To be Erected in Lobby of Court House and to be Duly Dedicated in a Few Weeks

The bronze tablet being in imminently ready for the names of Wayne county boys who answered their country's call in the World War arrived this week, and will be erected in the lobby of the court house. The tablet was purchased with funds loaned to the county by the officers and members of the council selected one of their number, August Wilcox, to look after the most preliminary details of the tablet. He was called away this week, and it is said he has discharged the obligation in a most faithful and satisfactory manner.

A cluster of lights is to be provided so that the names may be easily read. Prof. Britell Talks To Kiwanis Club Men

Prof. I. H. Britell talked to members of the Kiwanis club at their Monday luncheon Monday. He discussed the history of the immigration and urged greater immigration restrictions to guard against an influx of undesirable from neighboring countries. He stated that this nation was first settled by Nordic people and therefore laid the foundation for a fine type of civilization. He stated the belief that from the subsequent mixture of races the highest development could be realized, based on his claim on the science which shows that mixture with an inferior civilization would lower the level. Instead of lifting the civilization of southern Europe to the Nordic standard, the Nordic would be reduced to the former's level.

Legion Auxiliary Gives Essay Prize

The three prizes awarded by the American Legion Auxiliary for the best essays on "The Flag" written by members of the city school district were given to Edward Reynolds, Genevieve Wright and Norman Wilson. The first was published last week and the other two will appear in this issue.

The birthday of our flag was June 14, 1777. The first flag was made by Betsy Ross, a Philadelphia seamstress. This flag had thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white, and a blue canton containing thirteen white stars arranged in a pattern representing the thirteen original colonies. Our flag now has thirteen stripes, representing the first states, and forty-eight stars, representing the present number of territories.

At Cambridge, Mass., is an exhibit of the various flags which have served as our national standard. The first flag represented the Grand Union, the first to represent the thirteen colonies. The next flag, of twenty stripes, was used for twenty-three years. As the country grew congress began to see that a stripe as well as a star were added for every state, the flag would soon be a cumbersome and unwieldy affair. Stripes were decided upon, symbolic of the thirteen original colonies.

The flag representing the period of the Mexican war had only twenty-nine stars.

The flag used in the Civil war had thirty-five stars and was the first flag to have a star for each territory. It floated over the tents of the generals in camp but was not displayed on the battlefield.

The flag we see are familiar has forty-eight stars and thirteen stripes.

The United States not only has the most beautiful flag but also the most significant. It has a history and a meaning. It is a symbol of our freedom, our unity, and our strength.

Henry Ward Beecher said, "The flag is the symbol of our nation, and it is our duty to love it and to defend it." It is the symbol of our freedom, our unity, and our strength.

School Men Gather In Wayne on Friday

School men of northeast Nebraska met last Friday evening in the new cafeteria at the Wayne State Teachers College for a get-together "jubilee" and for a discussion of school affairs. About forty men were present, the bad weather and roads preventing a larger attendance. Dinner was served at 6:30, followed by a talk by Supt. M. G. Clark of Sioux City, general discussion, and a report by Supt. Clark who attended in Edinburgh, England, a convention of Rotarians from twenty-one nations, described education in Scotland and especially the Royal high school in Edinburgh. This school, which is attended by about 85 boys, is for the aristocratic class only. It has all of the grades from the kindergarten through the high school and is located in this city of 350,000. Only children who are exceptionally keen and admitted, the object being to train the leaders of the country. Men of wealth register their sons' names on the waiting list when they are born that they may have a chance to attend the school. The children are watched and tested by school authorities until they are five years old, and if then they show that they possess particular ability and will make men of leadership they are allowed to enter the school and are through to graduation. The school is supported in part by taxation but the students pay tuition besides, and there are some endowments. It is a most select group of students in attendance. Equipment in the Edinburgh Royal high school is the best and the instructors are highly efficient. The buildings are enclosed in a wall which surrounds two city blocks. The classical courses are stressed. A reading class, Supt. Clark heard of was, he said, the best such class he ever heard. High school boys read Latin with the same ease as the grade children read English.

