The Coal Situation. Omaha News: There is no much opposition among the areas of the country to the view of the federal coal commission that coal is a public utility. That sentiment generally seems to incline toward government control of the fuel industry, yet few editors express any hope that this will reduce prices to consumers.

The New York World says that it believes that publicity for costs and profits will exert a restraining influence on the operators. "When consumers know what profits are realized and what combinations of railroads and mining companies are responsible for the coal supply, their demands for lower prices will flourish well in the light publicity."

"The next question," the Brooklyn Eagle assures us, "is sure to hear from extremists like F. S. Fulton, who without regard to the facts, will demand government ownership and operation. The public will not back this demand. It is the duty of the commission that something be done. The most intelligent proposals so far made are those put forward by the coal commission. The commission will be translated into law. If congress balks at doing this it will be a confession of its utter incapacity to deal with a present problem that can be solved by a modicum of sense and determination."

The Daily Oklahoman looks at the question from the point of view of the avoidance of labor troubles, and on that ground endorses the plan for government regulation. On the other hand, the Oklahoma Gazette thinks the commission has wasted public funds unless it decides for nationalization rather than regulation.

These seem to be the "strong" regard to costs," the Syracuse Herald is convinced, and the remedy taking over the mines in case of a general strike has "its drawbacks, nevertheless, in spite of all the manifest disadvantages, the majority will believe that it is the paramount duty of the government to protect its citizens from suffering, and that its power should be equal to the gravity of that responsibility."

As the Pittsburgh Gazette Times, published in the anthracite region, sees it, this "report is preliminary," but the public will expect that "it will bring the beginning of a satisfactory settlement of the coal problem."

The Christian Science Monitor argues that the "official scrutiny and open publicity" regarding coal "will be the chief result of the inquiry" and provide for a "permanent controlling board for the industry."

Nebraska Editor's Observation Abroad

(By W. O. Jones, editor of Lincoln Journal)

Oxford, England, July 29.—We reached this university town at the beginning of "commemoration week," which follows the examinations and roughly corresponds to the American commencement. The streets and squares are crowded and an air of subdued gaiety manifests itself. So far as an outsider can see the chief events of the week are a series of balls given by the colleges. On Monday night four of these were held. We found entertainment in watching the young people arrive, in looking them over and comparing them with our own students, and in gazing through the open doors of the colleges upon the scene on the dancing floor temporarily laid over the grass of the quadrangles and protected by brightly colored maquettes.

These special preparations make the balls expensive beyond anything we know at home. The tickets usually cost at least $10 per person and $7.50 for carrying the floor.

By the time the carriage and flowers are paid for and other things are looked after, the bill runs up to thirty dollars at least for each couple. In defense of these costs it is pointed out that a college gives a ball only once in about three years and the total spent for parties is much less than with us.

The Oxford man customarily goes about bare headed. It was not surprising, therefore, to see numbers of young men in evening dress, without hat or overcoat, walking in splendor on the streets accompanied by ladies, with light wraps over their ball costumes.

The carriages began arriving at 9:30 and came in a stream for nearly an hour. Perhaps one-third of the people walking. The music was largely jazz done by a band from London. By 10 o'clock the floors were full, presenting a beautiful sight. Aside from the canvas roof and the rows of chifferonis it was an exact duplicate of a big prom at the University of Nebraska. The dancing lasted in most places until dawn by the pouring in of plenty of refreshments from the buffet sustaining the dancers through the long night.

The humor of Nebraska investigating committee is that the men at these dances are as well set up as the boys at home and have more ease of manner. Considering the conditions surrounding them, the contrast is not so great as we would expect. The girls, who had come from all classes to attend these famous balls, looked very lovely, but not bit prettier than middlewestern Americans. If there is any difference our girls wear their clothes a little better. The differences between England and America we would rather discern were on the whole less striking than the resemblances. We could readily imagine ourselves watching the University of Nebraska party so long as we kept our eyes on the dancers. When we looked at the surroundings we could realize that we were 4,000 miles from home.

Some of the girls staying at our hotel returned from the dance soon after 6 o'clock the next morning. We can hardly credit it, but the girls at the dance were out for a walk while waiting for breakfast. The colleges are much visited during the week by mothers and sisters and others who are being shown about by college men, some of them a bit sleepy and others very much wide awake. It is a surprise to our visiting party for the first time to see, how freely people are admitted to the colleges. The gates stand open during the day and one may wander anywhere without being questioned. At 9 o'clock at the "Big Tom," the bell in the Christopher Wren tower in Christ church strikes 101 strokes and the gates close, to the regret of undergraduates who are caught outside without adequate excuse. In the late evenings, therefore, there is nothing for the men to do but read and collect in their rooms for high intellectual converse. They don't play cards and can't get out to go to dances or to see the movies. The American pastime of calling on young ladies is severely frowned upon all Oxford. So what can a man do at night but wait? W. O. J.

