Mr. and Mrs. George Roberts received word last Thursday morning that their son, Gerald Roberts, had been badly injured the evening before when a team of frightened horses-plunged into the automobile in which he was riding on the road between Winnetoon and Center. He suffered broken ribs, a fractured shoulder, several cuts and bruises. The Wayne young man was riding in the back seat of the automobile with his wife, who, before her marriage of March 8, was Miss Florence Schneider of Winnetoon. The car was driven by the bride's father, Fred Schneider, of Winnetoon. The bride, Miss Freda, was in the front seat with him. The accident occurred when the car met a buggy and team on a sharp turn in the road. Mr. Schneider in order to avoid the collision, turned off into a ditch, stopping the car. The horses became frightened and started plunging over the car on the side toward the rear occupied by Mr. Roberts and sister-in-law. The latter suffered a broken rib and a bruise on her other arm. The car escaped injury according to reports received by Roberts in receiving word of injuries received. The ribs which were broken in the accident were broken at another time several years ago.

CONVENTION VALUABLE TO RADIO INTERESTS

Sixteen Towns Not Including Wayne, Represented at Meeting.

The convention held in Wayne last Saturday by the Northeast Nebraska Radio club was very well attended in spite of adverse weather conditions. The convention was held during the day. Sixteen towns, not including Wayne, were represented by sixty-three delegates. Many of whom came overland to attend the three sessions of the day. A large number of visitors were in attendance at the meetings. Highest centered throughout the day in the radio phone. R. B. Howell of Omaha, was the chief speaker of the convention. In his talk he explained the radio phone broadcasting situation, as he found it in Europe where he recently traveled. He pointed out the use of wireless. Mr. Howell strongly advised government control of radio. In opposition to a private monopoly of purely public service, he pointed out that the government leased receiving sets to subscribers for a certain fee. Different types of sets were used for the different types of items to be sent out. In case one wished to hear market reports, he would need a set of a certain type. In case one wished opera news or other reports, he would need a set of a certain type. In case one wished several reports, he had an instrument for each. The broadcasting station worked continuously. In any way there was no objection of interference between stations as in the case where a large number of smaller stations are attempting to operate at the same time.

HOW the cost of building quality tires has been brought down to the lowest level in history was explained by H. S. Firestones, President of the Company, to the stockholders at the annual meeting on December 15, 1921.

1. All inventories and commitments at or below the market.
  2. Increased manufacturing efficiency and volume production reduced factory overhead 53%.
  3. Selling costs reduced 35%.
- Mr. Firestones stated, "This reduction in prices is made possible by our unusually advantageous buying facilities, and the enthusiasm, loyalty and determination of our 100% stockholding organization."
- "Due credit must be given to Firestone dealers who are selling Firestone tires on a smaller margin of profit. This helps every Firestone saving direct to the car owner."

The saving through first cost plus the saving through high mileage doubles Firestone economy and is daily adding new fame to the Firestone principle of service—

Governor McKelvie says Omaha newspapers erred in quoting him as saying that taxes were going to be higher.

We need a live and aggressive Commercial club to harmonize with the rest of the town. Let the organization be revived.

I have a proposition to buy oil stock in a new well at half price for just a short time. But we would incur our taxes, and if we buy oil stock anywhere we will buy it at Waterfield.

The statement made at the recent convention of the National Educational association that only forty per cent of American children finish the eighth grade and that only eight per cent complete the high school is startling in view of the omnipresence and freedom of our educational system.

It is said by those who know, that the growing radio communication has exerted a powerful influence on the minds of the people. The radio has become interested. The radio keeps them busy with useful employment nights when they might be tempted to waste time, or do worse.

Elder Howard of Columbus, who is one of the leaders of the new progressive party in this state, has shown personal acquaintance with the organization long enough to enjoy a sojourn in the sunny south. Howard has not expressed his intentions with reference to his candidate himself, but he may be expected to do so on his return home.

Wireless and radiophones are fast proving into use for all purposes serving both pleasure and business with success. Over 600,000 radiophones sets are said to be in operation in the United States as compared with 50,000 a year ago. Nebraska alone has 25,000 sets. Among others they are being used by farmers in receiving market reports. The best market reports and speeches are transmitted to distant points. The possibilities of the radio service seem unlimited.

The proposition of the late Cedar county court to have an expert accountant employed to investigate the books of every county officer in the state from Jan. 1, 1915, to date and have an examination every year in the future would certainly provide a large field of jobs. It would open a rich field for the development of expert accountants and help solve a troublesome problem. Schools everywhere in the state could provide special short courses in expert accounting.

The bonus bill is scheduled to come to a vote in the house tomorrow. It constitutes a big problem in Washington, and many members of congress are apparently willing to shift responsibility. We doubt if there is an individual in America who would not gladly give all possible consideration to the soldiers and sailors. Differences exist as to the most practicable and serviceable way of doing this, but they will be met and the consequent obligation is a question over, which legislators are puzzled. If the bonus bill is passed, the obligation will have to be met, and how to meet it to do the most good and cause the least burden furnish ground for differences of opinion.

