Wind, Lightning, Flood and Hail Engage in Saturday Afternoon Destruction Hereabouts.

RAILROAD TRACK WASHED OUT

Traffic by Rail is Interrupted—Bloomfield Passenger Train Mired Near Carroll.

One of the worst summer storms which ever descended on this part of the state was that of Friday which devastated a strip of territory forty-five miles long and from two to six miles wide, with rain, lightning, wind and hail. The heaviest rain fell at 11:30 Friday morning was terrific, damaging to a strip of territory north of Wayne, Carroll and Tarkenton.

One of the worst summer storms which ever descended on this part of the state was that of Friday which devastated a strip of territory forty-five miles long and from two to six miles wide, with rain, lightning, wind and hail. The heaviest rain fell at 11:30 Friday morning was terrific, damaging to a strip of territory north of Wayne, Carroll and Tarkenton.

A hail storm lasting only three or four minutes and accompanied by hurricane wind destroyed the corn prospects of many farmers north, northeast and northwest of Wayne, and caused the loss of many thousands of dollars in very few instances will be relieved by insurance.

The wind, which was damaging the crops, but is not reported to have been a real wester except in one instance. The heavy rain, however, which was carried quite a distance, was hurtling down upon the crops.

The noon wind storm broke so many trees that several telephone poles in town were snapped. The complaints were turned in Saturday that houses were out-of-order. Tolls to Laurel, Norfolk, Omaha and Sioux City were heavy morning, but there was no damage until Friday evening.

Logan creek was swollen during Friday night by the heavy rain from Randolph, where several inches of rain fell, and by the 2.47 inches of rain which fell in Wayne territory that night. At the confluence of the creek, the creek went way out over its banks and flooded the fields of oats, corn and pastures to a distance of several miles.

Winegum, the proprietor, had no idea of the enormity of the storm, and got quite near the creek, before the horse that was towing the wagon became mired in mud several feet deep. The horse remained in the wagon until later in the day when it was taken to town in a lumber wagon.

OIL IS FOUND ON ROBINSON'S FARM

Discovery in Wells to Determine Being and Merit.

OIL OZES FROM SPRINGS

First Noticed When Wallowing Hogs Came Out Looking and Smelling Like an Oil Train.

It would seem that oil discoveries are not partial to Wyoming or Waltham or any other section of the West. Oil has been found oozing out of a spring on the Ray Robinson farm about a mile northeast of Wayne. The discovery has been called by the attention of experts, and the latter are quietly making an investigation. Oil was first noticed in the spring following the appearance of hogs that had come out of it. An animal emerging from the spring looked as though it had been carefully and elaborately oiled. The fluid looks, feels and smells like oil, and it burns like oil. Therefore, it must be oil. There is no oil tank in the neighborhood and no machinery or pumps. It is plausible. It is believed the precious fluid has pocketed in a subterranean fault through the springs on the Robinson farm. If investigation encourages the belief that oil may be found in big quantities, steps will be taken to go after it. Oil derricks in the Wayne vicinity have not been anticipated, though they are being planned for the county development, and if so they will be welcomed as new sources of wealth and growth.

Funeral service was conducted last week for Patrick King at Aurora, Neb., a year after the man died.

What Is Detroit's Secret.

Why are Detroit's streets so clean? Daily Drivers Journal-Stockman. Brookings, S. D.—The hen with her heavy coat is often a victim of the summer sun. When the heat is excessive and no sun shelter afforded, deaths occur very frequently among the poultry flock and more commonly than is supposed, according to G. L. Stevenson, professor of poultry husbandry at State college. Hens overcome by heat will often-times retire to nests or corners to die and the cause of death is laid to some other factor. Trees and bushes make the ideal shelter, but wanting these, a cornfield or a patch of sunflowers or rape will make an excellent substitute. Where these cannot be had a frame set on stakes and covered with burlap or boards will be of great help. Shade helps in keeping up the summer egg production and serves to postpone the moulting.

Nebraska Man Sees Need of Good Horses

Daily Drivers Journal-Stockman. A belief that the good horse is coming back and that people from now on are to take greater interest in horses of the better kind is expressed by Joseph Roussele of Evergreen Hill Stock Farm of Seward, Neb., in a recent letter to the Journal-Stockman.

