Beard and family at Hoquiam, Wash., and at various California points. They will be gone over a month.

L. F. Hoese, proprietor of Home-wood park, two miles north of Wy- not, was in Wayne Friday night on his way home from a trip to Omaha. Home-wood Park is a very nice summer resort as many Wayne people who have visited it, will testify.

Mr. Hoese says he has enlarged the swimming pool, has new rest-rooms and made other improvements this year. Mr. Hoese's father was one of the first pioneers of Cedar county, locating at St. James, one of the first settlements near Wynot, in the early fifties. The senior Hoese was at St. James at the time of the Wiseman massacre near there, and had often recounted its grisly details. Older settlers remember the tragedy. Henry Wiseman had located his family on a claim near St. James. He was a government scout and was necessarily away from home much of the time. One day Mrs. Wiseman and the eldest son went to the depot to do some trading. During their absence, Indian savages came to the frontier cabin and killed and mutilated the four children who had been left alone at home. Mr. Hoese says it was the theory of old settlers that the Wiseman boy left at home shot and killed one of the Indians whose body was found nearby, and this enraged members of the hostile band and aggravated their brutality. Mr. Wiseman swore vengeance on the heads of all Indians, and no one who lived he was regarded with fear by tribesmen, everywhere who had heard of the massacre and the vow of the aggrieved father.

Culled From Herald's Exchanges For Week

George Van Derpool of Pierce, who just returned from a 2,400-mile automobile trip through Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin, says that Nebraska looks the best of the four states.

A gasoline oil tank belonging to the National Oil company, turned over twice at Emerson, has broken when the brakes and the steering wheel refused to work. The driver sustained a number of bruises and an injured arm. The truck so completely filled that the cars could not pass it.

Nicholas Liewerz of Emerson, pioneer of thirty-seven years ago; died at his home June 24, at the age of 75 years. He was born in Prussia, coming to America in 1869. He is survived by four daughters and six sons. The sons acted as pall bearers at the funeral.

The St. Paul County Herald of Laurel has bought and absorbed the property of the Tekamah Journal which paper Charles S. Harris, formerly owner of the Coleridge Blade, had recently purchased. The annual Cedar county fair will be held this year at Hartington September 5 to 8.

The 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Ahlman of near Randolph, was walked over by a cow last week. The boy's scalp was torn and he received several bruises.

Fortune from $410. Taylor, Neb., July 1.—How an initial investment of $410 in Hereford cattle grew in less than twenty-five years to a small fortune of $28,000 is demonstrated in the career of E. R. Satterfield, a Hereford breeder residing near this city.

The foundation of Mr. Satterfield's herd was laid in 1898 when he purchased two cows for the sum of $410 from the C. H. Elmendorf herd at Lincoln. Since that date the herd has had a "mutual increase un-til today it comprises 120 head of females, all traceable to the two original cows. No outside additions have been made except herd bulls as they are needed from time to time.

Keep Convicts Off Roads. Lincoln, Neb., July 1.—No convicts will be employed in road making in Nebraska this year, according to an announcement made today by Gov. McKelvie. Fred Brown, Omaha chain bandit, is the cause of the change in the program. The public restlessness and alarm that his exploits aroused, it was said, is such that the board of pardons is convinced public sentiment would not permit the presence in the open of inmates of the state prison.

Gov. McKelvie said he regretted the decision. He said he had initiated the plan and heretofore the con-

Wants Her Daughter To Marry a Farmer

Draws Journal-Stockman: "When the time comes for my daughter's marriage, I can sincerely say that I hope her choice will be a farmer."

That's how Mrs. J. M. Vial of Pottawattamie county expressed her views in answer to the question "Do you want your daughter to marry a farmer?" put to thousands of farm women in Iowa and other states by Dan Wallace, editor of The Farmer, St. Paul.

Mrs. Vial is in a position to give a worthwhile answer, partly because she was reared as a city girl and partly because she has been a keen observer and a student of rural life. She understands both sides of the farm life in city life.

When she said, "yes" to a young farmer when he asked her to be his life mate on an Iowa farm, her parents were a bit dubious about that kind of a life for her, but after ten years—her fears were proved groundless.

"If my daughter has truly found the right man in her farmer, she will have the best opportunity for ideal companionship," writes Mrs. Vial in her letter, which was judged one of the sixty-eight best.

"She can be his helpmate in every sense of the word for most of her life. There are no problems, and justly earning a share of credit for his accomplishment. There will be long weeks of hard work and hard discouragement, but there will also be many days when relaxation will come with the knowledge of work well done, with pleasant visiting back and forth among neighbors, with books and magazines, community club meetings and lectures and entertainments that will make one's efforts seem worth while.

"She will have the best place in the world to raise her children. They will be all outdoors and grow in 'green'." They will learn natural lessons naturally and normally, without acquiring wrong and oftentimes soul-shattering conceptions of life's wonders.

"My daughter—and her husband will find in their rural life recognition for their real abilities. And with their health will not restrict them, nor lack of 'style' prevent their social success. If they are thinkers and workers, and anxious for the betterment of the community, how eagerly their systems and advice will be called for. They will find ample opportunity for developing faculties of leadership and organization. More and more, the farmers of this country are acquiring prominence in the affairs of the nation and the world.

