Business.
Sioux City Journal: One of the most encouraging things in business reconstruction observed for some time is the fact that the class-1 railroads of the country in March came close to earning the maximum amount of 6 per cent allowed by legislation. The average was far higher than was expected up to the time the announcement was made. Some of the roads in the eastern district surpassed the maximum amount, which forced those of the west to fall below the minimum amount. Notwithstanding that all the roads approximately made much better showings than at any time since the depression hit them. This is due to the fact that the stocks are selling readily on the New York market.

Another feature of the week's development is the advance in wheat. That grain has been climbing steadily, and, if it holds out much longer, is bound to carry corn along with it. It is now selling at a very good figure as it is, but it would be no surprise to see it gain several points unless there is a break in wheat prices. Feeders are buying corn. The livestock prices account for that, and these are confidently expected to hold steady right along. Some Iowa corn, it is reported, has sold as high as 70 cents, which is more than twice as much as was received for first quality grain until late in the winter.

Manufacturing interests are getting impatient on their return to normal operations, but the process is somewhat slow. Motor car sales, however, probably farther along in their recovery than any other industry, actually are behind their orders, which is a little surprising until it is known that, in spite of the continued belief that good times are still all ahead, automobiles are selling faster than they did last year. One manufacturer of a high grade motor car reported that another New York firm during the first four months of the year with such success that last year's sales for the same period were more than doubled.

Chicago, May 17.—The demand for motor car exceeds the supply at this time, with dealers complaining of slow deliveries. That ought to indicate that motor car manufacturing and kindred lines will do well from now on.

In the third federal reserve district, one devoted largely to manufacturing and kindred trades, iron and steel products and paper, it is announced officially that 60 per cent of the industries are operating now at 60 per cent or better of normal capacity. Manufacturers of building materials all are operating at 65 per cent or more of normal capacity. Operations are gaining headway in the east right along and the supply has been increased to meet the demand.

Warne's worth over a wide area had an influence on sales of retail merchandise, particularly clothing, according to a resume report from Chicago.—Homes of retailers for a week and active business is not realized owing to the continued cool weather, but the semi-summer weather of the past week or more has helped appreciably.

New and Beverage.
Los Angeles Times: Senator New has taken his defeat by former Senator Beverage in the Indiana primaries like a true thoroughbred. He announces that he will support him heartily in the November election against the common enemy and the common foe.

It comes as no surprise to those who know Senator New intimately. He is no quitter and would be the last man in the land to succumb to the pressure of the democrats to gratify personal spite. Republicans of the country in general regretted that there should not be a place in the senate for both New and Beverage, for both are capable and honest and both have the confidence of the country.

Letting Out the Wasters.
Capper's Weekly: Gen. Dawes, budget director, is making headway in stripping waste from "the public purse" at Washington. Back of the incident which cost a score or more of bureaucrats their jobs the other day in the bureau of engraving, was the discovery that the engravers were taking much more time than necessary for doing their work, that many plates were spoiled, many printed sheets wasted and that other conditions existed such as would not be tolerated in any private plant in the country.

Gen. Dawes, with the backing of President Harding, is going through all the departments to comb out the wasters and idlers. This is all the "politics" there is behind his effort to bring about business economy in government at Washington. Let us not be stingy about giving credit where credit is due.

Large Gain in Deposits.
Lincoln, Neb., May 14.—Total deposits in Nebraska state banks as of March 25, the date of the last state call, were $220,137,307, a gain of $10,659,543, or 4.9 per cent over the condition of December 31, according to announcement by the state department of trade and commerce. Loans and discounts during the period remained virtually stationary.

The substantial growth in deposits was attributed by J. E. Hart, secretary, to the increased marketing of last year's crops during the winter months, and to the loans made available by the war-bond corporation.—Cash reserves in state banks in-

The Herald is in receipt of a copy of the program of the first annual meeting of the trustees of the university of Maryland, College Park, Maryland, under the direction of Dr. Homer C. House, professor of literature in the university.

Dr. House will be remembered by Nebraska people as one long connected with the "normal school" at Peru, Iowa.

He has been in the United States for many years but also built up fine choruses and glee clubs.

The new dining hall at the Wayne State Teachers college is under construction and expectations are that it will be ready for the fall term of school.

This new addition to the college buildings has been constructed by available money in the cash fund. It is to be a two-story brick building, similar in construction to the newer structures on the campus.

The present dining room on the lower floor of Kingsbury hall will be remodelled and converted into living rooms for the housing of students.

Few Women at Prize Fight. Sioux City Journal. Now that Lady Astor has told the women of America, through a talk given at Chicago, that they had no business attending prize fights, it is surprising to find that they are doing so.

What are they going to do in reply? What are they going to do if it means that they straight out in it, talk saying, "that what she meant, even if her "luck-a-dum!" did have to be interpreted into the "American" "winner's" name.

American women could say this: They are not bound to agree with Lady Astor in what she said about prize fights and their attendance at them. She does not have the power to restrain them if they wish to go to the arena, but an American heroine and true patriot, she can and does and has told them what she thought about such indulgence. Now then, unless they do agree with her, they should disagree.

As the Jaoual views the attendance of women at prize fights, it would seem that they have a perfect right to attend if they wish to do so, but it would never encourage it.

