From Other Cities
Geneva Signal. Some days we are going to ask Rev. Dr. H. Pontius of the Geneva United Brethren church if he ever has any training in a newspaper office. He is one of the very few persons who have ever brought copy to this office. The censor would not fairly safe in passing without minute examination. What he writes proves that he knows what he is doing. He is a neat writer. He gets in all the facts clearly and pleasantly with the punctuation and all the things that he knows. He realizes that an ordinary is not finished until the funeral service and interment are included. He realizes that a church notice is not finished until the sermon, and a lot of other things. An article for a newspaper ought to be written exactly as the printer is set in type. To write in any other way means that somebody in the newspaper office will have to rewrite it. If this article has any chance to appear in type as it is put to appear.

Written in Arizona by F. D. Stone for his Hartington Herald: The sun is shining brightly over head this morning in a cloudless sky but at the same time the entire premises where the writer is residing at the present time are flooded with water. It is flowing merrily along the ground through a score or more of channels, and the thirsty soil is drinking it down with a relish. The cattle and horses and fowl revel in the clear, swiftly running streams and these copious floods are bringing refreshment to all the land. And what is the reason? Did it rain heavily last night? O, no, it hasn't rained here in weeks and weeks. This water did not come from the clouds but from the great Roosevelt dam some forty miles away and was turned onto this land nine-thirty this morning. That is irrigation. Just open the gate when you need some moisture and let the water run. One hundred and fifty inches were turned into the ditches this morning and in a couple of hours the whole place, including barnyard, garden, orchard, pastures and fields, were soaked to a considerable depth. It is quite an event when everybody around the place gets exceedingly busy, some clearing-out the ditches before the advancing floods and others directing the streams so that they will be evenly distributed.

If a man has plenty of money and can keep the fact well concealed from hovering real estate sharks, he cannot be able to enjoy a brief season during winter in southern California.

If a public official can subsequently endorse or support all he is quoted as saying he denies that he said it. He simply crawls to shore by claiming he has been misquoted.

People who want more holidays would not want their pay reduced accordingly. They want more days of leisure which would mean diminished service and decreased production, but they don't want any footing with wages in behalf of downward revision. They want less work and more pay, so they will have to find time and money for joy rides.

In the annual basketball tournaments many high school students will be in Wayne this week. Like most of them will seek higher education when they finish their high school term. The impression they have is that the college is largely influential in determining their judgment in selecting the college for future training. They don't seem to feel that this is laid down to come to, and that they have the school in the right one to find the advantage for higher education.

The resignation of Edwin Denby, secretary of the navy, may be followed by that of Harry Daugherty, attorney general, both prompted by demands growing out of the Teapot Dome scandal. The cabinet cannot be of intentional irregularities in connection with the land leasing scandal, their retirement from the cabinet frets the Coolidge administration from a considerable load. President Coolidge is handling the Teapot Dome scandal with a major hand in making the investigation and strength of character that augur well for the future of his administration.

People who accept virtual charity as a steady habit, often become selfish in their demands. They accept donations as a matter of course, and their gratitude, momentarily felt, is soon forgotten in the uneasy desire for more. The charity seeker looks ahead, not behind, and too scant liberality on the part of contributors is considered ground for offense. Many people in the habit of accepting aid, thus getting something for nothing and reaping without sowing, are often more particular than those who earn their way. People with hands extended for help, usually put on more social tinsel and must have more recreation and more excursions than those who plow along independent and unassisted. There is need of wisely directed charity, but the practice of making donations to healthy and able-bodied people does them a serious injury.

An unusual tragedy happened in Lincoln this week when an irresponsible low-brow shot to death Judge William M. Morning, a beloved judge of the district court. The assassin was the defendant in suit to recover alimony, and in the course of the proceeding he suddenly fired but the bullet began firing. The only good thing mentioned in connection with the murderer was the fact that he turned the gun on the judge. The results, Judge Morning was eminently fair and just, and he stood high in public esteem. That a defendant should enter into court to murder the presiding judge is shocking in the extreme. This tragedy will arouse greater public interest in the protection of justice. It may be found that several of justice defendants and others vitally concerned to see that they enter court unharmed.