The Royal high school is several hundreds of years old and has many interesting traditions in connection with its history. The boys are most loyal to their school and always remain so. Many of the prominent Englishmen of history were students here in years past.

Students in this school are divided into six societies and the seniors of the high school are the disciplinarians. Instructors have no vote in this responsibility. If two children quarrel they are allowed to "fight it out" and the older boys see that each is fair to the other.

The Royal high school believes that as a school is so is a nation—and this one school is conducted with the idea of training the leaders. In the same city is a school of similar nature for girls and this is also for the intellectual aristocracy. Other schools in the country are generally speaking poorer.

Supt. Clark also touched briefly the school system in Belgium and France. He described the school for the royal family in Eton, England. In closing he eulogized the American school system with its equality for all.

Discussion and group singing closed a pleasant meeting. Supt. Gomer E. Ross, of Rosalia, was the sponsor of the group for the coming year.

Men representing high schools at the meeting were: Supt. M. G. Clark of Sioux City; Supt. Leudwick and Principal L. F. Leuck of Wakefield; Supt. O. O. Marksbury of Ponca; Supt. Gomer E. Ross of Rosalia; Supt. H. H. Reimund of Tekamah; Supt. S. S. Shively of Wausau; Supt. M. R. Edwards of Randolph; Supt. W. P. Ganning of Carroll; Supt. W. Cooper and Clarence Sarna of Plainview; Supt. Year 1922 Generally Warmer Than Average

The year 1922 was the sixth consecutive year with temperatures generally above normal east of the Rocky Mountains, except that it was slightly cooler than normal from the Ohio Valley southward and in the Gulf districts. The annual average ranged from one degree to three degrees above normal in all sections east of the Rocky Mountains, but west of the mountains they were slightly below normal in most districts.

The first three months of the year were abnormally cold in the more western states, and February was especially cold in the northwest, where the monthly means ranged from 9 degrees to 15 degrees below normal. March, April, May, and June were persistently warm from the Mississippi valley eastward, although temperature, as a rule, were only slightly above normal in the Gulf districts. Unusually warm weather for the season was experienced during March in the central northern states and in May from the Ohio and middle Mississippi valleys northward. June was uniformly warmer than the average, except at a few points in the northwest. July was the only warm season month, with temperatures below normal in most sections of the country, although August was unseasonably warm in the middle and south Atlantic areas. September and October were warmer than normal throughout the country, except in a very few limited sections, principally in the south and far west. November was uniformly cool west of the Rocky Mountains, and the average December temperature was below normal in the more northern states from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean. Otherwise these months were warmer than the seasonal averages.

While the monthly mean temperatures ran quite uniformly above normal throughout the year in most sections, maximum temperatures were not unusually high at any time and no prolonged hot spells were experienced. No previous high records were broken in any sections of the country.

Balance Is Promised in State Treasury

Lincoln, Neb., March 17. A report alleging that there is no deficit in any of the state departments and that instead of their being a deficit at the close of the biennium July 1, 1923, there will be a balance of $1,150,000 on hand, was filed by Sen. Eugene C. McCarthy, both houses of the legislature yesterday. The governor's name was not directly mentioned in the report, but it is intended to refute the statement of Governor Bryan, issued recently that there would be a probable deficit of $4,000,000 at the close of 1923. The report was signed by Sen. Reed and Gen. S. B. Hastings, and Representatives W. B. Hastings and Harrison.

Bridge Bill Advanced
The Yankton bridge bill was advanced to third reading in the senate yesterday. The bill provides that on petition of five counties the department of public works may issue state aid not to exceed $100,000 toward building an approach to the interstate bridge.

