will burn any kind of fuel, particularly soft coal. When operated according to instructions it burns a large percentage of the carbon and gases liberated from soft coal and slack, converting them into heat, effecting a large saving in fuel. Slows an extra large feed door as well as roomy ash pit. The construction throughout is of very best materials, all joints being ground and fitted to insure against gas and air leaks. As a consequence, this stove holds fire for a long period when the tightly fitted drafts are closed to stop combustion. We have sold this stove for some 20 years and cannot too highly recommend it.

Organ of the American Florists and THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

People should accept things said in the news. They are meant, and not meant to stir their imaginations to find a construction that would give offense. One should get up in the morning with the idea that the world is friendly, and that usually the spirit of good intention inspires a man to talk and it is present in what he says, even though it may not be the truth.

Women seem to live longer than men, and the reason may be found in the fact that they never retire from active enjoyment. When men retire and forfeit his interest in constructive endeavor, he seems to speed up the final summons. Even when relaxing effort at the affairs, men ought to keep alert to avoid and do what they can to push the hand organ along. Otherwise the life of Hesperus is inhibited in time by women only.

Frank Harrison who is a high-powered political manager, and who led the movement in this state for Senator Johnson of California in the last pre-primary presidential campaign, arrived in Lincoln recently from the western coast where he had located. It is suspected that he is here to angle for support for Johnson for the coming presidential campaign. Soon after Harrison arrived, a presidential boomlet for the California senator began to take shape and show signs of life.

Prices for farm products would not be so unsatisfactory if other costs were down in proportion, and it manifests that prices paid for organized labor are reflected in the things the farmer has to buy. When plasterers, bricklayers, painters and other workers in metropolitan centers receive from $9 to $15 per day, farming communities inevitably share in the burden. Where a month is required to skyscraper a building, it is necessary to make a pair of shoes, or increase directly or indirectly the cost of commodities that go out to the using or consuming public. Organization of service have resulted in raising an unreasonable low wage to an unreasonable high wage. Wage earners do not manifest that prices paid for them of sternal raising in face of comparatively low prices for essentials they buy from the farm. The result is a somewhat commensurate suffering. Farmers ought to so organize that they can control prices for their products and thus receive the manufacturing centers returns that will be fair to them, with prices paid for manufactured products. Organized farmers should receive organized labor either to some extent or pay more for farm products.

how soon one is going to die. They have a good deal of a feeling of a body, and by such means inspire courage and often prolong life. Many old-time doctors, though giving valuable service to the human race, were often too benighted to see the harm in cocksure opinions, charged with gloom, expressed with a grimace without. They thought they had to live up to a reputation for superlative wisdom, and in order to do so, they frequently bolstered up their judgment with remote conjecture.

We once knew a man who was able to do his usual chores, but who, after a long illness, was a specialist and after an examination, was told that he could live only a month. He had high blood pressure with cardiovascular trouble and other contributing causes. The patient was very susceptible to suggestion and wanted to be agreeable to the recommendations. He accepted the pronouncement, and hastened to get his affairs in shape so he could die without leaving a lot of unfinished business. He grew as rapidly weak as necessary to make the schedule, and the result was that he passed away to glory a trifle ahead of the date fixed.

AN APPEAL TO AMERICANS.
The great American heart has often been appealed to in Germany abroad. This Christian, ever blessed with abundance, has never turned deaf ears to want and suffering in foreign countries. The need is urgent and exists in Germany. The German mark has become almost valueless, and people who were formerly in comfortable circumstances, have been reduced to dire poverty and distress. Unless clothing and food are poured into Germany in large quantities, it is said thousands will perish.

Already organizations in the United States have done considerable to relieve suffering in Germany, but more money is needed to benefit people already undernourished, from starving and freezing. It has been urged that an organized effort be put forth to gather second-hand clothing and food and money to send through reliable hands for the relief of impoverished people in Germany. It is further suggested that the Red Cross may be asked to contribute money and effort to the proposed relief work. A society with headquarters in Lincoln that formerly assisted the monetary needs of Russia, is said now to be handling supplies for the aid of suffering inhabitants of the aid. We would like to see Wayne county do its full share.

