Millard Case Heard.
 Hartington, Neb., Sept. 15.—Scott Millard, son of the county attorney of Cedar county, who is said to have confessed to the robbery of the county treasurer's office here, had his hearing this morning before County Judge W. F. Bryant and was bound over to district court under $5,000 bond, which was furnished by relatives.

Millard waived the examination in view of his confession. Young Cahow of Omaha, charged by Millard in the robbery, was unable to appear in person because of the injuries suffered in the automobile crash while he and Cahow were being held in Omaha following the burglary. His case, however, was bound over under similar bond, and he is to appear there as soon as he is able.

Educated in the public schools of this city, Millard is well known in this vicinity and the case is attracting a great deal of attention. There is a great deal of speculation as to whether his father will prosecute the case against his son.

 THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION
 If a person is mad all the time, there is no chance for exercise of temperamental variability.

The idea of "Constitution Week" is to arouse people to get into closer and closer touch with the fundamental elements and stimulate observance of all laws.

Governor Bryan told the American Legion convention that he was in favor of a bonus for Nebraska veterans if it were authorized by referendum vote of the people. That will be construed by the boys as a very much qualified endorsement. He shifts responsibility entirely.

The state fair management is talking of entirely doing away with complimentary tickets. It has been found that the practice has been abused. It will be very costly to the state. Any body all concerned if all fairs, shows and other amusements would discontinue dealing out so-called complimentary tickets. It is not a sound business policy.

A county fair enlivens interest in fine stock and in better products of the home and home. Any admirer who looks over exhibits of pure bred cattle and pigs and poultry is led to imagine proprietorship of a farm where it could raise such good stock. Wayne county is strong for live stock, and that best-breeds are developed here was proven by exhibits at the late fair.

A successful farmer tells us that profit lies in feeding both cattle and hogs and keeping up the business from year to year. Some years will yield more profit than others, of course, but in the long run there will be very comfortable balance. Fed to these animals crops are turned to best possible advantage, and the soil is kept enriched and in the best possible condition. Many believe every farmer should look carefully after supporting his industry with well selected cattle and hogs.

The town of York has stretches of beautiful flowers and foliage along the main street, leading to the business district, and they are a source of surprise and admiration. We wish Wayne could supplement its well kept residence sections with York's stretches of street adornment. Such beauty stretches grip the stranger when he enters the town and make him feel that he is in a town where the people are a little more than satisfied. The introduction to the town is most happy. It is an impressive argument to people who are looking for homes.

In this time when the world is troubled and trying to settle down to a more sanity and stability, there is need of men and women of highest character—those who are frank and courageous, those who meet all kinds of obligations promptly, and who when they are in the wrong are ready to admit it. The fellow whose smile curtains a spirit of hatefulness and who carries a rose on the lapel of his coat while concealing a knife in his sleeve, is a poor stick for society to try to depend on. The world turns for support to those who think beyond self, who care for posterity and who are ambitious to leave a record of integrity and helpfulness.

The death of two university students in an automobile wreck south of Lincoln near 1 o'clock Saturday morning calls to the public's attention the need of more stringent state laws, but of putting into effect rules of student conduct that will make acquisition of an education a more serious quest for social betterment and a wild time. The task of the chancellor and other university leaders in the enforcement of proper discipline is made greater no doubt by fear of opposing student groups and by fear of public criticism. Some leniency probably is due to the situation for increased university enrollment. But it would be better to have a comparatively small attendance with a reputation for surpassing scholarship, than to have enrollment swelled by accessions from idlers who have more money than brains, and who go to the university to waste time in social excitement rather than in their earnest study. The state legislature and the public should listen carefully to the advice of university heads and support them in their development of a great university with a maximum of scholarship and fine citizenship and a minimum of social excitement and mindless idleness. University heads must be supported to fully enforce rules. They must not be hampered by the colloquy of superficial critics who are influenced more by the veneer than by the soul of an institution.

