LeRoy Owen Writes of European Nations

LeRoy D. Owen who is enjoying a tour in Europe writes from San Moritz, Switzerland, on Dec. 24, 1922, giving his impressions of the countries he has visited. The letter is as follows:

"If one can say that there is one place in all Europe where Christmas can be peacefully celebrated with its true meaning, that place must be Switzerland. Though surrounded by countries suffering from the war it is free from international difficulties and does not mourn the loss of loved ones. The country is rich in prosperity and is respected by all nations as the home of peace. This little village, high up in the Alps, covered with a blanket of snow, seems to be the objective of travelers from all over the world at this season of the year. Here they try to forget, at least for a time, the strained conditions about them. Even with all this peace and quiet, one who lives and travels in the neighboring countries cannot but think about the situation in Europe. Austria to the north and east, Italy to the south and west, and Hungary to the east, are all in a state of chaos. Though I have not been in Austria as yet, reports of trouble, suffering and privations due to winter, reach me here. Austria, it seems to me, is immensely. The country was divided; the wealth drained and the currency depreciated until it is worth nothing. Since Austria has reached its present position, however, she is least troubled by threats and worries from neighbors about reparations. A new military power and a general grabbing at her throat."

To the south Italy with her powerful Premier Benito Mussolini who led the Fascist, a small group in Italy, to victory and united the little country in the south in such a way that today her name is listened to with respect due any of the great powers. Mussolini has exerted a great influence in recent affairs in Europe and has made the statement that useless conferences must end and without definite assurances of fundamental results Italy will refuse to enter further negotiations. This Italian premier is prominent in the affairs of Europe.

For the last six weeks at Lausanne the League of Nations has been trying to make peace with Europe that tried to drive them to Asia during the great winter. The League of Nations has been one crisis after another with a threatened break at any turn. Christmas time has given the powers a rest and the League will not act further until after the holidays. England seems to play the part of a balance wheel in European affairs, and it is to be expected that she will with opposition from many sides. Lastly, there are Germany and France, who are sitting each other, snoring their trade and firmly cementing their common interests. Germany being subject to the dictation of the great powers and Russia being ignored by them, make it only natural that they should be friends.

The war has been over for four years and this talk may seem useless, but feelings still run high. America is the deciding factor in these European disagreements. She holds the key to the situation. She has fed Europe when war brought on starvation; she has sent millions of dollars to Asia Minor for the Armenians; she has sent other things not without precedent among European nations. The people over here still look to our great land to guide them safely through many difficulties. Our policy so far has been a benefit and the ultimate solution, whatever it may be, must be sponsored by America. Americans must study the European conditions so that the way may be devised for bringing peace to the suffering world.

Congratulations to Frank O. Edgcombe of the Geneva Signal who was recently awarded first prize in an editorial competition.

Mr. Edgcombe's subject was "Editorial Responsibility," and he expressed in concise and forcible English the high purpose that must engross an editor who fairly represents his profession. Mr. Edgcombe occupies high ground and is capable of fine analysis.

At the annual meeting of the Wayne Association of Teachers, it was worth "at least $500 more a year to his employer than an employee who does not play golf once a week."

It is said that it would be a good investment if every employing institution would make provision for its employees to play golf once a week. That is rather strong testimony, but if it is half true, we ought to all take to golf as a remedy for many existing ills.

F. D. Stone, editor of the Hartington Herald, unintentionally offended one church choir because of the degree of praise given the sunset of another church choir. He explains his terms of praise, and points out that the offended ones are contrasting the concert with a cantata which they gave and which is an entirely different kind of musical entertainment.

Governor Smith of New York resented in his inaugural address the first of the year his opposition to the eighteenth amendment and his indifference to its enforcement. Contrasted with his inimical attitude in his inaugural address of Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania who declares the industry in which the Volstead act is treated, believing lack of enforcement encourages light regard for all laws.

The acquittal at Marion, Ill., of men charged with participation in the Merrin murders was a manifest disregard of law and justice. The murdered men had done nothing wrong, and the employes of mines that had been abandoned by strikers. The accused were plainly guilty of a share in the terrible blot on Illinois fair citizenship. The excuse that men should not have ventured to hire out to the mine owners against the labor trouble is clearly no justification for crime, but a bald affront to the American ideal of liberty and justice. The jurymen were evidently afraid to uphold the law—they thought time saved according to sworn duty and conscience.