A published report from Leavenworth, Kas., some days ago, stated that the military courts there, after the destructionists during the war have been released from the federal prison at that place, a total of 170 soldiers are still incarcerated in the report of hasty courts martial. The report complains that the military courts disregarded sentencing circumstances and that the government denied the liberty for which they are entitled to fight, and each man's case should be quickly and carefully reviewed by the government in the interest of merciful justice. The soldier who offended under the unusual conditions created by the war should be treated with more liberality than the man who has been under prosecution of the war. If the Leavenworth report is true, the American conscientious will not feel at ease until the soldier prisoners are treated with the utmost leniency the facts will possibly warrant. It is hard to see, if at all, on the side of those who took up arms in defense of the American government.

Miss Lenore Lindsay Tells of Right Food

Miss Lenore Lindsay of the domestic science department at the State Normal, in a paper read to the Minerva club Monday, gave many interesting facts about "Right Foods." Parts of the paper are as follows:

It is right to suppose that God placed men in this world which is governed by scientific laws without having a definite law governing Physical Life. Such a thing is unthinkable. God has established a code of laws governing man in spirit, mind and body. It is just as serious to break physical laws as to break the Ten Commandments.

Ill health is a penalty for breaking the law. God is consistent but people are not. If we eat and wish to keep it he should give careful attention to his diet. The caloric theory, that of feeding so much heat-producing food, has proved by its failure to provide proper nourishment, that nutrition is not a matter of mere eating but a matter of assimilation and combustion. Assimilation and combustion depend much on nerve energy and there are many things that reduce nerve energy.

One must not only consider what he eats, but how much, how often, how thoroughly he masticates the food, whether he is tired, excited or angry. Worry, jealousy, spite, laziness, poor cooking, incomplete mastication, poor quality of food, use of drugs, drinks that are too hot or too cold, excessive use of condiments, the use of too much alcoholic beverages are influencing factors for digestive disturbances.

The age, sex, size, weight, mental condition, temperament, vitality, environment and occupation must be taken into consideration before a diet can be prescribed for an individual. Each person must be governed by the many factors peculiar to himself. It is therefore impossible to prescribe a stereotyped menu for the general public. The fundamental laws governing digestion, assimilation and combustion of foods can be stated. Each must study these laws and then regulate the menu to suit his needs.

The person who regulates his diet for three months according to nature, will be making a permanent habit. Most people only try the rules for a few days and then condemn the doctrine because they have not cured digestive disturbances.

Every one should aim to build up energy so as to have reserve power in which to combat illness. The dietetic cause of disease lies in wrong eating habits, overeating, insufficient mastication, improper foods, foods deficient in vital food salts and improper cooking. Since wrong methods of eating are the cause for disease a correction of these methods will bring a return to health.

If one has an acute disease the body is surcharged with self-generated poison which must be eliminated through the normal channels. To accomplish this one should fast for a period of time, depending on the acuteness of the disease, taking only water, which is a diet of pure elements. Proper fasting is never harmful. One may experience a craving for food but this is a sure sign that the organs need the rest they are being given.

In breaking a fast one should begin with a half glass of orange juice three times a day, increase the amount gradually, adding milk, green vegetables and a few cooked vegetables to the diet. Then follow with a regular eating.

What are these natural laws? Do not take foods that are poisonous to the body. Overeat. This is the most common habit among Americans to day. When one finds his appetite so perverted that he needs spices and stimulants to make the food palatable he may be he is overeating.

Only such foods should be eaten which can be digested without undue delay. Do not use fast fermentation. Decaying food cannot be digested properly and it produces injury to the system. Only a small part of it is assimilated and thus one must eat large quantities to satisfy hunger.

Never eat hurriedly. It is better to starve than to eat hurriedly. Food, improperly masticated, cannot be properly digested and assimilated. Milk is a food and should be sipped, not drunk. Substitute fruit for the rolls, coffee and notice the change.

