Governor Takes Crack at the Legislature

Lincoln, Neb., March 8.—Governor Charles W. Bryan branded the act of the lower house in killing a bill giving the governor power to suspend local peace officers for cause "a blow at law enforcement" and the fight against a bill to permit cities and towns to go into the coal and ice business "a combination of special interests cranking the gears of the legislature."

"Only two forces can be in the hands of the governor, the state's law enforcing officer, to aid him in seeing that the laws are complied with," Bryan said.

"One force would be the power of the local officers negligent in their duties until after their neglect should be established in the courts and the other would be a deliberate set of public officers—such as the former state sheriff maintained—to carry out the enforcement that the people elected."

"Action of the legislature in rejecting the bill to authorize suspensions is a blow at law enforcement and good government. It is the teeth out of enforcement. Dry forces in the state were solidly behind the bill, which I recommended."

The bill to amend all city charters to permit these municipalities to engage in the coal and ice business if they felt it necessary, was fought, Governor Bryan said, by "a combination of special interests" which he said amounted to a powerful lobby of special interests.

As he turned to one side of the walk to pass pedestrians he fell, his feet struck a tree. The little boy looked up at the tree in bewilderment and asked, "Did it move much?"

Winning Editorial Among State Papers

The Herald is republishing here with its editorial of Jan. 4 which won the silver cup, furnished by the Chamber of Commerce of Lincoln and awarded by the Nebraska Press-association at its recent meeting. The cup was awarded for the best editorial published by a Nebraska country newspaper during the year. It was written by the editor in defense of the schools of the state. The editorial follows:

"Attacking School System."
"The taxpayers' league which met at Hastings recently, singles out the schools of the state for chief assault, and will urge the legislature to lay a heavy hand on the educational institutions of the state. The state normals are attacked and are held up as sources of extravagance."

"While we are all interested in tax reductions as far as practicable in an endeavor to lower the cost of living, we should not strike the chief blow at the roots of knowledge and civilization. While some things in the course of schooling, like manual training, domestic science and athletics, may be materially modified in the interest of economy, the great essentials of education should not be oppressed or disturbed."

"One child is as much entitled to an education as another. More and more, children are taking advantage of opportunities for higher learning, and the result is necessarily increased cost. The cry for reduced qualifications for teachers would lower the standard of the schools, and do children an injustice. As a matter of fact, the difference in salary paid an incompetent teacher and that paid to a competent teacher is not great enough. The competent teacher does not work merely six hours a day, not ten hours a day, but has her duties in mind, is engaged in solving problems or working out details during most of the time she is awake. The notion that she does not put in enough time to earn the salary she receives is the product of minds unacquainted with the facts. And in teaching, as in everything else, the best trained and accordingly the highest paid teacher is the cheapest in the long run, taking receipts into consideration."

"While considering ways to trim sources of taxation, the schools, which are molding our future citizenship, should not be made to bear the brunt of the blow. It should be remembered that the building of a new capital, the building and maintenance of roads, and other extraordinarily heavy burdens of expense have fallen to the lot of the taxpayer. If appropriations for schools are to be reduced, the curtailment should be handled with utmost discretion to avoid a fatal onslaught on the fundamentals of our civilization."

"During progress of the effort to reduce tax loads, we should examine our own habits of living and find out we are not paying out four times as much for comfort and convenience and personal gratification as we did twenty years ago. For a matter, considered a luxury there is deemed a necessity now. A fine horse and buggy, worth $750 and often regarded as a necessity, is now superseded by a necessary automobile costing from $500 to $3,000. A house costing $11,500 twenty years ago, costs $6,000 today. A mechanic who used to get $10 or $12 a week twenty years ago, receives from $30 to $50 a week now. Compare the average daily bill-of-fare of today with that of twenty years ago, and note the difference in luxury and cost."

"Twenty years ago the total annual enrollment of the state university did not exceed 1,000, while today it is nearly 7,000. Twenty years ago the total enrollment at the only state normal was about 300; today the annual enrollment of the four state normals is nearly 5,000. The total enrollment in the high schools now is more than five times that of twenty years ago."