If the latter they had—and then fled to some more civilized community where liberty in lawful pursuit is reasonably safeguarded. Other men will be tried for the same crime when, unless Merrin eyes are opened to duty, another assault on law will take place.

Teachers are apt to be more careful what they say to adults than to children, whereas the reverse should be the rule of practice. Adults have grown thick-skinned and have become used to a good deal of offense. As we advance in years and increase earthly burdens, we easily forget shafts of criticism. We have often tried in vain to recall the words of some of our bone-headed, recalcitrant contemporaries. But we remember distinctly the vitriolic gibes that were about us by a favored teacher thirty or forty years ago. The youthful mind is perfect and unflinching. It is sensitive and never forgets. Impressions made at school always last. The teacher as a rule at the present must, to be just, exercise infinite patience and not allow a burst of temper to fix in the youthful mind an image that can never be effaced. Approachful words that may break down courage needed in life's uncertain pursuit.

YOUNG WOMANHOOD.

Written by the editor, on request, and presented at a recent meeting of the Professional and Business Women's club of Wayne. My interest in girls is accentuated by close ties of relationship to four. Whatever social or business professional advantages will help you will help them, and vice versa. Any discrimination permitted or suggested against your sex is naturally and properly resented by every father of girls. On this basis of peculiar interest, I will in response to request suggest a few things that will not mean more to them than they need to enlighten and encourage.

You are at present fitted into different grooves with worthy ambition to develop and progress, and as you serve your respective vocations, you will grow in usefulness and favor, benefiting society and strengthening the claims of womanhood. If your intelligence, alertness, appearance and mannerism please the public, they will please your employers, in the present or in the future, and offer enlarged opportunities for service. If you will popular higher, they will attract high-minded, sincere and desirable men who seek life partners. Thus, no matter how long you follow a so-called career, no matter how long you wait before yielding to the whirlings of matrimony, you should be alert and constructive, strong and aggressive in work and play, the while occupying a high place in the eyes of those with whom respect, and preserving a fine and cultured femininity that can both attract and command respect from a high standard, and make men meet it.

As to dress, I wish to suggest—not as an authority on the subject, but as one with preferences that may be shared by others—that the prevailing short skirt with the freedom it gives, is not objectionable, being a great improvement over the old-time trailing gown that swept the street and caught up dirt and any disease germs that happened to be out at the time. But the sometimes too low neck is both objectionable and unnecessary. For the overly abbeviated neck there is no good excuse. This is just my opinion. As to the use of rouge, I think it ought to be restricted mainly to elderly people whose complexions are worn out and need a little artificial glow. Young people with clear complexions spoil the almost perfect tinting of nature by dabbling on any considerable amount of paint. If you feel the need of a little facially, put it on moderately, so that the average observer will be deceived. I almost gasp in amazement when I see an otherwise beautiful girl flaunting a gaudy mask of rouge. Let the rouge mask be reserved largely for the patronage of those who are merging into the serene and yellow leaf and who often may be excused for blotting out appearances by resort to cans and tubes. This is of course just my opinion.

Now let me touch briefly the great field that is presented to you as a group and as individuals. Whatever you may undertake in furtherance of some civic improvement or some welfare movement, you will be rewarded with strengthened character, expanded vision and a satisfying knowledge of enlarged usefulness. You can't get behind a movement for a new hotel. You may want to direct an organized effort to beautify the town; you may want to state or federal legislation which you deem advisable for public welfare; you may want to help groups that are engaged in an unequal struggle with nature, mastering a big or little enterprise, either for profit or for the good of the community, to inspire confidence and stimulate your power of accomplishment.

You can always help one another. Your association ripens acquaintance, and gives you the opportunity to review experiences and exchange views. You can help solve individual problems, and materially lighten the burden that falls to each one's lot.