All solid foods require thorough mastication. No food should enter the stomach except as a liquid. Some foods, such as starches, bread, potatoes and cereals require more mastication than others. Soft cereals and other sloppy foods should be eaten sparingly as they ordinarily receive little salivation even though they are eaten with water. The exact amount of water required for each individual cannot be stated exactly. Immediately upon rising one should sip a glass or two of hot or cold water as preferred. Then drink a glass or two during the morning. Take it at each meal and at bed time. This is an average amount but if one is thirsty may drink during a meal if he does not wash food down with it. Drinks should be at a moderate temperature for cancer specialists say that too much extremely hot liquid, not only tea and coffee but soups, has much to do with the development of cancer of the stomach. Iced drinks retard digestion from one-half to two hours.

If these rules are observed digestion will be materially aided.

In regard to the rule concerning proper food combinations Charles C. Frazier has made a careful study of chemical composition of foods. There are three kinds of food: First, raw fruits, raw and cooked non-starchy vegetables, and some starchy foods; second, meats, eggs, fish and legumes which are foods to build or rebuild the body; and third, starchy foods which contain sugar, fat and starch which furnish heat and energy. Milk belongs to all classes. In class one are such vegetables as the asparagus, beet tops, fresh green beans, cabbage, cauliflower, carrots, celery, green corn, young dandelion, egg plant, onions, spinach, pumpkin, peas and many others. These vegetables as well as all fruits are rich in vital food salts. These should form the greater part of daily diet. As these are out-of-season dehydrated or dried ones can be used if they are more desirable than canned ones if they have not undergone any chemical change. In order to save the salt in food the vegetable should be cooked in small amounts of water and this water should be used when the food is served. Butter and salt (Continued on last page.)

Bixby on Way Back From Pacific Coast

Dr. A. L. Bixby, Lincoln Journal's poet-philosopher, has been touring the Pacific coast, and daily letters reflecting his observations and impressions have appeared in the Journal. His analyses have been true to the facts and have been designed to inform the public correctly rather than to justify California upon its boomers. After leaving the state, he writes from Salt Lake City under date of February 8, and his conclusions are highly worth reading and accordingly are reproduced here with the following:

It seemed mighty good to slip of the train here last night in what most likely atmosphere, which made it easier to convince myself that with all its charms of sunshine, ocean breezes, mountain scenery, Hollywood, citrus fruits, real estate projects, etc., California is not the only place where people can live and be prodigious here, and that in fact their step is undisturbed by resourceful dreams. Even old Missouri, though home life not rendered unpleasing by weather, after one has lived to it.

With no desire to knock California, to minimize its attractions, I am sure the majority is such that "the climate on earth," for there is such of the earth I have never seen. But what hurts my feelings is that the California boomers, and the real estate project-promoter for everywhere else except out there. To either there is no living out of the High Sierras worth possessing under the sun. The glories of the Orient fade before the picture of the Southern California, from Santa Barbara mission to the Tijuana race-track.

It is true that San Diego county produces more oranges than any territory of its size in the world; it is true that Los Angeles county has more producing oil wells than any other territory in the world; it is true that San Bernardino county ships more Sun-kist oranges than any other citrus region on the map, and it is also true that more real estate here is developed, educated, and sold, than in any other territory in Los Angeles than in all the other cities of the United States combined. To a dangerous extent they are represented by an organized corporation (limited) of sheer bunco-steers, guarantors of profits on investments with no financial responsibility or intention of making good.

To fleece the suckers is the prime object of their activities, and in order to get by with it, cunning deals are put across whereby it is made to appear that the fellow who bought a lot last week for $750, makes a turnover this week at a profit of $1,500. By throwing in plenty of this fake profiteering, with real gains in many instances, excitement is kept up to fever heat, and transactions will continue to be rapid.

Lincoln Journal: Let it be patiently borne in mind that Nebraska's third district congressmen are in congress but two months and a fraction, though his salary began more than eleven months ago. No man, however great, can do anything in two months and ten days. If work turns out, however, according to Mr. Howard's beginnings, we are going to know that a great future lies in her. Congressman Howard has introduced bills to supply practically every town and city in his district with a federal building. This program, if carried out, should provide a lucrative job as mason or hod carrier to every hard pressed farmer in the congressman's district.

