Greater Wayne Club Plans For The Year

The Greater Wayne club met in regular session Monday evening and adjourned to meet next week. The members decided that the main attention of the club for the next two weeks will be to cooperate with the officials of the Northeast Nebraska Athletic association in making the basketball tournament event held here Feb. 21 to 23 the most successful such event held in Wayne.

YEAR-OLD CHILD CHOKES TO DEATH

Raw Beach Lodges in Throat of Young Son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Podoll, Near Winnsie.

Podoll, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Podoll, living four miles west of Raw Beach, chokes to death Monday night as the result of getting a raw bone lodged in his throat. When a Winsie physician arrived at the home, the child was in convulsions and passed away at 9:30 o'clock.

Funeral services were held at 1 o'clock this afternoon at the Podoll home, conducted by Rev. J. Bruce Wylie, followed by burial in the Winsie cemetery.

Wayne Team Plays Games At Chadron

Wayne State Normal basketball team won one game and lost one at Chadron the last week-end, the local team won Friday by a score of 28 to 12 and on Saturday by 25 to 19. This gives Wayne seven conference games in her favor and two for her opponents.

The game Saturday was thought by those who witnessed it, the better of the two games played the past week-end. Twice during the contest Saturday the score stood a tie in the second half, at 15 to 15 and again at 17 to 17. Best in the last of the game, began scoring and helped to give the local team the lead which they maintained until the close. He made eighteen of Wayne's points. The team as a whole, however, worked hard throughout the first half, ending with an 11 to 10 score in favor of Wayne.

Mild Day Followed By Artic Elements

After enjoying the mildest February day in many years last Saturday, the wind whirled around to the northwest at night and zero weather had been reestablished by Sunday morning. Snow fell and blizzards elements dispelled any notion that spring had come.

Trains on the Bismarck branch had some difficulty in getting through the wind whirled around on Tuesday, but little delay in service on the Sioux City-Norfolk line was experienced. Considering the severity of weather since the first day of the year, train service in this part of the state has been surprisingly prompt.

 Prof. J. M. Martin says the day he arrived in Wayne, January 30, 1917, the weather was sunny and warm, much like that of last Saturday. He adds that in two weeks, the worst blizzard of the year came along and created a heavy hand on the country. But that year, contrary to the habit this season, January was mild.

Former Wayne Man Prominent in East

Wayne people who knew Frederick J. Tower when he lived here as a young man, will be interested in the following clipping from the Rochester, N. Y. Democrat-Chronicle:
 "Rev. Frederick J. Tower, of Rochester, and Rev. L. E. Tucker, of Syracuse, were named by William H. Anderson yesterday as two men to whom he had confided the money and disposal of the $247,000, which the dry league had claims, was given him by an utter stranger, 'John King, of Baltimore,' and which he turned over to 'Blann,' a publicity agent, whose present address he asserts he does not know.
 This statement was made by the Anti-Saloon League chief during an examination by Assistant District Attorney Pecora in Anderson's trial in New York on the charge of third degree forgery.
 "Rev. Mr. Tower lives at No. 252 Alameda street, this city, and now is executive secretary for Park College, Mo. After serving as minister at Memorial Presbyterian church, Rochester, from December, 1906, to April, 1910, he returned from ministry to become associate superintendent of the Rochester-Buffalo district of the Anti-Saloon League. He later was elected to the Albany district of the League, severing his connection with that body about two years ago. Rev. Mr. Tower now is at Park College, Mo."

When the World war was ended he went back to fight against the liquor traffic.

For several years Major Ebbert was professor of the law of contracts in the law school in the United States. His legal standing is unquestioned. But what about him as a speaker, for he is making addresses and is a half of law enforcement and world-wide prohibition? Major Ebbert is declared to have been carefully trained in public speaking and has been very successful not only as a jury pleader but also in addressing audiences. In fact he is a speaker of extraordinary eloquence. His subject is—"The Unfinished Battle," in which he shows that even with prohibition in the Constitution and plenty of dry laws on the statute books there is still something to do in cleaning up the country.