"These contrasts show that more young people of the state have been taking advantage of the school system and if it is good for a few, it is good for the many. A governor of one of the original colonies expressed the hope that there would never be any free schools in America, his purpose being to keep the settlers in ignorance and under easy control. On the contrary, we not only have free schools, but an education is so easy to acquire in our day that none with ambition or purpose needs to suffer the handicap imposed by lack of early training."

"School advantages are costly, the same as personal conveniences and luxuries are costly. What shall we dispense with? Shall we stop feeding the minds of our children? Shall we impair our schools and threaten the quality of our future citizenship? While the legislature is trimming expenses in behalf of tax reductions, let it deal generously enough with the school system to preserve its essential character. It is economy—not wild and damaging hysteria—government in regarding appropriations for the schools as well as appropriations for other branches of the public service."

—Replies to Bryan Petitioners.
Lincoln, Neb., March 3.—Charges are made here that petitions have been drawn up at the state expense in the governor's office and sent to his political constituents over the state. The petitions call upon the legislature to pass all of Bryan's bills and make the statement that such procedure will save the state $9,000,000 and 150 employees.

One such petition was said to have been received at Lincoln by State Senator J. C. McGowan, of Norfolk. It was said to bear the signatures of fifteen persons. The senator replied as follows:

"I am astounded at your discovery about the governor's proposed legislation. I am here on the ground to-morrow, and as you have not been able to see or study his bills, as they are still in the hands of the printers."

"I am wondering where you received this information and where you discovered that all of these things mentioned in your petition are true."

"You are certainly far ahead of the legislators, who ordinarily get an opportunity to study and investigate legislation first."

Month of March Is One of Fickleness

How fickle is March! One day a soft wind blows and a gray haze makes one feel that an early winter is at hand. Another day, a sun-drenched day, and the sun shines brightly and all about is lazily quiet except for the occasional rustle of a rooster who is seemingly not satisfied with the stillness and who desires more excitement. Another day starts with a bluster of snow which melts as it falls. The soft wind assumes a wintry touch and drifts of snow again lie the hills. But, in March, more fickle than many a person? At one minute he is a friend to all and the next minute an enemy. At one time he is full of vigor to attain and will maintain highest standards in all his undertakings. Soon he may be despondent and neglectful, caring little how nobly his tasks may be performed. Sometimes a person's desires may be prompted by selfish motives, again they may be directed toward true service.

The man or woman who is bound to gain an enviable reputation and be of worth in serving others is he who is able to maintain a balance; he who takes things as they come but is not self-centered or self-satisfied; he who can be pleasant at all times; he who makes a decision for the right and stands firm in his convictions.

Winside Man Says Feeding Cattle Pays

Drovers' Journal.—Stockman: Cattle feeding operations are paying over a dollar a bushel for corn so far this year for T. W. Schutt, of Lincoln. Mr. Schutt has there to with the first load he has shipped this season, a bunch of well-finished hand-dwight heaves that sold at today's top, $9.25.

"These cattle have done a good deal better than I expected," Mr. Schutt declared. "When I bought them, I figured they would probably sell around $8.00, and they have been a little money in them, even at that price."

The steers Mr. Schutt had here today were bought in Omaha last August, averaging 722 when taken out. He fed them alfalfa and a little corn until November 1, when he put them on full feed. The twenty-two head in the load averaged 1,175 pounds today. He still has a string of light feeders on feed, and reports that they are plentiful all through that section.

Corn is selling rather high in that locality, Mr. Schutt says. "We were hauled out there last summer and we result our corn was not very good," he stated. "There was a lot of old-corn left there, but a good deal of it is being sold this winter for 60 to 65 cents a bushel. A number of the sales held recently, corn has brought 63 and 64 cents and the buyer has to haul it."

Pioneer House Has a Beauty All Its Own

It is with reverence that one views a building of a half century ago, but it is more with curiosity and amazement that one peruses the contents of the tomb of Pharaoh Tutankhamun, the Egyptian. Why is it that the tomb of an Egyptian, revealing beauties of style and adornment that have not before been conceived by modern men, was built with much more difficulty than was the pyramids? More human toil was spent in constructing the vast stone tomb and much more labor spent on the intricate designs of the interior than on the dainty pieces of jewelry, paintings and the like, than on any structures built in this country. To people of ancient Egypt, the same and his contents were no doubt regarded with feeling. Now they are looked upon as something strange, yet marvelous. The feeling of mystery that men have possessed the men and women of ancient times, when they viewed the art, has disappeared.

