Club Boys and Girls Publish a Bulletin

Copies of the "War Eagle News," published by the young folks who entered exhibits in the inter-state fair at Sioux City, have been examined by the courtesy of Harvey Tims of Carroll. The paper is a bulletin published in typewritten form giving a history of the boys' and girls' clubs at the fair.

In the agricultural exhibits Minnesota ranked first and North Dakota second. In the home economics Iowa was first and Nebraska second, Nebraska was given honorable mention in the agricultural and Wisconsin in the home economics section.

The prize baby beef exhibited sold for 53c a pound to Davidson Brothers' department store. This steer weighed 1020 pounds, so it brought $546.50. The champion in the Hereford class brought 33c and the champion in the Shorthorn class brought 25c.

The champion health winner was victor Lindgren. He is a senior in high school and comes from a family of the children, like baseball, football and trapeze work. He does not average eating more than one piece of pie a month. The girl health winner is Frances Baustain of Bettendorf Iowa. She says she eats little candy and likes baseball and volleyball. At 18 years she weighs 126 pounds.

The Minnesota dairy team demonstrated dairy management, telling of feed rations, milk testing and dairy type. They used charts and a Holstein cow for their demonstration. The North Dakota team demonstrated farm sanitation, using a model miniature farm for this purpose.

Wednesday evening, September 19, the Sioux City Chamber of Commerce entertained the boys and girls at a banquet. The principal speaker was Acting Governor John Hammill of Iowa. The club members were, the day before, shown through the packing plants and other places of interest about the city. The 135 boys and girls were weighed at the packing plant and they tipped the scales at 16,900 pounds.

Sixty-five boys entered pigs at the fair this year. There were 100 pigs shown in all. There were 214 baby beavers being exhibited this year. Of these, sixty-eight were August, seventy were Herefords and seventy-six were Shorthorns. This is said to be the second largest baby beef show in the world. This is the seventh annual encampment of boys and girls clubs at the inter-state fair and those who attended say this year's program was the best and most complete ever carried out.

Congressman J. J. McCarthy of Ponca and his family have gone to Washington, D. C., to make their home during the session of congress.

From Ponca Journal, Oct. 5, 1882:
It will be recollected that several years ago Dixon county gave bonds in aid of the railroad to the amount of $87,000. Afterwards, the county refusing to pay such bonds, suit was commenced on some of them, and the county employed attorneys, agreeing to pay said attorneys $3,000 and further agreeing, if they were successful in defeating such bonds, to pay them $7,000 more.

From the decision in the United States courts it appears that if such bonds are held by parties who have purchased them in good faith and without knowledge of the facts and circumstances under which they were given, they can recover of the county, but that the bonds which are not held by bona fide purchasers, are uncollectible. It is now proposed by some to take up the old bonds and re-bond the county.

This is a very plausible undertaking at first glance, but reflection will show that it is a fallacious ploy, and one which is easily pricked.

First—if you re-bond the county, you take the cases from the hands of your attorneys, and, as any lawyer will tell you, you will have to pay them the $7,000 which otherwise they could not ask of you until they triumphed over the bondholders.

Second—At least one-half of these bondholders will know the circumstances under which the bonds were given, and under the decisions of the courts, are not entitled to collect. But a re-bonding of the county will cure all such defects. As the cases now are, probably the county may have to pay half of the outstanding bonds. But if you settle and re-bond the county, you will have to pay the whole.

We have thus briefly stated the case, and leave it to the consideration of the public. We are led to speak of this matter at this time as we have within a few days heard that the re-bonding project is being revived.

Annual Convention of County W. C. T. U.