Girls and boys have gone away to teach or attend school, and loneliness grips many souls. This is the experience of people in town and country everywhere. Around the first of September is the time when young people separate from home surroundings and seek to niches which they had planned to fill. The summer months usually find families together, and unbroken home circles give buoyancy and happy content. But the summer season is too short. Rotation of time brings transition to fall and winter, and with the somber coloring of autumn, comes setting down to accepted tasks. The young people go among strangers to study or teach, or to do something that seems dependable and useful. They go out to depend more on their own judgment, their own developing powers of achievement. With exercise of sound sense and persevering effort they make headway, and they return to the home circle burned and strengthened in self-reliance and constructive qualities of mind. The best and most successful of these hard experience, some buffeting, some disappointments, but with courage and good resolution, out of all such trials will evolve sturdy manhood and womanhood. Most families have felt the sting of disturbed unity. It is kindly pain, probably. If it is the result of the inevitable course of fate, necessary no doubt to wholesome development.

The Backbone of America.
 The Manufacturer: There is a home on the Oregon coast, facing the Pacific ocean. It is a small frame dwelling, painted in a soft blue. Back of stretches virgin forest. In the front yard is a flag pole from which floats the American flag at half mast.
 The flag flies to the world that here is a home in which there is love of country; patriotism; reverence for our president, who died in the public service doing his duties.
 Back in the foothills of the Cascades there is a log house of a settler who with his wife and their children, is leaving out of the forest a home.
 And this humble homesteader has set up close to their cabin in the forest a flag pole from which floats the flag at half mast.

President Coolidge when he was officially notified at Northampton, Mass., of his nomination as the candidate of his party for the office of vice president, used the following words in closing his speech of acceptance, July 19, 1923:

"We have been taking counsel together concerning the welfare of America. We have spent much time discussing the affairs of government, yet most of the great concourse of people around me hold no public office, except to hold no public office. Still in silent truth they are the government, they are America. We shall search in vain in legislative halls, executive mansions, and the chambers of the judiciary for the greatness of the government of our country. We shall behold there but a reflection, not a reality, successful in proportion to its accuracy. In a free republic a great government is the product of a great people. They will look to themselves rather than government for success. The destiny, the greatness of America lies around the hearthstone. If thrift and industry are taught there, and the example of self sacrifice off appears, if honor abides there and high ideals, if there the building of fortune be subordinate to the building of character, America will live in security, rejoicing in an abundant prosperity and good government at home, and in peace, confidence and respect abroad. If these virtues be absent there is no power that can supply these blessings. Look well then to the hearthstone. Therein all hope for America lies."

Mr. Coolidge was visualizing the kind of homes represented by the two mentioned above, where the children are reared at half mast, humble homes, but filled with simple faith and love and respect and honor—homes representing the common people of this great country; the people who are the government.

Winter's Approach.
 (A. L. Bixby in Lincoln Journal.)
 Cheer up, brave heart, and don't be discouraged.
 If thought of winter makes you chilly,
 Invoke your strength of will and good reason.
 And hark back to the summer season.
 When blazing sun and sultry weather made life a burden altogether.
 Remember how like all creations you mopped the streaming perspiration.
 That rolled a-down your furrowed brow.
 As well as other living creatures? Ah, no, these things you don't remember.
 Your mind is dwelling on December. When feet are cold, and hearts are merry.
 And those who cry, "Whoa January!"
 Are by all others thought to be the victims of senility."

Fortunately Shot to Miss.
 Lincoln Journal: A farmer living one and one-half miles northeast of the county farm used good judgment at midnight last Monday when he shot to miss and not to kill. For the recipient of the scare was not an automobile thief but the farmer's son returning home. The auto was not going out from the garage, as it appeared to the father, but was coming in.
 A few nights ago a car was stolen from the county farm. The stripped body was found later in the Blue river near Crete. When this farmer heard a racket in the vicinity of his garage—he took one good look and decided that an automobile, propelled by human hands, was being backed from the garage. He called the Lincoln police and was later connected with Sheriff Hensel.
 "They are pushing a car out of my garage," said the farmer. "What shall I do?"
 "Have you a shotgun?" asked the sheriff.
 "I have."
 "Have you two shot guns?"
 "I have one."
 "Use it. Use both barrels. And if you had two guns I would advise that you use all bullets. Pull both triggers at once. Make a racket."
 And the farmer did. A few moments later he called the sheriff to say that the scare was all business and that the supposed thief or thieves had disappeared. He noted, however, a car standing about a quarter of a mile down the road. The officers formed searching parties and watched roads and bridges. But the standing car disappeared.
 Sheriff Hensel received a phone call from the farmer Tuesday morning. It was all a big mistake. His son had returned and was putting his car away when the surprising revelation of shot was showered in the air.

