She Can Easily Stop All Outside Rust

But She Can't Stop Inside Rust

You never saw a range rust so badly on the outside that a little oil or stove polish would not stop the rust.

But what can you do for inside rust, even if you knew it was rusting? You never know it until rusted through and you couldn't do anything if you knew it.

By placing the sheet of copper between the sweaty asbestos and range body, in Copper-Clad ranges, internal rust is prevented. The copper stops the sweat and the dry air space prevents any moisture from touching the outer casing.

If there is no internal rust, you can take care of external rust with a greasy rag or a little graphite or oil or paraffine wax. Any of these things stop the rust if you can see it.

Buy a Copper-Clad range and be certain that your range will never be destroyed by internal rust. It can't rust out.

Wins at National Show. Norfolk Daily News: More honors were won by the Norfolk and Giant Sensation, the great producing Duroc Jersey boar, at the National Swine show at Peoria, Ill., yesterday, according to a telegram received here from William Rasmussen, the owner. Rasmussen won first prize with his junior sow, the same animal that took the grand championship prize at the Nebraska state and pick also took the reserve grand champion in the junior sow class along with reserve champion. This is the second highest honor obtainable at the national show where hogs from all parts of the United States competed for prizes. The second aged herd prize also went to the Norfolk and Giant. Rasmussen's carload of purebred red hogs was delayed enroute to the national show and the show management held up the showings one day in order to get the Nebraska hogs into the show stalls.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher.

Do It Right.
If you have a task to do, do it right; if you're darning Irish stew, do it right; if you're making Father's socks, if you're putting down a walk, if you're winding up a clock, do it right. Sloppy work will hurt your face; do it right; careless workman's slip a shame; do it right. When you paint the kitchen floor, when you fix the stable door — whatever be your chore, do it right. If you'd play a game of ball, do it right; if you'd lecture in a hall, do it right; if you'd build yourself a home; if you'd write a noble poem, if you'd punch a neighbor's dome, do it right. Though you have a humble task, do it right; if in Easy street you'd back do it right; for the fellows who advance, taking hold of every chance, profiting by circumstance, do it right. If your duty's high and great, do it right; if you labor for the state, do it right; high or low, it's just the same; man should always play the game; he must, if he'd side-step shame, do it right.

Coals of Fire.
My neighbor earned my deepest hate, he slew my Maltese cats; he sagged them with some chunks of slate, and stove in all their state. I traced the frightful crime to him, as Sherlock might have done, and vowed I'd rend him limb from limb before my race was run. But in my heart emotions dread don't flourish much or thrive; "To punch my neighbor's dome," I said, "won't make my cats alive. Some day, no doubt, he'll realize how hot fat was dead; with briny streaming from his eyes, for pardon he will plead." That night my neighbor's cow lay ill, upon her couch of hay, and by her side, with dope and pill, I sat till break of day. I bent above that ailing cow, a prod that childlike form, that feebled round her fevered brow, and gave her mashes warm. "You've saved her life," my neighbor cried, "you've played a noble game; ah, humble is my wisest pride, and I am sunk in shame. If I but had a pair of cats, I'd aim them at my dome; 'twas I who slew the pale blue cats that frolicked round your porch." "Now let the stricken cats sleep on," I said, "let dead things be; come forth and sit upon my lawn, and eat a pie with me."

Right and Wrong.
Last week some fiend in human form worked off on me a phony buck and wrast rose in me like a storm. I strongly yearned to run amuck; "Ah, well," I sighed, when cooling down, "all is not lost, there's hope ahead; there's some roach fish in this man's town who'll fall for this bun coin of lead." The greaser's eyes are weak and dim, he'd never wisp up to my game; I'll show this bogus plunk on him—he'll never know from whom it came." First impulse always away me thus, for self defense it is not born; I must get even with the cuss who steps upon my choicest corn. But second impulse comes and swings my mind around when I get cool; it is the outcome of the things I learned at home and Sunday school. "Some guy has thought me ill," I think, "but that's no reason, sound or true;—I should seek some other gink, and play a scurvy trick or two. The greaser is an honest wight, and it would be a rotten deal to take advantage of his sight, and sting him with this pester wheel. I'll meet him oft in future days, and if I pulped so coarse a stunt I'd always tread to meet his gaze, I'd surely show a guilty front. So I will throw this buck away, I'll drop it down in yonder well, where it can't tempt no money-jay to cut the path that leads to Hannibal, Mo."