National leaders are discovering that the farmer, with his problems and attainments, is one of the most vital cogs in the wheels of the state. City conveniences and advantages are constantly being added to the farm, and the coming of automobiles are eliminating solitude and distance.

"My daughter would, naturally, have her own home and her own ships in her life; and after all life will give her just what she puts into it."

"But, in the long run I truly believe the farmer and his wife have the best opportunity for happiness and usefulness."

The Fourth Necessity. Sioux City Journal: Rating food first, shelter next and clothing third, mustangs declare that music is the fourth necessity in human life, and their claim has been unopposed, although the facetious might object that gasoline readily replaces it in this day of the motor car. Seriously considered and with various races observed, the subject makes a distinct appeal, for nowhere may one go without finding an inbred desire for music.

The savage has his tom-tom which, the soul of melody, still has the lips of rhythm, or as the modernists have it, syncopation. And the souls of his brethren respond to the beat as anyone would know who has witnessed a display of athletics in which the maddest fantasies may be expressed with all the fervor of enthusiasm and delight.

It is generally recognized nowadays that music, whether or not it be the fourth necessity, is a need that cannot be denied to human beings. Left to their own devices, persons in isolated regions will fashion crude instruments with which they strive to reproduce some of the harmonies that long for expression. Who from rural regions has not seen or made a corncob fiddle or a cigar box violin, and who does not know that a tin string is capable, when plucked, of producing melodious sounds? Then there is the jew's-harp, which many a rustic has twanged to his heart's content because he had nothing else to play.

The church, the school, the theatre, the home, the institutions most numerous in the lives of all human beings, all have their music and it is noteworthy that it occupies a prominent place. Millions are wont for music which is established as one of the fundamentals of present day culture. Life without music, as it is for some unfortunate in the luxury of skill but in the dark; but much of the sunshine of happiness is shut out when melody is excluded.

In man's plan of life music is most important and, undeniably, it is a necessity. Still it is not a man made plan. Nature was the first inspirer, and if the laws of skill and the winds came before the birds that sang, then the music was there just the same. Man has improvised nature's plan, but only because of the talents with which she endowed him, and his recognition of music as a necessity is only an approval of nature's own decision.

Many Cattle are Marketed. Drivers' Journal-Stockman: "Fat cattle for auction which were well thinned out that I have about decided to end my operations for this season," said T. M. Cox, extension Pottawattamie county buyer and shipper here this week.

Mr. Cox probably knows more about conditions in the section he mentions than any other stockman, as he has been one of the heaviest Iowa shippers to this market this year, having marketed nearly 200 loads of cattle here since January.

Stockmen in this part of the state in the near future Mr. Cox plans to leave for Thomas county, Kansas, where he is interested in wheat lands. He says that reports he has received regarding the wheat crop there are very favorable, it being estimated that Thomas county alone will harvest a million and a half bushels this season. Later he will go to Wyoming, where he buys and ships range cattle.

Business

Sioux City Journal: Trade in the middle-west district is in a better condition than it has been for a long time, due to the increased improvement in general business conditions. Forward development in practically all manufacturing lines, a strong demand on the part of consumers, easier money both in the markets for borrowers and in the pockets of buyers who can settle their bills, and a renewed confidence expressed by the bulk of the people are making for a steady and somewhat rapid return to the frequently mentioned state of normalcy.

Steel mills in the middle west producing regions are now operating at fully 75 per cent of capacity. It was just a short time ago that the most optimistic reports put the figure of operation at from 40 to 60 per cent. This revival in the steel trade is directly traceable to three distinct sources: Demand for structural iron and steel by builders of business blocks, industrial plant, apartment houses, hotels and the like; release of orders for cars and equipment by the big trunk line railroads; the accelerated production initiated by motor car manufacturers who must have steel to meet the demand of their trade.

Concerning building operations all over the country, it can be said that records are to be broken this year. Never in its history has the country seen so much building activity as now, and the plans for the immediate future easily will put the year far ahead of any other for actual unemployment. The public might be surprised to know that the sections, notably in the east, premiums are being paid by contractors to carpenters because of the scarcity of this kind of skilled labor. The building permit statistics also reflect the advancement made this year. The volume, already enormous, constantly increasing the country's output, and ready to accommodate the new situation when prosperity arrives with its full strength.

Middle west crop conditions are good. The corn belt states report good growth with excellent yields, except in some sections, to promote steady advancement through the hot weeks to come. No claim has been made that there is a bumper crop for grains, but it will be a good one, such as will be able to demand living profits for the farmer by the time the harvest season is over and the cereals are ready for market. Fruits are plentiful in practically every fruit producing section of the country. This, it may be observed, will affect the cost of living materially, for the autumn season is sure to bring a boom of great activity and the home larder will be better fortified with food supplies of this type than for some years.

One thing only seems to lessen the business recovery, and that is the industrial unrest manifested at this time. Strikes and disturbances that unduly have held back the progress of the country came at a time when it was struggling to regain its footing. So far the demonstrations have not affected a marked advance, due to the fact that they were not extensive enough to interfere with major plans of operation in the industries. Wage adjustments are being made over a wide area, and more industrial unrest may result, but it is the general belief that such developments have been unavoidable because of the unusual circumstances through which the country has been passing. Reconstruction is a task that touches everybody in some way or other, and that imposes obligations in every direction.

