Impressive Eloquence Holds Close Attention of Audience—Appropriate Music Is Given.

The court house, upstairs and downstairs, was thronged by people who gathered there Sunday afternoon for the new bronze tablet erected in the lobby of the building in honor of the soldiers and sailors of the late war.

The program was given in the court room. John T. Batten, one of the late county officers of defense, through whose initial instrumentalities the tablet was furnished, presided over the program. St. Paul's Lutheran church gave the prayer. The college band, under the leadership of Prof. W. Hunter gave the music for the occasion.

The speaker emphasized the fact that the tablet is essentially the country's wars. He said history of the late war would not be finished until it could be viewed from all angles and without bias.

Intangible Tax Bill Not Held in Favor

Lincoln, Neb., April 18.—The senate committee today voted yesterday afternoon gave evidence of an intention to permit the bill to reach the law taxing intangible property and the estate tax for other property to die. A majority of the revenue members voted against supporting it for the general file.

HERRICK

THE ARISTOCRAT OF REFRIGERATORS

The grand piano is far more than merely a keyboard and a sounding board. Likewise, the HERRICK is far more than simply an ice box—far more than a cold storage place.

The design of a grand piano counts for much. Its construction is carefully worked out in accord with advanced principles. Other pianos produce music, but it remains for the grand piano—the aristocrat of pianos—to achieve the production of perfect harmony.

The arrangement of a HERRICK is a vital factor in its efficiency and economy. Its design is in accord with the correct principles of refrigeration. Other refrigerators may produce cold air, but it remained for the HERRICK—the aristocrat of refrigerators—to introduce into refrigerator construction the cold, dry air circulation, the effective insulation, and many other features that are now recognized as essential to perfect refrigeration.

Refrigerator building has been the sole function of the HERRICK factory for more than a quarter of a century. Originally built to achieve a reputation as the world's best refrigerator, the HERRICK is built today, as then, with the utmost care so as to insure maintenance of that reputation.

The HERRICK has consistently won highest awards wherever shown at expositions or exhibitions. It has been paid the further compliment of imitation.

But some HERRICK features are too costly to invite imitation. Still others are patented to prevent imitation.

Despite all these facts; despite its standing as the aristocrat of refrigerators, the HERRICK is available to all. Aristocracy, like refinement, is not confined only to those who can display wealth.

The reasonable cost of the HERRICK refrigerator makes its efficiency, its economy, its cleanliness, its satisfaction available for the modest home as well as for the finest mansion or apartment building. There is a right size for every need and there is a need for a HERRICK wherever food-keeping is regarded in its true importance.

Juniors of Normal Score Big Success

The junior class of the State Normal school won deserved praise in presentation of the "Hottentot" in the school auditorium last Thursday night. The auditorium was packed and the keen interest of the big audience was excited and held from start to finish.

The "Hottentot" which was reviewed by the Herald in advance, was a horse, and it was a veritable treat, according to the interpretation. Henry Ley in the comedy part of Sam Harrington, and Miss Anna B. Evans as Peggy, occupied leading parts and they captivated the crowd the former with rich comedy, and the latter with a wonderful smile and winsome manner. Paul Crossland as Swift was a material stimulus to the life and good humor of the production. All members of the cast fitted well into their respective parts and the result was fine balance and uniform strength.

At an appropriate juncture, gifts of flowers were sent to the platform for the ladies members of the cast and for Mrs. Minnie V. Whittemyer, all of whom made due acknowledgment.

Mrs. Whittemyer deserves much credit for her cheerfulness and for her successful work in training the students.

The acts were interspersed with music by Prof. W. S. Hunter's excellent orchestra.

It should be remembered that the "Hottentot" will be presented in moving pictures at the Crystal Theatre in Wayne, April 30 and May 1. The famous horseshoe as a climax will be shown. Those who saw the stage performance will want to see the pictures.

Oscar Schavland, division superintendent of the Sherwood School of Musie, Chicago, spent Sunday evening's musical for Mrs. Keyser's pupils and others.

Wayne.—In the afternoon he played a series of musical numbers for the young men of Mrs. Grace Keyser's City, who was here visiting the family. Mr. Schavland has promised to return some time and give an evening's musical for Mrs. Keyser's pupils and others.

Herald Acknowledges Favorable Mention

Believing readers are entitled to know some of the good things said about their newspaper, the Herald, trying to escape a charge of wanting good taste, offers the following quotations, in a spirit of appreciation, but not in a spirit of superiority or with a feeling of superiority.

Mid-West Printer and Publisher. The Wayne (Nebraska) Herald is fast gaining a reputation of being the best read-up paper, the best displayed, the cleanest print, and the best advertising medium of any of the leading papers of the country. Under the management of E. W. Huse the paper has gained an enviable reputation, which is extending across the border into foreign near-by countries. The Canadian Printer and Publisher of Toronto, Canada, in its issue for January, 1923, contains a three-page story about this journal under the head of "A Leading U. S. Weekly." One double-page in this edition is devoted to the leading "Inventor" of Wakefield, while another double-page is devoted to Wayne advertisers. One cannot describe "this newspaper" prodigies they have to be seen to be appreciated and it would well be worth the money for country weeklies to pay the price for this newspaper and take it as a rule and guide for better printing.

Mr. M. A. Phillips, Omaha Teacher. "In proof of the Wayne Herald, and for the life I once did on it. There is no country paper better, and it has given me ideals for city daily as well."

H. L. Peck in Randolph Times. "Again does honor come to the Wayne Herald and its editor, E. W. Huse. The Herald has been awarded the silver cup for the best editorial published in a Nebraska country newspaper during the year."

F. O. Edgecombe in Geneva Signal. "The Wayne Herald has received numerous favorable notices recently on account of certain displayed advertising that has appeared in its columns. The Inland Printer, the leading trade journal of its class in the United States and unexcelled anywhere as far as we knew, and the National Printer-Journalist devoted space to reproductions of certain two-page spreads and mentioned their mechanical excellence. Now comes the Canadian Printer with three pages devoted to the same matter. Editor Huse and his able mechanical superintendent, Al Nelson, are entitled to congratulations because of their ability to meet the high standard set by the leading journals of the printing and publishing trade and also because of the opportunity that advertisers give them to exercise their skill in the preparation of copy and its mechanical reproduction."

