FARM LOANS

We are able to quote a rate of 5 1/2 per cent without any commission for choice loans if we can get applications within the next few weeks. Our company has re-instated this rate until January 28 after which time the rate will be higher. This is for a ten-year loan with an option of prepayment. We can make this 5 1/2 per cent flat rate on only choice loans and must have the applications by January 28. We can also make loans at 5 1/2 per cent on the 20-year Amortization plan without commission charge. Anyone needing a new farm loan is invited to call or write for full particulars. Remember these rates are for just a limited time.

In connection with the morning service next Sunday opportunity will be given for persons desiring to do so to unite with the church in preparatory membership, from preparatory membership or by certificate. The pastor will be glad to hear from any desiring to come into membership.

The pastor is sending in subscription notices for church periodicals and will be pleased to explain terms, etc., to any desiring such information.
Dr. Hull gave us two fine sermons last Sunday.

Who is a Progressive?
Nebraska Farmer: There is a progressive farmer in your neighborhood. We do not know his name, but we know his habits. He is industrious, thrifty, a good manager, believes in education, practices well for his dependents, provides the Golden Rule and does not waste his substance in riotous living. He is usually referred to as a good citizen.

er does cultivate with a crooked stick, nor harvest with a cradle, for he can serve society better with improved farm machinery. Our incorporeal system of free schools is the heritage of an ancestor that knew the value of education and realized that it is better to instruct the youth than to leave each one to learn in the hard school of experience. And the spiritual uplift that comes from a better understanding of the precepts that were enunciated from the Mount, gives rise to a growing brotherhood of man.

These are the signs of progress, the ancient landmarks of which have not been changed. The course has been wrought out by old truths adapted to the advancing need of society.
If the progress of a farmer is measured by address to truth and the proper application of principles that are fundamentally sound, why is it not practical to apply this simple formula to progress in other lines. What about politics, the science of government—an institution as old as the history of man?

This republic, the United States of America, is the oldest government in the world today. Other nations are older, but their forms of government are not as old. The United States has had no change in its form of government since the adoption of the Constitution, yet during this period, this nation has outstripped all others in progress.

Why is this? Is it that our natural resources are greater, or that our people have been more industrious, or that our government has done more for its people? Certainly not. Other nations have had greater natural resources, and they still have. Russia is an example. Other people have toiled harder, and they still Slovakia are illustrations. Other do. Belgium, Germany and Czechoslovakia have been more paternalistic, that is, they have sought to give their people greater material aid. For instance, since the close of the war, England has paid out millions of dollars in dole to her unemployed.

The progress of the United States has been measured by the opportunity the government has given the people to develop the natural resources by their own initiative. This has afforded opportunity and encouragement to those who were willing to try, and it has established a feeling of hardy self-reliance in the individual.

It is for this reason that all have not been reduced to the level of mediocrity that prevails in Russia and in many other countries that we might mention. It is for this reason, also, that many of the far fetched policies that are being advocated today by so-called progressives would hurt instead of help. It is no more possible for our country to progress through the application of artificial political rules, than it is for a farmer to succeed if he does not adhere to the underlying truths that govern economic progress.

Verily, it was said: "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." Truth and freedom are inseparable. A progressive is one who recognizes this fact.

Anna Walters' Funeral in Laurel

Herman Friedrich of Oak, N. Y., was in Wayne last night on his way home from Laurel where he had gone to attend the funeral of his sister Mrs. Anna Walters on New Year's day at the Lutheran church. Rev. J. H. H. had charge of the service. Mrs. Walters, who died last night of heart failure, was born in Germany, Jan. 25, 1846. At the age of 12 she came to this country and lived at Norfolk. She was married in Wayne county Dec. 29, 1862, to Edwin Walters and the family had lived in Laurel the past twenty-seven years. Besides her husband, six children, her mother and five sisters and brothers survive. The children are: Mrs. Amanda Bonstedt of Laurel, Mrs. P. Hellwig of Carroll, Mrs. Ed. Roth of Belden, Mrs. A. Bruggeman, Randolph and Joseph of Laurel. Mrs. Carl Hellberg of Hot Springs, S. D. is her mother and the brothers and sisters are: Frank Friedrich of Oral, S. D.; Charles Friedrich of Alliance, Neb.; Mrs. Carl Schwene of Oral, Mrs. Anna Altkire of Spearfish, S. D., and Herman Friedrich of Norfolk. All but Mrs. Altkire were present for the funeral.