HUNDRED MILLION DOLLAR BABY

Bobby Goelet, son of Robert Goelet, of Evergreen Hill, Neb., the famous Goelet fortune, which is estimated at $100,000,000, making him the wealthiest baby in the world.

this country and across the water. "A Kansas horse buyer told me the other day," said Mr. Roussele, "that America had as many horses now as ten years ago. But he did not mention the fact that Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho, Montana and Montana have good many millions more acres in plow land and in cultivated crops of all kinds than ten years ago. He did not mention the fact that ten years ago we probably had 60 to 70 per cent more young horses, ranging from weanlings to five-year-olds, than we have today. He did not mention the fact that the average age of the horse in America at the present time is right around ten years old, or even over, and did not think about the fact that in the corn belt it will take more horses in such tasks as hauling manure now than it did in the early days when people were not interested in putting fertilizers on their farms.

Scarcity of Real Good Horses. Speaking of the horse situation as it is, Mr. Roussele says: "For my part I do not believe that today a man could buy 10,000 head of horses weighing from 1,000 to 2,000 pounds, clean and sound and of the better kind as expressed by Joseph Roussele of Evergreen Hill Stock Farm of Seward, Neb., in a recent letter to the Journal-Stockman. Mr. Roussele is the senior member of the firm of Joseph Roussele & Sons, importers and breeders of Belgian, Percheron and Shire stallions, and has had occasion to follow the horse situation both in

"Today it makes a big difference when it comes to selling inferior stock. When a horse is of good quality, he is too little; if he is big he has bad feet or bad conformation. These are some of the reasons that they cannot bring the money. Horse salesmen used to talk about the sire and the dam of the horse they were trying to sell, the name of the breeder and the date the horse arrived in the place, and did not take into consideration more important points. I wish to see the day when a young man will understand the value and usefulness of draft horses or saddle horses just as well as he understands the quality of a suit of clothes or a good automobile. For my part, if I do not see a horse for $50 that he does not sell for $200 or more. That will help to change the financial conditions; I have seen people buying horses who would give more money for a poor black than they would for a good gray. At the same time a span of four gray horses will bring more money than a span of blacks of the same weight and quality.

The Situation in Europe. "I have just received a letter from Louis Aveline of La Couche, Nogent Retrou, France, in which he says that work horses are selling at a good price. I also had a letter from Camille Debeck of Belgium in which he said that they are selling horses in France at a good price and that horses are higher now than before the war, in spite of the fact that they have seen no silver or gold since 1914, and it is hard to do business on that account. Two years ago we had an order to deliver 1,200 head of horses at Glasgow, Scotland, but on account of the exchange of their money we could not do anything. There is a scarcity of horses in Europe and soon will be in America. I mean good horses. We will be up against the competition of the finest horses, in fact they are scarce here. There are plenty of stallions that I had a letter from an Idaho friend and he says that good horses are well taken up in Idaho, in fact he can see our young men more interested in horses than ever before.

Mr. Roussele Demand Will Grow. "The demand for good horses will be a good demand for good horses from now on, for many years to come. Tight money is holding up the price of horses. In fact the horses have been shipped in from the west and sold cheap. They do the work just the same. The western people are not interested in horses. Because of drought the water and feed situation became bad. Hay became high in price, and the horses were not able to eat they had to sell their horses for what they would bring. Relative to the relation of the tractor to the displacement of horses, he states that he has no doubt of the fact that the tractor has taken the place of even ten per cent of the horse as yet. He thinks that the tractor has taken the place of the farm and fills a real place where one wants to rush the work and power is needed for plowing, corn, cutting feed and other work of this kind. At the same time, even where the tractor is operated, horses are also needed in nearly as large numbers.

Site of the Old Brick Yard to be Fixed Up

The site of the old brick yard on south Main street is to become useful, according to present plans. The property was bought by D. Hall & Son who have entered into a contract with the city to convert part of the ground into an attractive park for tourists. Messrs. Hall have agreed to build an embankment around the place to keep out flood waters and to serve as driveway. This completed, there will be no danger of water getting into the park. They have agreed to get rid of all rubbish, cut down the banks to gentle slopes, trim trees and make the place in all respects highly and convenient.

Work Proceeding on Road South of Wayne

Work is steadily progressing on the 11.6 miles of federal aid road which is being constructed straight south of Wayne. The road is being graded and leveled where necessary to a six per cent grade. New culverts and bridges are to be put in. The whole project should be completed by November 1, unless there is too much unfavorable weather. Two miles of grading work have been completed and the culvert construction work will begin soon. Two elevating graders, two Holt-Caterpillar tractors, two pairs of the equipment used. There are also fifty-one head of mules to be used in hauling dirt to places where it is needed. F. H. Kleitsch, who was doing similar work at O'Neill, came here last night and is the engineer in charge of this state highway project.

Little Hope for Radicals. Springfield, Mass., (Republican). The fusion of the socialist and the farmer-labor parties of New York would be more important politically if the fusing elements were not manifestly nursing a fatal disease. The political radicalism in this country is convinced that it doesn't pay to be so radical.

