NEW WATER SUPPLY
By Lead of Pipes Brought by City Council So That Use of New Well Will Be Hastened.

NEW MOTOR FOR PUMP HERE
Work of Sinking Well Delayed by Storm—Machine Was Required to Reach Right Depth

At the meeting of the city council Tuesday evening, it was decided to buy a car-load of pipes with which to make connection with the new water supply as soon as it is ready. A total of 150 feet of pipe was required and the new well has been ordered and is expected to arrive within two weeks. The motor for the new pump is also being ordered. It is expected that the new water supply will be turned into the city's mains for use by Jan. 1, next. It will be an occasion for rejoicing. The new supply promises to take more life water and less like the product of iron from the river. The iron in the water of the old wells and is used in the construction of buildings and making them fireproof. The new water is rated 100 per cent pure and is free from all kinds of iron, copper, lead and cadmium. Any one who needs iron—and many do—will be glad to see the old wells after the first of the year. The new water is said to be so wholesome that it will be used in the city. It will be a source of relief to all the people who have become addicted to water as a part of their regular diet.

If We Only Understood.
I hate to see such nice cars
And carry coal and wood.
I wonder what she thinks I am.
I wish she understood
That I can't have a car work so hot.
That's what the "gas" is for.
Oh, Ma's calling me right now.
If she only understood
That I can't have a car work so hot.
I hope she knows what's best. Oh!
If she only understood.

The Death of Poe's Wife.
She lay upon her lowly cot,
A dreary snowstorm raged without,
And death, the cruel, came
And drifted in the but about.
She was so young and beautiful,
She had seen just twenty fleeting
Days of life.

And on her lovely hands there tell
Her husband's meek and tender
Tears.
By his young wife's deathbed he Saw her.

And over her his coat he put,
The family cat by her feet he placed.
The fire was warm in the cold hut.
Thus trying to make up for it
For he had failed to do it here.
Only he knew how he loved her
This night, nation's grief she died.

Wayne Loses Game to Ponca High Friday

Wayne high school football team was represented by a crippled line-up last Friday, when they toured Ponca to engage that team, and lost by a score of 13 to 6. Peterson, Will and Randol, all valuable men, were unable to take part in this contest. However, filling in these vacancies were several members of the second team squad, Wayne made a good showing, and several times during the second half threatened to limit the scoring.

Sund started the contest by kicking off 60 yards, and Ponca returned the ball 20 yards. Wayne recovered the ball and advanced it to the 10 yard line, but was unable to make a yard. Wayne called upon Midler for a field goal, but the wind played havoc with his kicking, and it sailed far to one side of the goal posts. Ponca punted, after making gains totaling 15 yards to Lackey, who ran the ball back 15 yards. Wayne recovered the ball and advanced it to the 10 yard line, but was unable to make a yard.

MAN HERE TO PLAN FAIR BUILDINGS

I. D. Wood of Extension Department of State University, Meets With the Local Board.
Proposed Wayne County Fair Grounds and Buildings are Expected to Be Made a Model.

On invitation of the executive board of the Wayne County Fair association, I. D. Wood, an agricultural engineer of the extension department of the university of Nebraska, came here yesterday morning to inspect the proposed fair grounds with a view to planning the landscaping together with the construction and arrangement of buildings. Mr. Wood was very favorably impressed with the grounds and the enterprise and high expectations of those behind the movement. He expressed the belief that the local fair layout could and would be made a model for other ambitious counties to imitate.

It is planned to put up only three buildings during the coming year, locating them in a manner not to hinder addition of other buildings as the need and resources of the association develop. One of the proposed buildings will be devoted to fine arts, including those of artists and children's coloring and sewing exhibits. For next year and until another building is made feasible, this structure will handle the fine arts. The building will have four wings, each wing fifty feet long and thirty or forty feet wide. This will permit the display of different groups of exhibits. The building will have 600 feet of wall space.

Another building to be put up on the fair grounds will be a judge's hall. It will have 100 pens and a judge's office. The arrangement will look out for the convenience of additional exhibitors.

The third building in the original group will be used for poultry, and J. E. Hufford will employ his extensive knowledge of the subject to design all purposes to the best advantage.

Mr. Wood who returned to Lincoln today, will have a tentative sketch of the buildings made and will return to the university to get the plans completed by a state university landscape engineer, who will assist in laying out the grounds. The suggestion that will be used will be accompanied by the state university landscape engineer, who will assist in laying out the grounds.

Members of the board are encouraged to believe that the worthy fair enterprise will meet the hearty approval and support of all people in the county.

A Rule of Reason. Lincoln Journal: Those of us who opposed the election of Charles W. Bryan as governor had largely on the assumption that he would carry into that office the characteristics which he had displayed in local affairs. Chief of these characteristics was the habit of playing politics with public interests—not party politics, necessarily, but Charles Bryan politics. Perhaps the chief characteristic was or-run temperament which Mr. Bryan had displayed in the organized movements with which he had been associated. He has been able to work only with men content to be his humble errand boys. He formed his opinions without full information and deliberation and thereafter closed his ears and mind. It seemed evident that such a man could not make a safe or effective governor. In state matters he was sure to come in contact with men of ability, men with minds of their own. In municipal affairs owing to Mr. Bryan's refusal to accommodate his ideas in the least to those of other men equally able and possibly equally wise, this had meant wasteful conflict and the defeat of sound practical aims. Now this state of facts is precisely what we see in the state government. Mr. Bryan goes into office subject to the acts of a strongly republican legislature, elected by republican voters, and checked by republican attorney general, auditor, and other state officers. Even with the prestige of governor Mr. Bryan cannot expect these to turn their brains and wills to him. These must be rational accommodations on both sides. Unless Mr. Bryan can break the habits of a lifetime and do his part in a compromise the affliction will be in a deadlock for the next two years. Already we seem to see signs of a gathering ailment based on this expectation. Mr. Bryan and his friends are expressing grief that his hands are to be tied. This means that two years from now Mr. Bryan, after a public administration, will be claiming absolute on the ground that the wicked republicans thwarted him. That would be the playing politics which Mr. Bryan's history leads one to expect. But Nebraska cannot afford to have its governor spending his time making up a political administration, and the government carried on the best way possible. Moreover, those campaign posters of Mr. Bryan's did not include any of this. They said "Mr. Bryan will do this" and "Mr. Bryan will do that." Mr. Bryan tied on strings to his promised results. If he lets the voters see that he did not control the goods he sold them they will think they were deliberately April fooled by Mr. Bryan. The allusion to the voters will not work. Let us pray will not be attempted. Let us have labor, not alibis.

