Club Work on Iowa Farms Brings Results

(By H. J. Metaiff.)

That club work among the young people of the Iowa farms has done its large share toward building character and success that can be no dispute. As an evidence of this a recent survey among the former club members of the state shows them successful breeders of pure bred live stock and following other lines of agricultural work which is destined to bring them success and happiness.

Work among the boys and girls of the farm along various club lines has spelled success for many a boy and girl and has started them along the path of prosperity. The survey now being made by the club department of Iowa state college, shows that dozens of boys and girls, who were former club members, were giving their start through club work and have never forgotten the inspiration and the incentive drilled into them by their preceptors.

Future Farmer in Making.
Club work might very properly be styled, future farmers in the making, and the following data gathered by a representative of the club department of the world's greatest agricultural college, gives ample evidence that club work in Iowa, as it has been carried on under the able leadership of Prof. P. C. Taff, assistant director of the agricultural extension service, Iowa state college, has had a powerful influence on agriculture in Iowa.

Muscatine County Club History.
Five members constituted the market pig club in Muscatine county in 1916. The club was simply a county market pig club with the county agent as leader. All members showed their animals at the county fair. No work was made to show at the state fair. Baby beef clubs have been organized every year since in the county.

As a result of this club and the work done by leaders, three of these former club members are now raising pure bred live stock, one is a mechanic, one a bookkeeper. Four of the boys attended the Ames short course. The club of 1919 was a baby beef club and consisted of twenty original members. All showed at the county fair and eleven at the state fair. Five of these boys are farming, while others are living on their farms or attending school. Ten of the farms have started raising pure bred animals where these boys live.

Fourteen original members constituted the 1920 baby beef club. Ten of these boys are in school and two are farming. Seven of the farms where their boys live are raising pure bred. In speaking of the influence of club work in Muscatine county, County Agent J. W. Merrill, sums it up as follows: (1) Brought about a closer relationship between the people of the community; (2) Brought spread gospel of farm bureau; (3) Brought about the interest in pure bred live stock; (4) Brought about closer relationship between farmers and business men of Muscatine; (5) Through advertising club received at county and state fairs it has helped the live stock breeders of Muscatine county to dispose of their surplus stock.

Mr. Shepard, well known farmer of Muscatine county, says: "You cannot value in dollars and cents just what club work has done for my boy." Mr. Pace, club leader in the county, says: "Club work is undoubtedly the biggest phase of farm bureau work it has really the salvation of a lot of our farm boys and girls, and at any rate it certainly worked wonders for my boy and my daughter."

Member of the Rotary club of Muscatine, says: "We think boys' and girls' club work is one of the biggest things that is being done in our rural communities today."

Republican Nominee for Governor Talks
In straightforward talks to the men and women of Nebraska, Senator Charles H. Randall, republican nominee for governor, removes much of the dust and camouflage scattered by those who would distort the facts and deceive the public. During a successful speaking tour the past week, Senator Randall, discussed with Nebraskans the ailments and cures. As a practical farmer and successful developer of farm lands, his sympathies are naturally with the farmer, and he has made no effort to conceal. It is particularly emphasized in this statement:

"There is a phase of the business situation, which if possible, I desire to emphasize. There can be no return to business conditions, fundamental attacks on the system are restored to a prosperous basis, by reinstating the purchasing power of the farmer."
Senator Randall was reared on a farm. When 26 years of age, he left the farm to enter a country bank. Fourteen years ago he retired from the bank, made the bank his home and has since devoted his time, almost exclusively, to the development of farm lands. He has lived in Nebraska thirty-five years. His understanding of the farmer and the laborer need, is expressed in the following:

"It takes a year to produce a crop and a year to consume it. The farmer should not be forced to market it in four or five months. He should be provided with credit facilities so that his crop may be marketed in an orderly manner. He should not be compelled to put his crop on the market as soon as they are harvested, without regard to the ability of the market to absorb them at living prices."