More recently Mr. Howard introduced a bill for paving at government expense the Lincoln highway, which crosses through the length of the Third district. We are betraying no secret when we prophesy that Mr. Howard, as soon as his stenographic notes get around to it, will provide also for paving the Cornhusker highway, which touches many of the counties of the third district which are in Lincoln highway mazes. We started out to give a complete list of such labors as these on which Congressman Howard has embarked when we find that space forbids. Suffice it to say that there is nothing thinkable to the advantage of his district and its people which Congressman Howard has not done or will not finally produce, provided the congressman proves as powerful to pass a bill through congress and past the president as he has found himself in introducing the same in the house. As to that, we owe it to Mr. Howard to suspend judgment. As we have already said, so many alive, until the speculative disclaimer runs its course, and deflated values take the place of inflated prices. Where now a favored few are getting immensely rich in speculation the silent majority is riding to a certain fall as inevitable as taxes and death.

As a loyal Nebraska citizen ready to defend the state against all unjust attacks from without or within, I have never tried to create sentiment in its favor by discarding the advantages of other states. I have said and still maintain that, taking one day with another the year round, Nebraska is more favorably situated almost anywhere, its wealth of resources beckons to the poor and oppressed to come across and share the harvest of its many advantages of fertile soil, fair markets and expanding social privileges.

One with a surplus of means, who is distressed when the wind blows, doesn't enjoy the patter of the rain upon the roof, is depressed at the thought of snow-covered roofs, and at the sound of low-rumbling thunder, who seeks a climate just about so to the whole year, where only the sun in less than a dozen months will find California more nearly to his liking than any other state of the union, and the food that rolls in from the sea when he is going so long as he has the price.

I like the California air,
The mountains and the sea;
I love the friends I found out there,
Who were so good to me.

Her paved roads more than pleased me well,
But, midst a sea of charms,
Her rivers were as dry as dunes,
As were her hills and farms.

The sun shown every blessed day,
I felt its cheerful glow,
It seemed most gracious every way,
Than winter ice and snow.

But ice and snow insure a crop,
And there's no use for kicks

Bigger Returns From Better Live Stock

Kansas dairy farmers could increase their returns $20,000,000 a year by better feeding and better stock raising, according to estimates of J. M. Frandsen, a dairy specialist, at a recent Kansas agricultural convention. This estimate is considered typical of a scientific investigation conducted by livestock organizations and individuals in improving their methods in breeding and feeding. The use of purebred sires, particularly in a practical way, and the use of modern methods of improving the quality of domestic animals. According to department records, more than 12,700 livestock owners have placed their herds and flocks on a strictly purebred-sire basis, and reports from these farmers show that purebred livestock has about 10 per cent utility value over common stock.

As a means of encouraging better feeding methods, the Department has developed a simple feeding problem sheet, which may be procured and filled out by any livestock owner. A specialist of the agricultural department, who has collected and analyzed each problem and points out the means for solving it.

Lincoln Journal: Let it be patiently borne in mind that Nebraska's third district congressmen are in congress but two months and a fraction, though his salary began more than eleven months ago. No man, however great, can do anything in two months and ten days. If work turns out, however, according to Mr. Howard's beginnings, we are going to know that a great future lies in her. Congressman Howard has introduced bills to supply practically every town and city in his district with a federal building. This program, if carried out, should provide a lucrative job as mason or hod carrier to every hard pressed farmer in the congressman's district.

More recently Mr. Howard introduced a bill for paving at government expense the Lincoln highway, which crosses through the length of the Third district. We are betraying no secret when we prophesy that Mr. Howard, as soon as his stenographic notes get around to it, will provide also for paving the Cornhusker highway, which touches many of the counties of the third district which are in Lincoln highway mazes. We started out to give a complete list of such labors as these on which Congressman Howard has embarked when we find that space forbids. Suffice it to say that there is nothing thinkable to the advantage of his district and its people which Congressman Howard has not done or will not finally produce, provided the congressman proves as powerful to pass a bill through congress and past the president as he has found himself in introducing the same in the house. As to that, we owe it to Mr. Howard to suspend judgment. As we have already said, so many alive, not even our governor, could finish all these works in two months and ten days. It should be granted three months at the very least.