Farmer Near Beemer Takes His Own Life

Beemer, Neb., Jan. 7.—Because he could not get his books to balance, John Hasenkamp, Beemer township clerk and treasurer, and prominent farmer living one mile north of Beemer, committed suicide Saturday evening by shooting himself in the head with a shot gun. He was about 40 years old. Mr. Hasenkamp had been working and worrying over his books for some time and was in town working on them during the day. He went home, did the evening chores and got out his books again. Shortly afterwards he got up and went outside telling his wife that he had forgotten some of the chores. The hired man fired a shot and on investigation found Mr. Hasenkamp's body with the right side of his head blown off. He placed the shot gun in the wise in his tool shed, put his head against the barrel of the gun and pushed the trigger with a pair of pliers.

He was a good and well respected farmer, but was not much of an accountant. No one doubts his honesty in connection with his failure to strike a balance. It is said that accounts drawn, for which there was no record in his books and which omission occurred years ago before he took office, were responsible for his being unable to balance his books.

Bloomfield Lawyer Suicides By Hanging

Bloomfield, Neb., Jan. 7.—E. B. Healy, 58 years old lawyer of this place, took his own life Sunday by hanging. His body was found hanging in the basement of his home here by his son, John, who was the only one of the family living at home with Mr. Healy.

Domestic trouble and probably mental derangement are believed to have caused his act. Mrs. Healy has a divorce action pending in the courts and has been separated from her husband for some time. She is now living in Chicago. Last September Mrs. Healy had her husband brought before the insanity board and charged him with insanity.

Mr. Healy has been missing since about noon Sunday and after a search he was found hanging in the basement about 7 o'clock in the evening. He had taken an electric light wire, tied it to a rafter in the basement and around his neck and kicked a chair from under him. Besides the widow in Chicago and the son here, there is a daughter, who teaches at Bancroft, and another daughter living with her mother in Chicago. Mr. Healy had lived here about twelve years.

Relief From Cold Came Saturday Night

Last week was the coldest period in several years. The week furnished an unbroken series of freezing days. The climax was reached Friday when thermometers registered as low as thirty-one degrees below zero.

After months of mild elements, winter started with an unexpected burst of fury. The winds of the elements were hard to dodge. Mountains of coal were burned, and still water pipes froze and many such emergencies as never before were frustrated. The railroads worked laboriously to make schedules. Travel in the country was made possible by shoveling drifting snow and people went and came only when necessary.

The wind shifted and the elements moderated Saturday night with a difference—between the temperature Saturday and that on Sunday was fully eighty degrees. Warmer weather this week is a source of much relief.

Win From Yankton By Narrow Margin

Wayne State Normal won from the Yankton, S. D., college basketball team by 20 to 19 in a game played in the local gymnasium last Thursday evening. The scores were close throughout the game, there being not more than three points difference in them at any time.

Wayne started scoring after two minutes of playing and the half ended with 14 to 11 in favor of the local team. In the second half the Yankton men were ahead for a time but Wayne worked up to tie of 17 to 17 four minutes before the close of the game. Both teams worked hard these last few minutes and when the whistle blew the local men were one point ahead.

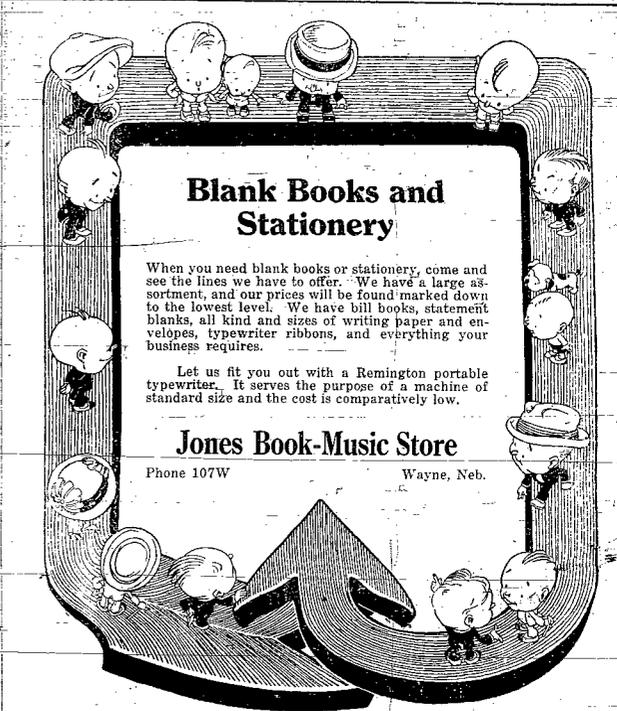

Moran and Best were Wayne's forwards; Wendt was center and Brainard and L. Miller were guards. Carmen of the University of Nebraska was referee.