F. D. Stone in Hartington Herald. "The Wayne Herald, which has attained a national reputation as a country weekly preexcellence, has been recently featured in an extensive way by such national magazines as the Inland Printer, the National Printer-Journalist and other leading journals. These magazines devote considerable space to the Wayne Herald and its editor, and recount in detail this remarkable story of achievement in the newspaper field. As a matter of fact, the Wayne Herald is an ideal newspaper, and the strange thing is that its editor is a very modest man. In spite of his success, Mr. Huse does not think it necessary to proclaim from the house tops that he is the greatest editor in the world. What he has achieved, he has achieved without brag, and in a representation of underhanded attacks upon his competitors."

Bug House Gazette. May issue of the Bug House Gazette, published by the Bonnet-Brown Advertising Sales Service, Chicago.

"A silver award is being heaped upon the noble brow of E. W. Huse, editor of the Wayne Herald of Wayne, Neb. Here we have been telling right along of how the Inland Printer and other trade publications were lauding the Wayne Herald's ads as perfect specimens of the craft. Now along comes word that Mr. Huse has carried off honors in another field—namely, editorial writing.

"A silver cup was awarded him by the Nebraska Press Association for the best editorial printed in a country newspaper during the year. The article in question, was printed on Jan. 4, under the heading "Attacking School System." It was written by Mr. Huse in defense of the schools of the state which had been singled out at group meetings for special attack in behalf of economy and tax reductions.

"Congratulations, Mr. Huse! Verily, a man's work speaks for itself." A. F. Allen, Editor, Sioux City Journal.

"Sioux City, Ia., Feb. 20, 1923.
"Mr. E. W. Huse
Wayne, Nebraska.
"My Dear Mr. Huse:
"I have observed with great interest—the articles concerning your paper in the National Printer-Journalist and the Canadian Printer and Publisher. The Wayne Herald and you at its published are highly honored by these publications. You already know how highly I esteem the excellence of your paper, both from a mechanical and editorial standpoint. The distinction that has come to you is an honor of merit. It pays to be painstaking and thorough. That is the moral of your story. I hope that the moral will be impressed deeply upon the minds of all newspaper publishers, daily as well as weekly. A good many publishers and editors have yet to make the discovery that good printing and good editing pays, both in the way of personal gratification and in dollars and cents.

"I am accepting my congratulations, together with all good wishes for you in your work.

Sincerely,
A. F. Allen."

The Inland Printer for April, Wayne Herald, Wayne, Nebraska.

"We are reproducing the special two-page Lincoln-Washington spread from your issue of February 15, as it represents not only an exceptionally fine piece of typography work, but suggests an idea which other readers of this department may profit. We have long considered your paper one of the best all-around magazines in the world, and it maintains its standard of excellence consistently."

Couples Good Sense of Age With Youth

One of Wayne's elderly gentlemen is young. Whenever one sees him on the street he is whistling or talking in a jovial, friendly manner. He is always happy and he makes others happy. If one is working hard in an office and sees him pass whistling a merry tune and walking as spryly as a young chap who has just received his diploma from the high school, it gladdens the soul and puts zest into one's endeavor. Picture the contrast between this man and some grumpy gentleman who bears a sour countenance and looks as if he has a smile or word of cheer for anyone. The good sense of advanced age coupled with the friendly, happy spirit of youth makes an individual nature which pleases and adds joy to the world which is already full enough of strife and grief.

Everyone may not express his cheerful jovial nature in the same way as the man mentioned. But however expressed, such a personality makes one many friends.

Leaps to Safety.

Verdel, Neb., April 13.—Leaping from his automobile just as it was struck by passenger train No. 100 Wednesday morning on the first crossing west of Verdel, Mike Stiefvater probably saved his life or at least escaped serious injury.

Mr. Stiefvater was bringing a can of cream to town and did not see the approaching train until it was upon him. The engine struck the car just as he leaped from it. The car was carried about fifty feet on the pilot, the engine and derailed, right side-up in a ditch on the south side of the tracks. Mr. Stiefvater in his leap from the car just cleared the tracks.

The can of cream landed on the ground near the car, intact, and the train, which was running slowly, stopped and picked up Mr. Stiefvater and brought him to his car at cream to the Verdel station.

Killed in a Runaway.
Gordon, Neb., April 14: Chris Michaelson of this way was thrown from a wagon in a runaway and rendered unconscious and was taken to the hospital morning and died at 11 o'clock p. m.

Mr. Michaelson had gone to his ranch north of town at an early hour in the morning. On the road he met a tractor drawing a hayrack loaded with furniture. The team became frightened and ran away, throwing Mr. Michaelson to the ground. He never regained consciousness. Funeral services will be conducted Sunday at the Methodist church.

When a young man begins to pace down his hat, or to adjust the heels as well as the toes of his shoes and otherwise persist in dolling up, he is beginning to take notice of fascinating young women.

Most people have sense of humor. Occasionally there is one who cannot appreciate anything beyond the snarl of a meal of steaming victuals, but he is a rare and conspicuous exception. The masses enjoy sparkling banter and contribute to it.

It is reported that Prof. Einstein is about to announce a new discovery regarding the nature of light in the matter of mastering Einstein's theories, we fear, considering Einstein's productivity, that people will be a lot of unshod and unshined that will last as long as the war debt.

It is hoped the governor and legislators will stop playing political piousness long enough to make due provision for the running of the state institutions during the coming session. We don't like the idea of the governor and his hired hands at Lincoln rail money to raise barriers against essential progress.

An employer of a large number of men suffers the risk of making contracts that hold him, but do not hold them. He hires a man without financial responsibility, and exchanges nicely printed, elaborately worded and appropriately guaranteed contracts. He is tied up completely. The ceremony of being a party to a contract is impressive, but to the part of the employer is usually supported by nothing stronger than sense of honor. The contract is manifestly one-sided.

