Writes of Stockyard Homes and Children

Miss Tillie F. Solfermoser who is a graduate of the Wayne State Teachers College and who was employed in the Herald office year before last, has written a communication concerning the stockyard homes and children in Chicago. Miss Solfermoser is now working on her Masters degree at the University of Chicago and has been doing considerable investigation in social welfare. She writes as follows:

A General View
 Stenciled against the murky background, the gabled roofs extending in crazy, fireproof palisades as far as the eye can reach, the homes of the stockyard children of the "City White" are presented in all their uninviting aspects, and one invariably wonders what incentives these unpainted, foul-smelling hovels provide for the education of future citizens. Or one marvels that moral convicts are not produced. It is said that rent is reasonable, "not more than $8 to $16 a month," but let the observer examine what bald omissions are found, what rickety stairs and dark passageways must be traversed to reach even a semblance of living, or what profusion of children spilling themselves out of window doors and into the street must be witnessed through to make such snappy—and the realization that $8 to $16 is a prodigiously large sum for the privilege of eating and sleeping in these structures, becomes poignantly evident. Added to this is the fact that more than one family usually relatives often occupy the same home (sometimes the same room), with the result that adolescence, denied its necessary privacy, results in promiscuity.

Facts in One School.
 It has been the writer's opportunity to deal with children of the stockyard district for five years, because of low parents visit school, because of outside employment or lack of interest, that the school necessarily becomes a medium for supplying, in part, the social background which the home cannot furnish. There seems to be a general notion on the part of the parents that school is a convenient place for children to be "kern" while the parents are at work and that, insofar as this end is accomplished, the school is a safe investment. On the contrary, the children like to come to school,—probably to escape the curage and hovel,—but they do not like to go to school, probably to escape having to go to work every day.

when they have attained "sixth grade." The irresponsible, devil-care attitude of the parents leads one to be less sympathetic with them here, more so with the children.
 During the time I spent in the Hamilton school, there has been occasion to deal repeatedly with children who smoke cigarettes (this occurs far less at the "second grade") and with those who come to school with the odor of "contraband" heavy on their breath. Within a block of the school, children of tender years and stunted growth have been known to "drug" hand-manufactured "pills" without the slightest abatement of vivacity. Questioned upon several occasions as to the reason for seeming drowsiness, replies invariably indicate night parties and late morning picture shows. The practice of taking the whole family, including the younger children, and spending a large part of the night at dens and dives, is a habit of "blamey" reputation common. This is that even at a relatively early age, approval, developed habits have become more surely stratified than the scant knowledge facts which it is almost hopeless to instill.

Notwithstanding the apparently strained financial condition of the people, school children spend money freely, usually on candy and ice cream. The bite of a penny, nickel or dime is snuffed at beside the cold calculation of what a quarter might buy.
 Schools in close proximity to the yards are dismissed at three o'clock, in order to allow teachers and pupils to reach home before the stockyard begins to spew out their first installment of colored laborers. This ruling is followed to avoid such brick-slinging contests during strikes, as occurred in the winter of 1921-22.

Some Figures.
 Statistics are often more eloquent of real conditions than mere words, and for that reason some figures are presented here. Questioning children of the "yards" as to certain elements of home life, the writer deduced these figures:
 Of forty-six pupils considered, fifty percent of those questioned admitted they showed two or more times a week offenses on school nights and Sundays; only seven attend Sunday school and church regularly; more than half of the mothers of the children work during the day, and are not back from work when the children arrive home in the afternoon; during the winter, six of the fathers were out of work for a period longer than two months; and about ten did not work for a month.

(This was not because of illness or injury.) Ten contribute irregularly, and five regularly, to the Chicago fund which comes to each room every Friday.

Of the thirty-five rooms in the Hamilton school, twenty-one of these (air and subnormal rooms), ten are set aside for kindergartens, conducted on a double-shift basis. There is at present but one eighth grade room, statistics which chronicle all too plainly the tale that children leave school for work at an early age, probably because the necessity of earning money is too often held before them. Of an eighth grade class of thirty-five graduated from a stockyard school last spring, twelve members under sixteen years of age are already married and rearing families.