Major Ebbert's meetings are free, and women as well as men are invited to hear him. It is announced that if questions are raised or facts sought he is prepared to give the information desired.

Is Finishing Third In Epic Poem Series

Dr. John C. Neihardt of Branson, Mo., poet laureate of Nebraska, stated, when in Wayne last week, that he is now working on his epic poem, "The Song of the Indian Wars" and that he expects to have this finished by January, 1925. "The Song of the Indian Wars" is the fifth of a series of epic poems Dr. Neihardt is writing concerning the development of the west from the years 1820 to 1846. The others in the series are: "The Song of Three Friends," "The Song of Hugh Glass," "The Song of Jed Smith," and "The Song of the Mountain Men." The last two named have not yet been written. All five will be true to historical facts and will make up a grand epic written about this section of the country.

R. R. Smith Writes From Lake Charles

R. R. Smith, who is visiting in Lake Charles, La., writes that he "is in a great city of about 18,000 people. Fine roads and beautiful homes there now and Mr. Smith says 'out-of-doors one feels better in the shade.' Though there have been some pretty heavy frosts in Lake Charles everything is now getting green again. The frosts have been about what it takes to kill corn in the fall and the Louisiana rice and the leaves of the palm trees and other tender shrubs. Natives say this was the hardest winter in twenty-five years there. The weather here seems fine only that when it rains everything seems damp in the houses."

In Lake Charles the banks here are large-capital and everything looks prosperous. Along the many paved streets there are numerous fine, large residences, especially of the old colonial style.

Mr. Smith states that he has made one trip into the country to see the rice fields. Now one sees many busy plowing and getting ready to sow rice. There are lots of truck gardens near Lake Charles but the crops have been late on them. All kinds of vegetables are on the market at this season. New cabbage is a head; eggs are 50c to 70c a dozen; butter is 60c a pound; potatoes are 3c to 5c a pound; and lettuce is 15c a head. Beef is not very good in Louisiana as there is no corn and no clover. The corn is tender though and sells for 25c to 35c, about the same for beef and pork.

Mr. Smith's niece, Mrs. S. C. Peck of Monticello, Iowa, and his sister Mrs. A. W. Cramer, are in Lake Charles which is close to the Texas line and fifty miles from the Gulf of Mexico.

Major Frank Ebbert Speaks Here Friday

Major Frank B. Ebbert is to deliver an address of interest Friday evening, Feb. 8, at the community house in Wayne. Law enforcement is the subject and in connection Major Ebbert will show the motion picture, "The Last Raid of Sheriff Kendall."

Is there a special adaptation in individuals to the business of being a soldier, or are men merely fighters as occasion requires, for the things in which they believe and the institutions they hold dear?
 The case of Major Frank B. Ebbert seems to indicate that women, no matter how kindly disposed they naturally are, just simply can't help fighting when there is a chance.

Ebbert fought the Spaniards during the Spanish-American war, in defense of American principles and for aid of the oppressed Cubans.

He became a lawyer and fought cases in the courts.

Then he went into Anti-Saloon League work and for several years was attorney and general counsel of the Illinois League, fighting the legalized liquor traffic and the violations of then existing laws. His record in Illinois caused him to be named as assistant general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League at Washington and when it became necessary for the League to have district attorneys he was assigned to a district composed of California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Utah, Idaho, New Mexico, Arizona, Montana and Wyoming. In that district he is doing a suppressing the illegal liquor traffic and apprehending and punishing offenders.

Ebbert was not content with serving in one way. When the World war came along he dropped his legal work for the time being and went into the international traffic, serving in the chemical warfare service.

When the World war was ended he went back to fight against the liquor traffic.

For several years Major Ebbert was professor of the law of contracts in the law school in the United States. His legal standing is unquestioned. But what about him as a speaker, for he is making addresses and is a half of law enforcement and world-wide prohibition? Major Ebbert is declared to have been carefully trained in public speaking and has been very successful not only as a jury pleader but also in addressing audiences. Editors Pay Fine Tribute To Wayne

The Herald is going to reproduce herewith excerpts from articles reflecting the observations and impressions of the editorial group contained here recently. Repetitions of fact will necessarily be omitted.