"During the last session of the legislature, a farmers' warehouse bill was passed. This was designed to convert his crops and granaries into warehouses, thus offering security for loans and enabling him to hold his grain until he could procure profitable prices. In August, 1921, the war finance corporation act was amended to permit loaning of government funds on farmers' and stockmen's notes. This was an emergency measure. A loan agency consisting of five members was created. Four of the members of the group organized in Omaha were farmers. I was the only member from the country."

"Within a few months, this committee of Omaha was reconstituted. Fifteen members of government loans on the paper of Nebraska farmers and stockmen. Within seventy days after commencement of the work of the committee, the price of corn at the primary markets increased from twenty cents to forty-five cents a bushel. All other farm products increased in value."

"Not all of the ills can be cured by legislation. There is, however, an intense desire both in national and state legislative bodies to enact laws that will benefit in the stabilizing of prices on farm products."

Senator Randall is not ashamed of his record in the state legislature. "If you will read my record," he says, "you will find that I was back of every measure considered to benefit the farmer, both with my influence and support. Our state government is the biggest and greatest business organization in the world. Every man and every woman is a partner or stockholder in this business and should be vitally interested in how the affairs are conducted."

"Why should not the state's affairs be carried on with the same regard for efficiency and economy of administration as the affairs of any successful state business organization?"

"Conditions demand the elimination of every extra expense, not only at the state capital but in every city, village, precinct and school district. Nebraska, in common with other states, is paying for the after-thought waste of money. Practically every business and industry, particularly agriculture, has been crippled by excessively high taxes, both state and local."

"Adjustments that any successful business man would make, should be made by the state government and such governmental administration."

"The people demand not only economy but rigid economy and no distribution of pie."

"Inefficiency in any business spells extravagance and possible failure."

"Of the issues to be considered during the coming campaign, that dealing with public expenditures and taxation, is most vital."

"Tax receipts are being studied more carefully than ever before. The special session of the legislature pointed the way by reducing the appropriations for the biennium by 1.3 per cent under the levy for 1921."

"Notwithstanding the great increase in taxes since 1917, the portion of the average dollar of tax that state remains at about one-fifth. The 1921 rate being nineteen cents for the state, twenty cents for the county, forty-two cents for the township, sixteen cents for the city and village and three cents for the township."

"The amount written in your 1922 tax receipt will be only less than the amount in the 1921 receipt and a further considerable reduction can be anticipated for the 1923 receipt."

"The state levies for 1921 and 1922 have included the raising of $1,600,000 each year for the relief of ex-soldiers and their families. The interest on this fund will be of great importance in the care of our veterans. I am sure that every good American citizen will be glad to pay a share for the benefit of those who offered their lives during the World War."

"That state taxes can be brought back to the 1917 basis very shortly is clearly indicated. First, by elimination of the bond issue of 1922; second, the elimination of the capital fund in 1925; and elimination of the road building program after the first year when the agreement with the government expires."

"There are other sources of saving that can be without loss made in the larger expending agencies. Possibly some activities may be dispensed with."

"Nebraska is one of four states with no bonded indebtedness, and furthermore, Nebraska owns eleven millions of bonds and trust funds."

"The new law has received popular approval with professional politicians. It offers no chance for the building of a political machine. In my judgment it provides the work that the first business system ever inaugurated in the state would."

"Senator Randall doesn't mind words. He says that the words used in his bill is a question of system against chaos. The democratic candidate would ask the legislature to destroy. The republican candidate would improve."

"The system inaugurated by two democratic governors," he says. "The present system can be improved. Some duplications should be abolished. No legislative action certainly am in favor of abolishing every unnecessary office. I believe that I am constructively progressive, and I believe that the system, unless I had something better to take its place. My opponent says that he would ask the legislature to repeal the code law, not letting the people know how their money is spent. He cannot fool the farm neighbors in my part of the state any more than he can in any other part. He will succeed in fooling the people of any other section of the state."