A former chancellor of the British exchequer was recently quoted as expressing the fear that we would soon see collapse of civilization in Europe. I hope he is mistaken. But we must admit that the world is not in a very encouraging state at this time and that the future is uncertain and disquieting. American women—any—have a potential influence in behalf of unity and justice. You are a part of the great body of young womanhood of this country, and you may well consider problems that are perplexing the nations. With clear understanding you may render sound and helpful judgment in support of peace and justice and so-called equity and regularity. If chaos follows, and regularly, we will need exercise of utmost sanity in America to preserve our high standards and high ideals. Women of influence in support of orderly processes and in maintenance of individual and national policy. Equal rights and equal opportunities and changed spheres mean increased demands and multiplied responsibilities. The condition imposes a new tax on your resourcefulness. It is up to you to meet it. It is up to you and other groups and individuals to think clearly and justly and act accordingly.

I have rambled from Dan to Beer-sheba—from the folly of face paint to the importance of national sanity. In conclusion let me add that whatever worthy enterprise you may be engaged, the Herald will give you its unqualified support.

Back Door Exit Advisable. Springfield, Mass., Republican: In France regret was expressed that whereas the first American soldiers arrived by way of Havre, St. Lo-

Experience Can't Teach Some. Portland, Oregonian: It is of course too much to expect that "Big Bill" Haywood has learned anything from his failure in Russia. If a certain type of people could learn from the circumstances exit by the back door perhaps is best.

Carload Semi-Solid Buttermilk

Feb. 15

Big demand from the animal industry had caused a shortage of buttermilk throughout the entire United States. The wonderful help Semi-Solid affords the hog and poultry industry, in a few months, has spread from coast to coast. It's the usual admission from actual users, "The dairy in the yellow barrel" puts increased profits in the hog and poultry business. The feeding of Semi-Solid a short period before farrowing time has proven very important and the feeding to nursing mothers followed by a conservative solution of water and Semi-Solid at weaning time will start you on the proper route to make 300 pound hogs in nine months. Last week a Semi-Solid feeder who fed five barrels to 200 hogs marketed his first carload weighing 332 pounds average in Sioux City. By the use of "The dairy in the yellow barrel" you can do in nine months what old methods require eleven to twelve months. Aside from this saving of corn you also eliminate 25 per cent of risk and labor. First car to arrive February 15. The Foremost Drugless System of Health

A MESSAGE OF GOOD CHEER

If you do not enjoy health it is your own fault. This may seem to be a harsh statement. It is however, true; for with the advent and growth of the drugless health science, Chiropractic, everyone has been helped. Fine out for yourself. Visit a competent chiropractor. Let him give you a spinal analysis. If there is anything wrong he will at once tell you so. Then let him do just the wrong. The result will be that you will be enjoying health. Don't say it can't be done, until you have tried for yourself. Consultation and spinal analysis free.

Our Sunday evening party and lively horses of J. B. Barnes took it into their heads to run away. Accordingly they proceeded to run. Mr. Barnes stood on the ground holding the lines in his hands when the horses started, and he hung to the lines until they pulled one of his fingers out of joint. They ran from near the Lutheran church, south to the creek, making a clean path through brush fences and all other obstructions in their way. When they were found standing on the bank in deep meditation, uninjured, though the harness and buggy were considerably banged up.

Kansas expends $50,000 every year for immigration purposes, and Nebraska does not expend a dollar. The result is that Kansas gains ten new settlers to our one. And yet, Nebraska is in every respect the better state of the two. What little effort is made by Nebraska to induce immigration, is made in behalf of the southern part of the state. Of the superior advantages of Northern Nebraska, not a whisper is heard—in fact, northern Nebraska is entirely ignored. In the east, people know little about northern Nebraska as they do of Alaska or Greenland. An effort is to be made to have a law passed by the present legislature to establish the office of commissioner of immigration, and to appropriate funds to publish pamphlets, etc. If northern Nebraska had a fair showing at the hands of such a commissioner, it would be quite a good thing for us. If, however, this part of the state is to be ignored as it always has been, such an office would do so far as northern Nebraska is concerned, be worse than useless.