A funny-tribe these nurses are. I'm sure you will agree; then give credit here while I have how they appear to me. Some are tall and some are short and some are fat and fair; some are built on toothpick lines, and some have auburn hair. Some are plump and apple-cheeked, some blooming like the rose; and some are blessed with bounding health, and some freckles on the nose. Some walk about with stately grace, some trot about their work; but never yet have I seen one the least inclined to shirk. Some greet the patients with a smile, some cheer them up with "chaff"; some seem to have as life's motto: "Come, let us have a laugh." Some wear blue and some wear red; some—now doesn't that seem sad to see young girls wearing stripes? It surely does look bad—but hold, these stripes run up and down, instead of 'round and 'round; the latter kind of uniform in prisons dark are found. And some wear white as angels should in heaven, and some as in their hands sweet ministrations ever brought to birth. These nurses care for bodies sick and minds often sadly broken, with kindly touch and skillful care, the nurse's natural token. They wash the sick and feed him too and make for him his bed, just as his mother used to do. Funny tribe I said; but blessings on them one and all and on their skillful labors; "Samaritans" God use them to us poor broken "neighbors."

Exit the Frontier. The New Republic: The frontier is gone forever; and with its passing, we close the first great chapter in American life. It is to which most of us have not recognized as a chapter at all, but have regarded as the permanent and unique expression of the genius of the nation. The set of conditions to which we must now say farewell has been, and is still, taken for granted by the average man as having a permanence of the hills. Only the barest beginning has yet been made in the study of a fascinating and important matter: the influence of the frontier on the American character. Much more work will, of course, be done in the future, but it must necessarily be retrospective. The typical American temperament, and the ideals and institutions in which it made itself effective, are already disappearing with the departure of the frontier, which brought them forth. At the moment we are still in an era of transition; it seems unlikely that the portrait of the future American can be sketched from data which already exist; but we are far enough from the past to identify with reasonable accuracy the essential traits which we must expect of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, and everybody has a job. It does look like a good year ahead.

Business
(Sioux City Journal.)
Industrial leaders throughout the country have no hesitancy in expressing themselves on the business outlook for the year. And it is a unanimity of opinion that 1924 will show a constantly increasing prosperity. Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, sizes up the situation in this way:
"We have never had a clearer situation than at present, and never have we had a sounder business situation than at present. We have more employment at higher real wages than ever before, more buying power than in a decade, and a larger demand for homes and an extensive building of building materials."
One may infer that Secretary Hoover has been impressed with the thoroughness with which the work of reconstruction has been done. Good workmanship in rebuilding the industrial structure has produced a clean situation to which he refers. There is no rubbish left. The road is clear for further progress. In addition to the business outlook, we have seen reasonably may be expected to move steadily forward because of the high speed of the momentum it has gained. The high gear and the highway is in a condition to bear traffic.
Mr. Hoover refers to the buying power. Let the insurance companies illustrate by providing an unmistakable sign that there is plenty of money in circulation and that the public is willing to spend. The past few years have been slow in the insurance business. Life insurance applications have increased 25 per cent in the last 12 months, and the outlook for a still greater increase in 1924 is indicated, according to Robert D. Lay, vice president of the National Life Insurance Company of Chicago. The major portion of that concern's business is in the middle west, generally considered to have been the slowest big section of the country to recover from post-war conditions.
Homer Miller, of Des Moines, president of the Iowa National bank, says "the outlook for 1924 is favorable," that "merchants are buying sparingly and there is no inflation." Continued inno, eminent seems to be the expectation of the whole country. The steel people, the railroads heads, the manufacturers, the financiers and the rest of it all optimistic when they consider the question of what business will do this year. Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board, and James H. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, both look forward to a better year. Judge Gary insists "there are no limits to the possibilities of industry and business in the United States."

Jess of the Storm Country

From the novel by Joyce Kilmer White
By arrangement with Oobah Luker
Directed by John S. Bratton
Photography by Charles Barker

The Beautiful Mary Pickford
As a girl again—More beautiful than ever—with the sunny curls and tawdry tatters, roughish smile, quaint impudence of the inimitable Tess. An entirely new picture—as new as it is beautiful—so gripping that it hurts—so superb that it awes. The crowning achievement of Mary Pickford's career.

Not an old scene in the whole film.

THE WAYNE HERALD

The Oldest Established Paper in Wayne County. PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY. Entered at the postoffice at Wayne, Nebraska, as Second Class Mail Matter in 1898. Under the Act of March 3, 1879. Known office of publication, Wayne, Nebraska.