It is interesting to note that the percentage is to grow depends upon the women themselves. Lady Astor's statement regarding it could not be regarded to increase attendance at the ringside, but there will be many who will continue to view the boxers in spite of her. All of which is perfectly in line with the rights of women as citizens, but it cannot be gained that when women do ignore conventions right and left the time will come when they will have to pay some kind of price for the indulgence. It might not be morally wrong if a woman goes to where men go and do what men do, but she probably would be better off if she did not.

Price that Beverage Paid. New York Herald: Beverage got his nomination as men get things in this world when they want them enough to go after them, want them enough to pay the price, want them enough to pay the price in sacrifice of time, and energy, and effort.

Best of Luck. A man's ambition is not to increase his income by one dollar, but to increase it by one million. It cost him two years of work, very clever, adroit, compelling work.

Worst Fears Confirmed. Norfolk, Neb., News: Director Daves' report that the budget system of the federal reserve bank is a failure is confirmed by the fact that 1000 confirms the worst fears the politicians had of the budget system.

Republicans Call State Convention

The republican state committee met at Lincoln last Thursday and decided to hold a state convention in Lincoln August 15.

Following the committee meeting a republican rally was held at Lincoln. The principal speaker was Congressman W. A. Graham of Illinois.

In the course of his speech Congressman Graham reviewed public affairs, pointing out problems which had beset the present administration March 1, 1921, and calling attention to things accomplished since then.

Congressman Graham briefly summarized the achievements of the republican administration thus far as follows:

"The country is faced with a debt of $24,000,000,000 at the present time," said Mr. Graham, "and $14,800,000,000," he asserted, "is attributable to the following causes:

"Probable waste is war contracts, $7,200,000,000; illegal loans to foreign countries, $10,000,000,000; housing program, $3,000,000,000; government operation of railroads $2,850,000,000.

"In the first year we paid off $35,000,000 of the principal of this debt."

"We found the most disastrous revenue system with which the country was ever cursed."

"We passed a new law and reduced the burden of taxes upon the people by $819,000,000 a year."

"We found the Liberty bonds selling for $65 cent on the dollar."

"We brought them to par. Reduce Armed Forces."

"We found an army of 230,000 men."

"We have reduced it to 135,000."

"We found a navy of 133,765."

"We have reduced it to 86,000."

"We found an inflated per capita circulation of money of $17.75."

"We reduced it by March 1, 1922, to $14.96."

"We found total appropriations for 1920, of $7,348,259,416.37."

"We reduced it in 1922 to $3,909,782,209.46."

"We found 640,175 civil employees."

"We reduced them in one year by 71,849."

"We found the doors of our country open to the trade and cheap labor of the world."

"We closed them by temporary tariffs and will regulate them by a scientifically adjusted tariff law."

"We found the farmers of the country threatened with disaster as war contracts."

"We saved them by timely legislation through the federal farm loan system and the war finance corporation, until today farm property is on the way to being sold."

"We found a state of war with Germany."

"We ended it."

"We found an entangling League of Nations."

"We gave the world disarmament and a dream of peace realized."

"We found American prestige at its lowest ebb."

"We placed it in the forefront of the nations."

"We found waste."

"We have brought economy."

"We found inefficiency and non-co-ordination."

"We enacted budget legislation."

"We found a maze of complicated obligations and contractual relations."

"We are disentangling them and clearing the decks."

Semi-Solid Butter Milk

"If I could not get Semi-Solid Butter Milk I would Quit the Hog Game Tomorrow"

This is a recent statement of a prominent hog raiser who has used Semi-Solid for several years. Few people realize the enormous sales on this item and the demand that's so general among hog and chicken raisers.

The extra profit, this year, dropped into the pockets of Wayne county farmers and housewives, will aggregate thousands of dollars.

If you wish to increase the feeding value of your corn fully one-third—feed Butter Milk.

If you would like your pigs healthy and free from worms—feed Butter Milk.

If you would like your chicks thrive and eliminate the usual "dead ones"—use Butter Milk.

If you would add extra profits to your live stock raising—by all means use Butter Milk.

Semi-Solid Butter Milk is no experiment. 150 Wayne county farmers are using this product and every day we receive unsolicited words of praise.

Everybody knows milk, well soured, makes pigs and chicks thrive. No wheat there is an opportunity to purchase Butter Milk with 75 per cent of the water removed at the low price of 3 1/2 cents per pound.

The demand in a very short time has become very active and the natural demand will absorb at least ten carloads this season.

The New Insured Savings Plan

Under this plan a small monthly deposit is made at the bank and at the end of ten years the depositor receives $1,000 from the bank, and a $1,000 estate from the insurance company, the latter, if on a 10 payment basis being a full-paid participating life-insurance policy.

In case the depositor dies in the meantime, the insurance company pays his family $1,000, and the bank pays the fund then credited to his savings account.

You will thus be able to combine the advantages of death and protection in a plan which is within the reach of all, and which will insure your future independence if you live, and provide for your loved ones if you die.

spirit which will make Nebraska a far greater institution than she is at present. Fred Dawson, well known when the arrangements had been made.

Swanson will coach the ends, especially and will work the forward part of the game a great deal. The staff of coaches for Nebraska next year will be the largest it has ever had. Fred Dawson will be the complete charge of the training with Coach Owen Frank aiding him in the backfield, and Ray Elliott assisting with the back field.

Coach H. F. Schulte, Coach Swanson, and should John Pucelik locate his dental office in Lincoln, he will also aid in the coaching. It is expected that Monte Edmundo will assist in the line work also.

School Notes. There was no high school last Friday because of the field meet at Wayne, most of the students attending it. The girls' basketball game was exceedingly exciting. The Rivalry of Home Building.

