-hour effort to relieve the farmers and stock growers after the manner of a retailer who has had a heavy load of goods of anyone coming to the relief of the retail merchants of the country? In all fairness they are entitled to hear and to be heard and the Manson, (Ia.) Journal thus takes up the cudgels in their defense:

"There are three classes of people who have been injured by the present change in conditions. It is the retailer merchant. We hear much of the farmer, the manufacturer and the man who supplies your daily needs. When the slump in prices came, it was the retail dealer who carried the burden. He has had to close his jobbers were hit hard, it is true, but they were in many cases shut on supplies and their loss, while heavy, was not so great as that of the retail dealer. In spite of this well known fact the retail merchant has not come in for any special consideration, but has been treated as a lot of unmerited abuse. How many times one has run across such statements as, 'wholesale prices have come down by the retail dealer do not seem to have found it out.' We have met up with this statement in trade journals and business reviews of weekly and daily papers. It appeared so often that many have accepted it as true.

"That is more the overhead cost of doing business. It was before the war. Wages of help has not fallen to that of the pre-war period. Rents in many cases are higher and fuel and oil are much higher. All these things combine to make the retail merchant's path anything but a rose-tinted highway. If he will come to the merchant, but in the meantime he is struggling to keep the business world afloat by making sacrifices and taking his loss without any line and cry.

"So just remember the local merchant. He is a double-edged sword. He is the one who helps you out in hard conditions and help the old world back to its feet. He is the one who believes things are slightly off the upgrade and if everyone will do his part and go to work all will be well. Frequently will not come to the aid and it must come to all and the man who insists on excessive wages while condemning the merchant, who is trying to save his business life, is not going to profit by his stand. Let's be fair and think it over.

Hotel Making Honest Effort.

Linnell James, chief of the prohibition enforcement officers are inclined to believe that the hotels of the country are making an honest effort to keep banditry, liquor sales and other evils out of the hotel, the more does it behoove its managers to see that the law is enforced. Some of the hotels are involving an investment of several million dollars will be closed just to remind the honest that the law is not a joke. The risk is so great that no modern metropolitan hotel can afford to take it.

Sentimentalism Overworked.

Kansas City Times: One of the country's leading prisoners received 107 Christmas letters which show what sentimentalism can do even to so fine an institution as Christmas.

Safety First.

Charleston News and Courier: Hereafter all army officers who want to be on the safe side will deny themselves the pleasure of looking at Senator Watson at all.

The merchant takes an inventory of his goods and notes which way his business is moving and endeavors to stop leaks and correct mistakes and strengthen weak places and thus put his business upon a more solid foundation and increase his profits. Life itself is such a business and it is only good judgment and sound common sense at times to subject it to examination and overhaul its means and aims. It is true that much of it is not under our direct control but this is true of all human affairs. Nine-tenths of the present consists of the past transmitted to us and generally handed on to us, but the one-tenth left to us still contains room in which we can build our plans and purposes and exercise our free will, energy and exert our energy and effort, and thereby work out great and vital changes in our individual lives and in the world around us. While all days are alike on the calendar, yet they are psychologically different, carrying on the basis of their own unique different opportunities and incentives. New Year's is such a psychological day that inevitably suggests and invites and urges new thoughts and a new start. It is a day of hope and courage and offers an opportunity to be not discouraged or weakened life to begin. So let us enter upon the unknown path with confidence and cheer and it may lead us out into a new and better life.

Auto Manufacturers Woe.

Lincoln Journal: The automobile manufacturers are wise in recognizing the reduced buying power of the public. The new models have been made that a complete return to pre-war levels may be expected all along the line. This readjustment may be painful in many cases, but it is necessary.

College Women Better Mothers.

Chicago News-Times have changed, and with them the popular idea with regard to higher education for women. Now young girls on completing their preparatory schooling go to college almost as naturally as do boys, and a college education is considered as desirable in the life equipment of a woman as that of a man. Indeed, the college training of women today is so far from uniting a woman or marriage

Groundhog day comes next.
Building prospects for this place and vicinity are reported encouraging.