Would Make Milk The National Drink

"Resolved that the agricultural representatives of the commonwealth of the great state of Kansas, do favor and recommend the establishment of milk as a national drink."

This resolution was adopted at the Kansas agricultural convention held recently in January at Topeka, Kan. The convention included prominent agricultural organizations and officials of the state.

The resolution was based on the premise that "our boys and girls are the men and women of tomorrow, and healthy physique is conducive to good citizenship. Another basis for the resolution was recognition that the dairy cow is the foster mother and an important financial support of the nation."

This resolution is believed by dairy officials of the United States department of agriculture to be the first in kind on record. Mr. C. W. Larson, chief of the dairy division of the department, expressed the opinion that the proposal to make milk a national drink is an appropriate recognition of "the drink of health" as it is sometimes called.

"Certainly," Dr. Larson remarked, "milk is worthy of the distinction as a national beverage. In addition to its high nutritive value and health-giving properties as a drink, it yields other valuable food products, including butter, cheese, ice cream, milk powder, and condensed milk. Its by-products enter into the manufacture of almost countless products. The widespread distribution of dairymen in every state and territory on our island possessions also appear to warrant the selection of milk as a national drink."

From Ponca Journal, Feb. 19, 1880:
 A company is being organized for the purpose of prospecting for coal in the hills north of Nebraska. Omaha papers state that Judge Valentine has announced that Nebraska is strongly in favor of General Gray for next president in preference to any other candidate. Gup-R. Wilbur, Esq., of St. Helena, and formerly one of the jolly boys in this place, is a town Friday and Saturday hand-shaking with his numerous friends.

Smallpox has broken out among the Indians of Rose Agency, T. and is becoming fearful in its ravages. The Indians at this agency number 500 and are Spotted Tail's band. Many have fled the reservation in terror.

Cedar county has a population of about three thousands, has twenty-eight school districts, and twenty-houses and six churches of different denominations. With this excellent start, and a railroad to develop the unsettled portions, Cedar might soon become one of the first counties in the state.

The Elk Point Courier of the 11th inst., states that those acquainted with coal mining say that the vein which underlies Ponca, extends under Union county, O. T., but not east of the Sioux river any great distance, and that the same vein can be found in Clay and Yankton counties, and on the Nebraska side of the river. The Courier also says:

"From the outlook at present the effort at Ponca will very likely prove successful. In that event the whole county tributary to Ponca will gain by it. In all probability mines will be opened on this side of the river, and thus another important industry will spring up of great interest to this country. The energy displayed by our Ponca friends is commendable in the extreme. If they are successful they will have accomplished a good thing for their county—something that will be for the good of the entire country. Every one is watching with great interest their experiments, as it will in all probability settle the fuel question."

The most common foods in the second class are fowl, game, eggs, cheese, sea food, dried beans, peas, lentils and peanuts. These foods are very concentrated and should be combined with other concentrated foods such as bread and cereals. Potatoes and non-starchy vegetables may be combined with these foods. Legumes should be used only as a meat substitute and should not be eaten in large quantities.

The third class of food causes a large part of the digestive disorders. These are starches, fats and sugars. They are concentrated and should be eaten sparingly. Whole wheat is best in all times. Breakfast foods with sugar and milk tend to overeat.

Writes of New Home At Norden, Nebraska

Excerpts from a letter written to the Wayne Herald Feb. 16, by Mrs. Ivor Morris of Norden, Neb., will be of interest to many Wayne county people. Mrs. and Mrs. Ivor Morris and daughter moved to a ranch near Norden about a year ago, and they are well pleased with the western part of the state. The letter in part is as follows:

"Just a few lines this spring morning to let you know we have not forgotten the Wayne Herald folks. We enjoy the Herald every week; it is like a letter from home. We like our new home here. Ev-erone is very sociable and our neighbors are just what we need. The road here but is four, five or more miles away.

"Our winter has been fine with the exception of Sunday's Omaha cold spells. Livestock is doing well and animals have not had to have much shelter. We are going on a ranch by order this spring. We have leased 800 acres, mostly pasture and hay land. Rent is much cheaper here than in Wayne county. Most all the corn and soybeans are up this year. There is lots of hay and it sells for $1 to $2.50 per ton. Many cattle are being fed here.