Would Increase Murder. Lincoln Journal: Georgia would make a mistake in enacting the law, now through its state senate, making burglary a capital crime. Such a law would only prevent the conviction of burglars. It is well established by human experience that the ordinary punishment is no deterrent to crime.

Well Balanced Farm is Best. Daily Drivers Journal-Stockman: Brookings, S. D., "Everybody is talking dairy cows these days," says M. B. Benedict, in a bulletin issued by State college of the United States department of agriculture, co-operating, "but dairying is not a panacea for all the ills of farming. The writer recently spent some time in Wisconsin, the leading dairy state of the country, and found our dairymen beginning to feel the pinch of the reaction we had had here."

"For the man who likes a dairy cow, and is going into the business to stay in it for ten years or more, there is no better business than dairying. It furnishes a steady income and a moderate return for the labor put in. However, there are some conditions that dairying is likely to be a period of depression in the next few years from the fact that many are looking upon it as the salvation of their difficulties, and are turning from other types of farms to the dairy cows.

Figures issued by A. P. Ryger, state dairy expert, show a steady rise in butter production in South Dakota for the past eleven years from 25,057,711 pounds in 1910 to 37,302,474 pounds in 1921. This is a steady and sane increase of something over a million pounds a year on the average, but most of the other states are doing it too. This should cause the man who contemplates buying high priced dairy cows to pause and think. He is likely to pay for them with rather low priced butter. On the other hand, the man who buys a dairy bull is safe from incurring excessive indebtedness in starting the business.

"After all, the old rule that the best time to start in a business is when it is in a depression still holds good. The well balanced farm that has several sources of income and avoids the things that depend on having a temporary boom, makes the most money."

Ackison Globe Sights. Get rich, marry an actress and be miserable. It seems to be human nature for a man to seek the person who wronged him.

The only young men who seem to think fast these days are the infidels. There should be a custom established making it unnecessary to answer unimportant letters.

Likely the best part of an outing is the supreme relief felt when one gets home and has recovered from incursions made by colonies of mosquitoes and jiggers.

A discouraging note comes from Iowa to any who have contemplated a return to the state. A recent smothering reared nerves. While herding geese, an Iowa City woman fell and broke both bones in her right leg.

The Lincoln Journal calls attention to Theodore Roosevelt as an example of a real, vigorous, red-blooded man and a real patriot. "Tendency" the other way is believed due to shattered nerves and neglected vocabulary.

Monday night's picture at the Crystal dealt with the over indulgence of children and the snobbery of educators. The picture was a valuable work, useful production and simple living. It stressed an important lesson, one that would reinforce in the hearts of the children and strengthen others in study and wholesome character development.

The prevailing coal miners' strike reminds one of a similar disturbance which took place twenty years ago when Theodore Roosevelt was president. It is recalled that Roosevelt made a personal investigation, seized and operated the mines if necessary. This extreme step was avoided by compromise and settlement.

Some people of a similar disposition plan to put the mines under military supervision, and see that the fuel output was resumed. It is explained that the only difference between the strike in 1902 and the one now is that twenty years ago the miners accepted the president's offer of arbitration.

It should be apparent to mine owners and mine strikers, to railway owners and railway strikers, that the national administration is employing its force to effect settlements in the interest of the American people. Efforts are being made to adjust to any of those directly engaged in the industrial disturbance. In resisting the president's propositions for arbitration, the contending elements are hampering essential industries and causing hardship to fall on the masses. If compromise and adjustment cannot be effected, the administration would seem justified in taking possession of the mines and railroads, and seeing that they are fully operated. Talking over terms of settlement could then follow with due deliberation and delay. It is the necessary action for such a contingency, however, the government should see that costs to consumers and shippers are kept down to a minimum.

THEN AND NOW. Twelve years ago this week the present owner and manager of the newspaper to note the considerable improvement that has been possible in the plant and output over that time. Twelve years ago the paper had eight pages, half patent. Only four pages were printed at home. The circulation was around 1000, many subscribers being indifferent. Hand composition was employed, and the work was done by one girl and one man whose combined salaries amounted to $42 per week. The suggestion that installation of a Linotype machine in Wayne would be just to give the town a few more serious doubts by experienced publishers.

The Herald now issues from sixteen to thirty-two pages, all home made. It has a circulation of 25,700, and the fact that people pay for the paper in advance offers a reasonable assurance that they want it. The Herald's circulation is growing and the payroll runs somewhat over $200 per week.