The current Literary Digest devotes its chief review to bolshevism's challenge to the Christian religion. The open and flagrant assaults on Christianity by the Times of Moscow, the putting to death or imprisonment of church leaders, have shocked and outraged the civilized world. When Bukharin, Wrangel and Kozhich have been forgotten even in Russia," says the Philadelphia Public Ledger, "when the great famine of 1921 has faded from the memory and the Czars of yesterday are no more than a legend on the steppes, the story of the martyrdom in Moscow will be alive in the world. The services have raised against themselves new and powerful enemies who will not forget."

Horse racing was a fine sport until it became the source of much gambling. It forfeited much popular interest when betting became the main idea. Baseball, the so-called national game, has been hurt by the betting habit. Other sports, other-wise, are also being hurt. Gambling, should be kept aloof as far as possible from gambling. Many excellent people just naturally like to gamble. They take a chance. It is a favorable spirit is instinctive, and it often becomes wild and rampant in its perverting influence. It cannot justly be called a crime. It is a crime of its possibilities for injury would seem to apply justify the law which raises a barrier of restraint. Sports, to the extent which are, and helpful, should not be allowed to fall under the spell of the betting mania.

Dissemblers are those who are not what they pretend to be. They addressly conceal their motives and real purpose. They submerge the truth in order to gain advantage. The dissembler in politics for a long time if he is not too awkward and bald in his role of duplicity and smooth cunning. In the ordinary course of life the dissembler does not do great harm if he can avoid detection and escape expression of a definite opinion. He is never dependent on anything, can be dismissed until the cows come home and no one will be hurt or care. But the pretensions of public office assumes responsibility and is expected to discharge obligations to the public. In trying to carry favor with voters and be all things to all men, he is liable to trip and fall, and then he finds difficulty in rising to his feet again. But the worst dissembler we can think of is one who, knowing the truth will permit it to be covered and do another injustice.

The great masses in America are reasonable, sound and progressive in their religious beliefs and church affiliations. We have some groups that are too tolerant and others that are too intolerant. Extremism on the one hand accept the form but not the spirit of the church, and they pay no more attention to observance of the Golden Rule or to practice of Christian principles than they do to the rings of Saturn. They don't know whether the Golden Rule is a precept, injunction, cold drink or hot beverage, we believe. But we have screaming intolerance. A fine young man was recently invited to apply for a superintendency of a school in a little town. (We say "little" significantly.) He responded, and in approaching a contract, he was informed that he must agree not to attend church every Sunday and to assist the pastor in conducting services. They he was questioned in regard to his regard to evolution. Finding that he had a leaning to evolution, he was informed that it was a serious objection to his fitness to have such a notion in his mind even though he did not teach it. The last obstruction was the fact that he did not belong to the predominating church. One group that pulls too far one way leads another group to pull too far the other way, a condition aggravated by the tens and nervous tension of the reconstruction period. We are encouraged to believe both extremists will yield in due time to an alchemy of sound, fraternal help and constructive Christianity. We hope so.

COIN A NEW WORD.
"I invented a good word lately "radio" is a verb to be used instead of or interchangeably with "broadcasted." We submit that this is a good strong word, and that, if Webster, for example, had invented it, it would become instantly popular. The concert was radioed from Harrington, is good English, "is" is a verb, and we would like to hear the opinion of the literary editor of the Wayne Herald."—Harrington Herald.

Editor F. D. Stone of the Harrington Herald is a worthy graduate of Princeton and a man of acknowledged literary excellence, and therefore we have had to buy largely that since he led his new-born word over to us for consideration. Of course, any word that expresses desirability should be allowed to live. We think "radioed" will trot along as a respectable synonym for "broadcasted."
A few years ago Editor Stone frowned on both "autoed" and "motored," and the literary critic of the Sioux City Journal took the same position. We thought the editor of the Journal were wrong, but we deferred to their judgment and choked down use of the two words as much as we could. It was not long until the Journal began using "motored." We doubt if the Journal would yet grant equal standing to "autoed."
"Radioed" has about the same relationship to operation of the radio set as "autoed" has to the working of an automobile, as we believe. We have some who like "motored" better than "autoed," but we can sense no objection to the latter. It will take time to develop the same thrill over "radioed" as one feels over "broadcasted." "Broadcasted" seems to fling one farther into circumambient ether. But "radioed" is all right, and we are going to adopt it. At first we shall use it with reference to rather restricted distances, confining the big parent synonym, "broadcasted," where we want to speak of encircling the earth or communicating with celestial bodies.

Old Indian Fighter In Fatal Accident

Omaha, Neb., April 18.—Fighting snuffing, gray-haired old "Lone-Star," (Fred M.) Hans, Indian fighter, frontier scout and the last of the real two gun "cross-arm-draw" experts, met death here last night with his "boots on" as he had often declared.
But death did not come to him on the field of battle, where he had so often faced it, nor on the wings of a bullet. He was crushed to death in an elevator shaft at the Omaha World-Herald plant, where he was night watchman.

Caught by Elevator.
Lone Star was caught by the elevator when he attempted to move the control lever from its outside and the lift suddenly shot upward. The old veteran tried to leap into it, but his feet that so often had leaped on the backs of Mustangs, had lost their old spring, and so Lone Star died with his boots on.

Lone Star began his career as plainman at the age of 18, when he left home to search for a brother kidnapped by Sioux Indians.

He developed the "cross-arm-draw" until he was without a peer, and this skill he retained even in his old age. He never touched a trigger, but used his thumb to revolve the hammer of his Colt single action revolver, in a fan like action. He often declared that he could fire his single action Colt six times before any one armed with a modern automatic pistol could fire half as many shots.

Fought Bandits and Indians.

Lone Star broke into fame first in 1878, in "The Hole-in-the-Wall" country Powder River, Wyo., when he single handed shot and killed "Shacknasty Jim" and his two fellow bandits. It was "Lone Star's" hammer-firing that won the unequal fight. The Indians dubbed him We-Chah-Pe-Wam-Ge-Ls, which translated means "Lone Star." Other high spots of Hans' life are:
Shot and killed two stage coach bandits; April 12, 1877, near Valentine, Neb.

Shot five Indians in battle of Little Missouri, near Black Hills, Aug. 21, 1887, saving the lives of a party of twenty prospectors.

Killed eleven Indians with twelve shots, using both guns, hammer-firing, in the battle of Wounded Knee, S. D., in 1890.

