Colored Revivalist Preys.
Lincoln Journal: Pursuing his political and religious intrigues in the far southland, Judge Howard hears the prayer of a colored revivalist which, stenographically reported, finds eloquent expression in these words:
"O Lord, give thy servant this mornin' the eyes of the eagle and the wisdom of the owl; connect my soul with the gospel telephone in the central skies; illuminate his brow with the sun of heaven, pizen his mind with love for de sinner; trespentine his imagination, grease his tongue with possuin oil; loosen his tongue with the sledge hammer of thy power; trectricity his brain wid de lightning of de word, put betum motion in his ahms, fill him plumb full ob de dynamite ob glory, boost him all over wid de levitation oil ob salvation and set him on fire, Amen."

An Impression of Women's Convention

Mrs. Harriet S. MacMurphy in Omaha World Herald: "It's every member... just like me what sort of a Sunday school would this be? stood over the door of my childhood's Sunday school," said one delegate to the district convention of women's clubs at Wayne, and when they asked me to be chairman of this committee, I thought, "I cannot do this. The old motto came to me. I had to take that department. I hope you will not be sorry that I have learned the lesson of not only what I can get, but also what I must give, from my childhood's Sunday school." And she sent the 300 women away with a very different idea of citizenship, their new duty in life. Mrs. Freeman of Wisner was that 50-50 club woman.

"Woodland Reveries," a song both the words and music of which were composed by Mrs. Mabel Wustoff of Madison, was rendered by Mrs. Clyde Oman of Wayne, with accompaniment by the orchestra of the State Normal school. "Is it not beautiful," said Mrs. Miller, president of the district convention, "that we see plainly by the beautiful music whether time is almost here when we shall have our poems written, our songs set to music, rendered by trained and fine voices, with accompaniment by famed orchestras, all from our clubwomen or their families?"

The Nebraska club, by Mrs. Minnie of Oakland, told of her lifetime work that is being done to make of the home of Nebraska's poet laureate, John G. Neihard, a shrine for the perpetuation of the fame and works of one who shall be counted as among the great poets of the world.

Mrs. poet laureate by set of our legislature, a delineator of the life of the middle west, of the great plains, the series of his works beginning with the "Songs of Hugh Glass," and followed by the "The Quest," and "The Song of Three Friends," issued during periods of his various periods of the settlement of this great plains country.

Graduated There... "They should have a fitting center in their minds to perpetuate yearly the song and story," it was pointed out.

Neihard spent his early life at Wayne, was graduated from the normal school at Wayne, and under the tutelage of the corps of professors, which have made that school what it is, the best in the state, and there and at the towns of his later life further east in the state, he is most ardently loved.

The convention spared an hour of their precious time to ride to the normal school and State Teachers' bureau, the business men of the city providing automobiles for more than 100 delegates and visitors. The college atmosphere made the visitor almost at the edge of the pretty city and deepens as one enters the six or seven fine buildings that house the our northernmost portion of the state. The equipment of the normal is comparatively new and of the best. President Conn and his staff making the campus beautiful and useful, as all beauty should be. The school is a great credit to the state and has a fine future.

The Wayne Women's club is great in numbers, but it certainly has demonstrated one of the great slogans of the Federation of Women's clubs, teamwork. In a club house of its own, which it has generously named the Wayne Community house. It entertained in the most

Junior Class Makes Annual Appearance

The three-act comedy, "Nothing But the Truth," by James Montgomery, was presented at the auditorium of the State Teachers college on last Thursday evening by members of the Junior class. Delegates from the Rosalie and Wisner high schools and visitors from neighboring towns attended the play, and with the audience of students and townspeople, filled the house to capacity. The play was given under the direction of Mrs. Minnie V. Witzmeyer of the department of expression.

The leading part in the play, that of Bob Bennett, who wagers $10,000 that he can speak the truth for forty hours, and wins the bet, in spite of the strenuous efforts of the opponents, was taken by John Chart of Wayne. Donald Frisbie of Elgin, played the role of R. M. Benton, business partner of Bennett, with whom the bet is made. These two parts were especially well played. The other member of the firm was Dick Donnelly whose part was taken by Charles Jones of Hartington. Robin Miller of Coleridge as Huber Down, and Verward Dickinson of Newcastle as Clarence Van Dusen, were the other men in the play. Miss Gertrude Kendall of Norfolk, as Mrs. Ralston; Miss Margaret of York Catharine as Owen; her daughter; Miss Marjorie Miner of Fairfax, S. D., as Ethel, her sister; Miss Hazel of Hartington, and Miss Hazel Tharp of Thayer, as Sabel and Miss Blanche Greer of Wisner, as Martha, the maid, were the other members of the cast.

Attempt to Wreck Train

York, Neb., April 20.—A west-bound passenger train on the North-western ran into a three-foot rail that was chained to the track at the Blackburn station crossing here last night. The obstruction was pushed aside by the engine. This is the second of three attempts to derail trains on the Northwestern at this point. Two men are held in the county jail for investigation in connection with the alleged attempt to wreck the train.

hospitable manner a convention of all the other clubs in the district and not a delegate but could say as she went away, "it was a real trap hospitality."

One Criticism. Just one little criticism came which was good as a means to incite thought, but was not too much of the art and literature and science in some of its phases in the present educational life and too little of the physical study of how to make healthy human bodies that can stand the strain of the present life.

"They devoted just one hour to the science of building in the home health by means of a proper understanding of foods and how to prepare them, of homes and how to make them conducive to this healthy physical life," said Mrs. Henry Doy, a resident of Wayne for forty years and an ardent clubwoman and worker in civic affairs.

The finely equipped and beautifully clean hospital that collaborates with the normal in varied lines of service testifies to the care of the invalid, but perhaps shows her statement to be true; do we not pay too much attention to the cure of disease and too little to the prevention?

But perhaps the clubwoman, with all her diversities of study and action, is getting to that, too.

Summer Training Camp. Citizens military training camps, combining the advantages of military training with the pleasures of an out-of-door summer vacation will be held during August in various army posts of the United States, according to announcement from the office of Lt.-Col. J. P. Hopkins, chief of staff, 89th division.

Any citizen of the United States, whether by naturalization or birth is entitled to apply for the course. The training, given free to all accepted applicants, is planned to develop self-reliance and alertness, to promote physical and mental courage, and to increase health and vigor. The total number of candidates from each area is not yet decided, pending action of congress, but applications will be received until May 31 at the office of Lt.-Col. Hopkins, Army Building, Omaha.

We would like to see the business men of Wayne resurrect their commercial club or organize a new one.