From Ponca Journal, July 27, 1882:

The hot weather during the past few days has made the growing corn sime with joy.

It is said that A. Dennis of Silver Creek has a field of oats which will yield 110 bushels to the acre.

On the south-west part of the county, near Wayne and Cedar counties, numerous cases of diphtheria have lately appeared.

On Monday afternoon the sun was attended by two large sun spots. This phenomenon is frequent in cold weather, but it is rare on a day as hot as Monday.

A gentleman residing in the Aoway valley says that wheat in his neighborhood will yield at least thirty bushels to the acre and oats will yield seventy-five bushels to the acre. This is a big year for wheat and small grain generally.

The new paper at Wakefield will commence next week. We are glad to learn that it is receiving much encouragement from the worthy and energetic citizens of Wakefield.

G. D. Russell of Wakefield, who was in town yesterday, states that a number of pure blooded Jersey cattle have been lately brought in by the stock growers in the Logan Valley.

In Defense of the Old Home Town, Omaha Bee: It is not necessary to sentimentalize over the old home town in order to make it appear attractive. Peace and contentment are there. The extremes of poverty and wealth, with the resultant social distinctions, are absent. Midway between the country and the city, the advantages of both are within reach. The sons and daughters are not swayed by the baleful, seductive influences of American life. Indeed, some philosophers look to the time when civilization will be centered about these small semi-rural communities instead of about the congested cities. Life in America would be sounder then.

Yes, there are those who, from long residence in the city, or from not having been intimate with the life of the country town, never cease to condemn it as uncivilized and uninspiring. Here is Thorstein Veblen, writing in the Freeman, in his customary iconoclastic vein. It will do no harm to read one of his paragraphs, in which he conjures up a vision of narrowness, bigotry and general debility and calls it the country town. In the country town, he says:

"One must be circumspect, acquire merit, and avoid offense. So one must seek opinions, or information, which are not acceptable to the common run of those whose good will has, or may conceivably come to have, any commercial value. The country town system of knowledge and belief can admit nothing that would annoy the prejudices of any appreciable number of the respectable townfolk. So it becomes a system of intellectual, institutional, and religious holdovers. The country town conservative aggressiveness and truculently so since any assertion or denial that runs counter to any appreciable set of respectable prejudices would come in for some degree of disfavour, and any degree of disfavour is intolerable to men whose business would presumably suffer by it. Whereas there is no (business) harm done in assenting to, and so in time coming to believe in, any or all of the commonplace of the day, before yesterday. In this sense the country town is conservative, in that it is by force of business expediency ignorant of anything as wide as the world. Actually, institutionally, and religiously, the country towns of the great farming country are 'standing pat' on the ground taken somewhere about the period of the Civil war; or according to the wider chronology, somewhere about mid-Victorian times." And the men of affairs and responsibility in public life, who have passed the test of country town fitness, as they must, are men who have come through and made good according to the old ways; or faith and conduct imposed by this system of holdovers."

Some of the things he condemns as vices are virtues, and for the rest, they are not to be found in the towns that dot the Nebraska prairies.

There is reason for pride in these communities, and in the progress they are making and the leaders they are developing. These villages very often provide more leisure for enjoyment and improvement than do the cities. Their inhabitants for the most part have comfortable homes, set in spacious yards, with plenty of light and air. Human nature thro has room to expand and fructify. Acquaintances are closer, and the opportunity for the exchange of where else in the world. The fact that an increasing number of artists, kindly services, is fewer than any musicians and writers are developing in such places demonstrates that there is no actual dearth of encouragement for the finer things and that

Announcement

THE STUDEBAKER CORPORATION OF AMERICA is pleased to announce to its customers, friends, and the public generally, its complete line of new

1924 Model Studebaker Cars

Avoiding the superlatives frequently used in automobile advertisements, the Corporation desires to faithfully state the facts concerning these cars and the reasons why the public should buy them.

THE CARS

In design, quality of materials, standard of workmanship, durability, refinements, performance, freedom from repairs, and price, the Studebaker 1924 Model Cars are distinctly the greatest intrinsic values the Corporation has ever offered.

Every improvement the safety and practicability of which have been verified by engineering tests is embodied in these new cars.