The Herald has endeavored to be liberal in politics, religion and other things, always seeking to be tolerant and constructive. Sometimes it has given offense but it is not its aim to give offense but to effect reform and for the public interest. It has not exercised its power to give personal agency or accounts to those who have misunderstood its purposes or misinterpreted its messages.

The Herald extends its service impartially to many sections and in its business development, it naturally has many sources. While seeking to be courteous and considerate to all, the paper is dictated to by no individual or party. It is not its aim to be great enough to persuade adoption of a policy which we believe is in the general welfare. A newspaper standing prominently for selfish purposes cannot give deserved service to its community.

The Herald for Wayne and Wayne county first had small beginnings. Its growing success is "in-trenched" here. Its earnings are a credit to the community. A newspaper of this character, independent of party, and free from selfish purposes cannot give deserved service to its community.

TO MAKE ONE THINK. A volume entitled "Problems of Conflict," by Durant Drake, is studied as a part of the course in the University of Nebraska, and a few excerpts will show the line of principles inculcated and will be a source of interest if they are read. See if these don't stimulate wholesome thought:

"Freedom from war and from political and religious intolerance are conditions of social advancement which must exist in three things: The healing of existing ills, the reorganization of society to prevent the recurrence of similar ills, and the bringing of new opportunities and joys to the people."

"This is the philosophy of happiness in a nutshell. For your heart is doing your duty, demand nothing else of life than the opportunity to do your duty; enjoy freely and without restraint the good and beautiful that comes in your way."

"The principles of health for the soul—man, are few and simple; the rest is the great variety which life is partly our apathy and indifference, partly our incontinent appetites, partly our weaknesses and disordered passions, which we should see ourselves emended."

"Men must learn to find their happiness in things that forward, instead of hinder, their true interests; what makes all against health and efficiency must be rooted out of desire."

the enthusiasm of a great cause and the love, and the cordiality and help of others engaged in the same, eternal war with sin."

Boys-Gibson. Salem (S. D.), Pioneer Register: Miss Florence Gibson of this city, near Haskard, Iowa, married Tuesday afternoon, July 25, at 5:20 P. M. The nuptial ceremony was held in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties by Rev. M. T. Kahner of Belvidere, Mo. The impressive marriage ceremony, united these two popular young people in the holy bonds of matrimony.

The bride was beautiful in her gown of sunset gold crepe de chine, carrying a beautiful bouquet of dried roses, while the groom wore the conventional blue.

A delicious wedding dinner was served to the bridal party at the home of the bride's parents after the ceremony, where the wedding cake of yellow and white were used artfully on the dinner table. A beautiful bowl of floating champagne touched to the festive occasion.

C. E. Gibson and Mrs. R. W. Gibson assisted the bride's mother in serving the dinner for the occasion.

The bride is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gibson of this city where she has grown to womanhood. She has been an active participant in social activities, especially her church and lodge. She is a graceful and accomplished young lady with a personality that is generally and pleasantly qualified to preside over her new home with the man of her choice. She has a host of friends whose best wishes follow her to her new home.

The bridegroom, formerly city superintendent of our public utility, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Boyce of Wayne, Nebraska, and is an able and capable young man with industrious habits, and is well worthy of the lady of his choice, and has the respect and admiration of a large circle of friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyce left for Sioux Falls the same evening by automobile, being taken by Harry P. Boyce, brother of the bride. From Sioux Falls they will go to Clear Lake, Ia., summer resort, where they will spend their honeymoon, returning to Mason City about Sept. 1, where Mr. Boyce is engaged as a member of the high school faculty of the city. The bride is wearing a suit of navy blue duvetyne with accessories to match.

A few social events were given in honor of the bride couple during the past week. On Monday evening the members of Sunbeam Rebekah lodge gave a delightful surprise shower to the bride, which was a most beautiful as well as a most generous affair, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Gibson. After an evening of pleasant entertainment, the guests were served, and at a late hour the guests departed with many best wishes for the bride party. Tuesday, Mrs. E. W. Gibson, Mrs. R. W. Gibson and Mrs. M. T. Kahner were present at a delightful 12:30 luncheon in honor of the bride and bridegroom. Monday, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Gibson were present at a 4:30 P. M. luncheon in honor of the bride and bridegroom.