Try It On Your Telephone.
 Did you ever stop to figure, You who use the telephones, That the lines have certain limits, Quite distinct from megaphones. One by one the calls are taken,
 One by one the parties answer,
 One by one they hear their buzzers call.
 Calls are answered in the ORDER That they reach the central board. Yours receives as prompt attention As skilled handling can afford. Why should precedence be given To your wants before your turn, Does your, doctor, lawyer, banker, Such great worth in you discern?
 And, another thing, don't grumble If toll service is more slow. It depends, like trains and street cars, On the distance it must go. You would not expect to travel From New York to Timbuctoo Quite as quickly as a taxi. Could traverse the city through:
 Still one thing in closing—
 Just because you're miles away,
 Don't bawl out the operator.
 Show a little civility. If you're peeved, you'd best forget it. But, whatever stirs your ire, Be a sportsman in your methods, And don't give aid behind a wire.

Central girls are only human.
 Telling for their daily bread. Do not add unto their burden, Try to help them out instead.
 "In as much as ye have done it," Unto one of these mine own—
 But of course you've caught the idea—
 Try It On Your Telephone.
 —G. H. Reed in Summer News.

In Western Parks.
 Lincoln Journal: The regular season in Yellowstone park will close on Thursday of this week. The hotels and transportation lines will discontinue operations on Wednesday, but the park will remain open to visitors until the storms of the early winter make it advisable for them to remain away. It has been a great season for all of the national parks. A friendly rivalry has existed between the Yellowstone and the Yosemite. On September 1 the visitors to Yellowstone had numbered 126,011 against 118,233 at Yosemite. The early season favors the California park rather strongly, while the later travel is rather toward the Yellowstone. It is likely, therefore, that the latter will have the blue ribbon when the season ends on September 20.

Mr. Coolidge's Task.
 Philadelphia Public Ledger: To day Calvin Coolidge has the nomination in the hollow of his hand. He can and may, of course, lose it. The world of politics is an uncertain place, saving its own tidal waves and earthquakes. A hard winter is before Mr. Coolidge, with plenty of holes in the ice. The farm bill will be on his back. So, too, will be the bonus advance. The sixteenth congress promises to be a terror, with the progressive setting up deadfalls and digging pits and the democratic sharpshooters giving no quarter. It is all a question of holding what he has, avoiding the pitfalls, walking cautiously and with circumspection and making no glaring mistakes for a few months.

Washington Star: Agriculturists boldly insist that a bushel of wheat may be worth more than a bushel of admission to a high-class motion picture entertainment.

Mrs. Thompson Says It Ended Rheumatism

"There's something in Tanlac that makes a person speedily throw off that depressed, don't care feeling and gives new strength, clear brain and self-confidence," declares Mrs. E. Thompson, 1618 Burt St., Omaha, Neb.

"Before starting the Tanlac treatment I was about the worst run-down, nervous, tired-out woman you could imagine. Indigestion, calling for constant 'fixing,' spoiled every vacation time and everything went wrong. Heartburn, spitting beads, palpitation of the heart, backaches, no appetite and loss of sleep took the joy out of life.

"The Tanlac treatment brought me new health and pleasure after pleasure, ridding me of indigestion and all other troubles, and making me feel the stamina and alertness of a girl athlete. Tanlac also relieved my mother of rheumatism and built up my brother, so it holds a high place in our family."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Account no substitute. Over 37,000,000 bottles sold.

is dead and Miss Edna Boorman, 21, of Fremont, is suffering from a fractured skull as the result of an automobile accident near Lincoln at 2 o'clock this morning.

