world. Men's hearts must be touched. To bridge the chasm which separate in so many cases classes, nations and races a religion of universal love alone is adequate. No religion that can be called a religion of nations, of 'balance of power' can successfully put an end to strife. Rather, the whole spirit of nations must be changed. A basis for national reconciliation must be found. It is scarcely necessary to point out that the principles found to be essential to those of the religion of Jesus. Good doctrine in these days of national unrest.

The Lord helps those who help themselves. Too many leave everything to the Lord, and it isn't fair.

That onions are strong physically but weak socially, as some one has written, will be accepted without dispute.

The Herald understands water from the new source of supply, will be made into the most palatable of the week. Then any pressing stomach repairs or replacements may be undertaken without fear of damaging attacks from over-charges of food.

Pondering over ancient history is pastime and recreation, but it is not so important as thought and energy devoted to solution of pressing present-day problems, and getting the best work out of the day and hour harmoniously. We don't care so much how Napoleon managed to scale the Alps as we do how he got going to get to the top without another sinking up-hill.

Business communists who brazenly parade their contempt for religion, convince the world that they have no religion, and we must not let them develop spiritual ideals without a foundation of spiritual truths—without a belief that eternity lies just ahead and that as one thinks and lives so will be one's capacity for understanding, achievement and happiness when transition takes place.

The honest critic is essential to improvement and progress; whereas the glib sycophant is a pusillanimous peddler of poison. The critic helps the truth to better itself, and in so doing disease and destroys but never builds. Without criticism we would become so self-satisfied that we would stagnate, and then our nation would be a mass of bachelors and bachelorettes. We would become mere barnacles, hindering instead of helping progress. Criticism sometimes stings, but it is necessary to grow wholesome and constructive influences. On the contrary, professional gossipers snatch conclusions from remote suspicion, and then in proper coloring—whispering to their neighbors with exercise of utmost care to do all possible harm without any semblance of good.

People who don't know will or course assume that the State Normal needs no new buildings. They would accept, without question, any ground that opposes expenditure of public funds. As a matter of fact, the dormitories at the Wayne school are overcrowded and are manifestly lacking in the essentials of comfort and convenience. Many students find it necessary to room in private homes, and it is probable that one who opposes the building of new dormitories, would favor the improvement if it were from any institution and if he expected it to grow and extend its usefulness. We would like to see a legislative committee dispatched to Wayne to make personal investigation of the dormitories, and see if it would not be advisable for a great estate like Nebraska to furnish adequate housing quarters for its ambitious young people.

People wonder why their bills for electricity are painfully high at the end of the month, but they think enough about the cost during the month to turn out unnecessary lights. We went into a Wayne store at 1 o'clock one morning and found the proprietor, but he was out. Twelve lights were burning. We went back in an hour and the proprietor was still out. But the lights were not. He still burning. He decided that if the proprietor had been present he would have at least reduced the number of lights. At 10:15 we found the proprietor in, but to our amazement the twelve lights were burning as hard as ever. If any artificial lighting were needed at this time of day, it would be for any event greatly exceeded requirements. Proprietors should set an example in turning out unnecessary lights, and employ electric practices the same good habit in the interest of economy. If store clerks will carefully avoid such waste, they will help reduce operating costs, and the merchant can avoid the common. The clerk who is on the alert to turn out unnecessary lights, prevent excessive fuel consumption and respond quickly and cheerfully to wishes of customers when the proprietor is out as well as when he is present, will more nearly show himself or herself indispensable.

HELPFUL CRITICISM

We had in the Herald recently two criticisms which, but which we would consider constructive and helpful. In an editorial a few weeks ago, the Herald advised the railroad company to speed up its trains. The superintendent suggests that consideration should be given to the fact that the heavy Christmas traffic and unusual transfers and accommodation of passengers wishing to make connections, necessarily caused delay. The railroad has a large task and deserves much credit, but they will admit that a little criticism stimulates effort and promotes better service. It is a source of satisfaction to note that trains, due to hold mainly to abatement of the holiday rush, have been running on time lately.