If they be that Senator Borah wants an appointment to some important post and it would seem good policy for the administration to get rid of him in that way.

Bloomfield commenced advertising the fact that it is going to burn corn instead of coal for energy in its plant. It is a commendable effort to keep itself prominently on the map.

The governor to include in his call for an extra session of the legislature a proposition to fix postage rates in cities and villages to regulate telephone rates if they wish to do so.

Consistent with the slowing up of the past year, there were fewer marriages and births here during 1921 than during 1920. Deaths showed a slight increase which is not enough to suggest an alarming state of health.

One line of endeavor untouched by the trials of reconstruction is the social field. Social functions are just as numerous and quite as essential as ever and they are important and desirable in keeping people buoyed and agreeable.

Some one has written that sectarianism is as necessary in the religious world as physical disarmament is among the nations. Reduction of unnecessary church building enterprises, with the consequent overlapping and duplication of activities, is pointed out as imperative. Power church groups, less stressing of nonessential dogmas and more emphasis on spiritual truths, are important in developing Christian civilization.

This week, following the first of year, is a dull one in trade circles. People are busy figuring out invoices, making settlements, and adjusting affairs and formulating plans for the coming year's business. The holiday trade in Wayne was generally better than expected, and furnished a finale to the year's business that was far from discouraging. Another week will find most dealers launched into another year's business under a full head of steam, active and alert for trade and resolved to serve better and build bigger than ever.

In view of the attitude of France against disarmament, Congressman Reuss of Nebraska has introduced in congress a resolution in which that nation is invited to pay off its monetary obligations to the United States before embarking on a proposed campaign to further build up its army and navy. France reminds one of an individual who was met by everybody, but who takes the first money he can scrape together to make a payment on a new and needless automobile. The Reavis resolution grants France, as a sovereign nation, the right to do as it pleases, but to do it on its own money.

An encouraging note is sounded by some students of juvenile delinquency who believe the next generation will see fewer candidates for the penitentiary.
The results accomplished by children's courts, welfare societies, reformatories and the parole system. The next year should have a decreasing number, which suggests well for the future.

If chronic gloom dispensers would come out into the sunlight and reflect something besides despair, they would become aids, rather than barriers, to the return of equanimity and prosperous conditions. The most incessant kickers are those who are well off, and who can have no fear of serious encroachment on their comfortable circumstances. If the man who has lost half his means, possessions through shrinkage in values, can face the future with fortitude and hope, he is to be commended, the man who has a larger fortune, and who is subject to less loss, might be subject to less depression, and help instead of hinder restoration of normal times.

There is pronounced a bright side, and it is becoming more and more apparent it is just as easy to see it as the dark picture which bell-wethers of melancholy are so wont to parade. It has been truthfully said that if half the effort were put forth in behalf of normalcy that was employed in behalf of the late war, the struggle back to normalcy would have been accomplished in a shorter time and would have been less severe and less hurtful. The wall that there is no money in the country is disproved by bank deposits and by the readiness with which people pay cash when they feel like it. To even distribution of money, people should inspire more and more encouraging facts under a cloud of wild imaginings. Those who have specialized in emphasizing the bad side of things, the policy and try a year of seeing and emphasizing the good. Facts will amply warrant such a course. Postponing instead of knocking down the very incursions which hurt and obstruct.

Determining Hog Values.
Drovers Journal-Stockman: Practical hog growers have realized for years that packer buyers were demanding something more than mere weight. It is quality that is insisted on and extreme weight as well as lack of quality are severely penalized in the market. Since the hog is so excellent, a corn converted tendency in the great corn belt has always been to make the animals too fat. This fat is not so objectionable as carried by the right kind of a hog and in the article before, prepared by H. A. Phillips, in charge of the dressed hog carcasses department of Armour & Company, is presented a description of the most valuable hog from the packer's standpoint.