The above cases are, in the judgment of the writer, fair indications of conditions in stockyard schools generally. The Hamilton school is a fairly compact Polish and Italian children, a bad combination from a standpoint of acquiring knowledge easily, for the Italian child is bright, whereas the Polish child is stolid and learns laboriously.
 The United Charities is at once a good and an evil—good of course because of the financial aid and good counsel it dispenses, but an evil influence because of the "bribe" of self-dependence it indulges in the process of character building. The people come to depend too much on the charities; individuals develop the lazy attitude that "the charities will take care of us," and they sit calmly down and allow destiny to take its course.
 The dispensaries, libraries and other facilities connected with the charities, are worthy of commendation. During the summer, children are enabled to spend short vacations at fresh air camps out of the city, and surely they enjoy that. One principal of a "years" school expressed herself recently at a teachers' meeting to the effect that never before has she seen so many children so effectively wiped-out of the sponge of ignorance than in the case of stockyard children. Another principal hastened to say, "If we could only make them realize the difference between their poor condition and that of people who are eager to better themselves." They could only be made to think, and, having thought, act.

That is the big problem.

Tillie Fay Solfermoser.

To an Anxious Friend.
 Lincoln Journal: William Allen White has been awarded the $500 Pulitzer prize for the best editorial of 1922. The editorial appeared in the Emporia Gazette last July while White and Governor Allen were engaged in that "historic" controversy over the industrial court law. The editorial is printed hereafter:
 "You tell me that law is above freedom of utterance. And you say that you can have no wise laws nor enforcement of wise laws unless there is free expression of the wisdom of the people and and their folly with it. But if there is freedom, folly will die of its own poison, and the wisdom will survive. That is the history of the race. It is the proof of man's kinship with God."
 "You say that freedom of utterance is not for time of stress and I reply with the sad truth that only in time of stress is freedom of utterance in danger. No one questions it in calm days, because it is not needed. And the reverse is true also, only when free utterance is expressed it is needed, and when it is needed, it is most vital to justice. Peace is good. But if you are interested in peace through force and without free discussion, that is to say, free utterance, you are against peace. And peace without justice is tyranny, no matter how you may sugar coat it with expediency. This state today is in more danger from suppression than from violence, because in the end, suppression leads to violence; violence, indeed, is the child of suppression. Whoever pleads for justice help to keep the peace, and whoever tramples upon the plea for justice, temperately made in the name of peace, only entraps peace—and kills something first in the heart of justice, and put there when we get our manhood. What that is—killed, brute meets brute on each side of the line."
 "The stern friend, put fear out of your heart. This nature will survive, this state will prosper, the orderly business of life will go forward if only men can be made to give what they have given them to utter what their hearts hold—by voice, by posted card, by letter or by press. Reason never has failed man. Only force and repression have made the wrecks in the world."

Even the one who is not exactly frank and fair and square in his methods, prefers to deal with people who can be trusted. The individual who cannot be depended on, will not win his faith in the matter of known integrity and reliability.

Handling the athletic meet here this year has been a big improvement over the last year, as indicated by the fact that the athletic editor of the Bloomfield Monitor did not enter in a similar contest, one-half as hard as he did last year.

The weather bureau's forecasting department has been wonderfully accurate of late. We have consulted the forecast each day this week, and not for the first time in the history we looked out doors. Each time the weather and forecast harmonized exactly. They have been working in perfect union.

The Presbyterians have gone on record in favor of the theory that man was evolved from a lower order of animal, and we presume they would agree and hope that there is still a great deal of evolving to be done. This attitude was assumed by a majority at the Presbyterian general assembly at Indianapolis this week, developed as a result of resolutions passed in opposition to evolution by W. J. Bryan.

As we approach the annual Memorial services are reminded of the apprehensiveness of the future. We are reminded of the sacrifices made by those who took up arms in fight for national security at one time or another in the history of this country. Above all personal considerations, above all immediate self-interest, comes defense of the nation's government. To be destroyed and property and home and family would be in jeopardy. No safety for people or their savings would be guaranteed. To be a group of struggling colonies established this government a century and a half ago, and to be a free and equal right and opportunities, we have had a few sharp conflicts. These have resulted in the triumph of a national ideal of freedom and equal justice to men who stepped into the breach to certain occasions to safeguard American liberties and the cause of human liberty, deserve to have men-

SOUTHERN HOSPITALITY

C. O. Bruce, President Standard Chautauqua System, Entertained in the Home of Hon. Joseph Daniels.

I have heard much of the hospitality of the southern people, but never knew just what it meant until I visited in the home of Joseph Daniels, Dec. 20, 1922. C. O. Bruce, President of the Standard Chautauqua System, upon my arrival at Raleigh, N. C., the home of this international celebrity and his family, was met by Mr. Daniels and Joseph, Jr., business manager of the News and Observer, their large daily paper, was conducted by Mrs. Daniels, immediately to their home where I met Mrs. Daniels, she is later in social, church and social activities, and in most charming hostess. Dinner, was soon served, and I was invited to sit at the table myself by keeping us supplied with those delicious hot biscuits peculiar to the southern.