To say that the buildings erected by the pioneers of northeast Nebraska possess any art found in the Egyptian tomb, might be begging the question. However, though our own overlook, the feeling of mystery and awe of the early settlers and their posterity. There is art in it.

It would be fine public enterprise if the Kiwanis club could figure out and push forward a plan for a new hotel building. It is one of the pressing needs of the town.

One of the most notable incidents in congressional history—the first—was the retirement of "Uncle Joe" Cannon of Illinois after a record of forty-six years as a member of the House. The venerable old statesman, who has seen the plaudits of republicans and democrats alike, Cannon had been a sturdy and powerful figure in congress, and while in years gone by, especially when he was speaker, he was often criticized and abused, he was usually sound in his judgment and always safe and dependable. The passing of Cannon from congress is now a source of universal regret.

It is reliably reported that the soviet government of Russia is exporting grain while thousands of its own people are starving. It is said eight millions will perish from lack of food—eight millions—just in one aid. Underproduction in Russia is charged to lack of horses and implements and to lack of strength and courage on the part of the people. If those in control of the soviet government had any interest in the welfare of the people or had any of the ordinary impulses of human kindness, they would not rob their country of food and push helpless fellow-countrymen farther into misery and starvation in order to build up foreign credit. And this soviet stuff is what a lot of socialists wanted to saddle on the United States. There would likely have been no soviet most as now and in the past, the demand for aid for the unfortunate victims of soviet Russia.

Parents have certain well known duties to their children. In order to be properly respected, parents must be industrious and useful; must be truthful, temperate and sober; must leave a record of right thinking and right living that will fairly well square with the Golden Rule. Parents cannot make out for themselves and hold the high flint regard which they most desire. They must so live every day that a mental review of their offspring will not arouse some of shame or call for apology. On the other hand, children are equally obliged to do something worthy, white and lead honorable and upright lives out of consideration for their parents. The child should by behavior and accomplishments endeavor to avoid disappointing his father and mother. He should surprise and please them by kindness, by helpful service to society and by proving that he is inclined and able to live worthily and constructively. He, too, should leave a record that can be uncovered in daylight and that does not require a lot of explaining and lying.

We heard of a woman who based her aristocracy on the only patch of greens in town. It was in the early days of Minnesota when provisions were scarce and each individual was uniformly hard up. No one had much to eat and no one was worse off than his neighbor. The one woman with the patch of greens was the only exception. She was liberal in distributing greens, and she received the friendly and patronizing attention of every individual. She felt just as deeply the importance of her possession as a gold mine. She did not have much, but she had what others did not have and what others wanted. She was rich by comparison, and when she marched into her kitchen to get her greens she felt her shoulders back and lifted her head high. Circumstances gabbled her to render a great community service, and she felt just as good over the fact as Rockefeller would feel over endowing a college.

THE EDITORIAL CUP.

The silver cup, the gift of the Chamber of Commerce of Lincoln, and awarded by the Nebraska Press Association at its late meeting to the Wayne Herald, arrived this week. The cup is thus engraved: "Lincoln Cup by Lincoln Chamber of Commerce, Nebraska Press Association. Annual Grand Prize for the Newspaper Publishing the Best Original Editorial." Then is engraved: "Wayne Herald."

As we understand, we are to keep the cup in the office when it is to be awarded again. We are mightily pleased to be the first winner, and to have the Herald head the list of winners. We are glad to be pleased to have Wayne and the Herald thus indelibly written into the editorial history of the state.

We are gratified to note that the cup is thus engraved: "Lincoln Cup by Lincoln Chamber of Commerce, Nebraska Press Association. Annual Grand Prize for the Newspaper Publishing the Best Original Editorial." Then is engraved: "Wayne Herald."

be so good—as other editors, unnoticed, have written. It may not be so good as we think we have written at different times in the past. But among those esteemed judges and to the judges, and to be singled out for honorable distinction from among the many excellent writers of the great press of the state, touches the editorial soul which above commercialism, aloof from material considerations, uninfused by dollars and cents, and tempted by rich vendors, fine sement or luxurious motor cars. It just takes notice of expressed thought, and encourages the editor and literary in the experience of newspapering. We are thus glad that the cup even for only one year. It may not inspire us to write better, but we shall try hard not to write worse.