As a matter of fact, there is no need for any serious playing at cross purposes at the statehouse. The republican legislature will be as anxious as Mr. Bryan to reduce taxes and to increase the efficiency of state management. There is only one matter which could be called a party issue at the capitol! That is not the vote question—Every well informed person knows that this was almost purely a bunk issue. Mr. Bryan needed a bogman for his campaign. He chose the code as the thing that was newest and strangest to the people and on that he laid the burden of the sins of the world. The issue has served its purpose. It has helped elect Bryan. That done Mr. Bryan should be sane and sensible on that subject along with the rest. The average well informed citizen no less than the average well informed republican knows that the principle of the cabinet form of government is right. We have always had it at Washington, and no one wants to change it. Had its Nebraska form been called the cabinet, instead of the code, which was a name of mystery to them, the thing would have been familiar, and never have got into politics at all.

Each carrier will interview ten farmers on his route, making the selection himself with an idea of having the men average farmers, that is, not all of them the biggest nor all the smallest hog raisers, but having the ten represent an average as near as possible. The questions submitted are: Number of acres raised; number of spring litters; of fall litters; number of pigs saved in litter on the average; losses from hog cholera; losses from other causes. These figures are for the period six months to 1922. Then information is asked as to number of sows to farrow in first six months of 1923. The figures will be used to determine of the farmer as to the supply of hogs, and the government has no intention of getting the facts for information of the packers.

When free men go out to battle for the winning of peace they fight for as "there is no such thing as the winning of a war," said Mr. Owsley in his address.

"Death and ruin are the stakes in the game of war," he said; "ruin and death are the price men pay for peace whenever that spirit of destruction breaks in bonds. The ending of war is a great thing, but the beginning of peace is a greater thing; for with the coming of a just peace the march of mankind is taken up again, mankind going forward step by step to better things. Not as the day of the making of an end, but as the day of the beginning of a great endeavor, let us observe this anniversary.

We have honored our comradeship through honor to our dead, and through the last full measure of devotion to our disabled; and that devotion to our disabled shall maintain us until the last man broken in the service of his country in the world war be fully restored and set again upon the pathway of achievement and hope.

Commander Owsley was assisted by representatives of patriotic organizations in the laying of the stone, after which the flag was raised and saluted and benediction was offered by Dr. Charles L. Shepherd.

Among the articles deposited in the cornerstone were yesterday's and today's issues of state daily newspapers, containing an account of the program. Just prior to the program, a huge patriotic parade will traverse Lincoln streets.

They are gradually learning how to organize and how to make an effective drive toward their desired objectives. What do they want and what means do they intend to use in bettering their condition?"

Dean Davenport of the Illinois college of agriculture ascribes the dissatisfaction of the American farmer to one principal cause, the low price of what he has to sell and high prices for things he must buy.

Dean Davenport believes that union labor as well as combinations of capital are held responsible by the farmer for this situation. This means that when he takes political action his interests will be opposed to those of the workers in the towns and cities who are interested in high wages and high costs.

H. D. Lute, secretary of the Nebraska farm bureau federation, ascribes much of the discontent of the farmers to an unreasonably wide spread between the amount he receives for his product and the amount the consumer is obliged to pay. This difference, amounting to about 37 cents on the dollar in the United States, has been reduced to something like 10 cents in Denmark, where cooperation has long been in practice among the farmers. Those who believe that cooperative marketing will solve the troubles of the farmer are interested mainly in securing favorable laws governing cooperative enterprises and in breaking down all of the bars that shield monopoly. After securing a fair field and no favor it remains for the farmers to organize and so conduct their selling agencies as to yield them better conditions. After they have a clear road before them the farmers must use good business judgment in conducting their affairs. Like town men they must buy the best management talent available and must pay whatever is needed to retain the services of efficient men.

Now that we have had "dress up" week, "English week," "dried prune week," "take-a-bath week," and many other special weeks, it is not too late to have another "jog up week?"

Thanksgiving day will soon be here, and then only a few weeks until Christmas, and according to reports from the stores here, it will not be long before holiday trade will occupy chief attention.

Reports from commercial centers indicate that the volume of money in circulation and seeking investment has largely increased of late. This report is supported by the renewed efforts of companies to loan money on farm securities. The improved condition should be increasingly reflected in all industrial and trade circles.

One who devotes himself exclusively to his own business is likely to be regarded selfish. One who takes the time to inquire into other people's business is likely to be considered meddling and obnoxious. The ideal individual is the one who can manage his own affairs successfully with enough time and energy left to take a kindly and helpful interest in others.

Some Wayne women belong to so many clubs that there are not enough days in a week to accommodate all of them, and accordingly they are likely to be petitioned for more days in a week. And with longer weeks and longer years, the women would not be doing so well. The rearrangement back for enough days the women would still be very young. Then, two objects could be accomplished by inserting more days in a week.

It takes more than an article to make a business proposition well worth the first prices is not enough. Having lower prices is not enough. One must have alert, polite and persuasive assistance. He must let people know the facts through the channels of the newspaper. Persistent and consistent advertising is an indispensable aid, but it will not gether overcome feeble salesmanship or other deficiencies.

When you feel that things are all awry, that people are chameleons and pretenders, that the world is being fast consumed by lust and greed, that the world is getting close on the heels of everything and everybody, read over this refreshing and soothing sympathy by Charles To. To be a man of small means; to seek elegance rather than luxury; and refinement rather than fashion; to be worthy, respectable, and creditable; to be rich; to study hard, think quietly, talk gently, act frankly; to listen to stars and birds, to babes and sages, with open heart; to bear cheerfully and bravely, every adversity, hasty never. In a word, to let the spiritual, unbidden and unconscious, grow up through the common.

We cannot see the pressing need for official recognition of soviet Russia. The Russian form of government is a confessed failure. Its communities have been more unjust and tyrannical than the rule of the former czars. Russian people have been so oppressed and hampered by the dictates of wild radicals that their "haves" and "have-nots" have been reduced and their power...

ly and want have been greatly increased. They have been met with a helping hand from time to time by this country, and will continue to be helped. But if official recognition of Russia means endorsement of its crazy communism, recognition should be steadily withheld. In their failure, Russian radicals are being helped, but not the country, but would apparently at the same time fasten the same hateful communistic government on their benefactors. If we should follow their pernicious lead, where would they then go for charity? We should help distressed Russia, as we should help any distressed country, but we should not express approval of a communistic form of government that has proved such an atrocious failure.

TO ORGANIZE FOR CONTROL.