Another criticism by a local citizen and appearing last week, contrasted the conduct of two students on a campus. One of which was contrasted from the state university gave her seat voluntarily to an elderly lady, while another girl student from the Wayne State Normal refused to share her seat with a lady having a baby in her arms. This criticism from a man who is keenly interested in proper student development, did not make the comment to reflect unfavorably on the State Normal or to give special credit to the state university. It just happened that the girl of the latter university was on her way back to the university, and that the one who drew a fire of resentment, was on her way to Wayne. In behavior, Wayne State Normal students will compare favorably with those of the university or any other school. The contrast was drawn, not between two students, but between two individuals, and the facts happened to hurt a Wayne student. The schools were involved to emphasize the difference of one who is neglected to be kindly and unselfish. The criticism aroused a good deal of interest, and will prove beneficial, if it will help make all of us more considerate and unselfish.

THE FOUR-YEAR COURSE

At the last session of the legislature a law was enacted authorizing the state normal schools of Nebraska to grant the degree of bachelor of science to students who, after four years of work in the state normal school means greatly increased expense, but such is not the case. It must be remembered that the state normal school is a state normal school, primary, intermediate, grammar grades and special teachers for art, music, manual training, home economics, and science, but mathematics and languages. Those who take the regular two-year normal course specialize in not more than one or two of these lines. After completing a line of work the student may desire to continue in school. He can easily find subjects which he has not taken in some of the other various lines and by taking these subjects can increase his hours' credit to the required minimum of 125 credits and receive his degree. He merely enters classes which are already going on and organized.

The Wayne State Teachers College there has not been a single additional class organized because of the law giving the right to grant the degree. It gives the school the privilege of giving the degree to those who have remained in school and elected subjects in the other courses above referred to. Such a plan broadens the education and preparation of those who expect to be superintendents and supervisors; and increases the usefulness of the institution, and gives the state a benefit whatever to the taxpayers' burden.

Careless Hunters On The Libengood Farm

W. M. Libengood reports that recently one of his hunters on his farm one mile north and one mile west of town, have shot one steer, two hogs and one dog. All the victims have died. Mr. Libengood thinks if a hunter takes a shot at the hog for a jackrabbit, he ought to quit hunting or find for practice a field where domestic animals are not so numerous and the danger not so great.

Cattle—Cattle prices on the Omaha market showed a general gain for the week of 10 to 20c. The best grades of beef steers show a gain of 2c. Butchers, 25c. Canners and cutters 25c higher with canner steers showing an increase of 25 to 50c. Veal calves up 25 to 50c on the light and medium weights, and $1.00 on the heavy weights. Feeders steady. Prime beef butch 10c higher, light weights, 10c. Packing cows up 25 to 25c up and stock pigs up 50c increase.
Sheep—The sheep market at Omaha shows a gain over week ago. Lambs mostly steady. Wethers show a gain of 25 to 50c; ewes, 10 to 25c. Feeding lambs remained steady.
Wheat—The heavy selling of last week was influenced mostly by lack of support, absence of important news, and weakness in foreign exchange and the wheat market. All grains closed sharply lower for the week. Visible supply wheat, 37,675,000 bushels, compared to 49,468,000 bushels last year.
Corn—For the week, Chicago May corn declined 1-8c. Visible supply corn, 16,760,000 bushels, compared to 23,979,000 bushels last year.
Potatoes—Potato prices have been generally steady for the week. Shipments for the week were 300 cars. A steady demand for the whole sale potato markets with limited demand and moderate supplies. Western Russets were firm at $1.30 to $1.35. The market for the week was slightly weaker at distributing points.
Butter—Butter markets have unsettled through the week, but steady to firm at the close. Declines in eastern markets and advances at Chicago have served to reestablish normal price relations. Demand was checked by the high prices. Domestic supply was supplemented by some foreign imports. Local price of butter, 18c.
Eggs—Receipts of eggs at the four principal markets this week were 123,811 cases, compared to 97,648 cases last week. Stocks in storage, 852,087 cases compared to 568,759 cases the corresponding date last year. Local price, 35c.
Poultry—Receipts of poultry at the four principal markets this week were 15,233,000 compared to 28,541,000 lbs. last year. Stocks in storage, 63,000,000 compared to 70,500,800 lbs. the corresponding date last year. Local prices: Hens, 14 1/2c and over; 16c; under 14 1/2c; Leghorns, 14c; Springs, 12c; Scotch spinners, 13c; Old modes, 8c.

Business

Steady City. The stock season has arrived. It always comes at this time of the year, being the natural step after the holiday excitement resulting from widely distributed gift buying. The slack season of winter is such a well known thing in business circles that it might be better to dial the holiday season except for the fact that such a provision would not add to the stock of general information regarding economic conditions. Notwithstanding its arrival, however, the business world will go on through—as it always does—and within a few weeks will emerge, almost without notice, into a season of more pronounced activity in all lines.