"I am in the same line of endeavor work again, having taken the president's place in district seven until the convention which will be April 4 to 6 in Atkinson."

Clamorous Pretense Solves No Problem

Demagogues were given editorial consideration in Sunday's Omaha Bee. The worthy pretender, was pointed out as an enemy to the rights of the people. The Bee quotes Alexander Hamilton and then makes apt comment as follows: "A dangerous ambition of more than ten lurks behind the specious mask of zeal for the rights of the people than under the forbidding appearance of zeal for the firmness and efficiency of government.

"History will teach us that the former has been the more certain road to the introduction of despotism than the latter, and that of those men who have overturned the liberties of republics, the greatest number have begun their career by paying an obsequious court to the people; commending demagogues and ending tyrants."

It would be well for the American people to pause and give consideration to the great truth contained in the above quotation. Great problems are not solved by clamorous demagogues. They are not solved by men who pose as the only ones who can save the people from themselves.

Right now, while the people are thoroughly aroused over the revelations of corruption in high places, is a most favorable moment for those who "wear the specious mask of zeal for the rights of the people" to mount the rostrum and demand that they be given an opportunity to manage public affairs. But it is of much more vital concern to the people that they be misled and deceived from following a legal and orderly course. It is of more concern to the people that they do not permit themselves to be misled and deceived by demagogues to lead into untried paths.

Seldom has it happened in the history of the republic that there was greater need for the people to keep cool. To consider thoughtfully. To move cautiously. Not only is it imperative that justice be done, it is equally imperative that injustice be not done.

Now is a good time for the people to hold fast to the ancient motto: "In this way alone can they save themselves from being cast loose by irresponsible hands."

Buy Your Ford Now

WITH spring almost here thousands of families, anticipating the demand that is certain to exist for Ford Cars and Trucks are placing their orders for immediate delivery.

Sales now are far ahead of sales at this time last year. Advance orders calling for delivery under the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan have already reached a total of 255,758 Cars and Trucks.

The prospect of securing prompt delivery is being becoming more uncertain. We cannot urge too strongly, therefore, the necessity for placing your order immediately, if you are planning to drive a Ford Car this spring.

See the nearest Authorized Ford Dealer.

Detroit, Michigan

It is not necessary to pay for your car in full in order to secure delivery. You can get on the payment plan for early delivery by making a small payment down. Or, if you wish, you can arrange for delivery under the terms of the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan.

Home Needs Should Receive Preference

A few weeks ago a Wayne station of affairs called the Herald's attention to the need of a good house at home before looking after the dirt in the dooryards abroad. While this paper has been thinking of the need of consistency of the need of reestablishing public service on a more sound and wholesome basis at home before much advice is given to foreign countries, the Sioux City Journal comes along with an editorial giving clear and forceful words to the subject of such consideration. Pollowing is the Journal's editorial which appeared in the Sunday issue:

When as it was said that no man should seek to remove the mote from a neighbor's eye with a beam in his own, it may be remarked that America would with better propriety attend the world on matters of conduct after she had set an example. Such example as is required does not happen to be available at the moment. The honest American conscience will admit nothing less.

"America has been heralded as a champion of peace; she is at war with herself. America preaches the brotherhood of man; she has men in high places who prey upon society. America strives for the elimination of the classes; she creates and colds them and nurtures them. America suggests open covenants openly breached; she is a graft and corruption, secret and dark and intriguing. America elects to criticize the foreign desire of aggression which brings conflict; from the top to the bottom her own citizenry dreams of riches and commits crimes to obtain them.