The occasion was a happy one with about fifty people present to listen to the inspiring addresses by Rev. Mr. Anderson, pastor of Concord Mission, and Rev. J. P. Davison of the Omaha Bible institute. The Tarberg sisters sang a pleasing duet between the appreciated messages. In introducing the speakers a chart of the Bible was shown. The subject of the world is still in outer darkness, the Christian teachings having not yet penetrated over half of the world. A brief moment was taken to explain how prayer was being offered for laborers to launch forth into this effort. 400 natives were converted last year by native evangelists who have ventured to teach the tribes not yet reached by white men because of unfavorable climate conditions.
A luncheon was served at 5 o'clock and some of the guests remained for the evening session which was addressed by Rev. J. P. Davis with a masterful message on "Some Present Privileges of God's Children." His talk was rich with promises from The Word and brought encouragement to all who heard it. Rev. E. Miller of Emerson, Edward Parberg and three daughters, Joseph Carlson and Rev. Mr. Anderson of Concord and Mrs. Grace Jones of Cassell. The meeting was very successful and was honored by the birthday occasion party was enjoyed by those present. Mrs. T. C. Ferrell will be hostess next Tuesday and everyone is always invited.
Club has Waffle Supper.
Members of the Professional and Business Woman's club to the number of about thirty-five, enjoyed a waffle supper Tuesday evening at the Community house. Following the supper Mrs. Mary Fitzsimons of the State Normal sang a solo, accompanied by Prof. L. F. Beary at the piano. Miss Alvora Malloy played a violin solo and was honored by the piano by Miss Katherine Bohmert. An editorial on "Young Womanhood," written for the club by E. W. Huse, was read in the business meeting. The members decided to present an entertainment for the public, the proceeds of which would be given by the Wayne Woman's club and this club to the children's orphanage work in Omaha. As now planned the Woman club will furnish the building, tickets, etc., and the Professional club will present the program. Plans for the entertainment were laid to the committee including Miss Frances Oman, Mrs. Leon F. Beery and Mrs. Cecil Robinson. Miss Frances Oman gave a resume of her interview with one of the prominent business woman's club members in Lincoln. The lady with whom she talked favored club members. Mrs. James Miller together; she emphasized the possibilities in civic improvement that the club might sponsor; she spoke of the club having a club quarter and club songs that advertise the organization; and she favored inviting some prominent state woman's club members to give the demonstration that she would give, suggesting Mrs. H. H. Wheeler and Mrs. W. E. Barkley of Lincoln as very capable and willing to do this. The Wayne club is planning some of these undertakings, the object of the club being both civic improvement and benefit to the community. Mrs. James Miller and Mrs. Clyde Oman, a committee from the Wayne-Woman's club offered the use of the community house to the club for expenses and for this privilege the Professional club feels grateful. The meeting adjourned until Tuesday, Feb. 23, when a Valentine party will be held. Any women engaged in professional or business work who have not yet joined the club are cordially welcomed by the members.

List of New Books Received at Library

A number of new books have been received at the city library, and are now ready for the public. The list includes books which will interest all ages.

"Viola Gwyn" by George Barr McCutchen, the author of "Gunsark", is a story of romantic India early in the nineteenth century when the new state was peopled by eager, adventurous seekers for wealth of the wilderness. The story is of hardy, buoyant Americans with the blood of the Colonies in their veins. "A Texas Ranger," by William MacLeod Raine, tells how a member of the most dauntless border police forces known to the world carried law into the Mesquite, saved the life of an innocent man, and passed through deadly peril to ultimate happiness.

"Lenore Lends a Hand" is a story written by Louisa S. Worthington and tells of "a child of light, a radiant lass and game as the morning air." Add to this one hundred per cent Americanism and you have the description of Lenore Elliott, daughter of the famous fighting admiral. To all young people and those who love young people, this story of sparkling wit and humor, brotherhood and true friendship, is a gem.

"Freedom of Speech," by Zechiah Chafee, jr., professor of law in Harvard, explains thoroughly the subjects of law and order. Prof. Chafee is the best authority in the United States on the subject and his subject and his book should be the background for every citizen.

Two books on the Coax method of healing are new books. They are "My Pilgrimage to Coax" by Mrs. Kirs, story by a woman who had experiences with the healing method. "The Power of Auto Suggestion," by Coue himself, tells of his science.