 Even within Nonpartisan League ranks in North Dakota a good deal of opposition to A. C. Towley has been developed. Main disagreement arises over the question of candidates for the coming primaries. Many league members believe in putting a complete ticket in the field, sailing under their own flag, and making it a matter of support candidates of other parties, selecting those favorable to his policies. He would have league file as a candidate of 20th ward, and support to the practice in this state two years ago.

We wish to think and it seems not unwarranted to believe that the rather unhealthful and unsatisfactory state of society—speaking in broad sense—is really indicative of a general malady. The malady has crystallized into higher standards of thinking and living than any hitherto reached. Religion has discarded its dogmas, whether or whether it has restricted personal habits. The religious and social order is undergoing large change. The transition period is one of the most confusing often expressed in unconventional conduct, sometimes in ugly violence. Resulting to new requirements and higher standards of living. The new era of hope, convinced of new ways here and hereafter for right living, we believe society will in due course be made more wholesome and more useful plan.

Every school boy has a hero. The town man who has made the dearest impression as a public speaker or who has made a pronounced success as a square-jawed business man, or who has exhibited any special genius in mechanics or agriculture, is pointed to by school youth with pride as a wonder. If youthful confidence is not violated or admiration is not made manifestly undervalued it lasts. The impression that Bill Smith was the best whistler or best wrestler is revived in later years by the youth who has now grown old. "There's a man you could trust," exclaims advancing age in recalling an impression of youth. "He could always be depended on, and he was always a 'fool in the work'." Youth is sturdy and impressionable. Do a smart trick, and youth will write you down a fraud. Do a good deed, and youth will be your helper. Do a kind thing, without cannon-flaging and without ostentation, and youth will remember and lionize you.

AS TO ILLITERACY
 Editor Herald: The New York Tribune in a recent editorial took exception to the fact that the public schools because twenty-five per cent of the soldiers in the draft were found to be illiterate. This criticism of the schools is more by another illustration of how thinking illiterates are not because of attending school but because they fail to do so. If a community should build a fine boulevard, and then not use it, would that prove anything against the boulevard? If a pig should starve and stand by the side of a corn field, would that prove anything against the corn?
 Society has equipped a system of education on an about twenty-year-old basis of all the children of all the people, yet twenty-five per cent never attended school. Does the fact that twenty-five per cent of the children never anything about the school? The trouble is not with the school but with society which created the school and leaves its use to chance. The illiterate should not be left free to attend school or not, as he sees fit, because he is not competent to do so. The school should furnish a real motive for every child to get an education.

As a remedy for present conditions I would suggest that all compulsory school attendance laws be repealed and all tenant officers be discharged. In their place the federal and state constabularies should be so amended that any child born in the year 1910 or thereafter should never be permitted to vote, hold office or possess any real estate unless he is able to master in English the work of at least the first six grades. It is needless to say that with such a motive for education illiteracy would disappear; but unless society finds some such motive our cosmopolitan population will tend to grow more illiterate than otherwise.

Such a constitutional provision would be easily comprehended by every parent and child. The necessity of such an amendment would be so evident and so urgent in order that the child might lift himself from the level of animals to that of man that no urging would be necessary in order to have him attend school. Should we have occasion within the next generation to mobilize another army, instead of finding twenty-five per cent unable to read and write, there would be no one unable to read and write and it might be a thing of the past.

Washington News Letter
 Washington, C. March 17.
 Secretary of the Interior, Reclining participation in the Genoa conference is another proof of his wisdom in decision, his ability to cleanly state a proposition and to put his finger on the real question involved. The note clearly states: "We will not mix in European politics; we will do all in our power to promote the welfare of the Russian people, but will not aid in financial reconstruction of Europe if it involves the exploitation of Russia by other nations."

 The House on March 15, passed the agriculture appropriation bill for $35,000,000, which includes $2,500,000 for the distribution of free seeds. The committee framing the bill eliminated the free seed appropriation but was not successful in its attempt. The house, the free seed advocates winning by a vote of 173 to 142. However, the bill as sent to the senate is $4,000,000 less than that of last year.

There will be presented before the supreme court of the United States this week a case which is expected to go far toward removing the confusion arising out of the enforcement of "dry laws." The case is that of Porter v. Watkins. The supreme court will be called upon to decide whether fines and imprisonment imposed under state laws will stand, or whether the prohibition act had superseded all state statutes.
 There will be a contest over the army appropriation bill depending on the size of the army for the year 1923. The general staff wished an army of 150,000; the committee on appropriations have presented a plan providing for an army of 115,000. Quite a number favor a smaller army. Chairman Kahn favors an army of not less than 130,000, and he is said that the president favors that number.