Killed bandit, Ainsworth, Neb., in 1878.

Shot and killed bandit at Fremont, Neb., in 1897.

Was arrested Sitting Bull.

Was official war department investigator of Custer massacre, and followed Sitting Bull 600 miles on horseback, inducing him and his band to return to the reservation.

Was present at Sitting Bull's death.

Was chief scoutmaster for Gen. Phil Sheridan for six years.

Was special agent of the Northwestern railroad for years.

In all, Hans was credited with having killed eight white men and twenty Indians.

Never Beaten on Draw.
"I was never beaten on the draw," he often declared.

Until a month ago, Hans wore a scalp lock, 18 inches long, which he kept curled under a skull cap, as he sat around in the Herald editorial room at night, often displaying his skills with his two guns to reporters and visitors.

"No one is after it now," he explained when he ordered his lock cut off.

Baseball at Randolph.
Randolph, Neb., April 18.—At a meeting of ball fans here an executive committee for the local club was selected as follows: Ted Smith, A. A. Um and J. L. Kessler. A manager will be chosen from these three.

Players on the local club will post forfeit bonds to the amount of $250, which is the amount of the forfeit to be placed by each club in the tentative five county league.

Points agreed upon so far are the posting of forfeit, scheduled games on Wednesday and Sunday, and only two hired players on each club whose salary is not to exceed $150.

Handle of boxwood in natural finish. Can easily be kept in clean and sanitary condition. Sure, We Deliver Buttermilk

It's a busy time, and you don't like to jaunt the tired horses over the road. We will charge you just enough to cover cost of tires and gasoline—one barrel 50 cents, two barrels 75 cents up to six miles. Pool with your neighbor that we may haul two at a time.

Now is a Critical Time—You Need Semi-Solid Owing to the fact the pastures are late you especially need Semi-Solid to keep your stock up. It will increase milk flow and create increased vitality with both the mother and pigs.

Many pigs are old enough to thrive on Buttermilk before weaning time. Feed it in a diluted form, about thirty gallons water to one of Semi-Solid. Don't get the idea Semi-Solid is an expense. That's absolutely wrong. There's nothing you buy for the hog industry that will show as big a profit.

Fifty farmers with bunches from 150 to 200 pigs will feed five barrels of Semi-Solid. Even, one barrel fed to small pigs will develop a improved condition that will remain with them until market time.

Rolled Oats Everybody Planting Garden Seeds are in big demand. Our seeds are all new and should never fail to please. Don't forget onion sets will be off the market in ten days. Buy your supply now.

For Small Chicks The feeding of Semi-Solid straight from the container will do wonders in reducing death rate. Thousands of little chicks die every year from improper feeding. Employ the modern methods of Semi-Solid, bran or oatmeal for the first four weeks and—CAUTION—All condensed Buttermilk is not Semi-Solid. There is but one Semi-Solid—one genuine without the buttermilk producers label. All barrels are painted yellow.

80-Per Cent of Our Flour Sales is repeat sales on Gold Dust. A trial is all that's necessary to demonstrate this store has one of the best flour propositions in northeast Nebraska. Less Crime in Chicago. Sioux City Journal: The reduction in the number of crimes of all kinds in Chicago, as shown by the 1922 record, upholds the contention that punishment does deter criminals.

The inherent damage conducted against Chicago's underworld by Chief of Police Fitzmorris emphasizes the specific things which the chief enforces, capture, quick trial and heavy penalties.

It is observed that the Chicago criminal courts have not been so efficient in their work as has been the police department, a condition due to the existence of the legal bulwark built up with the intent to safeguard justice by setting up a barrier for criminals themselves.

These consist mainly of technicalities which the criminal always employs as a method of defeating the case against him.

Thefts of motor cars, it is announced, have been reduced in Chicago July 65 per cent. A part of the reduction may be credited to the activity of the police department.

But other agencies have done a part. The insurance companies, hard hit by automobile thieves all over the country, have insisted upon the strictest prosecution following their own invariable methods of investigation.

This has helped to reduce the number of thefts. Another thing that has contributed to the reduction is the decreased value of the used motor car.

Automobile thieves invariably steal used cars, and the market is now so glutted with such property that the prices have dropped to low figures.

Other cities than Chicago report material reductions in thefts of this kind.

Prison crimes were committed in Chicago in 1922 then for 35 years, according to the statistics just announced. It is claimed that the efficiency of the police force has produced this result, which may be credited for the most part, to that activity.

In times of prosperity it is reasonable to expect reductions in reported crimes, although some criminals would doubt their activity under such conditions because of the hope of richer plunder.

A great many crimes permit to drive criminals out of Chicago to cover. There were shakeups in the department in order to improve the personnel of the police force.

Chicago has cut out to the underworld. Now Chicago is enjoying the profits of this campaign for greater security.

Beyond a doubt, the best way to defeat an enemy is to put him on the defensive, and society is beginning to realize that in its treatment of criminals.

From Ponca Journal April 27, 1882:

In addition to the mumps, a few measles have been circulating around town. The cases thus far have been mild.

The price of hogs today, under the competition, was up to $5.50 per hundred pounds. Butter sold for 27 to 30 cents per pound.

Several prairie schooners passed through town this week, loaded with healthy and happy home seekers, going west to grow up with the country.

On Monday, Prof. Walbeck, the county superintendent, and his school went over into the southwestern part of the county, between the north and south Logans to locate a school house site for district No. 10. It is a beautiful country and is settling up rapidly.

Within a few days past, seven German families have located in the district and from the school house site he saw five new dwelling houses going up. The new school house is to be 24 feet by 32, and will be finished in good time.

On account of the late heavy rains, Professor Walbeck had considerable trouble in getting there, but finally after much wading went through all right.

Wakefield correspondence in Ponca Journal April 27, 1882:

Our town is to be the center of a musical revival as it were. Prof. J. E. McConical of musical fame, is holding forth at the American House, assisted by some of the best of this little burg and discourses sweet music to appreciative listeners.

This advent has developed the fact that this town contains more musical talent than any other burg of its size this side of sundown, among which may be mentioned an accomplished female violinist.

Wakefield bids $300 for the fair; will it get it?