Now that the shopmen have stopped the strike and gone back to work, it is hoped they will take the squeaks out of the locomotives.

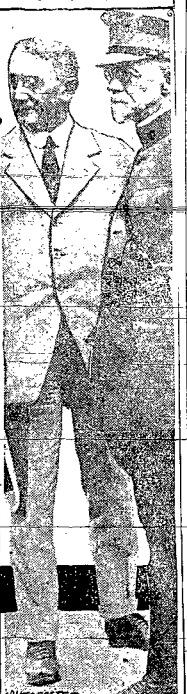

"When we see an outfit advertised as the 'combined shows,'" wonder what they were like and how they managed to make a showing before they were combined.

The closing of the Ford factories, throwing 100,000 men out of employment, is reported to have been due to what Mr. Ford believes are exorbitant prices for coal and steel. Unless he has made some provision for the maintenance of his employees during enforced idleness, he will work severe hardship on impatient people while resuming high prices for the raw materials which are necessary in his business.

Members of a family are under obligation to care for their "strangers" in a tricky or tragically generous or does things to cause affront or injury, he humiliates and distresses others who happen for some unknown reason to be fastened to him by blood ties of relationship. Therefore, one's good deportment, one's kindness and respect for others, are not only due as a means of personal respect for self, but as a means of comfort and ease on the part of the rest of the family tree.

J. H. Kates, former well known Wayne citizen who is sojourning here, has a lecture on "Smiling" which we understand he is to deliver at the Wayne Teachers College tomorrow morning. Mr. Kates does not claim his lecture is wonderfully profound, but he does believe it prescribes a sane panacea for many of the ills that beset health and happiness. He breathes the smile as a golden asset. It dispels the haze of hate, disarms fear, drives away shadowy fogs, and breathes cheer into drooping spirits. The smile is a reflection of good humor, and the world needs more of it as a solvent for vinegary asperities. Properly attuned, one may accuse a sense of good humor over almost any discomfort or painful situation. It should not be taken so seriously that one cannot see the light above the shadow or radiate a smile that will warm all as well as warm and inspire the souls of others.

MELONS ALWAYS POPULAR. Melons were just as popular among the ancient Israelites as they are among people today. After the children of Israel escaped from the persecutions of Egypt, their main life work seemed to be to find food, and among other things, they kicked about the kind of food that was plentiful from heaven, mentioning the fact that they had no melons, cucumbers or onions on which they had been accustomed to luxuriate in the country they left. (Whether they had more or less stomachache, as a consequence, than they had in Egypt is not mentioned.) However, the delicious melon which we greatly rely on at this season, is evidently no new thing. Annual records of fruit likely dates far back of the time of the Pharaohs. The Pithelanthropus, just removed from the anthropoid age, and living 500,000 years ago, had had and was eating melon feasts. The Heidelberg man, 375,000 B. C., may have had the modern experience of trading for a melon. It is likely when vegetation was first spread over the earth, preliminary to the appearing of man and for his sustenance and deflection, melon patches were included.

Anyway, the melon is a wonderfully satisfying creation. Its passing with the frost of autumn is always a source of regret.

SETTLEMENT OF STRIKES

It is a relief to the country to know that both big strikes have been settled, and that the fuel supply will be replenished and that transportation will be unhampered. The settlements came none too soon to avoid aggravated hardship and multiplied losses. Important industries were running on an fuel, and the approach of winter increased the demand for coal. Under enforced neglect, transportation facilities were growing poorer, while the need of enlarged and stimulated means of reaching market with farm products was becoming increasingly great.

The strike over for the present, at least, industrial activity will be renewed and nothing should now hinder return to a condition of general prosperity. It is believed settlement of the labor differences, however, is not permanent and that congress should take a hand in the establishment of an industrial court which could find and enforce an equitable basis for the settlement of labor controversies. A MARTYRED MACHINE.