The bonus bill has been introduced by Chairman Fordney of the ways and means committee. It does not provide for a cash payment, but carries the loan feature. The president and Secretary Mellon are opposed to the bill presented by the committee. Commissioner Taylor of the Nebraska State Railway commission is in the city, called in consultation with the interstate commerce commission. Commissioner Taylor's statement before the interstate and foreign commerce committee of the senate, which house committee was favorably received by the committee, and is considered one of the most able and comprehensive statements made before that body.

The house has the work well in hand, only two appropriation bills not having as yet been reported and hearings on both of these are completed and the bill is in the course of preparation. The senate still talks; many wish they could still talk. The vote on the four-power treaty has been set for March 22. Col. John Temple Graves, speaking at the midday Lenten meeting in this city on yesterday, declared that immorality is more widespread and vicious than at any period in the history of the present generation; that "there is a reckless disregard of human life of a moral standard which have formerly prevailed in the world."

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace in a speech before a meeting of this city, credited improved conditions in the agricultural sections, to the farm legislation which has been passed by congress, and which he asserted was a benefit to the entire country.

President Too Mild.
 Lincoln Journal: It is rumored that President Harding, mild as he is, was almost angry at the sensational assumption that he doesn't mean what he says about taxes and the bonus. The president's trouble seems to be that he "doesn't say" things loud enough to convince the Congress that he means them.

Business.

Sioux City Journal: Actual growth in the activities of the basic industries noted in the last few months can have but one meaning—a big production of goods and larger sales. The fact that the business has been more gone and more than nine months left in which to accelerate business recovery, industry can lay claim to a record of achievement. It is now better than it has been for many months. Iron and steel production is running up to 35 per cent ahead of last year's average, both building contractors and railroads demanding the output. The United States Steel corporation has been able to have reduced its unfilled orders by 1,000,000 tons, accomplishing this result in less than six months. This is a record since 1914.

What is believed to be due to the reduction in freight rates on some commodities, but which the lines might not admit, is an appreciable reduction in the number of idle freight cars in various sections of the country. Part of that reduction can have been caused by a corresponding increase in the movement of iron ore and the coming miners' strike, but most of it is because business is moving faster in many lines. The time has come when the industry could make a perceptible improvement in economic affairs. Mention of the miners' strike, and only that, as it has been actually voted upon as final, brings to the attention the only important difficulty now menacing steady and increased production of iron ore. The miners walk out, as they seem determined to do, two effects will be produced, both of which will be extremely serious. First, the iron ore for the wage war is settled. The one will be an increase in unemployment and a consequent falling off in the movement of merchandise, and the other is an embarrassment to industry caused by declining coal tonnage.

It is obvious that such a production in iron ore, which non-union miners are able to put out, industry soon will exhaust the supply, and, if the strike is prolonged through the summer, and industrial activities will have to be curtailed. Little hope is now entertained for a pre-strike settlement, and the date April 1 is drawing nearer.

One of the most significant developments of 1922 has been the substitution in part of the farmers of the country. Better prices for grain and live stock have given farmers more money and they have created better spirits in every direction in the agricultural sections. This was greatly desired, for the spring planting season is well advanced and the encouragement came in time to invest the farmers with a new hope for the future. It is not believed that the same discouraging conditions will be visited upon the agricultural interests again, national legislation in their behalf and their own efforts will be sufficient to protect products promising a safeguard against such a calamity's repetition.

The business progress made this year looks better than any other in character. The process has been slow and steady and is likely to continue in that way. It has been and is a struggle to reconstruct the country's business affairs, and a task of that kind is never done well if done in too great a hurry. Besides, the country is still in need of reconstruction the job was too big to be rushed.

To Extend Trade Circle. Hastings Tribune: "It is the ambition of every town nowadays to draw its trade from the surrounding country. Growth in retail trade that comes from the town alone, does not usually satisfy the ambition of a live business center. To attain its ambitions, it must draw in trade from the surrounding country."

"That trade comes easier than it used to. In these days of automobiles it is not drawn a very considerable distance. People will pass by the old fashioned cross roads store in a goodly number, to come into a good live center. And they will pass such a center and get a considerable distance farther if they are convinced that they have found a better center.

"Thus they go to the town within driving distance that gives the best impression as a live place. While the general appearance of a town goes a good way toward creating an impression, the most expeditious way of producing it is by a lot of live advertising in the home newspaper. "You never find a newspaper filled with advertising in a dead town. On the contrary, when the bulk of the stores advertise well, the town looks alive."

Cedar County People Discuss Tax Problem

Hartington, Neb., March 18.—One of the largest gatherings of farmers ever seen in this part of the state met here yesterday afternoon to discuss the tax problem. About 500 farmers from the surrounding territory were present. The meeting was the result of a meeting of the Farmers Union where the taxes were discussed and it was decided to make the deliberations of a general nature and not confine them to the Farmers Union.