Reaction in Germany. Baltimore Sun: All the probabilities would seem to be against the success of the reaction against the German republic. Yet that there is such a reaction, and one of a fierce and unscrupulous character, is evident even from the outside. Rather than a re-annihilation is simply another exhibition. Napoleon's return from Elba was not only to inspire terror, but to remove one of the strongest pillars of the present political system. In the present disturbed and unsettled state of Europe ordinary probabilities may give way at any time to dramatic impossibilities of it. And the purpose in striking at him was not only to inspire terror, but to remove one of the strongest pillars of the present political system. It takes some people as long to get over a celebration as it does to get ready for it.

We doubt if social standards can be lifted by desiring to lower levels in the delusion that by such compromise reforms may be effected.

In Charles H. Randall is offered, northeast Nebraska is offered an opportunity to secure the governorship of the state, and Mr. Randall's record is so generally recognized as so progressive that no one will ever have occasion to apologize for it.

The railroad strike is not spreading among employes as those who quit work last Saturday had expected. The strikers acted in opposition to the railway labor board, and the position of the railroad companies is strengthened by the support of the Federal Railway Administration. The strike will not extend far or last long.

A good many towns have their stores open Wednesday nights during the summer, and they relieve the business district with bank concerts, and it has been suggested that Wayne adopt a similar policy. We have heard a number of merchants express favor for such a plan, and we think the commission committee would appreciate it and support it.

In reproducing one of the Herald's double-page spreads of advertisements in its June issue, the printer, leader among newspaper editors, calls our attention to an omission in the date line, under the heading of the name of the state in which Wayne is located. The editor of the magazine had to refer to the advertisements to find out that we were existing in the great and glorious commonwealth of Nebraska. The oversight has been duly fixed.

The president has called together mine operators and operatives for a conference to effect a settlement of the coal strike. In concluding his statement, the president advised them, in effect, that if they could not reach an understanding and resume operations, the larger public interest must be asserted in the name of the people where the common good is the first and highest concern. We would like the president's attitude still better if he had in Rooseveltian style, given the contending elements a certain brief time in which to fish or cut bait, get busy or get out of the way.

The massacre of more than a score of strikers at the Leflore coal mine near Hering in southern Illinois is an aggravated and appalling example of mob violence and blood lust. The slaying was worse than murder. Savage, unprovoked and fiendish, gloating accompanied the slaughter, and either the community is so cowardly by fear or so insensitive to right that it is believed impossible to secure evidence against the guilty.

English Lutheran Church. (Rev. J. H. Peteroff, Pastor.) Sunday school at 10 a. m. Midsummer communion was postponed to next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Let every member arrange to be present.

In account of Sunday's rain we were compelled to postpone our Sunday school picnic until July 9. Meet at the church at 1:45 p. m. if you desire transportation. The picnic at Mrs. George Heber's farm, six miles north of town. You are heartily invited.

Mrs. Charles Sumner and daughter, Miss Eva, of Bloomfield, spent a day here, visiting the printer's daughter, Miss M. Sumner.

People who are receiving two copies of the Herald are being troubled by other such difficulties, as a result of subscribing to a paper through the local American Legion. It is requested to the Post Office at Herington and the matter will be adjusted.

Danger of its Blowing Off. Mexico is having trouble with its lid.

It is amazing and disheartening to know that such a community exists in the United States, and it suggests that we should free our own fair education from the stains of mob tyranny before thinking of accepting a mandate for unhappy Armenia.

The largest crowd in north Nebraska on the Fourth was in Wayne, and the weather had not been threatening during the forenoon the number would undoubtedly have been considerably larger. The American Legion did well in its leadership, and has reason to feel gratified over the success which crowned its efforts. The boys had loyal and generous support from the people of Wayne. The town was astir early, and it was all with interest and hearty cooperation until the last automobile pulled out for home late at night. The crowd was good-natured and orderly, and the attractions, including one of the best bands in the state, afforded ample entertainment. In both attendance and interest, the celebration will pass into local history as a pronounced success.

It will be noted by the news dispatches that W. L. Gaston, Wayne's former citizen and favorite for the nomination for secretary of state, believes the radio will, within twenty years, send the message. He believes the radio will distribute rainfall and freshen the desert and prevent drought. It will be sent into the air and take a steering direction, and lead it to arid ground where moisture is needed. His theory becoming practical, there will be no more drought, no more inundations, no short crops due to unfavorable climatic conditions. If the radio can do that, it can also thwart cyclones, destructive lightning and hailstorms, blizzards. It will be an ideal weather maker. This weather control is not mentioned in Gaston's platform, but it is in favor of it and will work for it.

Developing Hardy Breed For Dairy. In some of the valleys of Alaska where grain and forage crops do well growing seems to be desirable, and many farmers have taken up on a small scale. The United States Department of Agriculture is trying to develop a hardy breed of cattle for the city for their cooperation. Holstein-Friesian, but in the meantime, Milking Shorthorns have been introduced at two of the department stations, as they are considered fairly hardy and in addition to being good milk producers are good beef animals, a combination of qualities which is very desirable. The animals brought in were secured in Iowa and Minnesota.

Legion Appreciates. The Irwin Sears post of the American Legion wishes to thank the merchants, residents and organizations of this city for their cooperation in making the Fourth of July celebration the evident success which it was.