Business. Sioux City Journal: The naturally slow season for trade sees the announcement by a manufacturer that in an appreciable slackening of activity, which may be put down as due to the two labor strikes now in progress. Some lines had not been affected, and it was felt that under such conditions were normal, but others have reacted to the influence of a war that has seriously interrupted the supply of raw materials. The steel mills are continuing their operations, especially in the middle west district, where they produce every thing that is needed. The Chicago steel district reflects a surprising activity, with production sold up in the first few months of the year, but this production and buying are due to the great necessity for steel and iron finished products and the specification that strikes may interfere later on with manufacturing and delivery.

which most of them are operated. The railroad has not been in a position to interfere with the strike of the shophmen, the eastern lines maintaining their service close to non-union territory. At the end of the shophmen are at work at about 60 percent of the number needed for efficient operation. Industrial centers here also believe the country will experience hard times because of a lack of fuel, and while some plants have been forced to cut down production on account of a temporary shortage, the miners' strike really has not influenced extensive changes in plans for the future.

Continous rains in various agricultural sections came at a time when growing crops needed moisture. For farm products continue to firm, with grains advancing somewhat. Building activity throughout the country continues unabated. Merchandise is not moving rapidly, it is true, but it never does in a season, and now the industrial troubles have tightened the brakes on goods movements.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher.

Life is Strange.

When man determines to abjure punk habits which have made him poor, it seems that all the fates plot, and for his downfall. When they spring, the children see you hating grass, and imitate your "cues, cues, cues!" My doctor said, "You've smoked so long that all your work is going wrong." And so I cried, "I'll smoke no more. Though smokeless days may be a bore." Before my door to say, "Your songs encourage and uplift, and so I've brought a little gift; a pipe of meerschaum, fair to see, and when you hear it hiss, you'll find it has passed from my gate, there come another smiling skate, who said, "O how your deathless rhymes have saved my life a thousand times. When I had chilblains and feet, I rubbed your verses on my feet, and when my hair was falling out, when I had the duplex neuralgia, took a madrigal of yours, and found it beat the drugstore cures! You are a sun among the stars, and so I've brought you cigars, the kind that burn and pinch, and they are so small like burning shoes." You ask me if I keep my vow; don't bother me—I'm busy now.

Orientation.

I load my aunts with precious stones, I hang rich furs upon their hours, and send them through the town. "The fact that I am backed," I say, "with coin enough to load a day, must have a new meaning to represent the newly rich, and having clambered from the ditch up to the great estate, I want the whole blamed world to know that I have every cent of dough put down in kog and in the hotel, and in its stately footmen dwell, a butler from abroad; with jeweled tools I cover the floors, and all has done to advertise the fact that I've a wad. My socks are brought from far-off France, and London tailors make my pance, my neckties come from Rome, and yet with spreader all around, I heave a sort of doleful sound as I sit in my home. For all my efforts don't impress my noshrick neighbors, I confess, and hence my weary sigh; those neighbors watch my trail of smoke and seem to size me as a joke, and smile when I go by. Old guns who sit in stabby hooks and jaw the leaves of ancient books look on me with disdain, and residents whose only pride is that they dust for freedom did, observe me with a pain. With such a bank account as mine, with all around me sleek and fine, my life shows me a sorry, I am the man who cuts the ice, I am the one who has the price, and yet I don't belong here."

Apes' Possibilities.

I've grown so old that all things fall; existence has no snap at it, and I am my mystery for me the end of everything I see. I pick up a detective tale that makes a young reader pale; in Chapter One there is a crime that gives the cops a busy time. And younger readers, full of awe, go with the minions of the law, who with them are baffled and perplexed, with them are baffled and vexed. But I, who've read of tales a ton, can see the end when I've taken a spot the villain every time, and know just how he pulled it off. I know just what the dicks will do, how they will follow up the clue. And when I see a speaker rise, the glow of adoration in his eyes, to elate for half a day, I know just what he's bound to say, and how that will make me sore, for I have heard it all before. And when a doctor views my tongue, and puts his ear, against my lung, and shakes his head as though assured that I can nevermore be cured. I know it is the same old thing does know when Pharaoh was asking, "Why lived so long? I've grown so wise, this world can give me no surprise. And still I read the yarns of sleuths, and list to an expounding lawyer, and eat the sorbet when they talk, and buy the taker's gilded brick."

Vegetarian.

Our doctor is a wise old jod, and oft he says to me, "The whole blamed world is feeling bad, as sickly as can be, because of the fruits and vegetables who seem to want disease; they will not live upon the fruits that grow upon the trees. The wholesome tartness they induce, they skew beets and prunes; they will not look on onion juice, or pour it with spoons. They all must have their roasts and steaks, and victuals in grease; and so their forms are filled with aches, which aches destroy their peace. You've eaten many a sow, my friend," the good old doctor says, "and pigs and chickens without end, and your bones are full of lime, you've got rheumatism, and you're growing hilt the time with rheumatiz and gout. If you had eaten pears—and plums, and pears—and berries, and you would not have scorbatic gums, or anthrax in your heel. Right gladly would I now explain the evil of your way, but I must go and see Bill Brown, who has the cramps today. He ate too many apricots, the contents of a can, and now a bob-tailed spasm trots around his inner man."