The way to maintain aid to self-government in Germany, and keep energy and resources going, is to follow the example of the Red Cross in helping to feed and feed them until they can get on their feet and become self-sustaining. Let the Red Cross continue to lead the leadership in answering the cries of suffering humanity. We know the response will be generous and cordial.

Alfalfa Growers Warned.
Alfalfa growers in America are urged by the United States department of agriculture to watch their fields of alfalfa for the appearance of "tick spots" which may be caused by the presence of a parasitic eelworm and to take prompt and aggressive measures for eradicating the pest whenever found. The eelworm disease is caused by the alfalfa stem nematode which is proving to be an extremely dangerous pest.
When examining a "tick spot" in the field, due to the dying of some of the plants. This leaves a poor stand of dwarfed plants, with a reduced number of stems, some of which may be more or less yellowed and distorted. A close examination shows that the disease is localized in the crown of the plant. Stems are swollen at the base and sprouts and the enlarged browned stems already mentioned. Badly diseased plants show a distinct rotting of the stem bases and crown. In some cases all of the stems completely killed.
The disease has not been located in America in a great many places but it is feared that it has been introduced for a long enough time to determine just how damaging it might be in this country. But in view of the fact that it causes serious damage in all other countries where it occurs and because it is readily spread, the department is anxious that all places of infestation be located as soon as possible and methods of eradication put into effect. Specimens of suspected material should be sent in promptly to the department at Washington for identification, together with an account of the extent to which the disease occurs.

When the disease is easily spread by irrigation water, insects, hay, farm implements, wind, and birds, it follows that the wise practice is to prevent it becoming established by plowing up the alfalfa fields and putting the land in other crops for three years. A further check upon the infection against the disease is that it may under favorable conditions pass over to and effect other crops, such as clover, timothy, rye, turnips, and even potatoes.
Nebraska's Wonderful Fossil Beds.
Omaha Bee: The discovery in Nebraska of the fossil remains of things which man inclines numerous evolutions contemporary down Atlantic way to grow humorous at our expense. We do not begrudge them whoever laughs they may get out of the subject, but we insist that they do not mistake the real facts. In the past few years, the world's most wonderful fossil beds, but which have the newspaper brethren in Boston, New York, Philadelphia and elsewhere east of the coniferous belts know that these fossils are found far down in the earth under the deposits of the glacial period, not in the upturned strata that are in editorial rooms of metropolitan newspaper establishments. Our fossils are the fossil remains of things that were, not of things that are. Grave and dignified scientists from all parts of the world foregather in Nebraska to dig and delve for our giganticly upturned apartments now in editorial rooms of metropolitan newspaper establishments. To Attend Governors' Meeting.
Lincoln, Oct. 15.—Governor Bryan announced today that he would attend the meeting of governors called by President Coolidge for Saturday, October 20.
"It is my duty to attend," said the governor, in discussing the trip. "I will be unable, however, to go to the conference of governors now being held at West Baden, much as I would like to do so."
The governor plans to leave Lincoln tomorrow afternoon for Chicago, where he will spend the day with coal mine owners in an endeavor to get further light on the coal situation. He will leave Chicago Thursday night and go direct to Washington.
His trip has forced him to refuse the invitation to take part in the standard dedication ceremonies which will be held here October 20, and he so advised Chancellor Avery this morning.

Says His Recovery Is Almost a Miracle

"It seems like a miracle, but Tanlae has increased my weight twenty pounds, rid me of all my troubles and made me feel the best I have in years," was the precise statement of J. H. Brown, transfer man, 3020 North Sherman Ave., Omaha, Neb., recently.

"Before I started taking Tanlae I had struggled through the winter suffering almost constantly with biliousness, constipation, headaches, backaches, nervousness, loss of sleep, poor appetite and indigestion. It was in such a terribly rundown condition that the least exertion would play me out.

"The way Tanlae changed me was astonishing. Only six bottles made me eat like a busy farm hand, and my strength is so built up I can now hold my own with the strongest men who work with me. Tanlae solved the health problem for me, and I can not say too much for it.