The Yankton bridge is partially complete, being financed by special Nebraska and South Dakota groups. Both legislative supporters urge that state aid for the project will increase the usefulness of the Meridian Highway and ultimately mean better railroad facilities in that section of the state.

Another bill advanced to third reading was the Rickard measure for an amendment to the state constitution providing a $200 exemption on household goods. A second proposition involves taxation of municipalities and activities and the third contemplates the taxation of bonds and other indebtedness of the state and its subdivisions.

Former Wayne Woman Passes Away Feb. 25

Mrs. A. P. Brenner, a former resident of Wayne, died Feb. 25, in Hartford, S. D. She was about 59 years old and besides her husband, leaves one daughter, Mrs. E. H. Brenner Brown of Hartford. Mr. Brenner was in the elevator business in Wayne about twenty years ago.

Sleighting Benefits And Pleases Youths

Seniors of the Wayne high school, accompanied by Mrs. Nellie Glinnes and Miss Glennie Jason, enjoyed a bobbed-ride last Thursday evening. Two sleds of merry young folks rode about town and in the country, never thinking of the cold wind and the snow being kicked by the spirited horses into the wagons. All thoughts were turned to having a good-time and that they die.

Most all young folks, in the few sleigh rides they have these days, get a real pleasure that is long remembered. One could properly name these "days of real sport." True sportsmanship is depleted at its best. Frills and shillies are set aside. Everyone helps the group in the excitement.

A sleigh ride is not the same as a sleighing party. It is the excitement of the hair and the style of the gown have so much influence in determining popularity. Sleighting is a democratic sport. It is also healthful and should be kept as one of the pleasures for young folks. This pastime, and others such as horseback riding, playing tennis and the like, will make healthy and attractive men and women who will need no cosmetics for their beauty and who will have a wholesome recreation for their leisure time.

Springtime Brings Renewed Activity

With spring one's spirits are buoyed to a high pitch. Just before Easter is the feeling of an awakening to renewed life prevalent. All nature is rich in latent possibilities soon to unfold. The human personality is imbued with the same impulse, a renewed incentive to accomplishment.

They flowers peak timidly but resolutely from beneath the snow. Each is overlaid with an innate desire to unfold into the most perfect of its species. As each little flower appears it seems to be rivaling all of its kind in an attempt to excel in the realization of its possibilities.

Each man and woman, each individual has his or her talents which seek manifestation. Each person meets competition from others who possess similar abilities, just as each flower competes with others of its kind. If the individual, as the flower, can develop his possibilities to the fullest extent he will be doing a service of inestimable value to society.

It is not womanly for a woman or manly for a man to sit idly by and leave another to attain aspirations sponsored by renewed endeavor at the springtime. It is time to grasp a new lease on life, and work diligently toward ideals.

"Unearned Increment."
National Republican (Washington): A middle west senator, whose campaign specialty is the old one-off baiting business and claiming to be of the people's few friends in public life, has recently issued a statement showing how plans to solve the transportation problem by bankrupting the railroads—his declares that he is going to "squeeze the water out of the railroads" by denying their unearned increment as a part of the investment upon which interest must be earned.

This observation about "unearned increment" is expected to make it with the farmers, to whom a decrease in freight rates is promised along with further increases of railway labor costs as a bait to "the labor vote." That phrase, however, suggests something that may give some land owning farmers cause for wonder as to whether it is to their interests to array themselves with the forces of confiscation and depopulation. The "unearned increment" idea was applied by its author, Henry George, to increase in value of real estate. It was his theory that the profits which come to land owners through the growth of land prices do not belong to private owners, but to the public in general, and that the way to equalize this injustice is to collect all taxes from land, practically to confiscate it. The land is the state represented by the senator who is out to seize the unearned increment, is even at this time of depression in agriculture, being advertised for sale at prices ranging around $300 an acre. The single tax confiscationist call attention to the fact that this land was bought by the original owners for $1.25 an acre. The owners did not create the land nor have they added much if any fertility to it. Why should the building of railroads, the settlement of the country and the improvements brought about by general taxation give to the land owner the unearned increment represented by the book value of land in its wild state as compared with land in a community where society has provided transportation, markets, schools, roads and other elements entering into land values?