"America, it seems, has a first duty before going abroad to preach wisdom and truth and justice. That duty is to herself. America needs a cleansing purification. Then, perhaps, it would not ill become her to stand forth as a leader of nations, to call herself great, to exploit as a benefactor a benighted other race. "It is a big job that this country must undertake, now or later. The sooner it is undertaken the more certain is the realization that it has been finished. That task means the orderly examination of men and conditions with reference to government, national status and city. Such examination to be effective must be searching, relentless, unafraid. If such a study reveal strength and honesty and truth all the better. Something of value shall have been won. If it expose weakness and theft and falsehood, America will profit from the discovery. "The people would know at least, in that circumstance, what they wished to avoid in the future. "It is not to say that government has gone to pieces, that it has become altogether corrupt and untrustworthy. But it can be asserted with truth that government in this country is not what it should be. There are not and have not been at the head of affairs enough clear, straight men. It becomes necessary for the American people to put their trust in individuals. It is impossible always to see watch over an official to see whether he is straight or crooked. And trusts are betrayed. Such betrayals have been exposed in the federal government, in state affairs, in the official life of the biggest cities. Private business seems more secure. Crooks apparently prefer many victims, as the public, to a few.

"America is called upon to put her own house in order. The world is watching, to be sure, the events that are shocking the fine-sensibilities of the national life. There has come into being, in the last few years, a new and interesting interest in international relations. The interest of foreign countries in what America is doing—or is failing to do—is that of neighbors. Closer contacts exist now.

"America is called upon to put her own house in order. The world is watching, to be sure, the events that are shocking the fine-sensibilities of the national life. There has come into being, in the last few years, a new and interesting interest in international relations. The interest of foreign countries in what America is doing—or is failing to do—is that of neighbors. Closer contacts exist now.

The Age of Eyestrain

Reading print has reduced our normal range of vision from forty feet to fourteen inches. Nobody can tell how this has affected his eyesight until he has consulted an expert. Have your eyes examined at once.

W. B. Vail Phone Ash 3081 Wayne, Neb.

"What may be a nine days' wonder here may be a nine days' wonder all." "America's need of the hour, of the day, is honest men, straight thinking citizens. Not only in high positions, but in the body of the people. Indeed the country cannot go on fulfilling its purpose and reaching its destiny without them. Crooked men to betray the trust imposed in them? They commit crimes for fortune, seeking nothing of the fact that they are a tainted reward. Millions of dollars have been wasted in this way. America has been as lavish with treasure as with confidence, and America men of both wealth and sorrow. For today the man is rare who goes into office with all the people swearing by his honesty.

"No man would say too much in predicting that, until America takes the beam out of her own eye, she cannot hope to remove the mote from the eye of another. Perhaps this is a legacy of hated war, this graft and corruption, this miserable state of affairs. If only the crooked men could be outlawed, conflict. No people can be great in the world unless worthy of mankind's trust."

Too Great Tendency To Careless Attack

The too great tendency to point the finger of suspicion carelessly and without regard to due ground is emphasized by the Lincoln Journal. That paper stresses the fact that evidence of irregularity in office on the part of one should not bring attack on the generality of public officials. The Journal says:

"President Coolidge is veritably right in refusing against indiscriminate condemnation of public officials. Is that a defense of crooks? "Some of us think it the smart thing to bawl out each and every public official as a crook. If crooks and nothing but crooks in office is what we want, this is the way to get them. If office holding is to be per se a suspicious circumstance, then honest men will not hold office. If men refuse to hold office, it is a crook that will usually take the spy of the crook.

"In times of graft exposure such as this, the eye of suspicion and the tongue of defamation play on all alike. That is wrong and harmful. We need beware of too simply assuming men's honesty, but we need equally to beware of assuming their dishonesty. The most hopeless and helpless of men is the one to whom every other man is a villain.

"These exposures of corrupt men are due to the existence in office of incorruptible men. The latter are to the former probably as hundred to one. American public officials spend seven billion dollars of our money each year. There is no evidence that as much as one cent of this is handled dishonestly. Public officials are entitled to be held innocent until there is evidence of guilt. Act on the opposite assumption, and innocence will become the exception where now it is the rule."

Business

Sioux City Journal: There are many evidences at hand to prove the assertion that business is improving right along. New records are being made in the movement of general merchandise. Car loadings in winter have gone beyond those for the same months of last year. The last week in January had an increase of 1-2 per cent over the corresponding period of last year. It also may be pointed out that the figures broke all records for the same period in any other year in the history of railroading.