"Tanlae is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

"Tanlae Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere. 0181

Desecration of Cemetery.
Fremont, Neb., Oct. 15.—A vigilance committee made up of members of the Catholic church, whose names are withheld, will cooperate with the Dodge county officials in an effort to run down the vandals who have done the damage to Calvary Catholic cemetery, on the outskirts of Fremont, during the past few nights.

A meeting called by Father O'Sullivan, pastor of the local church, expressed indignation over the depredations caused by unknown persons who tore down and disfigured monuments and markers at the cemetery.

The names of the committee were withheld in order to make their efforts more successful. Those present at the conference offered to furnish a continual guard at the cemetery in case the sacrilegious destruction continues. Although no motive for the destruction has been uncovered, relatives and friends of the deceased, whose graves were disturbed, are incensed over the outrage and they will take every means to bring the vandals to justice.

The destruction in the cemetery was discovered when the caretaker made his usual inspection trip through the burial grounds. Father O'Sullivan revealed the vandalism from the pulpit to his congregation Sunday, and considerable feeling toward the guilty parties has developed.

MONUMENTS
If you are in the market for a monument or marker you will be interested in a sale which the Wayne Monument Works are advertising. On all orders received now for fall or spring delivery they are giving a discount of 25 per cent to 50 per cent. They have a large factory and are doing this to keep their fall force on this winter. You cannot afford to overlook this opportunity. o1811

A Hint to Housewives.
(A. L. Bixby in Lincoln Journal)
Pluck now that ball of yellow from its vine,
And pare it thin and stew it for a day.

There's nothing thrills this fat old Lake pumpkin pie made in the good old way.

To construct it is not a great expense
In preparation for the coming year.

Detested milk is a distinct offense;
I'd like to say as much as that at least.

So let the cream within the milk abide,
For, as it were, the horns go with the hide.

In making "timber" for the pie, my friend,
Ere pumpkin pie is "pizen" in the end.

Business.
St. Louis City Journal: Arthur D. Welton, in his Chicago news letter to the Philadelphia Public Ledger, calls attention to the earnings of the railroads in a most interesting way. He takes the wage of a worker as a standard of comparison and points out that a bricklayer making $2,000 a year, if paid the return the railroads have been able to make on an average, could find his skill and energy representing a capitalization of some $10,000. Says Mr. Welton, the bricklayer does not think he is worth that much, and if he did and 5 per cent were fixed as the standard rate, he would receive $500 more or more, and make a very good argument on the uncertainty of life and health as justifying it.

Legitimate business variously considers it is getting a fair return if its profit is close to 6 per cent. If it is not, it has been legalized for the railroads. Take the coal business for example. Profits in that line run anywhere from 20 to Coats are decidedly different this season. Their slimness has become more pronounced. Endless variety is, however, introduced into this straight silhouette by the use of flare, a circular panel, of deep cut armholes. Sleeves are most interesting. For trimming there is fur first and foremost, then braiding, embroidery, insets and cording of the material.

Fabrics are exceedingly beautiful ranging from Francine and Excello to the soft luxurious Lustrosa, Fashona, Bonivoine.

100 per cent. It is doubted that a successful coal operator anywhere is making less than 15 per cent net. Some coal operators have doubled their money within a year or two. Nor are the high profits confined by any means to coal operators. Take real estate for another example in which there are, of course, losses as well as gains. Some successful realtors have become millionaires merely by turning over properties one after another at enormous profits. It is true that the realty value may be actually proved, due to the development of business conditions that exert influence on holdings of that kind. Still, if one keeps one's eyes on the main question the matter of the original investment the worth of energy and effort and the addition of capital as needed, one may discover that a part of the undisputed value is in unearned increment.

The sky is the limit for profits in some businesses. Nobody seems to be much interested in how much an investment may yield as long as the purchaser who is a producer and is willing to pay the price asked. It is a fact that few businesses are asked to accept regulation and control of their prices. It is true with regard to necessities, clothing, fuel, foodstuffs, motor cars, building materials. A government that would finally classify the producers and distributors of all goods as public utilities and regulate them so they would have to accept a fair return of less than 6 per cent would be criticized as ruinous. The plea that excess profits ought to be allowed in order that they would permit industrial expansion somehow was not applied to the railroads, which are expected to expand and develop their properties and provide adequate service where needed and demanded.