MARTIN GAINS 15 LBS. UPON TANLAC

Declares, Famous Medicine Ended Indigestion, Cramps and Headaches, Restoring Full Vigor.

"Tanlac has straightened me out in a few weeks' time and built me up fifteen pounds heavier," says Joe Martin, 405 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo., who works at the Baltimore hotel.

"Before I got Tanlac I was carrying around all kinds of troubles and was pretty downcast over my condition. My appetite went wrong, indigestion attacked me, and I would suffer for hours after eating from bloating and cramps in my stomach. Billowness and nervousness increased my worries, I had pains all through my head, neural headaches, and lost much sleep. In fact, I felt just about used up.

"Well, it astonished me how quickly Tanlac swept away my troubles. The treatment has put me in the best of condition and I feel fine in every way. I am just tickled to death over what Tanlac has done for me, and feel like it deserves a gold medal in my case."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Take no substitute. Our thirty-seven mill bottle sold.

They have tackled a bicycle. The county so far is one black eye and a broken nose.

School meeting in this district passed off pleasantly. The citizens of Wakefield show an unusual degree of interest in educational matters.

During the high wind Friday night the American House in our neighboring town of Wayne was unroofed, causing the inmates to an involuntary bath on short notice.

Firestone Prices on Fabric and Cord Passenger Car Tires and Tubes, also Solid and Pneumatic Truck Tires Will Advance May 1st

The postponement of this price revision is possible only because of our realization of the price danger in the British Crude Rubber Restriction Act which became effective November 1, 1922. We were fortunate in our rubber purchases before the Restriction Act increased the price of crude rubber 150%.

We have always endeavored to champion the cause of better made tires delivered at lowest cost to the tire user by economic manufacturing and distribution. And we are glad of the opportunity to give the car-owner the additional saving at this time.

Firestone Cords embody certain special processes which result in their producing mileage records, heretofore unheard-of in the industry. Among the more important of these superior methods are blending, tempering, air-bag cure and double gum-dipping.

Firestone Dealers are co-operating with us in our movement to supply your needs at present prices as long as their stock lasts and we have advised our dealers that we will supply them with additional tires this month only so far as our output will permit.

See the nearest Firestone Dealer. Purchase a set of these Gum-Dipped Cords. Prove for yourself their remarkable mileage advantages and easy riding qualities.

Game of Politics as Played at Lincoln

Lincoln Journal, April 15: The game of politics played for the last three months on the both sides of the capitol dome is still on, and in the opinion of a considerable number of members will result in the calling of a special session, either directly or soon after the present session ends. A date nobody can predict with reasonable certainty.

This is the situation: The democratic governor is intent upon having his reorganization of the state government accepted by the legislature. The fiscal code system under another name. He redistributes the code divisions, abolishes a few, transfers others to other executive state officers, calls the heads departments instead of secretaries and while retaining all appointive power hands over responsibility for what is done to an executive board that for two years would be made up largely of republicans.

The house has indefinitely postponed the key bill of the Bryan plan, but the republicans in the senate in committees. Upon this fact the governor builds his hope that by the use of the appropriation bill he may force the republicans to accept his code. There is not, however, the slightest chance of this in the opinion of republican leaders. The governor has to meet the definite strength in the house to defeat the republican appropriation bill, which by reason of the inclusion of the budget in the governor's budget required a three-fifths vote, and the republicans do not have that number in the house.

The governor argued this way to the democrats: My budget is drawn so as to provide adequate funds only for the departments as they will exist after my reorganization. If the republicans have taken my budget in the main, but they have taken such action as means the continuance of the present code and the republican take my appropriations. You should refuse support to this appropriation bill unless the republicans adopt my reorganization scheme.

How Far Will They Go?

Although support meant that a number of democrats would be voting to defeat items they inserted in the bill in connection with the way they did as the governor agreed. The bill was killed. Now the house republicans will put through, under the name of a new budget bill in which while there are items carrying less than the governor's budget is none more than that, and under which the governor is asked only fifty-one votes to pass. These the republicans have in its support.

The republican leaders think that the governor figured that he would have them on the hip after the democrats had killed the maintenance appropriation bill, as under ordinary circumstances, this would leave the house without an appropriation bill and with the governor the only person able to introduce a new bill. The republicans would have to do business on his terms.

The republicans played another trick on the head of the governor's having held in reserve a special appropriation bill for his purpose. This is the one they will bring in and send to the senate on Tuesday, and which requires only a majority vote to pass. The senate will probably insert additional items, which requires a two-thirds vote in the house to adopt if they exceed the governor's budget figures.

This leaves several matters open to the governor. How will the democrats go in backing the governor's game? Will they stand pat or will enough of them support these items, they did in house committee of the whole, to put them across in conference? If these get sixty votes the governor cannot vote the items by the present. Several democrats tried to find the governor Saturday to find out how far he wanted them to journey with him, but he was not in his car.

If the appropriation bill is finally passed in substantially its present form, the governor, with the aid of the present in the senate, will vote in the opinion of the members on both sides. This would leave the government without any money to run on the first day of an impossible situation. As the legislature will quit as soon as it complete work on the appropriations this points to a special session soon afterwards to provide the necessary money. The governor could include in his call anything else that he wanted, and if he put in his code recommendation, could stage the whole fight over again. There is this difference, however, that in a special session there are entirely free of entangling alliances, having no bills to nurse through, and they are not kept in hand as Governor McKelvie found out when he called a special session.

Changing the Cards. As the situation points to a deadlock that will result in the retention of the present in the senate, the governor is now placed in the position of wanting something, that is, enough money with which to run the departments as he serves his budget won't provide a sufficient sum. Heretofore, it has been the republicans who wanted something. With the shoe on the other foot, it is figured he may be more reasonable and not continue to insist that what he says shall be done and that nothing else shall be considered. With respect to the code the house has rejected the Bryan plan, and sent to the senate the Dyster-Mathers plan. The senate, without doing anything with the latter, which is a modification of the present code, has sent to the house the Reed plan, which retains the code as at present, giving the governor the choice between appointing men as secretaries or giving the jobs to specified state officers.