The Big-Six

THE BIG-SIX LINE comprises four models, mounted on the standard 126-inch chassis with 60 H. P. 3 7/8 x 5 inch motor: 7-passenger Touring Car - $1750 5-passenger Coupe - $2550 5-passenger Speedster - $1835 5-passenger Sedan - $2750

Refinements and a few minor mechanical changes have been made in the Big-Six, which has established an enviable record for five years. Our large production accounts for its low price. It is a car of the highest grade, comparable to the best.

The Special-Six

THE SPECIAL-SIX LINE comprises four models mounted on the standard 119-inch chassis with 50 H. P. 3 1/4 x 5 inch motor: 2-passenger Roadster - $1325 5-passenger Coupe - $1975 5-passenger Touring Car - $1350 5-passenger Sedan - $2050

Radiator, hood, cowl, and body changes have been made in the Special-Six, with minor mechanical changes and refinements in the chassis. The Special-Six has for five successive years added lustre to the name STUDEBAKER. It is one of the most satisfactory and finest cars on the market. It is as good in every respect as the Big-Six, except that it is smaller, and costs less to produce, and therefore sells for less.

The Light-Six

THE LIGHT-SIX LINE comprises four models, mounted on the standard 112-inch chassis with 40 H. P. 3 1/8 x 4 1/2 inch motor: 3-passenger Roadster - $975 2-pass. Coupe-Roadster - $1225 3-passenger Touring Car - $995 5-passenger Sedan - $1550

No body or mechanical changes except refinements have been made in the Light-Six. Over 130,000 Light-Sixes have been produced in the new, modern $30,000,000 Studebaker plant at South Bend, Indiana, under most economical and almost ideal manufacturing conditions. In our judgment, it stands out as the greatest value and the closest approach to mechanical perfection in moderate priced cars yet produced.

THE REASONS WHY

With $90,000,000 of actual net assets and $45,000,000 invested in plants, Studebaker has ample physical facilities to manufacture most economically.

Studebaker's organization of manufacturing executives, engineers, metallurgists, chemists, inspectors, and skilled mechanics is second to none in the industry. The design of Studebaker cars and the workmanship upon them conform to the highest principles of engineering standards and mechanical practice known to the industry.

Best of Materials Used

Studebaker cars contain the finest known grades of iron, steel, aluminum, tires, electrical equipment, glass, bearings, etc. No better materials for automobile manufacture exist. Sheet aluminum has but one-third the tensile strength of sheet steel, and consequently, Studebaker uses sheet steel for its bodies.

By the manufacture of drop forgings, castings, stampings and the machining, assembling and finishing of motors, axles, frames, transmissions, bodies, tops, etc., and the consequent elimination of middlemen's profits, coupled with lower overhead factory costs per car arising from quantity production and low commercial expenses, Studebaker's cars are kept at an economically low point possible of attainment only by manufacturers with vast physical and financial resources.

Bodies Unexcelled

The bodies of Studebaker cars are not excelled in quality of materials and craftsmanship, by any cars on the market. The Coupe and Sedan closed bodies are magnificent examples of the coach builder's art.

Merit Wins

The sales of Studebaker cars for the past six years have shown each and every year a progressive increase. $1,880 cars were sold in the first six months of 1923 as against 60,053 for the same period last year. Only products of merit can make such growth.

Decreased Foreign Demand for Wheat

Lincoln, Neb., July 23.—Nebraska farmers are vitally interested in the present low price of wheat and in view of this the following statement was prepared by A. E. Anderson, statistician of the bureau of agricultural economics, United States department of agriculture:

"The foreign demand for American wheat during the current marketing season apparently will not be as great as it was a year ago, according to the committee of economists and statisticians who met at the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., recently to consider foreign and domestic demand for farm products, particularly the wheat, corn and hog situation.

More Food in Europe.
"The principal reasons for the probable reduction in foreign demand are given as: First, increased food production in Europe; second, decreased purchasing power in Europe. In reference to the latter condition, the committee reports that in the United States we have had a very high level of industrial activity, distribution and consumption. With certain exceptions there is little evidence thus far of any considerable accumulation of goods. It was pointed out that the farmers can hardly now expect any immediate increase in the domestic demand, but with the present fall volume of employment and high wages there seems no prospect during the remainder of 1923 for a decrease in domestic demand for farm products.

"Continued heavy hog production well into the summer of 1924 is indicated by the special government report. The corn situation does not warrant the maintenance of the very heavy hog production of the past year, neither does the prospective European demand for the domestic industrial output, the committee says. Unless there be a marked improvement in the 1923 corn crop, and in view of probable continued heavy hog production, a corn shortage may develop by the summer of 1924.

"The American winter wheat grower is advised to take the first possible step this fall to adjust the winter wheat acreage in accordance with this situation in view of the long time prospects of the return of Russia and the Danubian countries as fact in the world wheat trade, as well as the increase in other exporting countries.