Resolutions were adopted making three recommendations. The first was that a committee of tax be appointed from each commissioner district to act as an advisory body with the county board to discuss the readjustment of taxes.

The second was that an expert accountant be employed to investigate the books of every county auditor from Jan. 1, 1915 to date and that such examination be made every year in the future.

The third was that the personal tax list be published. Although no action was taken, some hot discussions were heard on the use of heavy trucks on new roads. It was brought out that the heavy trucks ruin the roads before they are completed.

Cuming County Man Takes His Own Life

West Point, Neb., March 18.—Lew Heller, prominent farmer of Cuming county, committed suicide at his farm northeast of here yesterday afternoon by hanging. He was about 50 years old. He had been governor of this district in this county for many years.

No cause for his act is known, but it is believed that he became dissatisfied over the loss of his position as overseer, which might have caused him to take his life. He had filled the position for many years but another man was appointed recently to take his place. It is believed that he felt this prey on his mind, with the belief that the appointment was meant as a reflection upon his work.

No coroner's inquest was held. He is survived by his widow, two sons and one daughter.

American Legion Has A Successful Dance

Running the Factory

To help turn the great wheels of industry, there is perhaps no single instrument that compares with the telephone.

The telephone keeps the factory in constant touch with the jobbing house, with the homes of its employees and officials, and with distant cities, towns and villages.

Of all modern conveniences for saving time and effort, none perhaps is worth as much for the money spent as is your telephone.

Logan Valley Dairy Farm

The following lines were composed by Miss Mary Olson, nurse, taking care of W. J. Patterson at the home of L. R. Winegar, proprietor of the Logan Valley Dairy Farm:

My first morning at Logan Valley Dairy Farm,
 At four-thirty I heard the alarm ring,
 I ran by that there was some mistake,
 But this dairy business is no fake,
 And that is the hour at which they start,
 To be ready at eight with the old milk cart,
 The bottles filled and in their cases,
 To take to their respective places,
 And one who helps them turn the trick,
 Is their old horse faithful Dick,
 The phone rings many times a day,
 The customers leave their orders that way,
 And let me tell you it's no dream,
 To remember who wants milk,
 And who wants cream.
 Yes, while I'm at it I'll put you wise,
 It's no small job to sterilize,
 The pails, the cans, the strainers, too,
 Every day the whole year thru,
 It also helps to keep one trotting,
 To see that the milk is all strained thru cotton,
 Another thing, perhaps the best,
 They know the cows have all passed the test,
 So if you want a job that will keep you "humping"
 You'd do better till night always doing something,
 Just hop in and start dairy,
 And try to treat your customers fairly.

No Mixed Odors in a HERRICK

The Herrick Refrigerator, Winnebago, Iowa

Did you ever open a refrigerator and get an awful mixture of odors? And didn't you find that some of the food had acquired the odors of an entirely different food—butter tasting like onions, etc.? Such a thing is impossible in a HERRICK. The forced dry air circulation of a Herrick carries all free flavors up into the ice chamber where a purifying process takes place and all odors are condensed and carried off in the drippings through the drain pipe. The dry air circulation of a Herrick also prevents mold and decay, making it a sanitary place to store food. Mold and decay are sure to exist in refrigerators having a damp dead air with no circulation. Buy a HERRICK.

Erection of Green House is Under Way

A new enterprise for Wayne will be ready for business within a few months, when the greenhouse now under construction will be opened by its manager and owner, Berrie Hall, formerly of Kennard, Neb. Mr. Hall purchased lots south of the college campus from F. C. Jones in November, and the erection of a greenhouse and residence is now under way. Mr. Hall is an enterprising business man and he plans to increase the scale of his business as the demand warrants the growth. Besides dispensing cut flowers and plants, the greenhouse will supply the community with vegetables and greens in advance of the season. The owner intends to develop the business so that he can care for the demand for greenhouse products from the towns on the branch line out of Wayne. The entire improvement, which will probably include the erection of two large greenhouses and a nursery, will mean the departure of Mr. Hall from the city. His son, Wilbur Hall, is an intern doctor, and now in Wayne, following that trade. Mrs. Hall and a daughter will arrive in this city as soon as their residence here is completed.

Prefers Nebraska to Southern California

Charles H. Chace who returned recently from a winter's sojourn in southern California, was in Wayne on Wednesday night, guest of his brother, C. A. Chace. Charles H. Chace bought a fine, modern residence, valued at $22,000, at Long Beach with the intention of at least spending his winters there. He has been out there during two winters and has had enough. His Long Beach property is for sale. He explains that his acquaintances and interests are in Nebraska, and he and his family feel better contented here. Nothing do among strangers. He regards an intolerable bore. He likes the California winter climate as a rule, but he likes his old friends none of the places has any money.

better and does not propose to pull up stakes and leave. Besides other interests, he still owns his residence at Stanton, which will be his home summer and winter. He says if he wants to spend a few months at any time in California, he will rent instead of buy.