No objection is made to government regulation of utilities. Other wise dangerous monopolies would exist. Competition would be eliminated by understanding regardless of anti-trust laws. At the same time no business should be regulated to death. Some of the railroads of the country are not now earning the fair return they are allowed because of the business is not there. Others are exceeding it somewhat, owing to advantageous geographical placement. The average, however, is not yet up to 6 1/2 per cent if the tentative valuation of the railroad is approximately correct. Whether railroad rates are too high is a question. They seem to be too high in some cases. Agricultural products have not demanded market prices that enabled their producers to make fair returns equal to those allowed the railroads. The railroads might take the position that the relief for the farmers is not through lower freight rates but through higher market prices. Meanwhile the farmers can get neither the one nor the other. Congress will have a big job if it undertakes to solve the transportation problem and solves it correctly.

Incumbent Powers of Publicity.
A. L. Bixby in Lincoln Journal: Does advertising pay? Well, we should say: It does! Last week a merchant of a certain town not a thousand miles from here advertised fresh dairy butter for sale. The printer put in an "if" instead of a "d" and ad read "Eresh Dairy Butter for Sale." A smart barber called up the grocer and offered to shave the butter at the standard price. The grocer got mad, and licked the barber, breaking his nose and otherwise disfiguring him so that he was compelled to call upon a doctor, who charged him a tenner for the service rendered.

The next day the barber met the editor on the street and threw a brick at him, giving him a "close shave." In his effort to get away, the pen pusher fell down, tearing his trousers on the west side so badly that he was necessitated to buy a new pair; also his editorial shears, which were in his hip pocket, penetrated his anatomy so that the services of a surgeon were required. Yes, of course, it pays to advertise.

Miss Mae Chaney who attends school in Wayne, and makes her home with her sister, Mrs. Jas. Pils, was seriously injured by an automobile in Chicago, according to the following report which appeared in Saturday's Omaha World-Herald.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Scorped up on the running board of an automobile which dashed at terrific speed around a street corner, carried half a block and hurled to the pavement while the car sped away, Miss Mae Chaney, 18-year-old coed of a Wayne college, Wayne, Neb., lies in a Chicago hospital with injuries which will keep her there, surgeons say for three months.

She has a compound fracture of the leg, an injured spine, an injured shoulder and twenty-seven stitches in her head.

Miss Chaney, who was to have returned to college within a few days after passing her summer vacation as a clerk in the Boston store, was crossing a Chicago boulevard with her mother, Mrs. Mary Chaney.

Both had looked carefully in both directions before starting to cross, they told police. Without warning an auto dashed around the corner at a speed estimated by witnesses to be sixty miles an hour and caught the young coed.

The number of the auto was taken as the driver dashed away. Sergeant John Noonan of the detective bureau declares that the license was issued to William J. Stube. Arrests are expected to be made soon.

Is There an Extra Bathroom in Your Home?

Think of the convenience of another bathroom in your home. You know the congestion and delay in the morning "rush hour" when everyone is anxious to wash, bathe or shave at the same time.

You can utilize a large clothes-closet, a small spare room, or waste space in the attic can be walled off inexpensively, to obtain the added comfort and convenience of another bathroom.

Let us show you in how small a space and at how little cost you can have a fine, attractive Kohler bathroom in your home.

The beautiful, snowy whiteness of the durable Kohler enamel is uniform in every fixture. And every piece of Kohler Ware bears the name "Kohler" in dainty blue letters inconspicuously but permanently fused into the enamel, for your protection.

We will be glad to show you several model arrangements for a Kohler bathroom in as small a space as five by six feet. Come in or phone today.

actual slayers, who have held life cheaply before and have taken it and are ready to take it again if necessary to accomplish of their plans. The cold blooded murder of four men in California by bandits who robbed a Southern Pacific train near Redding shows the lengths to which robbers will go. We are glad he mentioned it. That will furnish some of us a convenient alibi.