The Public Library.
Upon the shelves the good books stand, unblemished by a reader's hand; the gilt is fresh upon their pages, the covers show no seams or cracks; the stately tomes with wisdom stored make small appeal to readers bored by anything in print whose drift it is to instruct me to my uplift. The queenly dame who is in charge remarks to me, "Our stock is large of volumes stuffed with useful lore; we have nice tomes, or maybe more. Our shelves are loaded to the guards with works of sagas and of bards, so choose a book to suit your need, and take it home with you and read." "I'm looking for a book," I say, "a noble work by Bertha Clay, wherein a serving maid named Leticia married to a hatched duke; that noble's jealous aunts now rush to put cold poison in her mub; plot follows plot till readers quell—this is an outline of the tale, and I'll be glad as glad can be if you can find this book for me." "Ah, was is me," exclaims the dame, "you modern birds are all the same. I thought when I beheld you here, your face so thoughtful and austere, that from the shelf you'd promptly jerk a helpful and uplifting work. But no one wants those no tomes; you reach for bunk like 'Sherlock Holmes.'"

No Law.
There is no law compelling us to read the books we think are rot; so it is vain to raise a fuss because such books don't hit the spot. For there are books for every taste, and we may choose the ones we like; and as we read, we may as well read, or Pete or Author Mike. There is no law compelling men to sit through lectures long and flat, so why assail with tongue or pen the evening's wordy sermons? There is no law requiring poets to hear a sermon or a play, so it is vain to raise lament when to our homes we went away, and to the poet's pen the blame we lay; he should be sewing wood; we like to be heard and kick and carp, and punk things please us more than law. We go to the movies to see the artists who must bear their cross; quite well before we start we know that it will be a total loss. But 'tis it is a pleasant thing to see the artists one by one, to say such people always sing when we're not furnished with a gun. We're fusing knocking all the time, denouncing things that do not please; the laest novel is a crime; you painting makes us think of cheese. Methinks if we were truly wise our troubled souls might find some rest; there is no law requiring guys to stand for things that they detest.

Realism.
Ah, the realistic writer, with his novel, makes me sad; for his hero is blighter, and his heroine's as bad. Says the "realistic" fellow, when he takes his fountain pen, "All the world is rank and yellow, break its women and its men; I describe a little section of the life that I behold, write up squalor and dejection, mildew, rotteness and mold. And my book will have no humor, nothing gay will it disclose, for I'd write about a tamsor rather than describe a rose. There will be no plot or action such as healthy people choose, for I care to that fraction of the crowd that has the blues." So he writes a sordid story of a sordid life of wretches, tures young and fatuous hoary, talking evermore of Sex. And some critics cry, "Great Caesar! How he reads his human soul! He's grand, and gifted geeser who could write that rigamarole!" And the smell of rot grows denser as the realism grows, while men and women stare, and the wise man holds his nose. Realism in the sewer rakes and digs and claws around, hunting carrion that's newer than poor Zola ever found.

Will Want New Leader, Anyway.
Chicago News: William Z. Foster, who led the steel strike to failure a few years ago, predicts another one soon. It is a safe guess that the strikers will not invite him to lead it.

The hovering eavesdropper or irresponsible buttinist should be regarded with charitable commiseration as not knowing any better.

The interstate commerce commission is considering reduction in railroad passenger fares, encouraged to do so by increased freight shipments following reduction in freight rates. The commission feared railroad earnings would be greatly curtailed by lowering freight rates. The sensible conclusion has finally been reached that reduced passenger fares would increase and make more profitable the passenger traffic.

No one person has possession of all talents to a high degree. The fact a person can do one thing well is no ground to suppose he can do all things well. An unskilled mechanic is apt to be a poor linguist, and vice versa. A truly skilled mechanic may not know how to spell words, and a good linguist may not be able to differentiate between a good horse and one that is not worth the powder to blow it up. One who is able to accomplish much along a particular line is likely to be weak along other lines. A rare creature is he who can do many things extraordinarily well.

BYRAN IS DISAPPOINTING.

We like Mr. BYRAN'S high, resonant voice, his radiant smile and happy good humor so well that we wish we might characterize his speech here Tuesday afternoon as consistent, logical and convincing. But we could not do it without sacrificing conscience. He employed all the skill of an accomplished politician to make a plausible case, we are sure. He camouflaged by ringing in finely-spun generalities. He was narrowly precise, notwithstanding his evident willingness to accept republican votes for Charley. He charged republicans with piracy, notwithstanding the excess to which the Wilson administration allowed him to go in high seas and in the labor during the war and the consequent piling up of tax burdens.