The method of establishing hog values is undergoing a gradual but positive change. For many years the weight of the animal has been the major determining factor as to hog value. Today the big packers are buying their droves with an eye to the quality of the various cuts which can be had from the carcass. Hitherto, it had been the practice of hog buyers to figure pork production on the basis of the percentage of carcass weight. It is quality that is insisted on and extreme weight as well as lack of quality are severely penalized in the market. Since the hog is so excellent, a corn converted tendency in the great corn belt has always been to make the animals too fat. This fat is not so objectionable as carried by the right kind of a hog and in the article before, prepared by H. A. Phillips, in charge of the dressed hog carcasses department of Armour & Company, is presented a description of the most valuable hog from the packer's standpoint.

portion that the packers must desire. It will be the marketing of the type of animal that will bring the greatest returns to the producer. The history that was written for the breeder was the same. The general Live Stock exposition should serve to answer that question to a large extent.

The description of the grand champion carcass which, incidentally, was a Berkshire, as given by the Breeder's Gazette of December 1921, is worthy of a special attention. Describing the grand champion Berkshire barrow as "fitted to the infinite perfect in top and bottom lines, thickly and smoothly covered throughout," the Gazette goes on to say, "In the 200 to 300-pound class the Berkshires shown by the Waltons, Talleis, Hill, et al., were in a class which showed a much higher proportion of lean to fat than any other entry in the contest. The judge pronounced it as the best carcass that he had seen during his four years' experience as the hog carcass judge." This would indicate that the very heavy type of carcass is less desirable and that the animal which will most easily develop 200 to 300 pounds live weight from which will come high grade cuts that are in greatest demand by the trade, is the animal to breed.

Certainly, the feeder cannot put quality into a hog unless it is there to begin with. There are four factors on which quality is dependent. They are firmness of flesh, texture, interestingness of the skin, and the flavor. The packer may have something to with the flavor. The feeder can affect the firmness of flesh, but the texture and the degree to which the carcass will depend absolutely upon the heritage that the hog has to start with. The breed of the hog is exemplified by the Berkshires is given those qualities of heritage in a generous degree. The ability of Berkshires to produce nice, uniform, larded cuts, rich in lean, is well known, and there is always a demand for their products. During the middle of the month the live stock company issued a trade letter in which the statement was made that their pork business was being handicapped by a deficiency in the quantity and quality of the carcasses. The best pork product is the one that is produced by the Berkshire more uniformly.

The belly that is in greatest demand about everywhere is the one that is one-half thick, eight to ten inches wide. The best weight is in the neighborhood of six to eight pounds. The demand for the belly trade that demands weight is low as four to six pounds, and some trade in the east which prefers the eight to ten pound belly. The weight should show no trace of wrinkles. They are not heavy in hide and show the firm white fat of the finished ham and should be free of any meaty streaks of lean. The eight to ten to twelve pound grades of hams of smooth meaty and firm texture are in greatest demand. The plump little ham is most desired with about one inch of fat preferred at the center of the ham.

The moths of establishing hog values is undergoing a gradual but positive change. For many years the weight of the animal has been the major determining factor as to hog value. Today the big packers are buying their droves with an eye to the quality of the various cuts which can be had from the carcass. Bankers Saving the Situation.

Oman Bar. In all times of commercial and financial distress the banks are the first line of defense, as well as the chief objects of attack by the thoughtless and imprudent. On their stability finally depends the safety of our business life, for through them flows the current of money that is the sustaining agent of business. Therefore the incident last reported from Chicago is of great importance. Its principal significance is that the "money changers," as they are derisively called by the agitators, are keenly alive to the situation, and energetically at work to prevent a disaster in which the nation might be involved.

We can not estimate what might have happened, had the two institutions been permitted to collapse, as evidently they would, had not strong assistance been at hand. But the fact remains that for month the great banks of the land have been preparing for just what is taking place. One New York concern led off last August by charging off its books $26,000,000 of doubtful assets. This vast sum was taken care of by reducing the surplus and undivided profits of the bank to that extent. A similar process has gone on throughout the land, every banker placing in a suspended account large amounts of paper on which immediate realization is impossible, and any future liquidation uncertain. What the total is may never be announced, but it will mount high into the millions.