A Los Angeles woman 83 years old has been arrested on a charge of hogony. We think the sanity of all persons concerned ought to be carefully looked into.

It takes exercise of fewer muscles to laugh than to frown, so we are glad if there fore you get as much expenditure of energy to seem happy than to appear mad. And one is an asset, while the other is a liability.

People often lie as the easiest way to satisfy a listener. They usually like to be agreeable and avoid of some of the facts they will cover facts or rearrange the truth to meet the exigency of the moment.

Attention is being called to the annual miracle of springtime growth—the time when green grass, foliage and blossoms are renewed, and the winter pastures are again made lush. We would suggest that the annual miracle has been painfully delayed this spring.

Every convention held in Wayne is a forceful and lasting advertisement of the town. Last week the Wayne county club went away over to Augusta singing the praises of the town. Every woman who was here, was a sharp observer, keenly sensitive to the town's advantages and hospitality, and she will put forth words her experiences and impressions. Every public gathering, calling here people from other sections of the state, tends to make known to Wayne's future.

The Ku Klux Klan, which has been law-abiding and has had the purpose to correct popular evils, engaged in a raid on two brothers in southern California. It was found out that the raiders were bent on punishing suspected bootleggers. One man was killed and two others were injured. Any mob unauthorised by law and proceeding without due regularity, is prompted by passion, based on inconclusive evidence, and is a menace to society. The Ku Klux Klan should get out of business, and let authorized government take care of offenders in the regular way.

We saw a middle-aged man get off the train last week with a self-satisfied air that was worth considering. He was so jaunty and proud as a peacock, and he did not look at all as though his brains were heavy enough to ever cause curvature of the spine. He was neatly dressed, well groomed, boasting content with himself and utterly oblivious to the world. He reflected no sense of responsibility, and no one would suspect that he had thought of a various things. We rather envied him if he is all that he looked to be no burdens, no anxieties.

It is really a good thing that one is deeply imbued with the importance of his service, good thing that he is without conceit, without argument, without any humor that his efforts are a success. It would be cruel and unbecomingly to do more than to come out to the cemetery and amidst such suggestive surroundings, tell him he was a small noble and no of great consequence to society. It is faith in one's work that spur ambition and increases results. It is faith in one's product that stimulates progress and makes for permanent improvement.

Women are receiving plenty of suggestions if regard to discharging their obligations as voters, and they may well absorb and be governed by the same good advice. At a meeting of women at Battimore recently, one of the speakers said that the service by voters as follows: "Believing in government by the people, I will do my best: First: To inform myself. Second: To exercise my conscience. Third: To obey the law, even when I am not in sympathy with all of its provisions. Fourth: To vote for the candidates whose policies of which I approve. Fifth: To respect the right of others to differ from me. Sixth: To regard my citizenship as a public trust."

A proposed tariff law occupies a share of the attention of official Washington, and is being thrashed out by the Senate and the House. It is thought it would stimulate prosperity, while its opponents are just as sure it would retard prosperity. The important question is, how is it to be put into force. There are those who question the need or advisability of lifting a high tariff wall at this time. Likely delay in passing the proposed measure is considered by some former tariff advocates an advantage rather than a hindrance to the domestic market. It is in this position the proposed tariff law is questioned by the Ohio State Journal, a republican newspaper, which says: "Economic conditions in this world have changed so much since the war that the tariff problem is vastly altered. We are the creditor nation and the only way in which our debtors can pay is in their products. Our agricultural and manufacturing interests need as never. No one appears to be taking any shelled out high protectionist, who is wrong about it, has a clear idea of just what ought to be done. It is important to be forthright in this regard to go ahead. This is one of the cases where it is better to do nothing than to do the wrong thing."

The savant who runs the Dakota City Eagle seems to hold President Harding and the editor of the Omaha Herald jointly responsible for all prevailing ills in the city—and the unfavorable weather. We mentioned a few weeks ago that the Omaha Herald had fired out of the engraving department a cargo of employees in the interest of efficiency and economy. We did not approve nor disapprove of the president's course, as we were not intimately conversant with the facts. We do assume, however, that the president was acting in good faith in promoting better methods consistent with the best public service. The Eagle savant thinks the president was playing politics. On the contrary, we have heard the president, regardless of party affiliation, to believe he will not allow party prejudice to injure public service. The Eagle's next call is attention to the chief of the engraving department who has been in the service thirty-nine years. If he is as efficient as he is reputed to be, could likely do better for himself by entering the employ of a plant outside of the government service. If we are not mistaken, the engraving department job for thirty-nine years, we imagine there would be little stimulus to produce such, and we think it would be high time to pay his dues. But, be that as it may, first side politicians, like the Eagle savant, show weakness in seeking to under the motive of every public performance by officials who happen to be the creatures of an opposing political organization.

We are encouraged to believe that Sister Marie Weekes of the Norfolk Press will yet come out of the political delirium which she has suffered from in her recent campaign for the Press. She shows that the leaders of the progressive party are after the Fishpots rather than after an opportunity to kindle a fire under the burthen that oppress mankind. She also says in effect, that the non-partisan league had, too, become a party in the eyes of the people. That farmers were permitted to pay the bills, but were not allowed due representation. Even our own F. L. Bollen, who made the Wayne Tribune a Lincoln, is featured in her concluding paragraph which we will quote as follows: "Mr. Bollen assures us that the non-partisan league is a progressive party at heart, but the group will be neutral between Wray and Hitchcock. Every non-partisan league organizer and candidate helped spread the net over the highways and byways of Nebraska that there must be no principle, but the same old same old with issues but that all must talk the voters their honest convictions. ASKED DISARMAMENT AT GENOA

Mr. Bollen think third party folks degenerate to the point that they would double-cross even a Hitchcock? Little as independents or progressive democrats may use the senator, we want no deception practiced toward him. If we can beat him honestly, let us do it. If it must be a dishonest campaign, better that the other fellow shall make it. We advised Sister Weekes a year or two ago to get into the political leadership, and we trust she will follow our advice more carefully in the future.

How fast the little candle throws its beams,
How far, how far!
How down the long long years there stream
... Its golden bar!
... Its little mandie, how your flame so bright
Once received the glancing of the comet's night,
And beckoned home my footsteps with the light
Of thy small star.

Far out along the fading road it shone
When darkness fell—
And evening's silence broken by the tone
Of evening bell
Presidents had passed with all its care
'Twas then my mother lit its sacred flare
And set it in the latticed window square,
Bright sentinel.

And oh, the tender call of that bright star
No treasure trove
Could hold me there: I left my play and came,
And when my feet had crossed the threshold o'er,
I shut out, when I closed the oaken door,
All harm and evil in the wide world's store,
And shut in love.