The house has shown a disposition to refuse to consider the Reed system, because, among other things, it is not redemption of the platform pledge to revise the code. With the house refusing the senate bill and the senate refusing to adopt the bill and the Bryan bill dead, the prospects are excellent for the code remaining just as it is, and these prospects are strengthened by the announced intention of the governor to veto either of the republican plans if they come to him.

The total possible saving, giving the governor all that he claimed in the beginning, would not exceed $600,000, but this is made up by republicans to be about three times as much as the facts warrant, and that under the Dyster-Mathers plan the difference would not be so great. The republican appropriation bill now before the house carries less than the governor suggested in a number of instances.

Business. Sioux City Journal: Several months ago when congress was in session powerful capitalists who employ many thousands of workers, applied to national legislators to lower the bar restricting immigration. They represented that there was a shortage of common labor, and that when business got better, it would be more acute. No action was taken on the plea for admission of more workers. American public opinion seemed to crystallize around the idea that a shortage of labor if not too depressing, would be better than having large numbers of men out of employment. Besides, there was the national feeling attaching to the wisdom of opening America's doors wider to foreigners at this time in the process of reconstruction. At any rate no change was made in the law restricting immigrants to certain quotas.

Today's results of the truth-of-the-matter help congress to see that there is a shortage of common labor, and that the steel companies have increased wage scales some 11 per cent merely to get their men to obtain workers at the old price. The increase is added as an attraction, an inducement. This will mean that the industrial interests were attempting to influence an increase in the labor market in order to give them the opportunity to pick and choose men at a low wage, to wonder whether they were right or wrong in opposing the suggestion to restrict immigration. It is not too soon to begin to think that men so well advised on labor questions as the heads of the big American steel companies would deliberately increase wages if they had good reason for so doing. By no means could any of them be supposed of going to such an extreme in order to win an argument. So there must have been all along a solid foundation for the statements about the shortage of labor.

If it is not too soon to begin to think that men so well advised on labor questions as the heads of the big American steel companies would deliberately increase wages if they had good reason for so doing. By no means could any of them be supposed of going to such an extreme in order to win an argument. So there must have been all along a solid foundation for the statements about the shortage of labor.

The arrival of warmer weather has influenced manufacturing centers showing trends. The most notable increase has been in the east, although the Pacific coast shows the biggest gain over the records of a year ago. Buildings to cost more than $1,000,000,000 were conceived, or started, in the first quarter of the year. New York's increase was $43,000,000, while that of the Pacific coast for the year was more than 170 per cent. Trade is steady in most sections, although the manufacturing centers show the greatest activity. Farming communities have reacted vigorously to the increased prosperity which is due to natural causes. The wheat and cattle markets finished the week firmly, with hogs suffering a slight decline. Wheat is needed now throughout the corn and wheat belt, generally speaking, is rain. Winter wheat would produce a great yield if it had moisture now. The late snows of March have been worth millions to the farmers, but frost in the ground caused much of the moisture to be lost.

The Objection. Birmingham News: The objection to restaurant eggs is not likely that they are boiled too long, but too late.

As to Political Firms. Biker in Evening Journal: Congressman Howard, in an editorial addressed to his constituency, assumes to gripe that he is powerless and will be during his tenure of office, as to naming postmasters in his district. For his own information Mr. Howard wrote to the postmaster general for information concerning appointments where vacancies might occur in presidential offices. Mr. New reported that "an examination is held by the civil service commission to establish an eligible register from which a postmaster is selected. Upon receipt of eligible registers it is the usual practice of the department to furnish the congressman in whose district the offices are located the names of the highest three eligible and advise information they desire to submit regarding them is carefully considered before appointments are made."

Commenting on these singular circumstances, Mr. Howard says that any information he may desire to submit may be considered, but it won't be acted upon in any way stimulating to the democratic party. This fact the Judge beams as a tremendous handicap to his usefulness as a public servant, and a personal grief besides. But really he has cause to congratulate himself that one of the potential means for creating political enemies in his own party, was mercifully denied him. George W. E. Dorsey of Fremont was elected to congress in 1884, the year your father was born. He defeated James G. Taylor for the presidency. "Turn the rascals out!" was the slogan of the democrats during the four years Mr. Dorsey was powerless to help or hinder presidential appointments in his district. So he was enabled to tell all worthy republican aspirants that he was for them and those could get anything that they wanted at his hands but for the stubborn "stuffed" Prope who stood in the way. Elected to congress for the third time, Mr. Dorsey found himself relieved of presidential opposition; Ben Harrison had elected president. That trouble began. His constituents were a hungry bunch, and those who rose up and demanded recognition were as the forest leaves in autumn. The unwelcome wind in the air and at the autumn election following, Mr. Dorsey went down to defeat, and became a political back-number almost before the time he was elected. We dare to believe that Congressman Howard is happier than he is willing to let on in a situation that relieves him of a rotten responsibility. He knows that the civil service will not suffer because of the situation, and that his chances for a second term will be doubly enhanced by lack of responsibility for political appointments. He is not to be congratulated, and no doubt postoffice patrons in his district will be quite as well off.

The Los Angeles Boom. Lincoln Journal: James Farrell, after a period of five months in southern California, comes back with a coat of tan and a good opinion of San Diego as a place of rest. As for Los Angeles, it is enough to make the eyes of any mid-western real estate man stick out with surprise. They are offering free rides and free meals on behalf of additions, many miles out, just as they did in the early boom days. They are building bungalows by the square mile ten miles out from business. "I don't know what is to become of them," Mr. Farrell says, "but it will be strange if these lightly built houses are not shacks in twenty years."

Sees Red Faction as a Danger to Country

Sioux City, Ia., April 18.—Willingness and subservency of congress in responding to demands of radicals and other socially less objectional elements to pass, and create new bureaus, and attacks of these radicals upon the constitution of the United States and the courts, formed the principal themes of several of the most prominent and able speakers at the afternoon session of the Western Grain Dealers association here yesterday. It was emphatically asserted that the time had come when reasoning people should resent these innovations that seriously threaten the existence of the government itself.

Radicalism and what is now called progressive law attempts have ruined past civilization, said E. C. Osborn, of Chicago, managing editor of the Price Current Grain Reporter, who declared that barbaric peoples filled the Roman empire in the ending of the Augustan age and that these peoples have poured themselves into the United States and have been as little changed by the melting pot as were the barbarians in mingling with Roman culture.