It may thus be seen that the same argument applied by the farmer who has to give up before the changing demagogue against railroads may be turned by some other demagogue against the farm owner. The basis of political action is envy and hatred by those who have against those who have not, one plan of confiscation is followed by another. How long will it be before the farmer who whoops it up for assaults on property himself becomes the victim of the gospel that no one has a right in property which a majority in politics is bound to respect? Why should not the broad acres of the land owner be divided up for the benefit of those who have no land, and who are now compelled to pay interest upon an investment which does not represent original investment? In a piece of property?

No sensible farmer, no matter what his immediate grievances may be, will give up his land for anything intended to benefit him at the expense of other elements in society, even if in combination with other farmers he is able to elect a politician who may put him temporarily in a political majority. The spirit of confiscation will not stop with seizure of the property of "big business," a plan that has been done there still will remain, as the possible dupe of demagogues, more people who have no money or less land than the average farmer, than those who have. The principle of destroying vested rights having been established, the American farmer will be next in line for a trimming. Consorting with demagogue politicians will prove to be a costly and in the end highly offensive association for the American farmer.

The girl who wishes to be regarded an ideal will not smoke or use profanity. And every girl should be ambitious to reflect highest qualities of culture and refinement.

When nature arranged people it seems to have designed different and often very conflicting tastes. Some people do not relish social functions. They don't feel at ease. They don't know what to do next. Others can't bear solitude and are never happier than when they are a part of a social group, exchanging banalities or profanities, helping bubbling nothings or expressing serious thoughts on involved problems. We would suggest that nature has not always observed rules of moderation. One person needs a little more sociability, while another needs a little less. This of course nature will accept as a mere suggestion.

A good deal may be said in favor of the home town. It may not be so big as some other towns, but it is where one has acquaintance, and acquaintance is an important asset. One may have peculiarities that would hinder success among strangers. In the home town his oddities are excused. He is known and understood and his good qualities are taken into consideration. He gets by in the home town. In a strange place he would have to experience a long period of probation before being accepted for what he is actually worth. It is a good idea to stand up for the home town and not put in spare time finding fault and trying to tear it down.

In the current Kiwanis Magazine Fred E. Martin contributes an article dealing with what he terms "shootin' blind poison." He means the communist movement which has fastened its crushing grip on Russia and which is said to be working stealthily to do the same thing to the United States. He is described as cutting as it is peniculous. By its sophistries it lures into its destroying meshes those who often are well intentioned, but who for not understanding communism would, if possible, do for this country what it has done for Russia where people have become impoverished and miserable. A great deal of unrest, distrust—and class hatred may be traced to radical movements whose ultimate purpose is believed to be a Lenin form of government in Russia.

Wakefield is said to be approaching a proposition to sell up a new school house. It is an accommodation growing population. The question of meeting the need is to be fought out this spring, as we understand. Those who favor the improvement point out the importance of meeting educational demands if the town is to attract new residents and keep on growing. Opponents take out the old and often used slogan of "High Taxes." With "High Taxes" playing the leading role and occupying the center of the stage, those against are able to make a powerful appeal to many sensitive pocketbooks. The same argument has been used since the beginning of civilization. It is so in the habit of offering opposition that it comes frowning to the front when any public improvement is suggested. "High Taxes" favored attaching to candles and oil lamps, ox carts and cradle scythes, unpaired streets and adobe houses. Over the tax barrier every proposed advancement has been fought. It tends to lessen the urge for the real merit of a forward step. Either Wakefield needs a new school house or it does not need one. It needs one, its progress people can be depended on to make due provision.