W. H. Hays, Editor and Proprietor. Subscription, $2.00 Per Year in Advance. Telephone 144.

Foreign Advertising Representative: The Commercial Advertiser, 150 N. Michigan. According to reports, the big building record of 1923 will be closed in 1924. Wayne county should and doubtless will do its full share.

The action of the city in setting apart certain parts of streets for crossing will be approved as a wise policy to avoid accidents. Automobile increase danger and require safeguards that were not needed in the days of travel by horse.

The Herald is stimulated and encouraged by expressions of appreciation from its former friends and others who have voluntarily called and renewed subscriptions of late. The Herald is pleased to know that its efforts to serve all parts of the territory impartially meet such hearty response.

On account of the presidential election this year, the nominating primary for all parties will be held in April, and therefore people who expect to be candidates will have to come to the surface earlier than during the off months. As the primary comes in July, as we understand, filings must be made a month in advance of the primary.

Congress is up against a difficult proposition in trying to meet demands for tax reduction and decrease of expenditures. At the same time trying to get ready for next year's political campaign. To the main, those expecting to ask for nominations have stepped close to the ground and are side-stepping to the tune of party politics.

The passing of the frontier revives recollection of its sturdy character and rough integrity. Sky cutting or double-dealing was not long tolerated on the frontier. If a man had a leg or an arm or any kid-gloved, soft-soled hypocrite happened on the scene, he was invited to move on, and he moved. No matter how much spoken a frontiersman might have been, his word could be depended on. He insisted on a square deal for himself and for others. His word was pronounced. Women and children were stoutly safeguarded. While the frontiersman did not often exhibit fine moral polish, he was usually a man of highest honor, and when he said a thing he meant it.

One big Nebraska blizzard rises above all other winter storms in the memory of inhabitants who were here at the time. It happened January 12, 1888. It was the worst blizzard yet known in Nebraska. The terrible onslaught of snow and wind howled down on the middle west. The storm suddenly descended at noon, following a morning of unusual mildness and calm. The air was full of snow, driven by a fierce gale. With comparatively few groves and buildings, the wind had a clear sweep. The fact that teachers and children were caught in school houses was most distressing. The blizzard's unhappy plight caused a number of deaths and much suffering. It brought forth many acts of heroism and the purest of motives in caring for their helpless charges. The storm did not last the customary three days, but it made up in severity for what it lacked in duration.

The peace plan, chosen among the many entering bids, is $100,000,000, tested and to be submitted to a referendum of the American people, is briefly reviewed in today's Herald with a belief for the peace plan. The publishing note for or against the proposition. After reading the plan, we would say that Mr. Borah's note for the peace plan is of the highest level of prices for other things. Nothing new seems to be offered. We think a peace proposition should take high ground, but contain a full set of sharp teeth to take care of nations or groups of people, lacking civilization, as defined to be not doing. He civilized world sees the folly and futility of resort to arms.

Peace, we believe. The peace proposition, submitted is probably better than none, but it falls short of the expectations and is in a considerable measure disappointing. The Minneapolis Boycott. Little is known of the details of the non-partisan league in North Dakota, was primarily a revolt against the Minneapolis chamber of commerce. The organization controlled the northern grain market. The North Dakota farmers believed that they were cheated in the grading of their grain. When they sought to market their own grain through local elevators and central agencies of their own, they claimed that the Minneapolis chamber of commerce conspired to defeat their efforts. The federal trade commission now finds the southern mills chambers guilty as to the second count. The chamber has conspired to defeat the cooperating farmers, the commission ruled and it must cease its discriminatory practices. The issue turned on the fairness of cooperative competition. The Minneapolis chamber of commerce did the Omaha grain exchange, that the fundamental cooperative principle of the patronage dividend was equivalent to rebating a violation of the rules of the exchange. On that ground the cooperators were excluded. The Trade Commission denounced the rule and order the Minneapolis chamber to recognize cooperative associations on a parity with private or corporate associations. It must admit cooperators to membership in the chamber on equal terms with others, and must handle the business of cooperative concerns on the same terms as others. The decision is in line with tendencies which private business in general must face and accept. The administration at Washington has held that the farmers must depend upon their own efforts through cooperation for help that there is no other. If thereby obliges itself to see that no arbitrary obstructions are thrown in the way of cooperative action. The national associations have regulated the local Nebraska grain market for years. Business in nearly all must rest at an increasing rate. The cooperative system as a regulator of private business is so much better than the present monopolistic, political regulation, that self-reliant business men can afford to welcome it.