The annual county convention of the W. C. T. U. was held in the M. E. church in Wayne Friday afternoon. About fifty were present. Mrs. G. W. Fortner, county president, presided. The state worker being unable to be present, his place as speaker was taken by Rev. S. X. Cross. Mr. Cross spoke in part as follows:

"The first reason why we should direct every energy toward prohibition or temperance is that man as a social factor is made less efficient by the use of alcoholic drink. A great social loss is sustained when we permit men and women to lessen their efficiency by drinking liquor—or by any other means. The wastes of modern society are enormous. There are material wastes on farm and in workshop, financial and industrial wastes in store and factory; but the greatest waste of our modern system is that of human power through the many sins the alcoholic habits of the temperate. The loss to society in America in one year is more in dollars and cents than the loss caused by earthquakes in Japan. Why should we not take any measure or do any talk that will help to lessen this immense loss?"

"The second call for activity by all good citizens along lines of temperance reform is from the standpoint of law and order. We approach a crisis greater than any that America has ever met. We conquered the forces arrayed against human freedom in our first great war—the Revolution. Later, a great institution, slavery, defied our constitution which granted liberty and protection to all men. The crisis was met by a million brave men who upheld the constitution and incidentally destroyed slavery. The constitution is again openly defied and the principle which it enunciates attacked. The crisis is as at the beginning. We call for the cause of temperance because it is right. It is right in the sight of God! There are things that are right and things that are wrong. The constitution is right and temperance is right. To oppose either of these is wrong. The time has come for all who desire to see the right prevail to work, and live, and give for right. With wickedness in every form rampant and open in all places high and low, all right thinking people must act. Every law that may be enforced and the constitution upheld. Realize that there is a God, and there is such a thing as right! Our business is to overthrow wrong and see right firmly established everywhere."

Miss Frances Beckenbauer and Miss Imogene Shick each sang, each playing the other's accompaniment. Little Marion Kearns, accompanied by her mother, sang "The Sweet Story of Old."

Mrs. Fortner gave an excellent reading, "The Old Man's Story." Election of officers resulted as follows: Mrs. V. L. Dayton, Carroll, president; Mrs. G. W. Fortner, Wayne, secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Evan Jenkins of Carroll gave an outline of the year's work at Carroll, and Mrs. W. C. Fox of Wayne, gave an outline of the work in Wayne.