Reports from Washington indicate that the so-called progressive leaders in congress, encouraged by results of the late election, propose to organize to push forward a new legislative program, not so much in the line of amending it during the coming session, but in the belief that it may be adopted by the country and prove influential in the next presidential election. The things proposed are evidently designed to capture the support of different groups. The outstanding features of the proposed program are mentioned as follows:

Repeal or drastic revision of the Espionage and Sedition acts.
Revision of the tax laws, levying higher rates upon big incomes, both corporate and individual.

Recognition of the soviet Russian government.

Curtailing the powers of the federal reserve board.

Revision of the recently enacted tariff.

Amnesty for political prisoners.

Living wage guarantee for labor under the jurisdiction of the government.

Prohibition to curb the use of the injunction in labor disputes.

A more liberal policy in the extension of credit to farmers.

AS TO A "LIVING WAGE."

Among heads of labor unions and of employing institutions, the so-called "living wage" is receiving a wide range of attention. "Living wages" for one would not be a "living wage" for another. One man with frugal habits, with systematic habits of expansion and a carefully operating family, would have money and have a competence for the evening of life, whereas another, with the same wages but indifferent to economy, land forgetful of the future, will waste much, spend all he makes, always be hard up and never have any credit. One man carefully husbands his small earnings until he becomes well grounded and independent. Another scatters his earnings like the leaves of autumn, neglecting obligations and failing to build essential credit. He tries to ape foolish fashion and trail in the footsteps of a notorious capitalist.

A "living wage" for one is not a "living wage" for another. A so-called "living wage," as a result of the failure of labor organizations, would be more than some could earn, but not so much as others could earn. A fair wage for one is not a fair wage for another. Earning powers, due to training and heredity, are widely different. One man is full of energy and earnestness. Like the leaves of autumn, he undertakes it with enthusiasm. His mind is on his job. He thinks of the quantity and quality of his product. When he accomplishes a surprising feat that a disappointment. Another man lacks the ability or inclination to concentrate. He is indifferent to his work and seeks to do only enough to get by. His aim is apparently to see how little service he can render and still hold his job. One man is unprincipled another is overpaid. It is unfair to the former to compel him to work for the same wages drawn by the latter. And this is unfair vice versa, demanded by labor organizations, assaults merit and hampers production.

The "living wage" means nothing. It is a term that is used to get a man should not receive $50 a week.

simply because he has the inclination to fly high and spend what he gets. And a man who can earn $50 a week should not be dragged down to a lower level to accommodate an individual who is sluggish, inefficient and inefficient, with no extravagant and wasteful.

Republican Majority in the Legislature

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 14.—Fifteen state senators who served in the last legislature were successful in being re-elected at the general election in Nebraska last week. This quota represents nearly one-half of the entire roster of state senators, as there are thirty-three in the legislature of the Cornhusker state. Altogether there were eighteen nominees who stood for reelection. The three who apparently failed election are Geo. C. Humphrey of Grand Island, representing the Twenty-fourth senatorial district; Albert H. Miller, of Blair, representing the eighth senatorial district; and A. F. Sturm, of Nelawaka, representing the Second district.

In the state house of representatives, nineteen out of thirty candidates standing for reelection were successful. There are 100 seats in this branch of the state legislature. The entire list of senate reelections are republicans. The three defeat of men also are republicans. The house list of reelection candidates was divided into sixteen republicans and three democrats. The eleven who lost out for reelection numbered ten republicans and one progressive, who was rated a republican in the last legislature. The latter is Earle Hilliard, of Roscoe.

The places of the three defeated senate reelection incumbents will be filled in the next legislature by democrats as follows: W. B. Banning, of Union, representing the Second senatorial district; John Gumb of Fremont, representing the Eighth district and Soren M. Fries, of Danvers, representing the Twenty-fourth district.

On the face of latest returns the senate will be composed of twenty-one republicans and twelve democrats. The house will consist of fifty-nine republicans, thirty-nine democrats and two progressives. The latter are Obed Baskin of Norfolk, representing the Forty-ninth house district and Thomas W. Atchey of North Platte, representing the Eighty-ninth house district.

Last session of the legislature the state senate was composed of all republicans and democrats. It divided into ninety-six republicans and four democrats, so that the democratic net gain in this election stands at present count at twenty-two senators in the senate and thirty-five in the house, or a total of forty-seven in both houses.

Honoring Postmaster

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 14.—Postmaster General Robert Work, in conference with Nebraska and Iowa postal officials in Omaha, declared that the most offered employees to form so by former Postmaster General Hayes would continue the policy of the department under the republican administration. The new managing system, according to the postmaster general, consists of the encouragement offered employees to form social organizations to improve in the matter of correct footgear for carriers and those employees who are continually standing, the establishment of camps for the employees in close proximity to, if not actually in, postal buildings. The attendance from Iowa was small, due primarily to the almost impassable conditions of the roads.

Mr. Wilson's Countenance

Mark Sullivan in the Des Moines Register: The other day, walking along a street in the higher edge of Washington the writer had one of those glimpses of Wilson which residents of Washington occasionally have. He and Mrs. Wilson were in one of those electric cars which Washington women frequently drive. As your eyes looked through the window driver to the figure on the seat beside her, you recognized readily that the man had a slight physical disability. It was something that your mind did not remain more than one flashing second. What struck you, and penetrated your heart, and gave you an instant sense of being for a fugitive moment in contact with something tragically dramatic, was Mr. Wilson's countenance. It was something beyond and merely recognizing a former president of the United States if you had never seen the man, if you had no means of knowing who he was, nevertheless, you would have been aware that here was one of those big figures which cross the earth only once in a while, that there was a man whose countenance had been given its lines by great extraordinary experiences. The man's eyes were dim, and his face sometimes correspondingly devastating—a man who, as to his mind, had dug deeper and harder into facts than the average man, and whose spirit drove more distant adventures than is the case with ordinary men.

It was the face of a man who has both mounted higher into exaltation and descended farther into the depths—a countenance which has registered both the exultation of victory, and the despair of the vision frustrated. In it all there was the set-

Wayne Normal Wins From Central City

Wayne State Teachers College football team met and defeated the Central City College team on the open field last Saturday with a score of 17 to 12. Wayne made downs six times in the first quarter, gained eighty-four yards and scored touchdowns. Central City showed a tendency to kick off against the wind after each touchdown and this gave Wayne the advantage. Captain Leach was taken out in the first quarter to save his injured knee and McCoy took his place. Larson made several long runs and scored twice. Wayne gained a good percentage of the ground through the line and played a good defensive game. Kickthrough and McCoy broke up Central City's end runs and caused them losses.