"The Skyline of Spruce" is a story of the north written by Archibald Marshall.

"Lightnin'" by Frank Bacon, is the book on which is based the popular play being featured in motion pictures.

"The Way of an Eagle," by Ethel Dell, is an interesting new novel.

For boys who are interested in radio stories, "The Young Wireless Operator with the Oyster Fleet," written by Lewis E. Theis, is of much interest.

"Nobody's Girl," by Hector Malot, is a literary classic of childhood from "En Famille," the inspirational masterpiece of Mistol. The wonderful perseverance of the little girl in distress gives a model of ideals unsurpassed in childhood.

"The Sheriff's Son," is a story by William MacLeod Raine and has a western background. Mr. Raine knows western life and his hero, the sheriff's son, is born with an inheritance of fear. The young man is educated in the east and returns to the west. He arouses the hostility of the same man who killed his father twenty years before. He conquers terror and wins the love of a delightful girl.

"The Poisoned Paradise" is a novel by Robert W. Service, the poet. The novel is a description of the life of Monte Carlo and is Mr. Service's first novel in many years.

"Patty and Azalia," by Carolyn Wells, is a bright and wholesome story about Patty, a girl whom all young folks know.

"Desert Gold" is a story by Zane Grey. It is a fascinating and mysterious story of the desert on the Mexican border. Two men about to die because of thirst find gold which at the close of the narrative, they will to the heroine.

"An Answer to the Universal Plea of Childhood-Tell Me a Story" is a collection of the best stories for little folks and includes those which will make them think.

"The Turner Twins," by Ralph Henry Barbour, is a book that is full of fun, excitement and mystery for children. The two boys are much alike that people mistake them for each other and interesting situations arise.

"The Poor Little Rich Girls," is a play written by Eleanor Gates and is dramatized by Mary Pickford for the screen. The story is of an unfortunate little girl who is turned over to a governess instead of receiving the love and care she wants.

"The Snow Man" by Julie Guy Faversham, is adapted from the play by Edwin Payne.

"Rootabaga Stories," by Carl Sandburg, tells of the corn faeries, the potato-faced man, the sky scraper children and others. The book discusses the life that grows in America.

"Pippin," by Archibald Marshall, is a story of a young man who starts foot through an English country side to love and make his way. His adventures with people are interesting.

"The Tie that Binds," by Eleanor Porter is another one of her books of happy and tender life. It is a very human and tender story.

Three Motor Boys' books, "Ned, Bob and Jerry Bound for Home," "Ned, Bob and Jerry on the Fring Lines," and "Ned, Bob and Jerry in the Army," are stories of adventure for boys, written by Clarence Young.

Coming to Wayne.
Hooper Sentinel: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hallbeck were in Wayne a couple of days last week, and while there they arranged for their removal to that city about the middle of February, where Mr. Hallbeck will enter into business for himself in the painting and decorator line. This decision—the change—decision which had been under contemplation for some time, came through a desire to get into business for himself, and he says the excellent opening for a first-class painter up there prompted him to cast his lot at Wayne, although he also had other places in view.

For over twenty years Mr. Hallbeck has been engaged at his trade with his father and during that time has mastered the technique of his profession in a manner that has brought much credit to himself. During the past few years he has been specializing in decorating. His proficiency in either is so well known down here that there is no doubt that he will make good at Wayne, and the people of that community will make no mistake in securing his services. Though regretting to leave Hooper, the same as do the friends of the family, he says that it is a chance for an advancement which he could hardly pass up.

Says Business Rivals Urged Murder Charge

Mrs. Hiram Knox of Hemphill, Tex., who actively and successfully managed her husband's business of building railroads, running saw-mills and bossing lumber crews, claims business rivals urged murder charge now against her in mysterious killing of her husband. All of the West is interested in she was known as "Lady Bonanza" for generous gifts to poor children of Texas. Photo is of Mrs. Knox and her children.