Lincoln Journal: Modern civilization receives another vindication in the case of the rest and racked congregation at Bardley, Union county, Kentucky. Here arose a religious zealot of an old and forgotten kind. A part of the congregation, refusing the faith of their fathers, desired to introduce a musical instrument into the services of the church. Another part, holding the innovation as a sacrilege, opposed it with might and main and there was one of the bitter struggles with which this history is replete.

The party of innovation finally won. The organ was installed. Since the issue was one of conscience, the majority could not, of course, be oppressed—in matters of opinion such as arise in secular affairs men may defer to superior numbers, but in matters of conscience, one and the truth are a majority and cannot be overruled. The outraged minority of the Kentucky church considered what to do. What they did was to take the offending organ out of the church and to attempt to reduce it to its original elements.

There have been times, as we all know, when such issues led to much more serious conclusions. The good old days of which we dream, the untraged anti-organists would as like as not have poured their oil over their opponents, making a bonfire of them, instead of making a bonfire of them. This modern clash of faiths results only in the incineration of an inanimate musical instrument. Thus growth of the world more merciful.

In Dress Materials

Satin faced canton crepe is the choicest of the new Fall Dress Materials. It may be made up with the crepe finished side out, the satin faced side being used for trimming effects.

Browns, blues and black are the favored colors. We can help you with new style suggestions for making up this lovely material. All the correct trimmings for carrying out the latest styles are here for you.

In Dresses Ready-to-Wear

Dresses of called Pointais are in great favor. Tricotine has given dress to a fine, twilled cloth woven Poirat Twill. Navy blue is the favorite color. The principal style changes are the sleeves and waist line effects. The skirt length of wool dresses is about the same as last year—the style makers having failed to "nut over" the lengthened dress skirt for general wear.

Canton crepea are favored for party wear.

We would very much like to show you our dress assortment at this time as we now have a splendid variety of styles and sizes.

Our stock is varied to suit almost any preference. If you want a nice dress at $12.50 to $18.50, or if you require a finer dress at any price up to $50.00, you will find them all here. We have dozens of pretty styles in your size to show you if you come now.

In Coats for Winter Wear

The one leading material used in winter coats is a plush finished woven goods. This is a woolen material with a nap like plush or velvet. A great many names are applied to this cloth—every mill making it having a different one. It is made of cheap wool—good wool—fine wool—mohair and mererized finish wool and silk and wool. You can't tell a thing about it by name. You must see the cloth and examine it closely and judge the quality for yourself to know what you are getting. This cloth made of cheap wool will look like a dusty tarpole in a short time. If made of bright lustered fine wool or silk and wool it is a cloth of great beauty and makes up into the richest coats we have had in years. As the styles here are—changes in the sleeve and collar effects—in particular which make for great attractiveness.

Brown is the favored color, blue a good second. You get a very good idea of how rich and stylish the coats of this material look if you come in now. We have on hand an especially large stock at this time many of which we bought for our outside sales. Now would be a splendid time for you to choose your coat while we have all these extra garments.

In Silk Waists

Canton crepe is the favored material for the newer waists, crepe de chine being used in the cheaper numbers. Over blouse effects are the most popular in style. Beading is the most generally used as trimming in fact, the beauty and cost of your waist can be well judged by the amount of beading used. Brown, cream and blues are the leading shades. All styles are now prepared to show you a nice variety of these blouses.

In Sweaters

Slip over sweaters have greatly increased in popularity. For fall wear they take the place of a blouse for many occasions and as such can be made to look quite dresy by adding a pretty collar and cuff set. We have had a number of new styles come in this winter. The prices are very reasonable, $3.50 to $5.75.

In Ladies' Footwear

Low shoes continue their popularity. It is almost a certainty that women will continue to wear low effects this season, depending on woeless boots for protection in the cool autumn days and on galfers and high overboots when real winter comes. Patents are in great favor for both street and dress wear—the prettier styles being made up with strap effects of grey or tan leather. Satins and suedes in strap styles are also well liked for nice wear. For street wear oxfords of black or brown leather are going to be as popular as ever when worn with woollen or silk and-woolen hose.