Minneapolis Journal: The close interrelation of economic problems is illustrated by the fact that the revival in home building has done much to relieve unemployment. The increased demand for farm labor and for builders is absorbing the supply of idle men in skilled and unskilled trades. Lumbermen foresee a half million homes rising in the west in the next eighteen months. To the question: Can one afford to own a home? hundreds of families are answering that they can ill afford not to own one. Fifty out of sixty-eight leading cities show more homes owned in 1920 than in 1910. Many families willing to pay rents that took by 15 per cent. of their incomes, found it advisable to own their homes when rents absorbed from 20 to 25 per cent. Some may have assumed larger burdens than they should, but most purchasers are pursuing the wholesome process of gradually acquiring complete ownership.

As to Destructive Rodents.

Damage Done by Insect-Blindness.

One of the most serious pests which could accomplish such a great amount of damage in a farming community," said O. Sawyer of the state department of agriculture of Nebraska, a few days ago in talking to a Journal-Stockman representative, "is the pocket gopher. In Scottsbluff county which was estimated to have caused a loss of $2,700 in a single season. This particular gopher burrowed a hole in an irrigation ditch bank. This, of course, caused a leak and a certain farmer below this point nearly lost his crop because of insufficient water while flooding crop at the break in the bank caused a heavy crop loss. There are various instances of individual gophers in the state causing from $100 to $600 damage."

The gopher was brought into the conversation because of the fact that pest eradication work in Scottsbluff county was being discussed. At the present time under the leadership of O. C. Taylor, a general campaign is being waged against both insect and rodent pests.

"This pest eradication work was recently opened to the residents of the irrigated section of Scottsbluff county," said Mr. Sawyer, "because of pest damage. About four years ago there was an outbreak of grasshoppers and grasshoppers of course are very destructive to alfalfa and other crops. The grasshopper outbreak was followed by an invasion of webworms which work on the sugar beets. A petition was presented to the Nebraska legislature asking that they pass a pest eradication law and such a trip to the state books. The law provides for the compulsory eradication of insect or rodent pests where it is desired. Any farmer in order to begin this pest eradication work may petition the state department of agriculture to set aside a certain section as a pest eradication district. The state department makes an investigation and if upon investigation the situation seems to justify the action, an eradication district is established. It may include one or several counties.

"Shortly after this district was established a picnic trip to the section and found among other things that the total losses from pocket gophers and prairie dogs and webworms were in some instances greater than the value of some of the crop.

"In trying to combat the damage from pocket gophers in former years, the water user's associations had set aside several thousands of dollars for the payment of bounties. The bounty system, however, was not a success. You can get the idea why it was not successful when I tell you that while many gophers were destroyed, yet those remaining bounties generally took care to leave a number each year to raise breeds for the following year in order to secure more bounties. It was found upon looking up the matter that more money was being paid out for poisons than it would cost to put in a man to carry on the work of compulsory eradication. Fourteen farmers' organizations were interested in the proposition to set up webworm ditch companies and figured that for $125.00 per month they could put a man on the job. This fund was organized on the organizations and the man is on the job now.

"Two pest eradication districts have been established thus far, one for the extermination of prairie dogs and known as the Kiowa district, and one for gophers. The law provides that when a district is established, the person owning the land must purchase the poison and the tenant must bear the expense of distributing the poison or do it himself. The work in Scottsbluff involves the following co-operating parties: The state department of agriculture; the county farm bureau; the ditch companies and the biological survey; the latter being interested in the work on federal lands. The results so far are better than anyone had led to expect. In the most invaded districts, the webworm is controlled by spraying, using being made of Paris green spray or strychnine lead.

For the pocket gophers, poison is used the first time over a section, the active part of the poison being taken out of the soil. In this section about 75 per cent of the pests can be secured and then the balance are trapped. The strychnine preparation is also used for the prairie dogs.

Grasshoppers are effectively put to rest by a poisoned bran mash. The baiting people are making real preparations for the grasshoppers this year and already a carload of poison has been purchased by the county farm bureau.

The splendid work being accomplished in Scottsbluff county in the eradication of crop pests shows what can be accomplished when the various interested agencies actively co-

Baccalaureate Given By Rev. Fenton Jones

The week of high school commencement opened Sunday evening with the baccalaureate services, held at the Methodist church. The senior class attended in a group. The pastors of the various churches sat on the platform and took part in the services. Rev. J. H. Fetterolf of the English Lutheran church, offered the prayer of the evening. Rev. S. X. Cross read the scripture as found in Luke 13:18-30. Special music was sung by the Methodist church choir. Rev. William Kilburn welcomed the audience to the service. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. H. A. Hodgson of the Evangelical Lutheran church.

The baccalaureate sermon was delivered by Rev. Fenton C. Jones of the Presbyterian church, on the subject, "The Life of E's." He opened his remarks with the suggestion that the gathering of the evening was but a small part of a great whole; that many other audiences would be gathered for the same purpose during the next few weeks. He further remarked that the best a community class afforded had been the discussion of the children and the question was have the efforts of the people who have paid and the teachers who have given their time and energy been profitably expended? Rev. Mr. Jones gave the literary derivation of the word baccalaureate as meaning to crown with honors. He mentioned the victors, and said that the people present had come together to crown those who had victoriously completed the high school course.