The visitor's first score came on the end runs and smash after Wayne failed to kick from a twenty-five yard line. They scored again on a forty-five yard run by Marsh. Wayne then worked harder and Central City did not make other gains.

Wayne made downs twelve times and Central City, seven times. Wayne gained ten yards on downs from scrimmage and twenty-three yards on bases. Central City gained 109 yards. Each team punted several times. Wayne won the game out of seven passes and the visitors made neither of the two attempted.

The penalties for the local team were twenty-five yards for the opponents, eighteen yards.

Wayne will meet Peru here on Friday afternoon, Nov. 17, and this game will decide the Normal championship of the state. The two teams are about equal in records and an interesting contest is assured.

The lineup for last Saturday's game was as follows:

Contractor Has Gained 30 Lbs. on Tanlac

"Tanlac fixed me up so I gained thirty pounds. I have never seen or heard of such a wonderful medicine in all the sixty-six years of my life," declared Williams Mingeo, well-known retired contractor, 3840 Lafayette Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

"About two years ago I had a severe bladder trouble that left me in an awful run-down condition. My appetite went back on me and my stomach got so weak I could not eat and digest enough to give me any strength. I also had the worst sort of pains across the small of my back, and could not sleep.

"After picking up and soon after I started taking Tanlac, and now I have a fine appetite, sleep like a log and that tired, worn-out feeling has all gone. I could not do otherwise than recommend Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists. n10t

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher.

Maligned.

This world is quite as good a place as I have come across; and, too, the far famed human race is not a total lost. We have a hopeless lot of series who toil and toil away, to show all people and all tribes are sunk in slow decay. We have no true respect for Art, our view's a sordid thing; we'd rather drive a gangled cart than hear a tenor sing. Our souls are sunk in real estate, in fox and other trots; instead of striving to be great, we deal in vacant lots. Our homes all "lack artistry" and one is like the rest; no all have clocks that ring alarm, and bottles in a chest; we all have hats in the hall, our doorknob with rings and dings, and on the eastern parlor wall a "Yard of Roses" hangs. And thus we lead our sordid lives in our sordid homes, and go to kitchen with our wives, or read cheap low-brow pomes. I scarcely know why this is wrong, or why we are to blame, but highbrow authors, going strong, insist that it is a shame. We're missing of the commonplace, we're gross as we can be; and yet the bum old human race is good enough for me.

Course

When Mrs. Spick, a neighbor dame, had lost her milky cow, I called to say it was a shame, but said that dauntless frau, "Why worry? 'Twill be all the same, a hundred years from now it was for her a kitchen loss; she sold some milk and cheese, which helped to buy the Worcester saucy, the wienor, toast and teas; but patiently she bears her cross, and smiles at fate's decrees. Her logic's sound, and her wisdom that much must allow; but still it makes her outlook bright, and soothes her furrowed brow; her griefs will be forgotten quite a hundred years from now. And so will yours and so will mine, and those of every man, and putting up a feeble whine is but a child's plan; our eyes should waste no precious brine throughout life's little span. It is in vain to cry, "Alas," to mine a sinful error; like stable all life's ills will pass beneath time's speeding plow; your choicest we will out no grass a hundred years from now.

Catholic Taste.

It's fortunate that people differ, and don't agree in things they like; Pope likes his hitters somewhat stiffer than would appeal to Rube or Mike. Although it's sometimes broadly hinted that Old Slout tales are a disgrace, if only highbrow stuff were printed, this world would be a sad old place. I'm oft denounced for reading fiction of no degree, of no good aim, that has no charm of style or diction, or moral worth a tinker's blame. And yet I read the stately pages, made through volumes large and thick, until I weary of their pages, and turn to something with a kick. I walk a while with smooth derivatives, with Garter, Clerk or Sherlock Holmes, and find in them the right correctives for stalesness brought by heavy tomes. A little while their graft I follow, along the trail of crime a creep; but soon I find such fiction hollow, and turn to something wise and deep. And thus my appetite grows keener for every literary meal; how good is roast beef after wienor! How fine hot dog when tired of wienor! All books are by some critics smitten, some years for gems and some for junk; my taste embraces all that's written, the good and bad, the great and puny.

Good Influence.

While singing, angel-throated, I cleared my place of weeds, and all the neighbors noted my wise and righteous deeds. The neighborhood was shabby, much rubbish was in view, with here an old dead ladbay, and there a kangaroo. The houses were unpainted, as were the gates and stiles, and all the air was tainted by many garbage piles. I said, "Though all my neighbors may let their yards grow up with weeds, some useful labors, and clear away my trash. I'll make my place so nifty that, passer-by will stand, in group of ten or fifty, and say it beats the band." My deeds the neighbors noted, and cried, in terms refined, "That hard, so fat and bloated, can't leave us all behind; if he, in hat and sweater, can make things neat and clean, we too can make things bet; we, too, will work and sweat." And so they all got busy, and labored through the day; in barrow and in

Lizzie they hauled the trash away. And now when strangers wander along our village street, they gaze it and mark and ponder; they say we can't be beat. They say, "This town is giving new curves in human bliss; there is some sense in living in such a burg as this."

If Winter Comes.

If winter comes, and snow abounds, and there are novelties in sight, some chaps will utter doleful sounds as they traverse the frozen street. "We didn't lay in wood or coal before the balmy days were past, and now that arctic tempest rols, our beads are frozen hard and fast. We didn't get the cold prepared for this thingy slide, as oft they've said; we've only palm beach clothes to wear, as though the drifting snow we skid. We didn't get the holes and cracks through which the fierce winds enter in, we didn't bank our divers shacks, our spuds are frozen in the bin." If winter comes the prudent man will cry serenely, where he stands, "Now shriek as loudly as you can, O bitter frost from arctic lands! My harp's stocked with wholesome saw and pies, the King all men desire, and with my bread and I will saw I'll feed up wood and feed the fire. If winter comes we'll see once more how prudence wins or heedless sloth; it keeps the lean wolf from the door, sustains our aunts with chicken broth. If winter comes the thrifless chap will say our government's a fake; he has no mush to feed his man, the while his neighbor lives on cake.

God's Country.