Death of Dr. Payne Follows Operation

Dr. W. S. Payne whose death occurred at Woodbine, Ia., March 18, left Wayne on account of ill health last December. He was taken to an Omaha hospital where it is said an operation was performed for a tumor in the brain. He leaves his wife and one daughter, aged 18. Dr. Payne came to Wayne from Neligh about a year ago. Previous to going to Neligh he practiced his profession at Woodbine, Ia. A friend says he was an excellent physician and surgeon, but that he overworked during an influenza epidemic and that injured his own health which was never fully recovered. He will be remembered with esteem by Wayne people who will extend hearty sympathy to the sorrowing family.

Bloomfield Child Here. Bloomfield, Neb., March 15.—A rather peculiar accident happened here, and the 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Munson is in a Sioux City hospital as a result. Mr. Munson was cleaning out the barn and just as he threw a forkful of the litter out of the door the little girl started to run by. The fork struck her in the face and one of the tines penetrated the right eyeball. Dr. J. H. Metten was called and found the child in a semi-conscious condition. She was then taken to the hospital. For a time her recovery was doubtful, but latest reports are to the effect that she is now out of danger. Her father is a fireman on the Minneapolis and Omaha railroad.

Leaders at Lincoln Discuss Politics

Lincoln, Neb., March 17.—Will J. Norton, president of the Nebraska farm bureau, file for the democratic nomination for governor and virtually shut his friends in the third party in the face!

Third party leaders here declare vehemently that inasmuch as Norton has released their proffer to be the third party candidate for governor he'll not go over into the reactionary Democratic camp. Friends of "Brother Norton" Bryan, probable progressive Democratic candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, hope he will not.

Mullen Wants Help to File. Friends of Arthur Mullen and Senator Hitchcock, who see in the entrance of Norton into the race a split in the progressive Democratic ranks, spouting defeat for "Brother Charlie" and Norton and nomination of a dark horse reactionary, are praying fervently that he will be the third party candidate for governor.

Norton who was at his home in Polk county declared over long distance telephone that he would make a statement in a short time. "I refuse to say whether I will accept it or won't accept it," Norton said.

The agitation for Norton started two days ago when a few Democrats, living in that democratic stronghold, Butler county, filed a petition with the state secretary to put Norton on the democratic ticket. The names on the petition were not sufficient names on the petition to make it legal, therefore, too, Norton must give his consent.

Bigelow to File. J. H. Edmisten, third party chairman, announced that A. H. Bigelow would undoubtedly be the third party candidate for United States senator; Arthur G. Wray would be candidate for governor; F. L. Ellsberg, mayor of Omaha, would be candidate for lieutenant governor, and F. L. Bollon would be candidate for attorney general with lesser lights circulating petitions for every other state office.

Under the law, third party leaders can be real bosses in selecting candidates, while democratic and republican leaders must permit anyone with a filing fee to become a candidate.

Progressive Leaders can Dictate. The law demands that when a new party is born that one-half the signers of the party platform sign a petition to put the name of its candidate on the ticket. There were 500 signers to the pact in Grand Island. It means that 250 can dictate as to what shall be the third party candidate.

Meaning, third party and republican leaders are smiling at the loud democratic claims of victory at the next election.

"If the water's so good why don't they get it," a politician said today. Then, he pointed out that the third party has a candidate for every important state office and the republican party has two and three, while scarcely one democratic politician has stuck his head above water and announced as a candidate for the offices.

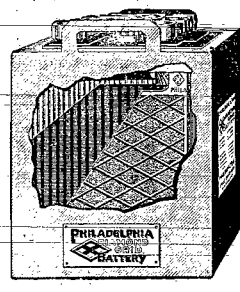

Experimental Work on Feed for Cattle

Lincoln, Neb., March 16.—Experimental work is being done to produce feeds which emanate from factories, forming the majority of the so-called protein supplements for catling feedstuffs. There's little exceed more than 50 per cent over the price of corn on a per ton basis, or, it is doubtful if two pounds of either oil-seed or cottonseed meal would replace more than three pounds of corn in producing one pound of gain, according to the department of animal husbandry of the University of Nebraska.

Replying to numerous questions as to whether it pays to add a protein supplement to the ration, the department states that the economy of practice depends entirely upon the relative prices of corn, alfalfa, and the supplement.

Cattle Like Bi-Products. "The majority of cattle fed in Nebraska receive a ration of corn and alfalfa, as these two feeds are grown upon farms where cattle are fed and consequently can be charged to the cattle free of all expenses incurred in marketing, shipping and transporting," the department declares. "There is no question but what cattle like these bi-products, especially linseed oil meal. Furthermore, these two products are highly digestible, contain a high percentage of protein and unsolubility are much more than three pounds of corn, pound for pound. "However, experimental work has tended to show a doubt if two pounds of either oil-seed or cottonseed meal would replace more than three pounds of corn in producing one pound of gain. "Generally speaking, it is doubtful if one is justified either in paying to exceed double the prevailing price of corn per ton for either cottonseed meal or linseed meal, where an abundance of good cheap alfalfa is available on the farm where cattle are fed. There is little difference between oil-seed and cottonseed meal in value. Forty-three per cent protein cottonseed meal is most desirable."