The speaker next turned to the consideration of whether or not the present system of education pays fitting tribute to the man whose figure he showed how earning capacity increased with the number of years spent in attending school. "In your case," he said, "the average farm laborer will earn $500 in one year considering this as a yearly interest he is worth $5,000. A high school graduate in the same capacity will bring $900, representative of a capital of $15,000. It has been estimated that it costs $1,500 to educate a boy or girl in high school. A college course will qualify a person to earn approximately $1,500 a year, representing a capital of $25,000. The additional training amounting to an expense of $1,000, thus Rev. Mr. Jones showed a high school and college education pay for themselves many times over. In concluding these opening remarks, the speaker said, "The best investment any community can make in a commercial way is this group of school graduates, but the community has a right to demand more than monetary returns."

Rev. Mr. Jones then staged his text, "Strive to Enter in at the Narrow Door," and declared that the community which paid for the education of the graduates had the right to demand that the "strife" life of E's. He explained that in the first place all should live a life of effort required by those who enter in at the narrow door, which leads to a worth-while life.

In the second place, Rev. Mr. Jones explained that the community had a right to demand that they enter into the life of the narrow door with enthusiasm. "Men and women of enthusiasm," he said, "have been those who possessed that inspiration and inner power, which God alone can give." He mentioned several historical examples of men of enthusiasm.

"Furthermore," the speaker said as the third point, "The community has a right to demand that the boys and girls educated in the public school system shall be men and women of endurance. Endurance is the final test of character. Without endurance which holds a man to his duty, all else is in vain." The speaker cited U. S. Grant who was not a great general proved great a leader of the northern army because of his staying power. He also mentioned Paderewski, the great pianist, "who, when asked why he was so successful," said, "Before Paderewski was a genius, he was the drudge of duty." Rev. Mr. Jones also quoted Edison's famous saying that "genius was two per cent inspiration and ninety-eight perspiration."

Rev. Mr. Jones summed up the thoughts of the sermon in a few closing words, spoken directly to the graduates. He said, "The school expenses you do live a life of endeavor, enthusiastic, enduring effort. Edu-

High School Meet is Won by Bloomfield

The largest and most successful high school field meet ever held in the Northwest Nebraska athletic association was that won by Bloomfield high school here on last Friday afternoon. Over one thousand people were in attendance from the city and many neighboring towns. Only twelve of the teams which had previously annulled took part in the meet. Much of the success of this athletic contest was due to P. G. Dale, coach at the Wayne State Teachers college, and to the "men of the day" who were the platoon between Plainview and the title of the district which went to the latter team. The score was 21-1.

Early in the afternoon the girls' basketball team of Wakefield, won from the Battle Creek team with a score of 25-19, thus winning the championship pennant of the district.

Anderson of Bloomfield, was awarded the highest individual point winner. He had to his credit the winning of two first places and one second. The Wakefield high school relay team came home a silver cup for winning the 880-yard relay. Bloomfield aggregated twenty-three points, thus winning the meet and the silver cup. Wakefield ranked second with twenty-seven points and Randolph third with twenty-six points.

The other teams entered and the points gained follow: Plainview, 21; Allen, 15; Lyons, 11; Walthill, 7; Battle Creek, 5; Hartington, 3; Newcastle, 2; South Sioux City, 1; Win-

Mary Jane Hastings Found in Onawa, Ia.

Onawa, Ia., May 12: Mary Jane Hastings, pretty member of the senior class at the Abraham Lincoln high school in Council Bluffs, who went missing Monday, is reported with an aunt in Onawa, Ia., according to word received at midnight Wednesday by her aunt in the Bluffs. Mrs. J. A. Rabb, 292 Park avenue.

Mary Jane used $60, which had been given her as a graduation gift, to buy a ticket to Onawa, Neb. She said, before going to Onawa to visit her other aunt. The girl left Council Bluffs because she feared she would not be graduated with the class on account of a week's work which she missed while visiting her invalid mother at Mapleton, Ia.

Thurston County Sheriff Suspended

Lincoln, Neb., May 13.—Sheriff Charles W. Rutledge of Thurston county, who was charged in petitions signed by Thurston county citizens with alleged "neglect, failure and refusal to do duty in the enforcement of prohibition in Thurston county," today was suspended from office by Gov. McKelvie at a hearing before which the sheriff was summoned to show cause why he should not be removed. No evidence was taken, the order being made immediately upon opening of the hearing.

No order was made affecting County Judge Frank Flynn, jointly charged in the petitions with the same alleged neglect and refusal to perform without authority to remove officers other than "prosecuting and peace officers." The attorney general and A. M. Smith, Thurston county attorney, served notice they would start ouster proceedings against Judge Flynn in Thurston county next week.

clerk declined to proceed with the hearing on the ground that the governor's order of suspension against the sheriff, coming before any evidence was taken, foreclosed the case so far as the defendants were concerned. Counsel advised that they would institute court proceedings in behalf of the defendants.

The governor's order prohibits Rutledge from performing any functions of office until the question of his official culpability has been determined in the courts. The county board must appoint an acting sheriff.

Gov. McKelvie said that on the strength of the evidence in his hands, he was not prepared to "which would influence him to revoke the order of suspension."

Judge Flynn and the sheriff both appeared.

Omaha Business Men To Visit Wayne Soon

A delegation of Omaha business men, traveling in a special ten-car pullman, will visit Wayne on Friday, May 26, with the intention of thus establishing closer relations between the community and the metropolis of the state. The train will arrive here at 12:45 and leave at 1:35 p. m.