Mr. BYRAN said more millionaires had been made during the war than during all the previous history of the country, but he seemed to forget that his own party was in power and in control of contracts that permitted profiteering and inordinate accumulations of wealth. He says republicans have spent money like drunken sailors, and yet the multiplication of men and wages devoted to government contracts during the war represents a waste of funds that was appalling and that could not help but leave the galling impress of excessive taxation for years to come. In the Commoner Mr. BYRAN is quoted as advising cancellation of the allied war debts owing this country. He also urges and promises reduction taxes. By cancellation of war debts we mean the cancellation of the European countries, he would add to the present tax burden which is traceable in considerable part to Wilsonian extravagance.

Mr. BYRAN says the liquor question has been settled because both parties are pledged to uphold prohibition. Why not suggest that taxation has been settled because both parties are pledged to reduce it?

Mr. BYRAN would now cancel foreign debts, pay obligations created by large tolls taken by railroads and factories and shipbuilders and skilled and unskilled workers employed outside of the army, and at the same time he would reduce taxation. He might well have shouted that industries and those who should have been drafted at moderate pay the same as the soldiers and sailors. Then a bonus would be easy and taxation would be comparatively light.

In this state Mr. BYRAN charges a great deal of responsibility for high taxes to the congress, and yet he did not convey a shadow of suspicion that he knew anything about the working of the system. He was against it in the hope of helping Charley.

The speech apparently sought to discredit everything bearing a republican label. It would not bear analysis and to be swallowed required one to quit thinking and suspend normal judgment. It was an invitation to people to forget the past, and march up to the polls on election day and vote for Charley, Senator Hitchcock and Edgar Howard. People are expected to take their medicine and act as if they like it.

STRANGE BEDFELLOWS.

Hitchcock and Bryan who for a long time had been leaders of conflicting wings of the democratic party, have apparently declared a truce, leaving the two factions to unite long enough to reflect the former to the United States senate and elect the latter's brother, Charley, to the governorship. Mr. Hitchcock is using his newspaper in behalf of Charley. Charley's brother, the silver-tongued William Jennings, is using his voice in behalf of Hitchcock.

Hitchcock and Bryan never did agree so well before. Hitchcock seemed to have aristocratic tastes and inclinations. Bryan was known by many as the "Commoner." Their ideas of government and the needs of the party chafed. Whenever they got together they threw out jets of hostile flame. Their respective followers stood apart and frowned and often fought over an abyss of conflicting opinions. They seemed irrevocably incompatible.

But now the two hitherto warring elements are invited to forget issues involving sharp differences in the past and get together long enough to elect two candidates who are running on the same ticket. The two men are as different as oil and water and they want to be elected.

Edgar Howard, candidate for congress on the democratic ticket, also belongs to the new coalition for convenience. He fought Mr. Hitchcock until we were ashamed of him. Now he is embracing the United States senator and is willing to have people forget his attitude toward him in the past.

Truly, politics does make strange bedfellows.

Sutley-Lamb.

Mr. Arle O. Sutley, son of Mrs. Luena Sutley of Norfolk, and Miss Laura Lamb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lamb of Norfolk, were married Wednesday morning by County Judge J. M. Cherry. They will be accompanied here by the bride's parents. Mr. Sutley has been employed the past four years by the Northwestern railroad as clerk. The young couple will make their home in Norfolk.

Why Sell Chickens One-Half Fat?

It's so simple and common sense to fatten your chickens. Coop them up and feed than fourteen days, increase weight 35 to 40 per cent. Feed equal portions of wheat shorts, cracked corn, Semi-Solid Buttermilk and plenty of fresh water. Big interests such as Swift and Armour make enormous profits every year by fattening chickens. Chickens sold by the raisers half fattened make big profit for the big interests. Mr. Farmer, get this margin yourself—big profits and quick gains. Call up for details.

You don't have to coax big and little folks to eat Kellogg's Corn Flakes

Just as soon as you serve Kellogg's you'll note fussy and fabled appetites getting mighty sharp; you'll find big bowls being handed back to Kellogg's mother—they're wonderful!