We are keeping our stock up to the minute in style; almost every week we receive from the east new strap effects and oxfords. Just now, while the size and style assortment is most complete we would like to fit you out in your new fall footwear.

In Children's Shoes

The style idea in children's footwear is to get a shoe with plenty of toe room, that fits neatly up around the instep and ankles. Wide toe shoes are neat and stylish looking if carefully made of fine materials over close fitting lasts. If they are turned out haphazardly some ladies of men's shoe factories who make children's shoes simply as a means of using up their scraps of leather they are clumsy looking and ill fitting. Let us show you how best a shoe can look that is correctly made to give room for the toes of the little folks. You would like to have the children grow up with good, strong, well-shaped feet that would save them the foot troubles with which we of the present generation are so greatly bothered. You can do it if you get shoes that are correctly made to keep the little feet on natural lines while the time is entering the bones. We have made a study of fitting and we have the lines of winter shoes for this purpose which are recommended by the leading foot specialists. We will give your little folks our best attention, and will give you good looking, correct fitting footwear at no more cost than you would pay for the average ordinary shoes.

Hunters Out for Game. Clearwater, Wash., Sept. 16.—Hunters were out in full force here Sunday and many good bags were taken. The dry weather has made the river shooting much better as there are many lakes in the sand hill region have gone dry. The Elkhorn river is extremely low and many fish are being caught in deep holes. Carp are being spread by the hundreds, the water being as clear as glass.

A genuine sportsmanlike disposition is manifested here among the citizens. When the state game warden turned loose several ring pheasants last week a paper was circulated and generally signed in which everyone agreed to respect the pheasants. This was headed by a warning setting forth the penalty of $100 for the killing of a pheasant, and posted in public places.

The rain Sunday night was hailed with delight by dairymen and farmers as feed in pastures will now carry stock until freezing weather.

Semi-Solid Buttermilk too Expensive? No!

One hundred twenty-five Wayne county conservative hog raisers say "No." Farmers who have fed Semi-Solid, constantly, on a ratio of 50 to 1, for tonic value say Semi-Solid increases hog profits. Why? Because of increased gains, shorter feeding period, insurance of health and corrects wormy condition. The big secret in feeding Semi-Solid is the acknowledged fact the feeding value of your corn is doubled. Resolve to secure the hog profits that are justly due you. Keep your hogs thrifty—increase the vitality, insure safe farrowing. Semi-Solid feeders will please take notice at butchering time, the healthy condition and increased size of the stomach, intestines, heart, liver and lungs. Whole System Is Benefited By Tanlac

"Thousands of frail, nervous people and convalescents everywhere have testified to the remarkable power of Tanlac in bringing back their health strength and working efficiency—it seems to quickly invigorate the constitution and is a powerful cure for weakness."—Mrs. Edward A. Walker, 121 5th St., S. W. Mason City, Ia., says:

"At the time I took Tanlac I had no appetite and no strength and I seemed that I had no life in me. Even my little ones upset. Tanlac would keep my nerves upset. Tanlac helped me from the start; I gained ten pounds and I think it is simply grand."

"There is not a single portion of the body that is not benefited by the highest strength of Tanlac. It makes the stomach to turn the food into healthy blood, bone and muscle, purifies the system, and helps you back to normal weight. Get a bottle today at any good druggist. SELL

Urges Dramas on Farm To Help Young People

"Daily Drivers Journal-Stockman: Home made drama produced in a little theatre in a rural or semi-rural community, affords those who participate in it the opportunity to express themselves, and so find themselves, and become contented with their environment." In that way it leads the way for improvement of domestic and social conditions in the country. And that is necessary unless American civilization is to deteriorate, unless the tendency of the young to leave the country districts and to substitute for agriculture other less fundamental occupations is to go on unchecked. For American society depends for its strength and soundness, as the population does for its economic basis upon its rural and semi-rural portions.