Ed. A. Fry starts out this way: "The tribute editors have recently attended many editorial meetings in the four states of Nebraska, Iowa, Colorado and South Dakota. The one at Wayne is the latest and, perhaps more entertainment has been bestowed. But never has hospitality been so real on the part of a people nor have the programs of the conventions been so thoroughly discussed—and upon vital points—in the success of country newspapers."

Hits Building; Boosts Service. Mr. Fry has this to say of Wayne's hotel: "We all put up at the New Boyd (indeed where the 'new' comes in is a mystery—unless it's the crooked and dangerous fire traps that go to make up the title) and were given the best Miss Hest G. A. Ganske had to give, and a service on his part that would do credit to a hospital hostelry. It is unfortunate that such a beautiful little city as Wayne has not a hotel building that should compare with its management."

At the State-Normal. "After a beautiful dinner cars were in readiness to convey us to the State Normal, where we were received by Dr. U. S. Conn and ushered about the various divisions—art, chemical, electrical, and manual—each of all ways to register the one he hit it with some milk-provoking sally. The gifts ranged all the way from a straw hat for J. P. O'Brien every time a head showed up before to hair dye, hair tonic and hair brushes and combs for Ed. Fry."

Strong for Dr. J. T. House. "To the Press editor the outstanding feature of the Wayne meeting was the address by Dr. J. T. House of the Wayne State Normal. The Press from a Layman's Standpoint, in its most recent issue, that all the truth should be given the reading public on any and every question that and unless the editor is willing this shall be done he extended the glad hand and P. H. Price, president of the press association, responded. "When the fun began," says Mr. Berry with a mock effort to get some other member to act as distributor of novelty prizes to the editors, House afforded an opportunity to use some slang at those who refused to act in his place, and much amusement followed. When the prize was bestowed at Wayne, Price was asked to approach—the gentleman receiving from ladies and the ladies from some gentlemen. After the ladies received an appropriate tonic for restoring the former hue or encouraging growth. "On invitation of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Mitchell at the close, the editors visited the Michigan Monument Works, a real-to-goodness industry, and found a very busy plant shipping out beautiful designs from the press, granites. It is up-to-date every way and furnishes a large territory with reliable stocks and expert workmanship."

Speaking of the Best Yet. Mrs. Marie Weeks in the Norfolk Press: "The Kiwanis banquet to the members of the N. E. Nebraska Editorial Association at Wayne, Nebraska, was one of the prettiest, most successfully conducted affairs of its kind it had been our privilege to witness. The entertainments and decorations were perfect, the food excellent and the service equally good. The most praiseworthy feature of the banquet was that it could have been improved. The spirit of fellowship, well, if that is the Kiwanian spirit everywhere here, need be no doubt about the success of Kiwanis and its true meaning. "We Build."

One of the Best in State. "Speaking of the BEST in the State Normal, H. A. McCormick in the Wynot Tribune says: "This institution has made rapid strides in the past few years and today ranks among the very best in the state and President Conn is justified in feeling proud of it. It is a credit to our state that it has been from the start. To those who have not visited the Wayne Normal, with its spacious buildings and equipment, and its almost eight hundred students, the writer can give but slight conception of its completeness and adaptability to various educational branches that may be obtained here by the children of this section of the world. With teacher training, manual training and domestic science, with music, drawing and arts, this institution is fast becoming an up-to-date, up-to-date, up-to-date complete university class, offering the most complete educational training."

Liked the Banquet. Mr. McCormick returns to the banquet in this way: "The 'best' business of the session was relieved Friday evening by the banquet tendered the editors by the Wayne Kiwanis club at the Community house. Incidentally, Wayne undoubtedly has the liveliest club of this kind in the west and apparently they live up to their motto, 'We Build,' in the broadest sense of the word. "The spread was served by the Methodist ladies and the service was a model of perfection. It is interesting to witness the spirit to do justice to the program which followed the dinner. As toastmaster, Prof. Bowen of the state college, demonstrated that he is a pastmaster at the business, and he was remarkably supported by the brightest minds of this educational center. The program was a revelation and a laugh from start to finish and the editors present could not help being inspired and edified as they were toasted and roared at the various speakers and the unique program of entertainment."