And that's all you need to glad for Kellogg's Corn Flakes are a great speed-start for the day's dappily! They make for health and happy digestion! Kellogg's are never lathery or tough, but always joyously crisp!

Kellogg's—the original Corn Flakes—will be a revelation to your taste if you have been eating imitations! For your own enjoyment, do this—compare the big, sun-brown Kellogg's Corn Flakes with other "corn flakes". Eat some of Kellogg's—then try the imitations! You'll realize then why Kellogg's Corn Flakes are the biggest and finest selling cereal in the whole world!

Do more than ask for "corn flakes". Insist upon KELLOGG'S Corn Flakes in the RED and GREEN package! My, but it's worth while!

Kellogg's CORN FLAKES

Also makers of KELLOGG'S CRACKLES and KELLOGG'S BRAN, cold and kneaded

I will sell at Public Auction at the Wayne Live Stock Pavilion, on

Friday, October 13

Eighty Head of Big Feeder Cows

weighing about 1,000 pounds. These cattle are from the same Fisher herd of Way-side, Neb., that I sold here at auction on Sept. 30, and are guaranteed to be of the highest class.

Forty head of 2 and 3-year-old steers.

Also fifty head of good yearling steers and 100 head of good calves.

All of the above animals are Whitefaces, and all are very desirable.

350 head Western, Alfalfa-grown Pigs

And these pigs have had no corn.

Come to this sale and buy these White face cattle and thrifty pigs at your own prices as there will be no by-bidding.

TERMS: Six to 9 months time on approved notes bearing eight per cent interest.

Culled from Herald's Exchanges for Week

Col. Charles Worler of Pierce, has the honor of being the oldest soldier at the G. A. R. encampment this year in Des Moines. He will be 93 next old Nov. 6.

Ernest Lloyd Prince and Miss Louise Jensen of Winslow, were married at the court house in Pierce by Judge Heath, on Oct. 2. They will live on a farm near Whiteside.

Miss Anna Mohr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Mohr of south of Laurel, and Mr. Adolphus Rosenbaum of Elk Point, S. D., were married Sept. 27, at Elk Point where they will make their home.

Mrs. Mathias Ackles died Sept. 28, in Pierce, after a long illness.

Herbert Thies, son of Mrs. C. E. Thies of Pilger, who has been attending school in Columbia, Mo., will go to Germany in January to take a position in journalism.

Letha Mae Albertus, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Jensen of Wisner, was accidentally struck by an automobile when she crossed the street behind another car. The child was bruised, the car wheels running over her legs and she being dragged about twenty feet.

John Wuebbenhorst died Sept. 25, at his home south of Wisner. He was a pioneer of Cuming county, having lived there for forty years.

Engineer W. D. Kimmel of the state department was in Pierce last week to determine what could be done to clear out the north channel of the Elkhorn river of rubbish, so that flood waters could be taken care of. The engineer thought that the river is relieved of the old trees and brush that the flood water could be carried away satisfactorily.

The Knox County Fair and Live Stock Show, which was held at Bloomfield and elected the following officers: President, Henry Kuhl of Plainview; vice president, J. F. Matlock of Winneton; treasurer, C. T. Heckt of Bloomfield; and secretary, W. H. Weber of Bloomfield.

The new school building at Clark Center, near Dixon, will be completed this week and will register with Miss Alberta Eiders and Miss Gertrude Wright as teachers.

Rev. E. M. Owings of the Baptist church in Wayne, preached the sermon.

Women of Randolph met at the home of Mrs. M. E. Bavel on Saturday last week and organized a Randall club. Similar clubs in other towns in this part of the state to help in raising money for the gubernatorial campaign have been organized.

The Randolph City council has bought a new pump for the power plant to cut operating cost and save money for the city, besides providing an emergency pump.

The Randolph American Legion will celebrate Armistice day on Nov. 11, with a big program.

W. O. Trotter, elevator at Osmond, caught fire Wednesday last week from an unknown cause, and burned to the ground.

F. W. Boltz & Son of Randolph, received last Friday a Great Orion Sensation Duroc boar purchased from Ed Kern, heard at Stanton.

Great Orion Sensation was national grand champion in 1919 and 1921 and Mr. Kern has refused $10,000 for him. Mr. Boltz bought this fine fellow just as he was being made ready to ship to the National Swine show at Peoria, and Mr. Kern had to put in another hog. This pig was the best the Boltz has in the Kern herd and is a real herd leader.