God's country is in very truth, the country where I spent my youth. It is a bleak and rocky place whose climate is a rank disgrace; six months you freeze, six months you bake, and every rainbow is a fake. But there I gambled in the snow, when I was young, long, long ago; and there I fished in shady streams, in summer time, and dreamed my dreams—and there I had a bunch of friends who loved me, with no selfish ends. Now I infer a goodly number, when spring is smiling all the time; my trees are bearing figs and doves and I have gaudy lemon groves; no sizzling heat deforms my trees, no gales go whooping by; the skies are nearly always blue, a standard ocean is in view, and all the heart of man could ask seems lavished on me where I bask. "God's country," people say to me, when first this pleasant land they see. And I exult with them a while, then I remember "God's country," with a smile. But in my dreams I still go back along a dim and winding track to that far region where the snow is on the ground six months or so, and where a pleasant day's as rare as antlers on a polar bear. And having reached that region dear, in dreams I cry, "God's country's here!"

Trying to Stand Alone.

Omaha World-Herald: A 14-year-old boy shot himself in the hand while playing with a rifle. With a handkerchief he bound up the wound and explained to his parents that the handage was coming "just a scratch." The boy's father, tetanus so tortured the leg that within 24 hours he confessed to the gun accident. Now the lad is dead. And the children's parents are in a probable punishment was the motive for the boy's secrecy. The boy did not know the danger of tetanus from a gun wound. Neither do his father and mother would have tended his wound without even scolding him. Perhaps the youngsters can never learn to what extent their parents will go in helping one of their children in trouble. From the child mind to that of the adult is long stretch; the natural impulse of the child doing what he thinks is wrong is to keep it from dad or mother. Perhaps it is too much to expect otherwise. The best that parents can hope for, is that they might have the confidence of their children so that in trouble the child turns to them first. The self-wisdom of this lad who tried to bear his mistake alone was mainly, though tragic, like many of his elders who, in trouble, fear to consult a friend, he paid the price of trying to stand alone. We all need some help, and seldom we need it more than when we blunder.

The Mandate.

Lincoln Journal: Governor has elected C. W. Bryan governor under pledge to abolish the present administrative code system and to distribute its functions among the elective state officers.

Nebraska then elects, with one exception, the republican candidates for state officer below governor.

Then finally Nebraska elects a republican legislature, bound by the platform pledge to strengthen the existing administrative system. The legislature needs strengthening, but to stick to the principle of the code.

Being interpreted in the bright light of the morning after, these results, so conflicting on their face, have a meaning as clear as crystal. The mandate of the people is plainly as follows:

We want Mr. Bryan for governor. Then we want matters fixed so that if he should succeed in his plan to distribute the governorship among

Where Were Girl's Parents?

Portland Oregonian: A girl of 15 attended a "cockie" party that began at a dance hall just outside the city, afterwards went with a young man to a hotel, the name of which she cannot recall, where she was made unconscious for many hours by a hypodermic injection, then went home and tried to commit suicide. This is an incident in the life of a Portland girl. The police bureau is investigating. But why was a 15-year-old girl out after curfew and at a dance hall? It may be the police bureau would better investigate that case and more of the kind.

Progressive Party Vote is Unimportant

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 16.—Unofficial observers estimated tonight that the progressives of Nebraska, who organized a new political party at Grand Island last winter, had polled approximately 5 per cent of the vote cast in last Tuesday's general election.

Roy M. Harrop, the party's candidate for congress from the Second district, however, estimated that the progressives cast 12 per cent of the vote of the state.

Nine of the progressive candidates for state office running on that ticket alone, was successful, however, except two state representatives. Fourteen successful major party candidates for the state legislature, however, were also nominees of the progressives.

About 320,000 persons voted for United States senator, unofficial returns indicate, based on a total of 371,679 from 1,903 of the state's 1,921 precincts. Of the 271,879, R. B. Howell, republican, received 216,970, compared to 148,909 for his democratic opponent, Senator G. M. Hitchcock, and 9,310 for Rev. J. L. Beebe, of Omaha, progressive. This figure for Mr. Beebe is less than 5 per cent of the total, but observers said it probably does not include all the votes he received in the 1,903 precincts reported.

To Try Again

Rev. Mr. Beebe said tonight he considered that the progressives, who declared for government ownership of the railroads and opposed the federal reserve banking system, would be better organized for the next election and that stems to bring this about would be taken soon. He declined to estimate the percentage of the vote they polled, declaring he would wait until he had received further reports.

"The prohibitionists' vote cannot be estimated, however, as all of their candidates were also running on major party tickets, with one exception, that of Mrs. E. Lucile Barton, of Lincoln, who received but a small vote for congress, as compared with their republican and democratic opponents.

Unofficial returns show that the republicans elected state senators in all but the Second, Third, Eighth, Fourth, Thirteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-third, Twenty-eighth and Thirty-third districts. The vote in the Twenty-fourth was close and the apparent victory of G. C. Humphrey, republican, over S. M. Fries, democrat, may be upset by the official count.

Of the state senators, three were progressive party nominees, as well as candidates on majority party tickets. They are John Wittes, republican and progressive, in the First district; J. H. Reitererath, democrat and progressive, in the Tenth, and Henry Heaver, republican and progressive, in the Twelfth.

In the house two republicans, running also as progressives, were successful, while one, A. N. Mathers, in the Ninety-eighth, was the nominee on three tickets, republican, democratic and progressive, without opposition.

Eight democrats who also were nominated by the progressives for the house, were successful.

Father and Son Elected

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 16.—The next session of the Nebraska legislature will see sitting as members of the state house of representatives for the first time in Nebraska history a father and son. They respectively are Lincoln L. G. Yochum of Ashland, from the Thirtieth district, and C. E. Yochum of Talmage, representing the Fifth district. Both are democrats.

lows: Straight democrats, 149; straight republicans, 129; 149; straight democrats, 11; straight democratic majority over all, 9. Eight of the greenbackers will however, vote with the democrats, and three with the republicans, thus giving a democratic majority of 25.

Don't be fooled by this fine weather. First thing you know a regular old blizzard will come smacking down from Montana and then if you haven't got the chinks in your shanty stopped up you'll be apt to be mad at yourself. If he speak thus oracularly for the benefit of those who have not passed a winter in Nebraska.

Basic Conditions Improving.

New York Times: It is noteworthy that fewer investments are being made in tax empts, and that more money is being started in October, with sales of public bonds in October were $69,806,568, against $125,126,375 last year. How sharp the change is appears from the fact that the total sold to November 1 there was an increase of $100,000,000. On the other hand, 758 profit seeking enterprises were started in October, with aggregate capital of $65,147,390. The growth appears from comparison with 684 companies started in the same month of last year, with capital of $503,394,000.

Election is Warning to C. O. P.