Perjury to Help a Friend. Omaha Bee: "What amounts to a serious indictment of many men and women, who may be otherwise scrupulously honest, is contained in a divorce court. Referring to testimony given in his court in divorce cases, he says: 'This is almost a case where the court should ask the county attorney to file charges of perjury. Perhaps if a few such charges were filed there would be more truth in the testimony in divorce courts. People who are ordinarily honest in business often forget their honesty when they enter a divorce court.' Doubtless there is foundation for what Judge Day says. Too many divorce cases have their origin in trifling matters, but that which is tried between husband and wife, were a little cool judgment and unselfishness applied. Interested friends refer to the matter with more by well meant but entirely misplaced sympathy. When the case comes to trial, these friendly efforts take on a flavor of positive harm. Perhaps if Judge Day's notion were carried into effect, and the county attorney were to look a little more closely into the character of every man given under oath, the general atmosphere would be cleared. At any rate, it would give to witnesses a clear conception of what it means to 'tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.'

Weather News by Radio. To meet popular demands the information sent out by the weather bureau of the United States department of agriculture by radio from several stations has been amplified, and now includes river forecasts and stages, conditions of highways as affected by the weather, effect of weather on crop and weather reports from the principal crop areas, and special forecasts for the guidance of farmers in harvesting.

Cooperation with a number of small stations with limited range has been discontinued and several large and more powerful stations added. In many cases forecasts for several states are now broadcast from a single station. The gradual discontinuance of the smaller and less powerful stations has left the bureau with a chain of well-distributed and reliable stations, from which heavy cooperation may be expected. They are so located that practically all sections of the country are assured of an opportunity to obtain the forecasts directly. It is impossible to approximately estimate the number of people being served in this way.

In addition to the hundreds of thousands of receiving-set owners who receive the forecasts by radio-telephone, large numbers of whom can obtain them in no other way, many report that to their neighbors by telephone. This latter form of service has become so potential that arrangements are in hand for a definite form of organization which may replace the telegraphing of forecast messages now sent to centers for distribution. It is expected that more effective service will be accomplished thereby and that considerable economy will result.

How a Rat Nearly Destroyed Mrs. L. Bowen's (R. 1.) House. For months we have not had the cellar, for the rat is a pest. One night it got into the whole kitchen. The next day, we caught it with a rat-trap. It was a very large rat. It was a very large rat. It was a very large rat.

the decrease in our acreage. "Lower land values and other advantages make it possible for the farmers in these countries to produce more wheat at a lower cost than we can produce it here. They have the advantage of a lower world market than can the farmer of the winter wheat belt.

"We are not only meeting more severe competition from our competitors among exporting nations, but the importing nations whose our grain is sold to are also meeting more of their own supplies and consequently buying less of our wheat.

"The tariff situation has further accentuated the difficulty which they have in purchasing wheat from the United States."

Muesel Wheat Exported.
A considerable portion of the wheat grown in Nebraska and Kansas is exported to Europe for various purposes in this country and consequently no premium is paid for wheat of this kind as is the case with hard spring wheat which is sold here. It is on wheat has not operated to increase the price as has been the case with spring wheat.

"Various methods of the situation have been offered. Programs for the control of acreage have been advanced. It has been suggested that farmers secure a monopoly of their product and thus control the price. Still a further suggestion has been made that the government should be controlled in its exportation of wheat through an export commission. The latter is the most practical method.

"Efforts at price fixing date back more than 3,000 years and the almost uniform experience has been that the price has not been fixed in the people they were designed to help. Price fixing in any form cannot be expected to help in the present situation.

"Cooperative marketing offers opportunities for improvement if it is conducted along sound business lines through a board of price control through a monopoly.

"Reduced freight rates on wheat will be a most important factor in the relative ability to pay, will further improve it.

"A more equitable distribution of the tax burden with less of a falling on farm real estate and more of the burden being placed on the consumer, relative ability to pay, will further improve it.

"Still another way of meeting the situation is to adopt more modern marketing practices, better seed, and better livestock wherever it is possible.

See Expert Talks.
A great number of bee keepers in this country are not up to the standard. They are simply bee keepers and are keeping bees at a loss, while the bees should be kept up to the standard of the Nebraska Honey Producers association, said in address at the meetings today at Oregon Agriculture at the state agricultural college here.

The secretary stated that "bee keeping is a very interesting pursuit and one that is profitable. It is a study of bees, but most beginners find by dear experience that they are not adapted to it. It is absolutely useless for one to attempt to become a bee keeper unless he has a considerable stock of time and money and is willing to make a study of bees and take proper care of them."

It has been said that bees feed themselves and pay for their food, and while this is true in some cases where their owner uses his head and hands, the statement is generally untrue.