Bowen "is There an Over". Edward R. Pierce, the Pierce Leader, had this to say about the banquet: "The banquet tendered the editors Friday evening by the Kiwanis club was certainly wonderful and the visiting series all agreed that the Kiwanis club at Wayne is the best in any place that has entertained them for a long time. The toastmaster at the Kiwanis club banquet was O. R. Pierce, former superintendent of the Pierce public schools, but now connected with the Wayne State Normal. Prof. Bowen is there and over when it comes to being a toastmaster and did justice to the occasion. "The editors think the Kiwanis club of Wayne is about it. They were impressed the fact that in which they were so royally entertained by them last week."

The Luring Cafeteria. As to attracting the State Normal, C. E. Nevin of the Laurel Advocate, says: "One of the latest buildings to be added to this group is a cafeteria modern and up-to-date. The week-end price paid for the average of 2000 people. One of the 'newspaper' is said if he lived at Wayne he'd be at the banquet. Mr. Nevin says: "Friday evening, the members were the guests of the Kiwanis club at a banquet given at the Community house. And talk about banquets and entertainments at the same, the writer has attended many a banquet—some far more elaborate—but never one where everything passed off as did this, taking everything into consideration. To begin with, about one hundred sat down to the tables, which were placed in the form of a U, as the symbol of the Kiwanis club; but the service was of a novel nature to most of us—being done by twelve young ladies, six on each side of the U, in a room of a fine, airy and well-kept kitchen. We afterwards learned that the banquet was served by the ladies of the M. E. mission society, and that the waitresses were trained by Mrs. Crossland, mother of our W. A. Crossland."

Need of New Hotel. It is hoped the person who told Mr. Nevin Wayne would have a new hotel, based his prediction on a solid foundation. H. Nevin says: "While at Wayne last week we were more than ever impressed with the fact that we know of no place in Nebraska that needs a hotel building as badly as does that entertaining city. They have one of the best hotel men in the state, but the building is a disgrace to the other structures. However, we were told that a movement is on foot for the erection of a hotel building something like the one which should be. The hotel accommodations seem to be the thing about state and district gatherings there—and that is certainly true. We were told next time the Northeast Nebraska Editorial association met at that place they would have a hotel that they will feel proud of."

From the Retiring President. F. H. Price of the Newman Grove Reporter, retiring president of the association, said in part: "Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock the editors visited the Wayne State Normal, the various buildings through the buildings by President Conn. It was a revelation to some of the editors who had not visited this splendid modern building which are devoted to preparing our public school teachers for their profession. They are thoroughly modern and equipped with every apparatus necessary for teaching the science and arts. The location of the grounds is admirably adapted to the purpose, being on high elevation in the north part of the city where a view of the surrounding country can be had for miles in the distance. The schools have a fine corps of instructors who have the welfare of the pupils at heart and work together harmoniously. In fact, the spirit is ideal and everyone in the city had a chance to be congratulated upon his organization. "After visiting the teachers' college the editors met in the city hall and held a session. It was mostly talk till 4 o'clock when Dr. J.

T. House of the teachers' college gave an address on 'The Press from a Layman's Standpoint'. Dr. House is an interesting speaker and discussed the newspaper business in such a manner that all present gave him the strictest attention. He pointed out the following suggestions for your Mother, Sister, Sweetheart or Friend: Valentine Messages May be Expressed with Flowers. We render you immediate service at reasonable prices. Always a table favorite—no matter when you serve them. The older palates find them just as appetizing as do the little folks. Serve them liberally at all meals—if you would win the family approval. Bully with a bowl of milk! And how the kiddies do enjoy them after school! Your friends will appreciate them, too. Hot chocolate, at your afternoon teas. Plenty of food value—and oh, so appetizing! Be sure, though, you get the Johns-O-Nut. Ask your grocer for the Johns-O-Nut. Each Delicious Bite Tempts the Appetite! Makers of finest crackers, cookies-cakes and candies.