It has been announced that President Harding will be a candidate in 1924 to succeed himself. No word has come directly from him, though it is supposed the report accords with his present state of mind. The president has had a big task, and to his credit, he has surrounded himself with a cabinet of exceptional ability. His hope for popular endorsement depends largely on events of the next year. Conditions that develop may help or hinder his return to the presidency. Ford's effort often succeeds in discrediting and defeating an administration, no matter how wise, sound and conscientious may be its course. Thus, facing unusual problems, President Harding may meet disappointment, though deserving approval and reinstatement. Handling subsequent national and international troubles, sometimes beyond human agency to control satisfactorily, will have much to do in determining success or failure at the polls next year.

During the bitter cold Sunday forenoon when temperatures hovered below zero, the new residence of W. D. Hill, in the first and second streets, was destroyed by fire. Firemen were called out. Damage by fire, smoke and water will amount to about $1,500. The property was insured. The fire whose origin is believed to have been incendiary, started in the basement. Partially burned remains were found in the hallway. Mr. and Mrs. Hill were at the home of the former's father in the north part of the city. No fire was in the furnace. Mr. Hill attaches to the burning of Mr. Hall's barn on February 14, and it is now believed both fires were started by some one bent on malicious destruction. It is understood an effort will be made to detect the guilty person and bring him to justice. Mr. Hill had recently completed his new home with the intention of fixing up and beautifying the surrounding grounds. To have his property destroyed in this manner and his son is discouraging to say the least.

The Youthful Mode

By Muriel Mérens

How far we are removed from the day when the style for children was just a miniature of the style for parents. And it is really quite recently that becomingly childish fashions have been devised for children. But now the mode for children has a distinct and separate existence. Of course, now and then it is influenced by the "adult" fashions, but it does not follow them slavishly. When one thinks back just a few hundred years to the time when little girls of six or seven wore frocks which reached the floor, we realize what a long way we have traveled. It is on this question of length that the childish mode has definitely decided to go its own way, for their little frocks and coats are quite as short as ever.

Early Frocks of Children.
When the little girl under ten goes to a party, she is quite likely to wear a frock of finely pleated rose-colored cloth. For children of this age, a frock edged with fur. Or she may choose a delicate pink, crepe de chine with an edging of tiny spots and dots. Or it may be a frock of brightly crisp smart she may choose to wear in the most delicate of flimsy mou tafteta. The younger she is the less she objects to a hot frock.

On its six months, the frock is worn on her frocks. They will just hang short and fall from the shoulder. Her sleeves will be quite tiny—hardly more than caps and she is certain to favor the bareleg.

If she is a little older, her frock will have a long blouse with the full line just at the top of the hip. When this little miss attends a party it may well be in a youthfully crisp tafteta frock of a shimmering yellow trimmed with a quaint little pattern of flowers about the hips. Or if she likes the softness of chiffon, she may wear a frock whose long flows in of a heavenly blue taffeta with a dainty skirt of softly ruffled blue chiffon.

White Linen for Playtime.
When the younger miss spends a gleaming shiny morning playing on the sands or in some cool shaded wood she will be quite the fashion if she wears a white linen frock with yellow lining binding the Peter Pan collar, the short, full cap sleeves and buttoned front. This frock also hangs straight from the shoulder with yellow lining binding the Peter Pan collar, the short, full cap sleeves and buttoned front. This frock also hangs straight from the shoulder with yellow lining binding the Peter Pan collar, the short, full cap sleeves and buttoned front.

Rose, bright yellow, green and blue linen with white linen trimmings made in this straight simple style are charming for children. The gaily checked ginghams are also very appropriate for these little frocks. As she grows older, the young girl of under fifteen is very apt to copy her street clothes ered a bit—not a great deal at that—and styles have been simplified, prices of the finished products have decreased, too.

The idea of cutting down on the number of styles has reduced the task of both manufacturer and retailer. As a result both are in a happier frame of mind. "Leftovers" have been sent down to the minimum. The vari-colored tops and the two-toned effects of past seasons have been shelved for the time being, with little promise of a return for a long, long time to come.