Many Factors Affecting Cost of Homestead Bread. Tests in the experimental kitchen of the United States Department of Agriculture show that the quality of flour used, the retail price paid for it, the method of mixing, whether in small quantities or by the barrel, the bread formula used, the kind and price of fuel, the sort of oven used, and the number of loaves made at one time are all factors affecting the final cost of the homemade loaf of bread.

In case of a batch of five loaves for which materials were bought in small quantities and which were baked in an uninsulated gas oven when gas cost $1.20 a thousand feet, a single pound loaf was found to cost 7 1/2 cents. The recipe called for shortening, sugar, and compressed yeast. Milk was not used for the former raised and would have increased the cost of the bread.

A batch of eight loaves was made using a more economical formula, and all materials, though bought at retail prices, were purchased to better advantage. A single pound loaf of high bread yield was selected, and it was bought by the barrel, as the farm woman would be likely to buy a barrel to use for fuel. Dried yeast was used, shortening was omitted, and the baking was done in a kerosene range. Under these conditions the cost of a 1-pound loaf was found to be about 4 1/2 cents. 180,000 Miles of Roads in Federal Aid System Planned.

The chief of the bureau of public roads of the United States department of agriculture will probably never personally inspect all of the system of federal-aid roads provided for by the federal highway act and for which initial appropriations have been made.

The system is being designed to serve the whole country and will be approximately 180,000 miles in length. Should he make an inspection, traveling at the rate of thirty miles an hour, eight hours a day on for working days, and not go over any mile twice, it would require nearly two and one-half years to complete the job.

Weather Bureau Helps Bankers. Evidence of the connection between banking and weather was afforded recently when a federal reserve bank in a middle western city sends to the weather bureau of the United States department of agriculture for climatological reports on certain sections in another state. The bank is interested in the effect of local weather on crops. It can afford to lend money if the rainfall is satisfactory and other conditions make the prospects bright for a good yield. A dry season means poor returns and an unsafe risk for the bank. One of the jobs of the weather bureau is to furnish accurate information of this kind.

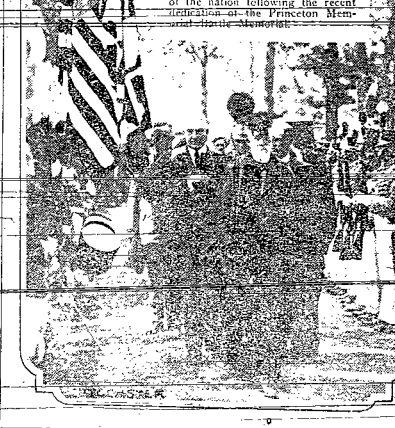

A Woman President. Omaha News: As time goes on, voters may expect to see more woman candidates for high office. Mrs. Olson can see no reason why some day there should not be a woman president. "Just as soon as the people of this country find a woman whom they believe big enough for the job they will put her up for that exalted office and elect her," she said the other day. Anybody who would not be so willing to entrust to a woman as to a man, she said, is not a good president. But after Mrs. Olson wins a seat in the senate she will be soon enough to raise that question seriously.

Ships' Stowmen Break Record. Drivers' Journal-Stockard: Receipts of cattle this month 1,234,469 head, and of hogs, 319,000 head, base broken all June records. Season as well as market conditions, were favorable for a liberal movement of fat stock this month. Sheep and lamb receipts hit 27,000 short of a year ago, a reflex of last year's short crop of rangers.

No Clouds in Hearst Sky. Springfield, Mass., Republican: The most distinguishing feature of Hearst's presidential candidacy is its high visibility. Yet the newspapers speak of him as running too governor.

Age of Coins in Dispute. Lincoln Star: The average life of a coin, says a Washington official, is about 26 years. The average person's experience, however, leads him to believe it nearer to 25 minutes.

As Four Horsemen Ride in Coal Fields

The four horsemen are stalking in the coal fields of the United States despite the seeming unlikeliness of the nation for an early cessation of the strike. Conquest, War, Famine and Death—these are the four riders which mine families are facing hourly in the struggle between operators and miners. Even while President Lewis of the United Mine Workers was in Washington, conferring with Secretary of Labor William C. Redfield, and later with President Harding, riot was raging at Herrin, Ill., where forty were killed and many wounded before labor was restored. Above is shown all that was left of the power house at Granite, and the four horsemen, and President Lewis refused to agree to plans proposed by President Harding and Secretary Redfield to end the strike.

Tariff Might Save Cantaloupes. Lincoln Journal: California cantaloupe growers are troubled by overproduction, and are leaving a part of their crop to rot in the fields. Congress thought the Nebraska cantaloupe tariff of 10 cents a bushel to help them out of a similar difficulty with corn and some farmers have had the faith to be grateful to get the tariff back to the cantaloupe growers. It might be an effective mental treatment even though it failed to make economic water run uphill.

A Remarkable New Cord Tire at a Popular Price

Here is a big, sturdy, long-wearing new tire built to satisfy the bareest and every point of mileage, quality and price.

It is designed especially for the man who wants the essential advantages of cord tire performance at the lowest possible price.

It is designed to offer the buyer a quality product at a price even lower than he has formerly paid for a "long discount" tire. It has a different tread from the famous Goodyear All-Weather Tread Cord—a new tread with a deep, clean-cut, cog-like pattern—and its selling price ranges from 20 to 25% less.

This new tire is the Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord.