Black Stem Rust in Wheat.
Lincoln, Neb., July 23.—An infection of black stem rust in the wheat in the western Nebraska counties has lowered the yield, A. E. Anderson, agricultural statistician of the division of crop and livestock estimates, Lincoln announced Saturday after an investigation of the counties. The rust is to be found in both the winter and spring wheat.

"Kimball, Cheyenne, Deuel, Keith, Perkins and Chase counties have a large acreage of spring wheat this year and up until a few weeks ago when the rust got in, these counties had the most promising prospects of years," Mr. Anderson declared. "Then the black rust infected both spring and winter wheat and now much of the wheat is hardly worth cutting."

The black stem rust is a fungus disease which, according to Mr. Anderson, appears in some years and not in others. Conditions were favorable this year due to the heavy moisture resulting in rank growth.

Complaints of low yields from south central Nebraska counties, in the main wheat belt, are being made but the reason for the low yield has not yet been investigated, Mr. Anderson said. The complaints are that while the prospects appeared good, the yield at threshing has proven very disappointing. Mr. Anderson said the low yield might be due either to rust or whether conditions.

Barnard Grocery Company

OPENING

Saturday, July 28

WE will open in the Bressler building a Self-Serve Grocery Store. After many years' experience in the grocery line, we have concluded that this plan eliminates the excessive service charge of the charge and delivery system.

We do away with a high-priced sales force; we dispense with the delivery charges; we have no bad or slow accounts and we carry but one stock, the one on our shelves—while many a credit grocer carries more on his books than on his shelves. We will make our goods at a low margin of profit depending on a quick turn-over for our profit.

Every article we sell is fully and absolutely guaranteed to give satisfaction, regardless of whether or not there be any guarantee expressed or implied at the time of sale. We will handle only standard goods and as far as possible Nationally advertised brands. Quality will at all times be the first consideration; after that the price.

Each article will be plainly priced by a price tag hanging directly above it. Goods are arranged on the shelves within easy reach of all.

You Will Not be Urged to Buy

Come in, look over our stock. Take your time. You will not be keeping any one else waiting. Make what selections you see fit. Pick out your own fruit and vegetables—and when through take it to the checker's desk and she will put it in a convenient package for you.

If you don't find anything you want be sure you get your share of the

which will be FREE all day. And don't forget to bring the kiddies.

Slilage Safe for Horses

Slilage is a safe and useful feed for horses and mules if proper care is exercised in making and feeding it, says the United States department of agriculture.

Corn silage is the daily kind that so far has met with any degree of favor as a horse and mule feed. Corn which is to be ensiled for use as a horse and mule feed should not be cut too green, as sour silage will result, and this may cause colic when fed.

because of its bulky nature, horses and mules doing hard work should not be fed large quantities of silage, but due to its laxative, tonic and appetizing effect, it is well adapted for the maintenance of idle horses and mules, brood mares, and growing stock.

Watch Your Oil Closely These Days

Bearings can be burned out, crankshafts ruined and crankcases wrecked by failure of the driver to watch the oil level in his motor.

Prevention of this is best assured by the regular draining of your crankcase and having it filled with the proper grade of Monogram oil to suit your motor.

Many drivers are now assured that the draining of the crankcase is not an oil selling proposition, but is really an economical way to buy oil.

Drain today, then drive your car until the gauge shows half full and then get it drained again and you will find that you have saved money during the motoring season.

It would be a good idea for the whole country if some of the wonderful prosperity the financiers and industrialists talk about could be passed around in the middle west and divided up so to speak. Good things like handsome profits ought to be more widely distributed, and seeing that there are scores of millions of mighty good Americans out this way, one might wonder why they do not get their share of this wholesomeness. If the brave deserve the fair, surely the hardest working element of American life is worthy of his hire.

Norfolk Youth is Accidentally Shot

Norfolk Daily News, July 24: Fred Baker, 16, son of Mrs. M. D. Baker of this city, is in the Barr hospital at Tilden, Neb., with a bullet in his abdomen, the result of the accidental discharge of a 22-caliber revolver Sunday afternoon. The bullet has been located in the back muscles but the young man's condition is such that the attending physicians have decided not to attempt to remove it at this time. Late this morning Dr. Barr of Tilden stated that the young man's condition was improved but that he was not yet out of danger. Mrs. Baker is at her son's bedside.

The lad had been visiting with his uncle, Tom Baker near Tilden. While he was crawling over a bank, with the revolver in his hand, the weapon discharged and the ball penetrated the abdomen. He was taken to Tilden immediately by his uncle.