Such was the justification for, and the explanation of, the growth and popularity of the Little Theatre Centre given by Prof. Alfred G. Alvord, in charge of the department of public discussion and social service of the North Dakota agricultural college at Fargo, N. D., in a lecture at the University of Chicago recently.

"This form of social activity," he said, "has spread into every state in the country where there are extensive farming regions and to Porto Rico, Japan, the Philippines, India and South Africa. It started some eight years ago in Fargo, where two students—one born of Icelandic parents who lived in northern North Dakota, the other born in Iceland—came to me and said they had 'thought out a play.'"

"He then described the production of this play, 'The Redwoods.' Without funds, the students got an old curtain, were given sufficient paint to cover it, applied it themselves, making a scene from Iceland, and composed the play as they built the 'props,' and finally produced it with the help of other students.

"The play was a success. It avoided controversy, 'found in this way something within them which they never before knew they possessed. They found their own expression through the medium of the drama. Watching them, it occurred to me that there are hundreds of thousands of such persons throughout the rural and semi-rural communities of America—persons who can never have found themselves, who can never have found a greater contentment if they learn how to express the best that is in them."

So he organized at Fargo the first Little Theatre, with a prominent ten by fifteen foot dimensions and a seating capacity of 200. It was built and paid for, and all later equipment was supplied by entertainments and plays. And as it developed, Prof. Alvord used it more and more as a "laboratory of country life." He said, the drama is the best constructive force of farming communities: Athletics, exhibitions of art or any handicrafts, music, plays, social functions. The theatre was adapted of social expression, but always centering around the play.

Then the idea began to "take hold" in other communities. He told of a home-talent play first given in the basement of a consolidated school house which later was the climax of the 1921 Independence day celebration at Lisbon, N. D. There it was produced on an improvised stage of the school building and after the latter of two baseball games, and witnessed from the "grandstand" by 1,000 farmers. He told of another play for July 21, 1922, in a barn at Bergen Township, N. D. It was produced by ten persons, all farmers, who represented ownership of 5,700 acres of grain and live stock land, and was witnessed by 750 of their neighbors. Both of these adventures, he said, were typical of the way the Little Theatre theatre has got its start in various communities under the lead of the Fargo playhouse and the North Dakota agricultural college.

A gentleman from Wakefield reported that town as having a healthy growth.

A number of residents of Wayne county are in town this week after loads of lumber and shingles.

Senator Saunders says that so far as Nebraska in concerned, corn is king. In Dixon county his statement is evidently correct. Corn here is most regular in size and quality, the crop will be immense, and according to late market reports, the price will be high. The short wheat crop will be amply compensated by the overwhelming yield of corn.

The news of the death of the president was received at this place by telegraph at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning. While our citizens had long expected just such sad tidings, the favorable bulletin of the few days previous had given them renewed hope, and they were wholly unprepared when the end really came. At ten o'clock on Tuesday a large flag draped in mourning was unfurled over East street, while the deep tolling of bells, and the crepe on business houses and dwellings, attested the universal and heartfelt grief of our townspeople.

Big Sale Farm Land AT AUCTION

320 Acres Known as the E. P. Chamberlain Farm; divided into three farms; four miles west of Winnebago, Neb.
Tuesday, Sept. 26, 10:30 a. m. Sharp

This fine farm has been consigned to this company by the owner, Mr. E. P. Chamberlain, to be sold at auction to the last and highest bidder without reserve, as Mr. Chamberlain, on account of ill health, is forced to retire from active farming and has instructed us to sell every acre of these fine lands for whatever they will bring.

These lands are located four miles west of Winnebago, Neb., and ten miles southeast of Emerson, on Emerson road and about fifteen miles northeast of Pender and eight miles southwest of Emerson and twenty-four miles southwest of Sioux City, and this location gives the very best of markets for all stock and farm products; near schools and churches, banks, elevators, etc., school being only ten rods from the west line of farm No. 2.