Ab, Where?

Ah, where? the author of ten years since, who marks failed with a loud hurro! Reviewers said "Now another piece of dazzling genius comes into view." For a little while, in its gaudy trim, his harrated us humble dios, we saw his name in the public prints and he was strong at the Woman's club. He dived at art as his farm horse and looked like Both on a one-night stand, was photographed in a queenly pose, his chin at rest on a hly hand. Ah, what old rhymes in that author now, and where the books that he deigned to write? And where is the wreath on the blighting rocks, and the Hall Ginn heard and the ringlets bright? I've sprung this query on every chump, and harsh and changes the answer rings "Go to the back of the book, and read the sentences of forgotten things." Now genius comes with the glowing dawn, and right behold it a shatterer, and the Hall Ginn heard goes marching on, and Laura Finley is still on deck. And evermore as I go my way I see men blotting their chicken feed or leafy volumes by Bertha Clay and soulful stories by Merril Reed. Oh, now and then let a dirge be sung for the golden genius that failed to the ground, and then why the good die young, we cannot tell why the freaks survive.

Hours' Rest.

Tired Father to his home repairs from labors in the mart, where he has climbed nine miles of stairs, until he broke his heart. That organ in his manly chest, will be a total loss until long hours of healing rest he's safely put across. And if his wife is good and wins will grant him his repose, nor order him to swat the flies or wail the parson hose. Too often home turns out a fake because of chest charges, and men who carry the bread and cake can't saw off peaceful souls. "The chicken house is full of cracks," he hears the housewife say; "we take a lantern and an ax and fix them right away." Far better burn the chicken pen with every roost and nest, than worry thus the sickle, man who only yawns for rest. The little one when torments pour, lets all the water through," the wife proclaims, "and our front door is badly out of gear. Ah, better let the roof leak, the doors be hard to close, than bore a man who's worn and weak, whose life is in great jeopardy. When should the abing done when comes the close of day; for he who brings the bacon home should have the right of way."

Ratoning Coal.
Lincoln Journal: The country attends single mindedly to its crops and baseball games while the coal supply dwindles to a point which threatens disaster. A little more and a railroad here and there will be lacking coal to run its locomotives. The electric light and power plants will be getting into trouble and factories will be shutting down and farmers will be cut off from a market for their harvested grain. Not less are the possibilities. And with the easy nonchalance which the American people have developed of late in overlooking our necessities as usual, and saying: "Let the government attend to the matter."
The government, evidently guided by Mr. Hoover, has now formed a plan for attending to it, and a shrewd plan it looks. Incidentally, the plan discloses the extent to which the government of Washington is now able legally to manage what we had supposed was our private affairs. Coal mining is a private business, but now the government to say how coal shall be distributed and at what price?

The railroads are under the supervision of the interstate commerce commission. That body can direct the distribution of coal cars and the destination of trains. It can see that cars go to the mine which does not produce in coal and it can see that profiteering mines get no cars. The commission is to co-operate with the government in this matter. No trouble to see how the mine operators will "voluntarily" follow the government's advice as to prices and distribution of their coal output. Private owners of railroads used to possess and use this enormous power of discrimination in transportation rates and service. Some of our greatest railroads are their start that way. When we shifted the power to the government we removed a great evil. But we increased the capacity for evil by giving the federal government by a terrifying amount.

A Popular-Priced Cord Tire Without a Rival

The new Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord Tire is built with genuine high-grade long-staple cotton as a foundation. It is liberally oversize—the 4½-inch tire, for example, measuring nearly 5 inches.

The deep, clean-cut, coglike pattern of its tread affords excellent traction even in snow and mud, engaging the road like a cogwheel.

The scientific distribution of rubber in this tread—the wide center rib and the semi-flat contour—gives a thick, broad surface that is exceedingly slow to wear.

This new tire is a genuine Goodyear through and through—in design, in material, in construction.

It costs less to buy than the net price you are asked to pay for many "long discount" tires of unknown reputation and value.

Why be satisfied with less than this efficient tire can give—why take a chance on an unknown make?

You can get this new Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord now, as well as the famous All-Weather Tread Cord, from any of the Goodyear Service Station Dealers listed here.

Compare these prices with NET prices you are asked to pay for "long discount" tires

Poem by UNCLE JOHN

There's many-a puzzlin' problem that attacks a feller's mind, when discursin' to a Public, of a mighty various kind. . . . There's some will differ with ye, and there's others that applaud—an' some that won't believe ye on-ye oath; so help ye God! Which brings the solemn query into this here humble song: Can anything be honest—yet remain, dead wrong?