The trip is to be made under the auspices of the Omaha chamber of commerce. Representatives of about 100 members of the Omaha chamber will accompany the delegation. Points in northeastern Nebraska, southeastern South Dakota and northwestern Iowa will be visited. The train will carry a band, a silver whistle and novelties of all kinds.

Lincoln Journal: Orvin B. Gaston of Lincoln, and Addison E. Sutton of Emereck, were elected editor-in-chief and business manager, respectively, of Agwaan, University of Nebraska college monthly, at a meeting of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, held at Grant hotel, Wednesday. Agwaan, sponsored and published by Sigma Delta Chi, has a high national reputation among college comics.

Both Gaston and Sutton have been prominent in journalistic activities in the university. Gaston has been on the Daily Nebraskan staff three years, and Sutton for two years. Editor and editor-in-chief. Sutton has been connected with the business staff of the Nebraskan during the past year and has served managing editor of the 1922 Comstocker.

The retiring editor of Agwaan is Leonard M. Cooley of Bladen, and the retiring business manager is Richard Allen of Lincoln.

Officers of Sigma Delta Chi were elected for the year as follows: Harlan V. Boyer of York, president; James F. Flock of Lincoln, vice-president; Herbert Brownell, jr., of Lincoln, secretary-treasurer; Gregg McBride of University Place, sergeant-at-arms.

Files for Secretary of State. Coleridge, Neb., May 13.—J. E. Previous to that time he was engaged in similar work at Butte, Neb., during the Shallenbarger state administration he was identified with the management of the state industrial school at Kearney.

Edgar Howard in Columbus Telegram: The country is coming back to normal—not quickly, but surely. The cornbelt section of the country will come back before some other sections get started on the return journey.

Why will the cornbelt section come back sooner than other sections of the country? Simply because the resources of the cornbelt are vast and more diversified than the resources of other sections. In the cotton states all depends upon one product—cotton. In the fruit sections all depends upon one product—fruit. In the tobacco sections all depends upon one product—tobacco. In the exclusive wheat sections all depends upon one product—wheat.

But in the cornbelt it is different. Here we depend upon no single product of the soil. True it is that corn is the standard product of the cornbelt, but also it is true that wheat and alfalfa are also standard products. In the cornbelt cattle and hogs are also standard products, and thus the cornbelt may rely for a measure of prosperity not upon one particular standard product alone, but upon several standard products. For instance: Suppose the cornbelt had depended on realizing money from the corn crop alone during the past two years. Why, if corn had been our sole support, the cornbelt country would have been broken before breakfast when the devil of trade knocked the price of corn down below the cost of growing it. But there was the hog and the steer, both bringing reasonably fair prices, and so the cornbelt began throwing cheap corn into our hog and cattle, thereby converting very cheap corn into fairly profitable corn. In the exclusive wheat, cotton and fruit sections all depends upon one exclusive crop, failed, and it has not been possible for those sections to get back on their financial legs as rapidly as the cornbelt.

Even we of the cornbelt are not yet out of the woods, but we are coming, not swiftly, but certainly.

Who Is Rich?
Sioux City Journal: What constitutes riches? Is it what a man has or what he is that makes him rich? It has been said that it is the mind that makes body rich. It isn't the body that counts, but that intangible something which we call the mind. Subtract the mind from the body and what remains is mere rubbish, worthless. Material wealth does not make a man rich; he may have the wealth of a Croesus and still be the poorest of men; he may be without a coat to cover his back and yet be the richest of men. What riches of mind and heart some men own grants that delight, wisdom that instructs, culture that charms, knowledge and impels, ideals and inspire, nobility that exalts. To be so endowed to be rich in the true sense of the word—these are riches that are unpurchasable. Without money and without price are they. More to be desired are they than gold, yes, than much fine gold; sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb! It is such riches as these that motivate, though they be without form and substance. The material wealth that we prize so highly is of the most perishable sort, but to be rich in the mind and heart is to have treasure laid up where thieves do not enter and where moth and rust do not corrupt.

Tell the Truth.
Editor and Publisher: "Stop-lying" is the danger signal that the supreme court has flashed before the manufacturers of the United States in a decision last week upholding the federal trade commission in its right to require that labels on merchandise tell nothing but the truth—labels or merchandise are advertising and the supreme court has ruled that nothing be left to the imagination of the purchaser. This is as it should be, and it is regrettable that a court decision should be necessary to enforce this kind of business honesty.

Pity the Poor Congressman.
Minneapolis Journal: If Mr. Harding sticks to his idea that congress shall not with his consent appropriate $4,000,000,000 or $5,000,000,000, without providing taxes to raise the same, congress is going to have a hard time pleasing everybody. And just at this time, with election year in the offing, congress is especially eager to please everybody. It's a hard world.

YOUR CHILDREN'S EYES

More harm than good may come from the indiscriminate use of glasses. They should never be placed upon children unless necessary, for it requires rational use of the muscles of the eyes to keep them strong and healthy while the suspension of any of nature's functions, tends to weaken them.

Let us examine the eyes of your children. We will not prescribe glasses unless they are needed.

UNCLE WALT
The Post Philosopher.