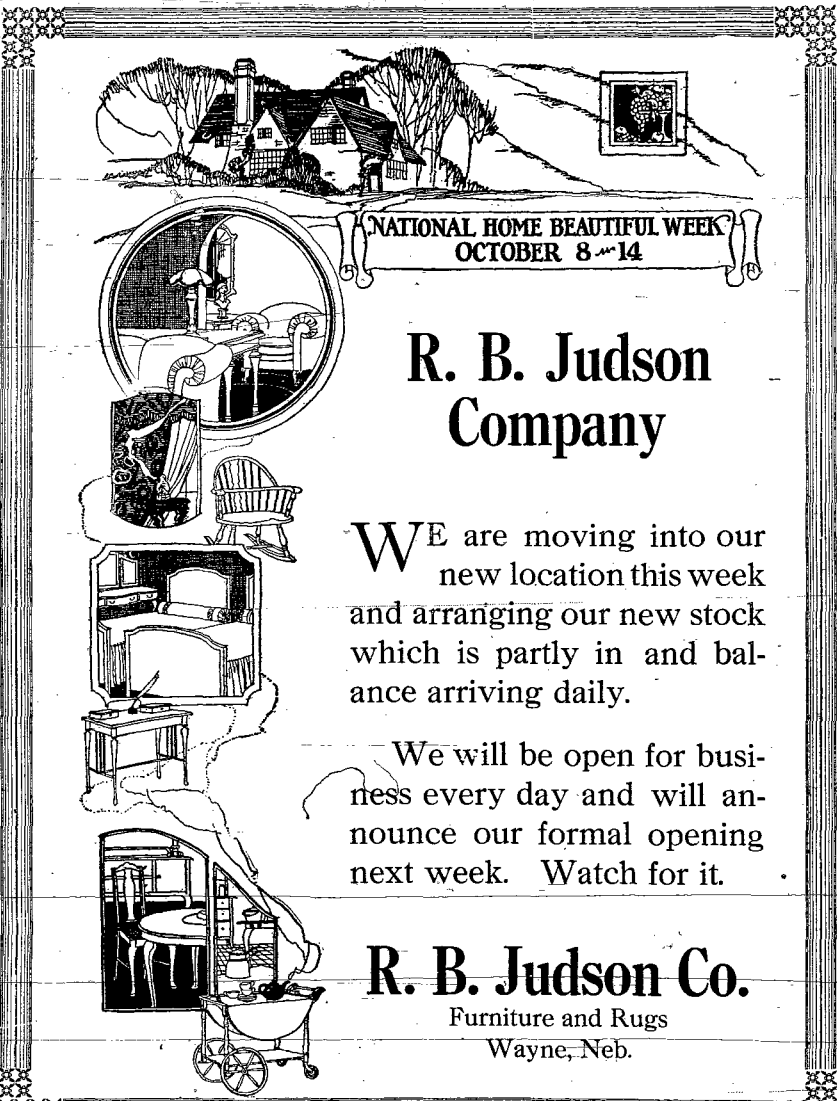

Dinner was served in the church basement. A collection of contributions bearing the letters "W. C. T. U." in white, had been provided by the Wayne greenhouses.

Members of the local W. C. T. U. wish to express appreciation to all who assisted in making the convention a success. Following ladies from out-of-town were delegates: Mrs. W. W. Garwood, Mrs. Evan Jenkins, Mrs. Cass Belford, Mrs. Ed. Murrill, Mrs. V. L. Dayton and Mrs. Davenport of Carroll.

Business.

Sioux City Journal: The time has arrived for business interests to give their attention to the immediate future, with much thought devoted to federal legislation possibilities. Within less than three months the sixty-eighth congress will meet in session and the present indications are that the country's economic plans will be wrought according to the legislation enacted. The situation is in no way unique. Former congresses have extended their influence to the country's business. Some have created nervousness apparently without good cause while others have sought actually to interfere with industrial progress. It is the impression that the next congress may undertake many things that will affect business in one way or another. The general belief in that direction is so strong that the next two or three months may witness a period of quiet, especially with reference to industrial plans of enlargement. The routine will be carried on as usual, but, until capital is given more or less assurance that congress will not try to over regulate it, expansions on a large scale are not likely.

One of the chief topics of conversation ancient and big business is the situation in which the railroads of the country may find themselves among the first of the year or soon thereafter. The lines have enjoyed a period of noninterference extending over several months, and they have used it to splendid advantage in trying to recover their balance. That period is about to come to an end now, certain members of congress having repeatedly announced themselves as being interested in railroad legislation drastic in character. The railroads plainly are disturbed by these threats. The heads of the lines easily see through the scheme which demands a reduced valuation and lowered rates of transportation for the purpose of forcing bankruptcy and government ownership.

The outcome of the impending struggle over the railroads cannot be foretold. One might insist that the majority of the members of congress could be depended upon to protect the people by safeguarding efficient transportation, yet there is a strong group committed to a policy of lower freight rates, and the lever they will use is reduction in the valuation of the lines. The country must have good transportation or its business will not prosper. Regulatory control of the roads if properly exercised ought to be enough government activity. Any attempt to throttle the roads will have a hurtful reaction.

Another proposition which has to do with the railroads and business is the contemplated mergers of groups of lines. President Coolidge is said to favor consolidations, as are many railroad executives. What the group-in-congress determined on forcing the railroad into government control will do about that is a question.

Taxation is yet another issue in which all business is going to be interested when congress convenes. Revision efforts are expected, which may mean nothing more or less than a shifting of the burden. Just how the burden will be shifted is what holds the interest and attention of capital. It stands to reason that until capital knows more about what to expect from congress it will move cautiously. It always has done that, and as long as shrewd business men are at the head of American industries, capital will continue to control its impulses and proceed with caution.