Bees' Life is Short.
"Bees are short lived. The average life of the worker bee in the hive is only six to eight weeks; this necessitates the presence of a queen bee in the hive at all times and makes, you might say, a very busy life for her. It is all summer long and thousands of bees must be grown constantly to keep up the supply."

"Beekeeping or honey producing is a science and if carried on successfully requires a great deal of work and study. Many who keep bees for the honey they produce costing them twice as much as it would if purchased at a store."

Mr. Parsons then outlined the work of the Honey Producers' association, declaring that its work was practically all educational and that its prime purpose was to educate the beekeepers of the state so that they could handle their bees in a more efficient manner and thereby produce honey for profitably.

Steals From Champion Steer.
Jules steals from "Worthy of Olee" the reserve champion Gallows steer at the 1923 International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago to be served to the farmers who have been tonight at the state agricultural college here.

This luncheon is the second of its kind at the college in connection with the organized Agriculture week. It is a very interesting and profitable occasion and the various associations' meetings, and their officers will participate of the world champion beef, a rarity in the state, and the farm homes of the state every evening.

"Worthy of Olee" was fed and shown by the agricultural college of the state in 1923 and weighed 950 pounds when he won the reserve championship at Chicago. He was killed Sunday at the University of Illinois at Urbana, Ill.

the meat has been "ripening" for three weeks. The beef was prepared by the home economics department of the college and served by agricultural students under the direction of the student organizations Omicron Nu and Alpha Zeta. Places will be laid for 500 persons and preference given to the farmers and growers from all sections.

The "fun feed" was started last year and was received with so much favor by those in attendance at the Omicron Nu and Alpha Zeta that time that it has been included as a regular feature of the program of the meetings. The feed is arranged for by a committee of agricultural extension service workers. Adequate hall capacity was a problem in staging the Omicron Nu and Alpha Zeta but popular feature of the week's program.

Goat Raising Profitable.
The mere fact that a given breed of any animal is popular does not guarantee that the breed is superior. W. D. Staumbaugh, Stamford, Neb., declared in a speech, read before the Nebraska State Board of Agricultural Extension, that "purebreds versus grades" is the subject of Mr. Staumbaugh's speech. He declared that the purebred goat is superior to the mixed goat in every respect. He declared that the purebred goat is superior to the mixed goat in every respect. He declared that the purebred goat is superior to the mixed goat in every respect.

From Other Editors.
Albion: When a political candidate, be he republican or democrat, or what-not, goes before the voters stating candidly his position on the well defined issues of the day and pledges nothing more than the use of good horse sense in the discharge of his duties, in event of his election, that man, if he is known to possess ability and dependability, is entitled to consideration.

Fairbury News: A New York suggests that the bible be entered in the Bok peace prize contest. If universal peace is ever established it will have to be through a plan outlined in that sacred volume.

York Republican: It is not enough for nations and individuals to be at peace—if that peace signifies merely the cessation of hostilities and enmities. That sort of peace is only armed truce. Nations and individuals must learn that the happiness and prosperity of the world is dependent upon good will and fraternity. We yearn to see that magnificent word, love, taken out of the select vocabulary of tender sentiment and put in the power and place it is destined to have. It is big enough and strong enough and tenacious enough to survive the shocks of the market place, the legislative halls and the peace tables and still remain the guide and fountain of men and women who realize that unless peace rests upon mutual affection, fair consideration and honest good will it is not peace. That the Naaxene came preaching two thousand years ago that the world must be saved through love—there has not been a moment since or a moment before when that was not true. But, oh, it seems hard for the perverted souls of men to realize it.

Aurora Register: In Ravenna last week a single real estate dealer reports the sale of twenty-five city properties and two farms a total exceeding a hundred thousand dollars worth of business in a week. Most of the properties were on paving, and a large proportion of them were being bought by the state.

Madison Star-Mail: A. E. Ward and P. W. Barrow, secretary and chairman respectively of the republican congressional committee of the Third district of Iowa, Fremont, Ia., say their district will partake of the world champion beef, a rarity which is world famous when the world supply of beef is exhausted.