Waiting.
All my life I have been waiting for the good I hoped to reap; in the summer dreams of skating made matter in my sleep. And in winter's stony weather, I've been waiting for July, and the picnic in the heather, and the tea and lemon pie. I have never been contented with fate's gifts, and so I'm waiting for the future I've lamented with a whimper and a whine. In my childhood I was fighting for the whiskers of a man and the golden eyes went flying, and I knotted them as they ran. Always waiting, always looking for the good things just ahead still on the coast, and not knowing since that fact were made of lead. And I missed all kinds of pleasure, missed my chance to dance and sing, while I waited for the treasure that the coming days would bring. So around the dump I hovered, waiting for the day's gold, and one morning I discovered that the years had made me old. On my forehead there are furrows, and my form is tired and gaunt, and the chigger tomes and burrows underneath a scarp that bald. All my hopes have lost their radiance, all my joys—dreams are crushed, and there's no more waiting for the end is close at hand. It today is sweet and pleasant, and its merits make the most, for we're living in the present, and tomorrow is a ghost.

and other deadly kinds of sleep, of drugs and dyestuffs made; I felt I'd drunk the sort of wher; they jawed him till his sorrow woe soon changed to wintry gray. Oh, now and then we see a gent with stubbiness endowed, he is so blunt he will resent the preaching of a crowd; though in his head we make a dent, that head is still unbowled. I thought it wasn't strictly wise to roas James-Baxter Twigg, for there was brooding in his eyes a spirit strong and big, the soul of one who sains and dies before he quits the fire. And so I said to him, "Oh, James, your neighbors make you sore, and jawing gentes and doleful James have made your life a bore; if you would queer their moral game, you'd do what they inspire. For months they have surrounded you, and tried to pound you black and blue with language rich and warm; I often wonder what they'd do, if they could raise their daily storm. Twigg, he winked three winks, and said, "Your rede is kind, and I'll cut out those noxious drinks which have muddled my mind, and laugh at all the busy ginks who've talked me deaf and blind!"

Queered.
Long years ago G. Grimshaw was accused of swiping things, and other kinds of kale. Of course his spirit was distressed, as yours or mine would be, until the guilty one sinned and raised their daily storm free. It was an error of the law that sent him to a cell, where he was fed on bread and hlaw and water from the well. And he has led a useful life since that dark day of yore, providing robe for his wife and children—sweet-four. And now and then, to serve the state, or prestige gain, mayhap, he comes forth as a candidate for some small public snap. And over at the crucifix, hour when roorbacks most prevail, up comes the story, dark and dour, that he was once in jail. In vain he tries to explain the martyrdom of old; the voters listen with disdain, and then they knock him solid. And he tatters through the town, a sad and weary scout; there is a spot in his renown, and he can't get it out. He washed the spot with gossam, he's absolved it with a prayer, but his companions 're always seen, and he's abandoned here. This world of our it most unfair and unjust, at times, and none can say it's acted square with poor old Grimshaw Grimes. A blamished record is a frost that makes the world seem staid; it's all, whatever the cost, avoid the county jail.

Imaginary Ills.
I often weep for Pink McGill, who lives next door but two; he thinks he is extremely ill, that shortly he'll be through, and sleeping idly on the hill, beneath the sod and dew. He lies for hours about his achos, in wearisome respirator; and yet I think his pains are fakes, a pipe dream and a snare, and he could whip his weight in ankers and never sweat a hair. If he would cease to grieve and whine about imaginary pains, and get on with the feeling—fine, he'd be better off about his achos. His face with roddy health would shine, brisk blood would warm his veins. Old Pink McGill would be a peach. If he'd forget his ail and content himself to mummur and to reach for Dr. Fardel's pills, and fire the drugstore and the apothecary, he'd be a man of many gifts, well versed in ancient lore, and wick to quell the robbie shifts of birds and geese—over; but as he is merely life's a bottle from the floor, Oh, he could sell his splendid tale of lonely shins and seas of frozen streets and armored males whose banners rode the breeze, but as he is the only wails of spasms in his knees. He shows a most incredible haste when his new dows he try; and he is taking pills that taste like hens' nests in July; and so a good man goes to waste—and this is why I cry.

The Truth at Last.
The truth concerning Reuben Rife has been kept a secret for some time, thought because he beat his wife he was a total loss. He was a man who earned his bread in labor's honest sweat, and for long years his neighbors said he was a good safe bet. His wife he treated like a queen; he treated her too well, and in her old days she was a woman of trouble that befell. With too much idle time on hand, she fooled with this and that; once she was a drummer in the band, again an amateur studied boxing in the school that old Jeff Dempsey ran, till she could whip a kicking mule, and paralyze a man. And being anxious to display the skill she had acquired, she soaked poor Reuben every day until she made him tired. At first he would not mind, but when Alida Rose would swat him lightly on the chin or buff him on the nose. At first she held herself in check, doing only short snarls, and when she hit him in the neck it didn't jar his works. But soon she gave him a good thrashing, and when she hit his liver and she'd life him off his feet. And it was then the Reuben's tre, long German, and he was a man of great strength, a house afire, and knocked her gally west. And people say he is no good, his every act they react; they do not know how long stood, the household hovering post. And half the time we do not know the faces when we arise and call down judgment, doom and woe on other human beings.