Satisfied With Nebraska. Lubert Advocate: Mrs. Candace Ross dropped into The Advocate office Tuesday morning to give the people of this vicinity through The Advocate pages a brief idea of her impressions of the west and she informs the reporter that while California has much fine scenery and many interesting things to the eastward, that so far as she is concerned that Nebraska, as an all round place to live, appeals most forcibly to her. There was no snow at Los Angeles during January as reported but it got so cold that water froze and ice two inches thick formed, and the gardens and oranges were frozen. The orange crop was practically ruined and the property damage to the growers reaches an outstanding figure.

On the return trip there was much snow from Salt Lake until the balmy eastern breezes were met on the Nebraska prairies and there was no more snow or biting cold after the Nebraska state line was crossed, which "threw" imaginary, yet marks unmistakably the gateway to the land of variety and plenty and peaceful days, Mrs. Ross is glad to abide.

No More Bank Failures. Lincoln, Neb., March 17.—Better farm prices and new money coming into the state has, to a large extent, overcome the financial depression and few banks in the future will fail. J. E. Hart, secretary of the state department of trade and commerce, said in a statement yesterday. "Northwestern Nebraska has been making heavy shipments of hogs and sheep since prices advanced early in the year and the farmers have gotten the benefit of top quotations," Mr. Hart declared.

Which Costs Less? A Battery? or Battery Service?

What measures the value of a storage battery? Is this value indicated by the initial cost or can it be measured in terms of service? Before the advent of the Ray battery, the Ray guarantee and the Ray merchandising policy there was no means of determining battery service cost. It was simply a matter of guessing how long a battery would last, guessing how many times you would be obliged to call for an adjustment on your guarantee, guessing against a dozen and one possible extra costs which might descend upon you at any moment.

Selling Service Instead of Batteries

The Ray guarantee and the Ray policy is the first and the only combination which makes it possible to sell actual, absolute, fixed-cost battery service. In a manner of speaking the RAY BATTERY COMPANY does not sell batteries at all—it sells battery service.

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher.

Age of Autos. We built our towns in olden days, when horse-drawn carriages were easily logged along our ways, and had few traffic worries.

and cash the U. S. Bond; oh, every body they can scrape, they promptly, gladly ship; no hoarded coins of theirs escape the Wizard's master grip. "Odds death," the prudent banker says, "why ship the goods home? Why send the shining scads away to guys you'd never see? Well, show you-how you may increase in safety all you can; why strip, we ask, your treasure chest, to back some 'fakie unknown'?"

In Jail and Out. It doesn't fit my heart with joy to see a gent in jail; I'm sorry for the erring boy who's left the narrow jail. Some day I hope no man will jail these warden's keys are clinked, some day I hope the prison cell will be a thing extinct.

Financial Wizards. Financial wizards rise at times, killers leave their dead, according to and-ye, in a sudden swoop. "Oh, easy marks, bring us your times, and land red perhaps one day a rope. We in velvet robes will pay you fine, turn the vicious holdups loose with gentle reprimands, and then we wonder why the deuce the crime wave went so soon, 'twas shame and sting." The easy marks, in eager ranks, to Wizard calls resound, and they draw their money from the banks, free them in a week, and then they take their guns and knives, and, filled with bootleg gin, they sacrifice some valved lives, and swell the wave of sin. And while it offends me the more that prisons do, I'd like to see such men in jail, the whole benighted crew.

The Street. My room is near the village street, too close to traffic madding, and all night long I hear the feet of foolish people gauding. Hour after hour, in the cold wind, and in the night vigils keeping, how people have to go to bed and do some useful sleeping. I hear the tin cars rattle, the bill, whining, and a-horning, and flappers voices rising shrill, at 3:10 in the morning. We used to have our fun-by-day, but now we did our cheating, when evening came we hit the hay and did some fancy snoring. If any man sent up a yawn that alleges found discharging, he'd run against the village cop, who'd slam him through the curbing. But wavy people have no rights in this gray world of now, they're no look-alike rights, and long to greet the morrow. The young folks whoop-beneath the stars, and yell and sing and clamor, and noisier, and henny ears all help to swell the clamor. The midnight hour no comfort has, there's little chance for dreaming, for all the night is full of jazz and yips and flappers' screaming. And so the old folks yearn and weep for saintly nights departed when they could sit in glory-hearted ease.