These lands have been divided into three farms.
Farm No. 1 containing 160 acres with good eleven-room house with basement, large basement barn, cattle shed, hog shed, milk house, wash house, two-story granary, corn crib, garage, chicken house and all necessary out-buildings, with water piped to all buildings and all are electric lighted. Fine orchard and vineyard, about 110 acres in cultivation, 25 acres in timothy and clover, 25 acres blue grass pasture and all lands are fenced and cross fenced.

Farm No. 2 containing 80 acres has small house and barn, corn crib, well and windmill, 60 acres in cultivation, 20 acres of alfalfa and ten rods to school. All blue grass pasture, never falling stream fed by spring and this entire 80 acres can be cultivated except that portion taken up by the stream.

Farm No. 3 containing 80 acres, about 40 acres in cultivation and 40 acres blue grass pasture, never falling stream fed by the spring and this entire 80 acres can be cultivated except that portion taken up by the stream.

All of these lands, as you will note by inspection, are some of the very best new, deep, rich soil to be had anywhere in this part of the country and are adapted to the growth of corn, wheat, alfalfa, oats, etc., gently rolling, just enough for good drainage. We believe this is the opportunity to buy one or more of these farms as we realize they will not bring their value, but the owner, being forced to sell on account of ill health, has instructed us, as stated above, to sell every acre to the highest bidder, therefore his loss will be your gain. We believe that now is the best time to buy farm lands as they certainly have reached their low ebb and within a short time, to buy lands of this kind; you would be forced to pay much more money as the price of farm products are bound to increase, thereby raising the price of the farm lands.

It is said that opportunity knocks once at every man's door. It is certainly knocking at the door of the man who wants to buy a farm, as by buying now you are buying on a low market and are sure to reap the benefit therefrom at an early date.

Remember the date and terms and remember also that this is a bona fide sale until the last acre is sold and all personal property will be sold at the same date. See special sale bill for list of personal property.

Meet us on the E. P. Chamberlain farm, four miles west of Winnebago, Tuesday, Sept. 26 and you will buy one or more of these farms if you are the last and highest bona fide bidder. Bring your family, enjoy the day with us as a fine lunch will be served on the grounds at noon.

Easy Terms—One-fifth cash, one-third March 1, 1923. Purchasers to assume loans now on lands.

Sale will be made on the lands. Fine Lunch Served at Noon.
Meet us on the E. P. Chamberlain Lands Tuesday, Sept. 26, 10:30 a. m. Sharp

Business

Siox City Journal: The most interesting thing in the American business world today is the fact that obstructions put in the way of progress are being removed. The indications are clear that progress will move forward at constantly increasing speed. American industry in all lines now will go on and complete the work of reconstruction. Some officials, experts in economy such as Mr. Hoover, say it will take a long time to recover from the industrial disturbance of the last summer. This does not seem to be a consensus of opinion as reflected in the newspapers of the country, which may be explained on recognizing particular care in reporting conditions and expressing opinions about them.

The present depression is agreed to be a business depression, of the kind of the two great strikes, that by tying up the coal mines and interfering with railroad operation did not hurt much, if any, ground during the months of the depression. Progress was slowed down somewhat, it is true, but there was no return to that condition of depression that marked the last depression. Business continued, manufacturing kept on producing goods with little or no reduction, unemployment made no appreciable gains and the confidence of the people remained unshaken. That does not indicate that business lost very much.

With the coal and railroad situations improved by the end of the two strikes, with the financial situation never better, with prices holding steady and the government taking steps to prevent price fixing, it is felt the American people cannot help feeling that a better condition is ahead. There is marked activity in every part of the country. Manufacturers are increasing their output to supply a stronger demand. Textile mills are busy, furnishing goods for the late fall and winter trade. Clothing manufacturers are producing garments, a selling point of which is a changed style. Hardware is moving rapidly, owing to building activities. The railways in which have settled with the strikers are employing their old men and soon will have their shops running at full capacity to handle new orders. Investment and ease in handling crops. Wall street dealings reflect a new confidence. Bonds are selling easily. Grain shows a firm tone, and live stock prices are steady.