O little candle, quenched so long ago,
My head is hoar,
But in my heart there lives thy afterglow.
Forevermore,
Again could I but follow thy pale beam
'Twould draw me round the world,
And it would seem,
Bright heaven to cross the threshold in thy gleam—
To eradicate again the doom—

To Eradicate Gophers
Lincoln Journal.—A plan of gopher demonstration has been started in Saunders county by Agent Roberts. Under the plan, several public places in a certain number of sections meet at a central place where the poison is all prepared. They are then shown how they can get the bait after which they pair off in twos, one locating the runway and the other dropping the poison. Two demonstrations of this sort were conducted on Monday and Tuesday. One covered sections 9, 10 and 16 in Marietta precinct and the other sections 22, 24, 25, 26 and 27 of the North Cedar precinct. In the latter case farmers union local No. 303 furnished the poison and about a bushel of potatoes and thirty boxes of poison were used. Fourteen men attended the first demonstration and covered the three sections in half a day. Eighteen men worked on the second and it took all day to cover the territory. This plan of gopher eradication work gets out the men who are inclined to be careless in getting the traps, and also takes care of the gopher and section men. If a man does not turn out his land for gophers but the same old same old party. The county agent works with the party. Every man is urged to be sure and cover his own land two or three times more in one year than the gophers that escaped the gopher the first time.

Senator Hitchcock Talks To Bankers

Norfolk Daily News: The United States was pictured as a nation sitting on a pile containing more than half of the world's gold, by United States Senator Gilman Hitchcock, who delivered an address on "Bank of Nations," at the afternoon session of the annual meeting of the general No. 9 bankers of the North-east Nebraska Bankers' association Saturday.

Foreign nations are anxious to trade with the United States, the senator said, and the United States is anxious to trade with European countries in order to get rid of its surplus products, but neither side can move because of lack of a workable international credit system. After explaining the financial condition of the world, the present system of exchange, and which he described as entirely speculative and of a gambling nature, the senator launched into a detailed explanation of his plan of action and declared it to be the only solution for the difficulties of American exporters.

International Credit Needed.
"Every nation has been able to establish a system of credit for its own people," said the senator, "but not a system of all nations in the establishment of an international system of banking."
He explained the trouble of the export business with foreign business concerns and exporters in doing business with people in the United States. We will be unprofitable to our own people, he said, unless we have some form of international credit. The bank of nations, he said, would do two things: it would stabilize exchange and it would stabilize credit.

He declared the idea of an international bank is not new and that it has been discussed by various men in various countries, but he preferred his plan because he believed it to be workable.
"It is the need a great clearing house for the world for the clearing of bills of exchange," the senator said. "Today foreign exchange is a speculation and a gamble. A great international clearing house would soon bring order out of the present state of international exchange. It would give international commerce the same sure guaranty currency system given our own business men."

"For the first time in the history of the world our nation has within its borders held the gold of the world accumulated in all the currencies and that nation is the United States. We have more gold here than western nations combined. It represents an enormous waste to the assets of the world. The bank of nations, he said, is an opportunity to make that gold useful."
Proposes International Dollar.
The senator then explained his plan for "making the world's gold" through the bank of nations and the branches of that bank scattered all over the world. The "inching" of the gold into the form of a note and would be used for exchange in place of gold, without the necessity of moving the gold from the United States. There is some talk of demonetizing gold, he said.

"The international dollar," he continued, "would solve this problem. We may be left here sitting on our gold pile and other nations may make other arrangements. We are in the midst of a crisis; a great depression, although we are known as the richest nation in the world. All of the assets are here, and we are in the center of the depression which has lasted almost a year and a half. Export trade is needed. The nation needs a stimulant which can be found in the letting loose of our surplus and selling them abroad. Exporters want our products, the only need is to devise means to get them. It is high time a great need of co-operation with the rest of the world and it is high time the United States took a lead. We have discovered that we cannot live apart. It is the collapse of international trade which has produced the great depression in the United States."

Arguments are Summarized.
Following is a summary of the arguments which were made by Senator Hitchcock in favor of the bank of nations:
First.—A system of credit is absolutely necessary to the transaction of business under modern methods.
Second. Every nation in the world provides a system of credit for its own people.
Third. This system of credit is provided by a system of banking and currency. In the United States this system is headed by the Federal Reserve national banking system, and finally the Reserve banking system, established under the Wilson administration. In Great Britain it is a system headed by the Bank of England; in France it is a system headed by the Bank of France; in Germany it is a system headed by the Reichsbank.
Fourth. In all these systems the central idea is similar, and one of the great purposes is to provide a means for the transaction of business, for if business had to be done on a cash basis it would necessarily shrink to a very small fraction of what it now is and we would revert to crude and half-civilized conditions. Perhaps nine-tenths of the

Taking Orders on Third Car Load

It's generally known among farmers and stock raisers, the healthy condition, and quicker gains to say nothing about the extra efficiency secured from other feeding rations by the use of Semi-Solid Butter-Milk. Hogs are the profit of the farm and there is no better way to fortify your herd against disease than the use of this agency. The lactic acid which is naturally created by the souring process, acts as a tonic and when assimilated with other rations results in regular active bowel movements and more food efficiency. You can mature your hogs for market considerably earlier by this manner of feeding.

We have placed sixty barrels, the last ten days, and orders for 100 barrels are to be filled from cars soon to arrive. We expect to place ten car loads to this product in this community this season. There is a tremendous demand for Semi-Solid from all over the county and to make sure of prompt deliveries you should have your order on file. Your cooperation means much to yourself and to us, in rendering quick service.

Wayne county will be one of the foremost in the use of Semi-Solid Butter Milk. This product supersedes the use of all kinds of dope and hog remedies. Here's the idea in a "nut shell." If you keep your hogs and chickens healthy and in good growing condition, that's just what you want. Semi-Solid will do this very thing. We are privileged to refer you to scores of farmers who have reports that will interest you. We are accepting orders for deliveries from the third car to arrive in a few days. Carload No. 2 will arrive tomorrow.

business of the country is done on the credit which these banking and currency systems provide.
Fifth. All of these banking and currency systems, however, stop at the boundary of the country. They relate to domestic business only. When it comes to the great international business of exporting and importing there is no system of credit provided by law, and at the present time international business may be said to be done almost upon a cash basis.
Sixth. This plan for the establishment of a bank of nations is to apply to the international field the same currency system which is now fully used in the domestic field—that is, to establish a great international bank with the power to issue currency against a vast reserve of gold. The plan is to make the business of this bank to finance international trade, to buy and sell exchange and to lend money to importers. In a supplemental way the bank would also give power to buy and sell interest-bearing bonds of nations owning the bank.
The bill would provide for this bank a capital of $2,400,000,000. It would provide that the United States government should take the controlling interest in the bank and sell minor interests to those nations which are willing to enter into treaties with the bank, that is, to define their rights and obligations.