"Worthy of Otto" was fed and shown by the agricultural college. It was 15 months old and weighed 950 pounds when he won the reserve championship at Chicago. He was bred by Sunday to Ed Strub brothers.

where, is being curtailed, largely, it is believed cause of the more extended use of automobiles. This is not going to be satisfactory to the people and there is considerable complaint as train service becomes less and less when we of the west have grown used to the situation where it continually grow better and better. What we cannot understand is why an automobile, traveling on a dirt road can be used profitably where a gasoline propelled car, traveling on rails cannot be operated with profit. Why is it that the railroads cannot take off their old-style trains but substitute light-weight, two-men cars propelled by gasoline engines and running at frequent intervals to take care of local traffic? It would seem that with the improvement of the gasoline engine as used for automobiles, it would be entirely practical to propel cars on rails with greater economy than on dirt roads. The rails are there, the grades have been established, the overhead expense need not be increased, two men could run one car or two cars, one for baggage and express and one for passengers and service should increase rather than decrease. Here we find a fine passenger automobile running from Fairbury to Lincoln

Sunday nights to take students back to their schools, yet the railroads neglect to take care of this business where there is all the time a growing loss to them of passenger income. The same car that is built to run on dirt roads, where mud and snow and other traffic must be encountered, could certainly run with much less expense on rails. Why the railroads go continually to public service commissions to talk off trains when they should be putting on gasoline propelled cars is a mystery to a perplexed citizen.

"Rat-Snap Kills 48 Rats"
Writes Ivan Merbrook, Pennsylvania House: "After using one large tin of Rat-Snap I counted 48 dead rats." RAT-SNAP kills rats from the kitchen, and down to the cellar. Cats and dogs won't touch it. It does not harm chickens or other fowls. Three tinners for kitchen or cellar use for chicken house or corn crib $1.25 for 100 rat-killers. Four tinners for $1.75. Make Those Fifty Steel Horses Pull All Together

There's a wonderful feeling of control in handling a tractor in prime condition. At the touch of your hand on the levers, fifty steel horses jump to the load.

But suppose you haven't cared for those horses as you should.

Are five of them mired, and keeping five more back?

Are the rest half-heartedly leaning on their collars, weakly and spiritlessly? Give them a food tonic—Marathon Motor Oil.

Whet their appetites and tone up their digestion with a steady diet of Marathon. Make them eager to work all day without stopping to pant or tremble.

Use Marathon Motor Oil to make those fifty steel horses pull all together!

Early Days
In Two Counties

From the Wayne Herald for Jan. 21, 1904:

West Point is building a new auditorium.

Mrs. Dan Harrington arrived home from a visit in Fullerton.

A son was born Jan. 21, 1904, to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Corbit.

A debating club has been organized by young men of the college.

A. O. Anderson of Wakefield has returned from a visit to Sweden.

Miss Helen McNeal entertained a number of young people at a party.

R. F. Leap and Harry Benshoff are in South Dakota looking at some land.

Emerson is to have a telephone exchange with the prospect of rural lines.

Mrs. J. J. Inghram of Quincy, Ill., arrived to visit her sister, Mrs. W. H. Gibson.

A daughter was born Jan. 17, 1904, to Mr. and Mrs. John Williams of Hoskins.

Mr. Edie died at her home in Wakefield Jan. 19, 1904, at the age of 73 years.

A lodge of Royal Arch Masons is to be instituted at Hartington on January 27.

Twin boys were born Jan. 15, 1904, to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Key who live near LaRee.

Mr. and Mrs. L. N. McKee are here visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. King.

John E. Reichenbach and Louis H. Echtenkamp were married at Wakefield Jan. 28, 1904.

J. C. Ecker of Winslow who is in Oregon for his health is employed on the Portland Oregonian.

Pender women have organized a cooking school and fifty members take lessons each week.

Henry Walters died at her home southeast of Wayne Jan. 20, 1904, at the age of 67 years.

Rev. J. L. Phillips of Laurel and Miss Helen Holsiefer of Pender were united in marriage Jan. 6, 1904.

Fred Volpp has bought his brother, Louis's interest in the meat market and the latter will start in business elsewhere.

In Wayne all public gathering houses have been closed temporarily because of agitation following the Chicago theatre fire.

Sons of Herman held a public installation of officers in Hartington and Grand President Fred Volpp of Wayne delivered an address.

A party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Sherrahn for Dr. and Mrs. Metzger who are leaving for their new home in California.

Otto Diederich, formerly of Randolph, writes that he has accepted a position as engineer at a large company and he sails from Norfolk, Va.

A. A. Blake and J. L. Ellis of Trinidad, Colo., visited at the John Sherrahn home here. They then went to Havelock, Iowa, before returning home.

A farmers' institute was held at Carroll and everyone was so well pleased with the program that efforts are being made to plan another for March.

Attorney A. E. Barnes of Spokane, Wash., formerly of Ponca, has a boom launched for the republican gubernatorial nomination in the state of Washington.

W. N. Winesbrenner of Randolph is the first man in that town to have an automobile. He came to Wayne recently and trades some property for Dr. Leisenring's car.