St. Paul Pioneer: It is the republican party is wise enough to profit by what plainly is intended as a warning, it may, during the next two years, re-establish itself in the condence which awoke it into power in 1920. But if benevolent leadership persists in the course it has taken since that memorable landslide, the results two years hence become highly speculative.

Lincoln Journal: The Canadian sales tax is the subject of endless discussion. The manufacturers have started a movement to amend the law to secure equality between the manufacturer who sells direct to the retailer and the one who sells to the jobber. The whole purpose of the movement appears to be to fasten the entire sales tax upon the consumer, fixing it so that it will be difficult for the seller to absorb the tax even if he should so desire.

Elgin Youth Is Accidentally Shot

Elgin, Neb., Nov. 14.—Accidentally shot in the back of the head with a .22 calibre rifle, Louis, the 15-year-old son of Joseph Klink, Klink three miles southeast of here, was taken to an Omaha hospital yesterday. His condition is not believed to be serious. However, it was thought possible that he might die more than he appeared and that it was best to guard against complications by taking him to Omaha.

The accident occurred yesterday when the boy was hunting rabbits with a companion of about his own age, the son of Joseph Stoltz. Both boys raised up just as Stoltz fired again, the bullet striking him a glancing blow in the back of the head. It penetrated the skull and came to a stop in the brain, it was noted that the brain was touched.

Dr. W. A. Peterson of this place was called and he found that the boy was partly paralyzed.

The Certificate Plan Of Marketing Hogs

(Everett C. Brown, President the National Live Stock Exchange, delivered at the convention of the Institute of American Meat Packers at Chicago, Wednesday, Oct. 11, 1922.)

The production of live stock and the distribution of the manufacturing product to the consuming public is the most important industry in the United States. We are a food producing nation. Our prosperity is largely dependent on agriculture and the stock is fundamental to a successful agriculture.

Through the medium of meat and milk producing animals which utilize abundant crops of corn, clover and alfalfa, we add fertility to the land and increase its productive capacity. We transport from the remotest parts, a concentrated product at low expense in proportion to its value. The live stock industry of the United States represents approximately ten billion dollars in wealth. It has almost unlimited possibilities for development if we would give it the consideration it deserves.

Who are engaged in the business of converting meat animals into a product ready for the consumers' table, reaching out at all times to find new agencies of distribution, are performing an invaluable service not only for the producers but for every citizen of the nation. Because of the efficiency of your business—the more as well as the rich of this nation can have meat, which scientific investigations have shown to be an essential part of the diet for a strong, virile and intelligent people.

In the development of the live stock industry we should not neglect the methods of production and improving quality, but should also surround it with every possible safeguard. Animals kept in large numbers under more or less artificial conditions are susceptible to numerous diseases. Fortunately we have been able to successfully cope with most of these. We have had severe outbreaks of foot and mouth disease. The United States is one of the few nations of the world which has been successful in completely eliminating this disease. It has been done through the leadership of an efficient bureau of animal industry with state sanitary boards and live stock men-cooperating. Today, the live stock agent's fever has been nearly suppressed and hog cholera is well under control.

Consumers have most to fear now is tuberculosis. I do not need to tell you men engaged in the packing business about the losses caused by the ravages of this disease in the hog industry. You have first hand information of its ravages and the destruction of meat it causes but you are not familiar with the picture in total of the plan of the nationwide campaign to eliminate it, which has already been successful in reducing materially the percentage of cattle affected.

You are fully aware of the fact that we have the most thorough system of federal meat inspection of any country in the world. The present system was put into operation in 1906. The records of the division of meat inspection show that tuberculosis in all hogs killed under federal inspection in the United States has increased from 1.0 per cent in the year 1908 to 14.3 per cent retained during the year 1921. In other words an average of one out of seven hogs in the United States has tuberculosis while but 70,804 hogs or one-fifth of one per cent of the 39,416,439 hogs slaughtered under federal inspection last year were wholly condemned for tuberculosis, the percentage retained (14.3 per cent) is the result of the one out of two thousand carcasses of cattle and one thousand carcasses of hogs wholly condemned. Last year, 2,200,000 other thousands representing the loss from sterilization and heads condemned we have a total of four thousand carcasses of cattle and hogs made practically worthless because of the ravages of the tubercular bacilli during one year. It would be impossible to slaughter the one out of two thousand wasting feed because of weakened vitality due to tuberculosis but the loss from that source would exceed the loss from meat condemned. It is apparent that there is a tremendous waste resulting from the inclusion of meat which is imperiled unless something can be done to relieve the situation.

It is a conservative estimate to figure that at least $40,000,000 of meat of tuberculosis and if the tremendous amount of meat that this same value would mean in lower price values of meat to the consumer.

It was because of this that the Chicago Live Stock Exchange, the United Live Stock Yards company and nearly all packing companies in Chicago contributed funds and organized a sanitary committee during 1915 for the inauguration of a campaign of education having for its purpose the ultimate eradication of tuberculosis in the live stock. It has been my pleasure to serve as chairman of this committee and with Thomas E. Wilson and E. R. Gentry of Armour & Company, the executive committee, we have given much time and consideration to the progress of this campaign. After financing the live stock services of H. P. Smith as commissioner, who has taken active charge of the campaign since its inception. Mr. Smith was formerly professor of animal husbandry in the Universities of Nebraska and Minnesota, later having charge of a campaign for more and better stock in the northwest for the late James H. Hill.

The success of the Chicago Live Stock Exchange in their campaign on the eradication of tuberculosis in meat food animals was so pronounced that the chairman of that committee who was president of the National

Live Stock Exchange, recommended to the convention held in Cleveland, June, 1921, that a national sanitary committee be organized so that local sanitary committees be organized in each of the large terminal markets to combat this disease. This plan was unanimously approved by the convention in 1921, and the present powerful national live stock sanitary board was organized and at the same time a perfect organization has been formed in the following markets: Chicago, St. Paul, Sioux City, Omaha, St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph and Milwaukee. These markets are combating the disease along the same plan as originally adopted in Chicago and are "clearing" through the National Live Stock Exchange Sanitary Board.

The tremendous results which have already been accomplished I will comment upon briefly. Each of the markets has a live stock commissioner whose business it is to follow the diseased herd through the market at which the stock arrives; the shipper of the live stock receives a notification where the herd is diseased, and the live stock commissioner from each market is undertaking field work in visiting practically all of the parties in the premises. This work is being done systematically by the different live stock exchanges and the National Live Stock Exchange in creating the definite plague can hardly be estimated.