Week's Report From Bureau of Markets

April 24.—Cattle.—The bulk of receipts of cattle at Omaha last week consisted of beef steers of fairly good quality. Good light steers were favored throughout. The best beef steers sold at $8.30 to $9.00, while the remainder averaged $7.25 with the bulk of the entire beef steer supply clearing at $7.00 to $8.00. The supply of fat steers was moderate and the demand fairly active. Choice beef cows sold up to $6.25 to $6.50. Good cows moved largely around $5.75 to $6.00. The market was moderately active steers clearing at $5.50 to $7.00. The supply of veals was heavier than usual and prices were $4.25 to $5.00, lower than the close of the previous week.

Hogs.—Receipts of hogs were lighter at Omaha and elsewhere. Shipping was bought freely and prices advanced steadily to higher. Shipments advanced 25c, selling the middle of the week at $9.00 to $9.75. The bulk of good hogs brought $9.80 to $10.00.

Sheep.—Receipts at seven markets were lighter than the previous week and considerably below the total for a year ago. The supply consisted largely of lambs. The bulk of wooled lambs sold at a spread of $14.10 to $14.80; top Thursday, $15.25. Clipped lambs $12.50 to $12.75. Light weights were in greatest favor.

Wheat.—Prices advanced and Chicago may wheat sold within five cents of the high point on the week. Influencing factors were unfavorable weather and crop news, strength in foreign markets and good export business. The visible supply was 33,129,000 bushels, a decrease of 1,034,000 bushels. For the week, Chicago May wheat advanced 9-14c.

Potatoes.—While the movement of potatoes showed a decrease shipments were still about 1,000 cars more than for the corresponding week a year ago. Nearly half of the cars that moved were from Maine and Minnesota. Middle western markets were

States demonstrates that he can talk a good mixer, that he can talk to groups. He never talks "down" to his listeners; maybe he would not know how to. Frequently he interjects anecdotes and humor. Often his saga "The Plague" leaves a mark in the hearts of his listeners. In the process of conveying a sense of comradeship and informality, or late attendants at his weekly press conferences have been a few of them on his list. The other day at a conference he noticed two newspaper women in the front row, and he promptly gave to each of them one of the "Down" House roses. Whereupon, with a smile around his mouth, he proceeded to tell of a butcher in Marion, O., who used to give sausages in order to gain the good will of his customers. In these conferences Mr. Harding discloses a good deal of his human side. He reveals himself as rather sensitive to criticism and certainly aware of much that is leveled at him. He speaks approval; years for each man in his list. He generally claims: it seems to wound this group of concern. All this is disclosed in his expression, in his occasional half-smiling, in his sympathetic smiles, in his choice of words, in his obvious longing for a common ground of mutual esteem. He likes to go off at a tangent, he likes to talk about his life like the peace of world.

A Matter of Good Taste

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher.

The Killjoy.

Jim Jackson has a brand new bus, that rattles in the sun and bobs a proud and happy case, whenever he makes it run. And we might make him gladder feel if we would but be kind, and hand him out the sort of good that soothes the voter's mind. Alas, we are not built that way, we're stringy with such talk, and when we see a neighbor joy our inquiry is to knock. And so, on slow and dragging limbs which wearily we ply, we push ourselves to his neighbor Jim's, and try to make him cry. We show him our heads, and look depressed, and say, "It's all done up in blacks and reds, and makes a brave display, but please direct your point and never don't make a worthy van; your car, will never cut much grass—their make's an also ran. They say its pistons are of wood, it's springs won't bear its weight, its generator is no good. Its frame is out of date. You might have bought, at smaller price, a boat that's better, for had you but asked for our advice, you'd have a better car." And so, in our foolish way—we are—but human ways—we try to spoil our neighbor's day, and turn his grins to sighs. We're always doing tricks like these, and low down tricks they are; and

Jackson blunders when he sees the bunch approach his car.

Guns.

Oh, the "shootings" every day! Some one's always being shot, and the dead are borne away to the shady churchyard lot. Some are shot for fifteen cents, some are stricken down for fun; the most frivolous of gent's may with ease acquire a gun. There are laws forbidding this, there are laws forbidding that; but no law forbids the bliss of the tough who pack a gat. He may have a murder face, he may have a record bad, but he seeks the busy place where revolvers may be had, and off he goes show the moon, foolish questions are not piled; he may bear away his gun, "fip" for "carriage" homicide. Shooting, shooting all the time, yet there's killing with no excuse; and the carnival of crime still is ramping, raging loose. If you'd buy a dish of beer, or pretzels, you must get from some learned physician near, who has found you have a pain. If you'd buy a poison dire to deplete liver, or preserve your must get from the doctor's office, for he'll require that you sign some drastic forms. But if you desire good, with manslaughter in your mind, there's no need to look for no objections will you find.

The Silent Ones.

I huddle by the churchyard fence, and to myself I sigh, "I hope it may be long years hence when with those lads I lie. It must be rotten to be dead, and planted here outdoors, no more to paint the village red, or read the baseball scores." Yet I am but a gloomy wreck of what I used to be—my mind upon my neck, a spavin on my knee. I've just recovered from the flu, which racked my weary frame; and I have aches in every shew, and I am sore and lame. And your sleepers have no ills that torture flesh and bones; they do not have to live on pills until the spirit groans. They're done with every kind of pain, and ever throbs is gone, and in the sunshine and the rain they slumber calmly on. Oh, every morning, when I see you get to this sad life of mine, and all day long I sit and beef beneath my fig and vine. A change of wind will make me sick and if I'm to rain the maladies come fast—and thick—and fill my bones with pain. My feet get wet and fever comes, and to my bed I go, and lie and gnash my toothless gums for long days, in my woe. But when I pass the churchyard wall I shiver and exclaim, "May it be long before I fall for yonder sexton's game."

Uneducated.