The Brook. I am the brook which the birds a thousands-odes have chanted, and I am loaded to the guards with health, it must be granted; I slip along by clambur and sobor, and I'm pouring merrily laughter, and gents who drink my waters cool will have no morning after. I come from clear crystal springs, a beverage for kings and kings, my course I am pursuing, yet some health my water has, and my health brings, morning, and they're the ones who have a taste within in the morning, chatter, chatter as I flow to join my business, every I do not make men's noses flow, or set their nerves a quiver. I do not gather deadly drugs while winding through the valleys, I am not a stinging gator, I do not mix my windy alleys, I pass through the pleasant vale, through meadows, through forests, I haven't sent a man to jail, I've never invented through-bosky dells my waters purr, in shade that makes them chilly, and yet some delicates prefer a drink that knocks them silly, I chatter, chatter, as I flow, a brooklet blithe and frisky, and yet misguided sports will go and buy massasin whisky.

Convincing Testimony to Science of Chiropractic

Newcastle, Neb., Jan. 22, 1920.

To Whom It May Concern: Little Harold Pfister, aged 22 months, became seriously ill on October 18, 1920.

The family physician was summoned, who gave him every attention for seven days, the child gradually growing worse, and becoming wholly unconscious. A second physician was called from Sioux City in consultation. They agreed that the condition was very serious.

The last doctor who was called said cholera infantum and also said look for the worst. The attending nurse said he would not live three hours longer.

In this almost hopeless moment, a brother suggested as a last resort the chiropractors of Wayne, Nebraska. In two hours Lewis & Lewis, chiropractors, were at the bedside of the little sufferer, who to all appearances was very nearly a corpse. Improvement became evident, and continued. Harold had a fever of 104.2. He fully recovered after twelve adjustments without the aid of any drugs whatever, and is today in a perfect state of health with every faculty 100 per cent.

This we consider a "Twentieth Century Miracle," and cannot speak too highly or recommend too strongly the science of chiropractic, or the work and skill of Lewis & Lewis, chiropractors, of Wayne, Nebraska.

Any further desired information will be cheerfully given by his grateful and happy parents.

It being the fiftieth wedding anniversary of the judge and his estimable wife, Mrs. Pingree read to the guests a list of names of those who had posed especially for the occasion, and the ladies presented Mrs. Moses with a handsome Turkish shawl in recognition of the occasion. The surprise was served at 5:30. Those present were: Mesdames Pingree, Horton Rogers, Hunter, Fisher, King, Dean, Miller, Chace and Cunningham.

From Pomer's Journal March 23, 1882. We notice that the agricultural society of this county is holding their meeting on Friday, elected P. G. Wright, president, and Dayton Ward secretary of the society.

It was believed to be so violently on Tuesday that the river between Sioux City and Covington was impassable. There was therefore no crossing of the river. A portion of Third street badly needs grading and filling up. Several sidewalks and cross walks are also in a very dilapidated condition. The trustees are cordially invited to look in the places where repairs are very much needed.

Correspondence: The new school house will be completed April 1. The contract for holding it is taken by W. Rohan and is being done and job for the district. The old log school house, in which for many years, not only school was held, but also the district meetings, as elections, law suits, etc., has been transformed into a horse stable. The venerable building was built in 1825, and was used for a school suit was held eight years ago over the ownership of a certain red calf. The case was before Squire Coffey, and the attorneys were John Barnes and Wm. Huse, sr. Two juries were required, and a vast display of forensic eloquence; before the ownership of the certain red calf was determined on. And now that old building, which resounded with the roar of legal argument, has been deserted and huddled into a stable for horses.

The Status of the Hog. "Drovers' Control" Stockmen. Hogs are regarded as excellent property at the present writing and are given on full credit all over the corn belt, and even in the west, as having been one of the saving factors in the recent period of depression. The purchase of several hundred stock hogs a week on this market recently is outstripping of the broad demand that exists everywhere this spring for thrifty young hogs, and is especially important.

Just now the self-appointed guardians of the farmer are busy proclaiming their fears that hog production the coming season will be excessive. "No one, however," is going to take these gloom spreaders very seriously. The events of the past year have forced agriculture to a new realization of the half-forgotten truth that marketing farm products through live stock is as possible as in any other line of the most economic system of farming yet devised.

This realization, and the fact that hogs have paid so well during the current season, might result in some increase in hog production the coming spring, but the country can use to good advantage a great many more hogs than it raised in 1921, and there is little danger that production will or can be carried to a point where the supply actually exceeds the demand to any great extent.

In this connection the Breeders Gazette observes that "if a solution is found in the pig show shall occur this spring the probabilities are that it will be profitable to producers, provided the conditions shall continue in business conditions shall continue. There is every reason to believe that it will continue.

Lincoln-Jeweler. All reports from Russia go to show that Indian corn is very valuable. Mr. Hoover is just now advertising our great product more widely than the Bureau officials or the publicity specialists we have ever sent abroad for that purpose. American corn is going into the famine districts of Europe, not as fast as the soviet government can find cars and locomotives to transport it. There is a turning up of noses at corn bread this time.

bill and had fought it when he tried for the governorship two years ago, his change of position was subjected to all kinds of interpretation. Even those who believe the code bill is right in principle and who find no fault with any candidate for standing up for the law have been numerous among those who expressed some wonder at McMullen's change. These have joined in asserting that the change will call for much in the way of explanation from McMullen and his friends during the campaign.