H. A. Mosher's 4th Annual Sale of Chester White Bred Sows

One-half mile north of Burlington Depot, Randolph, Neb. Sale to start at 2:00 p. m. sharp.

Thursday, February 14

Our Herd Boars

Ak-Sar-Ben 226539, the grand champion boar at the Cedar, Wayne and Pierce county fairs and 4th senior boar at the Sioux City Interstate fair. He was farrowed Sept. 7, 1921. Sired by Iowa Giant 92373, he by Prince Rajah B 69659, his dam Queen Bee 14074, her sire Giant Buster 54861.

New Constructor 241857, farrowed March 13, 1922, in a litter of 11. His sire The Constructor 221481, he by Revolution 88377. The dam White Model 328102, her sire Alfalfa Model 76239.

14 Fall Yearlings, 5 Tried Sows, 26 Spring Gilts

Chester White bred sows are a good investment whenever profitable swine breeding is desired. Characteristics of Chester sows; they have good disposition, are prolific and excellent sucklers. Chester White sows are unexcelled in raising a large per cent of the farrow. By being prolific and by raising a very large per cent of the farrow few sows need be kept to have the same amount of increase.

Don't Forget This

A purchased Chester White barrow was grand champion over all breeds competing in a class of 400 at the great international livestock show and exposition at Chicago, one Dec. 1 to 8, 1923, shown by the Iowa Agricultural College, Ames, Iowa, which weighed 510 pounds. In the classes of 250 and 300 pounds, he weighed 290 and 260 pounds won first prize, their average was 218 pounds. In the dressed carcass contest in the class of 1000 pounds, forty-four carcasses were shown and the first prize was a purchased Chester White.

Two to the fall yearlings and five tried sows are bred to Ak-Sar-Ben; four fall yearlings bred to New Constructor and are due to farrow from Oct. 1 to 15. I also have two spring boars of the spring gilts are sired by Ak-Sar-Ben King, three by Giant Prospect 716145, who won the blue ribbon at the Iowa Interstate fair, one year. He is W. E. Gaffey's main herd boar at Storm Lake, Iowa. Three gilts by Revolution are also bred to Ak-Sar-Ben. The boars are well footed boars of the breed today, he is also owned by W. E. Gaffey. The spring gilts are due to farrow from the 9th of March to the 11th day of May and are bred to New Constructor, who is the biggest boar, stands up the highest, and has more stretch than any boar I ever owned, and his get from these gilts certainly ought to be the real big type. I also have two spring boars sired by Ak-Sar-Ben King that I will sell at private treaty. Two of the tried sows No. 45, is a litter sister and No. 46 is a half sister to the sow I sold T. P. Roberts of Carroll, Neb., at my sale last February that raised him a litter of twelve, and they weighed 2,000 pounds when they were six months old.

MY GUARANTEE. I have never had the flu or abortion in my herd. I guarantee every sow to be with pig, if they are not and are returned within 30 days, the purchase price will be returned. Pedigrees will be furnished for each sow and if you intend to keep up the pedigrees I will register them free of charge. I will crate and deliver to depot free of charge providing you return care of my expense.

IMMUNE. The offering has been given the double simultaneous treatment and are presumed to be immune.

TERMS: Six months' time will be given on bankable notes bearing 10 per cent interest from date of sale.

the Myron Stratton Home Farms of Colorado Springs, Colo., received according to reports to the United States department of agriculture. The demonstration was supplementary to the educational tour through Colorado of the "Purebred Sire Special" over the lines of the Colorado & Southern and the Burlington railways.

Two 2-year-old steers fed alike for five and one-half months in the feed lots were slaughtered and a comparison of the carcasses made. One dressed carcass weighed 715 pounds; this steer came from a herd headed by a purebred Hereford sire. The other one weighed 470 pounds; this was a common steer without breeding.

When marketed the better animal brought 15 cents a pound wholesale while the scrub brought only 12 cents. The difference in price, together with the difference in weight, gave the Hereford steer a money value more than double that of the common steer. The dressing percentage of the Hereford was 61 per cent and that of the scrub was only 52 per cent.