Springer died almost instantly when the car driven by Ernie Granger overturned so it rounded a corner on the road. Granger and Miss Helen Stott of Douglas, Wyo., who was riding in the front seat with him, were not seriously injured.

The accident occurred at a point where the road was being graded. Rounding the corner the car went into the ditch, turned over and pinned Miss Boorman and Springer under it. The machine caught fire while the victims were underneath. Miss Stott ran to a nearby farm house, summoned aid and farmer's got the two from under the car which was burned.

Springer and Miss Boorman were unconscious when rescued. They were taken to a Lincoln hospital by farmers but Springer was dead when they reached the hospital.

Dirige Kuklux. New York Times: Once there were wandering Yankies in Yankee-land who were no friends of hard work. Some of them became "yank-doctors," "yank doctors," lecturers on phrenology or spiritualism. Some drove "hulled corn carts." Some used to sell "salve" or pills or "elixirs" on an itinerant wagon, collecting a crowd by playing the fiddle or singing a comic song. These were primitive gettters of "easy money," and little enough of it they got. Usually, their successors are wiser. Make yourself a leagle or an exalted cyclone. Go about the state, enticing "citizens of the advanced empire" at $10 a head and $6.50 more for a robe with a hood to hide that head. It's an attractive business, if it does seem strange that many "Iraic folks," sensible, hard-headed, ironical, unless they have greatly changed, part with their money so readily.

In the golden prime of Uncle Sotlon Chases stiers greenbackism flourished in Maine. You were a farmer, a teacher, a lawyer, a doctor, more money, not because you wanted to part with some of the little you had. At any rate, kuklux pamphlets have been distributed widely in Maine. According to Mr. A. J. Gordon in the Boston Herald, the king klegle "of the realm of Maine, and his organizers are traveling constantly through every hamlet, town and city, exhorting and pleading for members who are able to donate $10 to become knights of the "yank" clan." We are reminded of our old friends, the "yark doctors" and so on, by the versatility of the Maine klegle, "former" typist, stage newspaper photographer, lecturer, motion picture promoter, and Salvation Army exhorter. A gifted person, and his invisible imperiousness have just won a "great victory" in the Portland election. They say it themselves.

This "victory" was nearly as funny as the klan is, considered merely in its fool aspect. Three plans of city government, with a mayor and a two-Portland voters. One was the present charter, the common form of city government, with a mayor and a two-branched legislature. The second, a compromise, nobody wanted but the mayor and a few of his friends. The third and successful plan, adopted by a plurality of 2,000 more than the necessary half of the whole vote, was a council manager charter. This improved form of city government was proposed by the committees of one hundred, composed of leading citizens. It recommended itself to the "progressives" generally. There was no doubt of its adoption until the kuklux came out for it. The conservatives, friends of the old system, sought to beat the new one by attacking on this discarded and unsavory advocacy of it by the klan. The campaign was sweet as summer until, in its last days, the kuklux broke in, seeking to identify themselves with a movement sure to succeed, with a view to hoisting of the "yank" banner.

The committee of one hundred had to defend themselves against such defenders. Evers, H. H. Ringland and Miss Dorothy Huse went to Lincoln with them and will stay there a few days.

Favorable Mention By Nebraska Press

Laurel Advocate: A splendid forty-page edition was issued by the Wayne Herald last week. The extra effort was prompted by the forthcoming county fair and the opening of the fall season. The paper had fine advertising support and we heartily congratulate the Herald force.

Wahoo Wasp: The Wayne Herald issued a forty page paper last week which was filled with advertisements as well as real live news matter. This paper is without doubt the best weekly newspaper in Nebraska. They have the best set of advertisements, the best makeup and the best edited paper we have ever seen. The fact that the paper has a national reputation for its double page advertisements speaks well for the live business firms in that little city. Probably there isn't another six column paper in the state that carries as much advertising matter as the Herald. Just as we were reading a copy of the Herald last Friday, Mr. E. W. Huse, the publisher, and his friend walked into the office. Mr. Huse is the kind of a man we like. He is ready to talk shop right off the bat and doesn't have much time for the windmiller who is always trying to tell you how to run your business. These gentlemen expected to visit a number of newspaper offices before returning home.