LINCOLN THE GREAT COMMONER

Edgar Murray as Lincoln
Probably the greatest contribution to dramatic literature in the past ten years is Ralph Thomas Kettering's remarkable and engaging historical comedy, "Lincoln the Great Commoner," an inspiring and highly idealized conception in play form of the great American. Kettering has penned not only a play which has astonished and inspired the people, but he has also written a work so beautifully wrought and filled with such a wealth of aristry that it will remain for a long many years a shining example of dramatic production of this age.

NEW MODERN EQUIPMENT

A Feature of This Summer's Chautauqua
The Standard Chautauqua System promises the most unusual program with many outstanding features for our summer assembly, but promotion also the most striking auditorium available. These large modern tents are practically rain-proof, equipped with steel poles, elaborate lighting systems, large platforms, modern stage scenery, beautiful drapery and costumes. The system furnishes all of this equipment and it is considered the most modern, expensive and beautiful available.

ACOLLEGE WITH ODD STUDENTS

(Sounds like Noah's Ark)
North Philadelphia is the location of one of America's most interesting colleges. The noises emitting from this college exceed the imagination of the possibilities of noises from the maddest madhouse. This is the Panhandle College for training birds and animals. Here for many years Professor Panamashka has, with infinite care and love, taught dogs, cats, monkeys and all kinds of birds to do the tricks which intrigue shantauqua devotees.

Your Straw Hat is Ready for You

Wayne, Nebraska

The Early Days in Two Counties

From the Wayne Herald for May 23, 1903. Mrs. John Platter of Wayne died May 24, 1903. M. Stringer, sr., of Lincoln came to visit his sons. George Phillo's new home in Carroll is about complete. Robert Mellor is in Omaha serving on the federal jury. Mrs. William House died May 24, 1903 at the age of 64 years. George Rothke has been building a large addition to his home in Carroll. Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Perry of Ord, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Theobald. Governor Mickey will deliver the Decoration day address here this week. Mrs. E. A. Slater went to Chicago to visit her daughter, Mrs. Charles Morris Wadsworth of Red Oak, Iowa, was here looking after land interests. Mrs. E. D. Mitchell and daughter Louise arrived home from a trip to Chicago. Seventy young people of Wayne and vicinity were confirmed in the Catholic church this week. Bishop Scannell of Omaha, was here to assist in the services. Mrs. H. V. Garwood of Carroll has gone to Ohio for a visit at her former home. P. H. Kuhl went Madison to attend the funeral of the late congressman Robinson. W. R. McCabe of Omaha, is spending a few days with his mother, Mrs. A. N. Matthey. Otis Strahan of Malvern, Iowa, has been visiting his brother, Frank Strahan in Wayne. Word has been received here that George Barnes reached Liverpool, England, May 13. Mr. P. Richardson has been elected to the principalship of the Carroll school for next year. W. B. Young and William Young, brothers of Mrs. E. R. Hirt, came from DeKalb, Iowa, for a visit. Mrs. P. L. Panabaker came from Hartington because of the illness of her mother, Mrs. E. B. Chacester. Mrs. Plimpton and two children of Iowa, are here visiting Mrs. Plimpton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hartlett. Mr. and Mrs. Stowell of Michigan, stopped here on their way home from California to visit their cousin, Mrs. R. Philcox. From Ponca Journal May 27, 1884: District Attorney Guy R. Wilbur was in town Monday, he reports Hartington to be in a growing and prosperous condition. The Big tornado which had been prophesied by weather prophets to visit this section a shaking up on Monday, did not materialize. No floods loomed up and no wind burst and no rain and heavy were anticipated by a storm tossed population. A letter from Thos. Rawlings, president of the Logan Valley fair, announces that the 1888 exhibition of that society will be held at Wakefield September 22-23 and 30. General Rawlings is making to have a first class fair, and with such men as Thos. Rawlings, as president, and C. W. Garney, as secretary, at the head of it, there can be no doubt of the success of the undertaking. We learn that much of the country near Elk Point, and between that place and the Sioux River, is in a deplorable condition on account of the recent flood. A great deal of excellent land is so much under water that the water has not receded this season. It is said that the damage cannot be less than $100,000. That is a splendid country and with farms surrounded in every respect accepting the inability of being overflooded.