There's nothing more swelled up with pride than yonder old gray hen; she has her chickens by her side, they number nine or ten. But she has never learned to add, subtract or multiply; she cannot tell what chicks she's had, how many should be high. Now one is drowned in yonder pond, and is not missed, by jingo the old hen never went to school; and cannot count her string. And as if she'd cut the one; the old hen doesn't know; she's having four, or five kinds of fun, out there where green things grow. And when the stars light glowing lamps light up the solitude, night after night, the old hen camps upon her dwindling brood. She started out with ten or more, bright chicks in brave array; and now she's only three or four, and think's it's all O. K. At last some even when shadows fall, the old hen comes along behind her are no chicks at all—the chicks there's something wrong. She chucks and curses in despair, she takes her troubles hard; alas, there are no chickens there, no dowry things to guard. Oh, she can tell when there is none, and feel a mother's woe; the difference 'twixt her own "egg" and "never" learned to know. So, children, learn your lessons well, and study more and more, and when you're grown up you can sell a goose egg from a score.

Some of the Symptoms.

I'm burning with fever, I'm shivering with chills, I'm weary of taking Doc Hathaway's pills; he says they are dingers at curing the flu; I'm worse after taking a bushel or two. The fever is not better, the signs are seen, my tongue is all furrowed with fungus that's green; my appetite's gone and this life is a frost, and I search for a relief like a motorist in a forest. For Hathaway's pills I have blown in my chance, and Hathaway's pills may be good for the masses; for fancying the signs and they will do, but they are no good when you're down with the flu. Some Spaniard invented the flu, I've heard cold supplanting the sign and the old fashioned cold; and when I feel better it will be my aim to locate that Spaniard and climb on his frame; the man who will spring such a beastly disease, and ship it in malice across the wide seas, deserves what he'll get when I camp on his trail, the cold-eyed avenger, relentless and pale. Doc Hathaway, too, will pass under the rod for trading his pills for my hardly earned wad. So, drooping of vengeance, I shiver and shake, and sizzle with fever, and strange and ache; my tubes are all rusted, I breathe with a hiss, I sound like an auto whose cylinders miss.

Farewell, Winter.

It has been a woeey season, this old winter that departs. Spring arrives, and with good reason we have gladness in our hearts. Always when the winter's going we get a warning of its curves, wavy and its full of rage, and its presence jars our nerves. When the wind, in noon and cranny, blows through dark and bitter hours, how we yearn for Gentle Annie, with her apron full of flowers! When the winter first comes chasing, we greet we like its play: "Ah, this cold," we say, "is bracing; it is good for any joy; it is fine to face the blizzard, and it makes us young again; but may you, the demented wizard, cold is for the sons of men." For a week we smile and charlie as we jog through drifted snow; but our mirth is frail and more, and a fortnight lays it low. Oh, the wind is uncanny, and it has a ghostly somnolence, and we yearn for Gentle Annie with a yearning most true. Found. Snow will do for crazed explorers who would find some sort of pole, but the spring winds are restorers of the weary human soul. And I sit here with my granny, arm in arm we tvaïn abide; and we rot for gentle Annie, gentle letting winter slide.

The Juvenile Delinquent.

Stuart C. Johnston, Judge, Erie M. Orr, of the Juvenile court at St. Paul, Minn., expressed his conviction that the juvenile delinquency problem is not so much a question of bad children as of bad parents. He believes that the necessity for juvenile courts would cease to exist if the children's hour were to be retained in the homes and properly utilized by parents. Judge Orr has found in his experience that the confluence of the child is easily won, but that it cannot be won unless the adult comes down to the level of the child, participates in what interests him and speaks a language that he comprehends. Children naturally are truthful, he says; he believes that he can get the truth from ninety-nine out of 100 of them. The children's hour is the time for parents to become acquainted with their own youngsters, to really know and understand them, to banish fear from their hearts—and to win their confidence and love. Every lover of practical literature is able to recall Longfellow's poem entitled "The Children's Hour"—and the delightful picture the poet draws therein of the approach of parents and children in loving and happy intercourse. No home with youngsters in it should be without its children's hour. It is easy to believe that such barriers of love and confidence could be raised in those sacred moments that would stop any child from becoming delinquent. Judge Orr has heard 10,000 cases in the juvenile court over which he presides, and therefore his conclusion that juvenile delinquency is due more to bad parents than to bad children is his deliberate and mature judgment. Children are not bad naturally. They become bad by reason of being neglected, or abused, and many of them become bad because they are not loved. The children's hour is the hour of love, and it is love alone that has the power to put juvenile courts out of existence. What a discreditable thing it is to the parent-hood of this country that juvenile courts should be necessary.

Business.
Sioux City Journal: Practically every industrial and commercial development made nowadays is one of production, for interests large or small have learned their lesson in reconstruction, which is that an important job is worth doing well. That is the principal reason for the abandonment of business recovery. Other conditions enter into the situation, but the controlling factor is the determined desire that mistakes shall be as few as possible. The outstanding feature of every considerable achievement is the steadiness with which the movement forward is made. The boom element is missing. Business refuses to become excited and instead, is taking a matter of course. Speculation has not ceased and will not, but it is no longer wild. Sanity has come to stay.

At this time the attention of reconstructionists in most lines is centered on certain political movements, at home and abroad. The tariff revision is a factor of importance in its direct influence on business, with a divided interest on what congress will do. Manufacturers want the American producer and consumer of protection for home industry. They are practically a unit on this. Merchants want European valuation for the goods they sell to us. They are unrestricted in handling foreign goods. Each contention has merit. A protective tariff is a popular demand and it goes without saying that a republican congress would incline favorably to a plan that would safeguard American producers of goods.

The important thing in the event that American valuation is decided upon, is the rate of duty. If the rate is low enough to admit foreign goods and to produce unfair competition American producers are bound to suffer. On the other hand it is so high that foreign goods will be barred from American markets, it will be impossible for Americans to sell abroad the surplus they will have. Europe will not buy unless it can sell. The congress has the difficult task of revising the tariff in such a way as will bring the best results to the majority of American people. Business development now and in the future will depend largely upon what plan finally is adopted and the rates made.

Another development is the Genoa conference. The immediate results are not so interesting to American business as they will be political, but the conference now under way must come before economic adjustments can be made, and that does interest Americans. Genoa is a necessary step because what is going on there now will prepare the way for an understanding of international relations.

American steel prices continue to advance, said to be due to the low of supply and demand. Independent producers are being squeezed out because many of them have no blast furnaces and rolling mills of their own. Building throughout the country continues to increase, employment increasing. Wall street is rating up to more than 1,000,000 shares daily, with a more confident tone ruling the market. Government bonds are still close to an advance. None of the Liberties or Victories is quoted below 99. The prices for farm products are still high, but consumers and merchandise movements are somewhat better in middle west sections.

Kansas City Star: When President Harding decided that the United States would keep out of the Geona party there were some statesmen who made a great fuss about it. It's about time for some of them to break an ominous silence on the subject and vent their opinions on what would happen if it followed the isolated path?