New Offerings in the Spring Vogues!

Coats, Suits and Dresses

Whether it be bouffant frock, tailored suit, or luxurious wrap, one is surprised by the wealth of delightfully novel and irresistible details. A duvetyen coat has a collar of soft caracul, a taffeta frock has a corsage of bright flowers and there are clinging canton gowns, trimmed with sparkling beads and colorful embroidery.

During the past week we have had twenty-three express shipments of Coats, Suits and Dresses from the Eastern style centers. Our out-of-town sales are now going on and the hundreds of garments we need for these sales are shipped here first direct from the factories and you have the opportunity to choose your Coat, Suit or Dress from this great assortment of the latest styles before they are sent away.

They are the moderate price sort of garments on which you are really interested at $18.50 to $55.00. No store anywhere can show you finer, more up-to-date styles and these prices are much below what you would be asked for the same garments in city stores.

We have no carry over or end of the season mark downs to think about. We can sell below the usual price on this account and buying as we do for thirty other towns we get the rock bottom price from the best factories in the country.

The New Curtain Nets, Cretonnes and Draperies Are Ready for You

We have made a special study of the new effects in window draperies for spring and have the correct materials on hand for carrying them out. Our salesladies will be glad to help you plan attractive draperies for your home. You will find also here the new Tuscan nets so popular now for bed and dresser sets.

The New Skirts

There are many occasions during the spring and summer season that call for a separate skirt, especially one of useful tweed or check material which can be used for office or business wear. Worn with one of the new Paisley patterned silk or cotton crepe blouses they complete a very useful and stylish costume. Priced very reasonably at $5.75 to $8.75.

Charming Silk Blouses to Wear With Your Suit

Gay colors in canton crepe or Persian patterned Oriental silks predominate in these handsome waists. Beading is still much used as a trimming and over blouse styles are most favored. Choose your new blouse early while the selection is at its best.

If you sew you will find the correct materials for making these new waists in our silk department.

The D'Eauville Scarf or Bandanna

These handkerchiefs of gaudy colored Persian pattern silks have a most important place in present day styles. They are worn loosely tied about the neck in cowboy fashion with the knot tied loosely in front or at the shoulder. Others are knotted about the hips forming a fascinating girle for a long walked frock.

Dainty House Aprons at $1.50 to $1.85

Before you make your spring house apron—60c and see the pretty styles we are showing ready made at these very reasonable prices. They were designed by a buyer for one of the leading Chicago stores and her styles are recognized as the cleverest gotten out by any one in the city.

Stylish Footwear Our Specialty
We keep our footwear stock up-to-the-minute in style. And with the rapid changes which are taking place in footwear modes we find it necessary to add something new every week. Two-tone oxfords—satin pumps with small tongues—grey suede strap slippers are now most favored. We have them for you just as they are being worn in the Eastern Style Centers.

Classifications For Nebraska Tournament

Lincoln, March 5.—Five class A teams were replaced by the State High School Athletic association's board of control in arranging the classification for the 1923 state tournament, to be held here Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The teams which were removed from class A were Grand Island, Fremont, South Omaha, Crete and Clay Center. New teams which took their places are North Platte, Ravenna, Sidney, York and Sutherland.

The board felt that this year's class A division was more representative of the entire state than it has ever been before.

There are 234 teams entered this year, which shatters all former records. Play starts Thursday morning. Trying to pick a winner in any one of the first four classes is next to impossible. Lincoln high still looks good in spite of the defeat Friday night by the Central basket shooters.

The first four classes will be playing on a neutral floor. The coliseum has not been used for basket ball games all winter and was prepared especially for the tournament.

There will be fully 2,500 basket shooters from all parts of the state here during the tournament. This number of players making up the 234 teams competing is what makes Nebraska tournament gets its name—"The greatest in the World."

During the season of Lent we would all do well to draw nearer the fountain of truth and life. To this end may we not devote our time to serious reflection of the price paid for the salvation of men. As you read your bibles, follow the Christ as he goes up to Jerusalem to sacrifice his life for the sin of the world.