Just now merchants are looking over their stocks for holiday sales are under way as a necessary form of inventories on which to base calculations for spring buying. Some spring goods already have reached retailers, but the volume will come along a little later. Wholesalers are doing some business at the present time, especially in replenishing retail stocks caught short by the expected demand for holiday goods. Prices are firm and steady in most merchandise offered. The dry goods market is in good condition, with the majority of retailers well provided against all probable demands for the first quarter of the year. Movement of goods in larger volume will depend on weather conditions for the most part. An early spring will mean a quicker demand for lighter fabrics and seasonal offerings.

The domestic business situation unhesitatingly can be considered over good. There is actual prosperity in the United States. Trade prospects are brighter than at any time since the deflation period. It is now estimated that the holiday business transacted was 15 to 20 per cent greater than last year. Few persons who want work are unemployed. According to some representations made to national legislators in the effort to make the immigration laws less restrictive, there is a shortage of common labor in certain quarters. That probably is not at all serious and will yield to adjustment without the necessity of admitting an influx of alien workers. The business conditions here would be better, at once if an understanding could be reached along the European countries. A definite agreement as to the plan of rehabilitation to be followed in the old world would affect in a gratifying manner the business morale of America. This country is all right within itself. It has many openings in circulation, jobs for practically all workers and is well on the road to recovery. All it needs now to complete the process is to observe European going forward.

Secretary Hoover, of the commerce department, may be put down as the most optimistic business man in the United States, perhaps in the world. He is author of statements that economically the world is far better off than it is generally known. He ought to know what he is talking about, and, for the sake of the experiment, Americans interested in business recovery might now obtain a composite view of Hooverism and Coism and commence thinking that day by day in every way business is getting better and better. The Journalist is perfectly in an expressing that it would not do anyone the least bit of harm and that it might do a vast amount of good. It is necessary in dealing with material of this nature to have an optimistic, militantly cheerful outlook.

Tax Reform

Lincoln Journal. The matter of fixing up our burdensome tax system is, after all, a simple one. It is merely a matter of securing a change of the present tax laws. The legislature can see that the farmers at their farm bureau meeting saw their way clearly and agreed to agree with the money pressed by taxes. They haven't any incomes to speak of nowadays. Without the slightest friction they are ready to agree with the money and we are now raising by taxes on land and livestock should be taken care of by an income tax. Farmers do not care to deal with the money, but farmers prosper, accordingly, a special tax on salaried people. The farmers are no manufacturers, or if they are, they are not in the position of some four or five million. They favor, accordingly, an excess profits tax. Since a sales tax falls with special force upon people of large families and low incomes, which means more dependent children, the farmers went on record against the sales tax. The fact that this were all there is to it, everything would already be covered by the eyes and nays. Unhappy we are not all farmers. This fact produces some mental divergences between farmers and other business men have their own special solutions of the taxation problem, and their answer differs from the farmer's answer.
Business men find that income taxes hamper their efforts to add to their capital. They are accordingly in favor of many tax laws. They have even a general antipathy to paying excess profits taxes. The great favorite of the business world at the present time is the sales tax. Everybody buys things. A sales tax is a painless method of extracting taxes from everybody. There are so many consumers that no one needs to feel so stingy—buying as a sales tax. How any one could oppose a sales tax, so gentle a method of passing on taxes to his customer, is beyond the comprehension of many a businessman.

The salaried man has also his simple ideas about taxes. He is rather tolerant of the income tax. His salary isn't often so high but his exemptions subtracted, his net income tax is bearable. He is inclined to dial, however, the farmer plan to tax his savings. The owners of our rich Nebraska soil and our valuable Nebraska corner lots could be taxed on their incomes, and not on their privileges. Along with the salaried man comes the waged man. The laborer, too, has his clear ideas about taxes. The dinner pail soldier is not to be taxed and there should be a property exemption sufficient to relieve the laboring man's home and chattels from the fell hand of the assessor.

All the new legislators who do it is to enact tax laws in keeping with

Lord, Make a Regular Man Out of Me

Why I would like to be—braver and bolder, Just a bit wiser because I am older, Just a bit kinder to those I may meet, Just a bit manlier taking defeat; This for the New Year my wish and my plea, Lord, make a regular man out of me.