From Other Editors.

Hartington Herald: Ever and anon The Herald receives an offer to sell which is evidently inspired by some would-be political boss who is so big-headed that he imagines he can get control of the opposition organ. Well, let these ambitious persons rest on this proposition for all time. The Herald is not for sale at any price, and some of these muckraking politicians couldn't buy it if they had a million dollars. The present editors never expect to give up the control of the The Herald, and, if they did, it would only be to persons who would make the policy of the paper even more aggressive than it is now.

Aurora Register: It now costs as many marks as would formerly equal fifty thousand for several days. Fine letter from Germany to this country. When money becomes less valuable than blank paper, one would think it time to ring down the curtain and conclude the farce.

Wahoo Wasp: We have just passed through the coldest weather in history during the month of September. No old timer has come forth with anything to beat it. Furnaces were started in many homes and continued for several days. Fine weather is promised now and it looks as though the late corn will get by before any frost.

bound to have its effect. The agricultural press of the country is urging a curtailment in wheat acreage and a turning to other crops.

Are Married 68 Years.

West Point, Neb., Oct. 1.—Mr. and Mrs. David High of this city celebrated their sixty-eighth wedding anniversary at their home in this city. This was also the fiftieth anniversary of their coming to this county. They were married in Berks county, Pennsylvania. After their arrival here they went to farming and continued so until 1900, when they moved to this city. The immediate relatives here, and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. High of Ventura, Calif., surprised the old couple.

Facts Touching the State's Superiority

Custer County Chief: That Nebraska is, primarily, an agricultural state is shown by the "Nebraska Facts" which state agricultural development has made public.

"Nebraska Facts," as made public by the agricultural department, follows in part:—

"Nebraska has next to the largest livestock market in the United States. It is the only state which depends entirely upon agriculture for its resources, ranking third in the production of corn, second in production of beef cattle and second in yield per acre of sugar beets, growing 688,000 tons of these which make 170,000,000 pounds of sugar.

"If all the state's corn were in one field it would cover the three states of New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts and if all its corn were to be shipped it would require 4,560 trains of forty cars to the train and 1,000 bushels to the car to move the same. The corn crop's value is greater than the combined value of all production of granite in Vermont, copper in Michigan, gold in Colorado, lead and zinc in Missouri, coal in Wyoming, sand stone in Pennsylvania, lime stone in Indiana and phosphate rock of Florida, combined.

"Nebraska has the largest horse and mule market in the world. It produces in proportion to its population more surplus foodstuff than any other state.

"Nebraska produced 1,620 bushels of apples in 1922, and its orcharding possibilities are without limit. The state has 442,394 acres under irrigation.

"The state has the largest alfalfa mill in the world, the largest hay market in the world, the heaviest

Cloudburst and Wind Hit Nebraska Towns

Lea, Neb., Sept. 28.—Eight persons were killed and thousands of dollars worth of damage done when a cloudburst struck this city tonight. The eight dead are relatives and members of the family of Mack Carver, in whose house they were congregated when the cloudburst struck the city.

Three other houses were demolished by the high winds which accompanied the rains. Mill creek, which flows almost through the center of the town, is reported to have risen considerably in the past two hours and is out of its banks. Two concrete bridges are reported to have been washed away.

Extinction of the Whale.
 From the Cleveland Plain Dealer:
 According to Sir Sidney F. Harmer, the whale is fast nearing the point of extinction. The Atlantic and Greenland right whales have been slaughtered almost to the point of extermination, the sperm whale industry has practically disappeared, and little remains now but whaling in the Antarctic. That region is virtually new to whalers, as their invasion dates from 1905, but so destructive is modern whaling that the total catch in that area has exceeded ten thousand whales in a single year. Efforts are being made to restrict the slaughter, since the whale is a mammal too large for a game preserve or zoo.