Dr. Hull preached a fine sermon last Sunday night and conducted the business session of the quarterly conference. Among items transacted was the issuing of an invitation for the spring session of the district conference to be held in Wayne. This will be held sometime in April and will bring about fifty preachers and others to our city and church. It is hoped that Bishop Stutz will be present. Program will be announced in due time.

President Harding says: "The failures of the past invariably have been preceded by contempt for the law, by spiritual paralysis and moral looseness, all of which have had their earlier reflex in the weakened influence of the church. We know the helpful, exalting influence of our religious institutions. We shall be made stronger as they become stronger and we shall ever find greater pride and greater security in the nation which righteousness exalteth."

Invited to University.

Nebraska State Journal: When John G. Neihardt was receiving his official recognition as the poet laureate of Nebraska last two years ago in June he was approached by a professor representing Chancellor Avery on the subject of a resident fellowship. It was provisionally agreed that Mr. Neihardt would come to Lincoln and live and work in the university atmosphere, giving such lectures as he wished and helping the students where he could, all for the modest pay given to an under instructor. After that the hard times made a pinching of the budget necessary in six months a special session of the legislature cut off about half a million from the university and new projects were necessarily deferred. But the desire to bring Neihardt here is as strong as ever. It is purely a question of revenue.

Special Rates to Style Show.

Railroads to offer fare and one-half to visitors to Sioux City fashion exposition in March.

Additional plans announced today for holding the annual spring fashion show at the Orpheum theatre, March 11 to 14, under the direction of the women's ready-wear division of the Associated Retailers, indicate that the display of feminine spring finery will surpass in splendor and artistic grandeur any event ever undertaken in Sioux City.

The fashion exposition will be held in addition to the usual and evile bill at the Orpheum theatre that week. Living models arranged by a professional theatrical ensemble will display the styles from the stores of Sioux City merchants. Mrs. Arthur Hanford, Jr. in charge of the display, will be assisted by Gearen's orchestra, directed by Louis Gearen, Miss Irene Authier, popular Sioux City soprano, and other well-known artists. Stores and display windows will be particularly decorated during the exhibit.

Reduced railroad rates amounting to a fare and one-half, embracing all points in a territory of 150-mile radius, have been secured from the Western Passenger association, of Chicago, representing all railroads operating in Sioux City. Efforts in this direction were made to insure a large out-of-town representation of visitors. The opening purchasing rate of the reduced fares and the final return limit has not been definitely set.

A certificate receipt must be procured when purchasing ticket and have it validated in Sioux City before March 17.

The farm building belonging to Mrs. Anna Kraus was almost totally destroyed by fire Thursday afternoon. The place is at present occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Schmeer.

The fire is believed to have been started by sparks flying from a freight engine. About a half a mile of road was burned before reaching the place.

STYLE SHOW TO DISPLAY BEAUTY

Event at Orpheum to be Last Word in Spring Fashion Exhibit.

When the robins, meadowlarks and other birds of fine feathers arrive this spring they will find that they have been anticipated in a display of finery. For the Associated Tailors of Sioux City will stage a style show at the Orpheum theatre March 11 to 14 inclusive, that is expected to excel in beauty and elegance anything heretofore undertaken in Sioux City.

Mrs. Arthur S. Hanford, Jr., will stage a specially arranged theatrical act, assisted by Louis Gearen and his orchestra; Miss Irene Authier, soloist, and other artists. The review will be given in connection with a regular Orpheum bill of vaudeville and there will be no extra charge.

The richest of colorings, the rarest of fabrics and the most exquisite designs will be assembled in a manner that will have a special appeal to the taste of women who admire pretty things, those in charge assert.

H. F. Norris, president of the association, declared that the double event not only will be the most elaborately gowned affair, but will be the highest priced vaudeville program ever staged in Sioux City.

During the week of March 11, the stores will be decorated in a manner designed to attract visitors to the city from distant points in the trade territory.

Special low rates for two will be granted by all of the leading hotels, in addition to reduced rates on all railroads. Authier, Davidsons, Fishgalls, Grabers, Marins, Pettellers, Weinbergs and Williges are the stores promoting the style show. missed.