Business.
Sioux City Journal: Americans interested in the recovery of world business conditions in general but more particularly concerned in an improvement of the situation at home are not worrying about the threatening developments in Europe. Naturally, everyone must know that America's foreign business could not be good if Europe were to have another conflict, and while actual war may not come, the economic disturbance of the last week is certain to be prolonged. The lower the German mark drops as a result of French military action in the Ruhr, the longer it will take Europe as a whole to pull itself up by its bootstraps. Admitting that the situation in Europe looks bad for American export business, the Yankee observer still may find comfort in what progress has been made here, is being made now and will be made in the future. American exports were not good last year, nor the year before. Foreign business dropped off but an alarming figure. But America forged ahead just the same. It is forging a-beg-ging now, and there is good reason to believe that, no matter what happens in Europe, business in this country will continue to drive forward. American business men are employing their sense of perspective. They are looking ahead—not to the end of this year, or to next year, or the year after, but to the years decades hence, when they confidently believe, the rest of the world will have readjusted its affairs and be ready for trade. It is good business right now, and the more business that American business will be ready for them. The argument is that economic conditions as they exist today are not going to continue as they are. They may get worse for a time. That is entirely possible, but the recovery will come sooner or later. Too much is at stake. Life has too many possibilities and opportunities.

world war. These figures do not create the impression that America possesses a great military power just because some parts of the world are still economically out of joint.

To Err is Human.
Glen Elder Sentinel: We made a mistake in last week's issue of the Sentinel. A good subscriber told us that he had sent us a letter in our postoffice box that didn't belong to us. We called for 98 over the phone and got 198. We were told "98" is a very common number and when we got home we found it was No. 60. The train was reported thirty minutes late. We arrived at the depot twenty minutes early in time and the train had gone. We got our milk bill and there was a mistake of ten cents in our favor. We felt sick and the doctor said we were eating too much meat. We had tasted meat for two months. The garage man said the fitney was missing because it needed a new tire; we cleaned a spark plug and it's run fine ever since. We made a mistake in last week's issue of the paper.

Better Roads.
This is to be another big year of road building. Will it beat last year, which broke all records? During the fiscal year 1922 over 20,000 miles of good highways were constructed, half with the aid of national government and half without. In a rough way, that's nearly enough to reach seven times across the continent.

And it's only a part of a gigantic good-roads program that will be carried on during the next fifteen or twenty years. The program calls for a total completion of 180,000 miles of federal-aid highways and about the same mileage of state and local roads.

After that, will be another big program—unless the airplane comes in its desire to do things on its own terms—big roads may mean nothing much on long mileage and not enough on quality of pavement. That, in the past, has been the trouble with most city pavements. The far end is scarcely completed before the other end is ready for repairs.

A lot like many a business concern which devotes too much effort to getting new customers and not enough effort to keeping the old ones.

When it comes to roads, we should keep in mind that quality is preferable to quantity.

Like the Romans, we should build for permanence.

Die Hard.
Lincoln Journal: The announcement of the death of the free seed graft was sent out a few days ago and was received with incredulity everywhere. This petty abuse has been ended time after time, but always manages to bob up again before every election. It will not be safe, therefore, to celebrate the ending of this old pest until after the next national campaign.

Fifty Business Men Have Meeting Jan. 18

Business men of Wakefield to the number of fifty attended the dinner and smoker last Thursday noon at the Logan hotel. Dinner at 12:30 was followed by discussion of the purpose in view of bringing about a closer cooperation among all. It was decided to have a non-party luncheon together at the hotel. The men also decided to sponsor a chauntauque next summer. A committee, including C. S. Beebe, Thos. Hawkins, K. G. Henton, H. A. Bowman, Rev. E. G. Knock, Clifford Carlson and Dr. G. W. Henton, was chosen to have charge of the chauntauque arrangements. They will have the right to decide whether Wakefield will have some company put on the program or whether it will be an independent chauntauque program.

Legion to Present a Play.

The American Legion members are planning a home play and will be presented the last of February or the first of March, depending on the dates the men can get someone to train the production. It is hoped that Miss Kathleen Walsh of Sioux City, who trained the play the league gave a couple of years ago, will be able to help in the production. The name of the play and the cast of characters have not been chosen as yet. The men will take all parts. The Legion men recently opened a campaign for membership, dividing the members into six groups or teams. Each team works for new recruits and some reward will be given the winning teams. To date there are about fifty active members of the organization and the aim is to increase this number to one hundred.