A threshing outfit belonging to Frank Babec and the oats on the Charles Bartel farm near Stanton caught fire and burned last week.

Women's clubs of Madison county, met at Newman Grove for their annual convention and elected the following officers: President, Mrs. Walter Long of Newman Grove; vice president, Mrs. H. E. Mason of Meadow Grove; and secretary, Mrs. Victor Seymour of Norfolk.

Corn in the vicinity of Newman Grove promises to yield forty to sixty bushels to the acre.

“Imagine—Comfortable and Smart”

What all women have longed for and some didn't know existed—underclothing that fits the figure faultlessly yet gives perfect ease and freedom! That's Athena. Dainty knit underwear that doesn't pull up in front or down in the back; that doesn't bunch under the arms, or do any of the other annoying things many women have thought necessary evils of all undergarments. The secret lies in the making. Athena is not stretched into shape, it is cut to the lines of the figure. Yet it costs no more than ordinary underwear!

ATHENA UNDERWEAR
For Women and Children

Ask the saleswoman to show you why Athena fits with such easy comfort. Examine especially the sloping line of the neck, the tapering back and fitted seat, the extra width through the bust. Athena will give you a new conception of real comfort in underwear. It may be had in all styles and weights, in knit fabrics.

Selecting an Occupation

"On the tables in the chapel systematically arrayed and attractively displayed were miniature implements and instruments representing every known occupation, i. e., sword for soldier, hammer for carpenter, net for fisherman, etc."

"In the mother's arms was the infant to be christened, escorted by his relatives, both blood and marriage. The baptismal sacraments were administered and the party moved to the adjoining room or the chapel for the life-long decision. An usher assisted the spectators while a page directed the mother. The bewildered child hesitatingly pointed to the objects before him. He was taken closer, he reached, he grasped the shining sparkling gold sword and the throng, in one voice loudly uttered 'to be a general!' So the child's career was selected and preparation must start at once."—Ancient History.

Today we equip ourselves and then select our occupation. Some are politically inclined with something better in mind. On Nov. 7, I am asking for your consideration as county treasurer for Wayne county.

Vote For ROBERT E. EVANS For Re-election to Congress

In four years there has been no public criticism of his record. He has voted right on every question affecting this district. He is identified with the farm bloc. He supported the Sweet bill for the relief of disabled soldiers. He strongly supported the soldiers' bonus at every step. He is in favor of strict enforcement of the Volstead Act. He voted to reduce normal income taxes from six to four per cent, thereby saving more than twenty million dollars to the ordinary taxpayer. He supported the emergency tariff, which aided Nebraska farmers. He advocated and voted for acts increasing powers of War Finance Corporation and Federal Farm Loan Board, thereby releasing millions for the relief of western farmers. Judge Evans is in a position to make his influence felt in the next congress as no new man can do.

Archie W. Stephens

Her Rheumatism Has Entirely Disappeared

The successful treatment of rheumatism by taking Tanlac is one of the outstanding features of this remarkable medicine. Thousands of people everywhere have testified relief from this torturous disease. Mrs. Sarah Beatty, 810 S. Main St., Muskegon, Iowa, says:

"For fifteen years I suffered torture from muscular and sciatic rheumatism, and my troubles kept multiplying. I tried every medicine, but it took Tanlac only a little while to overcome this rheumatism entirely and I've been in the very best health ever since."

When the digestive system, liver and kidneys are not working properly, uric acid and other impurities accumulate in the muscles and joints, causing rheumatism. Tanlac quickly overcomes this condition by enabling the vital organs to perform their functions properly. Get a bottle today, at any good druggist. 12121

Firestone GUM-DIPPED CORDS

Most Miles per Dollar

Everywhere You Hear It - Firestone Builds the Finest Cords

HARDLY a day goes by but some one goes out of his way to tell us that Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords are the best tires built.

Cords—on only Firestone builds them—will give you many more thousands of miles of wear. And for fall and winter driving there's nothing like them. The strong, resilient Firestone carcasses of gum-dipped cords, can stand the hardest punishment.

With the reputation Firestone Cords hold, it is not surprising that so many motorists in this community have made them standard equipment. The demand for Firestone Cords in the last few months has broken all records.

Prices were never so low as they are now. Perhaps never again can relief be sold so cheaply.

Decide now that you will get Most Miles per Dollar. Drop in any time and let's talk tires.