"Radicalism is today a destroyer and not a builder as it has been in history. You cannot revive the good for nothing by taking from the industrious and the honest. The result leads to autocracy. When plutocrats rule there is had and minority government. Twenty revolutionary bills to amend the constitution have been introduced in a single session of congress. Radicals begin attacks on private property by reducing taxes and changing services. The point to an effort to destroy our government," he said.

B. O. Holmquist, of Omaha, discussed the Nebraska public housing law; George A. Wells, of Des Moines, that of Iowa; and J. F. Scrogies of Sioux City, that of South Dakota. In the latter state it was said the law is mandatory and an elevator must accept all grain offered. If the elevator is filled he must put it in market. The grain is stored in a bonded warehouse at some terminal market and he holds the sack."

Savidge Amusement Company Opens May 5

Walter Savidge is making due plans for the annual tour of his Amusement Company, and will open the season in Wayne on Saturday, May 5. His initial engagement will cover two Saturdays, closing May 12. Members of his dramatic company will arrive next Monday, expecting to devote two weeks to rehearsals.

The biggest task in the carnival undertaking is the Herald is informed, is in assembling and organizing people to handle different branches of the business. Once well organized and ready to go, the anxiety is greatly diminished.

Mr. Savidge has strengthened his aggregation to a considerable extent, and a host of engagements are scheduled. He has reason to look forward to a successful season.

Stockmen Oppose

Bryan's Position

Lincoln, Neb., April 17.—Three presidents of livestock and agricultural associations, Chairman Graff, Congressman A. C. Shallenberger and H. J. McLaughlin, last night made public a communication they had addressed to Governor Bryan which they take issue with him on the question of eradication of tuberculosis of livestock of the state. They quote Governor Bryan as saying that "there are just three interests that will benefit from a tax levied on the whole people of the state for the so-called eradication of tuberculosis: they are the packers, veterinarians and the owners of registered livestock."

The stockmen presidents deny this claim and say in part: "To disprove your statement it is only necessary to start from here and go on. We first thought the work has been neglected tuberculosis is now so prevalent that instead of these states appropriating thousands there are expending hundreds of thousands and even millions annually. We hold that your position is untenable. By your program, Nebraska would revert back and recede from the progress that has already been made in the eradication of tuberculosis. We as livestock breeders and stockmen who have investments aggregating millions in this industry, deeply deplore that the governor of our great state compromise with the best thought of the land and those who are identified with the livestock industry."

Church Work Is Urged Among Youth

Omaha, Neb., April 17.—A partial report of the committee on findings in which special emphasis was laid upon starting young people's movements in all gatherings of the Annual National church was adopted by the church's fourth annual educational conference in session here.

This action was said to be in line with that taken by the conference Saturday in declaring that the position of the church is not the narrow, old-fashioned, unimproved "fruit of modern knowledge" and the results of scientific research, "in matters of religious thought so long as there is no denial of the articles of the Apostles' Creed."

Decision in favor of forming an association of accredited teachers in North Nebraska is being getting Sunday schools in the same manner as public schools was reached. There will be a spontaneous response to the conference's action Saturday in declaring of freedom of thought, in the opinion of Dr. William E. Gardner of New York, executive with Mrs. E. C. Phillips of parliament of religious education, who read a number of telegrams congratulating the conference on its stand.

North Nebraska Produce.
O'Neill, Neb., April 17.—Why do members of New York's "Four Hundred" buy the produce of the shell-eggs for breakfast when residents of the Back Bay district won't eat 'em at all unless the shells are broken with Nebraska whole eggs? These idiosyncrasies and are unable to explain why the New York millionaire insists they must be white. In fact the eggs are absolutely their brown. Each pays far above the market for his favorite color and will not eat the other.

Members of the committee are considered super-excellent on the two markets because owing to the absence of discoloring ingredients in fact the eggs are absolutely clean from the nests, and because of an abundance of grey poultry is healthier and the eggs consequently larger and richer in protein, say the poultry experts. For the latter reason declare the poultry men, north Nebraska poultry also brings far above the market price in both cities and fortunately the color of the bird is not a deciding factor in the sale, as with eggs.

One O'Neill wholesale concern, the Purcell Produce company, recently removed here from Scribner, engaged exclusively in supplying the New York and Boston markets with eggs and poultry and each of the five other concerns ship a large portion of their stock to the New York markets. Several carloads of eggs and as many of poultry now are being shipped weekly to these points. The eggs are graded according to size and color, just as California fruit is graded, before shipping, but the higher prices obtained more than justify the extra work of handling.

Beatrice City Manager Falls.
Beatrice, Neb., April 17.—It appears that the city manager plan movement started here a few weeks ago has died "a horrible" death. Four petitions containing the required number of voters were left at the city hall a few weeks ago, but City Clerk Pechoud held that they had not been properly filed, so no further action has been taken in the matter. Judge Krutzinger, one of the instigators of the movement, was notified that he wanted to file the petitions but could not call at the city hall and do so.

Norfolk Kiwanians Will Beautify City

Norfolk News, April 16.—And the streets were lined with beautiful flowers and green shrubbery as far as the eye could see, clusters of white flowers bowed their heads from massive green shrubbery as a wind from the west.

That is the dream for Norfolk of the Kiwanians which during its regular luncheon meeting Friday afternoon at 300 Broadway will be planted in the parking on Northwestern avenue from First to Fourth street on Fourth street from avenue to 300 Broadway and on Eighth street to Eighteenth street. A park will be planned in the parking every fifty feet. The shrubs will be fasten on from each intersection so they will not interfere with traffic.

Individuals Asked to Help.
The shrubs were ordered through the city's park commission which took the planting. Individuals in front of whose property the shrubs are planted will be asked to take care of the shrubs after they are planted and the park commission will look after those in front of ones whose property is not in front of the shrubs.

The purpose of the Kiwanians is to beautify Norfolk and assist in dressing up the city in order that the city may have a lasting good impression of this community.

The shrubs have already been ordered and the planting will be done at an early date.

The Kiwanians also decided to take an active part in "courtesy week" April 16 to 21, in order to bring to the attention of all Norfolk the importance of courtesy, particularly in business.