Railroads are not hauling goods anywhere to anybody just to keep busy. They are giving the service of transportation in exchange for the payment of freight bills. Neither are shippers sending out vast amounts of goods only to make a showing. Consignees are not ordering large quantities in order to boost the business of the jobbers and wholesalers. All these interests are engaged in one thing only: They are merely supplying the demand. Then it might be remarked that the consumers of the goods are not interested particularly in the welfare of the manufacturers who produce the goods, or in that of the retailers that haul them, or in that of the merchants who deliver them. The consumers are buying for two reasons because the jobbers and wholesalers what they are receiving and can pay for them. If the car loading figures do not indicate a steady upturn in business activity, the country will have to discover a new method of arriving at economic conclusions.

Take the banks for another barometer of business activity. The record for January is decidedly encouraging. Reports of clearing houses in 1924 show a gain in clearings. January of 4 per cent over December, 3 per cent over January of 1923, and 24 per cent over the same month of 1922. What on the subject of banks and banking, it is encouraging to note that the non-wanderers in financial and agricultural situations. Wholesome improvement henceforth. The ground work for rehabilitation of the South Dakota conditions has been laid by the government and private interests. Various big cities such as Chicago, Pittsburgh, Detroit and others have contributed so heavily to the financial service corporation that they have overburdened the fund of $10,000,000. That means something will be done to relieve the northwestern situation, especially since the government's own efforts in that direction have taken tangible form.

The reopening of the Sioux Falls National bank is now considered over by a question of time. A reorganization is under way. A stable foundation is to be built, and that institution, recently closed again will do business. That kind of thing restores confidence, which, after all, was the biggest requirement in a solution of the South Dakota problem. A few months from now, in all likelihood, the financial distress of the northwest will be only a memory. Just as soon as the new machinery for rehabilitation can be put in operation, a change will come. After that a steady return to normal may be expected.

The Teapot Dome scandal has caused the people throughout the country to worry somewhat over governmental administration and its connection with big business. That, too, will eventually pass and a normal condition will be restored. Oil stocks have suffered somewhat as a result of the expose of graft, but it cannot be said that the gasoline market has yet been affected.

The certainty of tax reduction going through the present congress brings general relief. Capital, large and small, will be free to move toward expansion after the law, yet to be made, becomes effective.

Hartington Depot Destroyed By Fire

Hartington, Neb., Feb. 18.—Fire, caused by an explosion of coal dust, Friday afternoon destroyed the Omaha railroad depot here. No one was injured in the explosion and nearly all of the company's records and fixtures were saved.

When a supply of coal was unloaded in the depot recently much snow was mixed with it. The snow was piled up in the coal bin and caused spontaneous combustion. It has been noticed that for several mornings when the building was opened for business it would be filled with coal gas, but it was not suspected that the gas was coming from the fuel supply. The fire was several persons in the building when the explosion, which shattered one end of the depot, occurred—but all escaped injury.

Some difficulty was experienced in fighting the flames. The first delay occurred on account of the slippery condition of the streets caused by a heavy snow which made it difficult for the volunteer fighters to drag the fire fighting equipment to the scene of the blaze. After reaching the blaze one of the lines burst, causing another delay. A temporary depot has arrived here and it is understood that a railroad company will take steps immediately to build a modern handsome structure.

New "Staff of Life" From Sorbyean

even it was all sold and customers stood waiting in-line for a serving. The baker asked the county agricultural agent, J. Robert Hall, to explain why this bread was so much better. Upon analyzing it the protein content was found doubled, ash increased materially and fat content more than twice as high as in white bread. This improved the modern "staff of life" at little or no increase in the cost to the consumer.

Its popularity has grown and spread rapidly. This nationally known association of farmers has had many calls for information as to how this nutritious bread is made and how they obtain the bean flour. Six other places in the state have started using it. At a state meeting recently held it was served as the main course of the luncheon. It is credited with properties that will relieve the health of heavy bread eaters.

Much praise is given this organization, the first of its kind in the United States which has as its object the production of a superior variety of this new bread, the former for feeding all classes of livestock. —The Bulletin, Lincoln, Mo.