The democratic press has been full of charges of tie-up letters. Governor McKelvie and McMullen. Voters have been reminded that they do not like to see a state officer use the machinery of his office in referring to dictate who his successor shall be. Rotation and Succession in office have been held up to the voters as a thing to be shunned and nipped in the bud or punished when discovered—and all that sort of thing. Rumors have grown until they have reached the point where it is said some one traveling on state mileage went to McMullen to make the alleged deal whereby he was to fall heir to Governor McKelvie's support and the support of his friends now in office.

Pictures have been drawn of McMullen going into Governor McKelvie's office opposed to the code bill and coming out in favor of it and then filing as a republican candidate for governor.

Governor McKelvie-Denies. Governor McKelvie has treated all such rumors with more or less contempt. He has given the press point out to him that he has made a mistake in the printing of his campaign cards by leaving off the statement that he is a candidate for renomination "for a third term." Maybe it was no mistake. He may have thought it unnecessary to look up the records to ascertain how many terms he has served the people well and faithfully. These officers are sure the people do not care how many terms they serve, just so they serve efficiently. Yet sense candidates in the field for the first time are considering the matter of printing upon their cards the statement, "Candidate for renomination for first term."

There is no evidence that the governor's appointees are flocking to any particular candidate for governor. The six chief secretaries with their many employes are announcing to the world that they are in favor of the nomination of any one candidate, only here and there is there one or two who are such as L. G. Brian, formerly state treasurer, now chief adjutant of state, and insurance commissioner. It is not surprising that McMullen and making no secret of his belief that McKelvie will be nominated without much of a struggle. He is not surprised if Mr. Norton Weaver could have been nominated even easier than any other if he had chosen to run for governor. The persistent rumors of a tie-up between McMullen and Governor McKelvie, who by the way, is a renomination for a second year, is a man who has not changed his mind and eventually fills an acceptance of the petitions now on file.

Representative George A. Williams of Fillmore and Deputy Secretary of State W. W. Garrison of Broken Bow are rivals for secretary of state. Mr. Garrison playfully alleges that Mr. Williams is responsible for the candidacy of the same office fight in his home town. He also playfully threatened to bring out another candidate named Williams, who by the way, is a renomination for a second year, is a man who has not changed his mind and eventually fills an acceptance of the petitions now on file.

O. S. Spillman of Pierce, republican candidate for attorney general, may have an opponent in Judge W. D. Dorsey, who has applied as assistant attorney general last fall. Petitions have been filed for Dorsey but he has not yet accepted the nomination. Judge Dorsey was same court compilation during of body was abolished after a hard fight in the last legislature. Prior to that he was judge of the tenth judicial district having been appointed to that office by Governor Neville, a democrat.

Soon after Governor Neville made that appointment of T. J. Mott of Peru called and congratulated the governor upon his selection. "Dorsey is a nephew of mine," kindly said Colonel Major. "I don't know that, Tom," said Governor Neville. "But I believe I would have appointed him if I had." State Auditor George W. Marshall and F. P. Corrick, chief clerk of the house of representatives, are pitted against each other for state auditor.

Public Deeply Interested. Kansas City Star: Whether or not there is to be a general strike of coal miners April 1, the country faces the spectacle of mine operators and employes talking little, but acting among themselves with no apparent regard for the rights of the general public or the serious consequences that might follow such a move. It is considered the mining of coal proceeds under peculiar difficulties, which to all appearances, are not being fundamentally considered in the present controversy. One difficulty arises from the irregular demand for coal, due to seasonal changes; and another from the fact that there are not many mine employes waiting for any time of the year. These conditions have entered into the demands of the miners for contention of the present wage scale and for the opportunity of a demand for a six-hour day and a five-day week. It remains true, however, that in a good part of the last year, and for a longer period, miners as a rule have been employed but two to three days in the week; and there was no need for employment, leaving them in an order that sufficient coal might be produced to meet the demands of fuel.

Political Gossip At State Headquarters

Lincoln Journal, March 19: Candidates for the $5,000 state office of auditor and three railway commissioners, one of whom is to be elected this year. Judges of the district court are now also in the $5,000 salaried list.

Around the candidacy of Representative A. H. Byrum of Bloomington, Sumner county, is the name of Randolph and Adam McMullen of Beatrice, all attention is now centered. There are the republican candidates for governor to date. The water is fine and there is plenty of foam-see more before the nominations close.

Trust far the nearest the democrats have come to having a candidate for governor is the filing of several petitions in behalf of L. A. Norton of Falls, a man who recently declined to run for that or any other office. Rumors from Polk indicate that the people there would like to see McMullen as a renomination.