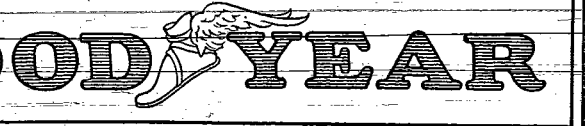

Like the All-Weather Tread Cord it is liberally oversize in all straight-side sizes, the 4 1/2 inch tire, for example, actually measuring nearly 5 inches.

"Perhaps," she answered, "but I put it on my husband. If it weren't for the men—now Mrs. Catt is quoted as saying something more provoking. She asserts that if the vote had been granted to women twenty-five years ago, woman's influence would have so leavened politics that they would have been no war. Perhaps. At any rate, nothing now prevents such complete cooperation between peace loving women and surviving cavemen as to insure, twenty-five years hence, a world at peace and well on the way toward becoming really human.

W. L. GASTON

Mr. Gaston is a republican candidate for secretary of state. He lived in Wayne a few years ago, and was a very valuable asset to the community. He was generous in the performance of public services. He never turned down a request for assistance. He is magnanimous, kind and helpful. He is the present deputy secretary of state, and those who know, say he makes a good one. He has shouldered most of the responsibilities of the office, and has a faultless official record. He now deservingly applies to his chief's shoes, and the men and women of northeast Nebraska ought to stand up, solidly for him. He deserves the office, and his friends should help him get it.

Chautauque Superintendent Writes.

"Having been assigned as superintendent for the coming season of the Mutual chautauque at Wayne, and having just had the privilege of hearing the entire program, I wish to say to all chautauque supporters and others who may become interested, that in my judgment, the program this year is easily superior to the program of the Mutual company of last year or the year before.

The people of Carroll, who are discriminating in chautauque matters, have practically unanimous in their hearty approval of the talent as appearing. We feel that the people of Wayne and vicinity have had no scruples in speaking a hearty word for the program your committee is sponsoring.

The program is not only balanced but is of such variety and scope that we do not see how it could fail to please the most fastidious chautauque goer. Personally, we are pleased at being asked to take charge of the chautauque at Wayne this year, not only because of the many friends and pleasant associations we have there, but for the further reason that we take pride in being associated with an institution of such character and the fine talent that it is presenting. F. M. Drullner, Carroll.

Chautauque is Success.

The chautauque program of the Mutual company closed its engagement in Carroll Monday evening. The five-day program proved to be very interesting and instructive. The musical talent and the lectures pleased the people. Numbers worthy of special note are Lou Toller and the lectures by Dr. Raymond Tolbert and Judge P. F. Sadler.

In the baby contest held as part of the chautauque Saturday afternoon babies were entered. Dr. A. Textley, Dr. L. E. Morris, Dr. V. L. Simons were judges and Mrs. V. L. Simons and Miss Jessie Peirce of the side were the nurses in charge. Mrs. Frank Francis was chairman of the local committee in charge. Children were grouped into three groups of one, two and three years.

Stanley Jim, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Carter, won first prize for the babies under one year. He is four and one-half months old. Irene May Wheeler of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Black, took second place in this group. Eimer H. Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Peterson, took third place.

In the group under two years and over one, Joseph Mathew, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Henrich, carried off first prize. Bonnie Lou, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Owens, was winner of second place, and Phyllis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fickman, was third winner.

For those under three years and over two years, Myfanwy Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Rees, was the first prize baby. She scored 98 1/2 per cent and had there been a grand champion prize she would have taken it for her score was highest of all entered. Janet Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. J.

Davis, took second place and Orvid Jay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Owens, took third.

Monday was the last day of the chautauque program and was community day. Besides the regular program a program, "Pied Piper" was staged by the juniors in the evening and a ball game and picnic dinner added to the day.

Studebaker Bodies

Don't Rattle or Squeak

Studebaker bodies rest squarely on the chassis frame - not on the body sills. The body and the frame form a rigid unit that successfully resists the rack of the road.

Studebaker bodies are built in Studebaker shops by men, many of whom have been building vehicle bodies for Studebaker for upwards of 30 years - and their fathers before them. Studebaker has been building fine bodies for seventy years.

Studebaker Special-Six bodies, because of their quality and soundness, weigh more than those of other cars around the Special-Six price. You cannot skimp in material and build a body that will not rattle.

Freedom from rattle or squeak is just another of the fine-car refinements that emphasize the extra value of the Studebaker Special-Six.

New Books Received At Public Library

A group of new books have been received at the city library and were ready for readers the latter part of last week. Some of the group are among the best books of the year.

Of interest to junior readers or to those who were delighted by the "Lucky Sixpence" and "Beatrice in Denmark," which were published in the St. Nicholas and later in book form, will welcome another book, "The Luck of Denewood" by E. B. Knapp and A. A. Knapp. The same delightful colonial characters which appeared in the two former books share interest in this new story.

"The Priest Her" by J. E. Buckrose makes interesting reading. It is the story of youth in rebellion against tradition, the hedge, representing the conventional barrier, which must be broken.

"Gentle Julia" is another of Booth Tarkington's books in which he reveals his uncanny knowledge of the adolescent girl.

"The Covered Wagon" by Emerson Hough, which recently appeared in serial form in the Saturday Evening Post, has been received in book form at the library. It is a romance of pioneering days.

Another new book is "The Beautiful and Damned" by F. Scott Fitzgerald, author of "This Side of Paradise."