The Mourner.
He said, "I'm in a pretty doon of one whose life was prize; soon of our faces there was gloom, and sorrow in our eyes, what time we gathered at the tomb of William Wade, worth Wise. It turned our blood to veyth and curds; to plant him on the hill, although the pastor spoke some words that gave us all a thrill, he said he'd known men who were birds, but none could beat old Bill. He was a great—and gifted gent of virtues manifold; he never owed a man a cent but always paid the gold; and everywhere that William went he knocked the speed laws cold. To every worthy cause he gave with free and open hand, though generous; he yet could save, and with the thrifty staid, when he scooped along the law the speed laws all were cancelled. He treated all men just alike, as being equal made. He smiled on Peter and on Mike, and low for both displayed, and when he hummed along the pike he made the speed laws fade. But steering west we will avoid the speed laws overtun; we found him in a ferny vale by a babbling burn, and by his grave we raise our wail, and constant heard by the clerk of the district court of Wayne county, Nebraska, upon a decree rendered therein at the March, 1922 term thereof, in an action pending in said court wherein Frank Sederstrom was plaintiff and John H. Richardson, Etta Richardson, Le E. Cochran, Ray Oakes, Ernest Norbeck and Richard M. Cherry, County Judge, were defendants.

ages of qualified teachers exist in all departments in Nebraska, according to E. H. Hosman, secretary of the Nebraska Teachers association, who recently returned from a trip through the central and northern portions of the state. A more pronounced shifting in positions is reported by Mr. Hosman. "In the large majority of cases, good teachers are being retained at the same salary, or at increases," Mr. Hosman stated, "although many boards are cutting expenses by reducing the number of instructors in the more recently added departments. These include, in particular, courses in music, cooking and manual training." Headquarters of the association here is handling an increased number of applications for positions from teachers and boards seeking teachers. This work is a part of the plan recently adopted by the department of public instruction, carried on in co-operation with the state department of public instruction.

The Early Days in Two Counties

From the Wayne Herald for May 22, 1902.

A very pleasant surprise party was executed for Miss Katherine Lewis by the I. A. T. basketball team.

D. S. McVicker will have charge of the Johansen ice business this summer.

Tuesday morning the Bloomfield branch had an exception in the shape of a strictly passenger train with no freight.

Ellis Girton held his 200-acre farm southwest of Wayne to W. H. Gildersleeve for a consideration of $15,000 or $80 per acre.

During the stiff breeze and rain storm yesterday the corn cribs of Henry Hodson, three miles southeast of the city, were blown down.

Mrs. Matilda Stinger, wife of Mark Stinger, sr., died at her home in this city, May 14, after an illness of several months. Services were held at the Presbyterian church.

Dr. H. G. Leisinger has purchased the business property now occupied by L. W. Jones just west of the post office. He expects to build a commodious office on the lot adjoining the alley.

With the banks of Wayne showing deposits to the amount of nearly three quarters of a million of dollars, who is there to deny the fact that Wayne takes a pretty close position in the front ranks of Nebraska cities.

Mrs. C. Heinrichs who resides northeast of Wayne, died at her home Tuesday after an illness of several months. She was buried at her home. He is a brother of Henry and Fred Helmreichs.

At the recent sale of Shortright in Omaha, Dr. McMurtry purchased a handsome yearling heifer and a 2-year-old bull. The stock was sold by the Omaha stock yard and there he was offered $500 for the heifer and a big price for the bull.

Hon. W. F. Morris writes friends that the best of the islands in Negro, which is considered the best one of the Philippine Islands, purchasing fifteen thousand acres of land at fifty cents an acre. Mexico is quoted $2.75 to $1.00 in gold.

Mrs. George Mattison and son, City, Neb., have given to the Methodist church of Pomeroy and the Misses Jetta Byrne, Bessie Hughes and Evelyn Bohman, Nevershire, were attendants at the funeral of Mrs. Mark Stinger. These families were all neighbors of the Stinger family in Cedar county when they settled there in 1866.

Last Sunday it looked as if all the baseball enthusiasts in the county had gathered in Winslow. Nine games were played. The Wayne-Winslow game resulted in the favor of the latter team by a score of 3-2. Norfolk and Hoskins played 7 innings, resulting in favor of Hoskins, 7-0.

From Ponca Journal, May 20, 1918.

Wm. Porter arrived from Niobrara Monday from which place he came with his household goods on a steamer in a boat of which he was captain, crew and pilot.

Fishing in the creek below Martin's mill is a pastime in which many of the boys are engaged. But some boys on the favor of the returning fishermen there usually rests a shade of disappointment. Sitting half a day for a lot of sun, and catching two or three chubs as long as one's finger, does not seem to exactly prove what most folk think ought to be the fishermen's luck.

The Sioux City Journal of Tuesday gives the following as the result in Cedar county: "The election in Cedar county precincts was satisfactory resulted adversely to the bonds in all the precincts except one. This was partly the result of the fact that had gone out that the road would be built without the aid being voted, and partly that each precinct expected that all the others would vote aid and that if they did the road would go on without the aid from that particular precinct. The precinct that voted the aid was away off to one side of the line. By the time another election could be called it would be too late to build the line this season. The aid in the precinct which voted affirmatively will amount to something over $9,000." Gen. Bishop, manager of the St. Paul and Sioux City roads, was in Sioux City Tuesday and stated that "as Cedar county had voted against aid to the extension of the Niobrara line, that line would not be built now." Just how much this language implies it is impossible to state at present, but the probabilities are that as the road is well under way the standard gauge track will be laid to this place. A railroad company is not a safe thing to bet on, though, just the same.

Remineral of Ringado Seats. Kansas City Times. Mr. Denney is said to have been compelled to forego the purchase of presents in Paris because the prices were too high. Almost as high as ringado seats, we understand.

Two Men Drown in River Near Tekamah

Tekamah, Neb., May 13.—Two men lost their lives in the Missouri river here when their boat was overturned by the strong current. They were engaged in rip-rapping on the river. The big boat had left the shore and it became necessary to take a cable out to her.