Postmaster Pappung and Louis Behrens of Altona were bruised somewhat when the team they were driving to Winner ran away and they were thrown out of the wagon.

Three people broke into the bank at McHenry the night this week. The bank officers were aroused and the robbers had to make their escape as they got the $1200 in the vault.

The annual meeting of the federal women's clubs in Wayne was held at the home of Mrs. J. D. Durrie.

Officers elected were as follows: President, Mrs. A. C. Elder; Secretary, Mrs. Theodore Duer; Treasurer, H. F. Wilson and John Johnson.

Lines are to be established in this district around farmer will pay 25¢ for telephone fee and the lines are also to be built and these will connect with Chicago, Minneapolis.

A fire took place in the city, destroying property to the amount of $200,000.

Another tremendous fire occurred in New York, destroying other eastern cities.

Journal, Jan. 29, 1924.

ble that the bill will pass. The place of location is not yet decided on.

The vacants who so cruelly burned to death Mitchell and Ketchum in Carter county in this state, have been captured and it is hoped will soon receive trial and punishment.

A petition is before the legislature asking for a law reducing a day's work to eight hours, and claiming that the usual ten hour work per day is too great a strain on the physical system.

A strong effort is being made before the state legislature to have passed a prohibitory liquor law. It looks as though the effort would fail, and in its place would be substituted a local option law, thereby leaving to the vote of each town or precinct the question whether liquor shall be sold there or not.

The new capitol building at Albany, N. Y., will cost from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 before it is completed. In Nebraska we do not need so extensive and expensive building, but we certainly need a new one, in place of the old barracks now used as a capitol at Lincoln.

It is an old trouble-down affair and a disgrace to the state. There actually is danger of its tumbling down upon the state legislative heads, and faster speed up our hand of lawmakers. (Whether this would be beneficial or not to the state at large, we do not presume to say.)

Notice of Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution issued by the clerk of the district court of Wayne county, Nebraska, upon a judgment rendered in said court on April 8, 1922, in favor of W. E. Tackaberry, C. H. Here is a different Wallboard Sheetrock is a wallboard—for making walls and ceilings—but different from any other wallboard on the market.

It is made from pure gypsum rock—not wood, pulp, paper or fibra. Consequently, it will not warp, buckle or shrink. It is solid, rigid and everlasting. It will not burn.

This fireproof wallboard makes standard walls and ceilings at low cost. It comes all ready for use—just nail it to the joists or studding. Ideal for repairs and remodeling. Your lumber dealer sells it. Write us today for a free sample.

The only possible basis for the award is the honor of nations to achieve and recognize international law with respect to these conditions. Some are from persons who have acted and cannot factors is studied little, but who have them through mutual accord and cooperation of the nations in their attitude to achieve and recognize international law with respect to these conditions. It is therefore the unanimous opinion of the Jury that the award should be given to the plan selected by the Jury.

The Jury of Award realizes that the award, and upon which there is no one approach to world peace and that it is necessary to ask, are hereby submitted by the Jury to the United States, Political and Policy Committee as follows: I. STATE THE PEACEMAN COURT OF THE UNITED STATES to the Permanent Court of International Justice for the reasons and under the conditions stated by Secretary Hughes and President Harding in February, 1923.

II. COOPERATE WITH THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS WITHOUT FULL MEMBERSHIP AT PRESENT. That without becoming a member of the League of Nations as at present constituted, the United States Government should extend its present cooperation with the League and propose participation in the work of its Assembly and Council under the following conditions and reservations:

1. The United States accepts the League of Nations as an institution of mutual counsel, but it will assume no obligation to interfere with political conditions of policy or international administration of any foreign state.

2. That the only kind of compulsion which nations can freely exercise is to apply to states which are not members of the League, the United States insists upon the safeguarding of the Monroe Doctrine and does not abandon its traditional attitude concerning American independence of the Old World and does not consent to submitting its four established policy concerning questions regarded by it as purely American to the recommendation or decision of other Powers.

3. That the United States adheres to the Monroe Doctrine and the Treaty of Versailles unless in any particular case Congress has authorized such action.

4. The United States Government proposes that Article I of the Covenant be construed and applied, or, if necessary, reinterpreted, in such a manner as to conform to the principle of self-determination which wishes to join and that restores the right of self-determination of two-thirds of the Assembly.

5. As a condition of its participation in the work and council of the League, the United States will accept the American proposal that the Council should be authorized to begin negotiations for the revision and development of international law and for the purpose the aid of a committee to be appointed by the Council to study the law of nations, to report on the law of nations, to receive and maintain of international law, to receive and maintain of international law, to receive and maintain of international law.