A book with a humorous tone is "Merton of the Movies" by Harry Leon Wilson, two of whose books, "The Wrong Trousers" and "Ruggles of Red Gap" are also in the library.

"Little Chenoweth," by Leo Wilson Dodd is a story of youth. The general use in a well-known New England woman's college, in Italy and Paris.

"The Case and the Girl" by Randolph Paris is a story of adventure and mystery. The story is of such a nature that it is "hard to put down before the end."

"The Vanishing Point" by Connis by Dawson is a novel of intrigue and mystery.

"Dangerous Ages" is by Rose Macaulay, author of "The Shadow of the Tower."

"The Isle of Seven Moons" by Richard Gordon Anderson is romance, adventure, mystery and suspense, all in one book.

"Familiar Trees" by F. Schuyler Mathews, is of a technical nature and contains descriptions of trees of all kinds.

"Come Out of the Kitchen" by Alice Duer Miller, is a popular and much read book, which has been added to the library.

"Secret Places of the Heart," H. G. Wells' latest book, is among the new ones.

"The Story of Mankind" by Hendrick Van Loon is a book of the history of all nations. The author suffered a child's fate in the method of history-teaching used in the schools

"What's in a name? A rose by any other name would smell as sweet." But a name becomes a trademark of great value if it speaks of Quality, and means Quality.

From more than 300 names submitted in the contest for selection of a name for our bread, we have chosen the following, submitted by F. G. Philleo:

HAMILTONS' HOME RUN BREAD

Made at Home—A Big Hit

We wish to thank one and all who entered the contest. Many excellent and appropriate names were submitted and we appreciate the interest this expressed toward our business. We aim to make the bread and the other products of this bakery the best possible, so that they will find a place in every home in the vicinity.

Hamilton Brothers Bakery

of his native country and determined to aid in remedying the method. This book treats historical cause and effect, dealing with the shortcomings of mankind as a single unit with no division into the history of specific countries or nations. The illustrations because of their unusualness are fascinating.

"The Glass of Fashion" is a recent literary production from the pen of the anonymous author of "The Mirrors of Downing Street." In this book, "The Gentleman with a Dusty Hat" as he terms himself, turns his attention to English society, Margot Asquith, whom he calls "the grandmother of the fapper" receives special attention from him.

"Queen Victoria" by Lytton Strachey deals with the life of this great English queen in an interesting manner.

"The Head of the House of Coombs" is the latest of Frances Hodgson Burnett's books and will be well received by her readers.

"Bress" is the name of a novel by Chas. Norris, husband of Kathleen Norris. It deals with marriage as one man sees it and the author assures the public that he is not his own hero.

Phillip E. Oopenheim's latest book, "The Great Prince Shun" has been received at the library.

A group of short stories by Ethel M. Dell, entitled "The Odds and Other Stories" is one of the new books.

"Kimono" is a Japanese story by a Japanese author, and quotations will interest to readers looking for something different.

"The Toaster's Handbook" of jokes, stories and quotations will bring relief to many who have wished for such a book. The stories are catalogued under subjects.

The Early Days in Two Counties

Early Days from the Wayne Herald for July 10, 1902: Uncle Tom's Cabin was shown in Wayne.

Harvey Ringland went to Blagnon on business. Dr. Leisenring is building a new office residence.

John Payne and family went to Iowa for a visit. Miss Mary Goyle went to Winside to spend the Fourth.

W. L. Walter and wife returned from a trip to Colorado. Willie Lundberg was burned while lighting a Roman candle.

Richard Rohke of Hoskins, has started a new dry line. L. U. McKee of Minneapolis, came to visit his father-in-law, J. D. King.

J. P. Gaertner has been moving his furniture over the Floyd avenue. E. P. Olmstead purchased a half section of land in Hand county, S. D.

Miss Jennie Metten of Wayne, is visiting Mrs. H. J. Gander in Hoskins.

Many Wayne citizens celebrated the Fourth in Wakefield, Wisner and Norfolk.

Wayne County Old Settlers' picnic will be held at Bressler's grove August 21.

Mrs. C. A. Chase and children spent the Fourth with relatives in Sioux City.

A son was born July 7, 1902 to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baird, south of Wayne.

F. M. Skeen sold a quarter section of land northwest of Wayne to A. J. Erickson.

Carl Smith of Plankinton, S. D., visited his brother-in-law, Herman Mildner.

Mrs. Millard and daughter, Hazel, arrived from Frank Beach for a visit with the Charles Beke family.

W. H. Nangle and wife of Sioux City, were here to spend the Fourth with Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Nangle.

Mrs. W. Harbit and son went to Providence, E. I., to attend a National B. P. Y. U. convention.

Miss Celia Wilkinson of Carroll, and Dr. J. T. Crawford of Oronoke, Kas., were married at Madison, Neb. Rain has been unusually heavy the past weeks. Farmers are late in cutting up their hay for this reason.

J. F. Leahy, formerly engaged in the drug business at Jackson, Neb., will establish a drug store in the building adjoining the Boyd hotel.

Professors Greec and Snodgrass will be instructors at the Wayne county institute which Sup't. C. H. Wright has planned to begin August 25.

Robert, the little 6-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. E. S. Blair, died July 4, 1902. Dr. C. R. Waldon conducted the funeral services at the home.