The butcher in charge of the demonstration said, "We have to scrub beef such as this from the scrub and force on our trade because we cannot get enough of the better kind to supply the demand."

Superintendent J. M. Gould of the Stratton Home Farms said, "If we could get the better grade steers, bearing the stamp of quality that come from purebred sires, we would take them in preference to scrubs. They make more economical gains and bring more per pound and more pounds per steer."

What the Railroads Accomplished in 1923 Under the Transportation Act

THEY carried the largest traffic in history without transportation difficulties and with virtually no car shortage.

THEY placed in service nearly 2,000,000 freight cars and nearly 4,000,000 locomotives.

THEY expended for equipment and other facilities, $1,076,000,000, and paid as taxes over $300,000,000.

THEY expended for fuel, materials and supplies used in current operation and maintenance almost $1,800,000,000, and paid their employees average annual wages equal to almost double the amount of the average annual wages paid in 1915.

THEY returned to the people by way of wages, purchase of supplies and materials, taxes, interest and rentals 95 per cent (estimated) of the gross income received from transportation.

THEIR Efficiency helped all business and all credit by making turn-overs more rapid.

THE Transportation Act provides that the railroads may earn a 5 1/2 per cent return. None of the different groups did so in 1923, the average for all Class 1 roads being 5.11 per cent, while the North Western Region group earned less than 4 per cent.

From Other Editors. Fairbury Journal: The "Laurel, Neb., public schools are trying a new vocational plan whereby high school students work for wages one-half day and report at school the other half, getting credits for graduation for good work at their place of employment. This plan, according to a certain extent in Fairbury while the new high school building is going up. In order to accommodate pupils, students in the high school are attending only half a day at a time and many are working for wages the other half, doing their studying at night. They get credit for graduation on their outside work, but they are undoubtedly learning much that will be of practical value in later years. The plan is taking a load from their parents in a financial way. It may be that vocational training can be worked over until the pupils will transfer the supervision of the schools and while securing the association and culture that go with mingling with others seeking an education, can at the same time, be learning a trade, a profession or business, at an added expense, which, of late has become a serious one. This plan is being a load from parents who find themselves hard pressed to support a family under modern conditions. The experiment at Laurel has received the approval of men high in educational work and will be watched with interest.

Fairbury News: Those editors who annually write heavy editorials against the custom of abbreviating it "Xmas," should soon despair of the effort. It is a fact that the problem of a catchy display line with a word like "Christmas" in it is going to favor almost any kind of abbreviation, no matter how crude. In this day and age everything must give way to mechanical perfection. The advertiser who is surrounded by the competition of the Fairbury News, should soon realize that this newspaper should advocate a method of licensing newspaper editors. Perhaps the word license is a little too strong, but the newspaper has in mind. It is not so much a matter of state control that we are thinking about as standard of professional conduct. The press editor and publisher is a high and responsible calling that we want it surrounded by the highest type of management and control, the friends of the profession in and outside its ranks would welcome the friendly solicitude of the people who are interested in the public interest and enormously influenced by their newspapers.

Fairbury Journal: If the California legislature is to depend on A. L. Hixby, poet-philosopher of the Nebraska State Journal, to advertise their wonderful country, they would be rather poorly advised. Mr. Hixby is a very observing and on his winter's trip to the Pacific coast seems to be able to get from under the "cosmic mist" of the west. He is a real estate advertiser and sees the disadvantages. He does not like the absence of sunshine during the winter months. He does not like the fact that he has not the spirit of the people around Los Angeles is not conducive to a sound and enduring civilization. Eventually, the bubble will burst and great will be the wreck thereof. At the present time more fortunes have been made out of buying and selling real estate, at consistently advancing prices than in the development of natural resources. Naturally prices of real estate cannot be indefinitely high. When the top is reached, the market will crash and the fortunes of the speculators will be lost.