Would Make Courtesy Contagious.
The Kiwanians say they are not preaching courtesy to others, but are practicing it to make it contagious. The program for the observance of courtesy week is the same in principle as that carried out in every one of the other 1,000 cities and towns in the United States and Canada where business and professional men are organized "to disseminate Kiwanian principles of fair dealing and practices, and the observance of the golden rule in private, civic, social and business life."

District Judge William V. Allen was the principal speaker at the Kiwanian luncheon Friday. He spoke on the subject, "Man's Fellowship To Man."

"I would rather have my name written in the records of the history of my country than have great wealth and use it not," said Judge Allen.

Philadelphia Record: It is not likely that Mr. Harding will array the labor unions against himself by having an open shop plank put in the platform.

Continue Attempt To Cut the School Fund

Lincoln, Neb., April 16.—Attention has been directed to the state school system and what it stand its share of the cutting of governmental expenses still continues to be the most important item of contention among members of the legislature, and will, it is likely, so continue until the last gavel has banged.

Legislation is being introduced that the school system could be operated just as efficiently on less money are declaring that they are blocked in their efforts to cut expenses by the school lobby and the school-masters' club which they characterize as the strongest lobby that ever beset a legislature.

The schoolmen on the other hand, declare that, unless they were held in check by continuous pressure the legislature would ruin the schools.

The chief bill before the house at the present time touching on this question is one which would limit the school districts, except Omaha and Lincoln, to twelve mills with an option of going to eighteen if the people approve it by vote. Speaker Mathers is one of the chief supporters of this bill.

Dentistry and King Tut

Of course King Tut was a toothless old mummy. He finally had to "gum it" a great deal, and he was able to do little with his food between the time it left the cook and reached his stomach. Dentistry was unknown in the days of Tut. But now, thanks to modern dentistry, old age has an equal chance with youth in masticating food, and X-Ray aids diagnosis and the proper restoration of the essentials of digestion and facial appearance.

Think of the time they lost and the discomfort they no longer the waters of the Red sea had to be kept apart modern touring cars and coupes could have been used.

We suspect that King Tut was mixed up in the Isrealites to move, although we do not exactly know about the same time, and probably he was as selfish as belonged to the royal tribe that made life so disagreeable hunt new fields. But no Ford cars were found in King Tut the fleeing host.

How King Tut Traveled

When King Tut started out in state, he roosted on top of an elephant or camel. He lived in a slow age and did not expect to get anywhere very soon. No Lee tires, or other suggestions of automobiles were found in his tomb. If he could have ridden in a modern car, supported by Lee tires, his joy would have been supreme.

We sell Lee tires and guarantee long wear and satisfaction.

We still have Lee tires bought at the old price and we can save you the difference.

As Contrasted with Days of King Tut

Architecture of ancient Egypt was intricate and ponderous and required long time to work into finished and usable properties. King Tut had to wring more wealth and labor out of his subjects to build his palace and other structures than would be needed today because of the lack then of quick-acting machines and dynamic motive power. King Tut would be amazed to see the materials and workmanship that are employed in modern building operations. He would be thunderstruck by the facility and speed and comparatively moderate cost with which buildings are now put together.

Not wishing to reflect unfavorably on the way King Tut did things or cause any embarrassment to his descendants or friends, we do wish to stress the superior service and quality and variety of materials which we guarantee to customers.

In life there are certain periods when one does the right thing at the right time—and now is the right time to build your own home or your own business house or make other needed improvements. Just what the future will bring we cannot safely predict, but from present conditions it is safe to say building costs will not decrease.

Consult us about your proposed building. Let us help you with plans and let us quote you prices. We will give you every advantage looking to your best interests including the important consideration of keeping the cost down to a minimum.

Thirty-five C Ago and N

If King Tut could take modern farm equipment, he and his people had advanced facilities at the time 3,500 years ago. If he had modern-day facilities for plowing and resting, the fertility of the soil and converted fish products, he certainly would be resurrected.

King Tut would hear advice to farmers to use rapid machines, modern work and reduce production. A boy would shoot approximately mick-Deering which are now which should replace worn which we can save you money.

We are here to serve you and your economy. Good equipment will increase your investment of time, money, and we know we can

How I Would Dress Old King Tut

While King Tut was ingenious in pieces of art, as witness revelations of his tomb, I understand he wore suits made of tulle grass and shredded bull-rushes. If he had lived 3,500 years later we could fit him out with fine two-pant suits, shoes that would look and feel right, beautiful shirts, and crown his royal mental knob with a becoming headpiece, all moderately priced and well within his means.

Come in and we will show you how we would tog him out for style and comfort.

King Tut and the Toothache

When King Tut had the toothache and the pain would not quit, he tied the offending molar to the root of a tree and then backed up. After he had lost one snag after another he was entirely out of luck. In contrast, modern dentistry performs wonders. I give special attention to extraction of teeth, and I can replace them with new ones that are just as good and comfortable as those furnished by nature.

The Above is a 1923 Family Admiring Their New Home

The average family in the time of King Tut did not reflect such souls of happy contentment. They had no encouragement to do so. They did not own such fine homes. Tut's hoarded riches, samples of what were buried with him in his tomb, had better have been used to build homes and give comfort and peace of mind to his subjects.

Today people should not bury their riches and suffer for want of good buildings and latest conveniences. Many new homes and other improvements are now contemplated, and now is an advisable time to start operations. Materials will not be cheaper, and total costs will not be less.

We have what you need for any building program you have in mind. We can assist you in making plans and in satisfying your requirements without unnecessary cost. See us and explain your wishes. We will co-operate with you.

As to King Tut's Menu

We don't know just what King Tut ate, or whether he devoured much or little, but we do know his subjects could not have furnished him with the delightful bread and pastries provided by this Bakery. He probably succumbed to indigestion which he could have avoided if he had been privileged to feast on Home-Run Bread and carefully made pies and cakes and cookies. If we had prescribed his diet he probably would be alive still.

Home Run Bread is a perfect loaf, browned to a nicey and delicious and wholesome. Pastries as well as bread are made by an expert who knows how to prepare edibles that are pleasing to the taste as well as good for the health.