Fairbury News: Governor Bryan, along with the other governors, has been summoned to Washington to take tea with the president on the 20th. Anyone familiar with the service of society paid with their lives for being in possession where they might interfere with the bandits' program. Obviously, there was no thought given to these men's right to life. They simply were in the way and to remove them effectually was to kill them.

Poses organized took the hills in search of the bandits who committed the revolting crime. Any good citizen might hope that the posses would leave nothing for the courts to do, once they came in contact with the murderers. As long as things of this kind are done the chance for reformers to eliminate capital punishment will be slender. These California bandits did not kill because they could not help it but for the reason that they were determined to succeed in robbing that train.

tire. We do not see that the boll weevil is entitled to any particular credit but it is a manifestation of a very valuable trait in human nature which merits recognition and development.

York Republican: It is generally believed by men whose fingers are upon the political pulse that the campaign and election next year are full of anxiety and uncertainty. The country is full of quacks who think they have positive cures for the ills of the nation. Party lines will be so dim that thousands of voters will not be able to discern them. Independent voting will be rampant. The fate of parties and candidates will hang on the slimmest threads of changing popular opinion. It will be difficult to induce the best men to stand for offices in Nebraska because of the great uncertainty which will surround the election. But the Republican feels somehow that the picture is worse than the realization will be, and that a great many voters, who seem now to be at sea, will come to the realization that the safety of the state and nation lies not in trying the nostrums of the so-called specialists in economic disorders, but in trusting in the old-time tried practitioners who have the welfare of the country, both body and soul, in view.

Pioneer Days To Be Revived at Yankton

Bloomfield Monitor: Men who came up the Missouri river by steamboat in the early days while hostile Indians peered at them from the Nebraska and Dakota hills, will again bring glory to the pioneers of Yankton in the year 1923 on October 26, while white folks, not at all hostile, will gaze at them from the curb. But these pioneers, if should be said, will not all be here in person, for many of them are dead and gone. Younger folks of a new generation, will assume for the occasion, their characters, historically accurate in garb and appearance.

Pioneer day, the annual homecoming festival at Yankton college, is to be made a notable occasion this year, through cooperation of the entire city with the college. It is to be a genuine homecoming for residents of southeastern South Dakota and northeastern Nebraska, as well as for former students of the college. Every tradition of historic old Yankton is to be drawn upon, every famous character of the early days re-enacted, in the big pageant parade to be staged at noon. Committees now at work promise a remarkably realistic drama of the days of old.

A general invitation is being issued for all persons claiming residence of 50 years or more in the state to come as special guests of honor. Governor W. H. McMaster and other notables have promised to be present. Miss Pioneer will lead the parade, chosen from the student body. Last year, Miss Florence, of South Dakota, had this honor. In the afternoon Yankton college will play football with Trinity college, and strive to uphold the tradition of never having been defeated on Pioneer day.

A. J. Hyatt of Randolph suffered injury to one of his eyes when some hot metal flew into it. Mr. Hyatt had lost the sight of his other eye some time ago when a piece of metal flew into it. Mr. Hyatt was melting metal with which a mend a washing machine when the last accident happened.

Beginning at Home.
From the Portland Oregonian:
Representative churchmen who within a few days have pointed with alarm to the increase of the spirit of lawlessness and even of immorality, have the warrant of statistics for their declaration that this has been attended by growth in the divorce rate of the nation, but they are likely to be wrong who have assumed that the whole evil of which they complain can be abolished by the mere enactment of laws regulating marriage and divorce. The error is in supposing that fundamental relaxation of standards is the product of insufficient law on those subjects. The fact more probably is that we now have laws enough if we were disposed to enforce them. Growth of divorce is less likely to be the cause of present conditions than one of the manifestations of a general trend.