One outstanding plan that is working out even better than anticipated in Chicago is that of placing the control of the inspection under the local exchange organization, who have established a plan of killing these animals under contract, which obligates the stock producer in the United States who owns these animals, thousands of dollars more than he would have received under the present method of the slaughtering of the meat. Under these contracts the meat from the animals is put up at auction and is sold to the highest bidder.

Publicity work was undertaken to bring the facts relating to losses, methods of control, etc., to the attention of the farming public through the medium of the agricultural press and the tracing of diseased shipments to the farms after which the owners were notified and directions given for the proper handling of the animals.

When our educational work was started there was a fund of but $75,000 provided by congress for combating tuberculosis, notably the available as federal incentive for reacting cattle slaughtered. The various states did not have a total of more than $100,000. It was urged before congress that a much larger fund be provided and that provision be made to reimburse the farmer for a part of the cost of the slaughtered, suggesting to the agricultural committee of the house the advisability of paying the balance of the loss conditional upon the states paying at least as much. This was incorporated in the bill as passed five years ago and it remains unchanged. Through our efforts a delegation of eighteen representative farmers and breeders from as many states went to Washington to meet the agricultural committee of the house and an appropriation of $500,000 was granted for tuberculosis eradication during the year 1921. We have arranged for similar hearings each year securing an increase to $1,000,000 for 1919, $1,300,000 for 1920, $2,600,000 for 1921, and $2,875,000 for 1922.

I think it is only fair that this convention meat packers should know the results of the work that has been secured the tremendous increases in the federal appropriations. Representatives of the National Live Stock Exchange have appeared each year before the appropriations committee of the house and of the senate, together with representatives from the various state commissioners from the different breeding associations and have presented facts to these committees which have resulted in these tremendous increases in the federal appropriations; and at each session of the legislature of the different states the commissioners have presented facts before the state agricultural committees that have secured large increases in the state appropriations. The result of the federal law and educational work number of states made appropriations and these have reached a total of $4,500,000 in the year 1922. Approximately 70 per cent of this fund of $4,500,000 is used to pay indemnity and 30 per cent for the salaries and expenses of the various state and federal veterinarians devoting their entire time to the testing of herds, the appraisement of reactors, the supervision of their slaughter and the disinfection of stables contaminated with the germs of tuberculosis.

On September 1, 1922, there was a total of 244,871 heads comprising 2,892,778 cattle under federal and state supervision for the tuberculosis; 10,193 hogs comprising 1,791,651 cattle that had passed one or more clean tests and 18,114 heads comprising 40,428 cattle fully accredited as free from the disease. The accredited herd plan was launched as a nation-wide movement at a meeting of the representatives of the various state breeders associations. Federal and state veterinarians, called by our committee and held in the rooms of the Saddle and Siroloin club, Union Stock Yards, Chicago, December 3, 1917. It has served a valuable purpose in freeing from tuberculosis a large number of herds nearly pure bred during the past four years. We have felt that inasmuch as tuberculosis has been carried to all parts of the country through the movement of breeding cattle, that first attention should be given to these herds.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, the U. S. bureau of animal industry with forty-seven states cooperating, tuberculin tested a total of 195,220 herds comprising 1,220,000 cattle of which 1,068,926,909 or 85.9 per cent reacted. Nearly all of these have been slaughtered and the stable disinfectant of these reactors 27 per cent were pure bred and 73 per cent grade cattle. The average appraisal on these reactors including pure bred was $10.00. The state average value of salvage received by the owners was $17.55 per head. The average federal indemnity paid was $23.76 per head. The average state indemnity $30.42 per head making total including salvage of $77.78 received by the owner or 70 per cent of the value of the reactor.

Nearly as many cattle have been tuberculin tested during the past year as during the entire four years preceding. The success of this campaign has been widespread. This increase is due to (1) the general use of the intradermal or tail test, (2) the testing of swine by intensive methods, (3) a stronger public sentiment and (4) much larger appropriations, all of which our committee has been steadfastly advocating during the past two years.

This educational work is financed by the local exchanges, stock yard companies, packing companies and tributary to these markets. Recently eight railroad companies, two clearing house associations and at the St. Joseph market the Stock Yards bank have made contributions. Fifty per cent of the Chicago fund and fifteen per cent of the funds at each of the other markets is contributed to the sanitary fund of the National Live Stock Exchange of which Mr. Smith is commissioner) for the purpose of coordinating the activities at all markets. While this educational and promotional work is entirely distinct from the government work of the organizations, it is principally of testing cattle, supervising the slaughter of reactors, disinfecting premises, paying indemnity to the reactor owners, and cooperating to the fullest extent for the purpose of reducing and eventually stamping out tuberculosis. The work of the organizations has been found that 30 per cent of the cattle herds in some of the northern states are infected with this disease. It is found in every state of the union but it seems to be much worse in the northern states where cattle originating from or improved by foreign importations have been more or less closely confined making the conditions more favorable for the spread of the infection.

The most common source of tuberculosis in swine is milk from infected cows, droppings, dead carcasses of cattle, slaughter house offal and chickens which have died from tuberculosis are also causes of this disease among swine.

The government and state work of that of private veterinarians in testing cattle, slaughtering reactors under government supervision, etc., is no doubt chiefly responsible for the decline in the percentage of cattle retained for tuberculosis in the United States during recent years. Of all cattle including steers killed under federal inspection during 1916, 2 per cent were retained for tuberculosis. Deducting the reactors designated as retained which they were not tested it is found that during the year ending June 30, 1922, only two per cent of the total kill of cattle were retained for tuberculosis, but not wholly condemned. Charges against all hogs slaughtered under federal inspection in the United States during the year 1921 amount to nearly 10 cents per 100 pounds live weight. At a meeting recently held in Chicago attended by representatives of all the large packers and a large number of the smaller concerns, this matter was presented to them for consideration. It was admitted that they could afford to pay this bonus of 10 cents per 100 pounds live weight on hogs free from tuberculosis and they complied with the recommendation. Under this plan, such hogs sell on (Continued on Page Three.)

the open market for what they will bring. After the sale is consummated, the owner or his commission firm, presents a certificate, stipulating that the hogs come from a certified tuberculosis-free county, and an additional 10 cents per hundred over the market price is added to the price agreed upon. In view of the fact that a large number of counties have made appropriations for tuberculosis eradication campaigns, it would seem fair that this work should be properly recognized in this manner. It is already serving as an excellent stimulus to this county work, which offers such great possibilities in the eradication of tuberculosis.

the owner of the hogs at attending meeting felt so keenly the necessity of offering a bonus of 10 cents per hundred that in addition to the plan provided for hogs marketed from certified counties, that they also offer a ten cents per hundred bonus from hogs where the owner warrants that his herd of hogs was free from tuberculosis, and that the proof of the freedom of the shipment from tuberculosis be determined by killing the hogs separately at the local packing house, and where the herd was found free that that herd should also receive 10 cents per hundred over and above the market price. This plan, however, was not concurred in by all of the packers represented and where the original plan of paying the bonus to hogs from certified counties would at the present time entail no financial obligation on the part of the packer as there are no certified counties in this state at the present time. The other plan, however, if adopted, would immediately cause 10 cents to be paid to the owner of the hogs a bonus that would bring him some financial remuneration at once.