Those who went to Tekamah to attend the races were Frank Strawn, L. H. Holtz, R. Q. Warner, D. L. Strickland, W. P. McCune and Dr. Hammond.

Robert M. Wallace died July 8, 1902 at his home at the age of 79 years. He is survived by his widow, three sons and two daughters.

E. A. Asher, his wife and mother were thrown out of their carriage when the horses became frightened, near the depot. Mr. Auker struck the railroad rail with his hand and was injured. His mother fell so that the wheel of the carriage ran over one hand, crushing it so that one finger had to be amputated. His wife escaped injury.

Fearfully hot days and a thunderstorm every night is now the program. A trial of sail binders took place on Wednesday in a field of rye belonging to Mr. Heydon. A large number attended.

Arrowy Creek has been on a tremendous high since the heavy rain yesterday morning. At one time the water was leveling with the top of the dam at Sheriff & Druggist's mill.

Rice's great circus will exhibit in this city, Monday, July 15. The immense popularity of Dan Rice and his great show is of itself sufficient to draw a huge crowd.

We learn that Mr. Mattison, in drilling down for coal, at a depth of seventy feet struck a vein two feet in thickness, but of such inferior quality that it would hardly pay to work.

Friday and Saturday nights there were heavy rains and consequently the lower part of town was flooded again. This town needs to be protected more than anything else, several big drains or ditches leading to the creek by means of which the streets and lots overwhelmed and drowned out at every rain will be kept dry, healthy and comfortable. We understand that Marshall Jones is taking the necessary steps to accomplish this much needed project.

Gaston's Humor. Lincoln State Journal: The boys looked over the funny papers Thursday noon and found the Alphonso-Gaston skit unusually clever.

The strip pictures of Gaston, climbing through a window labeled secretary of state. One of his friends is boosting of prodding him with a sharp pointed pole. The window is a second story window.

Alphonso shuffles along and says: "My dear Gaston, have I not always said, you first? And Gaston, have you forgotten that heretofore you have always treated me with like courtesy?"

Then a paper weight dropped from a desk and the boys realized that it was not a strip they were looking at. They were watching Deputy Secretary of State William L. Gaston, a candidate for secretary of state and George L. Williams of Fairmont, candidate for the same office.

Mr. Gaston, who is a minister, has circulated cards showing one, presumably himself, being hooded into a second-story window. And on the window is painted: "Secretary of State."

Mr. Williams, with a big reputation following, glanced up at Mr. Gaston's desk and asked to see the card. The deputy produced.

"Why Gaston?" said the horny-fanged farmer candidate. "Have you forgotten the scriptures? Do you not recall that the Bible says: He who entereth not by the door but climbeth up some other way, is a thief and a robber?"

Mr. Gaston retorted that the Good Book also says that the Lord helps those who help themselves. Mr. Williams couldn't find this statement nor could he recall having seen it in the Bible.

Charles Norman Granville, distinguished American baritone, has, through his remarkable vocal and interpretative powers, earned for himself the enviable title of "master interpreter."

Since his brilliant success in recital in New York City, he has forged steadily toward the goal which today he is recognized as one of America's greatest artists.

Admirably equipped as to the vocal, artistic and technical demands of his art, few baritones on the concert stage today can boast of an upper register which compares with that possessed by this singer.

Besides the charm of his personal gifts and the versatility of his performance there is a power and dignity in his rendition of dramatic songs that reveal the highest artistic skill and insight.

His flawless enunciation, his model for all singers. In addition to his numerous recitals, he has appeared in many of the leading musical organizations of the country. He will appear on the Wayne chautauque July 9.

Do you know that the third greatest American institution is chautauque? Only before it are the church and school. President Roosevelt said it is "the most American of all our institutions." Begins July 9. 3242

The Ghost of Uncle Hiram
The ghost of Uncle Hiram came from far beyond the stary frame, from twilight land came he. "Now this is what I longed for most," I cried, in my amazement, "did you do it, you good old fellow, and talk of spectral ways? They tell me of the silent shoes where shades like you abide, and the same before the delegates who died." My Uncle Hiram shook his head, in phantom veil behind; "the weather, over there," he said, "has lately been a fright. From out the east there comes a breeze that's fraught with deadly chill; I catch a cold and cough and sneeze, and have to take a pill. The rain, relentless, never stops, it's rained throughout the spring, and much we fear the early crops won't pay for harvesting. "Forget the weather and the wheat, the climate and the prunes, and tell me of the golden street where seraphs sing tones." It came a long road—waded—my Uncle Hiram moaned, "to ask about the field of hay that once I proudly owned." "Go hence," I cried, "get up and walk." You're called my evening's mirth! What piffle all you spectres talk when you come back to earth! You might some states message bring, to shake men to their senses, but you can't talk of anything but hay and ten-foot poles."

The Sweet Season
Oh, my daughter, bring the sweet, for the flies my forehead chew, always, dear, for the weevils there, for the gnats, for the bees. But can never cease endeavor, something fitness must be done; always jump, fitly always humming, till his carthy nose is run, I sit there, in a leery, and I'm yearning for repose; but when napping flies come scrapping on my forehead and my nose; or the frazzled hair my hair, and they drill among my hair, and they tickle and they prickle and they drive me to despair. So, my daughter, bring the sweet, for the gnats, for the bees, for the goldsmith made, with its flopper framed in copper and its handle pearl-lined. Bring the sweet and send it to me, bring the sweet, for the gnats, for the bees, for the goldsmith made, with its flopper framed in copper and its handle pearl-lined. Bring the sweet and send it to me, bring the sweet, for the gnats, for the bees, for the goldsmith made, with its flopper framed in copper and its handle pearl-lined.