Naturally, there will be a few friskish-leads to satisfy some extraordinary whim, but such footwear is far in the minority. Black lowers with tan or brown uppers have gone into the discard, while the single-toned shoe or oxford will lead the way.

Corlewan leather, which once was the vogue, also has taken a back seat, despite its wonderful quality of service and durability. The non-porous condition of this leather is said to have been the cause of much foot trouble. But the corlewan shades, however, will be retained as the found popularity among the younger men.

Dark browns promise to get quite a play this spring and summer. There, too, will be the lighter tan shades. Blacks, of course, will have quite a following as will ecoo-brown, mahogany, russet, and Havana brown.

Gummed finishes will go strong as usual, with vicid and glossier finishes second in the race for popularity.

The narrow English custom foot, which the medium ball shoe will continue to favor among the younger fellows, while the wider and more comfortable lasts, with plenty of toe room, are for those who prefer to sacrifice style to comfort.

Brogues will be worn extensively, but the winged tips and perforated heels will drop off a bit in general appeal.

Spats for the ultra-dresser will continue in favor and the colors will be much like the shoes—black, grays, fawn, buff and back sold in the majority.

More Laws, More Lawlessness.
[Minneapolis Tribune:] It seems to us that the one way to have law-breaking would be to have less law-making. You're bound to have more laws broken if you have 100,000 on your statute books than if you had 500 on your statute books. And if people get in the habit of breaking minor and useless laws lightly, it requires no great leap to get in the habit of breaking major and useful laws lightly. Isn't it about time that we began seeing the connection between leading the world in lawlessness and leading the world in laws?

Curiosity calls side as the one of a fire are very likely to delay urgent messages.

There's Danger When Everybody Asks, "Where's the Fire?"

Do you realize the danger in your community is placed when you ask, "Where's the fire?"

Curiosity calls at the time of a fire always slow down and often paralyze the service, making it impossible for our operators to handle other calls promptly.

A second fire alarm, a call for a doctor or other emergency messages, might be held up because of these curiosity calls and tragic results follow.

You will best serve the interest of the community by not asking the operator to give you the location of a fire.

News and notes of what Semi-Solid Buttermilk is doing for Wayne county farmers and their good wives.

Four Carloads Sold This Week

Randolph, Laurel, Concord, Stanton and Plover have placed carload orders for buttermilk to supply a well established demand in their respective communities. Everywhere hogs and poultry are raised demands are quite as active as in Northeast Nebraska.

Cash Arrival Terms

Semi-Solid shippers are maintaining cash arrival terms to all dealers which necessitates milk being sold for cash. This item is sold on a brokerage margin and it's unfair to ask your dealer to deviate from cash terms.

Mrs. Oliver Relieves in Buttermilk

That buttermilk builds and maintains health is a well settled fact. Mrs. Oliver intends raising several hundred chickens and will rely on Semi-Solid fed right from the barrel with rolled oats to carry the chick through the critical stage—the first four weeks. Buttermilk will be used in the hog industry again this season by Mrs. Oliver and her sons.

Ask Mrs. W. H.

Echtcamp as to virtue of Semi-Solid for poultry. On this farm you will see little chicks and laying hens all thrifty and in the best of condition. Fowls have free access to Semi-Solid and the egg production is up to full efficiency. Mrs. Echtcamp knows by actual results the benefit derived. Mr. Echtcamp is a successful hog man. Feeds Semi-Solid diluted in water and gets at least 2,000 gallons from a barrel. W. H. is a constant feeder of Semi-Solid and relies on it to shore up the feeding period—create health and put more profit in the industry.

The results obtained by using a barrel of buttermilk is worth double the cost of it.