Why I would like to be—just a bit finer, More of a smiler and less of a whiner, Just a bit quicker to stretch out my hand Helping another who's struggling to stand. This is my prayer for the New Year to be, Lord, make a regular man out of me.

Why I would like to be—just a bit fairer, Just a bit better, and just a bit squarer, Not quite so ready to censure and blame, Quicker to help every man in the game. Not quite so eager men's failings to see, Lord, make a regular man out of me.

Why I would like to be—just a bit truer, Less of the wisher and more of the doer, Broader and bigger, more willing to give, Living and helping my neighbor to live; This for the New Year my prayer and my plea, Lord, make a regular man out of me.

Ford THE UNIVERSAL CAR Interesting Facts 105,799 Ford Cars and Trucks Retailed in December Approximately the Same Number Scheduled for Delivery in January. What Does This Mean? This volume of deliveries to actual owners is entirely unprecedented for this time of the year... It has taxed the manufacturing ability of the Ford plants working at full capacity... It indicates a volume of business during the rapidly approaching months of "heavy demand" which will be far beyond the maximum production schedule which the Ford Motor company has set... And that means a Ford shortage even more acute than the one which existed last Spring and Summer. Dealers' stocks all over the country are low—there are no reserves to draw upon to meet the demands for delivery... There is no way in which dealer reserves can be built up, as deliveries have been made to customers as fast as cars could be manufactured since last April. The only way you can protect your desire to obtain prompt delivery of a Ford even at this time is to place your order immediately. This emphasizes more strongly than anything we could possibly say the necessity of your making prompt arrangements with a Ford dealer for the listing of your order, particularly if you are contemplating the purchase of a Ford car or truck for use this spring or summer. We believe you are entitled to know these facts as they actually exist.

Elgin, Neb., Jan. 9.—Kenneth Hinman, principal of the Elgin public school, was seriously injured last night when his skull was fractured during a game of basketball. It is not known here whether he will permanently lose his sight in that eye. Mr. Hinman was acting as referee during the game. The ball was dropped close to him and as he turned to pick it up, Ross Martin rushed into him. Apparently Martin struck Hinman's head with his teeth and mouth, although it was hard to tell just how it did happen. Martin was not hurt with the exception of slight bruises about the mouth. Agree on a Partial Farm Credit Program

Washington, Jan. 4.—A partial program of farm credits legislation was agreed upon today by the senate banking committee, which declined to report the caper bill substantially as drawn and then proceed with consideration of the Lenroot-Anderson bill in congress.

The committee's action carries the farm credits program by insuring that it will include two bills instead of a committee composite measure. Chairman McLean of the banking committee does not plan to call up either bill in the senate until next week when both are to be ready. The committee vote on the bill of Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, chairman of the senate farm bloc, was unanimous, but there was said to be some disagreement on features of the Lenroot-Anderson measure. The committee inserted in the caper bill which was approved recently by Secretary Mellon of the treasury department in preference to the Lenroot-Anderson proposal, a provision extending the life of the corporation until March 31, 1924. This has been urged by agricultural organizations.

Provides for Credit Bodies. The caper bill drafted in part by Eugene C. Meyer, director of the finance corporation, provides for organization of farmers' and live stock growers' cooperative credit organizations. It also amends the federal reserve act by extending the maturity of negotiable livestock paper to nine months and reducing the limit of national banks in small communities, a provision designed to induce more banks to enter the federal system. Another important feature of the bill increases from $10,000 to $25,000, the individual loan limit of federal land banks.

Organize in Dakota County.

Dakota City, Jan. 4.—Members of the Dakota County Bury Bee club, met at the home of M. J. Beacom in Pigeon Creek precinct for the purpose of organization. Charles Beerman was elected president; M. J. Beacom, vice president; Francis Way, secretary, and Dorothy Leamer, treasurer.

Joseph Culbertson, who is now taking second year's work at the college of agriculture, has been chosen as leader of this club.

Snake Coming Out.

Western, Neb., Jan. 5.—Charles Hawk, rural mail carrier out of Western, drove over a big timber snake on Christmas day near here. The day's heat and the sunning had brought the snake out of its winter hiding place and it was stretched across the road basking in the sun's rays. Mr. Hawk has been driving on this mail route for seventeen years, but this was the first time he ever saw a snake on a Nebraska highway in the last week in December.

Beavers Cause Heavy Loss.