Henry Ford has kept his word about closing his plants in the Detroit region as a protest against high prices for fuel and steel, but his action will not even cause a ripple in the industrial world. Several thousand men will be out of employment, but it will not take long, if the manufacturers continue the shut-down for them to be absorbed. It is recalled that reports from various sections say there is a shortage in many lines of skilled workers. It will be necessary to employ for general industry to provide jobs for the earnest workers formerly on the Ford pay roll. As a gesture, Mr. Ford's shut-down will have little effect, if any. Other manufacturers are going ahead according to the plans they made while anticipating settlement of the miners' and shopmen's strikes. They may have to make some changes in overhead expense to take care of the increased fuel costs without marking up sale prices and alarming the public, but American efficiency ought to be able to accomplish this.

The wholesale and retail trade in general merchandise is confidently expected to pick up. Jobs for most people will give a greater number of buyers the opportunity to spend money for their actual needs. Luxuries will commence to disappear from restricted shelves. Americans have begun to realize that the time has come for them to live their own lives the way they desire. The international trade and political situation has also begun to worry them. The conviction has come that America can get on all right, having plenty to eat and to wear, permitting near-by, Europe and the rest of the world all the time required to put their own houses in order.

Bloomfield Sports Get Soaked. Randolph Times: The suckers are biting fine is the word sent out by slick bootleggers who are out for the easy money from the easy guys. The fellow who offers booze in these days is not a fellow to be believed as a life-saver, but should be kicked and sent on his way. New tricks every day from the suckers, and does not follow the wails of woe in alcohol booze bought by the foolish and easy marks who seem to want to try anything once.

Bloomfield sports got soaked on a slick booze game says the following: A couple of local sports are a trifle wiser on the "bookie" proposition and also a trifle poorer in a financial way as the result of a little experience they had recently. They met up with a stranger who gave them a drink of real "licker" and told them he had a couple of quarts just like it and which he would sell them for twenty-five simoleans. The boys pooled resources and bought the stuff, first sampling each bottle, which bore "bottled in bond" stamps. It listened good to their teststers and the deal was made. But their exultant feelings were rudely shattered. The bottles were double decker affairs and each whiskey, one good drink of real hooch, the lower compartment being filled with rot tea. They sought diligently for the smooth-tongued stranger but he was conspicuous by his absence; having left for parts unknown. And the old adage of one being born every minute still holds good.

Hunting for a Job.

Lincoln Neb., Sept. 18.—The Rev. J. D. M. Buckner, for forty years a minister in the Methodist Episcopal church, who was retired at the state conference of the denomination last week in the face of a protest, was in Lincoln yesterday evening on his way from Aurora, Neb., where he has long been the Methodist Episcopal pastor over to Chicago. The Rev. Mr. Buckner said he was hunting a job, "and I have no idea what it will be."

"I think it is better to kill an old man than a young one," he said, "even if I am the man."

Dr. Buckner said he wished to correct a statement that is 68 years old. He said he will be 67 the latter part of this month.

Card of Thanks.

A. Henkel, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Henkel, Helen, Fritz, Robert, Franklin and Walter Henkel.

Everybody Happy.

Kansas City Times: The democrats have their usual opportunity to be jubilant over the Maine election, and as usual the republicans have the office.

In the Air.

Life: That Ford for president boon you heard down the road, was only a blowout.

Can Europe Buy Later?
The wheat pit finds it hard to hold up against the shortage of orders from Europe, in spite of the assurance of experts that if Europe does not buy now it will have to buy later at any price. Perhaps the weakness of that reasoning lies in doubt as to whether Europe, however badly it needs our wheat, will be able to pay for it.
No Short Cut to National Wealth.

This is because she has reduced her domestic expenditures and imposing taxes heavy enough to meet the demands of her treasury.