More Friends
I asked my friends, in ringing terms, to drink from brimming rivers; the streams, alas, were full of germs, and now they're ailing like they come to me in ire and sigh. "You are a blamed deceiver; you made us throw our jugs away, and now we're typhoid fever, and you hoost the Volstead act we cut out our bitters, and went and sipped a catarrh, and now we're weakly critters. The rivers are not fit to drink for malarial, there are swarming; you've put us all upon the blink, and ought to quit reforming." Some good I struggle to achieve, though my friends would not believe, though knockers stand around and gripe, and gnash their teeth forever. Say to all these janes and Brie's, Chapman, and my daughters, "You ought to boil your streams and lakes before you drink their waters. The wild Missouri's full of mud, and rivers of germ chuckling, but if you cook its turbid flood, it's wholesome and refreshing. You'll have good health and sweetly dream, and your lives will be as bright as the babbling stream and fry its sparkling bubbles."

Lost Lenore
Beside the sea I wanted her, oh, I want her, but she comes back no more. Here, once we roamed together, when all the world was sane, and talked about the weather, the price of hay and grain. Then maidens were not flapping, and they were full of grace; you didn't see them zapping around the market place. They thought of love and marriage, of wreaths upon the brow, of riding in a carriage to church, to make a vow. And where is now the maiden who walked the shore with me. She sits, voters, south with handbills, fierce to see. She's out electioneer; she wants a puban snap, while modern dames are cheering, and all the Happers flap. She's mad with empty speeches, she trots from door to door, and I can find no peaches along the sandy shore. The girls are here, she leaves no graft untried. I drive my old tin Lizzie, and no one wants a ride. And once the laughing fliskers came round me, an old tin Lizzie, napping, can't find my Lost Lenore.

The Einstein Staff
The Einstein staff, doubtless grand, but it's too hard to understand, to make it worth my while; my done of thought is gray and old, and if might crack it and hold a burden of that style. When soulful people come to me to talk of relativity, I'm then to yammer; I have the courage to admit that Einstein hasn't made a hit composed with Mother Goose. I have the courage to say, "I'm too polite, hours to spare for theorizing, or grand, which make me sit up in my bed and wear a politeness on my head, if I would understand. I read my treasured Mother Goose which jars no mental rivets loose, with its sustaining rhyme; I read of cats abounding—spoon—milk cows jumping over moon, and over the landscape time. And what I learn from Mother Goose I find is of the greatest use, it helps me day by day; but I mastered Einstein's book it wouldn't bring me in a plank, or help provide the hay. It would enable me, perhaps, to look with pity on the chaps who hang up all euclores; who stir their minds from almanacs, and all day long get down to tacks and do the useful chore."

Little Robert
You've heard of little Robert, who would not use the filthy weed. He's a little fellow, but that once was known in every home; when sinful children chewed or smoked, the name of Robert was invoked by their stern, who pointed out the merits of that shining scout. This Robert, whom we knew so well, now serves a sentence in a cell, to show that the souls with scorn, and sold him liquor by the horn. "Ah, yes," he said, when interviewed, "I've pulled some boners, ran and craved. I've tried all kinds of stunts in crime, in jugged juice I've served my time, I'm jugged just now for vending beer, and recently fishing for lice. But can never cease endeavor, something fitness must be done; always jump, fitly always humming, till his carthy nose is run, I sit there, in a leery, and I'm yearning for repose; but when napping flies come scrapping on my forehead and my nose; or the frazzled hair my hair, and they drill among my hair, and they tickle and they prickle and they drive me to despair. Bring the sweet and send it to me, bring the sweet, for the gnats, for the bees, for the goldsmith made, with its flopper framed in copper and its handle pearl-lined. Bring the sweet and send it to me, bring the sweet, for the gnats, for the bees, for the goldsmith made, with its flopper framed in copper and its handle pearl-lined.

No More Voice Needed
Kansas City Times: The cabinet members want a voice in congress, and if it could be certain that they would have some influence there as well as a voice, the innovation might be worthwhile. But as far as mere voice goes congress is pretty well equipped as it is.

Firestone

GUM-DIPPED CORDS

and Their High Mileage Records

The high mileage records of Firestone Cords continue to emphasize the fact that Firestone tires are different and better. These records, steadily increasing in number and in mileage totals, justify the Firestone contention that there is one best way to build tires.

Among the primary sources of Firestone extra mileage is double gum-dipping—the saturation of the cord plies in a vat of liquid gum—this coating each cord and virtually eliminating internal heat and friction.

Another is Firestone air bag curing, with its 800 pound pressure, which places every cord accurately and equalizes the tension.

By blending the rubbers of different plantations and types, and by tempering it before mixing, Firestone men add still more mileage.

Many cord tires are good—a few are better—Firestone users say one is best.

Those who have already experienced Firestone mileage, have stopped shopping and experimenting—they have made these cords standard equipment. Investigate your friends' success with Firestone Cords—and buy your next tire accordingly. Come in and get your share of extra mileage.