Between 1870 and 1917 there was an increase of 400 per cent in the national rate of divorce, which was 28 per 100,000 of the population in the former year and 112 per 100,000 in the latter. The rate of increase in that period was about three times the rate of increase in the whole population. The present total output of the divorce mills of the country is about 100,000 a year, which some statistician has figured is equivalent to about one every one and a half minutes. This is but an impressive way of calling attention to an obvious fact, but it does not mean that by repealing all divorce laws or even by achieving federal uniformity we should make all homes happy that are now miserable or that we should have removed more than an incidental cause of unrest.

Undoubtedly the divided home is not conducive to the inculcation of the highest ideals in the young and parents who cannot agree as to other matters are unlikely to set examples of contentment and ethical progress for their offspring. But the mere coincidence of crime figures and those for marital error does not in itself indicate the depth of the problem. Acceptance of the responsibilities of parenthood is part and parcel of the disposition to regard other duties seriously, including those of citizenship. Divorce law will not be a complete solvent, since what is needed is emphasis on morals in general. This is a problem in education, in the solution of which the churches have an opportunity to play an increasingly important part.

Warm Water in Winter
for Hogs, without Heaters; the Problem has been Solved

Everyone knows that hogs must have warm water—or at least water that is not ice cold, in the winter time, if they are to thrive. Hogs are like humans in one respect—they won't drink much ice cold water in the winter. And they must drink plenty of water if they are to thrive and get full value from their feed. Besides, ice cold water chills the hog and his system uses up feed to bring body heat back to normal instead of to put on fat. Hogs should never be compelled to drink ice cold water—it's expensive.

No Heaters to Fuss With

Before the Dempster Self-Heating Hog Waterer was invented, the only way to keep hogs supplied with warm water outdoors during the winter was by tanks heated by lamps or heaters. This was fairly satisfactory, but caused a lot of trouble in keeping the lamps filled and burning, and meant a constant expense for oil. When the lamp went out, the water froze.

No Oil to Buy

But with this new Dempster Self-Heating Hog Waterer, there is nothing to fuss with and no oil to buy. You simply install it with the water bowl in a convenient place for hogs to drink. The remainder of the waterer is covered with about four feet of live manure. The manure heats and keeps the water in the water bowl warm all the time.

Every farmer who raises hogs should have one or more of these Dempster Self-Heating Hog Waterers. It will save its cost within one year, besides saving an enormous amount of trouble. After it is installed, there is nothing to do except change the manure every 30 to 60 days during the winter, depending on its condition.

It operates automatically—keeps just the right amount of water in the bowl at all times and keeps it warm.

Let us show you this waterer and prove what it will do for your hogs.

What the Farmers say:

Stewart Harrington, Proprietor of Whitecrest Stock Farm, Harvard, Nebraska, says: "I purchased a Dempster Self-Heating Hog Waterer in January of this year and liked it so well that I bought another one in February. They have been very satisfactory. Glad to recommend it to any one who needs one."

Harvey Essam, Beatrice, Nebraska, wrote: "I am well pleased with your new Hog Waterer and don't see how any water heater could work more successful than it. This morning it was 5 degrees below zero and the water in the drinking fountain was about the temperature it would be if pumped fresh from the well. This is a good practical waterer, as there is no danger of fire, as in the case of lamps, or other fuel heaters."

Harry A. Frank, Harvard, Nebraska, wrote: "I have had one of your hog waterers since last December. It gives good service both summer and winter."

More Heat at Less Cost

Buck's hot blast heaters burn any fuel—even slack—and save fuel by getting the most out of the fuel. They produce more heat for less money than any other stove. A steady, even heat day and night. They feed 58 cubic feet of air to every-pound of hard coal.

"Buck's" Patented Circle Draft Hot Blast
 Throws the heat against the body, not into the center of the stove. And Buck's patented hot blast ring draws the heat to the face, giving a heat so intense that you can bake biscuits in the ash pan. Combustion occurs in a complete circle against the fire pot, highly heating the entire radiating surface.

Perfectly Air-tight and Extraordinarily Durable Buck's heaters are perfectly air-tight and expertly fitted. They will not buckle and leak air. The fire box will not crack or burn out in years of use. The hot blast drives the heat to the base and has ample radiating surface to meet all needs. Large hauled ash pan will hold all the ashes that can be produced in 24 hours.