I've alters heard that Honesty was fust among the things, that took a man to Heaven, on the shiniest of wings; that a man that wuztton honest, had mighty high as well, consult the tickert agent for the slowest train to hell—

So, a little sober thinkin' will arouse the question 'ereng—'Can anything be honest, yet remain, dead wrong? I try to foller reason in the ideas I evolve—an' I sometimes pray for guidance, when I've got a thing to solve. . . . I've dayered more to judgement, than to tolerance or taste, in 'these days' of much palaver 'where the sintax goes to waste.

Let me cast this humbly pebble in the philosophic pool—That Honesty is resky—in Lue bosom of a Fool!

HOMIEY PHILOSOPHY for 1922 AUTOCASTER

The best way to entertain a man is not to entertain him at all. Don't make yourself a four-flusher by giving him a better dinner than you always have. But give him what you have cheerfully. Then, too, your guest knows you've got to let love and tolerance be King and Queen of the home while the guest is with you, and then maybe you won't be able to throw them out. . . .

Don't be afraid to say what you think and don't agree if you don't agree, but don't expect your guest to agree with you because you're entertainin' him. Just widen out. Let love and tolerance be King and Queen of the home while the guest is with you, and then maybe you won't be able to throw them out. . . .

Don't be afraid to say what you think and don't agree if you don't agree, but don't expect your guest to agree with you because you're entertainin' him. Just widen out. Let love and tolerance be King and Queen of the home while the guest is with you, and then maybe you won't be able to throw them out. . . .

Have You an Idea Worth $100?

 There never was a time when so many important questions were pressing for answer now. Your idea of how to settle them may be worth $100 and a free trip to Omaha to you.

This newspaper is one of twenty-five leading Nebraska papers that are inviting readers to express their views on current topics and offering to pay them money for it. When the local winners have been determined the three successful articles will be entered in a championship contest conducted by the Omaha Bee. First prize for the final contest is $100; second prize, $50, and third prize, $25. These awards will be decided by judges appointed by the Nebraska Press association and announced at the annual meeting in Omaha, August 31. The winners will be given traveling expenses to Omaha and will be guests at a dinner to journalists of the state provided by the Omaha Bee.

In order to enter the state-wide championship it is first necessary to enter the local contest. This newspaper is holding a preliminary competition of its own. A first prize of $10 will be paid to the writer of the best amateur editorial sent to us before August 10. Second prize is $6 and third $4.

The winning editorials will then be sent to the state-wide contest and entered for the prizes of $100, $50 and $25.

The editor feels that there is a great deal of talent that has never found opportunity for expression. Some of these amateur editorials may be the means of bringing genius to light and of moulding public opinion.

There are a few rules to be observed in submitting these editorial articles. Each one is limited to 500 words, but each contestant may send in three efforts. Each editorial must bear the name, address and occupation of the author and be written plainly on one side of the sheet. The list of topics consists of current politics, economic questions, social problems and human interest subjects with a heart appeal. This will permit discussion of such matters as taxation, the soldier bonus, public schools, strikes, marketing, crime, divorce, prohibition, the greatness of Nebraska, what your town needs for improvement and thousands of others.

The judges will make their selection on the basis of the interest the subject has for Nebraskans, clearness, forcefulness and beauty, and the meritorious purpose of the editorial thought.

Why Does Damage In Carroll Vicinity

The rain and hail storms which visited the Carroll vicinity last week, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, did considerable damage to crops, buildings and to the railroads. Some live stock and many chickens were killed. The rain of Tuesday was heavy and measured about five inches in a straight-line fall at the Craddock Morris farm. The hail which came Friday noon lasted only a few minutes but it broke down much of the corn in a district about two miles wide and about forty miles long between Randolph and Emerson. In many fields in the territory only stubble is left. Much of the small grain that was not yet out is flattened down and some of that which was cut is beaten out of the shocks. The heavy rains which measured about three inches, stormy evening, washed out many bridges, culverts and tracks and swelled the creek north of Carroll so that the current of water was almost a half mile in width. The rain of Friday evening was stalled two miles west of Carroll. When it attempted to go through the water-covered track, the train so that the crew and passengers were obliged to stay there over night. The train was near the Frank Hiltner farm on Saturday morning, with bread and ham, sent out from Carroll, the one hundred or more passengers were furnished breakfast, cooked at the Hicks farm. The train was stalled in the fields by the flood and carried with the current against the fences which in many instances were broken down by the pressure.

