Using Reply Coupons.

Plainville, Dec. 3.—People in this vicinity who have correspondents in Germany state that it takes about a week's wages to buy a postage stamp there. For this reason many are unable to write to their relatives in this country. But a solution for this problem has been found. People in this country may eleven cents for coupon which they enclose with their letter. This coupon is accepted at the post office in Germany in exchange for sufficient postage to mail a letter back to this country. These coupons are valid if used within six months of the date of purchase. Postal money orders have been issued payable to Germany since the first of November. A considerable amount of parcel post is now being sent to the old countries, which will reach there about Christmas time.

Republican leaders will meet in Norfolk tomorrow afternoon to examine and invoice party equipment.

During the cheerful Christmas season, people should fix habits of good nature so firmly that they will last through the coming year.

A community Christmas tree for Wayne has been suggested, and it is believed it would lend much animation and joy to the holiday period.

When people are disappointed, they are apt to want to punish some one. They are in a state of mind to convince themselves that a perfectly innocent person is responsible.

Rather disquieting news for Hiram Johnson's presidential boomlet, has floated down from South Dakota. Johnson had counted on South Dakota to give him a boost. The people up there cast their lot with President Coolidge instead.

Whether one is driving an automobile, jaywalking across a street, starting a fire with the aid of kerosene, pulling the trigger to bag wild game, or running a motor boat, the proper judgment on a fellow-citizen, he should look and think before he leaps.

On account of the contrary of congress if organizing, President Coolidge has experienced delay in getting his message before the senate. But we would guess that it will prove a document worth waiting for, and that in substance and style it will compare favorably with former state papers.

Social caste that is based on wealth or fiery of looks is too certain to depend on a trend position bolstered up by achievements of the mind is more to be desired, but best of all and more secure than all the rest is the caste founded on character and kindness and exemplification of the Golden Rule.

The corn is nearly all safely gathered, rains are good and the weather is clear and snappy. These facts should conduce to a season of lively pre-holiday buying. The festive advertising columns reflect convincing pep and punch in merchandising enterprise, and those who thus invest, will enjoy the business circles and reap a harvest of deserved reward.

A Washington report states that William Jennings Bryan and his double, Representative Edgar Howard of this congressional district, have speeded together at the national capital, and attracted much attention on account of similarity of appearance. We think it would require considerable time to make-up Howard to arrange his looks to be mistaken for the commoner. However, we judge from the report that Howard admits the similarity.

A restless and unstable state of mind, lack of inclination on the part of married couples to hold together and pull together for success, a determination to fight shy of useful endeavor, an uncontrollable inclination to put on every thing the vendor and sail higher than earnings will warrant contribute largely to the divorce evil. Some divorces are tragic. A man who has been along through the years, giving all his earnings to his family, foolishly forfeiting his own good appearance and his own comfort in order to believe in a hollow social pretense. He had no backbone. He lacked initiative, lacked judgment, lacked capacity to manage. But he worked hard and was faithful to his marriage vows. In time he lost his job. The high-flying members of his family had kept him strapped. They, with no job, no money and broken health he was not in very good shape to satisfy the demands of an extravagant household. And so he kicked out, and a petition for divorce on the ground of non-support was made to stick. Sometimes the wife is more at fault than the man, and sometimes it is just the other way. Often both are equally to blame. But often the break is caused by high life below stairs, a false show, ignorance of real things, indifference to responsibilities.

ARENA AND GRIDIRON.
 Ancient Rome had a gladiatorial arena. We have a vast stadium. Rome had its gladiators who fought for the amusement of the people. We have rival football teams that meet to battle for supremacy. The Roman gladiator was a prisoner, compelled to risk his life to satiate the mad blood lust of the multitude. The football player is a student in a great university, the envy of the students, and accepted as a hero by society. The gladiator intended to kill his antagonist. The football player has no such intention, though too frequently fatal injuries happen.

In our first experience as a spectator of a university football game Thursday when Kansas met Nebraska, we were impressed by a stage setting and mob action that recalled stories of the ancient arena. The great stadium was banked with spectators to a high pitch of excitement. Each rival group had a brass band and each gave vent to organized cheers. The spirit of fight was expressed in the vocal alleluia that charged and surcharged the gridiron. A physician conveniently near administered to the wounded as they were led from the field.

In 2,500 years, apparently there has been marked decrease in attributes of brutality. People do not gather to see combatants killed or hurt. Foreheads are higher. Civilization has enlarged fine gray matter. But granting that strict discipline at all possible reduction in doing injury to students, is it not a fact that football, whipping rival crowds into a fever of excitement over athletic skill and physical endurance is carried to an extent that militates seriously against the educational functions of the state university? It is not to be put in the line on the sport and compel it to divide attention with school branches that specialize more in mind culture and less in muscular activity and brute force?