Clearing the decks for action has enabled the banks to wheel again into line, with a stronger front and an improved morale, ready for the future, which will itself be made more secure because of the courage of the financiers. Their money is one of the reasons that will follow as reasons will be made for useful and not speculative objects. The comptroller of the currency is better placed than anyone to judge of conditions, says the storm is passed. If no unforeseen disaster intervenes, full steam ahead will restore the suspended prosperity, and for much of this the conservative bankers of the nation are to be thanked.

Why Not Trade for Cash in 1922?

Not less than half a dozen heads of families, good conservative men have come to this store the past week and confessed they had made a practice of buying goods on credit but hereafter would practice the safe, sane and economic way of buying for cash. It's real satisfaction to pay-as-you-go; you live in a different atmosphere; you know every time how much you are paying for commodities; you become a buyer instead of an order giver. The thought of owing a store bill is an intimidation to many people. Why not be more independent and less dependant—pay cash and at all times know where you stand. How much we can save you this year depends on the volume of your purchases. Our system of selling for cash places us in a position to save you many dollars as compared with stores employing old-time methods. We all know the cash system is right. Let's practice it and both profit by it in 1922.

Gallon Fruits

Solid pack fruits in gallons are in demand at this season of the year. We have every item in the line and the price is of interest.

Pearax Sweeping Compound

A standard agent for sweeping to subdue the dust and kill the germ. In use in schools and public buildings. One hundred 150-pound steel drums.

Wineaples Apples, Bushel Baskets, $2.35

This is a "clean up" price—a real snap. These apples are fair sized (not large), well colored, free from worms, uniform in size and good keepers. You know the importance of providing the children with apples to keep them normal and well. No family should be without apples at this price. It's much less than doctor bills.

Strained Honey

We have a supply of Wayne county strained honey in 1/2 gallon mason jars selling for $1.00. Not weight 1/2 pounds. If you like honey, this should interest you.

Standard Motor Oil

75c gallon; all weights
Sinclair light weight and high fire test. For Ford cars is in demand for winter use. Makes starting easier and have the best of lubrication.

Home Roasted Coffee

We roast properly aged green coffee and produce blends that have individuality, coffee that develops good cup value, coffee that's won a place on the table of the best homes in this community. Permit this store to save you 10 to 15 cents on coffee. We are doing this for scores of patrons. We gladly extend the service to you. Basket Store Blend fresh roasted, three pounds for $1.00.

Pure Country Sorghum

90c a Gallon
Sorghum in bulk is in demand. For your convenience we are filling returnable glass jugs. If you want pure sorghum (don't want as it's probable this is the last of the season).

Better-Milk Tops the List for Test

When you buy Better-Milk you are securing the best the market affords. Tall cans, two for 25 cents. Try it—you, too, will say it's better.

Sweet Cider and Popcorn

Smooth, yellow popcorn lately taken from the field, clean as a whistle and pops 98 per cent. As for sample car. You will be back for a big eight-pound sack full which will cost 25 cents. In fact, some buy a dollar's worth—enough to last all winter.

Sweet Cider, 75 Cents a Gallon

Pure and sweet, just the way nature made it. A fresh 15-gallon-keg just on tap. Order while it is perfectly sweet; 75c gallon.

Soap Chips for Laundry

Eight Pounds for $1.00
Less demand for bar soap and more for soap chips. Nothing strange about that when it's true chips cost less, more convenient and more efficiency. A big barrel every ten days. The demand will soon be double that. Buy a dollar's worth.

Gold Dust Flour is a Real Repeater

It's a certain cure for all bread troubles. Every ounce guaranteed. You should hear to the words of praise for Gold Dust we so often receive. Try this flour the very next time you need good flour.

Girls, Learn Millinery

Girls, do you want to learn the best paying vocation on earth, for the time and money spent in learning, either as a salaried position or as a business for yourself? Learn millinery, and fit yourself for a guaranteed position of from $35 to $50 per week steady work the year around, or open a business for yourself where the profits run from 300 per cent to 700 per cent. Any wholesale house will start you in business if you can furnish some capital, good credentials, and have a fair knowledge of millinery. We secure your position. Write for terms, particulars, etc.