The foreman, who was known as "Jack," realizing the danger, told his men he would not let any of them to go, but if some one would volunteer to accompany him, they would essay the trip. Two men volunteered.

The current and waves proved too strong and the boat capsized. One of the men, whose name was not learned, was thrown overboard and caught onto the boat and was carried down stream nearly three miles, where the boat grounded on a sandbar, saving his life. The other men, Jack, and a young man by the name of Pearson, floated almost within reach of ropes from the shore, but they were unable to get them. The bodies have not been found.

Pearson formerly lived around Tekamah. His sister, Rose Rogers, of the same name, who has since been placed over the men only about a week before. His relatives are not known.

The Steward's Report. Omaha Reo. The republican conference at Lincoln Thursday was a short affair and was adjourned.

The proceedings were written into the minute book of the republican state committee as a matter of technical record. But in fact, the disclosures there made of the condition of the government since March 4, 1921, and the progress since made toward its restoration, were written into the minds of everyone who heard or read them, as a report of the people's trustees to the people.

Under the November 11, 1918, the democratic administration remained in power until March 4, 1921, nearly two and one-half years. At that time it took its final step and made no considerable progress toward the restoration of the country to normal peace conditions. Instead, it continued for more than a year after the war was over, as Congressman Graham pointed out, to let contracts both here and abroad for war materials never used and never capable of use; to fight the war after the war was over with a largely worthless of the dark days of March, 1918, but was continued in place in March, 1920. Then it "passed the buck" to the new administration—the burden of a twenty-four month administration, the burden of disrupted industry, the burden of governmental demoralization, the burden of a tangled mess of foreign relations, the burden of a foreign refusal of the people's servants to accept the expressed popular will as to the policy to be pursued.

The republican administration accepted the job of job for government. For fourteen months it has labored. It has not restored normal conditions, the task imposed by the war—and made more serious by democratic neglect, mismanagement and extravagance in the two and one-half years after the war was too big for that. But a start has been made, a start toward reducing the cost of government, a start toward paying off the tremendous national debt, a start toward avoidance of future wars, a start toward making the government function for the people of the United States rather than for the benefit of a few groups of people. It is only a start, but it is a beginning measured in terms of hundreds of millions of dollars saved, of entirely new programs of international relationship outlined and consummated. Measured by any standard save that of a tremendous momentary job of demoralization, which it had to cure, the start would be complete achievement.

That is the report. Speakers at Lincoln told the details of the facts and the figures. It is not bragado. It is plain truth, as the whole country will see.

A Poor Authority. Sioux Falls Argus-Leader: In one last desperate attempt to drag the United States into European tanglements, the internationalists have begun to quote the former crown prince of Germany. But the least of the troubles of the average American is that the former crown prince thinks of anything. It is to laugh.

We Must Like to Fight. Yankton Press and Dakotan: Making war, everybody works together. When it comes to making peace everybody works against everybody else.

The "Fence." Omaha World-Herald: In all cities there are pawnshops of the name that make the rounds regularly, and who often recover stolen goods in a day or two after they were stolen. But there are many instances where the goods were stolen in a city far away from the pawnshops being investigated, which generally leaves the pawnshop owner at a loss. There are fences and there are not. It is not the pawnshop that does the business, but the business which a warning should be sounded, but

The Grade Crossing

Sioux City Journal: Mr. Markham, president of the Illinois Central railroad, believes that the solution of the grade crossing problem is legislation making it compulsory for drivers of motor vehicles to "stop, look and listen" when approaching crossings. Mr. Markham, that 14 out of the 15 million cars which are on the road, the laudic to even hesitate at grade crossing to say nothing of stopping. When it is possible to legislate common sense into the minds of reckless fools, Mr. Markham's remedy will work, but until that is possible the only correct solution

Wayside Vandalism. Chicago Tribune: Who among the thousands who rode along the woods or by the wayside last Sunday was not impressed by the devastation brought on every hand by countless persons scouring the fields for wild flowers? To admit that one was not impressed is to admit that one has neither eyes nor imagination. A search as thorough as if pearls had been sprinkled through the grass was going on in every open lot and unprotected clump of trees. The woods and fields were stripped of blossoms as if by a plague. In fact, it was a plague.

Topeka Man Says He Suffered for Sixteen Years—Gives Tanlac Praise for Complete Restoration to Fine Health.

"Tanlac completely restored my health after I had suffered sixteen years from stomach trouble," said J. C. Walsh, 2113 Harrison St., Topeka, Kan., carpenter for the Santa Fe.

"My appetite was extremely poor and although I ate little it lay in my stomach and distressed me terribly. I also had vertigo in my ears and tics, also headaches, nervousness and was unable to sleep well. Friends at the shops who had been benefited by Tanlac advised me to try it and after my second bottle my improvement began. The rheumatism is now gone, my appetite is fine, I sleep well nights and have gained several pounds. I think Tanlac is simply a grand medicine." Tanlac is sold by all good druggists. m181ad

Religion Has Great Vitality.

Lincoln, May 17.—Between Mr. Bryan's assaults upon evolution and the weeping of Bishop Lawrence, of Massachusetts, over the "smothering" of his innocent class, I will expose from the hands of the working man, organized religion is indeed having a hard time. The fact that it manages to survive all of the assaults it receives is pretty fair evidence of the divinity of its origin.