Thousands of small chicks are lost by improper feeding. This loss can be corrected by the merits of Semi-Solid Buttermilk, also the use of bran or oatmeal with the buttermilk is advisable. Do not feed raw corn products in any form until chicks are four weeks old.

Carload Out Meal

75 Per Cent Sold
Will save thousands of chicks. The car is due to arrive the forepart of next week. We expect to sell another car next month. Big demand has increased price 25c per bag. By ordering from us you can get original bags. Price $3.50 original bags. Special price in lot lots.

Ten Barrels Semi-Solid for Hoskins

Farmers in the remote part of the county are alert to the merits of Semi-Solid and send in their orders early. Hoskins territory without a local dealer will use at least 120 barrels of buttermilk this season.

Do not feed buttermilk to chicks in metal containers. Use stone, crock or better yet, a pail on a corks' board and suspend a few inches from the floor.

Bantam Chicken Chicks on Display

Mrs. Ed Michaels believes in the chicken industry, also in buttermilk. Three days before Easter she will have on display a number of thoroughbred bantams and some little ones. Mrs. Michaels will have some good specimens for sale. They are beautiful.

J. R. Rundell

Fashion Grams

When they opened the 3,000-year-old tomb of the Egyptian King Tut-Ankh-Amen they found undreamt of treasures with designs and colors of unsurpassed beauty. We will undoubtedly see an adaptation of these Egyptian effects in ladies' wearing apparel and while it is hardly probable that our women folk will leave off hats and adopt the royal headdress and bare-foot sandals, still it is a certainty that the Egyptian colorings and figures will appear in our silks, dress goods and trimmings and sandal effects in our low shoes.

You will find us prepared to furnish these latest style ideas as fast as they are brought out.

Among the new goods received this week are smart silk blouses in the new "Fancy" colorings—wool sport skirts in attractive plaids and checks, handsomely gold and silver brocaded silks for trimmings—the "Naxos" weaves in slip-over sweaters made up in gay colors—pretty figured cretonne and chintz for home decoration and several new numbers in silk hosiery of the splendid wearing Wayne Knit quality.

discouraged. We hope for more favorable weather and better road conditions for next Sunday. We look for a Palm Sunday that, for profit, at least, will be long remembered.

The senior class of catechumens will be confirmed next Sunday at 11 a. m. The sermon is prepared especially with a view of helpfulness to the confirmation class. The subject of the sermon is "Growth." At this service there will also be the reception of new members and parents will be given an opportunity to present their children for baptism.

Sunday school convenes promptly at 10 a. m. Do not delay the opening hour by being late.

There will be two important services next week (Holy week) and we are very anxious that as many of our members as possible can be present at both. Our preparatory service and the first communion service will be held on Thursday evening at 7:30, and on Good Friday morning there will be preaching at 10:30. Both of these services deserve the attention of the entire congregation.

Our second communion will take place on Easter morning at 11 o'clock. This second service is given for the benefit of the aged and those who are unable to attend on Thursday night.

Since the next regular meeting of the Aid society would fall on Thursday of Holy Week, it was decided to postpone it one week. Place of meeting will be announced from the pulpit.

Geo. T. Porter Guest In Hotel That Burns

George T. Porter who was in Lincoln from Monday until Wednesday last week was one of the guests at the Victoria hotel when the building which broke out in a paint and glass factory next door destroyed part of the hotel in which 120 persons were spending the night. Mr. Porter escaped without any injury and suffered the loss of only his collar and tie. The proprietor of the hotel, when he saw fire in the building which he owned and knew it was spreading to the hotel, calmly wakened the guests by asking them if they cared to see the fire. Mr. Porter, who was in the room with Mr. Porter, arose and was ready to leave the building on notice. Others did not heed the warning and had to make their way out as best they could. The proprietor gave the warning as he did to prevent confusion. The hotel, 2025, with gas masks on their faces, made two trips to the top of the building to gather up baggage but the roof fell in and the front and upper stories of the building were burned so that effort to save more was stopped. Mr. Porter was a guest at another hotel Tuesday night and, out of concern for the Victoria hotel management, this hotel did not charge for his room. He returned home Wednesday evening feeling that one such experience was sufficient.