Forty years ago there was no organized football at the Nebraska university. Inhibition and gridiron mania of eastern colleges, the Nebraska institution, like other big schools, puts a premium on football playing and invites the support and the plaudits of people in behalf of physical prowess. We have made progress since the time of the ancient Roman arena, but have we gone forward or backward in determining educational or cultural values during the last forty years? In that regard have we not swung from one extreme to the other? Will we not find football, among other materialistic tendencies, and swing back to safe and wholesome middle ground? Or will we go on to a fall and have to start civilization over again?

in Omaha of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Josephine Huse of that city to Harry Kelly of Port Arthur, Tex. The wedding will take place during the winter. Miss Huse is the daughter of Mrs. S. E. Huse. She was graduated from the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Alpha Phi society. She studied languages at the University of Berlin and following the armistice entered the service of the near east relief society, where she did relief work at Constantinople and had charge of an orphanage at Sidon, Syria. Miss Huse had been doing child welfare work for the Westchester county welfare commission in New York for the past year.

For Proposed Memorial.
 Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 4.—Harding Memorial week, Dec. 9 to 16, was proclaimed today by Governor Bryan who requested that all religious, business, social, fraternal and civic bodies commemorate the late president in fitting manner at regular or special services or meetings and "contribute to the memorial fund according to their means and inclination."

The governor's proclamation declared that when one of the people chosen to head the government "is suddenly removed by death during his incumbency in office it is a personal loss to every citizen."

"Warren G. Harding, fully measured up to the high standard set for those who have occupied the high office. He was a splendid example of American manhood, possessed of a kindly generous temperament by the expression of which he endeavored himself to all. As president, he was unceasing in the discharge of official duties. In his desire to benefit people he labored without regard to personal comfort, resulting in his being cut off in the midst of his term of office."

The governor's proclamation then explained that the Harding Memorial association was a group of citizens, including the president and his cabinet, which had been incorporated to erect a suitable memorial, a mausoleum wherein to place the body of the late president and to acquire the home at Lincoln as a place for books and records, speeches, and other mementos and the roll of names of all contributing to the Harding memorial fund.

Burial of Cremated Person.
 Cupper's Weekly: No grave is due to inter the ashes of departed ones who have been cremated. Instead a hole is bored in the ground the regulation 8-foot depth, and the urn containing the ashes gently dropped in.

There is a reform that couldn't possibly have menacing accompaniments, and in which everybody young or old, big or little, may participate. By starting at one's own doorstep and watching oneself throughout the day, a lot of carelessness can be stopped. Anyone who wishes can refrain from throwing paper or other trash around where it can become a public nuisance.

Civic Tidings.
 Norfolk Daily Times: Carelessness in the matter of community tidings seems to be increasing generally. England, always noted in the past for its neat and well-kept countryside, now complains that newspapers, lunch boxes and tin cans are thrown all over the landscape in burraps desecration. Everybody in this country has either heard or read about the untidly state of our own main thoroughfares, our city streets and public parks.
 The National Chamber of Commerce is now pushing a movement in the United States, the purpose of which is to promote civic tidiness. It urges three methods of effecting this: Education, the adequate provision of receptacles for waste and rubbish, and the enforcement of the ordinances concerning cleanliness that already exist in many cities and

Drive To Lincoln To Attend H-Y Meeting

Supr. E. C. Chapman, Homer Erickson, Lewis Patterson, Clarence Busby, Lawrence Johnson and Robert Pullen left Wakefield Thursday morning for Lincoln to attend the Monday evening at the Will Hugelman-home. Miss Lottie Ostrander was hostess. Twenty-six were present and officers elected were: President, Mrs. George Barter; vice president, Mrs. Adam Nuernberger; and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Harney Childs. Mrs. H. A. Jeep and Mrs. Carl Miller were chosen on the music committee. A social time followed and refreshments were served.

The group visited the new capital in Lincoln to see how work on it is progressing. They saw Melvin Collins from whom they got tickets to the Nebraska-Kansas football game Saturday. Thanksgiving dinner the boys ate at the Y. M. C. A. Afterwards they visited the museum at the university campus and saw much of interest among the fossils. An Egyptian mummy attracted special attention.

The visitors attended the football game Thanksgiving afternoon and enjoyed this as well as the stunts by the band.

Friday was the opening day of the conference. After dinner at the home of H. A. the first session was held at the Christian church and T. A. Anderson, president of the H-Y and presiding body mayor of Omaha recently, spoke. Governor Charles W. Bryan gave the first address and complimented it on being so timely and word the application of business principles to government and stressed the importance of honesty and integrity in life. A conference band led by Carl Miller was chosen on the music committee. A social time followed and refreshments were served.

At another meeting Dr. Frank G. Smith discussed Christian citizenship. He defined citizenship as the worst evil of today is the habit of doing things just to "get by." L. C. Oberlies spoke on "Margarine" and he said what was a national product of our country is a mistake. If each does his task a little better than he has ever done he will make his efforts worthwhile.

Juvenile Thrift

The spirit of thrift cannot be inspired in our youngsters too soon.

A child who is taught the value of pennies in his extreme youth needs little coaching on the value of a dollar in later life.

We welcome children's accounts in the names of the guardians, for we plainly see in the children of today the big men of our business community of tomorrow.

It is never too early to save.