Stickville, Neb., Jan. 5.—Farmers in Frontier county report that considerable damage has been caused by beavers to valuable timber along streams in the western part of the county. The beaver is protected by the legislature, and a fine of $200 is imposed for killing one. In this dilemma, the land owners are demanding that this law be amended to permit an owner to protect his property, or to collect damages from the state.

Tea Dinner for an Awakening.

New York Times. The more experienced Turkish leaders cannot think of entering lightly into war with England—particularly those who at Louzanne have had a chance to see something of the workings of European politics. But the delegates are controlled by the national assembly at Angora and in that assembly are many inland deputies who never saw a warship in their lives. They may regard war with England as something new and exciting, but they are not so naive as you think. They are more than a war with Greece. Even Anatolia has its Buncombe counties.

Deputy Revenue Man Explains Tax Law

Randolph Times: George E. King, of Norfolk, deputy revenue collector, who had been in Randolph some weeks ago, interviewed scores of persons from town and country as to their income tax returns. Notices were sent out asking those on the list to meet the deputy and bring along their books and papers concerning their income tax from 1918 to 1921, in most cases. These notices simply meant that the revenue collector's office wanted to inquire into some one item or items of the returns, perhaps for one year only, in other cases for all four years.

Randolph taxpayers have found Mr. King courteous and good natured, and willing to fully explain the ins and outs of all rulings under the rather complicated income tax law. Errors have been made, very likely, in most of the income tax returns made to the head office at Omaha, these mistakes being due to the understanding of the law rather than to any disposition to make a false report. In many cases too much exemption was taken, and the government collected what it considered its due while the returns were made. According to Mr. King, the farmer may as well forget about repairs except in the case of welding broken parts or something of that sort.

New fence posts are considered as replacements and should be added to the cost of the fence and the regular yearly depreciation taken as an exemption. A new roof, new chimney, new window, or even a new floor, sill is a replacement. It is a question whether business taxes is not allowed exemption for new tires, but these tires may be added to cost and depreciation claimed.

Another question ruling is that a church, unless it holds a permit, is liable for the payment of admission tax on the proceeds of suppers, bazaars, etc. If a church holds a permit, it is not liable for admission tax. Churches are advised to make application by its board of trustees to the collector at Omaha for a permit for exemption from admission tax. This ruling was made because there was much abuse of the exemption to religious and charitable organizations.

Another common mistake in exemptions is that of "board," says Mr. King. Some farmers, who hired a board, have applied for exemption which includes board, though they should be entitled to exemption for board, the usual figure being $5 or $6 a week. Such claims are not allowed. Others have taken out an expense the same paid for dinner to the neighbors who helped them move or haul their hogs to town. This is "board" and is allowed.

One more item should be remembered. The revenue department forbids the advertising by sign or printed ad something like this: "Alcohol, 60c a gallon." It must read: "Denatured" alcohol. Also the seller must affix a poison label to each of these signs, and in any instance or stand prosecution.

Restore Trains On Northwestern Line

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 4. Superintendent Blundell of the C. St. P. M. & O. railroad has notified the state railway commission that trains No. 7 and 8 will be restored at once. These run between Omaha and Emerson, leaving the former in the evening and the latter in the morning, a sort of shoppet service.

The commission did not discover until a few days ago that these trains were no longer running. When an explanation was demanded it was told that the removal had been done under the general order of the commission during the strike period. At that time the railroads were told that they need not apply for permission to annual trains when strike conditions forced them to do so.

The Omaha railroad officials took this to mean that they did not have to tell the commission about it when they did, which was an error. The people served never said a word about it, but the Omaha business men put in a protest and the commission has ordered them returned to service without hearing on the merits of the case, because of the failure of the company to comply with the rules.

The company says these two trains always had been moved, but the commission says that if they desire to have them annulled they must make application and give the people a chance to be heard in the matter.

Philadelphia Public Rebuke.

Philadelphia Public Rebuke. President Harding's letter to Senator Lodge was a just and proper rebuke to Senator Borah and his disciples who want the United States to be president in the handling of foreign affairs. The Borah amendment to the naval bill, asking the president to take a world-wide tour to settle economic questions and disarmament, amounted to just that and is a new phase in a very old fight that has been dragging along for years between the White House and the senate. The chief executive holds the power to initiate and make treaties. There is no sense holding the power to approve or disapprove them after they are made. Since foreign policies usually crystallize into treaties or agreements that must be reviewed by the senate, there is from time to time a state of war between the White House and the senate.

Barah gesture is a renewed manifestation of that war.