Hartington Herald: The Wayne Herald celebrated the first Wayne county fair under the new organization last week by publishing a wonderful forty-page edition. The edition is replete with seasonable style suggestions, interesting historical matter and many other timely and attractive features, and sets a high mark in country journalism.

The Pilger Herald: The Wayne Herald issued a forty-page edition last week due to the forthcoming of the Wayne county fair, and the opening of the fall season, proving a combination of interest to all its readers. The edition was chock full of good material, style selections with valuable information from experts, advertisements of interest and many timely articles. The edition shows much work on the part of the Herald force, and Mr. Huse is to be commended for his untiring efforts in making the edition a success from every stand point. The Wayne Herald is the biggest and best country weekly in the state, and it is always a pleasure to us to receive the paper each week, as there is always so much to the paper, both in workmanship and material used.

Kick League in the Face. Philadelphia Public Ledger: The fiasco at Geneva has shaken American confidence in the league and worked vast harm to its cause. We have watched it subside in a friendly harbor and seen the very spirit of the league bound and gagged in the house of its supposed friends. Can Europe marvel at American distrust of itself, and all its works and works, when the old world kicks the league in the face and makes it a byword and a mockery? Is this the way to bring the United States to Geneva?

Pool today, he announced. It is thought to be the first presidential candidate petition actually received officially by a secretary of state. The petition was entered in the secretary of state's files today with 983 names, out of the 1,226 appearing on it, accepted by the state. The remaining 843, the secretary announced were excluded because they appeared to be irregular. The 983 names are sufficient, however, to make the 100 necessary from each of Nebraska's six congressional districts. The petition was sent to the state department by Roy Harrop, of the progressive party. It is the first petition filed for placing the name of a presidential candidate's name on the ballot in Nebraska. The people are not interested in a candidate, but in results. Gov. Bryan declared when asked for his opinion on presidential candidates, "It will be necessary for each candidate to express himself specifically on each issue before I or any other voter will express preference," the Nebraska governor declared. The governor refused to mention names regarding presidential candidates and soon changed the subject of the conversation to announce himself in favor of amending the federal constitution to require concurrence of at least seven judges before any act of congress was declared unconstitutional.

The Writer. (A. T. Bixby in Lincoln Journal.) What can he concentrate upon? When there is nothing going on? I do not wonder writing men do dilly no more then. And to the bughouse must repair. For permanent asylum there. I used with energy to strive To keep some hackneyed themes alive: The spotted cow called Speck for years Was subject to my smiles and tears, And woman suffrage, and a lot Of things suggested by the thought. But this no more inspires my pen. Since women are as free as men, And more than "equal" every bit. If we can take their words for it: In party politics, I vow, There's nothing worth discussing.

Perfectly Rectangular. Mr. Knagg—Isn't it possible for me to get a square meal in my own house? His Wife—Try this dog biscuit. You'll find it an exact square.

A Word of Welcome To Newcomers and Visitors in Norfolk

"Esta es su Casa de Usted." Those who have traveled in Spanish speaking countries will recall this expressive phrase of hospitality—"House is Yours."

At the present time when we are extending a cordial invitation to newcomers and visitors in Norfolk to become acquainted with the many service features of this establishment, we can think of nothing that will better convey our welcome than to repeat "house is yours."

Our regular patrons frequently delight us with expressions that indicate their sense of possession of this establishment. They feel that "this house is theirs," and we want newcomers to Norfolk to feel the same way.

United States Congratulated.
 Minneapolis Tribune: In his comment on the rejection between Italy and Greece, Mr. Lloyd George has suggested anew the wise choice that was made in Washington when it was decided that the United States should not join the league of nations on the terms proposed by Mr. Wilson. Obviously the sentiment of the peoples who are committed to the league covenant is not yet of the sort that puts aside in practice the idea of one international law for the strong and another for the weak.