$950,000 of Telephone Property Lost in a Night

The chilly afternoon of April 10th a light rain began to fall over a strip nearly a hundred miles wide, from southwestern Minnesota to southwestern Nebraska.

As evening came on the rain began to freeze as it fell on the telephone wires. Before midnight the wires in many places were coated with ice nearly an inch thick. Under the weight of the ice and whipped by a strong wind, mile after mile of telephone poles and wires swung back and forth and then crashed to the ground.

A survey of this company's damage from the storm shows the following result:
26,944 miles of wire out of service
21,200 poles broken down or destroyed
71 exchanges in the storm area
$950,000 property loss

Nearly all of the long distance lines damaged by the storm have been restored by more than 1,200 telephone repairmen who have been on the job constantly since the storm. And in those cases where the local lines were damaged, the repair work is going forward as rapidly as it is possible to do so.

It is a man's size job to reset more than 20,000 poles, to re-attach the crossarms and wires to them, and to re-establish communication over telephone wires that if extended in a single line would reach more than around the world.

We take this opportunity to thank our customers for the splendid spirit of co-operation with which you have accepted the unavoidable interruption of telephone service and want to assure you that we have been doing everything possible to hurry the reopening of communication.

County Seat Removal Question Discussed

Sioux City Journal, April 21.—A 30-year-old feud between South Sioux City and Dakota City will be reopened Monday night when a monthly mass meeting in which the entire populace of Dakota county is invited to take part, will be held in the high school to discuss the advisability of calling a special election for the purpose of moving the courthouse from Dakota City to South Sioux City.

This course was decided upon at a meeting of the South Sioux City Community club held Thursday night.

Three speakers, who have not yet been named, will present the question to the assemblage. This will be followed by a round table discussion open to all present.

In order that a special election may be called it is necessary that petitions calling for such an election be signed by five-twentieths of the bee-of voters casting a ballot in the last county election.

After a bitterly contested election thirty years ago the courthouse was voted to be moved to South Sioux City. In anticipation of such result South Sioux City business men by popular subscription built a courthouse which at that time was considered one of the finest in the west.

The courthouse was built prior to the election. The election was boycotted by Dakota City citizens on the ground that the building of the courthouse previous to the election was bribery. After a long legal battle the supreme court ruled that such was the case and the courthouse has since remained in Dakota City.

The building later was converted into a brewery and today is used as a schoolhouse.

Monday's Meeting

Sioux City Journal, April 25.—The sentiment of the voters of Dakota county, Neb., will be tested before definite steps to remove the county seat from Dakota City to South Sioux City are taken. This was the unanimous agreement reached at a mass meeting held at the South Sioux City high school Monday night to discuss the proposed removal of the courthouse to South Sioux City.

The majority agreed that the courthouse should be moved to South Sioux City, but because of the high cost of a special election, which would add materially to the taxes, it was decided to let the business men of the county before taking steps toward securing a special election.

With this end in view, J. M. King, chairman of the South Sioux City Community club, was authorized to appoint a special committee whose duty will be to visit every voting center in county and sound out the sentiment of the business men.

Definite action will be taken next Monday evening at a similar meeting following a report by the committee.

Leading speakers Monday night were: L. Phillips, chairman; Henry Rooney, F. W. McKinley, Mayor-elect, O. Eggenberger and E. N. Sweet, superintendent of schools.

Culled From Herald's Exchanges For Week

Henry Rowe, wanted in Emerson to answer a charge of forgery, was arrested at Dakota City while riding on the Northwestern train bound for Sioux City. Authorities from Emerson charged that Rowe had been working for Henry Richards, an Emerson farmer, for a little over a day when he was sent to town with a load of corn to be sold. Rowe sold the corn and received a check to cover the transaction. He proceeded to endorse his employer's name on the back of the check and cashed it. He then left for Sioux City and was riding sedately on his way when arrested by Dakota County Deputy Sheriff Will Blacketer.

A Burt county farm bureau was organized on April 17 at a meeting of farmers and landowners at Tekamah on that date. The bureau will not employ a county agent but will receive aid from the state extension department.

Large families were popular in Tekamah last Friday night when the manager of a moving picture house observed family night. The admission price for the entire family, coming in a group was set at 50 cents. The manager originated this night as he had noticed that parents with several children did not attend the picture shows on account of the cost.

the old Conkling farm last Saturday evening which might have resulted fatally. As they were rounding the corner, coming north on Main street the right front axle broke, throwing the wheel off and the car plunged through the rail fence and into the ditch, stopping when it came in contact with a fence post. Crop Values Last Year

Washington, April 22.—The gross value produced by farmers in 1921 had a value of $12,356,000,000, or about two-thirds of the aggregate value of the farm products of 1920, and little more than one-half of the aggregate for 1919, the department has decided to publish yesterday.

During the same month, 1919-21, production of ten crops which represent about 70 per cent of the total crop average fell 8 per cent. The total value of the crops, the department said, declined from $15,423,000,000 in 1919 to $10,999,000,000 in 1921 and to $10,228,000,000 in 1921. The decline of the total value of animal products on the farm was from $8,361,000,000 in 1919 to $7,554,000,000 in 1920 and to $6,898,000,000 in 1921.

Four crops of 1921 together had a value greater than one-half of the total value of all crops for that year. Soybean crops, at $3,000,000,000, or 18.5 per cent of the total; hay and forage, $1,650,000,000 or 16.6 per cent; cotton lint and seed, $750,000,000 or 10.7 per cent; wheat, $745,000,000 or 10.5 per cent; and the four crops, $3,945,000,000 or 56.3 per cent.

one wanted to become an apesking, and she wanted to be the apesking kind. Not one girl declared for the moives.

Most of them planned to go into business in some form or other. Nursing attracted many, school-teaching claimed sixty-seven, kindergarten several more. Fifteen stated a predilection for the law, ten for medicine, two far pharmacy, and one for a beauty parlor. Library work and social service interested a good-sized group. One wanted to be a companion to an old lady—(little does she know what she's in for) and then there is interior decorating and short story writing and newspaper work each with a few aspirants. Only one girl spoke right out for marriage as a career. The others haven't said they wouldn't marry, they simply expressed preferences to be taken up at the end of the high school course.

The list is just what one might have expected, if there had not been lately such a hue and cry about the foolishness of girls. The hue and cry was wrong, it seems, and the girls themselves are as sensible as they have always been.

Satisfaction and Confidence

Confidence is the child of satisfaction. The two go together. It is confidence which leads motor folks of this territory to our filling station.

It is confidence of past service which makes them say with satisfaction, "Fill it up, Bill." Such happy relations were possible only through maintaining a standard of gasoline and oil which motor owners learned to know as THE BEST.