Some who lost corn, grain and live stock from the hail are: W. L. Billiter, Robert Eddie, Ernest Sholts, Cole, Thompson, Will and Frank Lohert, Frank Ulrich, Mrs. G. W. Leeb, John Rosacker, Merle Roe, Clark, Kerrin, John N. Reams, Cliff Dalton, Homer, J. Harmer, Clifford Finn, George and Henry Bush, Griffith Garwood, Morris Ahern, Edward Bennett, George Linn, George Hartley, Phil Timm, Roy Billiter, Harvey Eddie. Twenty acres of oats belonging to John Laurie were washed away. The trees were torn from the trees on some farms north of Carroll. Merle Roe and Roy Billiter's trees were blown away. Sixty chickens on the Lohberg farm were killed and many farms had similar losses. Herbert Jenkins had about two hundred chickens drowned. One span of harness is reported killed by the lightning by the farm of Griffith Garwood and Morris Ahern, became frightened and ran through seven fences, being found five miles from the L. W. and Roy Carter home. The cave and cellar on the Herbert Jenkins farm was filled with water by the Tuesday storm and was filled by the Friday water. Mr. Morris drove on the main road to away Friday noon, tipping over the wagon, but no harm to Mr. Morris.

East windows of the First National bank were broken. Windows in the west of Steve Davis' garage, in the school house and homes of John Grier place and on several farms were broken. Water entered several basements in Carroll. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Erwin who are in Colorado, had the cave at their home filled with water. Mrs. Erwin kept many of her school books in the cave and they were damaged considerably. Water rose in the city water plant to within one inch of the opening into the city.

Bridges which were torn out by the water are being repaired as rapidly as possible. Damage was done to the bridges at the Will Ott, George and George McCoschen farms. The dirt approaches to the bridges, rather than the bridges were washed out in most places.

How The Master Driver Became Master Tire Builder

IN 1903, driving the "999" racing car, Barney Oldfield started his career of victories that later earned him the title of "Master Driver of the World." To overcome the tire weaknesses that made racing difficult and dangerous, he studied tires—specified materials—supervised construction.

Today, Barney Oldfield is known as the "Master Tire Builder." Starting with the crude tires which carried the "899" one mile in sixty seconds, Oldfield gradually developed his famous Cords—a set of which covered 500 miles at eighty-eight miles an hour without a change.

In three years Oldfield tires have won every important race on American speedways. They are the only American tires that have ever taken first place in the French Grand Prix. They have won for three consecutive years in the 500-mile Indianapolis Sweepstakes. So far in 1922, Oldfields have lowered four World's Records and seven track records.

The Wichita Test Run gave evidence of Oldfield's superiority in touring—when a set of four Cords covered 34,526 miles over rutted, frozen, winter roads—a performance attested by the Mayor of Wichita.

See your dealer and get a set of these rugged tires that Barney Oldfield has developed and perfected through a lifetime of practical tire experience. Their performance will convince you that they are "The Most Trustworthy Tires Built."

Hail and Lightning Cause Some Damage

The rain Friday, accompanied by hail, lightning and wind, did considerable damage to crops west and south of Wakefield and some light damage to farms north of town. Heavy rain swelled the creek far beyond its bounds and the water rushed with great force down the valley, sweeping hay and small grain with it. The flooded area extended from the depot north to the James Reid home. Lightning Friday noon struck the Farmers Elevator building, tearing a hole in the roof, burning out the electric switch board and putting the telephone out of order. No one was in the building when the lightning struck. Boards were torn from the barn on the Emil Carlson farm when the lightning struck it Friday. Riley Stipp who lives on Mrs. P. A. Peterson's farm southwest of Wakefield, suffered a complete loss of crops from the hail. Others who lost their corn damaged are: Elmer Kell, Prof. Olson, Clarence Bard, C. E. Madsen, Elmer Beckenauer, Roy Werth, Ernest Hansen, Ole N. Nelson, L. K. Strivens, Swan Pearson, Peter Erickson, A. H. Johnson, Warner Stangord, Jack Sudberg, Russell Johnson, Fred Sandahl, Fred Olson, Walter Johnson, Harry Anderson, Wilbur Evans, Sundell Brothers, Arthur Munsen. About one-fourth of these farms carried some hail insurance.

Train service was hampered by the heavy rain which washed out and wobbled the railroad tracks. About one thousand feet of tracks were out between Wakefield and Wayne and several washouts were reported on the Crofton branch. The passenger train came from Sioux City Saturday morning as far as Wakefield and returned. The only other train that day was a freight from the east. A train went up the Crofton branch Sunday and almost regular service was restored Monday.