Friendly Words for Members

Schuyler, Sun, Grant S. Mears of Wayne, for ten years a member of the Nebraska legislature, and at present postmaster at Wayne, was elected a republican candidate for lieutenant governor. Mr. Mears is the second to shy his feds into the ring, the first being John McFarland, an attorney of Omaha.

Mr. Mears has served his county and district continuously for the past 25 years, ten years as sheriff, and ten years as a legislator. Mr. Mears was chairman of the finance committee the last session. He is quite well known to many in Schuyler, having on several occasions visited here, when his son, Harold, was manager of the Northwestern Bell Telephone exchange in Schuyler.

Grant Mears is bur-squar and will find many admirers throughout the state. A man who can hold the political confidence of his home territory and district for twenty years is quite sure to find a following.

From Other Editors.

Fairbury Journal: The Laurel, Neb., public schools are trying a new vocational plan whereby high school students work for wages one-half and report at school the other half, getting credits for graduation for good work at their place of employment. This plan is operating to a certain extent in Fairbury while the new high school building is going up. In order to accommodate pupils, students in the high school are attending only half day at a time and many are working for wages the other half, doing their studying at night. They get no credit for graduation on their school work, but they are undoubtedly learning much that will be of practical value in later years. Besides taking a load from their parents in a financial way, it may be of educational training can be worked over until the pupil while under the supervision of the schools and while securing the association and culture that go with mingling with others seeking an education, can, at the same time, be learning a trade, a profession or business, after a stroke leveling the schools of an added expense, which of late has become burdensome, and also taking a load from parents, who themselves had pressed to support a family under modern conditions. The experiment at Laurel has received the approval of men high in educational work and will be watched with interest.

Fairbury News: Those editors who annually write heavy editorials against the custom of abbreviating it "Xmas," should stop despairing of their efforts to reform the world. The ad-venter who has to solve the problem of the Christmas tree, in a word like "Christmas" in it is going to favor almost any abbreviation, no matter how crude. In this day and age everything must give way to mechanical perfection. York Republican: Editor Shelley of the Fairbury News is surprised that the friends of the profession of newspaper men are not more active in a method of licensing newspaper editors. Perhaps the word license does not express what this newspaper means. It is not a license, but a matter of state control that we are thinking about as standard of profession. So certain are we that the friends of the newspaper profession is a high and responsible calling that we want it surrounded with every influence that will make for the best of the people and better newspapers will be the product of the genius and industry of better newspaper people. The press association has been moving strongly and steadily in the direction of better newspapers and eventually the sifting process of public approval will weed out the selfish and weak. But if there should be a movement by the people through legislative action, to invest the newspapers with a higher type of management and control, the friends of the profession and outside friends would welcome the friendly solicitude of the people who are tremendously interested in and earnestly influenced by their newspapers.

Fairbury Journal: If the Californians had to depend on A. L. Bixby, postmaster of a Nebraska weekly State Journal to advertise their wonderful country, they would be rather poorly advertised. Mr. Bixby is very interesting and his weekly trip to the Pacific coast seems to be able to get from under the "comic strip" spread about by the real estate boosters and see the disadvantages. He does not like the absence of sunshine during the winter months on the north Pacific coast and believes that the people around Los Angeles is not conducive to a sound and enduring civilization. Eventually, the bubble will burst and great will be the relief. At the present time, more fortune has been made out of buying and selling real estate, at constantly advancing prices than in any other business in the natural resources. Naturally, prices of real estate cannot be indefinitely. When the top is reached those making the most money have no longer a source of income, unless they have wisely soaked away some of their profits elsewhere. As the taxable base everyone gets anxious to unload and as much of the development in and around Los Angeles has been done on credit, the time soon arrives when shrinking values meet the mortgages and there is no longer a margin—the owner doesn't own anything.

Lincoln's Birthday

February 12

One great creed plowed the way for the success of Abraham Lincoln in his attempts to retain the American commonwealth as one great nation. That creed was a "community of interests." He believed that if all people could be made to believe in something common to all, there could be no discontent.

Lincoln spoke the language of a great nation—a language that will never die. It is the practical application of that principle, that is rapidly placing the American public today in a position where irritable feelings are being displaced by good will towards all men.