Those who watch reports of government tests are never in doubt about which oils to buy. However, a big majority listens to extravagant claims of those unqualified to speak and accepts the "just because" brands.

From the gasoline you buy you expect and want POWER—and with the least possible waste of carbon qualities.

From oils, you want a smooth lubricant which will protect all the mechanism of your car—oils which guarantee the longest possible life to wearing parts.

Those are the gasolines and oils you will get here. Make this station YOUR filling station this summer.

Triumphs of a

FROM a tight-rope performer at picnics, Walter Savidge of Wayne, has become the owner of one of the highest class carnival companies in the country, and much of the success of the enterprise has been due to his quiet executive ability and his desire to bring the best in carnival attractions to the public.

When a boy, Mr. Savidge took delight in tight-rope walking and trapeze stunts. The usual thing happened when a youngster is too interested in some particular sport; young Walter took matters in his own hands as to his chosen career, and ran away from home. He worked his way around the country, performing at organization picnics and town celebrations.

His career came near being cut short once when he was putting on a particularly choice stunt at a Woodman picnic in the southern part of the state. He was hired to walk the tight wire, thirty-five feet above the ground, across a creek. The walk among the tree tops nearly accomplished, the wire broke. Young Walter, more level headed than the usual youngster because of his training, realized he was falling and held his pole so that it struck the ground first, breaking the suddenness of the fall. For this stunt he received $5 and the growing-up Walter now admits that in kid fashion, he hit for the cats immediately on receipt of the money.

Joining up with a circus, Mr. Sav-

...tributes his tight-rope stunts. The way in which he cut loose from the circus, becoming his own manager, makes an interesting tale. The circus was in Phillipsburg, Kas. Mr. Savidge performed the act, walking a wire stretched from the ground to the top of the tent. When his stunt was over, he slipped a note into his hand. "Meet me at the restaurant of the show." There was no sign of the note. The note savored of mystery. Perhaps it meant a young lady waitress. At the restaurant after the show, Mr. Savidge was accosted by the members of a committee which was planning for a week of celebration in the near future. They wanted the young man to put on the free act for them, and asked what his charges would be. Mr. Savidge made a rapid calculation and stated the amount, which he would earn in the circus during the ten weeks of the circus season, which were left. The offer was satisfactory to the committee and Mr. Savidge broke with the circus engagement. Through the help of the Phillipsburg people, he secured similar work for seven weeks following the week of celebration there, making as much money in that time. Mr. Savidge states, as he would have made in as many years in the circus.

This money-making season, for that was what it proved to be, led Mr. Savidge to continue his work. At the same time his brother, Arthur Savidge, perhaps better known as

International Hill Drop Planter No. 8

This planter is entirely free from gears. The work of operating the seed plates is done entirely by the check wire. This does away with all sprockets, chains, and clutch, which simplifies the working mechanism of the planter wonderfully. The action of the check wire results in pulling back the fork which operates the seed plate shaft and drops the hill of corn. A Ratchet driving device is used on International No. 8. This device consists of a 6-sided drive shaft together with a 6-tooth sprocket ratchet. Thus, no mistake can be made in assembling the different parts. No timing is necessary because it is impossible to place the driving gear or the ratchet on the shaft in the wrong position. The driving gear and seed plate have twelve teeth and twelve holes respectively, so there is no need for timing in assembling parts.

The New Loose Ground Lister

International No. 9 lister corn planter combines the principal advantages of a regular lister, with those of a regular corn planter. It is not, however, intended to work under the same soil conditions. The purpose of the loose ground lister is to plant the seed in deep trenches between ridges of loose, well-aerated soil.

The Sixteen-inch disc blades used on International No. 9 throw up a high, loose ridge on each side of the row. This ridge is then gradually leveled off by subsequent cultivations, burying the weeds and putting the corn roots down deep in the soil where they get plenty of moisture.

Large Discs Make a Deep Furrow

International No. 9 loose ground lister is equipped with revolving disc blades sixteen inches in diameter. These blades rout out a clean, deep furrow even in very loose soil. This enables the farmer to strap stubble or corn land in the fall, let it lay over the winter, and then go into it at corn planting time with an International No. 9 and do a quick, neat job of planting.

Rates Help Business. The lines a long distance on the way back to normal. Some interesting figures are furnished by the American farm bureau, which high freight rates were doing federation's traffic bureau to support business and what lower freight rates would do to improve business present 10 per cent reduction in rate reductions have increased the volume of railroad business materially and appreciably, have carried argument for even further reductions in freight rates on the long haul. The following table shows the number of railroad freight cars loaded for corresponding weeks of 1921 and 1922. The first comparison alone shows an increase in business handled of about 19 per cent, approximately a gain of one-fifth. The immense volume of business handled by the railroads therefore makes these appreciable increases acceptable as compared with the smaller amount of goods hauled before the rates came down. The figures, provided by the federation.

Week Ended	1922	1921
March 18	823,263	691,396
March 11	820,123	707,340
March 4	803,255	711,367
February 26	735,286	655,842
February 19	750,924	632,007
February 12	788,412	687,867
February 5	789,886	689,718

The federation also shows some results for 1922 that are better than in 1920, when a 766-volume of business was handled by the railroads, nothing whatever to do with the depression. That came later on in 1920. For the week ending February 11 this year there was a gain in cars in February and March two years ago business was still traveling at the same period in 1920. The car-load high-rate-of speed. Aside from the railroad feature outnumbered those for the same of freight rate reductions, it can be pointed out by more than 9,000 that the figures show that the biggest gain over 1920 was made during the week ending March 11, when the increase was nearly volume than last year.

Takes the rough-edges off hopping-out-of-the-covers these snappy mornings just thinking about that lusty bowl of Kellogg's Corn Flakes—warring-down-stairs! Big and brown and crispy-crunchy flakes—a revelation in appetizing flavor, wonderful in wholesome goodness—the most delicious cereal you ever tasted!

Instantly you like Kellogg's, not only because of appealing flavor, but because Kellogg's is not "leathery"! Kellogg's are a delight to eat, as the little folks as well as the big ones will tell you! And Kellogg's ought to be best—they're the original Corn Flakes! You have only to make comparison to quickly realize how perfect they are!

TRIUMPHS OF A WAYNE BOY

Elwin Strong, was increasing his interest in dramatic productions and acting. The two young men realized that the celebrations, such as they had been taking in, had no evening amusement. "This led them to plan a celebration all of their own on the seventeenth years ago, with a small carload of equipment and a small tent they entered the carnival business. Their first opening was in Wayne, their home town, and the carnival attractions consisted of the free acts and plays by a dramatic company, with Elwin Strong as director and leading man.