From my experiences in the work of eradicating tuberculosis, I believe that this bonus plan will be the best practical demonstration to the hog raisers of the United States; that there is a real incentive for him to make his drove clean, and the ultimate effect will be that every farmer who raises hogs will want this certificate per hundred over.

During the past year over one hundred counties in the United States have organized campaigns co-operating with the federal and state government for the testing of all breeding and dairy cattle within the county. While to date no county has been certified by the government as being free from tuberculosis a number of these counties have completed the first test on all cattle. For example, Michigan and Wisconsin each have five counties once tested, Nebraska has four counties once tested, Missouri two counties and Kansas and Illinois each one county. Some of these counties are being completely tested the second time and will no doubt qualify for certification during the coming year. The regulations as to eligibility have not yet been prescribed by the U. S. bureau and the state cooperating, but will be at the December meeting of the U. S. livestock sanitary association. It is probable that before the end of the year a considerable number of counties will be certified as free from tuberculosis.

From tuberculosis practically all breeding and dairy cattle must have passed two clean tests one year apart with a small percentage of infected animals and Kansas and Illinois each one county. Some of these counties are being completely tested the second time and will no doubt qualify for certification during the coming year. The regulations as to eligibility have not yet been prescribed by the U. S. bureau and the state cooperating, but will be at the December meeting of the U. S. livestock sanitary association. It is probable that before the end of the year a considerable number of counties will be certified as free from tuberculosis.

In Illinois fifteen county boards have made appropriations of approximately $4,000 each for inaugurating this work. The amount of money of which appropriations have been made since the bonus plan was announced. In some of these Illinois counties where the bonus is comparatively light a county may become certified within two years. In some of the northern counties where the infection is heavy it will take longer. The work to date in one of these counties shows that 40 per cent of the cattle were infected with tuberculosis. It will necessarily take a number of years, to eliminate this scourge from such a county.

Mr. Emery, dairy and food commissioner of Wisconsin, recently made the statement that the offering of this bonus will be a material aid in the enforcement of the law which prohibits the sale of milk and whey at creameries and cheese factories in that state. These laws have not been well enforced in any state because of the lack of public sentiment. This bonus is certain to create local interest in making a county free from tuberculosis.

The amount of loss from tuberculosis is insignificant as compared with the thousands of people who succumb to, or are incapacitated by, consumption. It compares with the germs of bovine tuberculosis, for the most part through the drinking of infected milk. It has been estimated that 70 per cent of the cases of glandular tuberculosis, 60 per cent of the cases of abdominal tuberculosis and 80 per cent of the general tuberculosis in the human family comes as a result of drinking milk infected with the germs of bovine tuberculosis. It is conservative to say that when tuberculosis is eradicated from cattle it will be reduced 60 per cent in the human family.

Bank Seeks Ruling On Stock Taxation

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 11.—Argument was heard in supreme court Thursday on the case of the bank under the new revenue law, bank stock is taxable as intangible at a fourth of its value or at its full value at the option of the holder before the court on the appeal of the Security State Bank of Dakota county from a decision of Judge Graves that bank stock must be taxed at its full value.

The state bankers' association is understood to be back of the appeal. The appellee was represented by E. Warner and Sidney T. From, while Assistant Attorney General Charles H. Reed appeared for the state. The state admits that the language is not quite as clear as it might be in the law, but that the intent of the legislature was not to make this stock intangible.

The 1921 session enacted a law that said, among other things, that all property not expressly exempted shall be subject to taxation on the basis of actual valuation. The question is whether bank stock was exempted from this law.

Business.

Sioux City Journal: Merchants and manufacturers in the middle west according to the October report of the eighth federal reserve district, are doing more business. The gains in sales are substantial in some of the most important lines and the volume of the trade increase sufficiently given by the manufacturers to be satisfactory to create much more optimism than had been noted since deflation first hit the country. Steel production in the middle west produced 1,000,000 tons in October, a substantial increase in the past week. Orders for structural iron and steel promises an active building campaign throughout the country and will mean a large employment of money in circulation. Costs of iron and steel are increasing at big prices and foundries and the steel trade of Ohio is advancing.

It may surprise many persons that western farmers are in good shape financially in various sections. One Chicago bank which deals extensively with agricultural leaders reported that borrowing farmers anticipated their installments due November 1 to that extent of fully 90 per cent. This refers both to the number and the amount of payment made. Mortgages will not be long if they are set up, but what the middle west farmers in the corn and wheat belt want now more than anything else is the opportunity to transform grain into cash. This they cannot do because no one will pay for the grain that seems destined to remain on the farm or in the small elevators because of the car shortage. In the big hauling rush that has been going on now for several weeks with all the big railroads straining to meet the emergency situation, isolated sections are neglected and there the farmers are suffering. They are not paying their notes before they are due.

Merchants are selling goods, and of course, customers are buying them. But a new kind of buyer has arrived, acting as eastern buyers. This is one who demands goods of better grade and higher price, yet it is pointed out that the idea is one of a demand, rather than a reason to cut this way—that the better quality goods, even if they do cost more, will last longer and give better service. There is nothing new in this except that more persons are doing it now whereas before the discriminating buyer for the most part, was one who always wanted the best and did not count the cost.

Central Ohio cities built up on the rubber industry are in for booms, according to plans announced by manufacturers, who say they will expand and expand their plants on large scale. News comes from Akron that several tire manufacturers there will add units to their already extensive plants, increasing both pay rolls and production. This is due to the increased production of motor cars and the lowered prices, which encourage extensive buying.

Buyers of cars for all descriptions continue to be placed by railroads. Single car builders have orders for thousands of "coast" and "freight" cars and are using vast amounts of material and employing hundreds of men to meet them.

Cotton is higher, due to heavy shipments for export. England has made a heavy demand upon American cotton and so have other European countries. Spain alone recently purchased more than 300,000 bales of American cotton, and Japan also is buying heavily. Grains are off somewhat because of Argentine and Canadian competition.