Marked at the Cross. On Calvary's rugged brow there stood a wooden cross, Erected there by angry man; But not in such compelled by pain Divine—God never drives His child to that which causes loss— But raised there by maddened slaves of sin.

When they aloud with angry voices, When-by the ruler given choice, "Give us the thief; but Jesus said, "Oh hear their awful din!" Above the cross was placed a written scroll, That all who passed—that way in Chicago, The crime of him there nailed to the tree; And in that crime might find a plea— "King of the Jews," so ran the plea; "Not that He is a King, but He did choose. To call Himself a King," so cried the Jews. In answer to the governor's charge, so bold, "What I have written may not be erased, The Latin, Hebrew and the Greek. Must stand that all who will may seek. The crime for which He on the cross was placed. And at the cross today there stands a mighty throng To read the words, and hail Him King. All nations must His final praises sing; All peoples at the cross shall lift a holy song.—John Grant. Lift a Business.

St. Louis City, Mo. The pendulum of business recovery which has been swinging steadily for some time is now moving rapidly to and fro. In fact the speed is being accelerated right now until there is the temptation on the part of an observer to call it a lull movement. Some observers are calling it nothing less and it is not certain that they are in error in their characterization. At any rate it can be said—and substantiated—that the progress toward the most satisfying prosperity is very rapid in this country. One thing which indicates that the country's business is booming, or at least a boom, is the swiftness of the various price advances. Advances outnumber declines by three to one. The rule applies to all commodities, but principally to manufactured products which usually dominate market practices. The reason for the increased prices is plain enough. In fact, there are two outstanding reasons, the one an increased demand resulting from a stronger buying power, and the other, a higher cost of production influenced by stiffer prices for raw materials and labor. It is not believed that the peak is near, either as to time or distance, although there is little alarm felt anywhere over the fact that prices are to go back to what they were during the war. That practically can be guaranteed. Living costs are going to fluctuate for some time, and while they are not going back to the low figure that obtained before the war, neither will they ascend again to a mass to the mountainous heights to which they shot during the conflict.

The eastern factory centers continue their complaint that there is a labor shortage. Factory plants are advertising for both skilled and common labor. There is a slight labor shortage in some of the automobile manufacturing centers, notably Detroit, although it is not yet serious. It is expected, however, that when the middle west agricultural demands are made for workers, manufacturing districts will have a labor shortage as experienced by the farmers. Up to now they have had all the help they need. The advance in prices has influenced a warning from several business leaders and government officials against the trend toward inflation. Many big mercantile houses, however, believe prices have gone as high as they should and that the spur is only temporary, an urging moderation in buying and the conservative handling of products.

Advertising and Publicity. "Lincoln Journal." The death of the "human fly" in New York is directly chargeable, according to a keen critic of the newspaper, to the activities of the press agent. This critic astutely draws the distinction between advertising and publicity. One is the purchase of space for the purpose of massing legitimate business news in the newspaper. The other is the creation of a fictitious state of circumstances in the hope that it may be worked off on the city editors and upon the public as news. The success of the press agents in circumventing the New York publishers in recent weeks has been the reason for a number of well merited gibes. The "human fly" was surely made a part of a great system of bilking the public, and fooling the public to keep his pet supplied with raw meat. Also a story of the alleged suicide of a number of these widely exploited fakes only served in Central Park. The number of these widely exploited fakes may be small in proportion to the number admitted, but the successful ones are numerous enough to amount to a roughness to the newspaper's craft. If the public paid less at statements reflect honestly as well as business enterprise and sagacity. More and more they are vivid, compelling statements of trade opportunities which the wide awake citizen cannot afford to ignore. A newspaper without advertising would be a same product to a denizen of the modern world.