The idea that the coming of the Savidge brothers and their carnival was the cue for the breaking of a big rain or wind storm, certainly originated with the company. Playing Wayne with success and with fair weather, the show moved on to Norfolk, when a big wind turned the tent to the ground. At the next stop, Newman Grove, a similar wind storm badly tore the tent but repairs were made and the performance were continued. On October the next stop, "Wheat" was still present, and the tent was blown flat again. Things changed and eight weeks of good business followed. At the end of this time, when at Gregory, S. D., a wind storm occurred, and the tent top was split from one end to the other. During no one of these storms were performances going on at the time. Altogether the first season proved a success, and the Savidge brothers were so pleased with results that they felt themselves established in the business.

The second season, the Savidge brothers added equipment to the enterprise, an old truck merry-go-round and a ferris wheel, fitted with bug-buzzing seats. One of the greatest attractions was the black top tent in which moving pictures were shown. In the third season, disaster overtook the company in the form of a fire. The wagon—the show tent was completely destroyed when set on fire by a light paper submitted to a paper burner. At another time in the early years of the carnival, Walter Savidge, who was still performing the free acts, was presenting a new stunt on the revolving ladder trapeze with a companion performer. The latter misunderstood instructions and as a result, Mr. Savidge fell from the trapeze. The next thing he knew he was in a doctor's office, and he was put out of commission for several weeks. Later Mr. Savidge hired all the performers and no longer took part, devoting all his attention to the management of the show. He hired a high-class entertainer by the name of the company, each running a separate carnival in different territory.

Each year has marked improvement in the growth of the Walter Savidge Carnival company. The policy of the owner has remained the same throughout, to bring clean, high-class entertainment by clean, high-class entertainers, to the people of this section of the country. The carnival has grown from a small beginning of one-hundred car load of equipment and a small company of performers to a show of thirteen cars, thirty concessions, and a traveling company of one hundred and twenty people all of whom live in the cars, which are owned by the carnival company and are taken from one point to another by special bus. The size of the show is about times the seating capacity of the first tent which the Savidge brothers used and the stage space is four times as large. This season which opens in Wayne on Saturday, May 6, and closes on Saturday, May 13, the company will remain most of the time in Nebraska territory, playing at a few points in South Dakota and Wyoming.

Included in the attractions this year will be the merry-go-round, the ferris wheel, the airplanes, a show of curiosities and freaks and many other smaller attractions and concessions. A new venture this season, for Mr. Savidge always brings to the territory, the newest in carnival attractions, the mechanical and wireless demonstration, including the use of the radio phone.

New scenery, new vaudeville, a few new actors and actresses, new plays, for the use of which Mr. Savidge is paying the largest royalties ever, will promise a successful season for the dramatic company. The plays to be given and the tentative schedule follows: Saturday, "The Higher Law"; Monday, "Patricia, Daunt Your Part"; Tuesday, "A Story of a Great City"; Wednesday, "The Open Road"; Thursday, "Borrowed Plumes"; Friday, "Over the Hills"; Saturday, "The Girl in the Case". Since the company is to play here eight days, instead of the usual seven, one of the plays will be repeated for the Saturday matinee. Rehearsals commenced this week. The leads this season will be played by John Cochran and Aidan Leary. The former has been with the company for three years and the latter comes as a new member. She has been playing in such cities as Chicago, St. Paul and Denver, Colo. Mr. Cochran and his wife, known on the stage as Marie Jefferson, have been with a Port Dodge stock company this winter. The latter plays the character parts. Frank Whitcomb, character man, who was an well liked last season in the role of "Cappy Ricks" returns for his second season with the company. Harry Ferguson, who was with the company five years ago, returns this year, coming from Dallas, Tex. where he has been playing. Miss Bess Ferguson, will play the Tigeque parts. Lyle Talbot is a new member of the cast and will play the juvenile roles. This season's comedian is Charles Corwin. Lyle Logg is the remaining member of the dramatic company. The last two have been playing in the Imperial theatre in Chicago during the past season.

Labor Trouble Over Paving at Chadron

Chadron, Neb., April 21.—At the regular meeting of the city council Monday, representatives of the labor union, asked the council to take action to compel the Roberts Construction company, which has the contract for paving District No. 2, to pay its laborers 45 cents per hour instead of 35 cents. After considerable debate, the council decided to "mind its own business."

Tuesday evening a mass meeting was largely attended, in the city hall, and many speakers heard. Mr. Madison, of the construction company, explained that the company had taken the contract at such a low price it could not afford to pay more than 35 cents per hour for unskilled labor. It had only brought in experts to manage the work, and give the skilled laborers all the work, having a force now of about 200 men, all Chadron residents. But he would telegraph Mr. Roberts at Lincoln of whatever action was taken, and act accordingly.

One labor leader dramatically thundered out: "Will you work for 35 cents an hour and let your children starve?" and a thunderous "No" came from the audience. The labor leader then asked: "How many will give $1 each to the boys to get out an injunction. At least 100 men went up and handed in $1 each, and it was rumored that $500 has been raised to pay legal expenses."

Roberts telegraphed to Madison: "Pay no more than 35 cents. Will send you 250 men at 25 cents per hour. However, the next day saw every man working at 35 cents. The streets are in an impassable condition and the sidewalks and particularly the crossings stop all pedestrians, so that merchants and all would suffer from stoppage of work. Women carrying the mass meeting, and when the men who said "no" to working for 35 cents per hour, went to pay their share toward law expenses. One woman among the ranks asked, "Would they let the children starve if they stopped work—and spent their money?" but the chairman would not recognize her.

Secretary Mellon.

Topeka Capital: The regular monthly rumor that Secretary Mellon will resign comes from Washington. The above outstanding members of the cabinet are: Hughes, Hoover and Mellon, and Mellon is making a name as a new comer in politics. The country will hope he sticks and fight it out. It needs a watchdog not only of the treasury, but of the civil service, such as he has been proving himself.

A Woman's Back.

The advice of this Wayne woman is of certain value.

Many a woman's back has many aches and pains.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills are so effective.

Many Wayne women know this. Read what one has to say about

Mrs. John Barnes, says, "I was troubled with disordered kidneys from a child. All these years I had backaches and at times my kidneys didn't act right. This kept me in a run down condition. This trouble had been neglected in my younger days, thinking I would outgrow it, but at last when I was old enough to realize that something had to be done, I used Doan's Kidney Pills. It was not long before I was better in every way. Several boxes of Doan's cured me, and I haven't been bothered in a number of years."
